Graduate school, says Miss Duff, is definitely in the future. Since she is unsure as yet what she would like to get her master's degree in, she plans to hold a temporary job for a year before beginning graduate school. She is currently considering studying anthropology, for which she would most likely study at the University of North Carolina, University of Maryland, or University of West Virginia. Whatever her major, Miss Duff feels that she will most likely work in research after fully completing her education. She does hope to remain in Virginia and would especially like to be located in the state's mountainous areas.

Leigh Duff's enthusiasm about Longwood radiates. A supporter of the school's coeducation, she feels that "Longwood will benefit (from it) in the long run." She recognizes the current problems with the change but emphatically states, "I think that once we get a 50-50 ratio it will really be a good place to go to school."

Miss Duff will surely enter into graduate school and a lifetime career with the same optimism with which she entered Longwood and her major field of sociology.

The Class of 1982
Proudly Presents

FRESHMAN PRODUCTION

'79

Wednesday, February 28
8:00 P.M. Jarman

All are invited to support the Freshman and join in an entertaining evening of humor and sentiment.

Contributions Acknowledged Through Bicentennial Minutes

By BEULAH BOLDEN

During Black Culture Week, February 5-11, the Bicentennial Committee of the Afro-American Student Alliance acknowledged a few contributing black thinkers in various professions—poetry, music, politics, science, and medicine. The purpose was to provide the student body with insight into the awareness of being black, an insight into the theme "America, We Built It Too!", and to announce the event of the week. The committee included June Taylor (chairman), Christopher Artis, Beulah Bolden, Karen Peters, Letha Moore, Laurie Jones, Jan Hayden, Bill Hayes, and Pam Jones. Each day one or two of the committee members spoke over the intercom system in the dining hall during lunch and dinner.

On Monday Christopher Artis and Beulah Bolden expressed the fact that the awareness of being black has been the push on the shoulder for the black poet in America. It has brought a distinction and a beauty to language in "Same In Blues" by Langston Hughes, who wrote prose and music. He was a man who revealed his talent to a cultural phenomenon which we know of today as the Harlem Renaissance. He won numerous awards for his poetry: The Harmon Award, Guggenheim Fellowship, American Academy of Arts and Letters Grant, and Spingarn Medal, to name a few.

On Tuesday, Karen Peters gave the story of Negro music, which goes back to Africa where song was a medium by which the past was recorded, the present rendered more tolerable, and the future made less secure. From experiences as slaves, American negroes developed the spirituals. Louis Armstrong, Charlie Parker, Miles Davis, and Thelonius Monk were pioneers in jazz. Jazz seems to be the musical idiom of the mid-20th century.

Wednesday, Letha Moore presented an excerpt from Dr. Martin Luther King's famous speech "I Have a Dream." Dr. King was a clergyman and a prominent black civil rights leader. In 1964 he received the Nobel Peace Prize for his leadership of the nonviolent struggle for racial equality. Dr. King combined in his tactics direct mass action against racial discrimination and segregation with an attitude of understanding and love for those who denied human and civil rights for everyone. Dr. King died on April 4, 1968, but he left behind a "dream" that one day the black man will obtain equal human rights, equality under the law, and unselfish brotherhood.

On Thursday, Laurie Jones gave an insight into the contributions of Dr. George Washington Carver and Garret A. Morgan. Dr. Carver is one of the most famous scientists in the world. Interestingly and amazingly enough, he made shaving cream, ink, synthetic rubber, flour, metal polish, and other items from peanuts, sweet potatoes, and soybeans. In 1914, Garret A. Morgan perfected the gas mask and first used it in 1916 to save 20 men trapped underground in Cleveland, Ohio. Then, "in 1923 he invented the world's first automatic traffic signal."

Friday, Jan Hayden concentrated on James Derham. He was born a slave in Philadelphia in 1762. He became the first black physician in the United States after being trained in medicine while serving as an assistant to his master, who was a doctor by profession. Derham purchased his freedom in 1783 and was encouraged by his former master to set up his own practice. He practiced with both black and white clientele.

Saturday, Bill Hayes gave the contributions of Marcus Garvey and Thurgood Marshall. Marcus Garvey, a black nationalist and a precursor of the black separatist, sought to stress black pride, racial separation, and the resurrection of a great black nation in Africa. In 1917, he founded a Harlem branch of the Universal Negro Improvement Association. And, in 1919, he founded the Negro Factories Corporation in an effort to encourage black business. On October 2, 1967, Justice Hugo L. Black, once a member of the Ku Klux Klan, administered the oath to Thurgood Marshall as the first black associate justice of the United States Supreme Court. Marshall's most notable victory was the Brown Versus the Board of Education case in 1954.

Lastly, on Sunday, Pam Jones gave some of the contributions of Sammy Davis, Jr. He was born in 1925 in Harlem. He received his first glimpse of show business watching his father perform back stage. His first acting job was in an Army musical for which he got outstanding publicity. Davis was in many Broadway plays, such as Mr. Wonderful and Purlie, and appeared at many nightclubs in Las Vegas, such as the Hilton, Stardust, and Copacabana. In the field of acting, he is known for being the first black cowboy in Sargeant's Three. In the singing world Davis is known for "The Candy Man," which gave him world-wide fame. The music to this song has been used in many

(Continued on Page 8)

S-UN Sponsors Rugby Team

By DOUG STROBEL

The Longwood College Rugby Club is currently gearing up for its first season. Many students may remember the club's attempt to organize in the fall. At that time the club faced many obstacles in trying to form a viable organization. The club had a problem locating a sponsor, and a field. Many groups did not wish to sponsor the club for various reasons until they were fortunate enough to obtain a sponsorship for the Student Union. The club has also obtained permission to use the field which is located at the campus school. This field is an excellent playing surface because of its flatness and size.

Costs of balls and uniforms remained a formidable obstacle to hurdle. President Willett generously allocated some private funds for the purchase of rugby balls. Each participant will be asked to purchase his own uniform. These uniforms are a very attractive playing outfit done in white and blue.

A short explanation of the actual game of rugby will help to enlighten everyone's knowledge of a virtually misunderstood sport in America.

Rugby is the ancient ancestor of American football. The sport is a cross between soccer and football. Rugby is played on a field which is half as wide as an American football field and 110 yards in length.

The object of the game is to score a touchdown by touching the ball down in the end zone. It is not a touchdown just to cross the plane of the goal as in American football. A player must touch the ball on the ground in the goal.

There are 15 men on each side with eight men on the line and seven backs. The players line up in a scrum or in other words 16 men, eight on each side, attempting to get the ball to their backs after the ball is tossed in. The plays resemble sweeps in American football to a large degree. The plays resemble sweeps in American football to a large degree. The players are going down the field late to their backs, behind them in succession. Field goals and touchdowns are worth three points. There are two 40 minute halves with no timeouts except for injuries.

Tennant will be the coach of the team. He has played rugby extensively at such prominent sports schools as Ohio State.

The practices will be on Monday, Thursday and Sunday. They will go from 4:30-6:00 p.m. However, Coach Tennant realizes that many players will not be able to attend all three practices for various reasons. It is hoped that most participants will be able to attend at least 2 practices with an emphasis placed on the Sunday session. Conditioning is something which will be up to each individual. The actual learning of the game and the development of skills will be stressed during practice.

This whole attitude reflects the nature of rugby and Mr. Tennant's philosophy toward the sport. Rugby is not a highly disciplined or structured sport. It seeks to maximize the fun and social aspect of the game according to Mr. Tennant. For example, a keg is usually provided by the home team for all the players on both sides after the game. Mr. Tennant feels that while winning is important in rugby, there is more of a comradery aspect to the game. While the players battle it out on the field like gladiators they know that afterwards they will join together in an atmosphere of respect and good times. This is a significant deviation from the American perspective of winning is the only thing. Many Americans forget the very purpose of sports which is to have a good time and meet new people.

Mr. Tennant projects that practices will be starting as soon as the weather breaks. All interested students can come out for the team at anytime during the season. There is room for players of all shapes and sizes. So come on out and try your skill at this truly unique sport.

Lady Lancers Face Two Losses

By DEBBIE NORTHERN and TOM COLE

The Lady Lancers displayed one of their finest efforts last Wednesday against nationally top ranked Old Dominion while hit 43 per cent of their field goals, not off much from ODU's 45 per cent.

The Lancer's main handicap was height. The Monarchs often got more than one chance for a was able to head the Monarch scoring with 22, followed by Jan Trombly with 19, Rhonda Rompola with 14, and Angela Cotman with 13. The Monarchs played without the benefits of their star center, 6'5" Inge Nissen, who was out with an ankle injury.

All the Lancers had a fine game, but particularly the efforts of Nancy Wilson, Melissa Wiggins, Kitty Hughes and Lisa Ray were noticed. Not only did these players take the ball to the hoop, but they dived for loose balls and tied up the Monarchs quite often.

Last year the Monarchs posted two wins over the Lancers, but were beaten at Longwood the previous year. Longwood was the last state team to defeat ODU.

The Lady Lancers were in a 'must' win situation going into Saturday afternoon's game against Madison. The loss dropped Longwood's record to three wins and eight losses and any opportunity for post season play in the state tournament.

The first half of the game pitted Longwood's rounded attack of Brenda Fettrow, Cindy Landon, and Robin Hungate against Madison's star, Mendy Childress. Miss Childress had 27 points and eight rebounds in the first half as Longwood led, 34-33.

The score was even at 10:58 to play as Lancer Robin Hungate sunk a key bucket. However, from that point on, the Lancers committed 13 fouls that accounted for ten big Madison points from the charity stripe. The final score was 61-50.

Brenda Fettrow (23) has a close encounter with ODU's Angela Cotman while teammate Lisa Ray puts the ball in the air.

Photo by Debbie Northern

University in front of a capacity crowd in French Gym. The Lancers fell heavily 89-47 but the one-sided score, does not reveal the intensity of LC's play.

ODU took command early and held Longwood scoreless for several minutes while they racked up points. Longwood finally got some fast breaks down the court, but the Monarchs had already jumped 20 points ahead. At the half, LC trailed 23-54.

Longwood faced the second half with a determination to make ODU work for a win. The Lancers hustled and were very aggressive in the fast-paced contest.

The second half saw Longwood having more success blocking out their taller opponents for the rebounds. Smart Lancer positioning drew five fouls on six foot Monarch, Linda Jerome, and four on All-American Nancy Lieberman.

Robin Hungate led the Lancer scoring with thirteen points. Also in double figures was Melissa Wiggins with 10 points and four rebounds. Brenda Fettrow had five rebounds. The team as a bucket, and held the Lancers to just one try. The Lancer's also faced many turnovers, in their eagerness to get down the court.

Defensively Longwood held the Monarchs pretty tight, pressuring them into some mistakes. Yet, Nancy Lieberman

Melissa Wiggins controls the ball against ODU.

Photo by Debbie Northern

Nancy Wilson dodges the defense for a bucket.

Photo by Debbie Northern

WOMEN'S STATISTICS VS ODU

	FG	FT	R	A	PF	TP
Hughes	4 7	0 1	1	1	0	8
Wilson	3 7	0 0	3	0	4	6
Wiggins	5 9	0 3	4	4	4	10
Ray	2 5	4 7	1	0	2	8
Fettrow	1 8	0 0	5	3	4	2
Landon	1 2	2 2	2	0	2	4
Hungate	5 10	3 5	2	0	2	13
Pullen	1 1	0 0	0	0	2	2
Gates	0 3	1 2	2	0	0	1
Total	22 52	10 20	19	8	20	47
ODU	36 80	17 21	41	15	23	89

Fencers Third In State

The Longwood Lancer Fencing team, who has previously won four State titles tried for their fifth this past week end at William and Mary.

Despite a fine effort by team members Freshman Bonnie Arroyo, Sophomores Melanie Harp, Anne Marie Messier and Debbie Trent, and Junior Kim

"Pee Wee" Gilbert, Longwood placed third in the state.

The Lancers placed two fencers in the top four; number three was Anne Marie Messier (3-4) and fourth was Melanie Harp (3-4). Maureen Dunn of William and Mary took first winning all seven of her bouts.

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Phone 392-4154

Lancers Take First In Tournament

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood Lancer basketball team captured first place in the February 23-24 Virginia Kiwanis Invitational Tournament held in Bluefield College's Golden Dome Arena. The Lancers won the championship by defeating the Scots of Ohio Valley College on Friday night by the score of 90-66 and by winning 84-70 over the host team, the Ramblin' Rams of Bluefield College, on Saturday afternoon.

This tournament victory marks the first championship ever won by a men's intercollegiate team at Longwood and ups the team's overall record to 18-8.

The Lancers spotted Ohio Valley 5 points before the referees started the game clock. Longwood was assessed 5 technical fouls for reporting the wrong uniform numbers in the official scorebook. Ohio Valley's Dan Wagner hit 3 out of the 5 free throws awarded to the Scots, and Gordon Little added an Ohio Valley bucket at 19:40 into the half to take a 5-0 lead.

But Longwood was not to be denied as its pressing defense and superiority on the boards unleashed the Lancers' potent fast break. Longwood's point production for the first half was keyed by Kevin Newton (13), Shack Leonard (12), and Randy Johnson (11).

Teamwork was the weapon that spelled doom for the Scots in the second half. Longwood kept pressing the Scots, forcing them to take low percentage shots. The Lancers would initiate the fast break on the rebound and thwart any Ohio Valley comeback attempts.

Demonstrating the kind of shooting that has kept them ranked among the leading teams in the nation in field goal percentage, the Lancers connected on 35 of the 50 shots (.700) for the game. Much of their success can be attributed to the outstanding performance of Randy Johnson. Johnson, who tied Ohio Valley's Wagner for game honors with 23 points, was absolutely flawless in the game as he pumped in all 7 of his shots from the floor (1,000) and connected on all 9 of his free throws (1,000). To round out his fine play, he grabbed 7 rebounds and had 3 assists.

The host team, Bluefield, advanced to the finals by defeating Warren Wilson College in the second game of Friday night's double-header.

In Saturday's consolation game, Ohio Valley defeated Warren Wilson to take the third-place trophy. Warren Wilson was awarded the sportsmanship trophy for the tournament.

The championship game pitted Longwood against Bluefield, and the Lancers had to adjust to the home court advantage enjoyed by the Rams.

The Lancers, however, did not fold under the pressure. After struggling for most of the first 5 minutes of the game, Longwood pulled even on a Kenny Ford jumper at 15:31 but did not take the lead in the game until Randy Johnson hit a jumper at 14:21 to put the score at 8-6, Longwood. The Lancers then began to assert their offense and their fast break, powering their way to a 44-34 halftime lead.

Longwood came out of the locker room for the second half breathing fire with 6'10" Al Murray providing the spark. Murray pumped in the first 2 points of the half on a lay-up and then snuffed a Bluefield attempt with an authoritative block. His intensity in this series ignited the Lancers' fast-break offense as all the team contributed to the effort. Longwood broke the game open as Bluefield could not cut the Lancer lead to less than 10 points in the second half, and the final score was Longwood 84, Bluefield 70.

Bluefield was also dominated statistically as they shot 41 per cent from the field to Longwood's impressive 72 per cent.

The Lancers placed 5 members in double figures as Ford scored 20, Alston 16, Leonard 14, Newton 13, and Johnson 12 for the Lancer victory.

Following the game, Longwood was awarded the first-place trophy, and Leonard and Ford were named to the All-Tournament Team.

The Lancers close out their season Tuesday in a make-up game at Clinch Valley.

Longwood Coach Ron Bash and Lancer Tri-Captains Shack Leonard, Kevin Newton, and Byron Bracey accept the first-place trophy in the Virginia Kiwanis Invitational Tournament held in Bluefield February 23-24. Photo by—Beth McKinney

Lancers Nationally Ranked

From Sports Information
The latest report of the NCAA Statistics Service shows Longwood in the number three spot in team field goal percentage. With 661 field goals for 1128 attempts, the Lancers are shooting .586 to retain their ranking among leading teams in the nation.

(126-198), and Kenny Ford, at .633 (124-196), rank sixth and seventh respectively in the nation.

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

With Billiards, ping pong and badminton well underway, the IAA has their hands full. Women's billiards is finished and the new champion is Elaine Hughes. The tournament scores were:

Feb. 8 — Joyce Ray over Alex Boyd 44-23; Robyn Walker over Liz Flagg 20-18

Feb. 12 — Elaine Hughes over Joyce Ray 50-37

Feb. 13 — Liz Flagg won by forfeit; Elaine Hughes over Robyn Walker 44-28

Feb. 14 — Elaine Hughes won by forfeit

Feb. 15 — Robyn Walker won by forfeit

Feb. 19 — Joyce Ray won by forfeit

Feb. 20 — Joyce Ray over Robyn Walker 47-25; Elaine Hughes won by forfeit

Men's billiards is still being played. The results so far are:
Feb. 8 — J. Love over David Speaks 50-32

Feb. 13 — J. Love over Earl Witcher 50-47; David Mitchell over Wayne Moore 50-9

Feb. 19 — Alan Ferris over David Speaks 50-27

Feb. 20 — David Mitchell over Wayne Moore 50-9

Feb. 21 — Randy Johnson over Wayne Moore 50-47

Feb. 22 — Alan Ferris over Earl Witcher 50-42

Men's Ping Pong scores:

Feb. 13 — Randy Johnson over D. Wiley; J. Bryant over L. Dollins

Feb. 15 — R. Carson over R. Johnson; R. Gaskill over S. Bolt; W. Dunkley over R. Johnson

Women's Ping Pong scores are:

Feb. 8 — Debbie Northern over Linda Meadows

Feb. 12 — Janet Young over Mary J. Suxton

Feb. 13 — Janet Young over Linda Meadows

Feb. 14 — Debbie Northern over Mary J. Suxton

Feb. 19 — D. Northern over Janet Young

The badminton scores will be in the next Rotunda issue.

As if the above events weren't enough, the IAA has some fun activities planned for March. A backgammon tournament will begin March 29. In addition, one night during March, there will be a square dance night sponsored by the IAA. The date has not been verified yet. As soon as the date is verified, it will be announced. Please keep watching the bulletin board in the New Smoker for all IAA announcements.

1978-79 MEN'S BASKETBALL STATISTICS

INDIVIDUAL AND TEAM STATISTICS

Player	G	PTS	FG	FT	PF	REB	AST	BLK	STL	PTS	FG	FT	PF	REB	AST	BLK	STL
Tom Alston	23	136-211	.627	80-100	.800	138	6.0	10	58	352	15.3
Byron Bracey	21	111-201	.550	6-13	.462	15	0.8	2	8	28	1.4
Ray DeLadurantaye	10-17	58-85	.682	1-5	.200	2	0.2	3	4	21	2.3
Shack Leonard	23	136-224	.607	130-141	.922	14	0.9	6	10	54	3.6
William Ford	23	136-224	.607	47-72	.653	97	4.2	34	80	375	16.1
Bill Preter	23	136-224	.607	17-20	.850	9	0.6	6	19	27	1.7
Pillot Hedley	7	8-14	.567	4-4	1.000	5	0.7	4	5	16	2.3
Pete Hofertichew	4	5-9	.555	3-8	.375	9	1.5	3	3	13	2.2
Ron Johnson	23	136-224	.607	13-25	.520	15	1.1	23	29	87	6.2
Randy Johnson	21	181-115	.678	34-58	.586	87	4.1	21	42	188	9.0
Joe Kelly	1	1-3	.333	1-4	.250	3	1.0	0	0	3	1.0
Shack Leonard	23	143-281	.548	82-108	.759	71	3.1	106	107	368	16.0
Shack Leonard	23	153-232	.614	9-20	.450	77	3.3	3	21	79	3.4
Kevin Newton	24	143-239	.605	43-64	.672	69	3.0	47	50	169	7.3

Ford And Leonard Named Outstanding Players

By CHUCK COLE

Kenny Ford has been named Longwood College's Player of the Week for an unprecedented third time for his superlative performances against North Carolina Wesleyan and King Colleges. He has also received the McDonald's Player of the Week Award as the outstanding Lancer basketball player for the fourth time this season.

Ford, a resident of Shelby, North Carolina, was selected for his honor for shooting 17-28 from the floor in these 2 games. He also collected 5 out of his 8 free throws and used his extraordinary leaping ability to grab 12 rebounds. He was instrumental in both the Lancer offense and defense, keying both Longwood victories.

In addition, Ford is currently ranked seventh in the NCAA, Division III individual leaders in field goal percentage, having connected on 124 out of 196 attempts for a .633 mark.

SHACK LEONARD

Shack Leonard, a starter on the 18-8 Lancer basketball team, has been selected Longwood College's Player of the Week for his outstanding performances in the Lancers' recent games against Radford and Liberty Baptist.

Leonard, a 6'2" guard, served as the catalyst for the Longwood offense by combining his ball-handling ability with his accurate shooting. He pumped in 21 points in the Radford game and shot 69 per cent from the floor.

He also contributed a game-high 27 points in the contest with Liberty Baptist. In this game, he connected on 11 of his 13 shots from the floor for an amazing 85 per cent. He also led in assists, with 7 to his credit.

Leonard's 89 per cent free throw average for the 2 games further proves his versatility.

Leonard, who came to Longwood following a successful career at Palm Beach Junior College, is a native of Riviera Beach, Florida, and is the son of Mrs. Lois Leonard Cook of that city.

Good Luck
Lady Lancers

Hamlet Reviewed

(Continued from Page 1)

hysterical sense of triumph. Willis did, however, permit the touches of humor to come through, and one could believe that he had been "the glass of fashion and the mould of form." Also, he brought the necessary youthful quality to the role, at once his greatest asset and his greatest limitation.

All in all, apart from the general tendency to be slow in picking up cues and feet, so much was good on Jarman Stage last week that it seems almost capricious to mention three omissions which may only be results of personal prejudices. I was, however, curious as to why the upper levels of the stage were not used more; I wanted to see the ghost on one of the parapets, even though I missed Hamlet's line about "higher ground." Also, the traditional staging of the prayer scene, having Hamlet above and behind Claudius, is more effective theatrically than having them on the same level. Then, I missed Fortinbras, especially at the end of the play. His command that four captains bear Hamlet to the highest state emphasizes the fact that the prince, as Claudius's designated successor, is only for a few moments had been king. To end the play with Hamlet's death makes pathos of what was intended to be tragic.

Which leads to the third omission, and this is probably a purely subjective one. Except for a few instances, I missed that all-encompassing sense of royalty, of a dimension "larger than life" which the play demands. The characters involved here are presented as aristocrats, people of wealth, power, and influence, who, even when they sin, do so with style. They have manner, as well as manners, resulting not only from generations of good breeding, but also from habitual observance of what might be called the rituals of courtesy; and it is this inherent quality in them which makes their evil actions so horrendous. One of the fascinations of the play is the way Shakespeare shows how those in positions of authority and responsibility can gradually be drawn into a net of corruption through their all-too-human appetites, and therein lay the lesson for his own time. Therein, for that matter, for all time.

Contributions

(Continued from Page 5)

commercial, such as the one for M&M Candies.

It is ironic that blackness for so long being a handicap in almost every aspect of development should also be in intellectual and artistic strength. However, the American Black man has heritage, culture, and history and worked in the American tradition of life with an air of dignity. The mere fact of being black is not all there is. For everyone it has a different and special meaning which is expressed from within.

Black Culture Week is one of AASA's biggest events of every academic year. This year was the first attempt to present Bicentennial Minutes. The Bicentennial Committee is commended for its bold and eager efforts to inform the student body about the accomplishments and contributions of American black men. The members of AASA would like to express their appreciation to everyone who gave his or her attention to support Black Culture Week.

LETTERS

(Continued from Page 4)

are not hell-raising, destructive maniacs. I would go so far as to say that less than one third of the total residence is involved in these illegal activities. But this minority has made life unbearable for the other two thirds and it is more difficult than some people believe to bring a halt to the crimes taking place in our hallowed halls.

As regards second and third floors, which are considered the two main contenders for the "worst hall" award, I think it completely unjust to condemn each individual who lives on either of these halls, simply because they do live there.

Third floor, composed of freshmen, has caused certain views to be expressed contending that all of these males are unable to control themselves, or something to that effect. Admittedly, this floor may have more than its share of rowdy freshmen, but can we so easily attach labels of disapproval to all of its residents?

And notorious second floor, the Olympia for rabble rousers according to the grapevine press, does contain a majority of normal students rather than a minority. However, it does contain one illustrious group that calls itself the baseball team. I do not intend to imply that these students are responsible for all of the destruction and mishaps that have occurred, but none of them can deny that some of their parties have gotten out of hand, to say the least, and since it appears that most of the damage is done at such times, well, two and two do make four, even at Longwood.

It is also a fact that some of the doors that were damaged on second floor had holes in them that a baseball would have fit in very well. I have also heard of one incident where a resident, after hearing repeated loud bangs on his door, opened it, and saw two very impressive holes therein. The door across the hall was open, and standing inside the room was a slightly inebriated "athlete," with a baseball in his hand, and an insidious grin on his face. After being confronted with an accusation, he made no attempt to deny that he had done the deed, but expressed the view that if anything was said about the damage, he and his "buddies" would be avenged. Undaunted, the offended resident discussed the matter with the R.A., who decided that the only way any action could be taken was if he had actually seen the baseball thrown. This reeks of stupidity, since the only way he could have seen the ball thrown would have been if he had opened the door at just the right moment and caught said ball in his mouth. Do we need cameras and tape recorders to get complete evidence?

It has also become evident that much of the damage inflicted is done by people who do not even live in Cox, but come to our dorm for their hell-raising because they know that we already have a bad reputation and will be blamed for anything that happens.

In closing, I would like to ask that people reconsider the growing view that Cox is another Animal House, composed totally of sub-humans or worse. Most of us are merely victims of circumstance, and gladly await next year's chance to move into a safer, saner dorm.

Sincerely,
A Concerned Resident

Scholarship Bank

Introduced

A new service designed to assist students in need of financial aid to continue school or plan for graduate school was announced recently by The Scholarship Bank.

The new service will give each student a print-out of the scholarships, loans, grants and work-study sources available to him or her in that student's specific field.

Students apply by writing for and filling out a questionnaire which is then used as the key to the data bank. The questionnaire is like a mini-profile of each student, seeking information on year in school, major, occupational objectives, sex, religion, parents' union, employer and military service and student's outstanding abilities, such as leadership experience or sports. The Scholarship Bank is the only program that offers a full listing of all graduate and post-graduate scholarships, which would be of interest to all grad students and even faculty. The data bank guarantees that each student will receive at least $100 in aid, or the service fee of $25 will be refunded.

The service will also send each applicant a publication on How To Play Grantmanship, which will be of help to the students in applying for the aid. The Scholarship Bank cooperates with financial aids offices and does not duplicate their services, according to the director. Most financial aids offices give information only on sources that they administer.

Write to Scholarship Bank, 10100 Santa Monica Ave. 750, L. A. 90067 for an application. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and the required fee.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

Share
a tradition
with Thomas
Jefferson.

The authentic
Jefferson Cup.

In 1810, Thomas Jefferson designed a handsome, round-bottomed drinking cup. He commissioned a Virginia silversmith to craft eight cups in silver lined with gold. Jefferson treasured them highly, and bequeathed seven to his daughter for her children.

Steff faithfully reproduced the eight-ounce Jefferson Cup (as well as two-ounce miniatures), for you and your family. It is the only authentic reproduction available—truly something to treasure and hand down.

In sterling (with or without gold lining) and pewter.

Martin
The Jeweler
MAIN ST., FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4904

WISDOM is...

giving to the March of Dimes

Birth defects are forever.
Unless you help.

the
HAIR SHAFT

"Hairstyling For The Whole Family"

RHONDA BARTON OR
LINDA "Jill" DUNEVANT
HOURS:

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. - Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

ALL SWEATERS

50% OFF

— With This Ad —

IT PAYS TO SHOP MCKAY'S!

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN:

Mon. Thur. Til 10 PM. Fri. & Sat. Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5685
—Beer on premises until 10 PM.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, TUESDAY, MARCH 6, 1979

No. 18

Student Gov't. Day Stresses Communication

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Student Government Day on March 1 began with a staff meeting to which students were invited to see how administrative communication is handled.

At lunch time students had the opportunity to eat with administration and faculty members to discuss college policies and other topics of interest. Following this was a Mock Judicial Board trial which was a replica of an actual trial.

Students were also given an opportunity to see directly the duties of administrators by signing up to be with them some time during the day. The premise behind the whole Student Government Day was to improve communication between students and faculty administration. All participants gained insights into the roles of administration and faculty.

I had the opportunity to spend the day with Dr. Robert Lehman, a man behind the scenes at Longwood College.

Dr. Lehman occupies an office off Dean Well's. On one wall hang degrees from various alumnates and in the bookcases stand administrative reports surrounded by science books. His desk was full, but not cluttered.

I didn't know this administrator's title or duties, but during Student Government Day I got to find out a lot about him. I met with him bright and early Thursday morning, 8:15, in fact.

In between bites of his Egg McMuffin, Dr. Lehman explained to me that he was Administrative Assistant to the Dean and Director of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions. These duties include year round work and coordination.

Dr. Lehman said Longwood offers a variety of courses (23 totaled in such areas as education, social work, science, art, and mathematics) in ten locations. The Longwood Continuing Education Program is offered in Amelia, Brunswick, Campbell, Charlotte, Halifax, Mecklenburg, Nottoway and Prince Edward counties. Also classes are held in Alberta and Lynchburg. It has been in existence for three years, expanding from just 23 students to 900. Instructors, provided from the Longwood faculty, drive up to 60 miles to teach these classes. The tuition brought in from these classes entirely supports the Continuing Education Program, which pays the faculty members.

Dr. Lehman noted that the University of Virginia was our competition in continuing education courses. He stated that "why we do so well in the competition is that our regular, on-campus teachers do the teaching." The adults know that they are getting their money's worth.

Dr. Lehman also supervises the on-site Masters Degree Programs offered in Halifax, Mecklenburg, Lawrenceville, and Amelia. The program requires that students only come onto the campus to take exams. Dr. Lehman explained that the concept is based on the premise that it is "easier for one teacher to drive to them" than 30 or more people driving to Longwood.

Dr. Lehman came to Longwood in 1966 as Assistant Professor of Biology. This year is the first time he has not taught a class, but he plans on returning to the classroom next year. He says, "Every administrator should teach one semester in order to stay in touch with students."

He served a year with the American Council in Education as an Academic Fellow in 1976-77.

There he read 58 books on education, attended seminars and set objectives. He feels that the experience has made him a better administrator. This experience also helped him when he served on the Prince Edward County School Board as well as his present duties. He also gives lectures on hallugenic plants to interested groups. He tells his audience that "nutmeg can be just as bad as hard drugs."

Dr. Lehman believes in keeping up on his field which is biology. Yet, he also must keep abreast with his administrative duties and be constantly trying to perfect and add to the Continuing Education Program.

Before I left he was trying to drum up a class in the fall on Rhythm Physical Education for K-6 at an area school. From what I heard, the class will probably be started.

Students and faculty converse over dinner at the banquet held on Student Government Day.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Sophomore Week Underway

By LISSA SANDIDGE

As the first week of March hits, what is the first thing that comes to mind? SPRING BREAK!! No, no this week is Sophomore week, a big week for the many students who are participating in this weeks events. Much hard work and planning has gone into the perfection of the plans for each day. Berkely Harland, the chairman for Sophomore Week said that the preparation has taken a long time, but feels that all involved will be rewarded in the end.

The most fulfilling point of the week will be the road show, which is to be presented on Wednesday for two large groups of children at two places in Richmond. The show is a presentation of A.A. Milne's Pooh Goes Visiting and Gets into a Tight Spot, where Pooh Bear, played by Jeanne McLaren, visits Rabbit, played by Linda Pascall. Pooh proceeds to eat all the honey Rabbit has to offer and gets stuck in the door trying to leave. While Pooh's sad conte continues the clowns that are traveling with the group, are doing their duty by passing out candy, tumbling across the floor, and "spreading happiness to the children." Their happy-go-lucky attitudes provide enchanting interactions for the kids, and generally keeps them occupied the entire time the group is there.

Thursday is another big day for the group, as the Sophomore Auction comes to life at 8:00 in the Gold Room. The auctioneer for this event, is Longwood's own Dr. Webster. He will auction off articles supplied by the students, faculty, and assorted businesses from the thriving metropolis of Farmville.

As the week end approaches, so does the mixer that is to be held on Friday night. As many problems arose in the planning of the big week, Friday night was to be no exception. The band decided that they were having problems too, and broke up at the last minute to go their own separate ways. However the mixer will still go on! Steve McAras will be there from 8:00 p.m. until 12:00 a.m. in the Lower Dining Hall, providing us with an assortment of tapes to fit everyone's taste. From Bop to Disco, we can all dance into oblivion to the beat of our favorite performers.

The class of 1981 urges everyone to participate in the week's activities, so come on everyone, pull out those class colors on color class days, take part in the Sophomore Auction, and Dance like mad at the mixer. Come on out and show your Longwood spirit this week.

FALL 1979 HOUSING PLANS

The following plan reflects input from Legislative Board, the student body, various groups of representative students, and administrative and staff considerations.

North Cunningham — freshman men
Tabb — freshman women
French — open to all women
Wheeler, South Cunningham, Curry — open to all women, including freshmen

Frazer second and third floors — open to all men with the exception of the designated fraternity area on the second floor
Cox — open to all men

Main Cunningham — open to all men
Frazer fifth through tenth floors — open to all women
Stubbs will house all of the sororities.

Frazer fourth floor will be undesignated until it is determined whether it is needed for men or women. Students currently residing on the fourth floor will be allowed to homestead elsewhere provided all criteria are met.

Notes:

1. Rising sophomores may not homestead.
2. Second and third floor Curry are no longer designated sorority floors. Students currently residing on those floors may homestead provided all criteria are met.
3. Upperclass transfer students who were placed in South Cunningham for this academic year may homestead provided all criteria are met.

Director of Housing
Longwood College
March 2, 1979

This year's Freshman production was designed to show the class of '82's love for Longwood and its traditions. Photos by Melody Crawley

Escort System At Standstill

By ELIZABETH BRYANT

Recently there was a movement on campus to start an Escort service, such as the type in use at Old Dominion and William and Mary Colleges. This system would allow any students on campus to call for someone to accompany them wherever they might wish to go. PHI KAPPA PHI fraternity had volunteered its members for this job and the Legislative board had even gone so far as to have a phone set up for this purpose when, suddenly, all the plans for this project came to a halt.

The fraternity decided that it could not possibly handle the job by itself, lacking both sufficient time and personnel to always be "on call" in this manner. The other fraternities were appealed to, and even the idea of getting a sorority to help out was considered, but a workable alternative has yet to be found.

One reason for the seeming lack of interest in the Escort system is the feeling, shared by many, that Longwood, having a small campus and being well lighted, has no need of such a system. But, in contrast to this opinion, complaints are still being heard from those who feel "unsafe" in walking alone on campus at night.

For whatever the reason, either from the inability to find a practical system or to a lack of interest, the plans for an escort system at Longwood are at a dead-stop, with no decision on its future in sight.

Federation Update

By BRENDA BONUCELLI

The Federation of Student Social Workers has much planned for March—Social Work month.

First, buttons have been designed by the Social Work Federation. These buttons can be worn by anyone, however, as they are not confined to a slogan applicable to only Social Work majors.

The cabin retreat planned for last Thursday night had to be cancelled because of muddy conditions. It will be re-scheduled either this week or later in April.

Two speakers have been scheduled, one this past Wednesday on Rape and another March 7 on Alcoholism. This speaker will be in Grainger 210 at 7:30. Anyone is welcome.

A banquet for the social work department is planned for March 13. This will be like the ones the department has had before. The Federation is trying to schedule a banquet once a month. The banquets in the past have been very relaxing and beneficial. Dinner and a speaker help to bring questions or problems out in the open. It is also good to get together with friends that college life sometimes keeps us too busy to see.

Future events in the making are a possible field trip and a cook out. Suggestions are being taken concerning either of these. Much planning is still needed.

The Federation has become very busy this month—and has organized many interesting activities. Check some out, become involved and support the social work department.

NEWS GLIMPSES

By CHERYL WILCOX

China's invasion force in Vietnam has captured the key provincial capital of Lang Son and, according to Kyodo, the Japanese press service, was preparing yesterday for a cease-fire and withdrawal back across the border into China.

Diplomatic sources at the White House indicated that his week's talks between President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin were near a dead end with Begin refusing to budge.

President Jimmy Carter will possibly be in Richmond for a $50-a-plate fiesta scheduled for April 7 at the Hotel John Marshall. This will be the 1979 Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

New photographs from the Voyager 1 space craft are showing the moons of Jupiter in increasing detail revealing for the first time long dark streaks that could be fault lines on Europa and a huge bull's eye feature on Io that mystifies scientists.

Freshman Production Reflects Spirit

By LAURIE HOFFMAN and BRENDA BONUCELLI

The Freshman Production skit which was presented at 8 p.m. on February 28 in Jarman did, as freshman class president Duke Rollins said, have a definite message behind it. Tri-chairmen Ken Marcus, Gwen Pointer, and Liz Sheridan put together a show which reflected the spirit of Longwood and the class of 1982. The class belief in leaning on each other was evident throughout the play and especially in the ending song.

Narrator, Cheryl Harper helped to tie the entire skit together with her humorous comments and actions. The members of an orientation group were first introduced individually with their parents. This group included a wide variety of types which are found at Longwood: a snob, female jock, Don Juan, mama's girl, alkie, sleaze, campus clown, study wart, and Suzie Sunshine.

By way of a culmination of the brilliant minds of the tri-chairmen and the clever ingenuity of the script committee, the idea evolved of modeling certain characters after the personalities of some upperclassmen.

The audience met Colleague Betty Ann Wynott and orientation leader Hunk Boredom. Ken Marcus as Hunk looked very much like the senior he was imitating and employed many of the gestures common to him. The orientation meeting following this scene was typical—bored freshmen awaited only the end of the meeting to pursue their own interests. Colleague Jan Dates later dropped by to greet the freshmen. Deb Smith must be commended for a near-perfect portrayal of Junior Jan Bates; her expressions, gestures, and speech were exactly like those of the model for her character.

Chi members Petie Grip, Teresa McFoghorn, Panda Weteron, Donna Constantly, Linda Kelp, Ann Johnston, Jan Dates, and Linda Rascall really had their problems throughout the skit. A fire drill took place during their first walk, which ended with members seeking refuge in a passing garbage truck. Ann Johnston, played by Maureen Mulcahy, lost about two feet in height after getting caught in the compactor here. Subsequent walks in the dining hall and the library failed to attract attention. The attempts to be noticed brought much laughter from the audience. It was only after the actors had experienced many events of college life that they noticed Chi—or the spirit of Longwood College. Through this blue and white message the freshmen realized how much they loved and needed one another.

Well-known figures from outside Longwood campus were also illustrated. Among these, of course, had to be Steve Martinson, exceptionally done by Duke Rollins.

The production had surprises for everyone. Flower arrangements sent to show the support behind the freshmen, covered an entire make-up table. These arrangements were beautiful and were admired all night long.

A letter from Chi to the freshmen class caused much pride and excitement. The letter expressed a feeling of love for the class of '82 and the blue and white spirit.

Another surprise, looked forward to by all the cast was in the dining hall scene. In case there is any doubt, this scene was totally unexpected by Duke Rollins. Because of last minute arrangements, the pie pan had to be filled with shaving cream instead of whipped cream. This caused a slight sight problem for Duke, but all was taken care of with a few "seeing eyes" and a wet towel.

Overall, the skit was well-done and very much enjoyed by the audience. The set was very simple and might have stood a little more work, but it was ample. The acting was good on the whole and the script well-written. The sound and lighting were an asset to the entire skit.

Following the skit, members of the cast and crew joined together to sing "Hey, Did We Ever Say Thank You?" to their fellow students. Gwen Pointer then read a letter stressing blue and white spirit which the freshman class had received from Chi. With a prayer before and a candlelit song after, the freshman class has proven their love for Longwood. The next three years promise to bring forth many extraordinary things.

Students phone Parent's in the Annual Parents Fund Phon-a-thon, last week. Photos by Jackie Steer

Parents Phon-a-thon Successful;

Alumni Phon-a-thon Underway

By PAM WAGNER and VAL CAMPBELL

Last week students raised $6,393.00 during the Parent's Phon-a-thon. Everyone had a fun time talking to the Parents of their friends and acquaintances. The totals for each night were: Monday, $1415.00; Tuesday, $2,108.00; Wednesday, $1,285.00; and Thursday, $1,585.00. Prizes were also given to those workers who received the highest number of pledges and/or amount of money. The following were prize winners: Monday night's first place winner was Janice Lembo. She had 14 pledges and $220.00. Second place winners were Pam Wagner with nine pledges and $175.00, also Beth Parrott with 11 pledges and $150.00. Tuesday's first place winner was Robyn Black. She had 18 pledges and $340.00. Second place winners were Pam Taylor with 15 pledges and $210.00, also Susan Collins with 14 pledges and $318.00. Wednesday night winners were: first place, Beth Parrott with 19 pledges and $300.00; second place, Terry Keesee with ten pledges and $125.00, also Doug Strobe with eight pledges and $180.00.

Thursday's winners were: first place, Beth Parrott with 19 pledges and $385.00; and second place, Robyn Black with 11 pledges and $230.00.

All the workers did a super job their time and efforts were greatly appreciated. The parents also deserve a special thanks in that they care enough to make contributions which enable Longwood to better educate the students.

This week, Alumni from the area, along with students, will be calling Alumni of their reunion year during Farmville's First Phon-a-thon. Many of the Alumni calling are presently serving Longwood in many capacities. The following Alumni will be helping with the Phon-a-thon: Elaine Jackson '74, Elsie Fulcher '42, Cecil Kidd '61, Cathy McCanness '74, Anne Lund '67, Malinda Ayres '60, Eleanor Bobbitt '52, Mary Jo Dollins '73, Bette McKinney '69, Terrie Swann '64, Jeanne Lafoon '54, Nancy Andrews '59, Bette Bass '77, Mabel Jones '61, Candy Dowdy '69, Anita Grant '72, and Niki Fallis '63. The Phon-a-thon is being held March 5th through March 8th from 6:30 to 9:00.

Dello Joio, Visiting Composer

By SHARON JANOVICH and PUBLIC RELATIONS
"It is exciting to see works I've composed, actually performed by real human beings!", remarked this year's visiting composer, Norman Dello Joio, during the rehearsal with the Concert Choir. The renowned American composer is the guest for Longwood College's Contemporary Music Symposium, scheduled for March 4-6.

Norman Dello Joio is one of the most well known and distinguished contemporary composers. He came from a musical family, and was exposed to music at approximately three years of age. He began composing numerous works as a youngster and continued his studies at Juilliard School of Music and engaged in private study with Pietro Yon and Paul Hindemith.

His honors and awards include the Pulitzer Prize in Music in 1957 (for Meditations on Ecclesiastes), two Guggenheim Fellowships, two awards from the New York Music Critics Circle, and an Emmy for his score for the television production of "The Louvre" in 1965.

Dello Joio has contributed significantly to the fields of choral music, solo piano, vocal and organ works, as well as orchestral, operatic, and a variety of other instrumental combinations. Norman Joio has published approximately 160 works, with his choral piece "To the Mystic Trumpeter," being the first.

The high point of the composer's visit will be a concert of the music of Dello Joio at 8 p.m. on Tuesday evening (March 6) in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building. Performing in the concert will be Longwood's Concert Choir, Camerata Singers, concert band, individual students, and faculty members.

Jarman stage was the setting Thursday night for Clyde Baldschun's World Acclaimed Ballet Folklorico Mexicano de Graciela Tayia. The group performed "Fiesta Folklorico" before a near filled auditorium. They were sponsored by the Visiting Artist Series.

Photo by Melody Crawford

Folk Songs Featured In Next Coffeehouse

By DONNA HASKY

Elaine Silver is an entertainer truly worth her weight in gold. Her expressive voice, engaging personality, stage presence and her instrumental talents combine to form an exciting performer who totally captivates her audience. Her performances here will be March 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. in the Snack Bar.

Although a native of New Jersey, Miss Silver's program shows a great love of folk songs, ballads and blues tunes. She dropped out of Montclair State to travel the South for 2 years and expand her knowledge of original folk music and at the same time develop a true Appalachian dulcimer style. Other than the dulcimer, Miss Silver has also mastered the guitar and banjo. Moving easily between these three instruments, and at times singing with no accompaniment at all, Miss Silver presents a varied musical program — but the high level of talent remains unchanged throughout.

Gibbon's Tapes Designed To Aid Reading Teachers

From Public Relations

Cassette tapes designed to aid reading teachers are being produced by Dr. Robert D. Gibbons, of Longwood College's Education department, and Jab Press of Fair Lawn, N.J., and Los Angeles, California.

The first tape, entitled "Does Reading Misdiagnosis Equal Teacher Malpractice?," is now being marketed nationally by Jab Press. A second tape on "Reading and Vision" is currently in production and should be available this summer.

Dr. Gibbons is under contract to produce two more tapes. One on "Using Oral Reading Effectively in the Classroom" will explain several techniques teachers can use to help students become more efficient in reading. The other tape, "Using Poetry to Teach Reading," will be of help to teachers who wish to supplement their reading programs with varied and unusual reading activities.

Dr. Gibbons is immediate past president of the Virginia State Reading Association which has a membership of approximately 5,000 reading educators in the state. He is co-sponsor of the Longwood College Reading Institutes and Early Childhood Conferences, owner of the Southside Reading Center, and a member of the Prince Edward County Right-to-Read Advisory Council.

A member of the Longwood College faculty since 1969, Dr. Gibbons holds the B.A. and M.Ed. degrees from the College of William and Mary and the doctorate in education from the University of Virginia. He is a native of Plainfield, New Jersey.

A Lotta Love And Sore Feet

By BILL LEWARNE

I woke up Sunday morning with the vague, semi-conscious idea that the lower half of my body no longer existed. I quickly discovered that this was not true when I finally managed to sit up and put my feet on the floor. Mistake number one. Mistake number two was trying to peel off the adhesive tape so stickily wrapped around said feet. In other words, they hurt.

As I gradually forced myself into something resembling wakefulness, it all came back to me. Dance Marathon, I said to myself. Its over and I've been in this bed for at least a year.

Memory returned. There we were, at seven o'clock Friday evening, healthy, fresh, ready to rock, and wide awake. Saturday at three I, at least, felt as though I'd been up for twenty hours (somebody was kind enough to tell me that I really had been). I wanted to sleep, I wanted to take a shower, and I wanted to kill the Bee Gees for bringing disco into existence. What happened in between is confused and jumbled in my exhausted little mind, but if I wasn't hallucinating, then what follows is at least a semi-accurate description of those twenty hours.

We danced a lot. For some reason, that sticks in my mind more than anything else. Even in my sleep, I start thinking "slide, pretzel, spin, etc." Then there were the disco lines, soul trains, and limbo contests, all designed to keep us awake. But thank goodness for those slow dances (at least three). Whoever said that it was impossible to sleep while standing up didn't know what he was talking about.

Of course, we had breaks. But after about eight hours, they made no impression as far as I could see. We sat there like zombies for ten minutes every hour while our M.C.'s (Ken Jones, Duke Rollins and Jerry Richman) went through an incredible number of costumes and acts to keep up our spirits, including an impressive Batman and Robin show that proved once and for all who Longwood's principal bird brains are. (ar, ar, ar)

Time went on. We danced, we watched new totals go up on the boards, we worried that we wouldn't make our five thousand dollar goal, we broke down, we ate, we felt our bodies go numb, and still we danced.

Saturday morning saw us tired but still going. We watched the sky get lighter, and saw a few early morning athletes on their way to breakfast. Then, as our energy was dwindling, we were greeted by Angie Throckmorton, central Virginia's Muscular Dystrophy poster child, and the cutest little girl to ever inspire a bunch of tired people to dance even harder. We had to, for her. She made it all worthwhile. The sore feet, the need to sleep, the mental weariness all vanished with her smile, and the clock sped up.

As afternoon approached, people began coming in to watch. With an audience there to cheer (and throw money) we perked up. We could do it. For a change of pace, the Southside Squares made an appearance to show us some of their square dance routines, and as tired as we were, some of us joined in. I think I could have slept through it, except for the enthusiasm of Kelly Godsey, my cute but overenergized dance partner, who threatened to wear me out many times during the marathon.

Time didn't slow down during all this, and three o'clock approached. Would we make our goal? That was the overriding anxiety in everybody's heart. Then came the final song, on our theme, "it's gonna take a lotta love, to change the way things are", and we knew that this was it. For the first time, we were all quiet as we finally sat down, the marathon finished, and waited for the all important final total. We knew we were close, but how close? they made announcements, gave thanks, and all of the usual drum rolling ceremony that precedes big news. Then they gathered around the board, and put up the final figures. And when that big five appeared at the beginning, utter chaos reigned. Everybody was hugging everybody, there were tears, kisses, shouts, laughter, and pure happiness shined through the tiredness on all of our faces. And I think we even danced a little.

Sprague Award

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Nell Anderson Sprague Award is given annually for excellence in composition to a freshman enrolled in English 101 for a paper written outside of class. Each instructor may submit a maximum of two papers per section, with a description of the assignment and an indication of how much help was given by the instructor. The papers will then be read anonymously by a committee composed of Dr. Carolyn Craft, chairman, Dr. Quentin Vest, and Dr. Don Stuart.

The winner of this award will be announced at Honors Assembly on April 17.

Film Festival

Tuesday:

7 p.m. — Singing In The Rain
9 p.m. — The King And I

Wednesday:

7 p.m. — Easter Parade
9 p.m. — The Sound of Music

Bedford Aud. 75c

PRESS CONFERENCE

Thursday

12:45 P.M.

LOWER DINING HALL

FROM THE EDITOR...

It seems that there are a lot of things well on Longwood's Campus lately. The final housing plans for the fall have been somewhat revised due to the input of many concerned students. Thanks to those students who expressed themselves to the administration whether through letters, appointments or the housing meeting last Monday. We will have two freshman dorms next year — Let's hope the rest of the class will somehow be grouped together after upper classmen room sign-up.

The year's Freshmen Production should be added to the list of excellent things happening last week. The class of 1982 deserves every bit of praise it has received for its well-planned and well-produced comedy imitating some of the better known upperclassman. We will find out in the spring just how many of their predicted CHI members actually walk! (Any bets?)

LETTERS

Baseball Players Speak Out

This letter is directed to the gutless, ignorant, inaccurate and uninformed shell of a person who wrote the unsigned letter about the baseball team. We would like to apologize for the leveling of Cox Dorm and would like people to put the doors back on the rooms and begin construction of a new roof.

The "concerned student's" letter unjustly blamed the team for the majority of problems in Cox. We will admit we aren't angels, but the letter blew things a bit out of proportion. The one incident the author spoke of directly, (the throwing of balls at a door, and then threatening the person who lives there) happened last semester and was straightened out with the people involved.

The loud bangs heard were not those of baseballs hitting the door and the person holding the baseball had not thrown it at the door. If the writer of the letter would make a fist, he would see it would make about the same size hole a ball would, and it's a fact most all students here at Longwood do have hands. Our coach has even gone as far as putting one of our most talented players off the team because he felt he had caused a problem in the dorm.

Since the letter was unsigned we can only guess who wrote it, but by the tone of the letter it would seem the person was jealous or bitter towards the team. We also feel it was out of line to be referred to as maniacs and sub-humans. A more accurate description would be spirited. We'd also like to add our R.A. doesn't "reek of stupidity."

In closing, we think the baseball team has been unjustly labeled as trouble. We may play a stereo loud on occasion but need only be told and we turn it down. The R.A. and Resident Supervisor have no complaints about us, nor do most of the people in the dorm with whom we have spoken.

In the future, we would hope anyone who has something to say would say it to our face and try to talk it out rather than write a letter to the school paper and not sign it. The problems we have caused, we apologize for, although we feel they are minimal.

Thank you,
The Baseball Team
Eddie Burnette, Larry Cromer,
John Crosby, Butch Crosby, John Faddis, Alan Ferris, Garry Ferris, Barry Gordon, Jimmy Love, David Mitchell, Bruce Morgan, Jay Poole, David

Speaks, Denny Ulrey, Bill Wells, Thom Welte

P.S. You can "catch" Lancer baseball at Hampden-Sydney today at 2:30!

Column Clarification

Dear Editors:

Due to the fact that there has been some misunderstanding about the views of Michelle McCollum as expressed in the Senior Spotlight column of the February 13 edition of THE ROTUNDA, I would like to clarify one of the statements made therein.

In the statement saying that Miss McCollum "worries that some of the males being accepted to Longwood now are of a lower caliber," she was referring to the fact that most of the guys THAT SHE HAS SPOKEN TO say they were unable to be accepted at any other schools. Her intentions were not to say that the majority of all of the male students here could only get accepted by Longwood.

Sincerely,
Laurie Hoffman,
ROTUNDA staff writer

Red Lyon Monopoly

Dear Editor,

First of all, we would like to thank Sigma Phi Epsilon for coming up with their "run for the money" night. We only wish that it could have been longer than a half an hour.

Second of all, we would like to comment on the monopoly the Red Lyon has and the outrageous prices that they are holding over the college students heads. How is anyone on a budget supposed to have a half way decent time when one is constantly counting change? We will not even mention the cover charge that we are expected to pay for bands that are not even worth hearing on WFLO.

Unfortunately, we do not have the answer to what we, the "consumer", could do. We realize that not everyone may go to the Red Lyon more than once

(Continued on Page 8)

COMPLAINT FORM

Please Write

Legibly

Senior Spotlight:

Class President Upholds Traditions

By LAURIE HOFFMAN

Carol Cooper, a Home Economics major from Waynesboro, is currently serving as the president of the senior class. As such, she has been placed on many committees, which has made her more aware of what is going on at Longwood. She is glad that this position has allowed her "to get to know a lot of the administration."

The traditions which Miss Cooper so firmly believes in are reflected in her other campus activities. She has been a Legislative Board representative for three years and has served on the elections committee for that same length of time. She has participated in Oktoberfest and is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority. She has also been a Colleague, student assistant, and orientation leader. Miss Cooper was named this year to WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.

The red and green spirit of the classes at LC is one of the most important traditions in Miss

Cooper's mind. She feels that this helps to bind the members of the classes together, but does feel that it can be over-stressed to the point that there is too much competition. She believes that the various classes should try to work together. Miss Cooper worries about the loss of some of the traditions at Longwood and feels that some of the students here are not concerned with upholding them.

The main reason for her concern with the traditions seems to be her appreciation of the friendships she has made through upholding them herself. She feels that they can do as much teaching as classes do: "I'm the type of person who says you can't have an education without the social aspects, too."

Miss Cooper began at Longwood as an undecided major. She was leaning towards majoring in history, but soon decided to go into Home Economics because of her ability to sew and make crafts. Her emphasis is on fashion merchandising, and she hopes to eventually become a fashion coordinator for a large department store or fashion magazine. To do this, she will have to start out in a lower position in a department store in order to gain experience. She likes the fact that she will not be working at a desk job and says, "I like to work with people and I feel like the fashion coordinator's job...is involvement with people and with people's ideas."

"Longwood means the world to me," states Miss Cooper emphatically. Through her participation in many activities, she has become a vital and important part of this world.

THE ROTUNDA

Established 1920

CO-EDITORS

Melody Crawley and Paula Johnson

ADVERTISING MANAGER Dave Gates
BUSINESS MANAGER Wayne Moore
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF WRITERS: Josh Kersey, Laurie Hoffman, Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Janet Clements, Brenda Hester, Sharon Janovich, Judi Stanley, Mary Dunavant, George Bennett, Terry Garr, Cindy Cummings, Beth Parrott, Rhonda Landis, Donna Haskey, Chuck Cole, Tom Cole, Frank Cressy, Edie Parkins, Jeannie Trimble, Doug Strobel, Brenda Bonucelli, Barb Sabitus, Nell Jones, Debbi Campbell, Jennifer Kelley, Sharon Connor, Mandy Hirsch, Kevin McGram, Nancy Hewins, Donna Motley, Loretta Austin, Wanda Weisser, Susan Compai, Tammy Wallace, Beth Devan, Rick Henshaw, Susan Bryant, Brenda Quirk, Lissa Sandage

ART PHOTOGRAPHY: Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Linda Shanahan, Jackie Steer, Kendall Adams, Rachel Newman, Debbie Northern, Lissa Sandage, Cindy Kroll, Joan Crumpton, Mark Koukotchou, Kathy Rodgers

CIRCULATION: JoAnn Harrell, Beth Parrott, Doug Strobel

LAYOUT-PROOFREADING: Dave Gates, Robyn Black, Cheryl Wilcox

TYPESETTERS: Beth Parrott, Jane Waters, Laurie Hoffman, Melody Rice, Robyn Black

Members of the Virginia Mass Communications Association — VMCA

Published weekly during the college year with the exception of holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Opinions expressed are those of the weekly editorial board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the editor are welcome. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject of editing.

Miss Longwood Pageant

By SHARON JANOVICH

It is hard to believe that another year has passed by, and that the Miss Longwood Pageant has rolled around once more! Kim Turnbull has reigned as

Miss Longwood for one full year, and will give up her crown on March 10; this Saturday at 8 p.m. in Jarman auditorium. There are ten contestants in this year's pageant: each who will display a multitude of talent, as well as poise and confidence. The ten contestants for the Miss Longwood Pageant are: Carol Brooks, Ellen Hitt, Andrea Mott, Cindy Carneal, Liz Jones, Juliana Worsham, Cindy Jones, Jane Bruce, Anita Hed and Carol McIntosh.

Cynthia Anne Jones is a 20 year old Junior from Triangle, Va. She is majoring in Sociology and Anthropology, and enjoys water skiing, poetry, music, swimming, hiking, camping and dancing. She is sponsored by Phi Mu Sorority and will be reciting the poem "Little Orphan Annie" for her pageant talent.

Andrea Dawn Mott is an 18 year old Freshman from Va. Beach. She is a Music major who will be singing a selection from the Broadway Musical, "Pippin" in the pageant. She enjoys singing, acting, swimming and dancing. Miss Mott is sponsored by Concert Choir.

Elizabeth Nottigham Jones is a 19 year old Freshman from Arvonnia, Va. She is an Art major, who enjoys ice skating, softball, artwork and writing poetry. Miss Jones is sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, and will present an art display and a poem in the pageant.

Ellen MacDonald Hitt is a 19 year old Sophomore from Va. Beach, Va., who is a Physical Education major. She is in Dance Company and enjoys talking to people, waterskiing, camping and dancing. Miss Hitt is sponsored by Kappa Delta Sorority.

Anita Britt Hed is a 20 year old Junior from Reston, Va., and is majoring in Psychology. She enjoys swimming, reading, the beach and going to the mountains. Miss Hed is sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority and will present a dramatic monologue from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew."

Juliana Byrd Worsham is a 19 year old sophomore from Hilton Head, South Carolina. She is a Biology major who enjoys dancing, going to the beach, cooking, music and eating. Miss Worsham is sponsored by Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority and will be singing and dancing to "Wouldn't it be Lovely," from the musical "My Fair Lady."

Cynthia Ann Carneal is a 20 year old Junior from Fredericksburg, Va. She is an Elementary Education major who enjoys jogging, swimming, dancing, and driving sports cars. Miss Carneal is sponsored by the Junior Class, and will be presenting a combination baton twirling-dance for the pageant.

Carol Anne Brooks is a 21 year old Junior from Gloucester, Va. She is a Music major in the Concert Choir and Camerata Singers. She enjoys running track, twirling a baton, playing the flute and singing. Miss Brooks will be singing for her pageant talent. She is sponsored by the Concert Choir.

Jane Haskins Bruce is a 19 year old Sophomore from Chester, Va. She is majoring in Physical Therapy and enjoys dancing, cheerleading, tennis, swimming and piano. Miss Bruce is sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, and will be playing the piano and dancing in the pageant.

Carol Ann McIntosh is a 20 year old Sophomore from Chesapeake, Va. She is majoring in Elementary Education, and enjoys playing the piano, sand painting, singing, water skiing, camping and bike riding. Miss McIntosh is sponsored by the Student Alumni Association, and will be singing "Send In The Clowns" for her Pageant talent.

BREAK AWAY!

By J. TRIMBLE

'Tis the month of March
And fast approaching
Are visions of leaving (Spring Break is the subject
I'm broaching)

I've put on my thinking cap
Hunted high and low
To come up with suggestions
For where you can go.

Books are important
But so is recreation
So read along with me
Then determine YOUR Spring Break location.

Hey everybody! What are you doing for your Spring Break. That most welcome vacation is almost here (starts March 16 as a matter of fact!). Have you made a date with your favorite neighborhood library so you can finish the five term papers that are due March 30? I hope not. The time we have during break is such a welcome change from the world of academia, and there are many ways to learn than just by studying for specific classes. Not that I am recommending that you totally ignore your books, rather, get the work out of the way so you can succumb to

"spring fever" with no qualms. Making time for yourself is important and break gives each of us that opportunity.

For those folks hitting the trail to southern (and hopefully sunny) climes, may

I recommend a stop at Disney World. You can't spend the whole vacation on the beach (although you may try, the resulting sunburn isn't pleasant) and Disney World recognizes the fact that thousands of college students migrate south during their various spring vacations. Disney World will have special operating hours (9 a.m. to 10 p.m.) from March 11-24. They also are featuring nightly disco dancing, so if you rest all day in the sun you should be prepared to play for a while at night on their dance floor. Other special features during this time period include Jay McShann on the Village Lounge Jazz stage, the Mardi Gras Sound Co., New World Brass, and the rides, such as the Jungle Cruise and the Caribbean Skyway. In case you do decide to take a detour from the sands, Disney World is located midway between Atlantic and Gulf beaches, near the intersection of Interstate 4 and the Florida

(Continued on Page 8)

Fencers Fight Hard, Place Two In Finals

By DEBBIE NORTHERN and MELODY CRAWLEY
After taking third place in a recent State VAAIW Championship February 24 at William and Mary College, the varsity fencing team traveled to the US Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., for the largest Regional Championship in history last Saturday.

Eight teams vied for the three berths to the National Intercollegiate Women's Fencing Association championships April 5-7 in San Jose, California. Longwood placed fourth, winning 15 out of 28 bouts. The Naval Academy took first place with 25 wins. Johns Hopkins was second with 22 wins. Third place went to Randolph-Macon Women's College with 16 wins. RMWC had placed second at states. Fifth was William and Mary, who finished first at states, followed by Madison, UMBC, and University of Virginia.

The team was strongly dependent upon the skills of top fencers and co-captains Melanie Harp (14-2 at states) and Anne-Marie Messier (11-5). Both fencers placed in the finals Saturday.

The three first year fencers Kym Gilbert (11-2), Bonnie Arroyo (8-8), and Debra Trent (3-0), did outstanding jobs during the season and at the tournaments.

Last year in regional competition, Navy finished second after narrowly defeating Longwood in a tie breaker.

Riders Take

Ribbons

By KATHY CHASE

On March 1 the Longwood Lancer Intercollegiate Riding Team travelled to Hollins College for a show with 12 other colleges and universities. Longwood competed with Averett College, Duke University, Sweetbriar College, Virginia Intermont, Hollins College, Lynchburg College, Randolph-Macon Women's College, Mary Baldwin College, James Madison University, Southern Seminary, and the University of Virginia.

In the Novice Equitation Division, Section C, Leslie Henry placed third On The Flat and fourth Over Fences. Also in the Novice Division were Rhonda Powell and Kathy Redmon with a fifth and a third On The Flat in their respective sections.

In the advanced Walk-Trot-Canter Division, Kathy Chase won a third place in ribbon.

Robyn Walker and Paige Barthold did very well in their class, Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter. Miss Walker won the class and Miss Barthold placed third. Miss Walker's win has advanced her to the Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter Division.

The riding team has several riders qualifying for the Regional Inter-collegiate Horse Show in April. They also have several members within five points of going to the Regionals.

The Lancers have two more shows this spring. The show at Southern Seminary was cancelled due to snow on February 9 and has been rescheduled for March 30. The date for the Virginia Intermont show has not been set.

Future plans for the team include sponsoring an intercollegiate show next spring, possibly with Mary Washington College. Three Day Eventing, a new phase of intercollegiate riding competition, is another possibility.

TRO Officers Elected

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Therapeutic Recreation Organization recently elected new officers. Pauline Sabas was elected Chairman. She is a sophomore from New Jersey and is taking the office vacated by Susan McClelland. Michelle Smith, formerly treasurer of the Organization, was elected Vice-Chairman. Miss Smith replaces Karen Stone and is a sophomore from Dinwiddie. Sharon Dowdy was chosen as secretary, replacing Debbie Whetsell. Miss Dowdy is a freshman from Dillwyn. Stacy Southwick, a freshman from Long Island, New York, will serve as treasurer.

TRO has many activities planned for the semester. It plans to hold a Special Olympics Field Events Day, work with the Muscular Dystrophy dance marathon, and have a fund raising activity to buy art supplies for the Prince Edward County Public Schools.

Archers Shoot For Nationals

By BRENDA QUIRK

For the past month, several Longwood ladies have been working to improve their archery skills. Although the weather has not been ideal for shooting, the girls have faithfully practiced in Her gymnasium. While indoors, the girls were forced to shoot from a much shorter distance than that used in competition. On the first day of March, however, the girls began shooting outdoors at a distance of approximately thirty yards.

During competition, the archery team should consist of four males and four females. The athletes compete both individually and as a team. The top scores of two males and two females combined also compose a mixed score, which is recognized in team competition. Archery is a sport of individual accomplishments, as well as accomplishments through unity of the team.

The first archery match is scheduled to be played home on April 4. The team is then expected to attend various tournaments. Following intercollegiate play, championships will hopefully be part of the schedule.

There are still open positions for the team. Anyone that is interested in taking part in this sport is urged to contact Mrs. Neal in the near future. Participating on the team, will undoubtedly be rewarding and enjoyable.

Mrs. Neal Nelson is coaching the team, and she appears to be very optimistic for the coming season. This will be her first season coaching intercollegiate archery here at Longwood. With her knowledge and encouragement combined with the spirit of determination of the team, a successful season can easily be expected.

Idelson Eighth In Nation

From SPORTS INFORMATION

The February 22-23 Player of the Week at Longwood College is Kathy Idelson, a gymnast who led her team to fourth place in the February 24 VAAIW State Tournament. This is Idelson's second Player of the Week award this season.

Competing against the top gymnasts in the state last week end at Radford, Idelson placed in all events, taking fourth place in floor exercise and vaulting, second in beam, and fourth in the all-around competition.

Idelson, an all-around gymnast whose average score this season was 30.87, is only 2.5 points away from top-ranked Christenson of Grand View College. Moreover, Idelson's highest score this season, a 32.5, falls just 1.45 points short of the number one spot.

A freshman from Annapolis, Maryland, Idelson is currently ranked eighth in the nation for small-college gymnastics and has qualified for the March 16 regional tournament at James Madison University. In addition, she "is in a strong position to make Nationals in Topeka, Kansas," according to Longwood gymnastics coach Ruth Budd, who nominated Idelson for the Player of the Week award.

A graduate of Martin Spalding High School in Severn, Maryland, Idelson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Idelson of Annapolis.

Lacrosse Season Starts Soon

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Thirty-two students have been preparing for lacrosse season for over a month. They began with conditioning exercises and weight lifting, until last week when they finally were able to get outside.

Twenty-three of the players traveled to Westhampton College this past weekend to participate in Southern Holiday, a regional lacrosse clinic. Two days were spent learning better lacrosse skills and to incorporate these skills in a game situation. Top ranked players and coaches were on hand to offer instruction, one of whom was Longwood Coach

Dee McDonough. This instruction should help as the season goes on.

Returning lacrosse team members are seniors Bev Hart, Patty Hughson and Rosie Wallace; juniors Jayne Carson, Debbie Fifer, Debbie Northern, and Wanda Petersen; sophomores Juli Dayton, Teri Davis, Cindy Dropski, Kim Garber, Jeanne Nolte, Celeste Rodriguez, and Sherry Will.

New players are senior Melissa Wiggins and freshmen Deb Brown, Shannon Chambers, Debbie Cosby, Kim Fuhr, Amy Gates, Janice Johnson, Karen Kilmer, Kathy Klebert, Sally

(Continued on Page 8)

WOMEN'S LACROSSE SCHEDULE 1979

March
14	Mary Washington College	H	3:30
30	College of William and Mary	H	3:30
31	James Madison University	H	10 a.m.
	Piedmont Club
	Duke University
April
3	University of Richmond	H	3:00
5	University of Virginia	A	3:00
10	Sweetbriar College	A	3:00
12	Roanoke College	A	4:00
14	Bridgewater College	A	2:00
17	Lynchburg College	A	3:00
18	Randolph-Macon Women's	H	3:30
20-
21	State Tournament	Hollins College
16-
17	National Championship	Hollins College

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—lined & unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- Sweatshirts

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

CLOSED

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9 A.M. — 5 P.M. THURSDAY MORNING

Ruggers form skrim in practice. Photo by Jackie Steer

Ruggers Host RATS

By STUART TENNANT

The Longwood College Rugby Club, sponsored by the Student Union, will be having an instructional scrimmage against the RATS (Richmond Area Training Side) Rugby Club on Saturday, March 10, at 2:00 p.m. on their home field, located next to the Campus School. Anyone interested in learning about the game of rugby is invited to watch or participate.

The club is also expecting a series of training films called "Better Rugby" and will announce the time and place for the showing of these in the daily bulletin. Again, anyone interested in rugby is invited to join in.

Bubble Contest Rules Announced

By NANCY JONES and JANICE EGGLESTON

The Campus Activities Committee of the Student Alumni Association has a treat in store for you this Spring Week end. What is it? Well, it is soft, chewy, and BUBBLY. It's a bubble gum blowing contest! This is the first at Longwood. The contest will take place on April 7. Just to give you an idea of what it will be like, here are the rules:

1. Each contestant should use only one piece of gum. Make certain that no extra gum is used.
2. Allow ten minutes for contestant to "prepare" gum prior to blowing bubble.
3. At designated time, contestant will be given one minute to blow bubble. As many bubbles as desired may be blown during this period to give contestant the chance to blow the biggest bubble.

4. Judge will use Gumpeter to determine winner. The top of the Gumpeter should barely touch the widest points of the bubble. The "readout" on the base of the Gumpeter determines the diameter of the bubble in inches.

Interested? Well, watch for a sign-up sheet in the new smoker after spring break and notices in the daily bulletin.

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

Spring is in the air and the spirit at Longwood is picking up. The IAA is getting ready to send yet another champion softball team to the UVA tournament on April 21st. The game this year is fastpitch and anyone who is interested in playing may sign up in the new smoker or the IAA bulletin board. Anyone who plays on the tournament team may also play for their dorm or sorority. IAA softball begins April 13th. Entry blanks are due March 7th.

Square dancing is a lot of fun and the IAA is sponsoring a square dance night on March 8, from 7-9 p.m. in French Gym. Come out and dance.

Women's ping pong is finished and the winner is Debbie Northern. Beverly Harris and Jo Jacobs won the women's badminton tournament. Men's singles badminton champion is Dale Portner. Congratulations to the winners.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

Spending On Women's Sports Remains Unequal, Despite The IX

(CPS)—It took Eastern Carolina University student Debbie Newby months of petitioning and pleading to get action on violations of law that had been on the books for six years.

In the end, Newby, along with four other ECU students, persuaded ECU administrators to begin treating the gross inequities between women's and men's sports—differences they knew were prohibited by federal Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. The biggest impediment, Newby recalls, was that both ECU officials and the ECU lawyer who assisted the students "weren't very informed at all about Title IX—or rather they didn't realize the importance of the law."

Lack of awareness and concern about Title IX may have blocked broad implementation of Title IX, observers say, but the most potent factor may be the lack of guidance and enforcement from the Federal government.

Since its passage in 1972, Title IX has prohibited sex discrimination in schools receiving federal support. Yet it took three years for the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) to come up with how-to-rules, whereupon it gave schools three years to comply with the regs.

But at the July, 1978 deadline, schools in complete compliance with Title IX were the exception rather than the rule. Punishment for non-compliance was withdrawal of federal funds (which amount to $12.2 billion for all colleges), but no school has yet been penalized.

Faced with such a dismal track record, HEW came out last month with its toughest set of rules yet. By next September, HEW says, schools will have to prove they are not discriminating against women in sports by showing "substantially equal per-capita expenditures" for male and female athletes in such "financially measurable areas" as scholarships, recruitment, equipment, travel and publicity.

Spending equal amounts on men and women is of necessity an implicit goal of sexual equality. But HEW had never demanded dollar-for-dollar equality. Spending more on men's sports was o.k. as long as "the patterns of expenditure did not result in a disparate effect on opportunity."

Thus, the new equal-spending rule is turning a lot of heads in athletics departments and in intercollegiate athletic organizations. Many men's athletic directors fear it will "force them to weaken men's programs substantially in order to pump more money into women's programs," as William Davis, president of the University of New Mexico and a member of the Office of Civil Rights task force on Title IX warns.

If the big man's sports programs like football and basketball are equalized, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) estimate it could cost most large colleges between $200,000 and $600,000. Or, shudders Davis, it may even eliminate football at some schools.

However, the big game enthusiasts may have little to worry about. The new Title IX regs also allow unequal spending if the differences are "based on non-discriminatory factors such as the costs of a particular sport, or the scope of competition (national as opposed to local or regional)." This "loophole," say many women's athletic directors, will allow continued large-scale funding to maintain the big-time male sports.

Gloria Ray, director of women's athletics at the University of Tennessee, acknowledges that sports such as football require more money. But once those expenses are deducted she told the Chronicle of Higher Education, "you should get a realistic figure for what a fair, equal-per-capita expenditure should be under Title IX proposals."

Still, various men's athletic organizations, like the NCAA, are not willing to chance such compromises. At their recent convention, NCAA officials resolved to continue their opposition to "HEW attempts to dictate uniform federal program goals and standards." The NCAA has maintained that Congress never intended Title IX to be applied to intercollegiate athletics. It is currently appealing a recent court ruling, which dismissed its two-year-old suit because the NCAA was not an educational institution.

The NCAA has also joined with a coalition of colleges in a lobbying effort to have the proposals modified.

Despite the current controversy, the most accurate forecast may prove to be that voiced by Ray of the University of Tennessee: "I don't think that it's really going to be any different than it has been in the past. It would be good if HEW was going to look at all schools but, realistically, HEW isn't going to come in and look at you unless it gets a complaint."

Ray feels that the best results will be gained by women working through their own local administrators.

Which sounds a lot like Debby Newby's theory. The ECU women's athletic department's budget has doubled since her complaint, as has the scholarship fund. It gets recruitment money for the first time. The basketball team now has a full-time coach, and women in ECU's eight sports will be able to use three locker rooms, instead of one. According to Newby, it's possible for five students and a lot of time and patience to make an impact where HEW can't.

VASAP Helps Drunk Drivers Get On The Right Road

By PAULA JOHNSON

In 1975 the state of Virginia began a program to educate the alcoholic driver known as VASAP (Virginia Alcoholic Safety Action Program).

Prior to this, when a person was arrested for drunk driving he was placed in jail and his license was taken away.

According to Mrs. Nancy Anderson, a member of the Speech and Dramatic arts faculty who is doing her dissertation on alcoholism, the state realized that this was not the solution to the problem. People would lose their jobs; financial hardships would become a problem. They would become repeat offenders. The federal government came up with the idea to educate the driver.

Under the program, if a person is arrested, he is sent to a case worker for an interview. The offender's job is examined as well as his home life to see if there are problems elsewhere. The offender is then sent before a judge and placed into one of three levels.

The first level is the Social Drinker. Level Two is the Problem Drinker. Level Three is the Alcoholic. The average age for these levels are 20, 30, and 37 respectively. After being assigned to a particular level, the driver must sign a contract with the judge showing that he will adhere to the program.

Following this the offender begins classes. In Level One, four weeks are spent in actual class time. Another four weeks are spent in defensive driving classes. Level Two consists of eight weeks class time with four weeks of defensive driving. In Level Three, the offender is under the jurisdiction of the court for a year for treatment and counseling. Eight weeks of class time and four weeks of defensive driving is also required. Level Three also has to check in once a week, phone, and be interviewed. All levels are under the program for a year. Each has to pay a $100 tuition fee.

The education program is alcohol education. The student learns what alcohol is and what it does. The program also focuses on the chemical aspect. One has to pass the course. A grade is received and given to the judge.

The tuition is in place of a fine. This is the first time the court system is looking at the problem as an Adult Education system. It is interesting to note that all classes of people from all education levels are involved with the program.

Mrs. Anderson also said that two per cent of the drinking drivers cause highway accidents. While this is a small percentage, alcohol may be the cause of a number of fatal crashes that occur each year. (According to the National Safety Council, of the 43,500 fatal accidents that occurred in 1977, 21,750 of these were alcohol related.)

"The number of people returning has dropped, which is the whole purpose of the program," said Mrs. Anderson. "The state of Virginia does not have a test. However, the test the state is using the one that I made up," she went on to say. "I hope it will become a part of the driver's education program in high school."

Mrs. Anderson continued by saying, "Alcoholism is a disease. It is never cured, it can only be arrested."

Classmates

Cross pens and pencils make fine companions for the student. In luxurious chrome or 12 karat gold filled. From $7.50.

CROSS[®]
SINCE 1846

Martin
The Jeweler
MAIN ST., FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4904

LETTERS

(Continued from Page 4)

or twice a week, but the increase in beer prices, this will prove to be costly also. We are open for comments in hopes that someone will have a solution.

We just wanted to bring to everyone's attention the new "rip off" we have to face, and one more obstacle we have to overcome in this town to have a good time. Our sympathy goes out to the guy who would like to buy a girl a beer but cannot afford it.

Tired of being "ripped off"

The Student Education Association invites

Students, Faculty, and Staff to hear Reggie Smith, SEA Consultant, speak in Hiner 205 at 7:00 p.m.

March 13, 1979

— Reception to follow —

F.A.C.

The Snack Bar Presents
THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

From 4 to 6 p.m.

Free Chips and Pretzels
and Free Juke Box Music

F.A.C.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN:

Mon.-Thur. Til 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Phone 392-4154

the
HAIR SHAFT

"Hairstyling For The Whole Family"

RHONDA BARTON OR
LINDA "Jill" DUNEVANT
HOURS:

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. - Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Break Away

(Continued from Page 5)

umpike. If you are fortunate enough to be going south for the break drive safely, take a sunblock and don't forget the film for your camera because I'm sure it will be a vacation you won't want to forget!

Now for those of us who are staying within state boundaries, don't lose heart. There are many opportunities for enjoyment right in your own back yard (if you enjoy driving a bit). There are campsites "from the mountains, to the praries" so to speak. Virginia's Eastern Shore region offers locations on Assateague Island and many of us are familiar with the trails and campsites located in Shenandoah National Park. Go for the day or for the whole break, but please be sure to check out fire and trash regulations with the park authorities before you set off down the trail. You may also want to take a kite and try flying it on the beach or in a meadow since March is traditionally kite-flying month.

For those people interested in the visual and performing arts, many exciting events are occurring in Washington during this time period. If you hurry you may be able to catch one of the last performances of "A Chorus Line," playing at the National Theater until March 18. Too much of a rush you say? Never fear, opening at the same location on March 21 is "The Wiz," an updated version of the classic, "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," which features disco music and an all-black cast. For those of us who quaked at the wicked witch's laugh as children this innovative performance should be interesting to say the least.

If your tastes run along more classical lines, William Shakespeare's The Tragedy of King Richard II, will be performed at the Folger Theatre until March 25.

Dance has come to the forefront of national interest recently, and in D.C. the Washington Ballet has received recognition as a Major Company by the National Association for Regional Ballet. You can see them on stage at Lisner Auditorium, March 16 and 17. Perhaps you are more interested in the visual, as opposed to the performing arts. If this is the case then you may enjoy the exhibition of Alexander Calder's work entitled CALDER'S UNIVERSE, which will be at the Hirshhorn Museum beginning March 15. The show includes work in all media which he created during his 50 year career.

These are only a few ideas, I'm sure you have more, suited to your tastes and interests. Whatever you do, I hope you have fun and ENJOY your spring break. Get your thinking caps on because you only have 11 more days before it's here!

Board Minutes

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Legislative Board met February 26 in Lankford.

Next year, Legislative Board will pay for all on-campus phones.

Pi Kappa Phi will not man the escort system because of lack of man power. The planned system was to provide escorts for students crossing campus at night.

The Student Government will be selling Argus posters during lunch and dinner this week. The price for each poster will be $1.25.

The board is requesting permission to obtain the BC rooms as a permanent location for the Swap Shop.

The board agreed to support room contracting, however they did not lay out specific details as to what the contract would perform.

Press Conference will be held March 8 at 12:45 in the Lower Dining Hall. A suggestion box will be placed on the Head Table the day before to encourage interest and to obtain questions.

The board accepted the Constitution of the Constitutional Review Committee.

In the Residence Board Meeting, February 27 David Wall, Fire Warden, reported that he and Chris Ruppel had met with Roy W. Hill Jr. to discuss French Dorn. Hill promised that more trash cans would be placed on each hall in French and also Tabb's kitchens where there is ventilation.

There is more to life than increasing its speed.

The members of Residence Board will be collecting the glasses in each dorm, March 6, to return them to the dining hall.

Handbook Revisions were also discussed.

IS THIS WHAT YOUR KISSES
TASTE LIKE?

If you smoke cigarettes, you taste like one.

Your clothes and hair can smell stale and unpleasant, too.

You don't notice it, but people close to you do. Especially if they don't smoke.

And non-smokers are the best people to love. They live longer.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

This space contributed by the publisher as a public service.

FARMVILLE RECORD SHOP

College Plaza Shopping Center
Farmville, Va.
Phone: 392-5044

Radio Shack Delaer
Full Line of Stereo Equipment
Musical Instruments

'Bs and Accessories
Top LPs and Tapes
Able to Special Order

"Your Complete Music Store"

Lacrosse
Season

(Continued from Page 6)

Lowe, Joan Matson, Susan Melvin, Sharon Payne, Barb Sabitus, Denise Shader, Susan Towler, Carol Vidrine, and Kim Wood.

The assistant coach, Terri Prodehl, will be primarily working with the offensive unit, while Coach McDonough will work with the defense. The manager is Mary Slade.

Coach McDonough believes that the team so far looks better than it did this time last year, even though they have only been outside a couple of days. She feels that the team members who went to Southern Holiday learned alot.

SIZES
9-1/2 to 12

SEND FOR FREE
SPRING CATALOG

24 pages of the latest styles for Spring — most available within days of your order. At last, those hard to find sizes 9 1/2 to 12 are available to you through this direct mail catalog. Don't delay, order Today!

FAMOLARE

Write:

Texas Tall & Stout Girls
Ridgmar Mall - CN
1864 Green Oaks Rd.
Ft. Worth, TX 76116

YUMA
$31.00

Have A Nice Spring Break!

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, TUESDAY, MARCH 13, 1979

NO. 19

Computers Provide More Efficient Registration

By BRENDA HESTER

Longwood College is going through a significant transition. According to students, most of it is a result of co-education. On the other hand, the transition comes with the rise of the computer age.

In changing to meet present day demands, Longwood is advancing to become more efficient with input-output from all sides. The latest in a series of positive changes is registration. The new registration system at its fullest operational point should be more efficient and easier (on the student's part) than the Lankford set-up. The most primitive definition of the change is cardless registration; however it involves much more than that.

The new system will go into effect March 28, 1979 for the registration of currently enrolled Longwood students for the fall semester and for summer school. All classified, that is degree-seeking students, have to pay a $100 advance deposit, due March 1, 1979, in order to participate in advanced registration. This $100 fee is not just a room deposit. In essence, it is a "class space" deposit for the class, not the dormitory room. Granting the fee must be paid before room draw, but it also guarantees space in class rank. It is also a planning toll, giving the administration a more accurate number to work with in projecting student enrollment, dormitory space, and class space.

The unclassified student is one who enrolls in a class for pleasure or to improve his knowledge and skill in his profession. These students are not seeking a degree from Longwood. They will register on August 28 at late registration.

While the $100 advance deposit MUST be paid in order for a student to participate in advanced registration and to guarantee that class space will be held. The balance due of tuition and fees must be paid in the summer. Failure to do so will cause the student's class schedule to be invalid and dorm students will have no rooms. These students will then have to attend late registration on August 28 and register for classes that have open spaces.

Under the new system, each student will register through his/her academic advisor. Dates are listed on the Advising Calendar according to class rank. Any student not having an adviser should see the chairman of the major's department immediately. Undecided majors should contact Dean Gussett.

(Continued on Page 5)

New Approach To Resident System

By J. TRIMBLE

Traditionally (or as a matter of necessity) the first days at Longwood each fall are full of small matters such as arranging furniture, visiting friends, unpacking, registration and the election of hall presidents. What a wonderful relief to have the last mentioned activity removed from everyone's busy social schedule!

I am speaking about the welcome surprise of having an "R.A." (Resident Assistant) assigned to every floor when we returned to school last fall. Although some people may have first experienced a negative reaction to the existence of R.A.s, I think that we all have come to realize that these are responsible people who have been carefully chosen to do a job, and for the most part they do it well. I, for one, am glad to see people getting paid and receiving recognition for a job which is at once both demanding and occasionally thankless.

The role of Hall President was rather ambiguous. There were many problems such as: 1. the election of 'friends' rather than responsible people; 2. feelings of animosity when your friend had to give you a warning or had to turn you in; 3. lack of authority and backing from both the students and deans.

Perhaps the institution of R.A.s doesn't solve all problems, but through this action the administration is trying to better serve the students and the college itself. As with all changes there is a period of adjustment which is necessary. Also, the range of authority and specific duties of the R.A.s could not be completely determined until we, as Dean Heintz stated, "got our feet wet."

(Continued on Page 8)

MISS LONGWOOD 1979

Julianna Byrd Worsham

By SHARON JANOVICH
"Ladies and gentlemen, tonight we are proud to present to you our ten lovely contestants..." began Charlie Mason, Master of Ceremonies for this year's pageant. He indeed fulfilled the introduction by presenting ten lovely ladies for the Miss Longwood Pageant of 1979.

The pageant began on an enjoyable, hand-clapping note, with the contestants and escorts dancing to "Love Is Everywhere" by John Denver. What a beautiful finish it was to see ten smiling young ladies up in their escorts' arms!

Next on the agenda was the Personality Competition, which displayed each contestant in the attire which complemented her hobby or personality. After a brief speech and parade of contestants, the talent competition was yet to come. Besides having pleasant personalities, the ten contestants displayed overwhelming talent, for the next 30 minutes or so.

Contestant No. 1, Carol Brooks, sang a beautiful 'cappella selection to display her obvious talent in voice. She was followed by a self-choreographed modern dance to "Philadelphia Morning", by Contestant No. 2, Ellen Hitt.

Andrea Mott then sang "Bless the Beasts and the Children", which exhibited the flowing voice possessed by Miss Mott, who is a music major.

A combination baton-twirling dance followed, which was presented by Cindy Carneal. This routine was done to the contemporary selection "September", by "Earth, Wind and Fire".

Art Major Liz Jones displayed various examples of her art talent, as well as a self-composed poem which explained her artwork.

Next, a music-dance routine was presented by Julianna Worsham to "Wouldn't It Be Lovely" from "My Fair Lady". The character presented by Miss Worsham immediately captured the heart of the audience, as well as displaying the talent possessed by Miss Worsham.

Little Orphan Annie", by James Whitcomb Riley, was then recited by Cindy Jones, which held the audience's attention and proved to be enjoyable entertainment as well.

Contestant No. 8, Jane Bruce played a piano medley and then presented a self-choreographed dance to Duke Ellington's "Dancer's in Love".

Anita Hed was next on the agenda with a Dramatic monologue. Miss Hed presented a dramatic reading from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew".

Contestant No. 10, Carol McIntosh finished up the talent category by singing "Send in the Clowns" by Steven Sondheim.

After a 15 minute intermission, the swimsuit and evening gown competition followed, which

(Continued on Page 8)

Press Conference Discusses Registration

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Registration was the major topic of discussion at the semester's second Press Conference, March 8, in the Lower Dining Hall. Stuart B. Tennant, Registrar, was on hand to explain the changes to be made in the registration process.

Tennant explained that the most important thing for a student to do in preparing for pre-registration this month is to "check with Mom and Dad" to make sure their $100 fee is paid.

He also welcomed the students "to the computer society that you were born into," which will hopefully improve the confusing and hectic process (see article explaining registration in this issue).

Tennant also explained that the diplomas would not show the graduate's major. He explained, however, that the graduate's permanent record that is sent out confers their degree. He also confirmed the fact that diplomas are received at graduation.

Following the usual format, President Henry I. Willett Jr. answered the questions compiled by Legislative Board before opening the floor for questions.

He reported in answer to a question concerning the basketball team's accident that a new van had been ordered in January. The van should be here sometime in April.

Another question posed was concerning the status of Iler Gym. The lights will be installed as soon as the weather clears, however, plans for a track were discarded. The track would cut the two intermural fields in half. The President also announced that upon completion of the new gym, Iler will be converted into a math and computer science building. The only drawback to the plan will be if the state does not put up the $650,000 required.

Iler gym will be closed for non-Longwood students starting this week. There have been a lot of problems with non-Longwood residents, therefore, there will be no guests allowed. President Willett hopes that the situation will be solved, but he did agree that they have to return to the policy of hiring a student to check I.D.'s at the door.

He also reported that the admission standards have not dropped within the last year. He stated that if anything, they were more selective.

The remainder of the questions submitted by Legislative Board had to do with athletics. Dr. T. C. Dalton, Administrative Assistant to the President, stated that the eligibility to participate was that the student must be a

(Continued on Page 8)

Dr. D. Michelle Irvin and Dr. Raymond Ford speak at LC's Third Annual Early Childhood Conference.

Photo by Debbie Northern

Observation Key To Understanding Children

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Third Annual Longwood College Early Childhood Conference held at the John P. Wynne Campus School March 10 featured Dr. Raymond Ford, a practicing pediatrician in Charlottesville, currently on the staffs of both Martha Jefferson Hospital and the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Virginia, and Dr. D. Michelle Irvin, who has been director of both the Bing Nursery School at Stanford University and the Lathrop Learning Center in New York City. She is presently an Associate Professor of Education at the University of North Carolina - Greensboro.

Mrs. Grey Ritchie, Kindergarten Supervisor of the State Department of Education, introduced the first speaker, reminding the participants that this is the UN's International Year of the Child.

Dr. Ford stated that many inside and outside factors influence a child's accomplishments at school. Some exigent factors he listed were improper educational management, family problems, unrealistic expectations and an unstimulating family life in which the parents do not care about their child's education. Indigenous factors included chronic frequently recurring physical problems, specific sensory defects, such as hidden deafness, handicapping neurologic and neuromuscular problems, and mental retardation.

Some of these factors may be alleviated or an adjustment can be made to better help the child scholastically.

Problems may also arise from an improper diet. A case Ford used as an illustration was a six-year-old child who was brought into his office by her mother. The child was thin, irritable, had a poor appetite, and was not doing well at school.

It was discovered after a period of recording what the child ate, that she was a sugar addict. After a diet readjustment she was "a different kid, she felt better." Ford stated that this case showed "the importance of looking at a

(Continued on Page 7)

Kappa Delta Pi Initiates Seven

By BRENDA BONUCELLI

On Tuesday, March 6, Kappa Delta Pi, Longwood's Honorary Education Fraternity, initiated seven new members. They are: Mary Ann Bennett, Alda Brown, Betsy Cooper, Sandra Hag, Rebecca Thompson, Kathy Wilson, Joan Humphries.

Kappa Delta Pi is a member of the Beta Epsilon Chapter. Its purpose is to promote excellence in teaching. It is dedicated to the ideals of fraternity.

The fraternity has approximately thirty members, many of whom are out student teaching. Past activities have included speakers and plans for the future include possibly attending a Regional Conference in Pennsylvania.

Kappa Delta Pi's counselor, Mrs. Sandra Bollinger, is new to her position. She has much support and plans many different activities.

What Pooh Went Through

By TERRY KEESEE
and AMY WILSON

On Wednesday, March 7, a group of sophomores journeyed to Richmond for the annual Sophomore Road show. This year's production was "Pooh Goes Visiting And Gets Into a Tight Spot." The first stop was the Virginia Randolph School, where the group entertained a crowd of approximately 100 children. The clowns got the show started as they ran into the auditorium blowing their whistles, passing out candy, and making them laugh with their crazy antics. The skit was then performed with everyone helping Pooh get out of his tight dilemma. The show ended as the children joined the cast and clowns in singing some of their favorite songs. The show then moved on to the Westhampton Day Care Center where children ages 2-6 enjoyed the 45 minutes of lively entertainment.

Afterward the busload of sophomores traveled to the home of Jeanne McLaren for lunch. Mrs. McLaren served a delicious lunch to the hungry crew, who after the short rest returned to Longwood. Though the students were weary from the day's journey, each thoroughly enjoyed their participation in the days events. They all felt that the smiles of the children were the greatest reward for the time and effort that went into the preparation of Roadshow 1979.

NEWS GLIMPSES

By CHERYL WILCOX

Kate Millett, the American author and feminist, who came to Iran for an International Women's Day speech last week, plans to stay two weeks to offer support to the feminist revolt in this country.

The rate of increase in the cost of living in the Northern and Southern States is finally leveling off at an approximate equal rate. While in the South the rate of salary increase does not correlate with inflation as in the North.

Three Fairfax youths were ordered to jail Wednesday, charged with setting of the fire that destroyed Fort Hunt High School. The three have each been released for the time being on bond, and are involved in procedure concerning these along with more recent charges.

Father Burghardt On Return Visit

By CINDY CUMMINS

One of the college's favorite visiting scholars, Father Walter Burghardt, will be making a return visit to Longwood Campus Thursday and Friday, March 29 and 30.

The first "theologian in residence" in Georgetown University's 189-year history, Father Burghardt is not only a noted professor and historical theologian, but an author as well. His works have appeared in various publications from the "Encyclopedia Britannica" to "Variety."

The recipient of numerous awards, including the Cardinal Spellman Award for outstanding contributions in theology, Father Burghardt holds nine honorary degrees.

Now resigned from formal teaching in order to devote more time to research, writing and lecturing, his work presently concentrates upon three books and 10 articles.

A Roman Catholic priest of the rigorous Jesuit Order, Burghardt is described by Dr. Rosemary Sprague of the English Department as "... a brilliant intellect with a delightful sense of humor." A man who exudes genuine warmth and concern, she adds that he is "a man who wears his learning lightly."

First engaged by Dr. Sprague for the Jarman Lecture Series, Father Burghardt previously visited Longwood in 1964, 1966 and again in 1968 — an indication of his constant popularity.

His particular interest in history stems from a belief that it is a subject which not only enlightens the past and present and therefore, future of individuals and nations, but that it is a subject which serves as "an antidote to discouragement and despair."

Sponsored by the IRC in conjunction with the Department of English and Philosophy, the title of Burghardt's lecture is "Look, Love, Laugh: an Approach to Anxiety." He will also serve as guest speaker in various classes while visiting on campus.

A fascinating man of exceptional intellect, warmth and humor, his is a visit you won't want to miss.

Faculty Colloquium Scheduled For Tonight

From Public Relations

The Longwood College Faculty Colloquium Lecture by Thomas P. Burke, Jr., originally scheduled for February 7 but postponed because of snow, has been rescheduled for Wednesday evening, March 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building.

The public is cordially invited to hear Burke discuss "Patrick H. Pearse, Irish Revolutionary Pedagogue."

Burke describes Pearse as "a man of action and of ideas." As educational leader and critic, Pearse played a major role in the cultural nationalism of Ireland during the early years of the 20th century.

Burke will discuss Pearse's "incisive criticism of the existing system of English dominated education in Ireland during the period 1900-1916 and his concept of a desirable replacement for it."

A member of the Longwood faculty since 1968, Burke holds the B.A. degree from the College of William and Mary and the M.Ed. from the University of Virginia. He taught in the public schools of Colonial Heights and Dinwiddie County and was a supervisor for the State Department of Education before coming to Longwood.

Vanities Is Coming

Tuesday, March 13, 1979

THE ROTUNDA

Page 3

By GWEN POINTER and TRICIA WHITEHURST
Vanities, a Longwood Players Production, will be performed in Jarman Auditorium on April 4-7, 8 p.m. The play was written by Jack Heifner, and is one of the most popular plays performed today. There are only three characters in the play, all of which are young women who have been best friends since high school. The characters of Joanne, Mary, and Kathy are played by Longwood students Karen Wood, Lisa Hughes, and Kathy Sowers, respectively.

Karen Wood is a twenty-four year old Speech Pathology major. Her home is in Diggs, Virginia, and she is a junior at Longwood. Lisa Hughes, also a junior, is a twenty-one year old Dramatic Arts major from Chesapeake, Virginia. Kathy Sowers is an eighteen-year old freshman. She is a business administration major from Richmond, Virginia. Being able to cheer is a major necessity for this production, a Challenge in which the girls have no previous experience.

Noticing in tryouts that the girls had no cheerleading experience, Reeny Manley volunteered to be the choreographer for the show. She is a twenty-one year old Dramatic Arts major from New London, North Carolina. Even though Miss Manley has much background as a cheerleader, she was apprehensive when she first took the position. Now she is confident that her students will perform well on stage. Miss Manley's responsibilities include coordinating movements to songs, teaching specific cheers and actions, and conditioning the actresses for their routines.

Miss Manley feels that though cheerleading is often compared to dance, the two are quite different. She expressed that "cheerleading requires more energy than grace, and the motions are not as hard to teach as the enthusiasm." The actresses think that the most difficult aspects of the cheering are coordination, balance, and rhythm. Karen Wood also expressed concern over appearing too superficial on stage. She is attempting to be "peppy and smile without seeming plastic." Lisa Hughes feels that Reeny Manley has been very helpful, but there are areas of cheerleading that Miss Manley cannot teach her such as concentration. Kathy Sowers believes that she is "put on the spot" because she is expected to lead the other two when she does not know the routines any better than they do. Miss Sowers, along with her two colleagues, feels that the show will be a definite challenge.

Vanities is being performed under the direction of Dr. Douglas Young who is being assisted by Barbara Wood. Even with the small cast, Vanities promises to be an entertaining production.

S-UN's Spotlight Concert on April 1 will feature David Wingo in the Gold Room. The concert begins at 8 p.m. and is free.

Dust And Ashes

Longwood College Inter-Religious Council is presenting the group Dust and Ashes in concert on March 31 and April 1.

This group began in 1968 with its major influence in contemporary religious music, in a spontaneous and continually changing music scene. It quickly established itself as consistent favorite with audiences all across the country. Home base for this group is Nashville, Tennessee, which consists of three persons—Tom Page, John Charing and CeCe DuBois. The group has criss-crossed the states sharing with thousands the original songs and commentary through which they communicate their understanding of the gospel of Christ.

"Whether in a concert setting or in celebration of worship, the music will speak God's prophetic vote to his people. Dust and Ashes will entertain you, make you laugh and laugh with you, make you cry and cry with you. And when the music is done, we hope you will have seen something of the spirit of God and heard his voice speaking to you—so that your life will become more what God intends it to be."

Two mini-concerts will be held on Saturday, March 31, at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. with informal conversation after each concert. The mini-concerts will be held in Wygal Rental Hall. On Sunday morning at 9 a.m. in C Room in Lankford the week end will end with a Celebration of Worship. The Inter-Religious Council invites you and your friends to come and join in this experience of celebration in music.

Photo by Dr. Patton Lockwood

Tafara. . .

"They Make Us Happy"

"Tafara" is the Baptist Student Union's folk team. This group of eleven girls travels all over the state singing and sharing their faith with others. The members include: Jan Bates, Alice Clay, Suzanne Bryant, Sheryl Lohr, Jane Edmonds, Karen Shelton, Val Hall, Larrie Watkins, Kim Duncan, Jan Jennings, and Pam Wagner. Alice and Suzanne also accompany the group on their guitars. Tafara recently sang to a very receptive audience at a meeting of Inter-Varsity.

After Spring Break they will travel to Culpeper, the University of Virginia, and other places. Although they do not receive any money personally for their efforts, all money donated to them is used for Summer Missions work by the state BSU. Tafara is an African word which means "We Are Happy." This is evident by their smiling faces and beautiful voices.

Alice's

Magical Journey

By DONNA HASKY

Alice, Dormouse, Jabberwock and Humpty Dumpty are a few of the characters who will provide entertainment on March 30 in the lower dining hall. In an attempt to provide an ever-growing number of diversified programs for the college community, the "dinner theater" concept is about to experience its first trial run as a Student Union sponsored event.

The entertainment will be provided by THEATRE WEST VIRGINIA in the form of a marionette fantasy, "Alice Underground." Alice is the familiar character from Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland. In the course of the marionette's journeys underground, she meets up with other characters from Carroll's novel, as well as some new friends provided by author and puppeteer Raymond Masters.

The cost of the show is 25c. The dinner served in the lower dining hall will be the same as that served in the main dining hall. Alice's journey underground begins at 5:30 p.m. on March 30. Won't you join her for a magical journey you won't soon forget?

S-UN Presents:

FUN WITH DICK AND JANE

A Modern "Bonnie and Clyde" Story
 Starring Jane Fonda and George Segal

What to do when a suburban couple finds themselves without a job? . . . Take to robbing stores!

March 29, 30, 31 8 p.m. 75¢ AB Rooms

SOUND

TECH

DISCO

AND LIGHT SHOW

March 15

8:00 p.m.

L.D. Hall

L.C. FREE Guests $1.50

I.D. Required

S-UN

S-UN

FROM THE EDITOR...

Have you noticed the change in the weather? Or did you think that the ten inches of snow on the ground two weeks ago were barricades to keep us from going to classes? Ahh—Spring time! There are many things that bring the season of spring to mind—other than the missing snow and Spring Break. Baseball season is now in full swing. Golf is now in progress. Lacrosse is gearing up for its season as well as tennis and archery.

But sports are not the only thing that signifies spring. There is the wonder of nature. Nature is the best indicator of the changing seasons. The grass grows green and thick, trees begin to bring forth new leaves, birds return from their southern winter home, flowers appear from the once frozen earth. People, as if they were hibernating bears, find themselves outdoors once again.

Why does this annual phenomenon draw us to the outdoors and away from our books? Why is it that spring is a rival to fall beauty? Spring signifies new life. Perhaps that is why we rush outside to soak up those first few days of warmth. One might say we are "Spring Cleaning"—ridding ourselves of somewhat stale air and those winter blues.

HOWEVER—from several sources in and around Longwood, there is a possibility of a snow storm before the week is out. Now, after you have had your "break down", start praying that it will not happen. If you are like most people, Spring Break is the most important thing on your mind. Books have been tossed aside, the spring and summer clothing have been brought out for the upcoming days on the beach.

But if you happen to be one of those "poor souls" who have not noticed the change in the weather or is unable to get outside, take heart. Spring Break is, after all, only three days away.

PEJ

LETTERS

CHI Speaks

Dear Editors:

In the last two issues of THE ROTUNDA, letters have appeared making specific references to the source of the destruction on Longwood's campus. This is an example of what has been going on here for weeks. This attitude of mutual blame does nothing to help the situation at Longwood.

In spite of all the good things that have occurred recently on campus, such as the Geist Bloodmobile and the Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon, which tend to unify the student body, there is still division on the subject of campus destruction.

What has occurred on campus is a result of thoughtlessness on everyone's part. It is time to stop bickering and to start working together for a better Longwood.

Sincerely,
CHI of 1979

Spirited Sophomore Thanked

Dear Editor,

We are writing in concern to the article in last week's paper about Sophomore Week. We believe an error has been made.

It is our opinion that credit should have been given to a person that greatly contributed to its success. This person spent many long frustrating hours preparing for its events. Although she was let down many times by her fellow classmates she kept her spirits high and still patiently and faithfully sacrificed her time and talents, determined to carry on the Sophomore tradition. This person is Donna Hughes. Thanks for all the signs, Roadshow work, auction and all the other minute details that went along with these events. It wouldn't have happened without you. Thanks Donna! We love you.

Friends

Bookstore Defended

To The Editor:

I think it's about time that someone wrote in defense of those who work in the bookstore and are forced to put up with certain people's childish antics. A letter was printed in the February 27th issue of this paper concerning a policy dealing with the way in which a number must be written on checks. It was a fairly decent letter, as far as it goes, but it didn't tell the whole story.

The first thing is he didn't stop to ask why sevens must be written a certain way. This was not Mr. Harper's idea, the bank he deals with had asked him to have us write them in standard fashion because, otherwise, they could be, and quite often are, mistaken for and recorded as fours. This has a tendency to create many problems when the bank's totals don't equal the bookstore's totals, as anyone who has taken accounting can tell you.

Secondly, the letter did not relate to us how, instead of merely voiding the check and writing a new one, he tore it up, scattered the pieces to the four winds and pranced around like a six-year old having a temper tantrum, shouting obscenities at anyone affiliated with the bookstore. I ask you, is this any way for a "mature adult" to deport himself in public? Have you no self-respect?

In closing, I would like to offer my sincere apologies to the staff of the bookstore on behalf of the majority of the inmates here at this "institution of higher learning" for the discourteous behavior of a few rude clowns.

Cled Oakley

Apology Made

Dear Rotunda Editor,

At the press conference on last Thursday, I asked Dr. Willett how a girl with a 0.7 grade point average could be playing on the Lacrosse team. He answered that there were no students playing athletics with a 0.7 average. I disagreed and said there was. I am truly sorry to say that I was misinformed. There are no girls on the Lacrosse team with a 0.7 average. I apologize to the girl I was referring to and to the team for any damages that I may have caused them.

Kathy Vannice

Dress Code Questioned

Dear Editor,

On Friday, March 9, we watched incredulously as all but one of the baseball players, intending to eat breakfast before an away game, entered the Dining Hall without an I.D. As we understand it, students are to have an I.D. to enter the Dining Hall whether or not they are athletes. Other team players seem to be able to carry their I.D.'s with them prior to traveling, and we do not see why the baseball team members cannot do the same. Many students have had to get their I.D.'s before being allowed in and we feel that no one certain group or individual should be an exception.

Of course, all of them could easily be identified as Longwood students as they were wearing uniforms and jackets. This brings us to another point. We have been led to believe that uniforms could not be worn except during competition, and were not to be worn during travel or in any public place off campus.

Also, most other teams, such as hockey, basketball, and lacrosse, to name a few, have to wear nice clothes to travel to and away from away games. This dress policy reflects a good image on Longwood. Yet, those young men who were not in uniform were wearing sweat pants and tee shirts.

Now, we are perfectly aware of the importance of being comfortable on long trips, and see no reason why corduroys or other good looking, comfortable clothes should not be worn, but we feel that sweats and tee shirts are inappropriate. If athletic dress policies do not exist (although we have been told they do), they should be established. If there is some academic policy on dress for teams traveling to other colleges, it should be enforced.

Perhaps the administration or athletic department should clarify any policies on dress because teams might not be aware of it.

Sincerely,
Debbie Northern
Christi Lewis
Brenda Fettrow
Kim Fuhr
Vicki Nesbitt

THE ROTUNDA

Established 1920

CO-EDITORS

Melody Crowley and Paula Johnson

ADVERTISING MANAGER Dave Gates
BUSINESS MANAGER Wayne Moore
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF WRITERS: Jodi Kersey, Laurie Hoffman, Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Janet Clements, Brenda Hester, Sharon Janovitch, Judi Stanley, Mary Danavanti, George Bennett, Terry Carr, Cindy Commons, Beth Parrott, Rhonda Landis, Donna Hanks, Chuck Cole, Tom Cole, Frank Greasy, Edie Parkins, Jeanne Trimble, Doug Strobel, Brenda Bonucelli, Barb Sabitus, Nell Jones, Delia Campbell, Jennifer Kersey, Sharon Connor, Mandy Hirsch, Kevin McGraw, Nancy Hewes, Donna Shoffie, Loretta Austin, Wanda Newberger, Susan Umigut, Tammy Wallace, Beth Devan, Rick Hershaw, Susan Bryant, Brenda Quirk, Lissa Sandridge.

ART-PHOTOGRAPHY: Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Linda Shanahan, Jackie Steer, Kendall Adams, Rachel Newman, Bethie Northern, Lissa Sandridge, Cindy Krott, Juan Crumpton, Mark Koukouchos, Kathy Rodgers.

CIRCULATION: John Harrell, Beth Parrott, Doug Strobel

LAYOUT-PROOFREADING: Dave Gates, Robyn Black, Cheryl Wilson

TYPISTS: Beth Parrott, Jane Waters, Laurie Hoffman, Melody Hice, Robyn Black

Members of the Virginia Mass Communications Association - VMCA

Published weekly during the college year with the exception of holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Opinions expressed are those of the weekly editorial board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the editor are welcome. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject of editing.

Quotable Quote:

I pray my Lord my soul to take,
If we get that blizzard before Spring Break!!!

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

— ATTENTION —
Longwood Students

Check our new stock of swimwear starting at $13.95

IT PAYS TO SHOP MCKAY'S!

Library Facilities Have Grown With Times Times

By CINDY CUMMINS

Step back in time and try to imagine Longwood as it appeared over 100 years ago. You would probably see graceful Longwood ladies in uniform green heading to one of the three or four classes they attended per semester. Invariably, you might notice the absence of many present landmarks—the familiar structures which now dot the campus were then, not even imagined. In particular, you might notice the absence of one very familiar structure, the Dabney Lancaster Library.

Though Longwood survived more than 100 years without library facilities, the future libraries' existence was early foreshadowed. It was at its present location that the cornerstone of the college was laid after the college charter was granted in 1839. The present structure did not become a reality until 1939.

By 1875, the need for library facilities was becoming more and more evident. The Farmville Female College Catalogue announced that, "The formation of a library has commenced". In 20 years time a reading room and small library had been established.

Described by the 1895 catalog as a "...working library, not large..." the library was considered to be "particularly well equipped in American History" in order to excite interest in that area. It was at that time, only a few rooms forming part of the college's original structure.

In 1901 a $20,000 appropriation enabled the construction of an additional 3-story west wing. The library and the "not quite 5,000 volumes" of which it consisted were located on the 2nd floor. Now a State Female Normal College, Longwood had acquired library facilities which it considered only "fairly good."

A large 4 story brick building which no longer stands was completed in 1903. This building housed a kindergarten, a Training school, classroom and dorm area and the library which was relocated on 3rd floor.

By 1908, the library had surpassed its 5,000 volumes including 450 volumes of fiction. Providing references from Zoology to Pedozozy and Domestic science. Its purpose was to form of itself "a literary workshop." Later a geography classroom would be converted to a reference room enlarging the libraries' capacity to 15,000 volumes. Its hours, tailored to the curfew and resident rules of the day were from 9 a.m.-8:50 p.m. on weekdays and 1:45-5 p.m. on Saturdays.

1929 revealed a need to again relocate the growing stacks of books which were rapidly filling the allotted space. At that time, a $75,000 conditional appropriation

Federal and State money had been provided and on August 22, 1938, the first bricks of the present building were put in place. The $32,000 library, equipped to house 50,000 books, was eventually completed in 1939.

renovation in 1960 and the addition of 3 more levels to the rear of the building.

Firmly established, the library had found a permanent home. In 1962 it acquired a name as well, having been dedicated to was made for the purpose of constructing a new building—a permanent home for the expanding library.

But planning came to a sudden halt due to hovering depression and did not resume again for years.

Finally, plans for the new library resumed. Additional

The foresighted proposal of Longwood's fifth president, Dabney S. Lancaster made in 1959 acknowledged that "A good library is the most important facility for good college teachers and good college students." Again the library was out growing its quarters, a fact which led to the libraries eventual President Lancaster. Years of persistent planning and hard work had reaped full benefit—the Dabney S. Lancaster Library.

Today under the guidance of Mrs. Martha LeSturgeon and her staff, the library continues, as she says, "to try to supply informational and recreational

(Continued on Page 8)

Computers

(Continued from Page 1)

Assistant Dean of the College immediately also. It can not be stressed enough that a student has to register with his/her advisor.

How does the student suddenly go about registering for classes in this totally new method? According to Stuart Tennant, Longwood Registrar, it follows this way:

1) Check your class rank this week. There will be a list, by class rank on the bulletin board outside the registrar's office this Registration form.

4) These are turned in by the advisors to Tennant's office; from there they will be sent to Data Processing to be machine read from input information to the computer. The computer will then generate student schedules.

5) On the assigned date, forms on the student schedule calendar, go to the Registrar's Office and pick up the completed schedule. If there are no conflicts, pocket it and do not worry about it until August.

6) If the computer finds a conflict in your schedule, it will be printed on the individual

"The annual two day festivities over at Lankford will become a fond memory of the past." — Stuart Tennant at Press Conference week of those students who have paid their advance deposits and who are therefore eligible to participate in advance registration.

2) Pick up a schedule of classes from the Registrar's office. These will be available after noon-time March 15, 1979.

3) See your advisor and determine your class schedule. Leave it with him/her. The upper portion of the registration form will be filled out in ink. The lower portion, which resembles SAT or other optical scan tests, is filled out in No. 2 pencil lead by the student's advisor. The student keeps his copy of Part I of the schedule which you will receive. One of two choices are yours. Look at one of the terminals in the Registrar's Office and choose another section of the course. If this does not work, the student will then return to his advisor and choose an alternate course. This change will be recorded on an "Advisor Approval Form" to be completed and signed by the advisor.

Tennant noted that "It is our hope that every student who participates in Advanced Registration will leave in May knowing that his schedule has been satisfactorily resolved. For students who change their academic goals over the summer the Fall Add-Drop policy will remain in effect and should enable these students to resolve their resulting schedule changes."

What about the student who for some reason or another does not participate in Advanced Registration? For example, this might be the student who is an unclassified (i.e. non-degree seeking) student or summer school students (who does not advance register through their advisors).

These students will participate in "on-line" registration, a procedure similar to the Lankford system with its queues, however, this new form of registration will take place in Ruffner.

Students attending summer school will register on the day preceding each session Sunday, June 10, and Wednesday, July 11, in the Registrar's Office. This will be a short process whereby each student will register singly at a terminal in the office. This process is very short and is easier and more convenient than the previous card system. There are no present plans as to the order of registration according to class rank or alphabet. Mr. Tennant anticipates it will be a general line-up on a first-come, first-served basis. He also pointed out that Longwood students who avail themselves of advance registration will have first choice and will be spared the queuing up in front of the Registrar's Office.

August 28 will be a registration for unclassified students, and these who did not participate in the April Advance Registration. This also will be an on-line registration in the Registrar's Office. As of now, this plan will take the August registrant from Admissions to the Registrar's Office to the Business Office and to the lower dining hall for I.D. cards.

This new system has several advantages and promises to be an excellent one. Data will be more accurate, the usual running around should be eliminated, and classes will be guaranteed to those students who pay their advance deposits in spring and their balance due of tuition and fees over the summer. Another long term advantage concerns advisor-student relationships. With the new system, advisor and student relationships will become closer.

COURSE TITLE	NO.	COURSE TITLE	NO.	COURSE TITLE	NO.
Anthropology	1	Geography	29	Physical Ed.	56
Art	2	Geology	30	Psych. Drama	57
Astronomy	5	German	31	Physical Science	58
Biology	7	Government	32	Physics	61
Business	10	Health Ed.	33	Psychology	62
Chemistry	12	Health. Ed./P.S.	34	Psy./Sociology	64
Computer Science	14	History	35	Recreation	66
Dramatic Arts	16	Home Economics	36	Religious Study	68
Earth Science	18	Latin	37	Science	70
Economics	20	Library Science	38	Social Science	72
Education	22	Mathematics	39	Social Work	74
English	23	Military Science	40	Sociology	76
English Drama	24	Music	52	Spanish	78
French	27	Philosophy	54	Speech	80

Lady Golfers Shoot For Tours

By JANET CLEMENTS
After being regular season champions, placing second in the VAAW State Tournament, and compiling well over 100 wins in the Fall season, the Lady Lancer golf team takes to the links Saturday for their first match with Rutgers University and William and Mary.

Returning juniors Becky Webb and Janet Clements, sophomores Debra Hood and Kay Smith, and freshmen Beth Waddell and Margaret Anderson have been getting primed for their Spring Tour throughout Virginia, North Carolina, and Kentucky.

The Spring golf season differs quite a bit from the Fall season since the Spring season concentrates on primarily individual competition in various invitational tournaments instead of team competition.

During Spring Break the Lady Lancers will travel to Durham to play in the Duke Invitational, a tournament which draws some of the strongest women's teams in the nation. Other tournaments include the Sweet Briar Invitational, of which sophomore Kay Smith is defending champion, and the James Madison Invitational. Highlighting the entire season will be the Lady Kat Invitational played in Lexington, Kentucky on April 12, 13, 14.

Although the Longwood team may seem small scale in comparison to many of the teams they play, the Lancers have high hopes of having a successful season. Coach Barbara Smith has led her team through many winning seasons, and this season may very well surpass all previous achievements.

LONGWOOD COLLEGE MEN'S GOLF TEAM SPRING SCHEDULE, 1979

March
14	Roanoke College	A	1:00 p.m.
15	H-S, Greensboro Col.	H	12:30 p.m.
16	Ferrum College	A	1:00 p.m.
April
2	Wash. & Lee Uni.	A	1:00 p.m.
6,7,8	Va. State Inter. Golf Tour., The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va.	A	TBA
9	Mary Washington Col.	H	1:00 p.m.
10	Randolph-Macon Col.	A	1:00 p.m.
16	Mary Washington Col.	A	12:30 p.m.
20	Quad. Match with: Averett College
	Ferrum College
	Wash. & Lee Uni.	H	1:00 p.m.

SPORTS

The men drive for the green.

Photo by Janet Clements

Many Returnees Prepare For Tennis Season

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
Fifteen women took to the courts to contend for a spot on the Longwood Spring tennis team. After several weeks of working out, eight players were selected. Returning from the Fall are senior Mary Barrett; junior Margie Quarles; sophomore Nancy Leidenheimer, and freshmen Doris Keys, Eva Lowe, and Jill Foster. New netters are freshmen Penny Stephens and Christi Lewis.

The manager of the team is Steve Whitten and the assistant manager is Kendall Adams. Mrs. Phylliss Harriss coaches this experienced, young team.

Their first match is Wednesday, March 14, at Averett. The netters open at home against Southern Seminary April 2.

Kay Smith works on her swing.

Photo by Janet Clements

Golfers Begin Season

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
Nine men will represent the Lancers on the course this year as members of the golf team. Returning to the line-up from last season are juniors David Yerkis, a business major from Winchester, Va., Robert Lane, a business administration major from Farmville, and sophomores Robert Boyd, II, a business administration major from Chase City, Va., Wayne Moore, a business administration major from Keysville, Va., Timmy White, a physical education major from Richmond, Va.

Also on the team are senior business administration major George Pinelli from Farmville and freshmen Lloyd Edward, Jr., a business management major from Glen Allen, Va., Charles Lineberry, a business major from Hampton, Va., and Scott Taylor an accounting major from Chester, Va.

Tomorrow the team travels to Roanoke College. Thursday they have their first home match against Hampden-Sydney and Greensboro College at 12:30 p.m. On Friday they take to the road to face Ferrum.

H2O Club Combines Modern Dance And Swimming

By PATTI K. CHAPMAN
Have you ever seen synchronized swimming? Do you know what aquatic art is? Can you imagine routines that are like modern dance in the water? Routines that use special makeup, lighting, underwater props, and lots of imagination! If you should have to, unfortunately, answer "No" to any one of these questions, then the H2O Club cordially invites you to our spring water show! Our theme for this year is "Kalidescope," which includes a unique variety of routines ranging from "The Lone Ranger and Tonto" to "Third Dimension!" The H2O Club will give three, hour-long performances on April 4, 5, and 7. All of these shows are at night and there is no admission charge! Times will be posted later. The members of the club are super excited about the show! Believe me we have put many long, wet hours into making this a successful show!

The routines consist of either synchronized swimming or aquatic art. Synchronized swimming deals with a variety of stunts with the music creating a mood. For example we have a "Disco" routine to the Commodores "Machine Gun." Another "synchro" type routine is set to the music "Autumn Leaves." Aquatic Art deals with the telling of a story by using acting and swimming techniques.

The routine "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" is the story expressed from Dukas' symphonic poem also entitled "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." Then there is a routine entitled "The Gold Miners," where you will just have to come to the show to see the story!

Hard work has been put into the H2O Club's water show. Not only exhaustion of the body from all the swimming, but we have to use our imaginations! Because this show is written and performed for you, the student body's entertainment.

H2O Club members practice for their performance over spring weekend.

Photo by Debbie Northern

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER
Now that warm weather is finally here, it is time for everybody to get ready for some outdoor fun. After Spring break, IAA softball, track and field, tennis and swimming relays begin. The captain's meeting, practice and game schedule will be posted on the IAA bulletin board in the New Smoker. Keep an eye out for this information.

Men's badminton and pool are finished. Dale Portner took the badminton championship and J. Lowe took the pool championship. Spades tournament is going well. So, while everyone is at home over Spring Break, get in shape and come play some IAA sports.

This Week In Sports

TENNIS
March
14	A - Averett	2:00
WOMEN'S GOLF
March
17	H - Rutgers	10:00
	W&M	(a.m.)
22	A - UNC-Chapel Hill	1:00
	W&M
23-24	A - Duke Invitational

BASEBALL
March
14	H - E. Mennonite (double header)	1:00
17	A - W&L (double header)	1:00
27	H - Johns Hopkins (double header)	1:00
29	A - Lynchburg	3:00
31	H - Norfolk State (double header)	1:00

LACROSSE
14	H - M. Washington	3:30
30	H - W&M	3:30
31	H - JMU	10:00
	Piedmont	(a.m.)
MEN'S GOLF
14	A - Roanoke	1:00
15	H - H-S
	Greensboro Col.	12:30
16	A - Ferrum	1:00

Blue - N - White
Get-Together And Sing
Tuesday, March 13
Gold Room
7 p.m.
Come - Join in the Spirit of Longwood!

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Phone 392-4154

OVERALL: 7-16	DIVISION: 1-7	OUT-OF-STATE: 2-8	AT HOME: 5-5
LONGWOOD 74, UNC-Greensboro 68	Longwood 54, MORRIS HARVEY 75	Longwood 64, ANDERSON 82
Longwood 53, CAMPBELL 87	Longwood 50, LOUISBURG 77	Longwood 50, CHARLESTON 95
Longwood 62, ST. PAUL'S 74	Longwood 54, RADFORD 88	Longwood 55, VPI&SU 81
LONGWOOD 63, William & Mary 56	LONGWOOD 80, Liberty Baptist 35	Longwood 41, HIGHPOINT 85
Longwood 54, NORFOLK STATE 58	Longwood 42, EAST CAROLINA 82	Longwood 54, U.V.A. 74
LONGWOOD 69, UNC-Greensboro 50	LONGWOOD 65, Virginia State 52	Longwood 54, ODU 89
Longwood 55, VIRGINIA UNION 62	LONGWOOD 55, VCU 53	Longwood 50, JMU 61
Longwood 82, MORRIS HARVEY 96	LONGWOOD 52, St. Paul's 50

INDIVIDUAL AND TEAM STATISTICS

Player	G	FGM-FGA	PCT	FTM-FTA	PCT	REB	AVG	PF-D	AST	TO	BS	S	PTS	AVG
Deb Brown	18	9-28	.321	9-16	.562	22	1.2	18-0	12	15	1	1	27	1.5
Brenda Fettrow	23	125-348	.359	45-81	.556	142	6.2	72-3	77	114	14	58	295	12.8
Amy Gates	23	23-85	.270	12-33	.364	72	3.1	39-2	6	38	12	9	58	2.5
Lori Grimm	19	12-35	.343	6-11	.545	9	0.5	21-0	6	36	1	13	30	1.6
Kitty Hughes	23	27-115	.235	37-55	.673	49	2.1	29-0	17	36	4	34	91	4.0
Robin Hungate	23	70-200	.350	75-112	.670	118	5.1	73-4	16	60	12	29	215	9.3
Janice Johnson	19	4-29	.190	0-3	.000	10	0.5	23-0	2	6	2	7	8	0.4
Cindy Landon	23	88-204	.431	45-63	.714	151	6.6	66-2	30	82	5	17	221	9.6
Connie Murray	18	3-12	.250	1-3	.333	9	0.5	8-0	12	24	0	5	7	0.4
Linda Pullen	22	35-86	.407	0-3	.000	45	2.0	33-0	13	22	5	8	70	3.2
Lisa Ray	22	19-67	.284	6-13	.462	24	1.1	21-0	20	27	1	9	44	2.0
Maryjane Smith	8	39-95	.410	36-44	.818	45	5.6	23-1	28	38	8	23	114	14.2
Melissa Wiggins	20	55-151	.364	13-22	.591	37	1.8	62-3	50	58	7	40	123	6.2
Nancy Wilson	20	12-44	.273	5-14	.357	35	1.8	32-0	4	28	1	8	29	1.4

Snowshoe Hosts College Ski Race

The second annual Mid-Atlantic College Invitational Race, sponsored by Snowshoe, is to be held Monday, March 12, 1979 and will draw college ski teams from a five state area. The college teams will be competing for both individual and team honors. The race is to be held on Snowshoe's "Skip Jack" racing trail and will be a two run race in Giant Slalom format.

Last year's winning team from Virginia Poly Technical Institute will be returning to defend their title against neighboring colleges. Although the College Invitational Race is only in its second year, increasing interest in skiing in the Mid-Atlantic area has Snowshoe expecting a larger number of competitors than last year, with some colleges fielding two teams. Each team can consist of as many as six male and/or female skiers, but not less than four, with the best four times counting toward overall team results.

Trophies and prizes donated by Michelob will be given to the top three male racers, top three females and the best three teams. The top winning teams will be presented with individual awards as well as a trophy for their school.

This is the last ski race scheduled at Snowshoe for the winter season with May marking the beginning of tennis competition with the Snowshoe Pro-Am Invitational Tournament set for May 17 thru 20.

LC ruggers took on the R.A.T.S. from Richmond on Saturday. A number of spectators turned out to find out exactly what was going on.

Photo by Linda Strickland

Registration Forms Available

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Registration forms are now available in Dr. Gerald Graham's office, the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Office, and the Information Office for the 1979 Longwood College Minithon Run on April 22. Contestants must be amateurs. Entry fees are $3.00 if entered before April 15 or $4.00 after April 15.

The course is 10,000 meters (6.2 miles) starting at Hampden-Sydney College in front of the administration building and following Route 643 along the back Hampden-Sydney road and finishing in front of the Longwood College Rotunda.

The race is open to everyone. There will be six categories for men and women: 15 years and under, 16 years-21 years, 22 years through 29 years, 30 years through 39 years, 40 years through 49 years, and 50 years and over.

The deadline for registration is 12:00 noon on April 22.

The lacrosse team works on skills needed for their first game tomorrow against Mary Washington. The game will be held at Second Avenue school field.

Photo by Kathy Rogers

Observation Key

(Continued from Page 2)

child's diet."

"The essence of nutrition is understanding what's in food and what it does in the body. It is more useful to know if it is good food than what group it is in," commented Ford.

Hyperactive children may be the victim of an unsatisfactory diet. Certain foods can have an effect on children's stimulation. Ford feels that occasionally children are labeled as hyperactive when other disorders such as tiredness, anxiety, handicaps and medication may be to blame.

In the afternoon, Dr. Michelle Irwin spoke on "The Eye of the Beholder." She said observation was very important in understanding young children. Teachers must practice how to properly observe children to get the maximum benefit.

She gave five reasons why observation is important in the classroom.

1) It is a means for generating ideas. One must discover what the child is interested in pursuing in his spare time.

2) It is a means of answering specific questions, such as why children do not wish to do something. Teachers must

"influence a child's concept of himself as a learner." The child needs to have confidence in himself.

3) Observation provides a more realistic picture of events.

4) Observation helps to better understand children's behavior. Dr. Irwin said, "Children have their own style of learning." Some children must be shown how to do something, while others can be told. Dr. Irwin also stated that children's responses "tell you a great deal of where they are at." Children and adults sometimes have different concepts.

5) Observation is important means of evaluation.

"You have to think about what you are preparing them (the children) for," Dr. Irwin commented. She hoped that teachers are preparing them for the 21st century, which is not in the distant future.

Dr. Irwin's guidances for observation include a clear distinction between what is seen or heard, and the conclusions drawn, trying to interpret from the child's viewpoint rather than an adult's, not drawing unjustified conclusion, trying to observe specifics, be objective, and taking down basic information.

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon-Thur: 11 to 10 PM, Fri & Sat: 11 to Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 11 to 9 —

KEY

OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

SCM Typewriter Repair

School Supplies

New Approach

(Continued from Page 1)

one full academic year with the R.A.s in residence, the snags have appeared and we are able to see what needs to be done to establish better guidelines for the R.A.'s. One of the problems which became apparent was the confusion of responsibilities and roles (such as overlapping authority between the R.A.s and Residence Board.

Longwood has always been proud of its system of Student Government and the arrival of Resident Assistants (chosen by the administration as opposed to student election) seemed, at first, like a dash of cold water.

Steps are now being taken to further clarify the role of the R.A.s and their interaction with Residence Board. As Dean Heintz said during an interview with both her and Ann Wyatt, "We all want to work TOGETHER," as opposed to the idea of two separate entities working independently toward the same goal.

At the beginning of this semester meetings took place between Dean Heintz, Residence Board, and the R.A.s' Area Coordinators. Dean Heintz asked that each group meet separately to discuss what they viewed as their responsibilities and also to set up guidelines for the handling of minor infractions by the R.A.s.

I spoke with Dean Heintz and Ann Wyatt about the outcome of these meetings. Two major concerns are the strengthening of Dorm Councils and the concurrent release of Residence Board's responsibility as far as enforcement and trials are involved. This will facilitate the Board's ability to study current housing rules and needs, so that they may suggest and make changes which would be deemed improvements.

At this point in time a minor infraction (this excludes all fire and alcohol violations which will be referred directly to the Boards) will be handled by the Resident Assistants and the proper Dorm Council (made up of the R.A.s, Dorm President, and Head Resident—the latter is in an advisory position only).

A student's first violation of housing rules will probably only concern the student involved in the R.A. who gives one copy of the penalty sheet to that student (the other copy will go on file in the dorm office). This penalty sheet serves as the student's written warning. Hopefully, receiving a penalty sheet is as far as any of us will ever have to go in our involvement with 'the law'.

However, if a student constantly violates (3-4 times) the rules, or the R.A. feels that infractions are occurring purposely, then the student will be referred to a Dorm Council. The R.A.s and the Dorm Council have the authority to determine penalties for minor infractions. If a student is even more stubborn and persistent in his/her pursuit of violation of housing regulations, he/she will ultimately appear before Residence Board.

Another topic discussed was the establishment of appropriate penalties for an infraction rather than the creation of a list which would state a specific penalty for each rule which is broken. For example, if you have a guest in your room after open house hours and you are caught, then you could conceivably lose the privilege of having a guest during open house. At this time both the R.A.s and Residence Board are able to be flexible and administer justice by choosing from a range of penalties.

Contrary to what you may be thinking now, punishment was not the focus of my talk with Dean Heintz and Ann Wyatt. Rather, they pointed out the importance of the Honor Code and student SELF RESPONSIBILITY for conduct. "The concept that a penalty needs to be supervised, needs to be turned around," according to Dean Heintz.

I feel that if each of us can do our part in realizing that it is better to work for change constructively, rather than by destructive and childish means then we are well on our way to expressing ourselves as adults and responsible citizens.

We can support the R.A.s and make it easier on ourselves by trying to live within the codes which have been established. Any society needs rules within which it can operate. If you feel a need for change and have suggestions, then share your ideas and perhaps improvements will occur that involve everyone rather than just one or two persons acting on impulse. Let's all work together to make Longwood what it should be!

Library Facilities

(Continued from Page 5)

needs of the students, faculty and administration." With a circulation of well over 60,000 the library still thrives. Equipped with reference, reserve and study rooms as well as a kiddy lit and an exhibition room, the library has undergone quite an evolution.

Constantly trying to build a collection is a full time job on library staff members. Still trying to achieve their goals, the library continues to grow as in the years past. No one knows what the future holds—but you can be sure that Dabney Lancaster Library has finally established a permanent residence for a while anyway.

Press Conference

(Continued from Page 2)

full time student and maintain a 2.0 grade point average.

President Willett said that the IAC is looking into the athletic program on campus. "Rumors have been going around that we are going to abolish women's gymnastics and men's wrestling. That certainly is not correct. The future of both is solid."

When the floor was open for student questioning, one student inquired about the possibility of a men's tennis team. He also asked about a Men's Faculty-Student tennis tournament. President Willett was very positive concerning the tournament and said that the team was on the IAC list for consideration.

Miss Longwood

(Continued from Page 1)

fourth displayed the good taste and individual beauty represented by each contestant.

Before the final ballot was tallied, Miss Longwood of 1978, Kim Turnbull was presented for her farewell speech. When asked about her memories of being Miss Longwood, Kim replied that "Although all of them are not good memories, the good ones truly outweigh the rest", and that nothing would have been possible without the love of her wonderful parents. One thing that she would have to tell her grandchildren, though, was that although she may not have won the Miss Va.

Pageant, she was lucky No. 13, and was in competition with Kylene Barker, Miss Va. Miss Turnbull reigned graciously for one full year, and left the audience with one last performance of her flute selection which aided her in winning last year's title.

Then the final moment came. The Most Talented Non-Finalist Award was given to Andrea Dawn Mott for her beautiful talent presentation.

Second runner-up was announced and Anita Britt Hed excitedly walked up to take her position and her rose.

First runner-up, Jane Haskins Bruce, was announced and she also walked up to take her position and her rose.

Finally, Miss Longwood College of 1979 was announced. The audience then heard "Contestant No. 6—Juliana Worsham"! Tears were shed by Miss Worsham as she came forward to have the banner placed on her and accept the 12 dozen roses. She then took the walk down the runway as the new Miss Longwood 1979.

Miss Worsham was born in Charlottesville, Va., and has spent her life living in Richmond, Roanoke, and Va. Beach, before moving to Hilton Head, South

The Student Education Association cordially invites students, faculty and staff to hear Reggie Smith speak on the topic of "Human Relations" in Hiner 205 March 13 at 7:00 p.m. Refreshments after talk.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

F.A.C.

The Snack Bar Presents

THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

From 4 to 6 p.m.

Free Chips and Pretzels
and Free Juke Box Music

F.A.C.

Carolina, last May. She will represent Longwood in the Miss Va. Pageant, and will claim her residency as Va. residency, due to her residing in Farmville nine months out of the year.

The hard work put in by all of the contestant, escorts and pageant workers finally paid off with a successful pageant! The Council, Chairman-Deanna Deane, apprentice-Joy Serine, Director-Sharon Janovich, apprentice-Cheryl Wilcox, Producer-Connie Turner, apprentice-Cary Bell and the rest of the committee wish to thank all those who helped in making the pageant a success!

Longwood College will have a truly gracious representative in the Miss Va. Pageant, and the best of luck and congratulations are wished for Miss Juliana Worsham, Miss Longwood 1979, and Jane Bruce and Anita Hed for being 1st and end runners-up, respectively.

Perfect SYMBOLS OF LOVE

CARWIN

FLORAL

Let your Keepsake wedding ring match his... a symbol of your life-time together. Choose from our complete collection.

Keepsake®
Traditional Wedding Rings

Martin
The Jeweler

MAIN ST., FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4904

Trade-Mark Reg.

THE HAIR SHAFT

"HAIRSTYLING FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY"

RHONDA BARTON OR
LINDA "JILL" DUNEVANT

HOURS:

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed.-Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Where The Gowns Are...

We have the most exciting collection of bridal, bridesmaids and mothers gowns as featured in Modern Bride and Brides magazine.

Tiffanys
Bridal and Formal

Richmond
3120 W. Cary
Hampton
Newmarket North Mall
Petersburg
Walnut Mall
Norfolk
Military North Mall

Member National Bridal Service

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, APRIL 3, 1979

NO. 20

Bobbitt, Sprague Are Graduation Speakers

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Four hundred and seventy-four students will receive degrees from Longwood College in May. Of these, 415 will be undergraduate degrees and 59, masters degrees. Dr. Eleanor W. Bobbitt and Dr. Rosemary Sprague will address the graduates at exercises, May 12.

Dr. Eleanor W. Bobbitt, a professor of Health and Recreation, has been a member of Longwood Faculty since 1954.

She is a Longwood alumna who received her M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee and her Ph.D. from the University of Maryland.

Among Dr. Bobbitt's accomplishments include serving a two-year term as National President of Delta Psi Kappa, a physical education fraternity. She is a past president of the Virginia Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation and received the Distinguished Service Award of that organization in 1975.

From 1977-1979, Dr. Bobbitt has served as vice president of the P.E. Division of the Southern district of the American Association of HPER and helped coordinate the convention recently held in New Orleans, LA.

In 1973, she was presented the Student-Faculty Recognition Award. This award is presented annually by the College's Student Development Committee to was named Board of Visitors Distinguished Professor of English in May, 1967.

She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and received her M.A. and Ph.D. from Western Reserve University. Her post-doctoral work was done at Shakespeare Institute, Stratford-on-Avon, and University of London.

The author of nine historic novels, she has also done biographies on Robert Browning, and George Eliot, a study of five women poets, and has edited poems of Robert Browning for the Cromwell Poets Series. The Student-Faculty Recognition Award was presented to Dr. Sprague in 1977.

Dr. Sprague is an extensive lecturer and recently lectured widely on "The Men Who Were Not Shakespeares." She participates in numerous scholarly and professional organizations. She is a respected leader on campus and in the Farmville Community.

The speakers for graduation were picked by a special committee set up by the senior class and voted on by the class.

Photo by Paula Johnson

recognize "professional excellence and devote service to students."

Dr. Bobbitt has also worked with elementary school physical education clinics and has spoken at various functions on the Longwood Campus.

Dr. Rosemary Sprague came to Longwood as an associate professor of English in 1962. She

Father Burghardt Speaks:

Look, Love And Laugh; A Response To Anxiety

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

As Father Walter J. Burghardt looked out over his audience on Thursday, March 29, he remarked, "The students must be too depressed to come." Even though there were relatively few students and more faculty assembled Father Burghardt's talk entitled "Look, Love and Laugh; A Response to Anxiety," he enlightened those present as to how they could best relive their pressures.

In order to really be alive, one must use three facets, the ability to look, to love and to laugh stated Father Burghardt. He said, "I am not alive just because life is in me."

To begin with we must look with our minds. Only if our minds are open can we come face to face with what makes life. We must search for what is real, knowing that the real is profound and mysterious. When we discover the real, we no longer analyse or describe it, but are one with it. Father Burghardt said "you must simply seek and what you see you love."

Love cannot be described by clichés of definitions. Everything stems from love, he added. It towers over faith and hope. Its roots are in God, who shares himself with us. "Love is most itself when it is for others," Father Burghardt stressed.

When he looks at the issues of 1979, he finds that there is little love. There is a violation of human rights and injustice. Father Burghardt pointed out that one billion people, one out of four will go to bed hungry at night.

He blames this on the fact that we "don't come across as a community of love." One must extend their horizons beyond themselves. "We are not in love if we are not willing to risk," he added.

Yet, Father Burghardt admits that love does not conquer all. If all Christians were loving there would still be problems because man is limited.

If you look, love and respond to the real, you will laugh. "Laughter is joy in living," stated Father Burghardt. We should delight in ourselves and show with others this delight, he advised. "You will discover life only if you look and love," he said.

"Hopefully you will leave here (Longwood) educated in that Longwood has revealed a world which excites you with excitement...and you will leave here laughing," he concluded.

Conservation Program Announced

Dr. William J. Peele, Vice-President for Administration, has released the following memorandum to the Longwood employees and students:

To comply with the Governor's energy conservation program, to eliminate needless energy costs at Longwood College, and to do our part in the national effort to conserve fuel and electricity, the following provisions will be strictly enforced, effective immediately.

Heating Season

Set thermostats and other control devices to maintain a maximum temperature in heated spaces of 68 degrees F. Reduce temperatures in heated spaces to at least 63 degrees F. when area is not occupied or during sleeping hours in residential facilities.

Blinds, shades, drapes, or other window coverings should be kept closed at night and opened during day to admit sunlight when available. It is imperative that windows and outside doors be kept closed when heating is required.

The use of supplemental heating units, such as plug-in electric heaters, should be avoided.

Cooling Season

Maintain the temperature of air conditioned spaces at not less than 78 degrees F.

When spaces are not in use, space temperatures shall not be maintained below 83 degrees F. by the use of cooling cycle or ventilating equipment.

Use lights only when necessary as they add to cooling loads.

Do not operate air conditioning equipment in spaces that are unoccupied for several hours.

Keep outside doors and windows closed when cooling equipment is in use.

Blinds, shades, or other window coverings should be kept closed as much as possible to reduce heat gain through windows.

Year-Round Lighting and Power

Lighting for ornamental purposes will be discontinued or reduced to allow for needed security lighting only. Corridor and lobby lighting, as well as in other areas, will be reduced.

Low energy consumption lamps will be substituted in both incandescent and fluorescent fixtures. Persons must turn off lights when leaving their work areas.

FALSE FIRE ALARMS

The number of false fire alarms seems to be increasing. Students are reminded that should someone be apprehended setting a false alarm, that person will probably be suspended from the college.

During the week prior to Spring Vacation, many students were disturbed by frequent false alarms. There were no scheduled fire drills that week, and the alarms were not pulled to evacuate guests from the residence hall.

The Fire Safety Plan requires that all rooms be checked to assure that everyone is out of a building when the fire alarm is sounded. No student or staff member is authorized to search rooms. The room check must be done to protect all.

Student who reside in a hall and who are upset about disturbances caused by false alarms should make every effort to ascertain and report anyone observed pulling a false alarm.

David Wall, Fire Warden
Mary A. Heintz, Dean of Students

Spring Weekend '79

Begins Thursday

By DONNA HASKY

"The Biggest," "The Greatest," "The Best Ever" — you've heard it all before, right? Well, this year's collection of Spring Weekend entertainment promises to give validity to these claims. The four-day weekend, under the supervision of Admissions Counselor Candy Dowdy and Student Union Vice-Chairman Marjorie Croxton, promises to truly provide "something for everyone" now suffering from Spring Fever.

The festivities begin Thursday night, April 5, with a mini-concert in the Gold Room, featuring the talented Willie Nining and his likewise talented family. The music changes Friday night, as "The Royal Kings" provide a fast-moving sound for the mixer. Admission is $1.50 for Longwood students and $2.00 for guests. Students are also reminded that ID's are required for admission.

Saturday is the big day, with a scavenger hunt at 10 a.m. starting things off. Students may form teams of 4, and sign up in the Student Union Office through Friday. There is an entry fee of $1.00 per team, and the winning team will win all the collected entry fees, as well as 4 tickets to the Robbin Thompson concert, 4 frisbees and a watermelon to divide. The Professional frisbee demonstration will be held at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on Lankford Mall, followed by a beginner's workshop. Lunch will take on an added flair when it's served picnic style on East Wheeler Mall. During lunch, the ever popular band, "Southern Hospitality," which performed very successfully last year at Spring Weekend, will entertain.

The afternoon's events include a Sorority Powder Puff Football game at 1 p.m. and at 1:30. "The Wonder Hat" will be performed on Lankford Mall by the talented Longwood Players. For those ready for some fast action, the Rugby team takes on Mary Washington on the Campus School field at 2 p.m.

For the less active, the Longwood Concert Choir will be performing at 2:30 p.m. in Wygal Auditorium. The evening winds down with an H2O water show at 7:30 in French Pool, and the Longwood College Drama Department's presentation of the play "Vanities" at 8 p.m. The play is free for Longwood students and is $2.50 for guests in Jarman Auditorium.

Anyone with lots of energy left, will enjoy the music of Robbin Thompson and "The No Slack Band," who are the featured stars of the Saturday Night Alive Concert. The music starts at 8:30 p.m. and admission is $1.00 for Longwood students and $1.50 for guests.

Sunday's events include the Championship Powder Puff Football Game at 1:15 on Iler field, and an outdoor concert from 2 until 5 p.m. on Lankford Mall. Beginning with the antics of the LOCO-MOTION CIRCUS, the mood will stay lively with the music of THE BUFFALO CHIP KICKERS, to bring to an end one of the "most exciting Spring Weekends ever!"

Willie Nining Opens Weekend

By CHERYL WILCOX

Appearing Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Gold Room will be Willie Nining and family. Nining appears usually with his sister, Annie, and father, Gene, playing folk music with light satire and humor.

Nining is a graduate of Tufts with a B.A. in English and now lives in the Greenwich Village in New York City. He has been working colleges such as Virginia Tech, William and Mary, North Carolina State and the University of Virginia as well as coffeehouses along the East Coast.

His music is a mixture of his own compositions with those of John Prine, Woody Guthrie, Bob Dylan and Jimmy Buffett prove to be a winning combination for this New York native. Among some of the best tunes of his own are "Country Dough," a parody of John Denver, "Freshman," a song about his first year in high school, and "Proud to be a Moose," one of the five songs he has sold to CBS for the Captain Kangaroo show.

Nining is famous for the way he conveys warmth to his audiences. His imagination and wit promises to create an atmosphere of enjoyment.

Saturday Night Alive Features Robbin Thompson

By BILL LEWARNE

During Spring Weekend Longwood will be the site of continuous musical talent, and Robbin Thompson will rank high in that entertainment. Following a successful solo album and the number one charted hit "Sweet Virginia Breeze" with Steve Bassett, Thompson has been performing concerts all over the East Coast circuit. Now a seasoned professional, Thompson has worked in the past with such top names as Firefall, Little Feat, and Bruce Springsteen.

Robbin Thompson and the No Slack Band will appear here during Spring Weekend's "Saturday Night Alive". The music will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Lower Dining Hall. The cost is $1.00 for student and $1.50 for guests (I.D.'s are required).

Weekend Takes To The Skies

By DONNA HASKY

As soon as the last snow melted, frisbees could be seen flying through the air—sometimes with the greatest of ease and sometimes not. For those whose tosses sometimes tremble, whose shots aren't always straight and those who would never dare a behind the back shot, your time has come! The ever-growing sport of frisbee tossing has officially found its way into Spring Weekend, through the GOODTIME PROFESSIONAL FRISBEE SHOW. Featuring two of the world's most outstanding flying disc performers, Mary Kathron and Ken Westerfield, GOODTIMES will demonstrate their championship techniques at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 7, on Lankford Mall.

Mary is the winner of a 1978 U.S. and Canadian national freestyle title, and Ken holds the world distance record for a toss of 552 feet. After performing themselves, students will then be able to show their stuff, as the flying disc duo share some of their trade secrets in a beginners workshop. Everyone bring a frisbee and take to the skies...

Wil
Fan

Fri-
Royal

Sat.-

10:00 Scavenger Ht
Lankford Mall

10:30 Pro. Frisbee Sh
Lankford Mall

11:00 Frisbee Clinic
Lankford Mall

11:30 Picnic

E. Wheeler Mall

1:00 "Southern Hospitali
E. Wheeler Mall

1:00 Sorority Powder P
Football

Iler

1:30 "The Wonder Ha
L. Players Lankfor

Sun.-

1:15 Champion

2:50

"I

C

C

Spring Week

SUN, FUN,
AND EVERYONE!

Mixer

ROYAL KINGS

Friday, April 6

9pm - 1am

LOWER DINING HALL

L.C. $1.50 Guests $2.00

I.D.

REQUIRED

SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

Saturday - 1:00 E. Wheeler Mall
"Good 'Ole Foot-Stampin' Enjoyment"

The H₂O CLUB

PRESENTS

FREE ADM.

WED THURS AND Sat
April 4 5 and 7 - 8:00 P.M.
College Pool

Sunday Brings Clowns And Bluegrass

By DONNA HASKY

Hey, all you clowns out there... the circus is coming to town! What circus? Why, it's the LOCO-MOTION CIRCUS! Consisting of three highly talented young men—Bounce, Flip and Cyrus—this circus provides a world of entertainment.

— Like slapstick and good 'ole Vaudeville?

You'll love their antics!

— Like mime routines?

You'll love theirs!

— Like Charlie Chaplin?

You'll love their "Chaplinesque" style of slapstick-comedy-drama!

— Like acrobatics?

These guys are tops!

— Like clowning, unicycles, comedy and just plain good fun? You'll love this high voltage, energy packed show!

Get the picture? Don't miss the LOCO-MOTION CIRCUS when they perform Sunday afternoon, April 8, at 2 p.m. on Lankford Mall. It's a crazy comedy world you'll want to visit!

Also performing Sunday afternoon are the Buffalo Chipkickers. They have been described as providing a quality program with quality people.

Their unique sound appears to truly have bluegrass roots; however, it goes far beyond that. Whatever the category, their music has provided enjoyable entertainment for colleges and universities over the country.

Vanities Is Coming

"Everything is vanity and striving for the wind." In one sense the Longwood Players production of "The Cherry Orchard." Lisa Hughes has appeared in major roles in "Little Eyolf" and "The Cherry Orchard." Kathy Sowers is a new performer for the Players in her first major role as the leader of the group.

The difference is that in Jack Heifner's three-scene play, pessimism is spiced with both humor and theatricality. The Longwood student who loved cheerleading and the rivalry of sororities may see a bit of herself in the reflection of the three mirrors that surrounded the vanity tables on the stage of Jarman Auditorium. "Vanities" deals with the lives of three young girls as they move from high school to college and then into life. Joanne, Mary, and Kathy, the three principals in the play, see only themselves in their mirrors and only in a vain and superficial way. It is only in the last of the three scenes in the play that one of the girls learns perhaps that there is something else in life beside the self and the goal of self-fulfillment.

Faculty director Douglas M. Young sees the play as an unusual theatrical experience for Longwood audiences. "The audience will not only see the performance of the play," he said, "but also see the performers dress and make-up for that performance, then transform themselves into the characters in the play." The requirements for this production are quite different. Once the performers appear before the audience they never leave the stage—even during intermissions—until the play is over.

The three girls in the play are portrayed by Karen Wood who is Joanne; Lisa Hughes who is Mary; and Kathy Sowers as Kathy. Karen played the role of Madame Renevsky in the Players production of "The Cherry Orchard." Lisa Hughes has appeared in major roles in "Little Eyolf" and "The Cherry Orchard." Kathy Sowers is a new performer for the Players in her first major role as the leader of the group.

The set will consist of three vanity tables with mirrors and seven plexi-glass blocks and was designed especially for this production by faculty technical director Benjamin W. Emerson. The stage manager for the production is Meryl Phelps and the student director assisting Young is Barbara Wood. Students Karen Karcha and Vicky Mann designed the costumes and lighting, respectively. The cheerleading movements in the first scene of the play were choreographed by Reeny Manley.

"Vanities" will be the final production of the season for the Longwood Players and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts. Starting time for the show is 8 p.m., but the performers will arrive on stage a bit earlier to begin preparing for the show at their vanity tables. Longwood students will be admitted free to the production, but must present their identification cards. The general admission fee is $2.50. Discretion is advised for parents who might consider bringing children under 18.

The dictionary defines "vanity" as meaning the quality of being personally vain and excessively proud. "Vanity" may also mean emptiness, unreality, folly, and want of real value. The word also means a dressing table. The play "Vanities" means all of these things, and perhaps echoes that ancient voice in the Book of Ecclesiastes: "Vanity of vanities, all in vanity!"

Warrens Search For Supernatural

By DONNA HASKY

Ghosts are nothing new to Ed and Lorraine Warren. For over 32 years, this husband and wife team has traveled the world over, searching for the supernatural. Interested after growing up in a haunted house, Ed's research has placed him and Lorraine in the ranks of believers in the existence of ghosts, witches, vampires and demons. The course of their investigations has taken them into the fields of exorcism and demonic possession, curses, reincarnation, seances, telepathy, voodoo and psychic photography.

A recent investigation, called by Ed Warren "One of the worst cases that I have ever worked on in my 32 years of investigating hauntings," concerned itself with a house in Amityville, Long Island. A recent number one Best Seller, the book Amityville Horror documents the terror of the George Lutz Family in a house that had previously housed mass murderer Ronald DeFeo. DeFeo claimed he had murdered his entire family while "possessed." Discounting this story, the Lutz family moved in—only to soon encounter the supernatural force themselves. Doors torn off their hinges, demonic faces in the night, disappearing and moving objects, strange tracks in the snow around the house, an "imaginary" playmate of one of the children that turned into a hideous creature and other such nerve-wracking events caused the Lutz family to leave the house with only the clothes on their backs—vowing never to enter it again!

A few weeks after their departure, specialists Ed and Lorraine Warren were asked to investigate the occurrences in Amityville, since they had had much success with this type problem in the past. The surprises they found there have been compiled into a multi-media program of the same name as the book, "The Amityville Horror." The presentation, along with information from some of their other investigations and a question and answer period will be held Monday, April 9, at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. Admission is 75 cents.

The following day, on Tuesday afternoon, April 10, the Warrens will also present a special workshop on the supernatural. The group size will be limited to ten people, so persons interested should check the Student Union Office this week or come to the lecture for further information. Tickets for the lecture are available this week in the S-UN office or at the door.

Photo by Dr. Patton Lockwood

APRIL
5, 6, 7, 8

It brings the warmth of pleasure and excitement."

&
Room
ge

C. $1.50
S. $2.00

Rugby LC vs.
M. Wash. Campus School
L. C. Concert Choir
Wygat Aud.
Pro Frisbee Show
Lankford Mall
Frisbee Clinic Lankford Mall
H20 Show French Pool
"Vanities" Jarman Free
Sat. Night Alive
"Robin Thompson and The No Slack Band"
C. $1.00
G. $1.50

r Puff Football

cert

Sports Follies

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The biggest news this week in sports is that Longwood has its first All-American. Gymnast Kathy Idelson finished seventh out of 100 competitors in the floor exercises at the AIAW National Gymnastics Tournament March 30-31 at Washburn University in Topeka, Kansas. Idelson was one of 12 individuals in the nation to compete in the tournament, in addition to teams that qualified.

For her excellent performance, she was named an All-American. The baseball team has leveled its record to 5-5 after they rallied to defeat Johns-Hopkins 7-2 in the second game of the double-header after losing by a score of 8-5 in the opening game March 27. On Thursday the Lancers traveled to Lynchburg where they fell 14-1. Saturday they took on Norfolk State in a doubleheader, winning the first game 5-8 and narrowly losing the second 4-5.

The Lady Lancers lacrosse team has faced some tough competition since their season opened March 14 against Mary Washington. The Lancers made some costly mistakes and even though they outplayed Mary Washington, they were on the short end of the score 8-6. Juli Dayton and Kim Garber each put in two goals while Jayne Carson and Susan Melvin each had one.

On March 30, the lacrosse team took on powerful William and Mary taking a heavy 21-3 loss. The Lancers' goals came from Kim Garber, Juli Dayton, and Susan Melvin. The JV team played a tough game, but fell 6-14. Melissa Wiggins had three goals and Carol Vidrine and Denise Shader put in one.

The next day was filled with lacrosse from morning to late afternoon. The morning started with one of Longwood's finest efforts to date against James Madison University. The Lancers came out scoring the first goal, but they lost it at half-time 5-4. The Lancers did not get in for the scores in the second half and dropped off their earlier pace, falling in the end 10-5. Scoring for LC were Juli Dayton and Jayne Carson with two and Kim Garber with one. The JV game followed with Madison coming out on top 5-

2. Melissa Wiggins scored both goals.

In the afternoon, Piedmont Club played JMU, JMU JV and Longwood JV each played a half against Duke, and LC played Piedmont.

In Women's Golf, Longwood took first place in a tri-match on March 28. Longwood had a 379, followed by UNC-G with 429 and Sweet Briar forfeited. Kay Smith was low medalist with an 84. Their current record is 4-0.

Melissa Wiggins gets ready to pass.

Photo by Debbie Northern

Second Annual Symposium Features Va. Art Historians

From PUBLIC RELATIONS

The Second annual Symposium for Art Historians will be held April 6, beginning at 9 a.m. in the Bedford Art Building. All sessions of the symposium are open to the public without charge.

Nine research papers will be presented by art historians in Virginia colleges and universities:

Richard C. Flint, of VCU, will open the symposium with a discussion of "Felicien Rops and the Femme Fatale." A late 19th-century printmaker, Rops demonstrated in his work "a major shift in the interpretation and presentation of female imagery."

At 10:15 a.m., Dr. Jerrie Pikel-Brooklyn, of Virginia Tech, will speak on "Peisistratos: Tyranny, Political Suppression and the First Golden Age of Athens." Her paper focuses on the "cultural florescence" of Athens during the period 560-509 B.C.

Dr. John J. Yiannias, of UVA, will speak at 10:45 a.m. on "Byzantine Iconography Under Attack: Nicodemus of the Holy Mountain." Nicodemus was a Greek saint, monk, and scholar whose views on Byzantine imagery "unwittingly encouraged" the Westernization of Greek culture.

Dr. Kathleen G. Arthur, of JMU, will discuss her research on the "Newly Discovered Frescoes in the Nave Vaults of Santa Maria Novella in Florence" at 11:15 a.m. She has been investigating the chronology of the frescoes (1337-65), the possible attributions for the paintings, and the relationship between the nave vault frescoes and the Cione brothers workshop which dominated the artistic scene in Florence at that time.

Dr. Gerard Maurice Doyon, of Washington and Lee University, will speak at 11:45 a.m. on "Frank Buchser, Swiss Painter in Virginia, 1869-70." A painter of considerable reputation in Europe, Buchser came to the U.S. in 1866 on commission to paint portraits of the Union heroes of the Civil War. During his stay in Virginia, Buchser painted a portrait of Robert E. Lee and studies of the life of the blacks under Reconstruction.

At 2 p.m. Karen Kingsley, of VPI&SU, will speak on "William Randolph Hearst and the Politics of Patronage." In 1931, Hearst purchased a medieval Cistercian monastery located near Madrid, Spain. He had this architectural treasure dismantled, stone by stone, and shipped to California, intending to incorporate it in a castle-residence he planned to build.

Dr. C. Krishna Gairola, of VCU, will speak at 2:30 p.m. on "Hansas in Indian Legends and Their Evolution in Art." A native of India, Dr. Gairola will discuss the role of hansas (swans) in the religious literature, art, and architecture of India from the first millennium B.C. to the 14th century.

At 3 p.m., Dr. Aileen H. Laing, of Sweet Briar College, will speak on "The Corpus-Lambeth Stem: A Study of French Prose Apocalypse Manuscripts." Based on her study of some 90 surviving Anglo-Norman Apocalypse manuscripts, Dr. Laing has isolated six with "essentially the same pictorial cycle."

The final paper in the symposium, entitled "New Realism — or New Reality?" will be given by Dr. Robert F. Porter, of VPI&SU. One of Dr. Porter's specializations is contemporary art, and he will discuss the New Realist movement in painting which began in the 1960's.

The symposium, sponsored by the Longwood Fine Arts Center and the art department, will be moderated by Dr. Elisabeth Flynn.

SPORTS THIS WEEK

Men's Golf

APRIL

2	A	Washington & Lee	1:00
6-8	A	Va. State Intercollegiate Golf Tournament
9	H	Mary Washington	1:00

Women's Golf

5-7	A	Sweet Briar Invitational
-----	---	--------------------------	--

Baseball

2	A	St. Mary's (double header)	1:00
4	H	Hampden-Sydney	2:30
6	A	Va. Wesleyan (double header)	1:00
8	A	Bristol College (double header)	1:00

Tennis

2	H	Southern Seminary	2:00
3	A	Lynchburg	2:00
6	A	Hollins	2:00
7	A	Bridgewater	10 a.m.

Lacrosse

3	H	U. of Richmond	3:00
5	A	UVA	3:30

VOTE

Class Officer Elections

April 9; 9:00 - 6:00 P.M.

Rotunda Area Only

I.D. REQUIRED TO VOTE!!

Longwood Voices

Members of the Music Department of Longwood College attended the state level of the National Association of Teachers of Singing auditions held at Lynchburg College on March 2, 1979. While there, five students received first place in their respective categories.

In the Junior category, John Hudson of Boyce, Virginia and Rebecca Nunez of Bristol, Virginia, placed first and will represent their category at the N.A.T.S. Regionals.

Jack Tolbert of Richmond, placed first in the Sophomore category (men's) and Mary Breeden of Rice, placed first in the advanced category. Both of these students will continue to the Regionals.

The four students above were featured in the Honors Recital on March 3 at Lynchburg College. In addition, Nathaniel Eismann of Manahawkin, New Jersey placed first in the Freshmen men's category.

Rebecca Nunez, John Hudson and Nathaniel Eismann are students of Mr. Thomas Williams and Jack Tolbert and Mary Breeden are students of Miss Norma Williams. The Department of Music is proud of these students and would like to thank each of them for their excellent participation.

Regionals will be held April 6 and 7 at Shenandoah College in Winchester, Virginia.

OFFICE OF PLACEMENT SERVICES SCHEDULE

April 3 — Division of Transportation 11-1:30.
Guerilla Tactics in the Job Market 4 p.m.
April 5 — Camp Airy-Camp Louise 9:30-3:30. Video Tape on Interviewing 4 p.m.

ROOM CONTRACTS

During the summer all students will be sent notice of room assignment to confirm the assignment to a residence hall. With the confirmation slip there will be a multiple copy room contract which must be signed and returned to the office of the Director of Housing prior to the established deadline. Any student who has not returned the copy of the signed contract will be removed from the floor plans; thereafter, he will have to acquire a room by appointment with the Director of Housing in spaces available on that date.

Life is like a sandwich...
Every day,
another bite!

CLASS OF 1979

Support Longwood's
Alumni Association
April 9-13

Show Your Colors!

SPIRIT CHAIN

Greens vs Reds
5¢ A Link

Sold Wed.-Fri.
In Front Of Snack Bar

Longest Chain Winners To Be Revealed
At Saturday Lunch

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, APRIL 10, 1979

NO. 21

Photo by Bid Wall, Farmville Herald

Cause Of Dorm Fire Still Undetermined

By PAULA JOHNSON

The cause of a fire in Curry Dormitory is still unknown, according to college officials, Sunday. The fire, which was discovered around 10 a.m. Friday, totally destroyed one suite and damaged others on the dorm's fifth floor.

According to President Henry I. Willett Jr., ruled out as the cause of the blaze has been any electrical or mechanical failure and arson.

"Beyond that the fire is still undetermined," stated President Willett. "The arson people have already been here and confirmed that it was not arson."

Two girls of the three room suite were asleep at the time the fire was discovered. The girls from across the hall saw smoke from under the suite door and got the sleeping girls out.

The six girls who lived in the suite are Shirley Blanks, Ann Furr, Karla Williams, Beula Bolden, Cheryl Logan, and Brenda Hammer. Miss Hammer is away student teaching.

Most of the damage was confined to the fifth floor. The laundry and kitchen room walls were badly scorched. The fourth floor sustained some water damage as did third.

Residents of the fifth floor are not able to remain there for the rest of the year. The residents of the two suites above and below the fifth floor suite will also be relocated. In all, approximately 50 to 55 students of the dorm's 383 residents have been relocated.

Students were allowed to re-enter the building, Friday, around 3:30 p.m. to collect enough belongings to last them through the week end. After lunch Sunday those who would be remaining were allowed to return to their rooms. The fifth floor residents began their relocation.

Students are asked to check with their parents' home owners policy. By law, a Virginia company should pay at least $100 deductible. Longwood does not have any insurance policy concerning student belongings nor does any other college. It is all covered by personal home owners insurance.

There is evidence that the temperature during the fire was as high as 1600 degrees F.

"We were fortunate to have stopped the fire when we did. If not, there would have been more damage than what was sustained," stated President Willett. He also stressed that because all doors were closed more rooms were saved.

As of yet there is no estimate of the damage. A structural engineering team will be called in before a final estimate is made. According to President Willett, insurance should cover the damage.

When asked why there are not any sprinkler systems in the dorms, President Willett said, "They are not required. They would have ruined the property of everyone else. The systems were not designed to save lives."

He was also asked about smoke detectors. "Smoke detectors are not required by the state fire marshal. We will consider them and will probably put them in the rooms."

In fighting the blaze, three members of the Hampden-Sydney fire department were injured. Two were treated for burns and one for smoke inhalation at the local hospital and were later released.

Vanities Captivates Audience

A Review

By ROBERT P. WEBBER

Longwood audiences were treated to an excellent production of Vanities at Jarman Auditorium last week. The play concerns three young women at various stages in their lives: as high school cheerleaders, college sorority girls and young adults. The three are at the zeniths of their lives in high school. They are still Big Women On Campus in college, but cracks are already showing. As adults, the former head cheerleader has no job and no ambition, the high school rebel no morals and no respectability, and the high school Miss Future Homemaker no imagination and no liveliness. Their lives are three dead ends.

The actresses quickly established the personalities of their characters. Joanne (Karen Wood) is a whiner. Her ambition in life is to marry, have children, and join the Junior League, and she threatens to "just die" if anything occurs which may thwart that dream. Miss Wood unerringly emphasizes the vacuousness of the character. Kathy (Kathy Sowers) is a compulsive organizer. She organizes her high school, she organizes her sorority, and she organizes her friends, but she is unable to organize her own life. Miss Sowers is particularly effective as the lonely, burned-out adult Kathy. Lisa Hughes, as Mary, has every man in the audience panting by the third act. Her Mary is a trollop in high school, a tramp in college, and a slightly overacted strumpet as an adult.

Technically as well as emotionally, the actresses were very good. Gestures were natural. Movements were realistic. Voice projections were ample, and all three had good sense of comic timing. The pacing was brisk.

The staging was imaginative. The actresses were never offstage; they changed costumes and applied makeup at huge vanity mirrors on stage before each act. That gave the audience a perhaps too intimate view of the actresses, but it also helped to establish character and show growth. It left the actresses in awkward positions before the third act, however, when they had to turn and walk to the wings before the action could begin. Scenic designer Benjamin Emerson believes that less is more, and the set consisted of the oversize vanity tables and multipurpose cubes as props. Costumes were gorgeous and appropriate, particularly in the third act, when career girl Kathy appeared in a functional pantsuit, homemaker Joanne in a frumpy suit, and voluptuous Mary in a slinky, clingy dress.

Any play which silences the squeaky Jarman seats must be counted a success. The audience loved Vanities, and with good reason. The acting throughout was as good as any seen at Jarman this year, and the theme of the play was particularly appropriate for the college audience. Vanities closed the 1978-79 dramatic season for the Longwood Players in excellent fashion.

Weekend Makes Spring Reality

By Donna Hasky

Spring is officially here. Of course, the calendar told us that earlier, but some things are needed to really make you feel it. Spring Weekend '79 provided these little 'extras' that made Spring a reality...like the first picnic of the year, flying frisbees everywhere, blankets on the ground, warm sunshine and lots of good, outdoor music. Responsible for most of the above (except maybe the sunshine and the picnic), the Student Union Spring Weekend Committee, chaired by Marjorie Croxton, put in a number of hours to insure that everyone had a good time.

After a mini-concert with Willie Nininger and Family on Thursday night and a mixer on Friday night featuring the Royal Kings, Saturday was the day. Student Union activities began at 10 a.m. with a Scavenger Hunt, which participants claimed had been devised as an illegal form of cruel and unusual punishment.

The winning team consisted of Robyn Black, Lori Davis, Jan Jennings and Pam Wagner. Trailing by only one item, the second place team was comprised of Sara Blue, Libby Bowman, Donna Hasky and Steve Whitten, otherwise known as "The Fantastic Four."

A favorite of aspiring frisbee floaters was the professional frisbee demonstrations and workshops provided by GOODTIMES FLYING DISC SHOW.

Saturday's picnic lunch was the setting for the talented and ever-popular band, "Southern Hospitality." Flatfooting and impromptu square dancing became the order of the day for some, while others preferred to merely sit and watch. For those who saved their energy, the afternoon still had a lot in store. For those who made it through to Saturday night, Robbin Thompson and the No Slack Band provided a fast-paced and exciting show.

Sunday afternoon was the end to an enjoyable week end, as a large crowd enjoyed sunshine, good music and the entertainment of LOCO-MOTION CIRCUS, and "THE BUFFALO CHIPKICKERS."

Photo by Mark Damon K.

The Milo Russel exhibit will be in Bedford Gallery this month.

Photo by Kathy Rodgers

An Artist Interprets "Isolated Individuals"

By J. TRIMBLE

If you have been in the neighborhood of Bedford Building's Gallery lately you may have noticed a change. No longer are you greeted by the expansiveness of the "Old West." Rather than the "Great Outdoors," you will find the interior landscapes of Milo Russel displayed.

Longwood College and the Scott McKennis Gallery in Richmond are co-sponsors of the Milo Russel exhibit taking place in the Bedford Gallery April 3-26.

Twenty works by Russel are displayed in the Bedford Gallery. These are mainly oils (which is the artist's preferred media) and a few craypa "sketches." In talking with the artist he said that he worked with the craypas when trying to develop ideas for his oil paintings.

If one were to state a particular theme for this show it would have to be "Individual Figures." Russel's leit-motif of single persons, as well as the similarity of facial features and expression which can be seen, provides a unity in this show. Variety has been achieved through the variation of stance (seated or standing) and gender (male or female) of the figures he paints. Another unifying thread which can be seen in Russel's work is the inclusion of nature in some capacity. Although the majority of his figures are contained within interior environments there is usually a vase with flowers or a plant in the background.

As plants are secondary in Milo's interior environments, the persons included in his landscapes are of less importance than nature herself. This can be seen by the absence of facial and figural detail which characterizes the people of his interior scenes. The works in which figures are present are the craypas, "Patio Figure," "Landscape With Figure" (there are two of this title) and the oil, "Landscape With Figure."

Russel's palette is one in which turquoise and pink predominate. The viewer is able to feel a similarity of mood conveyed by the various figures although the mood itself is somewhat indeterminable. Russel's figures, being quiet and non-threatening, invite one to make many interpretations. At one point in time the impression of softness touches one; the softness as expressed in the curves of the figures' arms, their serenity of expression, the soft and caressing nature of the clothing which is worn.

Conversely, the viewer may be struck by a sense of man's isolation and the mass production and coolness which seem to characterize our 20th century. All in all, Milo Russel's exhibit is a thought provoking show.

Biographical Information:

Milo Russel has taught at Virginia Commonwealth University for the past 20 years. He received his initial training at the School Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, Mass. He earned his BFA at VCU in 1964 and his MEd. at UVA in 1967. He is currently Associate Professor of Art for the Department of Painting and Printmaking at Virginia Commonwealth University.

He has exhibited in numerous galleries in Virginia and had works included in the Virginia Museum Traveling Exhibit. He was given the award of the ART ACHIEVEMENT KEY by VCU in 1964 and most recently received the Major Award at the James River Show in Newport News.

RINGS

CAN BE ORDERED
TUES. & WED.
10 AM - 7 PM
IN THE ROTUNDA

LEAVING LONGWOOD

For a number of students these are among the last days at Longwood. There will be a discussion of issues related to leaving Longwood (finding new friends, finding a career, etc.) Wednesday, April 11 at 1 p.m. in Curry/Frazier Rec. Room. The discussion will be led by Dr. Brian Robie and all interested students are encouraged to attend.

Vest Presents "Words And Music" Tonight

By WILLIAM C. WOODS

One of the secret rock stars of the sixties will break ten years of silence tonight at 7:30 in Wygal Auditorium when the Gyre presents "Words and Music: Quentin Vest in Concert."

Vest—best known here as poet and professor—is better known nationally to fans of jazz, rock, blues, and country as the man who abandoned a promising career in pop to court a different muse. But he sees no contradiction. "Lately I find it harder and harder to separate poetry from music. What starts out a poem may wind up as disco punkabilly bop. And the other way around."

The pianist (he plays five other instruments) plans to offer a blend of both tonight. He's also been studying classical keyboards intensively over the past year, and claims to be under the spell of the legendary Irvin Nyireghazhi, the bizarre Romantic master who stunned the world in the 1920's and then hid in a Los Angeles hotel room for fifty years. "But what really made me decide to play again was meeting Tray Eppes, a fine musician who can really hear. I play with him now whenever I can." Guitarist Eppes teaches art at Longwood.

Though Vest's main involvements over the past decade have been teaching and poetry, he spent years in Nashville and on the road with some of the most important pop music artists of all time: Big Joe Turner, John Lee Hooker, the Drifters, Red Foley, and Faron Young only begin the list, which also includes performances with Elvis Presley's original backup band—and with the King's father. "Come on up to the house some time," Vernon Presley once told Vest, "and meet Elvis. Elvis likes music."

Vest also toured with Tammy Wynette, who recorded some of his songs, and he worked his way through a PhD at Vanderbilt by playing in dozens of Nashville recording sessions, somehow finding time to appear in a Hollywood movie and to cut a much-discussed unreleased album with musicians who later backed Bob Dylan on Blonde on Blonde. Appropriately, his doctoral dissertation, completed in 1973, discussed historical consciousness in modern Southern writing.

In the last few months, he has been in a passion of songwriting. "Sometimes it's like a blizzard when they come," Vest says, "and I can't get them down fast enough. Most of the music I ever wrote I can't remember. If I can't play something new, I won't play. I don't want to be laying down 'Shake, Rattle, and Roll' in a Holiday Inn when I'm seventy."

While at Vanderbilt, he was awarded the American Academy of Poets Prize, and since then his work has appeared in numerous periodicals and anthologies, although his first book of poems still resists completion. Of his poetics, Vest has remarked, "What is made clear will remain mysterious if it is clear enough." The clear mystery that surrounds his long silence as a musician may be enacted in Wygal tonight.

Alumni Ass. Solicites Seniors

By PAM WAGNER

This is Senior Challenge Week. During this time seniors will be contacted by members of their class, asking them to make pledges of various amounts to the Alumni Association.

This fund drive was started with a kickoff banquet Thursday, April 5. There were twenty enthusiastic students in attendance. Speakers for the evening were Miss Niki Fallis, and Mrs. Nancy Shelton. Miss Fallis talked about the Placement Office and what it can do for the seniors now and in the future. Likewise Mrs. Shelton spoke on the Alumni Office and the benefits Alumni receive. Coordinator of these events is Janet Hedrick, Director of Annual Funds.

The personal solicitation for pledges and total amount will be presented at graduation by Carol Cooper, Senior Class president. Participation in the Alumni Association through monetary gifts and attendance at Chapter activities throughout the state will keep alumni in touch with Longwood College. Graduation is only the beginning of a new and exciting relationship each alumnus has with his school.

Music Schedule Includes Concerts And Initiation

By SHARON JANOVICH

As the 1978-79 Academic year comes to a close, the Department of Music still has a variety of activities left for the enjoyment of the college community. The Camerata Singers sang on Saturday, April 7th for Spring Weekend and along with the Concert Choir, are preparing for a Spring Concert at 4 p.m. on the twenty-second of this month. The 24th will then bring the "Conductor's Concert". The 12th and 17th of April will bring about 2 additional Departmental Recitals. One of the highlights of the semester will be the recital held by the head of the Department, Dr. Egbert, and faculty members, Mr. Williams and Mrs. Williams.

The last weekend of March brought about the initiation and official charter of the first men's professional Fraternity on Longwood's campus. Phi Mu Alpha, Men's music honorary fraternity had 18 initiates who are: John Hudson — president, Scott Noonan — vice-president, Tony Kent — secretary, Dale Roller — treasurer, Charlie Mason, Doug Blevins, Hank Dahlman, Nathaniel Eismann, Dennis Helms, Rusty Hurley, Chuck Lafferty, Bill McKaig, Billy Nixon, Andy Pittard, Lenny Smith, Tom Sullivan, Jack Tolbert and Wilson Troxell. Congratulations Guys!

NEWS GLIMPSES

By CHERYL WILCOX

President Carter speaking at the State Democratic party's annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner said that he is "prepared for a fight" to bring about congressional approval of his proposal to tax windfall profits that oil companies might gain because of his decision to decontrol petroleum prices.

The USS Ohio, the most powerful submarine ever built and the first equipped with trident missiles was christened at the General Dynamics pier in Groton, Conn.

After a two year $5.8 million probe into the slayings of John F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King a divided house committee has maintained its majority view that two gunmen fired at President Kennedy in Dallas and that circumstantial evidence in the King case also raises the likelihood of a conspiracy in that case.

President Carter, commenting on a new Senate effort to permit voluntary prayer in public schools, has said at a news conference, "I think the government ought to stay out of the prayer business."

GYRE, BOX 1082

RESERVE YOUR COPY. RETURN
FORM TO BOX 1082 NOW!

NAME _____

BOX _____

LONGWOOD'S LITERARY AND ART PUBLICATION

Spring Weekend

Photo by Linda and Patti

Niningers Have Unique Style

By Frank Creasy

Although Lankford's Gold Room has seen its share of fine performances, it is doubtful if that room has ever experienced such a rare combination of quality music and general good times which were to be found there Thursday evening, April 5.

Willie Ninninger and Family provided for its small audience in performance which only the most absent-minded person could soon forget. Despite a country flavor pervading Ninninger's music, to categorize the group as country or any other musical faction would be an outright lie. Willie Ninninger and Family springs from the melting pot as refreshingly unique and consistent throughout their diversified format.

Willie Ninninger himself proved a most professional performer whose sparkling personality put the audience right at ease. But Ninninger and family's strong forte is the well arranged, consistent quality of their music. Ninninger plays lead acoustic and is competently accompanied by Bill Gehling's rhythm. Ninninger's sister, Annie, sings harmony with Bill, although both of them got their shot at solos; neither one disappointed the crowd.

Yet the most pleasant surprise of all came in the form of an elderly but charming gentleman known as Eugene, who also happens to be Willie and Annie's father. Eugene's fiddle shone through as an integral part of the entire performance. His solo on "Popeye the Sailor-or-Snow White and the Seven Dwarves Breakdown" left the audience wanting more of the same.

The two sets Ninninger played ranged from one end of the musical spectrum to the other. Songs differed from Bob Dylan to Paul Simon, to John Denver to the Beatles. Ninninger also has written songs for the Captain Kangaroo show, and his "I'm Proud to be a Moose" was much more pleasant and enjoyable than would usually be expected of a children's song. If all this was not enough, Ninninger asked for requests, and was asked to do "Blackword" from the Beatles popular White Album. Though Ninninger had not practiced the song, he came through with an astoundingly competent rendition. Just to make sure nothing was left out, Ninninger and father Eugene did the William Tell Overture, with a slight country variation to account for the fiddle.

Willie Ninninger and family has the ability to leave its audience hoping that Ninninger's return will be soon to come.

Frisbee Enthusiasts

By Chuck Cole

A radar station in Farmville, Virginia reported that a barrage of unidentified flying objects was sighted on their radar screen on two different occasions on Saturday, April 7, 1979. The report further stated that the UFO's were clustering on the portion of the Longwood College campus known as the Lankford Mall.

What was the mysterious origin of these objects? Were alien beings visiting the Earth? Is this story paralleling Orson Wells' "War of the Worlds"?

The answer to all these questions is a resounding no. There were some objects buzzing around on the Longwood campus, but they all seem to have been part of the GOOD TIMES FLYING DISC SHOW, which visited the campus as part of Spring Weekend festivities.

The Good Times Flying Disc Show is an exhibition of that all-time college favorite sport known as Frisbee. Frisbees have been an integral part of college since their invention, but one has to be awed by the exhibition of freestyle Frisbee by Show members Ken Westerfield and Mary Kathron. This pair combined gymnastics, disco, and showmanship while defying all laws of gravity with their Frisbee feats.

Waterfield and Kathron, are no strangers to the sport of Frisbeeing, as both are renowned in the nation for their feats. Mary Kathron currently holds the U.S. and Canadian titles of National Freestyle Champion. Ken Westerfield is the current holder of the WORLD record for Frisbee distance with his toss of 552 feet. This record is currently under consideration by the Guinness Book of World records as being the farthest that any object has been thrown.

Long Frisbee enthusiasts should be more proficient in the art of Frisbee due to the instructional part of the Disc Show. Ken and Mary demonstrated the different techniques of throwing the Frisbee, including the cross-body, power, and underhand tosses. Students were asked to participate during this phase of the show and eagerly showed their Frisbee interest and skills.

When the instruction was over, Waterfield and Kathron prepared for their Freestyle exhibition by warming up the crowd with top 40 hits. When they finished and the cheers of the crowd died down, they distributed a large number of Frisbees to the crowd and handed out individual instructions to all.

Bubble Gum Champ Chosen

By JUDI STANLEY

"Ten and a half inches! That's the biggest yet!" said one of the measurers at the bubble gum blowing contest. The Student Alumni Association, who were primarily responsible for guiding prospective students on spring week end, sponsored this contest during the Southern Hospitality band break.

There were thirteen participants trying to blow the biggest possible bubble at 12:30 p.m. on Saturday afternoon. Of these thirteen, three winners were announced. Meryl Phelps, with a ten-and-a-half-inch bubble, won a free pizza at Perini's; Jenny Lashley blew an eight-and-a-half inch bubble for two tickets to the Robin Thompson concert; and Michelle Roper, coming in a close third with an eight-inch bubble, received the remainder of the bubble gum (about eighty pieces!).

One-Act Poses Question

By JUDI STANLEY

"The Wonder Hat" is a one-act play which was presented by the Longwood Players on Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. The play, directed by Ken Jones, was also presented at area high schools during spring break to "promote high school students' interest in Longwood College," as Ken Jones said in his introduction to the play.

The one-act is a story about love and its charms. It was humorous because of the one-line quips and the antics of the characters. The lovers, Columbine and Harlequin, were played by Maria LeMaster and Duke Rollins. Columbine's nurse, Margot, was performed by Barbara Wood; Harlequin's friend, Pierrot, was performed by Bill LeWarne. The peddler, responsible for selling the charms to Columbine and Harlequin, was played by Kit Orsi.

Despite the humor, the play posed a serious question to its viewers: After the charms of love are removed, does the real love remain? The one-act ended, leaving the audience to answer this question for themselves.

Recurring Crowdpleaser

By SHARON JANOVICH

"This is our third year in a row playing for Spring Weekend, and we enjoy it more every year," said Charlie Mason; a member of "Southern Hospitality" who was with us once again on Saturday during Spring Weekend 1979. "Southern Hospitality" has seven band members. They are Dale Roller and Charlie Mason, who are Longwood students, Nick Collins from VMI, Don Meyerhoefer from Virginia Tech and Mike Western, Gary Kirby and Dave Tanks who are employed at home.

The original 5 members; Charlie, Dale, Nick, Mike and Don began playing together in high school. They initially played Bluegrass and sang four-part harmony. However, in the past one and a half to two years, "Southern Hospitality" has moved their focus to country and southern rock.

Originally, the band was overheard by their high school choir teacher, who started them playing for banquets and other such social gatherings. "We've played everywhere from D.C. to Bristol to Richmond," said Charlie. "We've played for colleges such as Bridgewater, Madison and Virginia Tech...and of course, here! Hopefully", Charlie went on to say, "we will stay together and make it a full time occupation, as we move on to bigger and better things."

A Splash Of Precision

By J. TRIMBLE

Kaleidoscope was the title and theme for the H2O Club's Spring show. In both variety and beauty of the various numbers performed, the H2O Club lived up to this theme.

The first number, entitled "Kaleidoscope" was choreographed by Mrs. Nancy Andrews.

The second offering of the evening was entitled "The Journey," a very striking and unusual number, choreographed and performed by Patti K. Chapman and Pam Mayo. This selection began with Patti K. swimming from the side of the pool in darkness lit only by the single candle which she carried.

"Reflections," performed to music by Santana was another serious number choreographed by Susan Anstey. The swimmers: Bev Mazingo, Debra Harrison, Susie Transue and Kathy Watson, began with a dance at the side of the pool before entering the water to complete their display.

In "Break of Day" the swimmers expressed the quiet joy of the awakening dawn in a short performance done with the music of Tim Wiesberg and Dan Fogelberg in the background.

Next on the agenda was "The Gold Miners," a light-hearted story about greed for gold in which the good guy triumphed over the selfish miner who had tried to murder him for his gold.

Continuing in this light-hearted, Old West mood, "Madam and Her Girls" appeared in soft red lights to dance both in and out of the water in a spoof on the early burlesque strippers.

Another story was told as Mary Jean Frank and Susie Transue re-enacted the "Sorcerer's Apprentice" tale as choreo-

(Continued on Page 8)

FROM THE EDITOR...

What could have been? . . . It must just be human nature to wonder about things after the fact. Like . . . What if the fire had been at one o'clock in the morning or what if the new fire truck had not have been bought?

When we think of these questions and many more we realize that the students of Curry Dormitory were really lucky! The fire was at 10 o'clock in the morning when most everyone was in class. That's good luck Point Number One.

Number Two is that it was not icy and cold outside. The only hindrance in the weather was that it was windy. The fire even makes us thankful that we have those "awfully annoying" fire drills in the middle of the night. For, now we understand the importance of shutting the windows, grabbing a towel, coat and shoes (those all important orders that were drilled into our heads during orientation) and then having someone check the rooms to make sure everyone is out.

It makes us appreciate fire departments more . . . especially those volunteer ones. For, even though they had to be called away from their jobs, they were there in a short time.

Most of all though it makes us appreciate our friends. Several people thought of the old saying, "You never know who your good friends are until something like this happens!" And that's true. An air of genuine concern swept over the entire campus Friday after word spread about the fire. Those who needed places to stay, did not have any trouble finding them.

We still do not know what caused the fire, but all in all, we know that Luck was on Longwood's side Friday!

Letters To The Editor:

IAC Decision Gets Response

April 5, 1979

Dear Students:

There seems to be a consensus of opinion among many of the women athletes that the I.A.C. decided to eliminate archery, fencing and riding from the intercollegiate athletic program in order to obtain more money to be used for full basketball scholarships.

This is completely FALSE! No men on any team at Longwood receive athletic scholarships, only women receive scholarships.

We believe it is unfair to put the blame on us for something the I.A.C. did. Before you throw stones at us we urge you to base your charge on FACTS and not RUMORS.

Get the real answers from those administrators that make the decisions and do not create an environment that will pit the women against the men.

Your fight should be with the I.A.C., not us.

We hope we can have your support and work cooperatively to help make Longwood one of the best colleges in the state.

Peace,
The Mens
Basketball Team

College students are aware of the latest action taken by the administration in regard to intercollegiate sports. The administration has decided to eliminate the riding team, the fencing team, and the archery team from the Intercollegiate program in order to free money to be used next year for full men's basketball and golf scholarships. The Riding team feels that the action taken by the administration was unjust, that no other possible alternatives were looked for, and that no fair warning was given to the coaches of any of these teams before the budgetary cuts were announced. We also feel that it is unjust to deprive a team of eight girls the chance to compete in order to fully support one male basketball player or golfer. (Our budget is approximately equivalent to the tuition for one full time Longwood student to attend school for one year.)

In closing we would like to say that a college should apply the same principles of equal opportunity to its students as are found today in our society, and that we hope that for this and other reasons the administration will reconsider its actions.

Respectfully Submitted
The Longwood College
Riding Team

Dear Editor:

As a student here at Longwood, I would like to express my concern over the recent Intercollegiate Athletic Council decision to cut the Riding, Fencing and Archery teams from the Intercollegiate budget.

We students have been given many "reasons" for these cuts, none which I consider valid.

1. Cutting these teams will provide funds to increase budgets of "Spectator Sports".

2. Because these teams involve fewer people than say a baseball team, it is hardly to justify appropriating funds to the smaller teams.

3. There is a "Lack of Interest" on the part of students in participation on these teams.

These are typical, bureaucratic reasons, all designed to confuse those involved.

If one would but take a quick glance at the past achievements of a few of these teams, one would probably see good reasons to continue to fund these teams.

For example, the Longwood Fencing team qualified for and competed in the 1977 NIWFA Nationals. In 1978 this team took first in the state, varsity and junior varsity. This team is currently ranked No. 3 in the state and No. 4 in the sectionals.

The archery team is currently No. 2 in this state. The team was No. 1 in 1976 and 1977.

These small teams have better records than some of our larger, better funded teams.

What ever happened to the educational value and pure enjoyment of participating in athletics. It has seen better days here at Longwood. Cutting these three teams would cut the opportunities for those students involved.

What about the promises made when Longwood went co-ed three years ago that women's athletics would not suffer due to the

(Continued on Page 7)

Senior Spotlight:

Social Work Major Benefits Through Concern

By LAURIE HOFFMAN

Senior Cam Oglesby hails from Richmond, Virginia. She chose her major of social work because she "wanted to work with people, and particularly with juvenile delinquents." Miss Oglesby is also minoring in sociology.

"The philosophy of reintegrating the client back into the community" is one aspect of social work which Miss Oglesby finds especially appealing. She is currently unsure about her future in this field; she would like to either work with adolescents and children or attend graduate school. A third choice is to enter law school with the thought of later establishing a career combining law and social work.

Miss Oglesby has apparently enjoyed both of her field work experiences in her major. During her junior year she worked at the Virginia Home for Boys, helping adjudicated youngsters as well as those with emotional and learning disabilities.

This semester she served as a legislative aide for the Virginia chapter of the National Association of Social Workers. As such, she worked at the state capitol, following social work bills, going to daily committee meetings, and attending sessions in the House and the Senate.

Miss Oglesby finds that her "extracurricular activities have helped to make (her) education really well-rounded." These activities include her positions as Student Body President in 1978, Corresponding Secretary for Legislative Board in 1977, and Secretary of Residence Board in 1976.

She also served as a dormitory president for two years, sophomore class chairman for Oktoberfest 1976, Freshman Production co-chairman, and swap shop chairman. She is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority and has been both a Student Assistant and an Orientation Leader for incoming freshmen.

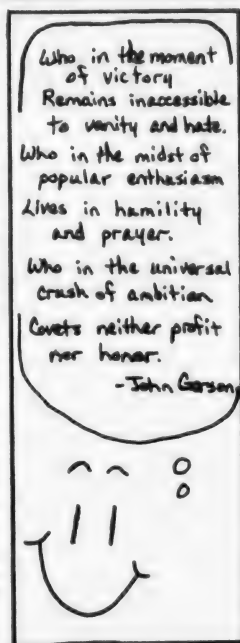

Among her honors, Miss Oglesby includes her membership in Geist of 1978. She was chosen as Oktoberfest usherette her freshman year and was the president of Freshman Commission. She has also been named to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.

Two characteristics that Miss Oglesby likes about Longwood are its emphasis on personal growth and its opportunities for forming friendships. She is also glad that students are able to get to know the administration personally, and finds "all the people that are employed by Longwood College and the students to be extremely friendly and outgoing."

Miss Oglesby does feel that there is room, both in the town of Farmville and on Longwood's campus, for more social interaction. She would like to see more recreational activities outside of the traditional ones sponsored by sororities and fraternities. She sees a need for more community organizations and for elimination of racial problems in the town.

Definitely a campus leader, Cam Oglesby has shown much concern for the school and the people at it. This concern for others is one which will remain with her in her career and throughout her life, benefiting all who come into contact with her.

THE ROTUNDA

Established 1920

CO-EDITORS

Melody Crawley and Paula Johnson

ADVERTISING MANAGER Dave Gates
BUSINESS MANAGER Wayne Moore
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF WRITERS: Laurie Hoffman, Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Janet Clemens, Brenda Hester, Sharon Janovich, Josh Stanley, George Bennett, Cindy Cummins, Beth Parrott, Donna Hawley, Chuck Cole, Tom Cole, Frank Treacy, Jeanne Trimble, Doug Strobel, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon Connor, Kevin McGraw, Loretta Austin, Susan Bryant, Brenda Quirk, Lisa Sandidge, Cheryl Wilcox, Lauren Mundy

ART PHOTOGRAPHY: Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Linda Shanahan, Jackie Steer, Rachel Newman, Debbie Northern, Robert Skinner, Kathy Rodgers, Mark Damon K.

CIRCULATION: Beth Parrott, Doug Strobel

LAYOUT/PROOFREADING: Dave Gates, Robyn Black, Cheryl Wilcox

TYPOSET: Beth Parrott, Jane Waters, Laurie Hoffman, Melody Rice, Robyn Black

Members of the Virginia Mass Communications Association - VMCA

Published weekly during the college year, with the exception of holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald

Opinions expressed are those of the weekly editorial board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the editor are welcome. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject of editing.

Sydnor Receives James Harvey Robinson Award

By PAULA JOHNSON

When a person wins an award he is usually notified by the people or group who gave that award. For Dr. Charles W. Sydnor, this was not the case. He was "notified" by a student while he was in a Richmond bookstore.

Sydnor is the recipient of the first James Harvey Robinson Prize for his film Adolf Hitler: 1889-1945. The film was judged "for teaching aid which has made the most outstanding contribution to the teaching of history in any field."

According to the American Historical Association's March newsletter, the prize committee felt that Sydnor's film met more than the requirements set by the AHA by meeting "the committee's own requirement that the work be of distinguished quality, be generated by a teaching person, be reasonably available to the profession, and have an obvious and easy use in a structured history course or program."

Adolf Hitler: 1889-1945 is a biographical study of Hitler. Sydnor researched and wrote the film. He also had complete editorial control. Al Moffett, a Virginia television news correspondent, produced and narrated the film.

"It took almost two years to make the film — a year of research in film and photography source materials, then it took another year to get it through studio production and on the air (PBS)," Sydnor said.

The film, photographs, and art for the 90-minute film were gathered from the National Archives, the Library of Congress, the Photo Archives of the West German National Archive in Koblenz, West Germany, and art captured by the U.S. Army. Archival film footage of American and German origin is also included in the film.

But how did the film come about?

"In 1975 I had, through a series of coincidences, a chance to do an interview program. Out of that came my association with Al Moffett."

According to Sydnor, Moffett was interested in World War II and documentaries. "He (Moffett) knew the media and not the history and I knew the history but not the media." The two agreed to collaborate to do a documentary on a subject that both were interested in — Hitler.

Through another series of coincidences, Sydnor had the opportunity to obtain a grant from the Longwood College Foundation. The grant was made possible by the Franklin Federal Savings and Loan of Richmond, Virginia, in the form of a gift.

Ironically, Sydnor's interest in history and film goes back to his childhood.

"I was very much taken with the power of television," he said. "It influenced me tremendously."

Beginning about 1955 or 1956, documentary programs on World War II were broadcast. "I saw the original crop of documentaries made on the Third Reich. The most powerful was the Crooked Cross."

By the time he graduated from high school, his interests had moved toward books. "The more I read, the more I became interested in it. My interests were traditional — books and documentaries as any historian would."

Adolf Hitler: 1889-1945 stresses the personal and historical forces that were a part of his life which combined to shape his character, personality, and prejudices. The essential facets of Hitler's political abilities, the basic features of his character and personality, and the racial and ideological obsessions that were the consistent basis of his thought from the mid-1920's to his suicidal death in 1945 are analyzed in the documentary.

OFFICE OF PLACEMENT SERVICES SPRING SCHEDULE

April 10

Surry County 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Dinwiddie County 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Chesterfield County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Alleghany County 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Brunswick County 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Amherst County 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

April 11

Fluvanna County 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Rockbridge County 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Patrick County 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

April 12

Rappahannock County 9:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Appomattox County 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Cumberland County 9:30 a.m. - 2 p.m.
Westmoreland County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

April 16

Jim Cox, C&P Telephone Company 2:30 p.m. — Jeffers Auditorium: "What Employers Look For In An Employee, and How Can a College Student Prepare For Job Market."

April 17

Fauquier County 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Loudoun County 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Department of Corrections 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Sgt. Andrews Holland, U. S. Army Linguistics 11 a.m. - 2 p.m.

April 18

Rockingham County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Manassas Park 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Chesapeake 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Prince Edward County 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

April 19

Quantico Dependents School System 9 a.m. - Noon
Prince William County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

April 20

Prince William County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

April 23

Lancaster County 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.
Charlottesville 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

April 24

Franklin County 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Newport News 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Prince George County 10 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.
Henry County 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

April 25

Madison County 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Danville 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Orange County 10 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
"Women in Business - Opportunities" — Ms. Julia Leverenz from the College of William and Mary.

April 26

Halifax County 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Hopewell 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.
Stafford County 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

April 27

Gloucester County 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Seniors, if your "job search plan" is not in order, make an appointment with Miss Fallis now. The time for graduation is near, and the world of work is waiting for you. Are you ready?

Jim And BeJae On Return Performance

By DONNA HASKY

QUESTION: Take one of Texas' finest and most versatile song-writers, and then, add a truly accomplished folk musician. Form into a husband-wife duo and what do you have?

ANSWER: Jim and BeJae! Jim Richey and BeJae Fleming combine two individual sounds into a program of not just music, but total entertainment. Their balance and timing are nothing less than complete professionalism.

Jim's original songs yield a delightful and often hilarious insight into life. BeJae takes the same look, but from her own individual viewpoint, and provides a moving glimpse of traditional folk life as found in its music.

Well-received last year at their first Longwood Coffeehouse, Jim and BeJae are returning to again delight their audiences with their own special blend of music and entertainment. Performances will be April 13 and 14 in the Snack Bar, beginning at 8 p.m.

Freshmen Recognized For Achievement

By PAM MAYO

Alpha Lambda Delta, the national honor society recognizing achievement in the freshman year, held Spring Initiation for its 1979 members on Sunday, March 11. Thirty-seven people, who had achieved a 3.5 average in the first semester or after the second semester of freshman year, were inducted into the society. President Mary Sewell, Vice-President Karen Hoffman, Secretary Jennie Carraway, Treasurer Julie Baca, Editor Tammy Davis, Historian Ruby Barnes, and Honors Council Representative Walter Woodbridge were sworn in at this time. To conclude the ceremony, Mrs. Cada Parrish, Assistant Professor of Mathematics and advisor to Alpha Lambda Delta for the past ten years, was presented with a certificate of meritorious service. She will certainly be missed after her retirement and the members of Alpha Lambda Delta extend their gratitude to her for all of her help in the past years.

The following people were initiated: Julie Marie Baca, Ruby Barnes, Mary Donna Cappaert, Jennifer Lynn Carraway, Deborah Ann Cobb, James Melvin Coleman, Julie Rae Compton, Donna Nanette Courtney, Tammy Jo Davis, Marilyn Gillispie, Ginger R. Glascock, Susan Godbey, Susan Gayle Goodman, Linda Sue Hall, Kimberly Joan Hancock, Karen Ann Hoffman, Mary Beth Johnson, Beth Ellen Joles, Elizabeth N. Jones, Ann-Elyse Kathleen Maxey, Elizabeth B. Mitchell, Tammy Marie Newton, Susanah Catherine Nuckols, Lynn DuVal Painter, Cynthia Progar, Carole Robertson, Barbara Jane Sabitus, Mary Dawn Sewell, Mary Louise Slade, Donald Elliott Spence, Jane Waters, Nancy E. Willard, Deanna Wilson, Walter Lee Woodbridge, Sharon Paige Wooten, Diane Elizabeth Wright, and Talmadge Habel Yeatts, Jr.

Nuclear Reactor Disaster: A Closer Look

By DOUG STROBEL

Red lights flash on a panel. Engineers calmly go through a routine of lever pulling and button pushing. Little did anyone there or in the surrounding community of Harrisburg, Pa. realize the impending danger. The worst nuclear accident in the history of the United States nuclear production was taking place at the Three Mile Island plant.

Here, step by step, is an account of the events which took place within the reactor as reported by Newsweek magazine.

A pump on the generating system shut down, which, in turn, cut off the water to the steam generator. However, the reactor kept producing heat which raised the pressure of the water in the primary reactor system. The reactor then went on to shut itself down.

A valve on the pressurizer opened as it was supposed to, but then failed to close. Radioactive water then gushed into the quench tank, which overflowed and flooded the floor of the containment structure.

Then the pressure and water level in the reactor system started to decline, triggering the emergency cooling system. However, an operator shut it off which caused some fuel rods to overheat or even melt.

A sump pump transferred the radioactive water to an auxiliary building. The radioactive steam goes through a vent into the atmosphere. The leakage continues for a couple of days.

A radioactive gas bubble is discovered at the top of the reactor. This raises the possibility of a meltdown. This is where theoretically the core could melt through the floor and contaminate soil while shooting up radioactive steam through the earth.

The hydrogen bubble as been vented by a group of experts. This removed heat from the core therefore lessening the danger of the "China Syndrome" or meltdown.

This is a short technical explanation of a complex problem of a complex system. There will be many months of investigations as to what happened and why.

However, a more serious question remains. What now is the future of nuclear power production? As could be expected both sides had their own answer for this dilemma.

Pro-nuclear power forces and plant officials reminded everyone that no one was injured or killed in the incident. They contend that it is not that serious and the situation did not get out of control.

The anti-nuclear forces were now fueled for a new wave of protests against the continued use of nuclear power. They are going through a "I told you so's."

However, what is the U.S. to do in a world where oil supplies are lessening and becoming increasingly undependable if not nuclear power, then what?

Ultimately, what about the people around the plant and the public in general. Will there be any long term radiation effects of those close to the plant? Is the government trying to hide anything from the American people?

These are just some of the questions which this country must address itself to in the future.

May this Easter bring you joy and hope.
May you find the realization of the glory of the season and the event being celebrated, and a sense of its impact on history and in the hearts of those who have come to understand it.

HAPPY EASTER

IAC Recommends Cutting Three Sports

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Intercollegiate Athletic Committee has made a tentative decision to delete the sports of fencing, archery and riding from intercollegiate competition next fall. This decision apparently came as a surprise to participants and coaches of the riding and fencing teams.

President Henry Willett, Jr., a member of the IAC, commented that this decision is not final. The three sports will have the opportunity to appeal the decision this week. The fencing and riding teams have already formally appealed.

Willett said the IAC has been working since this fall on analyzing how many sports a college this size can handle, and formulating what sports should be regarded as "high intensity sports."

"The IAC did a thorough study," stated Willett. "It is self defeating if there are too many sports." He added that when compared with similar institutions, Longwood has more sports offered. Willett said these sports were not proposed to be dropped due to financial considerations.

The IAC has also been looking at additional sports programs such as track, cross country, women's softball, and men's tennis. Softball has been suggested for a number of years and has a good chance of being added since Longwood's invitational team has won the University of Virginia tournament for a number of years, said Willett.

The committee is composed of the Athletic Director, Dr. Carolyn Hodges; the Men's Athletic Coordinator, Dr. Ron Bash; Dr. Shirley O'Neil, Chairman of the HPER department; two faculty members, Dr. Barbara Smith and Dr. E. T. Noone; the Director of Financial Aid, Marvin Ragland, Jr.; Dean Carolyn Wells, President Henry Willett, Jr.; two student members, Brenda Fetrow and Byron Bracy. The Chairman is Dr. T. C. Dalton, Administrative Assistant to the President. The IAC is responsible for dividing the sports budget proportionally between the different sports. If archery, riding and fencing are dropped, their funds would be dispersed to existing or contemplated sports.

"I don't think we can keep all three of them," concluded

Willett. He did feel that, for example, the riding team could revert to club status and gain Student Activity Fee funding.

Fencing coach Sally Bush exclaimed, "I'm very concerned about the whole situation. The whole procedure taken by the IAC was unfair and undemocratic." She felt there was virtually no criteria to decide which sports would be dropped. She also believed there was a lot of conflict of interest on the committee as both the men's and women's sports coordinators coached basketball and the student representatives played basketball.

Bush was concerned that the coaches of the three sports "had not really been warned." The IAC had asked for input in the fall and the coaches were not invited to discuss the situation since then.

Bush pointed out that fencing is a growing sport. There was the largest turnout ever at the regional tournament and three new fencing teams have been formed in the state.

The fencing team traditionally handles between eight to ten people. It is generally made up of chemistry and art majors. "These people won't have a thing to participate in, for sports," lamented Bush, referring to the aesthetic quality which is associated with archery, fencing and riding.

She was very concerned that Longwood seemed to be pushing for sports to gain recruitment and ignoring other sports. She asks, "Does every team have to be for recruitment purposes?"

The fencing team and their coaches are definitely going to fight what they consider an "unjust and unwise decision" for a team who had the most fencers at regionals.

Mrs. Marna Neal, the Lancer archery coach, said the possibility of disbanding the archery team had been previously discussed and that it was a foregone conclusion this was the team's final year of competition. The reason for ending the team was a lack of participation. Yet Neal, too, felt the IAC should have talked with everyone concerned before making their proposal. "It was beginner and advance upward." As soon as a rider collects 21 points in his division, he can advance to the next one, until eventually they get to the jumping classifications.

The team started out the year with only two riders jumping and six on the flat. Now they have five jumping and three on the flat, one of whom lacks just one ribbon to get to jumps.

"I'd hate to see it cut when it can benefit so many," Neal explained. She was also disturbed because the college does not publicize the riding team as they do for other intercollegiate sports and that the committee did not come to the team for suggestions of how to cut costs. For instance, Neal stated that the riding team members would probably have been willing to pay their own entry fees like the James Madison team does or pay for lessons like the Mary Washington team. Neal pointed out that the riders already buy their own habits which range about $300.00. Both James Madison and Mary Washington are the only other state supported institutions besides Longwood, which offer intercollegiate riding.

Neal scoffed at the complaint from the IAC that Longwood did not own the riding facility as a reason for discontinuing the sport, noting that only Hollins and Sweet Briar have their own facilities and that the riding lessons offered by Longwood are not given on state facility. She added that although the team is currently all female, male participants would be welcome.

Wednesday the riding and fencing teams will appeal to the IAC. Also at this meeting, the IAC will decide if men's sports should stay at Division III, a non-scholarship bracket or advance to Division II. If Longwood decides to go to Division II, a modest number of scholarships would go to men's basketball. President Willett said that the total sum would not approach $5000. This decision will be made as a result of the Dixie Conference rejection. The reasons given by the Conference were that the college gave women's scholarships and not men's and had inadequate facilities for baseball and softball.

Willett said the "problem with men's athletics is we have to go to one division or another for all sports." In women's athletics, the AIAW gives each sport the opportunity to go Division I, II or III.

Also Willett disclaimed any knowledge of a prevalent rumor that the men's basketball manager was to receive a salary next year. He said this was against college policy and the only students paid out of the athletic budget are the Intramural Athletic Association equipment checkout personnel.

Rugbers Learning

By CHERYL WILCOX

On Saturday at 2:00 the Longwood Rugby team played host to the Mary Washington rugby team at the Wynne Campus School. The game was the ruggers second game of the season.

The ruggers were defeated by the Mary Washington team 12-4. The Longwood try was scored by Joe Brusca with an assist from Kevin Brandon. Kevin Kidd also made his attempt at a three point kick. The kick was a near miss off the goal post.

The Longwood team played a better game than previously against VCU. They still are not comfortable in their knowledge of all the rules and regulations of the sport. This can be attributed to the fact that playing rugby is a new sport to most team members.

Following the game a large keg party was held for the members of both teams. It seems the object of rugby is "to kill each other on the field and make friends after the game over a cold beer."

Longwood's next rugby game will be held Saturday, April 21st against the Hampden-Sydney B team, at the campus school field.

Bernette's Determination Brings Award

From Sports Information

Longwood College baseball player Eddie Burnette has been named Player of the Week for his superlative effort in the Lancers' 8-7 win over Hampden-Sydney on March 13.

In Longwood's first baseball victory in the 2-year history of the program, Burnette's three for five performance at the plate keyed the Lancer offense by driving in two runs, one of which was the game winner. Burnette also scored one run himself and was further cited by Coach Buddy Bolding for his steady defensive work.

"Eddie displayed courage and wisdom throughout the game," commented Bolding in nominating his left-fielder for the Player of the Week award. "Eddie's determined hitting and great baserunning helped to lead the Lancers to one of the most important intercollegiate victories in Longwood College history."

A freshman physical education major, Burnette is a graduate of Liberty High School in Bedford, where he lettered in both baseball and basketball. He was a two-year All-District Outfielder and an All-State Outfielder in his senior year.

He is the son of Mr. Warren E. Burnette of Bedford.

Six Riders Chosen For Regionals

By KATHY CHASE

On March 30th the Longwood Intercollegiate Riding Team traveled to Southern Seminary in Buena Vista for their 6th show of the season.

In the Novice Equitation on the Flat Kathy Redmon and Rhonda Powell won 4th place ribbons in their sections. In the Novice Equitation over Fences Kathy Redmon won 4th place.

Robyn Walker and Kathy Chase qualified for the Novice Division by winning 3rd and 1st respectively in the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter Division. Also in the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter Division Kelly Kent won a 6th place ribbon.

Paige Bartholf won a 4th place ribbon in the Beginner Walk, Trot, Canter Division. In the Advanced Walk, Trot Division Janet Young placed 3rd.

On April 6 the Longwood Lancer Intercollegiate Riding team traveled to Virginia Intermont in Bristol for their last show of the season. Pointriders for the show were Robyn Walker, Kelly Kent, Leslie Henry, Rhonda Powell, and Kathy Redmond. Longwood had a total of 10 teams points thus tying with Mary Washington College for 7th place place out of the 12 colleges participating.

Virginia Intermont was High Point College with 25 team points. Sweet Briar was Reserve High Point College with 18 points.

Results of the show are as follows: Advanced Walk, Trot — Janet Young, 3rd place;

Beginner Walk, Trot, Canter — Paige Bartholf, 4th place; Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter — Kelly Kent, 6th place; Novice Hunter Equitation on the Flat — Section A, Kathy Redmon, 4th place; Robyn Walker, 5th place; Section B, Leslie Henry, 6th place, Section C Rhonda Powell, 4th place.

The Regional Intercollegiate Horse Show will be held on April 21st at The Barracks in Charlottesville. Kathy Redmon, Rhonda Powell, Sally Lowe, Robyn Walker and Kathy Chase will be representing Longwood in this event.

The Lancer's have had a very successful year and feel they owe their success to those that supported the team.

Idelson Named All-American

From Sports Information

Nineteen years ago this month, Longwood gymnast Kathy Idelson was born in Topeka, Kansas.

Idelson, who now lives in Annapolis, Maryland, had never visited her birthplace until this past weekend, when she returned to Topeka to compete in the March 30-31 AIAW National Small-College Gymnastics Tournament held at Washburn University.

Idelson, who at the end of the regular season was ranked eighth in the nation among small-college gymnasts, was one of 12 individuals invited to compete in the national tournament in addition to the teams that qualified via regional tournaments.

She tied with Fay Neukan of Radford for 18th place out of 57 participants in the March 16-17

AIAW Southern Region II Tournament held at James Madison University. Idelson was 9th in floor exercise with a score of 8.55 and 14th in vault with an 8.3 mark. Her overall score was 31.5. The team competition was won by the University of Louisville gymnasts, who scored 136.55; Eastern Kentucky was second with 135.05.

"When we got there and saw the competition, I thought 'This is really going to be tough — we're lucky just to be here!'" remembers Longwood gymnastics coach Ruth Budd, who accompanied Idelson to the tournament.

But Idelson, a freshman, proved to be tough herself. After competing in the uneven parallel bars, vault, balance beam, and floor exercise events on Friday, she learned on Saturday that her score of 8.5 in floor exercise had qualified her for the finals in that event.

In the finals Saturday night, Idelson, despite being unlucky enough to draw the number one spot, scored an 8.45.

"That was a very good score," observed Budd, "considering she was first. If she'd been farther down the line, her score would probably have been much higher. The crowd really loved her routine!"

"I felt I'd done a good job," commented Kathy. "I put as much into my floor exercise as I can, and I try to sell it because I really like it."

The score was good enough for a seventh-place finish (out of over 100 original entries) in the floor exercise, which also earned Idelson the title of All-American Gymnast, an honor bestowed on the top 10 individuals in each event.

The first All-American athlete in the history of Longwood College, Idelson described herself as "Excited!" over her achievement. However, it would be three days before she would be able to receive the congratulations of her fans on campus.

Due to the airline strike, Idelson, her parents, and her coach were laid over for 2 days, first in Kansas City and then in St. Louis, while awaiting connections back to Annapolis.

During the long hours they spent in airports, she and other gymnasts "entertained people by doing handstands" to help pass the time.

From Annapolis, Kathy and Coach Budd had a five hour drive back to Longwood. She had little time in which to enjoy her warm reception at College because of an injured ankle.

Kathy had surgery on April 5 at the University of Virginia Hospital. She is now back hobbling on crutches.

One can only wonder, "Is this any way to treat an All-American?"

Julie Dayton trails past Virginia opponent.

Photo by Amy Gates

Win 2-Drop 1

Netters Blast Seminary

By Steve Whitten

The Longwood Tennis team upped its record to 2-1 with a win over Bridgewater College Saturday at Bridgewater. On Monday, Longwood trounced a much improved Southern Seminary 9-0. On Tuesday, the Lancers traveled to Lynchburg College and suffered a 6-3 loss in a tough, but excellent match. Longwood had wins from Margie Quarles, Penny Stephens, and Eva Lowe. At Bridgewater, the team reversed the score and took the win 6-3.

Coach Phyllis Harriss commented that Southern Seminary was going to be the easiest match of the season, but she was proud of the way the girls played. Commenting on the match against Lynchburg, Coach Harriss stated that the score was not indicative of the team's playing as Lynchburg won 116 games to Longwood's 103 games. Against Bridgewater, Coach Harriss felt that the girls were moving very slow and that this area of playing needed much improvement.

The team travels to VPI-SU on Tuesday and to VCU on Thursday.

The team captain for the season is Senior Mary Barrett. Miss Barrett was also captain last fall.

Lancer Lacrosse Persistent

By J. Trimble

Let no one say that the Lacrosse Team isn't persistent. Of what other team do you know with the determination to play on a soggy field in the middle of a cold spring rain?

If you were one of the few motivated to be out on the sidelines supporting the women's lacrosse team in their match against University of Richmond this past Tuesday you would have seen an exciting game with many turnovers, the final score of which was a 7-1 tie.

Coach Dee McDonough stated that Celeste Rodriguez did very well in Tuesday's game, scoring 5 goals in the game against U of R. The other two goals were scored by Kim Garber and Julie Dayton.

Ms. McDonough was very surprised by the outcomers of both games played by the women's lacrosse team this past week. She feels a great deal of confidence in our Lacrosse team and had been sure that we would be the dominant force on the field in both the game against U of R and UVA.

In speaking of our playing against U of R Ms. McDonough mentioned that although Longwood was in possession of the ball a great deal of the time, the player's impatience and attempts at forcing goals prevented us from scoring as much as we might have.

In the game against UVA Thurs. Longwood lost 12-2. Longwood players Celeste Rodriguez and Julie Dayton each scored a point for Longwood. Jean Nolte, the goalkeeper did very well, managing 20 saves against UVA's aggressive players.

The Junior Varsity lacrosse team did exceptionally well on Thursday, losing to UVA 7-6 in the last 5 seconds of the game (oh, if we could only have stopped the clock!). Denise Snader showed a great deal of skill in her defensive playing Thursday.

Although the scorers may not show it Longwood's lacrosse team has showed a great deal of concern and effort, continuing to play and practice in the face of discouraging results.

The Lady golfers were only able to shoot the first nine holes in the Sweet Briar Invitational on March 5 before bad weather intervened. By the end of the tournament, which was plagued by cold weather and wind, LC's Kay Smith had won the first flight and Lancer Beth Wydel had taken the second flight. Smith and Wydel both shot 88. Debra Hood followed with 89, Janet Clements 92, and Margaret Andrew 112. Today they travel to Kentucky to compete in the Lady K Invitational.

Photo by Janet Clements

Sports Briefs

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Longwood men golfers finished 14th out of 17 schools at the 30th State Collegiate Golf Tournament at the Lower Cascades Course. At Hot Springs, defending champions University of Virginia took the title with a 302. Virginia was followed by James Madison University with a 308, and Old Dominion with a 309.

Longwood had a 347. Tim White shot 38 and 43 for a total of 81. Robb Lane had a 41 and 44 for a total of 85. Charles Lineberry had a 44 and 44 for an 88. David Yerkes had a 48 and 45 for a 93, and Rob Boyd had a 49 and 44 for a 93.

In their first shoot of the season last Thursday, Kaki Hicks shot a 390 to lead the Archery team to victory over the University of Richmond. The Lancers shot a 952 to the Spider's 873.

Their next shoot is at home April 11 against James Madison University.

Letters

(Continued from Page 4)

development of men's athletics? Then why are three women's teams being cut?

Longwood students need to stand up and support these teams. If not, the Administration will allow these teams to be cut. Longwood belongs to the students. If the students want these sports, then the students should make the decision, not the Intercollegiate Athletic Council.

Alda V. Brown

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon.-Thur. 'Til 10 PM Fri. & Sat. 'Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

FARMVILLE RECORD SHOP

COLLEGE PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-5044

RADIO SHACK DEALER
FULL LINE OF STEREO EQUIPMENT
MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

CBs AND ACCESSORIES
TOP LPs AND TAPS
ABLE TO SPECIAL ORDER

"YOUR COMPLETE MUSIC STORE"

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower Headquarters"

H2O Precision

(Continued from Page 3)
graphed by Patti K. Chapman.
A sense of fun was felt throughout the show which was very apparent in the final number in which all the swimmers came out as either a Cowboy or Indian.

H2O Club's hard work was very obvious in the precision and excellence of the performance

392-5908

West of Farmville on Rt. 460

Located in the Randolph Tobacco Warehouse

HOURS: Sunday 2-5, 7-10

Fri. & Sat.

Wed. & Thur. 7-10

7-10 & 10-12

ANNOUNCING

George Mason University Summer Session 1979

- begins May 29 ends August 1
- three five-week terms
- one eight week term
- graduate & undergraduate courses
- day and evening courses

Part for by hands of George Mason University

SEND TO: Summer Session, George Mason University
4400 University Drive, Fairfax, Virginia 22030, (703) 223-2384
Please send me a copy of your Summer Session Catalog
Name _____ Street _____ City _____ State _____ Zip _____

F.A.C.

The Snack Bar Presents THE FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

From 4 to 6 p.m.

Free Chips and Pretzels
and Free Juke Box Music

F.A.C.

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- Sweatshirts

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

CLOSED

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

WEDNESDAY MORNING

they gave this spring. The musical selections were appropriate to the numbers and there was a good balance between long and short, serious and light-hearted.

Crazy Antics And Bluegrass

By BRENDA BONUCCELLI

On the last day of Spring Weekend festivities, students and friends gathered at Lankford Mall to watch the crazy antics of the Loco-Motion Circus and to listen to the bluegrass sound of the Buffalo Chipkickers.

The excitement started at 2 p.m. with the first session of the

Loco-Motion Circus. Three crazy and extremely talented men,
Bounce, Cyrus and Flip, dazzled their audience with thrilling acrobatics, hilarious comedy situations. They immediately captured the audience and continued to hold them until their final sketch.

The group's selections held all types of entertainment. One of the first was a ballet on unicycles. Two of the men cycled with each other to the music of the Nutcracker Suite.

Another selection well-received was a juggling act to the disco music of "Boogie Oogie Oogie." This was a fantastic technique of rhythmic balancing that had the audience clapping, laughing and totally involved.

Some other selections were the
"Flaming Torches", "Waldini,
The Magician," "Lonely At the Tip," the list is endless. All were exceptionally well-done.

Their final selection,
"Cremation," earned them a standing ovation. It was a culmination of dance, acrobatics, and humor. To the theme of 2001
Space Odyssey, the three men did a type of dance and moved into an acrobatic show.

Following the Circus were the Buffalo Chipkickers. Three men and one woman made up this group of bluegrass players. The Chipkickers' instruments included a Bass, Guitar, Violin and banjo—a wide selection which combined to produce a very nice sound.

Grabbing on to the enthusiasm of the crowd, the band played both slow and fast-paced bluegrass selections. The band gained instant followers when it immediately complied to a request of "Rocky Top." From here on the crowd was with the band, clapping and singing when possible.

"Sweet Virginia Breeze"

By GEORGE BENNETT

To say that Cheryl Tiegs is pretty is an understatement. To say that Robbin Thomson is talented is proving that you were there this past Saturday when the Student Union presented their last "Saturday Night Alive!"

And what a way to go out on a Bang! As the SRO crowd quieted to an electric tape of expectation, Robbin and his "No Slack Band" took to the stage amid a large welcome. Robbin is a native of Richmond and has played at Longwood on two occasions in the past.

It's hard to pinpoint the type of music Robbin Thomson plays. To try to lock it down into one category would be a mistake. But with relative ease he managed to weave a blanket of good sounds by mixing up slow, R & B
Ballads, with foot-stompin' country fusion, rock. Some of his most memorable songs of the evening were "Candy Apple Red."

But, what the crowd was waiting for, they got early in the second set when Robbin performed a patriotic rendition of the unofficial anthem of Virginians everywhere—nothing else but "Sweet Virginia Breeze". This is Robbin's most famous hit to date and was performed Saturday to wall-cracking applause.

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

20% OFF

ALL NEW MERCHANDISE

Men's & Women's Swimsuits
Coordinates Men's Slacks
Jeans

— With This Ad —

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Phone 392-4154

PRINCESS GARDNER

Boca
Raton

ACCESSORIES

Exquisitely crafted and detailed accessories of luxurious CABANA COWHIDE. Fine Black Italian edging plus an inset of elegant rattan cane creates the season's big fashion look in leather. In Chocolate Brown or Caramel Tan.

"Tri-Parlita" French Purse	$12.50
KEY GARD®	$7.00
Other matching accessories from $6.00

Martin & The Jeweler - Farmville, Va.

THE HAIR shaft

"HAIRSTYLING FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY"

RHONDA BARTON OR
LINDA "JILL" DUNEVANT

HOURS:

Mon. & Tues.	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed.-Fri.	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located in The
Farmville Shopping Center

K

EY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

SCM Typewriter Repair

School Supplies

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1979

NO. 22

1979-80 Class Officers Elected

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Last week brought the elections of new class officers for 1979-80. Within the few weeks left of school, these officers will begin planning activities for next year including such events as Oktoberfest 1979.

Libby Bowman was elected to head the Class of 1980. Miss Bowman is an Elementary Education major from Newport News, Virginia. Among her activities during the three years she has been at Longwood include being a member of Concert Choir, an investigator for Residence Board, a Colleague and Orientation Leader, and various Oktoberfest activities.

Other officers elected for the Senior class were: Kim Furbee, a Physical Education major from Virginia Beach as Vice President; Rhonda Brown, an Elementary Education major from Hopewell, Virginia, as secretary; and Pat Hartline, a Business Administration major from Springfield, Virginia, as Treasurer.

Donna Hughes will lead the green-and-white class of 1981. Miss Hughes is an Elementary Education Major from Timberville, Virginia. She has been very involved during her two years here as a member of Concert Choir, representative to Judicial Board, in Oktoberfest Skits, as a Colleague, in Sophomore Week this year coordinating Road Show, a member of BSU and SAA.

Karen Lane will serve as Vice President. Miss Lane is an Elementary Education major from Ashland, Virginia. Secretary will be Robyn Black, a Business major from Crozet, Virginia and Pam Wagner, a Social Science major from Orange, Virginia, will serve as Treasurer.

The spirited class of 1982 will be headed by Brenda Coleman. Miss Coleman is an English major from South Hill, Virginia. Among her activities this year are freshman representative to Judicial Board and a participant in freshman production.

Aiding Miss Coleman with the sophomore class will be Kim "Klutz" Furr, a Health and Physical Education major from Lambertville, New Jersey, as Vice President; Diane Thomas, from Lynchburg, Virginia, as Secretary; and Kathy Shaw from Richmond, Virginia, as Treasurer.

LIBBY BOWMAN

DONNA HUGHES

Photos by Melody Crawley

BRENDA COLEMAN

Founder's Day Themed "The Arts Of Longwood"

By BRENDA QUIRK

Spring is a season of new beginnings and experiences. It is also a time to look back upon the past and to recall the enjoyment of preceding years. Can there possibly be a better time to reunite with fellow classmates for a pleasurable day of many activities?

April 21 is Founders Day here at Longwood College. The Alumni Association has planned an exciting agenda with a theme of "The Arts At Longwood." The programs are centered around the dance, music, drama, and visual arts departments.

On Friday, April 20, the week end begins with a campus art tour, followed by a cocktail party, and later a buffet dinner theater.

The Golden Club Breakfast starts off Saturday morning. This breakfast honors the fiftieth reunion year class with invitations to previous graduating classes. Another high point of the day is the Reunion Year Parade, which takes place on High Street and is scheduled to begin at noon.

The afternoon offers a mini bazaar, open house and a jazz band concert at the Longwood Estate, and faculty-alumni symposiums. Also in the afternoon, a Founders Day Tennis Tournament will take place. This is the first year for this event, and alumni and their spouses are invited to participate.

As evening approaches, the President's Dinner and a performance by the Camerata Singers and the Alumni Choir will take place. The Alumni Choir is also a new addition, and any alumnae who was a member of the choir is encouraged to participate. The week end draws to a close with the second annual Longwood Minithon Run from Hampden-Sydney to Longwood College.

Anyone who has been enrolled at Longwood is invited to partake in the activities. Special invitations are extended to the classes of four's and nine's. The entertaining schedule prepared for Founders Day at Longwood will insure a delightful week end.

Philosophy And Health Majors Announced

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Two new majors were accepted by the State Council of Higher Education on March 6 after a long application process. The two programs are in Philosophy and Health.

Dr. Helen Savage, Associate Professor of Philosophy, has been looking forward to a Philosophy major for a number of years.

"This will strengthen the liberal arts," commented Dr. John Peale, the other Associate Professor of Philosophy. He said that this major was the only one in the liberal arts field that Longwood did not offer. Only three other schools in Virginia do not offer a Philosophy major.

This major will not be in effect until the academic year 1981 to 1982, which means only current freshman may opt for this major.

At present 10 courses are offered in Philosophy and a minor requiring seven courses (21 hours). A program of 16 courses is planned by 1981.

The major will require 10 courses (30 hours), with seven required courses and three electives.

The objectives of the major and minor programs are to develop skills for examining critically philosophical problems and to provide "bridge courses" which analyze problems and theories in other fields.

The Health curriculum will include 10 courses. The major requires 48 hours of General Education requirements, 15 hours of Cognate requirements, 28 hours of Professional requirements and 24 additional hours for a teaching certification.

Open House Hours Extended

The Administrative Staff has approved the proposal presented by Legislative and Residence Boards to extend Open House hours, commencing in the Fall. The new hours are as follows:

Monday-Thursday	3:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Friday	12:00 noon to 1:30 a.m.
Saturday	11:00 a.m. to 1:30 a.m.
Sunday	11:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.

Approval of the proposal is contingent upon the presentation of an acceptable plan to replace the sign-in, sign-out procedure currently in effect. The Student Government Association will submit such a proposal this week for consideration.

The opportunity for individual floors and residence halls to limit Open House hours will still be available. In the Fall, each floor will vote on the issue of whether or not that floor will be more restrictive than the hours listed above. The approved Open House hours constitute the maximum number of hours for Open House.

Dr. Mary A. Heintz
Dean of Students

Sororities Show Spirit During Greek Week

By ANNA STALEY

Greek Week is a time for all the Greeks on campus to show their sorority spirit. It is a time for fun, games, competition, learning and most importantly unity. Greek Week is also designed to try to give independents a chance to look at the individual sororities and decide if a sorority is for them.

This year Alpha Gamma Delta, whose position on Panhellenic Council as social chairperson, was in charge of coordinating Greek Week. Tammy Bird and Anna Staley, members of Alpha Gamma Delta, made sure that the week ran smoothly and everyone had a good time.

The week started off on Saturday, April 7, at 1 p.m. with a Powder Puff Football game. There were two teams. On Team A was Alpha Gamma Delta, Phi Mu, Alpha Delta Pi, and Sigma Kappa. On Team B was Alpha Sigma Tau, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Delta Zeta, and Alpha Sigma Alpha. Team B won with three touchdowns to Team A's two touchdowns.

Monday night a speaker came and spoke to the sororities on Safety.

Wednesday night brought the Scholarship program and reception. Dr. Richard Bland spoke on what it is like to be a Greek. Next Janet Hedrick, Panhellenic Advisor, explained about the awards that were to be presented. The three awards were Greek Woman of the Year, the Scholarship Bowl which is awarded to the sorority with the highest grade point average, and also a Jefferson Cup was presented to the Pledge class with the highest grade point average.

Alpha Delta Pi won both the Scholarship Bowl and the Jefferson Cup for the Pledge Class. Rosalind Crenshaw was chosen Greek Women of the Year. Miss Crenshaw is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority. The judges for Greek Woman of the Year were professors here on campus. The group was made up of Mrs. Nancy Shelton, Alumnae Director, Mrs. Betty Kidder, Treasurer of Longwood, Homer Springer, Art, and Dr. Donald Merkle, Biology.

Thursday afternoon an Easter Egg Hunt was held for the faculty's children. The sororities did everything from hiding eggs, playing Easter Bunny, to playing games with the children.

Friday morning brought a 7 a.m. breakfast for the sororities. All sororities came and ate together. While assembled the announcement of who won Greek Week was told. This year's winner was Alpha Sigma Tau. Congratulations to this well deserving winner and thanks to all others who participated in Greek Week and made it a success.

The Greeks sponsored an Easter egg hunt for the faculty and administration, Thursday.

Photo by Melody Crawley

New Edition To Farmville

By LISA HEIDEMAN

Rumors have spread and tongues have wagged regarding Farmville's newest addition. With a preliminary opening set for mid-May, the Southgate Shopping Center will soon become a reality.

Jim Covington, developer of Southgate, spoke to Col. McCort's Retailing class on the progress of the new center. After a report on how the different stores are decided upon, he revealed that the three anchor stores will be ROSES, GRAY'S DRUG STORE, and BIG STAR. ROSES is in the process of moving its store from the downtown location. This move is seen as a big step for ROSES with a larger store. GRAY'S DRUG STORE will open its third branch in Farmville. This drug store has become very successful in the community and the third, expanded location will provide even more customer convenience. The "super-market" space will go to BIG STAR which is known as a subsidiary of the COLONIAL store chain. Contractors for Southgate offered the opening to SAFEWAY but a negative response led to contacting of BIG STAR.

When developing a shopping center, Covington stated that you must try to appeal to all. He said that this area wants two markets: college students and an agricultural community. To appeal to the students, SYDNEY'S will open a branch store. This women's apparel shop is located throughout the state and will be a welcomed addition to Farmville. Also aimed at the high school and college groups will be a JEAN SHACK that plans to carry other clothing next to its line of denims. The agricultural community should find satisfaction in a discount shoe store called SHOE SHOW. Another clothing store is also planned that will provide for those with a limited income.

Two restaurants are in the future plans of the center. An Italian restaurant is a possibility along with a fast food establishment. Covington gave no indications of just what chains will occupy the restaurant spaces but said the negotiations are underway now.

With a probable drawing area of roughly 70,000, Covington seemed most optimistic about the new center. Though the original opening date has passed, construction is moving rapidly towards the expected mid-May opening.

Retired faculty and administrators gathered for luncheon last week.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Retired Faculty Return For Annual Luncheon

By MELODY CRAWLEY

With Founder's Day coming up, and plans being made for returning alumni, time is being turned back slightly to Remember when Longwood was... April 9 brought some of the retired faculty and staff back to Longwood for the Annual Retired Faculty and Staff Luncheon in the Virginia Room.

Students would recognize some of these faculty and staff members that were present just by their names: Dr. and Mrs. George W. Jeffers (Jeffers Auditorium) and T.A. McCorkle (Stevens-McCorkle Science Building).

With the interest of the Curry fire present among the faculty, it brought back the memory of a fire that burnt the dining hall years ago during the time McCorkle and Jeffers were here. McCorkle related the story of how the fire destroyed the dining hall and he was one of the people that helped rebuild it.

Other interesting facts about faculty members present were brought out during conversations at the luncheon. It was discovered that Kathy Idelson was not the first All-American at Longwood. Mrs. David A. Jackson was an All-American while she was at Longwood. Mrs. Jackson expressed her concern to the group about the IAC's decision to drop Riding, Fencing, and Archery from the athletic schedule. Both Mr. and Mrs.

Jackson were present.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gresham (Gresham was in the English department), Miss Rebecca Brockenbrough, P.E. department; Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Swertfeger, Education department; Miss Lora Bernard, Home Economics; Dr. Ruth B. Wilson, Dean of Women, Mrs. Annette P. Tucker, Dining Hall; Mrs. Alice Overton, Hostess, Mr. and Mrs. K.L. McClenny, (Mrs. McClenny was in housekeeping), Miss Virginia L. Wall, Registrar; Mrs. Kathleen G. Cover, History and Social Science, Miss Kate Trent, Education, Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Moss, Dean of College, Mrs. Louise Hubbard, housekeeping; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lancaster, secretary of housekeeping; Mrs. Marguerite Shorter, Business Office; Mrs. Josephine Magnifico, Math; Mrs. Elva Woodyard, Library; Mrs. Lucille Bradshaw, secretary; and Miss Emily Holiday, Math department. Also Mrs. Coda Parrish of the Math department who will retire this year.

Dr. Willett briefly went over the current happenings on campus with them including the Curry fire and IAC decision. Mrs. Nancy Shelton went over the events of Founder's Day to be held April 21.

Others in attendance were George R. Bristol and Miss Janet Hedrick of the College Relations Office. Also, students Wanda Peterson, Paula Johnson, and Melody Crawley.

PKP Initiation

By MELODY CRAWLEY and PUBLIC RELATIONS

The Longwood Chapter of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi held their banquet and initiation ceremony April 12. Following the ceremony Professor Francis L. Macrina of the Medical College of Virginia spoke on "Perspectives in Genetic Engineering — 1979."

Professor Macrina is an assistant professor of microbiology and is an authority in the fascinating and sometimes controversial area of microbiology and genetic engineering.

Those initiated into Phi Kappa Phi were: Juniors: Susan Annette Davidson, Mary Nuckols, and Gary Tryer Riley. Graduate students: Dan Lee Corrie, and Karen Kay Kimbrough. Faculty: L. Melinda Ingram and Homer L. Springer. Seniors: Karen Dale Baker, Marsha Marshburn Barker, Janice Carole Bennett, Rosalind Jean Crenshaw, Jacquelyn Brooks Crute, Deanna Dorothy Deane, Mary Helen Gowin, Karl W. Haeussler, Sandra Gail Haga, Sherrill Jean Harrison, Beverly Dianne Harvey, Susan Amanda Henley, Kathryn Susan Hughes, Kathleen Almada Jones, Theresa Lynn Markley, Michelle Marie McCollum, Mary Kay McDaniel, Mary Ellen McLaughlin, Linda Jane Moore, Martha Allison Nicholson, Sylvia Jean Poore, Susan Kay Ramsey, Beverly Ann Reaves, Raye Marion Rector, Karen Nanette Shelton, Robin Lynn Stanfield, Robin Lee Stark, Helen Gail Strickland, Janice Wettstein, Robert Craig White, Kathryn Ruth Wilson, Alda Brown, and Henry Dahlman.

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Phone 392-4154

NEWS GLIMPSES

By CHERYL WILCOX

Virginia's energy office is preparing for the governor a report on Gasohol — a blend of 10 per cent ethyl alcohol and 90 per cent unleaded gasoline, a possible fuel of the future in the state and across the nation.

Political economist Kathleen Newland said more than 900 million additional workers will join the labor force thanks to the post-World War II baby boom in the industrialized nation causing massive unemployment over the next two decades.

An 11-member negotiating team from Peking arrived in Hanoi Saturday afternoon to begin talks aimed at resolving a range of disputes between China and Vietnam following their bitter border battle.

More than $1 million has been paid to over 2,800 families for claims arising from the nuclear accident at the Three Mile Island Plant. An actual nuclear disaster, however, would bankrupt the country's 22-year-old nuclear insurance system.

Williams Recital Set For Thursday

From Public Relations

The Longwood College department of music will present Norma Williams, soprano, and Thomas Williams, baritone, assisted by Louard E. Egbert, tenor, in a faculty recital on Thursday evening, April 19, at 8 p.m. in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building. The recital is open to the public without charge.

The first part of the recital program features Norma Williams and Thomas Williams singing works from Georg F. Handel's "Julius Caesar" and "Rodelinda," and from Giuseppe Verdi's "La Traviata." Their accompanist will be Miss Frieda Myers.

The three vocalists will perform Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," with Miss Williams in the role of Lia, Dr. Egbert as Azael, and Thomas Williams as Simeon. A chorus, composed of members of Longwood's Cameraata Singers, will assist. The accompanist will be Mary Lynn Williams, wife of Thomas Williams.

Norma Williams has been teaching voice at Longwood since August of 1975. She has sung leading soprano roles in opera houses in Munich, Berlin, Vienna, Paris, Brussels, and Rome. In this country, she has been soloist with the Chicago Symphony, the American Oratorio Quartet, the Richmond Sinfonia, and the National Symphony in Washington Cathedral Choir. Last year, she presented a solo recital at Wigmore Hall in London.

Thomas Williams, associate professor of music, came to Longwood last summer from a faculty position at Columbus College in Georgia. He holds degrees in music from the University of Montevallo in Alabama and from Louisiana State University.

Dr. Egbert, chairman of Longwood's music department, holds degrees in music education from Murray State University in Kentucky and from the University of Illinois and the Doctor of Musical Arts from the University of Kentucky. He also came to Longwood last summer from Virginia Intermont College where he was chairman of the fine arts division. In March, he was one of five guest conductors at the National Convention of the American Choral Directors Association in Kansas City.

Dr. Donald Stuart was the recent faculty colloquium speaker.

Photo by Linda Shanahan

Faculty Colloquium Lecture:

"The Easter Uprising"

From PUBLIC RELATIONS

Dr. Donald Cameron Stuart, III, gave the final faculty Colloquium lecture for this year at Longwood College.

The public was invited to hear Dr. Stuart discuss "The Easter Uprising: Irish History and Literature" on Wednesday evening, April 11, at 7:30 in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building.

Dr. Stuart stated that Ireland's Easter Uprising, in 1916, and the Civil War which followed it, "were remarkable in modern history as a revolution founded in mythology and the arts as in politics."

He added that the leaders of the revolution were sometimes obsessed with preserving Gaelic culture from English domination, and its writers meditated on Irish history even when they scorned political propaganda.

A member of the Longwood faculty since 1966, Dr. Stuart is associate professor of English. He holds the B.A. degree from Hamilton College, the M.A. from Duke University, and the Ph.D. from the University of Virginia.

His doctoral dissertation was a study of James Joyce's last novel, "Finnegans Wake," and he teaches courses on the Irish writers. He states that his studies have "never worn out the fascination of Ireland's mixture of martyrdom, violence, and beauty."

MEL BROOKS'SILENT MOVIE

Starring: Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman, Dom DeLuise, Sid Caesar, Paul Newman, Burt Reynolds, Liza Minelli and a cast of many more movie greats!

April 19, 21 and 22
AB Rooms

75c
Showings at 7 and 9 p.m.

Feel Like Bustin' Loose?

S-UN has

'$5.00 Discount tickets for College Days at Kings Dominion.

April 21, 22, 28 & 29, 1979

May be picked up by any Longwood Student in the Student Union Office.

Clements' Works In Gallery

By LORETTA AUSTIN

Debra Kay Clements, a senior majoring in art education, will be displaying from April 16-27 a showcase gallery consisting of fourteen art works in the Lanford Reading Rooms.

These works will be composed of nine drawings, three paintings, and two prints done in conte or pencil and some in charcoal. Five of the drawings are landscapes and the other four are some form of a figure study or portrait. Two of the paintings are landscapes and the other a figure study. The two prints are basically landscapes.

Take a break and come out and see the lovely display of art work.

Jr. Art Majors Display Works

By JUDISTANLEY

On display in the Exhibit Room of the Lancaster Library are the works of twenty-four Junior Art Majors in Art Education and Studio Art. These students are required to submit a selection of eight to twelve of their works for presentation in the Junior Art Exhibit. The paintings are priced for sale if the student wishes and, of these priced, two purchase awards will be presented by the Longwood College Alumni Association and the Department of Art.

Upon entering the Exhibit Room one of the first eye-catchers is the wide range of variety in the art work. This variety is exemplified by the photography of Andrea Batten; by the oil paintings, such as "To Touch HIM," by Gregory Gilliam; by tapestry, "Sampler," by Mary Diller; by brush and ink used in "Sunday Best" by Loretta Brinkley; and by watercolor used by Kathryn Hallett in "Helen."

The Junior Art Exhibit will open to the public during library hours through April 26.

Texans Perform At Coffehouse

By BILL LEWARNE

Student Union's coffehouse entertainment series ended its 1979 Spring Semester this week end, going out in style to the tunes of Jim and BeJae. These talented Texans graced our sparsely populated Snack Bar Friday and Saturday nights, giving the few diehard students who braved Easter week end on campus a few hours of pure musical joy.

Jim, a guitar picker and vocalist, played with the easy air of a professional, combining his skillful picking with a strong, slightly Southern drawl voice.

BeJae alternated between the guitar, banjo, and mandolin with a comfortably familiar air, and sang in an easy, melodious voice that accented the soft twang of her instruments.

The duo sings a wide range of mellow country music, with some blues, folk, and honky-tonk thrown in for variety. Jim and BeJae write most of their own material, and have recently cut an album, featuring the song "Tennessee Rattle", which, if its popularity continues, may well pave their road to success in the recording business.

Bill and BeJae performed at Easter weekend coffehouse.

Photo by Mark Damon K

TAKE A BREAK, ENJOY YOURSELF,
...AND HELP

YOUR FELLOW STUDENTS

DISCO DANCE

BENEFIT FOR CURRY FIRE VICTIMS

Friday, April 20

L.C. Students
50¢

Minimum Donation

Guests
$1.00

ABC Rooms

9-12 P.M.

FROM THE EDITOR...

Easter. A time for bunnies, eggs, candy. More importantly, Easter is a time to commemorate the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Without His resurrection, there would be no such thing as "Easter." Easter should be celebrated in the same way Christmas is — not with gifts, but with a reverent heart, reflecting what His death means to us.

For many, Easter is only a time for the Easter Bunny, egg hunts, and maybe a new Spring outfit. But Easter is an historical event. No other man has ever been sent from God, crucified, buried, and on the third day arose from His grave. All this fulfilled prophecies that were nearly 2,000 years old.

Last weekend, millions of people celebrated the resurrection of Christ. In Vatican City, Pope John Paul II blessed thousands gathered in Saint Peter's Square. Here in America, Christians of all denominations as well as those of non-denominations gathered together to praise the risen Savior.

Through the coming days we should try to strive for the peace and love that Jesus set as an example for us.

Wouldn't life be a little better if we all tried to care for others instead of looking out for ole "Number One"?

LETTERS

President

Commends Students

Dear Students:

I wish to commend members of the student body for the manner in which they responded to the fire which occurred on Friday, April 6, on the fifth floor of Curry Residence Hall. Fortunately, no Longwood student was injured in this fire.

The prompt and orderly evacuation of the building, as well as the response on the part of the students involved following the fire, was very much appreciated by those of us who were working with the situation. This type of mature and cooperative response has always distinguished the Longwood student.

President Henry I. Willett, Jr.

Activity Fee

Negligence

To The Editor:

One of the most important committees on campus is the Student Activity Fees Committee (S.A.F.C.). It is the responsibility of this committee to allocate money collected from student activity fees to the various qualifying organizations on campus. In addition, S.A.F.C. must audit the financial records of these organizations to be certain the money is being properly used.

This committee has a large responsibility to the students and yet it is operating at a minimum. It is chiefly characterized by administrative control and unorganization. For instance, it would seem that such an important committee would require regular meeting and mandatory attendance. Yet in the past, sizable amounts of money have been allocated with as few as one-third of the members present. In addition, neither the previous chairman, nor the acting chairman could name even half of the committee members.

Another impropriety is that the committee apparently does not receive all the money due them. 2300 students at $35-yr is $80,000 (not to mention summer school). Yet S.A.F.C. receives only $70,000-yr. A sizable difference that should be available to the students.

If S.A.F.C. does not organize themselves soon, there will no longer be a student run Student Activity Fees Committee. The S.A.F.C. belongs in the hands of the students; not in the hands of the administration. Members should not be appointed by the Dean, but selected by the students and regulated by the students.

We hope the student body will realize the importance of S.A.F.C. and try to change the present system.

Respectfully,
Beth Crites
Jim Crites
Debbie Northern
Janie Petty
Karen Shelton
Teresa Ware

Sincere

Appreciation

Dear Editor:

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to all the R. A.'s, campus students, faculty and administrators, who helped with the Curry girls, during our dislodged week end because of the fire on Friday. Everyone was so understanding and concerned—we didn't want too much time to pass before saying, thank you.

Sincerely,
Ann Via Dawn Vass
and Anne Imrie
618 & 620 Curry

Help Requested

Dear Editors:

A fire swept through a fifth floor suite in Curry dormitory on Friday, April 6, 1979. Within an hour severe damage was done to the rooms and the closets in the suite.

(Continued on Page 8)

Senior Spotlight:

Kulp Has Grown Through Experiences

By LAURIE HOFFMAN

Linda Kulp, an active senior on Longwood's campus, is a speech and dramatic arts major. The daughter of an Air Force officer, Miss Kulp's current home is in Wright Patterson AFB in Ohio. She plans to return to Ohio after graduation, where she will be looking for a job in public relations or communications. She is also interested in being a cruise director for a large steamship and hopes to be able to get involved in community theater. "I think I've grown an awful lot in these last four years in my values and my standards because I have been exposed to different areas here on campus and because of the variety of relationships I have formed," says Miss Kulp. These "different areas" are reflected in the various activities in which she has been involved. Miss Kulp served as a Judicial Board representative for two years and was vice-chairman of this body in 1978. As such, she was also a member of the Executive Council and the Appeals Committee. Best known to the incoming freshman as Lucinda Longwood in the Greens' color class skit, Miss Kulp has also participated in orientation as a Colleague. She has worked on many of Longwood's stage productions and is a member of the Longwood Players. She has served on the Student Activities Fees Committee and was actively involved in Oktoberfest skits as an underclassman. Miss Kulp is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority.

Miss Kulp has received much recognition for her achievements at Longwood. She is a member of Alpha Psi Omega, the dramatic arts honorary, for which she is currently serving as vice-president. She is a member of Geist Leadership Fraternity and was the chairman of Oktoberfest '78 and was Festmeister in 1977. She was the first runner-up in the 1978 Miss Longwood pageant, and she was recently named to WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.

Miss Kulp feels that her work with the student government has especially helped her: "Dealing in student government has helped me to understand and explore the different aspects of college life and the different ways of life." She likes Longwood because of the fact that she had many opportunities to form close friendships and to get practical experience, as opposed to book learning. These experiences, she says, would not have been possible in a larger university.

Unlike some of the more tradition-oriented students at Longwood, Miss Kulp is aware of the advantages which being coed provides. "I think that if we stay in flux with the changes and do not fight traditions that Longwood College will prosper with the more income of males, but if we fight it and we scream out 'tradition' we're not going to get anywhere," she says.

Miss Kulp is evidently glad that she made the decision to attend Longwood: "If I had to do it all over again, except for a few minor adjustments, I wouldn't have missed it for the world." For all of her contributions to the campus, Longwood should also be glad of this decision.

RWS

THE ROTUNDA

Established 1920

CO-EDITORS

Melody Crawley and Paula Johnson

ADVERTISING MANAGER Dave Gates
BUSINESS MANAGER Wayne Moore
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF WRITERS: Laurie Hoffman, Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Janet Clements, Brenda Hester, Sharon Lapinski, Judi Stanley, George Bennett, Cindy Lammie, Beth Parrott, Donna Haskew, Chuck Cole, Tim Cole, Frank Cressy, Joanne Trapp, Dale Doug Struble, Brenda Hornsby, Sharon Opper, Kevin McGowan, Lorena Austin, Susan Bryant, Brenda Clark, Jessa Samdinger, Cheryl Wojcik, Lauren Mundy.

ART PHOTOGRAPHY: Susan Towler, Bill LeWarne, Linda Shanahan, Jackie Steer, Rachel Newman, Debbie Northern, Robert Skinner, Kathy Rodgers, Mark Hamrick.

CIRCULATION: Beth Parrott, Doug Struble.

LAYOUT PROOFREADING: Dave Gates, Robin Black, Cheryl Wilcox.

TYPISTS: Beth Parrott, Lane Waters, Laurie Hoffman, Melody Rice, Robin Black.

Members of the Virginia Mass Communications Association - VIMCA

Published weekly during the college year with the exception of holidays, and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald.

Opinions expressed are those of the weekly editorial board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the editor are welcome. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject of editing.

A Rage Of Fiery Touch

Photos by Melody Crawley
and Bid Wall, Farmville Herald

First Wins For Lancer Lacrosse

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lancers Lacrosse team had their first two wins and a loss on the road this past week. All three games were tough ones for the team and they really hustled.

April 10 against Sweetbriar, LC took command of the game early, scoring seven in the first half to shut out the pink and green ladies 7-0. Sweetbriar was able to put four into the cage in the second half. Longwood took the game 11-4. Julie Dayton led the Lancer attack with three, followed by Celeste Rodriguez and Kim Garber with two, and Jayne Carson, Teri Davis, Debbie Cosby and Debbie Northern each with one.

The second team pounced on Sweetbriar and quickly got the game wrapped up. At the half, LC had scored 11 goals to their opponent's one. They went on to increase their lead to 16-2. The Lancer high scorers were Carol Vidrine and Kim Wood with five each. Joan Matson and Melissa Wiggins had two and Karen Kilmer and Denise Snader had one.

LC narrowly came out on top in their contest against Roanoke, 10-9. The score at the half had Longwood up by one, 4-3.

The pace picked up in the next half with both teams putting in six goals. Scoring for Longwood were Julie Dayton with three, Celeste Rodriguez and Patti Hughson with two, and Barbara Sabitus, Debbie Cosby and Jayne Carson with one.

The Longwood JV overpowered an inexperienced Roanoke team 14-2. The only two goals for Roanoke came in the first half. Kim Wood and Melissa Wiggins both put five past the goalie, with Carol Vidrine and Karen Kilmer each contributing two goals.

The Lancers had a slow start Saturday against Bridgewater, trailing at the half, 2-6. Even though the second half was well played, LC was unable to catch up. Both teams added three to the score in the second half for a 5-9 final. Julie Dayton put in three goals and Celeste Rodriguez had two.

In a close, exciting game, the JV Lancers took a 4-2 victory. The defense held Bridgewater to a single goal in each half. Carol Vidrine led the scoring with two, folled by Karen Kilmer and Melissa Wiggins with one.

The final two games of the season are today at Lynchburg College and at home against Hollins.

Thursday the varsity will travel to state tournaments at Hollins over the weekend.

Cindy Droseski checks ball from Sweet Briar opponent.

Photo by Patty Hughson

SPORTS

Netters Drop Two

By STEVE WHITTEN

The Longwood tennis teams' record dropped to 2-3, with losses at the hands of VPI-SU and VCU.

Last Tuesday the LC netters were blanked 9-0 by the Lady Gobblers of Tech. Coach Harriss commented that VPI was just a much stronger team and that the Lancers gave their best.

Thursday the Lancers travelled to Richmond where they faced the closest match of the season. Even though the team fell to a 5-4 decision in favor of VCU, the match was not over for either team until the last ball was over the net. Longwood split the singles with wins from Margie Quarles, Doris Keys and Eva Lowe. Going into the doubles, with the score standing at three all, the first two Lancer partners fell after three sets. Longwood won the number three doubles with Christi Lewis and Jill Foster.

Coach Harriss commented that the game could have gone either way after the singles matches and that she felt the girls gave their all.

Yesterday, the netters faced ODU and today at 3:00 they take on Christopher Newport for their last game of the season. The team travels to Lynchburg Thursday for the AIAW Tennis Tournament.

Individual Scores

Against Tech:

SINGLES: Allen over Quarles LC 6-0, 6-0, Grubbs over Leidenheimer LC 7-6, (5-3), 6-3, Oylor over Barrett (LC) 6-0, 6-0, Jones over Lewis (LC), 6-0, 6-2, Gough over Keys (LC), 6-2, 6-0, Savoie over Foster (LC) 6-3, 6-0

DOUBLES: Allen-Grubbs over Barrett-Leidenheimer 6-1, 6-2, Oylor-Gough over Foster-Lewis 6-1, 6-2, Lowe-Keys over Jones-Savoie 6-0, 6-1

Individual Scores Against VCU; SINGLES: Lisco over Leidenheimer 6-2, 6-4, Quarles over Markel 6-3, 6-0, Nieuwe over Barrett 6-2, 6-0, Lowe over Lewis 6-4, 6-0, Keys over Goldstein 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, Lowe over Womack 6-2, 6-4

Senior Mary Barrett sends the ball over the net during a practice session. Penny Stephens looks on.

Photo by Debbie Northern

Idelson Realizes Goal

From Sports Information

Longwood All-American gymnast Kathy Idelson has been named Player of the Week for March 29-April 4.

Idelson, a freshman from Annapolis, not only realized her own personal goal of competing in this year's AIAW National Small-College Gymnastics Tournament, but she also was a finalist in the floor exercise event of the March 30-31 tourney. One out of only 4 individual entrants qualifying for the finals, she scored an 8.45 for her routine, which earned her seventh place and the title of All-American.

This marks the third time that Idelson has won the Player of the Week award this season.

HOME SCHEDULE

Lacrosse
April 18	RMWC	3:30
Men's Golf
April 20	Averett, Ferrum Washington and Lee 1:00
Tennis
April 17	ODU	3:00
Baseball
April 18	Bristol College (Double Header)	3:00

This Year's Minithon: A Run For Fun

By SUSAN BRYANT

Remember the feeling of accomplishment you felt as you watched Sylvester Stallone as "Rocky" run up all those stairs? Do you recollect the pride you felt when Bruce Jenner won the decathlon? Do you recall the case of hysterics you had the last time you watched your roommate put on her jogging outfit? If you wish a repeat of these emotions, plus a lot more, put on your sneakers and join the Minithon!

This year's Minithon promises to be the best yet with over 111 entries already registered and more expected. Each entry who finishes the course will receive a T-shirt emblazoned with a unique design created by Longwood's own Dr. Patton Lockwood.

The entries will be divided into 14 categories, and the winner of each category will be awarded a plaque commemorating the event, as well as their T-shirt. Beware though, for contestants from last years race, such as James Alexander, Dr. Kirk Hubbard, Mary Brian, and many more have entered to defend their titles as last year's category winners.

The race is to start at 1:00 p.m., near Via Sacre Street at Hampden-Sydney. It will follow the back Hampden-Sydney road and finish up in front of the Longwood Rotunda. There will be a water stop along the way for the refreshment of the contestants. There will also be timers every mile to let you know your running pace.

You need not run in order to be a part of the Minithon. Dr. Graham needs about 25 assistants to act as judges, timers, registrars, bus drivers, stretcher bearers, etc. Anyone who wants to help out will be greatly appreciated.

The date for the race is April 22 and you must register to participate. The fee for registration is $4.00 and any profit made from the race will go to HPER office. Forms may be obtained in the Information Office, and HPER office, or from Dr. Graham.

So come out and join in the Minithon, or, if you cannot participate, at least come and cheer the runners as they reach the Rotunda finish line.

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

IAA softball is coming along well and if it ever stops raining on game days, the tournament should be over this week. The fast pitch softball team is going to UVA on April 21 and has been working hard. Longwood could have another champion softball tournament team.

For those students who just hang around wondering where the excitement is, then bring your body over to the IAA room in Lankford and check out our equipment. We have all kinds of sporting equipment ranging from frisbees to tennis rackets. The hours are: Monday, 10:55 to 1:55; Tuesday, 1-2:30; Wednesday, 10:55 to 11:55; Thursday, 1-2:30; Friday, 10:55-11:55, and 2:30-3:00; Saturday, 10:30-12; and Sunday, 2-4.

Just have a student I.D. and you have got it made.

The IAA Track and field meet will take place on April 17 from 3:30 to 5:30. All competitors should be at Iler field at this time.

If there are any suggestions as to new activities that you as a student think the IAA should sponsor, let the IAA know. The regular meetings are held every Thursday night at 6:30 in the IAA room located in Lankford. Your suggestions are welcomed.

392-5908

West of Farmville on Rt. 460

Located in the Randolph Tobacco Warehouse

HOURS: Sunday 2-5, 7-10 Fri. & Sat. 7-10 & 10-12

Wed. & Thur. 7-10

Lancers Set Base Stealing Record

From Sports Information

In baseball action Longwood recorded 12-2 and 16-1 wins over St. Mary's on April 12. Freshman pitching stars David Mitchell and Bill Wells pitched very strongly for the Lancers in recording their victories. Wells had 7 strikeouts while giving up only 3 hits and delivering 5 walks to St. Mary's batters, and Mitchell chalked up 6 strikeouts in his fourth win against no defeats.

John Crosby keyed the Lancer offense in the first game, collecting 3 hits in his 3 trips to the plate and driving in 3 runs. Eddie Burnette (2) and Barry Gordon (1) powered Longwood to victory in the second game with their early inning homeruns. Alan Ferris and Gordon were both 4 for 5 at the plate in the second game.

The Lancers also set a new Longwood College record by stealing 13 bases in the first game.

Wednesday's wet weather set back the Lancers' re-match with the Tigers of Hampden-Sydney.

Weekend action saw Longwood drop a double-header to Virginia Wesleyan by the scores of 8-4 and 13-3. The Lancer offense would not come to life against the Marlins, as Virginia Wesleyan pitching allowed only six hits and walked two Lancer batters while striking out 11 men in the first game.

David Mitchell went the distance for Longwood, giving up 8 runs on 11 hits while striking out 8 batters. Mitchell absorbed his first loss of the season to put his personal record at 4-1.

The second game saw Virginia Wesleyan take a 3-0 lead in the first inning off homers by Curtis and Carroll (one man on) against Lancer pitcher Wells.

By the top of the sixth, Longwood had tied the score 3-3. Larry Cromer's homerun and Alan Ferris' single that drove in Jimmy Love had given the Lancers 2 runs in the second inning, and Jay Poole, pinch-runner for Barry Gordon, scored on Cromer's fielder's choice in the third.

These were the last runs Longwood would score, however, as Marlin Hurler Frizzell went the distance, giving up no more hits and only 1 walk while striking out 5 batters in the remaining 4 innings.

Meanwhile, the Marlin offense capitalized on Lancer errors to score 4 runs in the bottom of the third and one more in the fourth. Their big inning came in the sixth, when Virginia Wesleyan got four hits and five runs off Longwood relief pitcher Keith Swandby for a 13-3 victory.

The Lancers won Sunday's double-header at Bristol via forfeit, pushing their record to 9-7.

FOR SALE:

Panasonic Stereo Receiver
8 Track Tape Player
2 Speakers
Plus Assorted 8 Track Tapes
Like New — $150
Call 392-9341
(Ask for Ms. Cosby)

The Lancers display their base running ability.

Photo by Jackie Street

Archers Face First Defeat

By ALDA BROWN

The Longwood Archery Team season is continuing on at a hectic pace. Last Wednesday, April 11th, Longwood hosted James Madison University here on campus. At the meet Longwood suffered its first defeat of the season with the final score showing James Madison the winners 1158 to 892.

On April 14 two Longwood Archers travelled to Atlantic City, New Jersey for the Eastern Regionals. Dan Tipton finished with a score of 615 while Alda Brown posted a 459.

Today the Archery team will be competing in the Virginia State Archery Tournament at James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Virginia. The team took second place in last year's tournament.

Friday the team goes to Philadelphia for the last meet of the season.

The Peace Corps is alive and well and waiting for you.

All your life you've wanted to do something important for the world. Now a lot of the world needs you to do it. We need volunteers with skills and all kinds of practical knowledge. Call toll free: 800-424-8580.

Peace Corps

A Public Service of The Ad Council

Kahki Hicks shoots in Archery Meet last week. She is Number One player on team.

Photo by Linda Shanahan

MOSCOW 1980

Without your help, we can't afford to win.

Make check payable to U.S. Olympic Committee, P.O. Box 1980-P, Cathedral Station, Boston, MA 02118

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____

Zip _____

Please send me the symbol of support checked below.

☐ Stickpin ($10) ☐ Tote Bag ($25) ☐ Desk Spinner
☐ Pendant ($25) ☐ Visor Cap ($25) ($50)

Your contribution is tax deductible

A $_____ contribution is enclosed.

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY
392-5485
115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

SCM Typewriter Repair

School Supplies

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon-Thur Til 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- Sweatshirts

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM WEDNESDAY MORNING

SUMMER JOBS

In Community Organizing

Work with Virginia's most effective Consumer Lobby group. Help your neighborhoods fight high electric, telephone and gas bills... and be paid $115-$150 a week!

CALL CONSUMER CONGRESS

Falls Church: 703-536-7368
Newport News: 804-380-0355

Letters To The Editor:

(Continued from Page 4)

Because of water and smoke damage to fifth floor, the residents must try to find a place to stay. The Directors of Housing will help these students relocate if they cannot find their own place. Notification about the fire to the student teachers who lived on fifth floor was left up to their roommates and suitemates.

Longwood College has offered little help to the girls to get their lives back together. On their own the residents must clean and/or replace the belongings that were lost or damaged in the fire. But some sentimental belongings cannot be replaced.

In most instances, such as Judicial or Residence Board searches, these rooms and what is in them are considered Longwood property. But in case of a fire, the student must carry the burden. Home owner's insurance will cover the damage done due to the fire, but what about those girls who do not have this insurance? Although everything cannot be replaced, these students need an appropriate reimbursement for their losses to help them get back on their feet again.

Longwood College, please show the caring and concern that has long been your tradition.

Sincerely,
Susan Potts

SPE Misconceptions

Dear Editor:

As a student of this college I am concerned about some misconceptions some people have of Sigma Phi Epsilon—some people think we like to party—well—they are right, we do! However, we do much more than that. During Thanksgiving five needy families each got a turkey and canned food. Before Christmas, $50 was given for gifts for parentless children. Also many shirts were put into the Goodwill Industries box outside of the A&P. After Christmas, we played a benefit basketball game for MD; we also had some brothers who danced for MD in the dance marathon. Two weeks ago our pledges cleaned up the trash on Route 460 from the bridge on one side of town to the Imperial gas station on the other side of town. Last week our fraternity volunteered its services to help some Curry residents to move out. Of course, during the year we have done many other things. Parties with ZTA, ASA, DZ, PM, SK, and some other friends are things that are memorable. In short, Sig Eps have done a lot, but we want to do a lot more.

Sincerely,
Greg Siegrist
Controller

QUOTE OF THE WEEK:

I knew the Easter Bunny would find us. I mailed him a map!

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

Come on down and look over our stock of
Spring and Summer Merchandise

Remember—
It pays to shop McKay's!

Mike Douglas says: "Give a gift from your heart."

Call Red Cross now for a blood donor appointment.

Greyhound's quick cure for the book blues.

The book blues. It's those sleepless nights with visions of exams, pop tests and required reading dancing through your head. They just won't go away.

But you can... with Greyhound.

Take off this weekend, visit your family, see your friends... just get out of town and leave the book blues behind. It doesn't cost much and it'll do you a world of good.

So, if you've got the book blues, get on a Greyhound and split. It's a quick cure for what ails you.

To	One-Way	Round-Trip	Depart	Arrive
Richmond	$ 5.10	$ 9.70	4:15 p.m.	5:55 p.m.
Springfield	10.60	20.15	4:15 p.m.	9:10 p.m.
Norfolk	12.70	24.15	4:15 p.m.	9:40 p.m.
Charlottesville	9.00	17.10	1:55 p.m.	4:50 p.m.
Roanoke	7.85	14.95	1:55 p.m.	4:35 p.m.

(Prices subject to change.)

C. H. SLAYTON

GREYHOUND BUS LINES W. 3RD ST.

392-5153

GO GREYHOUND

Martin
The Jeweler
MAIN ST., FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4904

Many thanks for your patronage
this year.

Good Luck On Exams & Have A Nice Summer

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

THE HAIR shaft

"HAIRSTYLING FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY"

RHONDA BARTON OR
LINDA "JILL" DUNEAVANT

HOURS:

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed.-Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

The Rotunda
55

Aug. 24, 1979

to

April 22, 1980

B²

A

B¹

B¹

A

B²

JAMES LANGSTON CORRIE
EDUCATIONAL OFFICER
ARMYVILLE VIRGINIA 2204

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1979

NO. 1

Freshman Class Has Many Achievements

Eight hundred and nine new students moved to Longwood, Thursday. Who are these students and where did they come from? According to figures from the Admission Office and the Vice President for Administration, these students have proven themselves exceptional in honors, achievements, and ranking.

Of the 809 students, 705 are entering as Freshmen, leaving 104 students classified as transfers. These totals include 179 Male Freshmen and 46 Male transfers.

The figures reported by the Vice President also show that of the entering freshmen class, 99.5 per cent graduated in the top ten of their high school class. The most percentage of the students scored between 400-449 on the Verbal College Entrance Examination Board Scores (SAT) and between 450-499 on the Math SAT's.

The entering Class of 1979-80 has also received many honors and achievements. Six students were recognized as National Merit Commended students.

Other honors include four first honor graduates, six second honor graduates, six students who attended Governor's School for the Gifted, 15 delegates to Girl's State, six delegates to Boy's State and 124 honor society members.

Among the achievers of the Class of 1983 are 30 yearbook editors, 13 Newspaper editors, 31 presidents of major high school organizations and 21 officers of major high school organizations. Also, 21 Senior Class Officers and 91 SCA officers and representatives.

The freshman class has also achieved in high school varsity sports. Of the 179 male freshmen, 25 played basketball. Other sports include 24 playing baseball, 19 in soccer, 18 in track, and 12 in wrestling.

Also, nine freshmen who played tennis, four in swimming, and two in golf.

In Women's athletics, the highest number of participants from the freshman class is in track with 54. Basketball participants number 52, and softball, 42.

Ranking next among the women freshmen athletes is field hockey with 36 participating. Others include 32 in gymnastics, 26 in tennis, 15 in volleyball, ten in swimming, six in soccer, three in golf, and two in lacrosse.

Other figures on the freshmen and transfers show that 713 are Virginia students and 96, out-of-state. Also 139 entering freshmen are relatives of alumni.

Land Aquired

The College received a bequest of $10,000 and two parcels of land in the town of Farmville this week. The bequest was made by Miss Lelia E. Robertson, a member of the Class of 1912.

The first parcel of land consists of two lots on Second Avenue. The other is 15 or more acres located at the end of High Street. President Willett indicates that the size and location of the large tract have considerable value. No plans have been made for the usage of this gift.

Miss Robertson's father was a former owner of a chemical plant in Farmville (Robertson's Chemical Co.), where the current Buffalo Shook Co. is located. He also owns similar plants in Blackstone and Norfolk.

Known for many philanthropic gestures, Miss Robertson showed a great interest in Longwood College. Several years ago, she gave Southside Hospital a large tract of land to assist in expanding their entrance to High Street. She also owned a large farm near Hampden-Sydney College called "Hard Times."

Welcome Class Of 1983

Nanzig Among New Staff Additions

According to the Dean of Students Office, Thomas Nanzig has been contracted to serve as Director of Housing this year. Nanzig was approved by the Board of Visitors to replace Raphael Stephens.

He is a graduate of Michigan State University with a B.A. degree in Communications Arts and an M.A. degree in Student Personnel Administration. He has been employed at the College of William and Mary for the past four years as a member of the Residence Life Staff.

Nanzig has also served on numerous capacities as a resident staff member at Michigan State University. He and his wife, Barbara, will reside on Oak Street in Farmville.

Another new addition to Longwood's Residence Life Staff is Mrs. Elaine Jones, Mrs. Jones will replace Kevin Dunn as Area Coordinator of Tabb Frazer, French, and Ruffner. She is a 1978 graduate of Longwood College. She is married to T.C. Jones, who is the Resident Supervisor of Cox Dormitory.

W. Hoke Currie, Jr. has been named as the new Sports Information Director. Currie replaces Bette McKinney in this position. Currie recently completed a masters program in P.E. at Ohio State University with emphasis in sports administration and sports information. A Carthage, North Carolina native, he received a B.A. degree from Presbyterian College. He was sports editor for the Enquirer-Journal in Monroe, N.C. from 1976-1978.

New faculty members to Longwood Staff number 16, according to the office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs and Dean of the College. Five of these are in the Physical Education department. (see page 4).

James M. Caleb fills the vacancy created by John Christian's resignation as an Assistant Professor in Business. Caleb moves to Farmville from Union College in Barboursville, Kentucky. He received his B.S. degree from University of Wyoming and an M.B.A. degree from Sam Houston State University.

Also joining the business department is James Morgan Irby IV as an Instructor in Business. Irby has a B.S. degree from the University of Richmond where he was teaching. He received an M.S. degree from Virginia Commonwealth University. He was also a staff accountant with two CPA firms in Richmond.

As Instructor in Economics, Richard F. Measell will replace Brian Pumphrey. Measell has a B.A. degree from Furman University, an M.A. degree in history and an M.A. degree in economics from University of Maryland. He has been a teaching assistant in the Historian's Office, U.S. Department of Labor.

Evangeline M. McCory is (Continued on Page 4)

Board Approves Tournament

Longwood's first Basketball Tournament sponsored by Miller Brewers will take place November 23-24. In their July meeting, the Board of Visitors approved the sponsorship of the tournament after a heated discussion with a 5-4 vote. Mrs. A.O. Mitchell, Rector of the board, cast the deciding vote after they voted 4-4 with two abstentions.

President Henry I. Willett, Jr., informed the Board that the Miller Brewers had contacted the college several months ago through Coach Ronald Bash inquiring about sponsoring the tournament. Under Virginia law breweries had not been allowed to sponsor such events until a recent modification by the ABC Boards.

According to Dr. T.C. Dalton, the Miller Company would pay the $3,000 expense of the tournament and for a Hospitality room to be provided for coaches, officials, dignitaries, and the press. Longwood will in turn provide the Hospitality room.

The college will also host a one-on-one tournament between games. The winner of this will go to the finals sponsored by Miller and the eventual winner will receive a scholarship.

The opposition came mostly, however; to the name of the classic. In the agreement to be made with Miller, Longwood will share the billing with them. The name of the classic most likely being the Longwood-Miller Tournament.

Board member, Mrs. E.A. West, expressed the most concern to the brewery sponsored event stating that there were ethics and morality involved. Mrs. West, along with Lester E. Andrews, was deeply opposed to Longwood providing advertisement for a beer company.

When asked his opinion, President Willett stated that he was "not sure in the long run that the harm would be that great." He also added, "I wish it were other than a brewery."

Roland E. Thompson provided the majority of spoken support. He stated that the Miller Company which is owned by Philip Morris has done more for education than most companies its size. This is especially true in financial aid to students.

Another Board Member, Ralph Page, supported the tournament saying that he did not see why Longwood should take a "holier than thou attitude."

The Longwood-Miller Classic will take place at Prince Edward County High School and feature four teams: Longwood, Stony Brook (N.Y.), Bowie St. (Md.), and Gallaudet (D.C.).

Artists Display Various Forms

Several Art displays are being sponsored by the Art department around campus during August and September.

"4 with Paper," a traveling exhibition utilizing the ancient craft of handmade paper, will be open through August 31 in the Bedford Gallery.

The exhibition includes 50 works by four Virginia artists: Nancy Dahlstrom, Vera Mason Dickerson, Katherine Chang Liu, and Joni Pienkowski. Their works explore the concepts of cast, formed, embossed, and sculpted paper.

Designed to be instructional as well as visual, the exhibition incorporates the tools of papermaking and demonstrates the processes used by the artists in the creation of paper for their works. The exhibit will travel to schools, colleges, and museums throughout the state, funded in part by a grant from the Virginia Commission of the Arts and Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The artists, all teachers at the college level, bring together a wide range of experiences, individuality, and innovation. Each of the artists has exhibited extensively, receiving broad recognition for her work in Virginia and beyond.

A collection of prints will also be on display through August 31. These prints are by 26 current students and recent graduates of Longwood. They are exhibited in Lancaster Library.

Included in the exhibit are line etchings, serigraphs, relief prints, photo-etchings, aquatints, linoleum prints, woodcuts, and photo-silkscreens.

Among the exhibitors are Donna Atbery, Andrea Batten, Loretta Brinkley, Roberta Brookes, Elizabeth Connelly, Marjorie Croxton, Rita DeJarnette, Mary Diller, Gayle Dishman, Brenda Fishel, Bonnie Foster, Rebecca Ison, Cindy Krott, Guy Delandurantaye, Keith Moore, Lauren Mundy, Susie Robbins, Kathy Rogers, Jeanne Spinks, Kathy Taylor, Bonnie Thomas, Mary Lou Travis, Dawn Vass, Michele Venable, Kim Walker, and Becky Webb.

On August 26-September 14 Elizabeth Connelly will display her works in the Showcase Gallery of Lankford Student Union Building. She is a senior Art Major at Longwood.

Starting September 7, Bedford Gallery will feature "The Agrarian Series, with Other Forms And Words." This is an exhibition of sculpture and poetry by Conway Betty Thompson.

The sculptures composing the Series are forms which include 19th century farm tools. Most of these pieces are accompanied by poems. This provides the series with an elegiac mood, tributing to things past. There are also assemblages and carved pieces in stone and wood.

Miss Thompson is an assistant professor of Art at Longwood. She is a sculptor and freelance writer. She writes regular reviews of exhibition, profiles of artists, and articles on the Virginia art scene for the magazine, Art Voices South.

Her marble sculpture has been purchased by the Federal Reserve Bank for its new building in Richmond. She received a Certificate of Fine Art from Cooper Union and a M.F.A. from the University of Guanajuato, Mexico.

Urban Landscapes and Radical Realism will be displayed in the Lancaster Gallery, September 3-October 3.

Urban Landscapes is a portfolio of eight silk screen prints by Richard Estes, a 20th century American neo-realist.

His subjects are mundane—close up views of street scenes, store fronts, hamburger stands—and are rendered with photographic objectivity.

Radical realism is an exhibition of twelve lithographs from O.K. Harris and Hundred Acres Galleries in New York. The artists included: John Clem Clarke, Richard Estes, Ralph Garys, Richard McLean, Malcolm Morley and John Salt.

"If a picture paints a thousand words..."

- David Gates

Night Comes

Alive

With a gas shortage threatening weekend visits home, what does a college student do on a lifeless Saturday Night? The Student Union will continue to bring life into those dull Saturday nights with their "Saturday Night Alive" program.

"Saturday Night Alive" began last year and has become extremely popular on campus. The performances take their position between coffeehouses and concerts. Each show features different types of entertainment with musical talents ranging from rock to bluegrass. In the words of Student Union Director, I.B. Dent, "There's something for everyone."

For these performances, the Lower Dining Hall turns to a night club atmosphere with candlelit tables provided for the concert goers, and for $1.50, they can enjoy a night of music, laughs and enjoyment. The performances are limited to 400 people because of fire regulations.

The first "Saturday Night Alive" will be September 1 at 8:30 p.m. It will feature Jimi Hendrix clone, Randy Hansen's Machine Gun.

Hansen, a twenty-four-year-old white guy from Seattle, Washington, impersonates Hendrix right down to the Afro wig and silk scarves.

According to Hansen, he started playing Hendrix's guitar licks when he was 13. Since then, he has been able to capture the energy and passion of Hendrix's wild, improvisational hard-rock.

Along with bassist Larry Epperly and drummer Tim Keliher, Hansen has been able to achieve near perfect sounds of such Hendrix classics as "Foxy Lady," "Fire," and "All along the Watchtower."

Music For Everyone

To entice those musically inclined, the Music Department provides Longwood with plans for events and opportunities. Students are able to audition for any of the departmental groups.

The Camerata Singers is a small, mixed, highly-select ensemble of 40 voices. They specialize in chamber music of the sixteenth and twentieth centuries. The Concert Choir is an SSAA group made up of approximately 100 women. The Concert Band is a performing band open to the variety of instrumentalists on campus. The Jazz Ensemble is a relatively new group specializing in the performing of jazz music and developing their abilities in this form of music. If interested in any group, a student should simply contact the director of that particular group.

Providing Longwood audiences with entertaining events, the department has several recitals and concerts scheduled for the fall semester. Two faculty recitals will open the semester. Dr. Blasch will give a piano recital on September 2, at 4 p.m., and Dr. Hesselink will give an organ recital on September 9, at the Farmville Methodist Church. The Cameratas will begin their year with a program entitled "Evening of American Music," on September 27, at 7:30 p.m. in Wygal. The group will participate in several other performances including a Washington Cathedral Tour, the Fall Concert on November 11, the Christmas Concert on December 2, and their Madrigal Renaissance Dinner on December 7, 8, 9. The Concert Choir will perform at a Pops Concert for Oktoberfest, on the 27th. They will also participate in the Fall Concert and Christmas Concert, and are looking forward to singing at the Naval Academy.

The Concert Band will join in the Pops Concert during Oktoberfest weekend, and will present a Christmas Concert on December 11. The Jazz Ensemble will be participating in the "Evening of American Music," on September 27, and in the Pops Concert on October 27. On September 4, a Freshman Honor Recital will be held to present the new freshmen, music honor students. Plans for second semester include a Contemporary Music Symposium, the Cameratas' joining in a performance with the Richmond Symphony, and the Concert Band's Disney World trip.

The department would like to emphasize that the groups have an objective to serve the entire college community, including majors and non-majors, and that they value the participation of interested non-majors. Dr. Egbert, Department Chairman, stated that "part of our mission is enjoyment," and he feels that "we can have a positive effect on the students and community outside of the department." Major or non-major, participant or spectator, one can find that the Music Department holds an abundance of benefits for all.

August 31

Outdoor Mixer on Iler field with "Songbird"
Admission: free 8-12 p.m.

September 1

Saturday Night Alive with Randy Hansen
Lower Dining Hall
Admission: $1.50 8:30 p.m.

September 6, 7, and 8

Movie: "Goodbye Girl"
ABC Rooms, Lankford
Admission: $1.00 8 p.m.

September 9

Outdoor Concert with "Street Talk"
Lankford Mall
Admission: free 7-9 p.m.

Meet The Longwood Players

Longwood's campus contains a group of aspiring and dedicated actors and actresses, technicians, and interested students who form the Longwood Players.

One can find the Players encamped in Jarman Auditorium. They are the sponsors, and producers for the four plays presented each school year. The group is open to all interested, regardless of class, major, or amount of talent.

A person interested in working with the players must go through an apprenticeship. After working with one play in the department, a student can become an apprentice. This entitles him to attend all meetings, but without voting privileges.

After working on a second show, the apprentice becomes a full-pledged Longwood Player. The Players suggest and vote on the plays to be produced.

The first effort by the Players will be the revival of last year's production, "Vanities." This play will be performed at the American College Theatre Festival and hopefully make it to the nationwide festival at the John F. Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Gloria Gonzolaz's "A Former Gotham Girl" will be the Player's first official production. Most of the cast for this production have already been chosen since the comedy play will go on stage in September. There are still a few parts needing to be cast. Dr. Douglas Young will be the director for this play.

Dr. Patton Lockwood will direct the Player's second production, "The Good Woman of Setznan," a sardonic comedy by Bertolt Brecht. According to Dr. Lockwood, the play is a typical Brecht play about three Gods coming down to Earth to find a "good" person.

Second semester's plays have not been finalized yet, according to Dr. Lockwood. The proposed schedule includes the musical, "Carousel" and Agatha Crispi's "Mouse Trap."

The drama department will also have one-act plays both semesters to be student directed. Students who have written one-act plays are encouraged to submit them to the department for consideration.

FROM THE EDITOR . . .

We are a spirited group — that's us — College Students! And as an almost initiated Freshman you have joined us in that group.

What will this year bring? This special edition of The Rotunda has introduced you to the musical, artistic, athletic, military and dramatic sides of Longwood. You are provided with many opportunities in these fields as well as others.

First on the list should always come academics. They can sometimes fall behind. College work can become extremely hard . . . especially if you fall behind. Those "all-nighters" when term papers are due and you have not started yet can get pretty rough! During your first semester you will learn to allot your time so you can enjoy everything else Longwood has to offer.

You have a lot of decisions to make in the next few weeks. After Orientation, Freshmen become a full-fledged part of Longwood. You have class officers to elect and Oktoberfest to start planning for.

Oktoberfest is a very important part of Longwood. Everyone becomes involved in someway. It can be in the skits, working on a midway booth, becoming a clown, or many other ways. Oktoberfest brings everyone working together — it brings together friends!

That is also a very important part of Longwood — FRIENDS! When you moved in Thursday, you made at least six friends. There was your Head Resident, your Resident Assistant, your student assistant, your colleague, your orientation leader, and let's not leave out your roommate.

We once heard Confucious (or maybe it was some Longwood student trying to be intellectual) say, "Friendship is like a piece of ivy . . . it grows where it is planted until it reaches its ultimate height."

Longwood provides a place for you as a Freshmen to grow not only through those special friendships you will find here, but through opportunities to better yourself as a person and make yourself something special.

Welcome to Longwood! And you're already something Special . . . You're a member of the class of 1983 . . . You're a Longwood Freshmen!

Welcome Baby Greens

Dear Green and White Class of 1983,

Welcome to Longwood! As you begin your freshman year you will find many opportunities to involve yourself in the activities and traditions at Longwood. Tradition is a very meaningful part of Longwood College and can be an extremely enriching part of your college life. I hope you will participate in and initiate some new ones with your class.

The classes graduating in even numbered years are Red and Whites, while those graduating in odd numbered years are Green and Whites. As the Class of 1983, each of you are a Green and White and a member of our color class. Reds and Greens compete in various activities throughout the year, and there is always something for everyone to do. If nothing else, involving yourself in these activities will give you the opportunity to meet many people.

Longwood is a place where lasting friendships can be made and talents can shine.

As a fellow student I encourage getting involved in the fun and excitement Longwood has to offer. I also wish to impress upon you the importance of studying and getting good grades your freshman year. So many upper classmen yearn for those all important grades later—after it is too late. Perfecting your study habits is necessary and it is not stressed often enough. Talk with your professors and ask them for help if it is necessary. They will be glad to give assistance.

I look forward to meeting each one of you through Green and White activities. Remember to get involved, study diligently and face the day with a smile! Once again, WELCOME!! May God bless each one of you always!

Green and White Spirit,
Donna Hughes
Junior Class President

A Letter From CHI

Dear New Students,

CHI welcomes freshmen and transfer students to Longwood! You have made several important decisions recently. First, you decided that you wanted to go to college. Second, you picked your major (even if it is "undecided"). Last, you chose to come to Longwood. We are glad that you did. It is our wish that your first year and every year here will be beneficial and enjoyable.

You may have heard the name CHI or have heard rumors about the organization, but do not know what it is or understand why it exists. CHI represents that high ideal of seeking the most challenging and rewarding college experience possible, both inside the academic classroom and out. The Handbook defines the purpose of CHI as "to promote and maintain a spirit of cooperation among students in every phase of college life." The four columns of the Rotunda on the CHI emblem represent those aspects of student life—spiritual, intellectual, recreational, and social.

Each year, the members of CHI strive to strengthen the spirit and tradition that so characterize Longwood College. In past years this has been done through banners, letters, Spirit Walks, commendations and burnings. CHI of 1980 hopes to continue many of these traditions and perhaps start a few new ones. However, the ideal we symbolize is seldom reached—only reached for. CHI offers you new students a challenge to work together and achieve these goals for yourself. Take advantage of what this college has to offer, ask questions, suggest, be bold—now is the time. But whether these goals and aspirations are realized or not, the heart and ideal of CHI are seen in those who seek its real purpose.

Sincerely,

CHI 1980

Construction on new Physical Education Building is steadily progressing toward planned finishing date of September, 1980. Photo courtesy of Farmville Herald.

Important First Meetings

Freshmen will soon get a chance to begin an active participation in Longwood life. Much will be covered, concerning this participation, at the first two Freshman class meetings.

The first meeting, on August 28, during Orientation, will serve as an informational meeting. Several upperclassmen will present and explain information on various organizational aspects of freshman year. Those interested in running for a class office will be able to pick up a petition, to be turned in at a later date.

The second meeting is just as vital and will be held soon, on a date not yet officially designated. At this meeting, candidates are to be presented for the offices of President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

Power Supply

Ten years ago Longwood's power plant converted from coal to oil. Today, Longwood has a 30-day reserve coal supply figured into its budget.

"Yes, we have considered burning coal as fuel for a long time," said Dr. William H. Peele, vice president of Administration. "The power plant can go either way."

Peele went on to say that there is a supply of coal on hand in case something goes wrong with the oil system.

The college is looking into the possibility of having a larger supply on hand, depending on the cost at the mine, shipping, and the necessity for the coal. According to Peele, the question is one that if coal is cheaper, should the college use it?

Peele also added that the "state asks us to keep a 30 day coal supply."

Representatives for student government positions to be nominated include those for Legislative Board (policy making), Judicial Board (rule enforcement), Elections Committee (school elections), and the Student Liaison Committee (students' voice).

At this time, Freshmen will select their leaders for the upcoming Oktoberfest. An Oktoberfest chairman is chosen to coordinate all the class plans for the fall celebration. A skit chairman will work along with their Junior counterparts to produce the Green-n-White Oktoberfest skit, and a booth chairman will oversee production of a creative money-making project in the form of a Midway booth. Chairmen for several other committees will also aid in the Greens' battle for the Oktoberfest cup.

Representing your class as an officer, in student government, or for Oktoberfest, is an ideal way to meet new people and grow in a developing and unifying freshman class. Those motivated to get involved in college life and making a contribution to Longwood should attend these important first meetings.

The first
ROTUNDA
staff meeting will be held Monday, September 3
at 7:00 p.m. in the ROTUNDA office
(Basement Lankford).
We need staff writers,
photographers, typists,
etc. . . .

What It Takes

Beginning its second full year at Longwood, the Army ROTC Program has several planned events in the making. This year will add a new program to the ROTC roster. The Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP) provides the student with the opportunity to enroll in the National Guard or Army Reserve and at the same time enroll in the ROTC program. The student will receive pay from both the ROTC during the last two years and the National Guard or Army Reserve. He will also be eligible for tuition assistance from the state.

On September 7, the ROTC will take a canoeing trip down the James River. This trip is offered on a first come, first serve basis to any student enrolled in Military Science. Departure time will be around 6:30 a.m. The trip starts at Alpine, Va., and ends at Glasgow.

The ROTC also has two Field Leadership Exercises (FLX) planned for Fort AP Hill and Fort Pickett. The FLX are for MS-3 and MS-4 students. They learn such skills as map reading, leadership, tactics, and the use of a m16 rifle and machine gun.

For the freshmen and transfers interested in the Army program, it is open to any college student. A student does not have to make any kind of military commitment during the first two years.

The first year provides a variety of basic science skills such as repelling, CPR, weapons, leadership, and survival. After these basic introductory classes, the Military Science student takes a full year of Military History.

For those who have problems with scheduling and have a desire to enter the ROTC program, Summer Basic Camp can provide the first two years training.

The ROTC provides four types of scholarships depending on a student's class rank. According to SFC Jordan, Longwood has a high percentage of gaining these scholarships in a very competitive system.

This year, Longwood has three students who recently received scholarships. Patricia Carnes and James Wright both received two-year scholarships at ROTC Basic Camp in Fort Knox, Ky. These scholarships were given on the basis of participation at camp and for academic standing.

Lynn Painter received a three-year scholarship for her high academic grade average. This is the first scholarship of its kind received by a Longwood ROTC student.

Lancers Line-Up For Fall Sports

This year's Fall-winter sports line-up will exhibit several new modifications. There will not only be new sports but new faces in the coaching department as well.

The athletic department has created the new position of athletic trainer. Hollis W. Powers came to the college to fill this capacity, according to Coach Ronald Bash, Director of Men's Athletics. Powers has formerly been the trainer at State University of New York in Plattsburg. He received a B.S. degree from the University of Rhode Island and a M.S. degree from West Virginia University.

Mens sports will be the first to get underway with the Soccer team organizing on August 24. The team is under the new direction of Coach Richard J.

Posipanko, and will begin their season, September 10.

Under Coach Posipanko's leadership, the team hopes to improve their last season's record of 0-14, due mostly to inexperience. Posipanko has had experience as assistant Soccer Coach at Trenton State College in New Jersey. He holds his M.A. degree from there and a B.S. degree from Slippery Rock State College. He has also played semi-professional soccer.

Tennis season will get underway on September 18 with their first match. Tryouts are open to all interested on August 27, 4 p.m. at Barlow Courts. Phyllis Harris is the Tennis team's coach. They ended their spring season with a record of 2-4. Women's Golf will begin their season with the Longwood Invitational, September 14-15. Anyone interested in either Men's or Women's Golf should contact the P.E. department.

Dr. Bette L. Harris will replace Coach Denise McDonough as Field Hockey coach this season. Practice will begin August 29 with their first game being September 18.

Last year's Lancers team was very young, but gained much experience under Coach McDonough. Their final record was 4-9. The JV team ended with a 3-4-1 season. They look forward to being a powerful team under Dr. Harris.

Dr. Harris has a B.S. degree from Madison College, a M.A. degree from Sam Houston State University, and a Ed.D. degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She formerly coached at James Madison University.

Also filling a vacancy left by Coach McDonough, Jane Miller will be the Lacrosse Coach in the Spring. Miss Miller received her B.S. degree from Northeastern University in Boston and just recently received her M.S. degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Volleyball and Riding are also offered in Women's sports. Coaching the Women's Volleyball team, Coach Colloway expects to begin the season on September 18 with the teams first game.

Longwood's Riders are under the direction of Sally Bush.

Through past seasons, they have competed with University of Virginia, Hollins, James Madison University, Averett, Sweetbriar, and Randolph Macon in equestration classes.

Intercollegiate Wrestling begins its second year at Longwood under the direction of Nelson D. Neal on November 17 with their first official practice.

Men's Fall baseball will again be under Coach Buddy Bolding's direction. However, they will have a new assistant coach. A former professional basketball player for the Harford Caps, Martin Schoepfer comes to Longwood from Boston University where he received both his B.S. and M.S. Degrees.

The team finished their second season of intercollegiate competition with a 16-12 overall record, last year. Three of the players, Larry Cromer, John Crosby, and Barry Gordon, ranked among individual leaders in the final Division III statistics released by the NCAA Statistics Service in June.

Basketball practice for the men will begin October 15. This year there will be a Jr. Varsity team for the men, according to Varsity Coach Bash. He also claimed that 25 new players are expected to participate.

Don Kelbic joins the lancers as coach of the freshman team. The first game will be on Thanksgiving week end at the Longwood-Miller Classic.

Women's Basketball is scheduled to begin practice November 17. The Coach is Carolyn Hodges.

Staff Additions

(Continued from Page 1)

another new Instructor in Business. She has her B.S. and B.A. degrees in Business Administration and Education from Central Missouri State University. She has worked as a junior accountant, an executive secretary, and a contract administrator with a defense supply in Denver, Colorado.

The Art Department has one new Instructor. Randall W. Edmonson will replace Mrs. Janice Lemen who taught Printmaking, Painting, and Design. Edmonson received a B.A. degree from Drury College, an M.A. degree from the University of Missouri, and an M.F.A. degree from Southern Illinois University. He served in the U.S. Army as a journalist and a photo journalist.

Joseph J. Horvat Jr. comes to Longwood from Lincoln, Nebraska as an Instructor in Psychology. He received his B.A. degree from Fort Lewis College, and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from University of Nebraska where he has been an instructor.

Also joining the Psychology department is Dr. Madeline Simpson. Dr. Simpson replaces Dr. Richard Aubry, as an Assistant Professor. She received a B.A. degree from Fisk University in Nashville, a M.S. degree from Boston University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Maryland. She has taught at Harford Community College in Bel Air, Maryland and Cheyney

State College, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Sedgwick has also engaged in social work practice, child welfare, and supervision. She organized and started a school of social work in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, at the request of the Haitian government.

Filling a vacancy in the Sociology and Anthropology department as an Instructor is Henry K. Townsend. Townsend has a B.A. degree from Catawba College, M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina, and Ph.D. degree at Emory University. He has worked in the center for Research in Social Change at Emory. He also taught at UNC in Greensboro.

Dr. Ellery Sedgwick joins the English department as an Instructor. Dr. Sedgwick received the B.A. degree at Harvard University, the M.A.T. degree from Columbia Teacher's College, and the Ph.D. from Boston University. He has taught at Boston University. He has assisted a psychiatrist in Bogota, Columbia, in rewriting and editing a book on the "street children" of Bogota.

James Albert Carpenter is a new Instructor in Mathematics. He has a B.S. degree from University of Maryland and a M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee.

Joining the department of Music is Patricia D. Lust. She has her B.M. degree from Heidelberg College, M.M. degree from New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, and her D.M. degree from Indiana University.

The Rotunda Staff welcomes Longwood's new staff.

Office Of Career Planning And Placement

1. DO YOU NEED INFORMATION ON VARIOUS CAREERS?
2. DO YOU KNOW WHAT THE JOB OPPORTUNITIES ARE IN YOUR CHOSEN FIELD OF STUDY?
3. DO YOU KNOW HOW WELL LONGWOOD COLLEGE STUDENTS DO IN JOB PLACEMENT AFTER GRADUATION?

The answers to the above questions as well as other information may be obtained from the Office of Career Planning and Placement which is located on 3rd Floor South Ruffner. Miss Niki Fallis, Director, and Mrs. Joyce Trent, Secretary, will be happy to cooperate with you. Office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Please come by the office. Browse in the career information library and set up an appointment with Miss Fallis to discuss your interests and concerns. Have a very rewarding year!

"ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES OF THE YEAR"

TIME MAGAZINE

"The Goodbye Girl"
is a joyous comedy —
just what the doctor ordered.
Neil Simon makes feeling good legal..."

GENE SHALIT, NBC-TV

September 6, 7, 8
ABC Rooms
8 p.m.
$1.00

A RAY STARK PRODUCTION OF A HERBERT ROSS FILM
NEIL SIMON'S

"THE GOODBYE GIRL"
RICHARD DREYFUSS • MARSHA MASON

and introducing QUINN CUMMINGS as Lucy
Written by NEIL SIMON • Produced by RAY STARK
Directed by HERBERT ROSS • Music Scored and Adapted by DAVE GRISIN Song "Goodbye Girl" Written and Performed by DAVID GATES
a RASTAR Feature • Prints by MGM Labs

Single Now Available on Video Records • Now Available on Paperback from Warner Books
PG PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED • 11-17 YEARS OLD MAY FIND SOME MATERIAL OFFENSIVE • PARENT STRONGLY CAUTIONED
A WARNER COMMUNICATIONS COMPANY

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1979

NO. 2

Seniors Start Year With Capping And Convocation Ceremonies

By MIKE O'HARE

Two age-old traditions were carried on by the class of 1980: Senior Capping, held on September 4 at 7 p.m. and Convocation, which took place on September 6 at 1 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

Senior Capping, one of Longwood's oldest traditions, is "more symbolic than functional," according to Libby Bowman, Senior Class President. Faculty advisor for the Class of 1980, Dr. Billy S. Batts, was not present because of illness — but those present were treated to a serious discourse by Longwood's president, Dr. Henry I. Willett, Jr. Dr. Willett spoke of the great nations that had collapsed from "internal softness" and urged the audience to "look before you leap."

Dr. Willett took the opportunity to blast those suffering from "post-Watergate syndrome;" i.e., the tendency to condemn before all facts are in. "All of us... should give people the benefit of the doubt," he urged. He partially blamed the media for the current attitude and said that he felt they should "temper their opinions."

After the speech, seniors were capped by their "little brothers and sisters" — underclassmen chosen by each senior. The caps' tassels were designed individually by the little brothers and sisters. A sophomore-sponsored reception followed in the Gold Room.

Convocation, held Thursday, is recognized at Longwood College as the official opening of the academic year. It precedes Senior Capping, which is the seniors' official recognition.

Convocation opened with a procession of the faculty and seniors, who were all attired in their academic regalia. The Reverend John Thompson, pastor of the Farmville Presbyterian Church, delivered the Invocation.

Afterwards, Dean Carolyn Wells recognized the "Longwood Scholars" who were present. There were four sets of scholars — for 1976-77: Sherill Jean Harrison and Karen Nanette Shelton; for 1977-78: Cynthia Gay Poore; for 1978-79: Mary Beth Johnson and Sharon Paige Wooten; and for 1979-80: Melinda Carol Allman, Charna Elaine Moore, Carol Ann Parrish, Patricia Ann Pascale, Donald Nelson Roland, Jr., and Susan Alane Watford.

Miss Bowman then introduced the guest speaker, Dr. John D. Wilson, a professor at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg, Va. Dr. Wilson's speech lived up to Dean Wells' dictate that it be "stimulating, dynamic, and penetrating." Among the topics covered were contemporary music, Longwood's "remarkable catalog," and Dr. Wilson's family! However, he did advise the senior to "choose what means most to you" rather than pursue strictly material values. After Benediction by the Reverend John Thompson, the Class of 1980 and the faculty then concluded the ceremony by marching out to accompaniment of Dietrich Buxtehude's "Tocatta in F Major."

Miss Bowman revealed that these pageants are "meaningful" to most seniors.

Libby Bowman introduce Dr. John D. Wilson at Convocation ceremonies.

Photo by David Gatts

Students Reject Proposed Policy, Sign In-Out Kept

By SHARON JANOVICH

EDITOR'S NOTE: Opinions were polled by Journalism 110 class.

"No, I think the proposed policy is ridiculous! It serves no useful purpose because the only people it will affect are the ones who already comply with present sign-in, sign-out rules. Those who ignore the present policy will continue to do so, anyway," said one Longwood sophomore.

"No, I don't like it either. I don't see how they can ask someone to leave any type of identification. That is a violation of personal property rights!" said yet another student.

These comments are only a few of the many opinions received concerning the proposed substitution for the present sign-in, sign-out procedure. Legislative Board met to discuss and suggest the possibility of incorporating that guests must leave some type of identification (Driver's License, College I.D.) at the front desk, instead of signing a guest in and out. After a random opinion poll was taken, it was concluded that approximately 93 per cent of the student body were not in favor of the proposal. The majority of the Freshmen polled felt that it would be a degrading proposal, treating them like children, instead of adults. The Sophomore and Junior classes felt much the same way, but added that they wondered who would be responsible for lost I.D.'s. The Seniors felt the proposed procedure to be ridiculous. One senior girl stated that she was 21 years old, but felt like she would be treated like a tenth grader, if that procedure was incorporated.

Dean Heintz stated, "Personally, I believe that the system presented last week by Legislative Board is superior to the current sign-out procedures, and I think the proposal is a good one. It is important to the security and safety of students that identification of guests in a residence hall be as effective as possible."

By the end of the Legislative Board meeting Thursday night, it had been determined that the proposed procedure would NOT be incorporated, and that they would propose to keep sign-in: sign-out procedures. New visitation hours were passed, however, and have yet to be approved by the residence board and the Administration. The proposed visitation hours are: 3:00p.m.-10:00p.m. — Monday-Thursday, 12 noon - 1:30 a.m. — Friday, 12 noon - 1:30 a.m. Saturday and 11:00 a.m.-11p.m. Sunday. Dean Heintz has stated that the Administration will approve the present procedure with extended hours.

When approached for his opinion on the signing in-out procedures, President Willett stated that, "Back in the spring, we talked at length with the boards about the option of alternatives to the sign-in, sign-out procedures. I was then, and am now in favor of developing some type of alternative." President Willett went on to say that, "I believe that there is a need for some type of system and that the proposed plan of depositing identification is the best that I have heard to this point. We will, however, be willing to listen to other suggestions at a later time, that the student boards might offer."

Spirited Seniors Tapped By Geist

By JUDI STANLEY

"To recognize and to serve" — this is the purpose of Geist, "a local honorary leadership society whose members strive to serve the student body as they strive to meet their own ideals," said Mrs. Nancy Shelton as she and Miss Terri Swann spoke at the Geist Recognition Assembly. Mrs. Shelton and Miss Swann related to the audience the origin and meaning of Geist.

Until 1966, Alpha Kappa Gamma was the honorary organization on Longwood's campus. Its main activity was a circus week end which included a circus, skits by the classes, a parade, and a midway. In 1966, AKG became Geist, a German word which means "spirit, intelligence, imagination, and soul." Geist, as we know it today, recognizes among the students three qualities: leadership, scholarship, and service, tempered with humility, integrity, and intelligence.

On September 6 at 7:00 p.m., the current members of Geist, Alice Clay, Cindy Morris, Debbie Northern, Bill McKeig, and Teresa Ware, tapped four new members into the society.

For his work with Camaratas, his major, Spring Week End, Oktoberfest, and the Miss Longwood Pageant, Charlie Mason was tapped into Geist. Donna Hasky was chosen for her work with Wesley Foundation, Hall President, Resident Advisor, Oktoberfest, Spring Week End, Student Union, and Welcome Skits. For her service to the college through blue and white and red and white functions, Elections Committee, Judicial Board, Baptist Student Union, and Tafara, Geist chose Jan Bates for membership. Cindy Cummings was tapped for her work with the Wesley Foundation, Alpha Lambda Delta, Iota Lambda Tau, Resident Assistant, and devotion to her peers.

These four seniors, along with those tapped in the spring of 1979, will serve the students of Longwood through Oktoberfest, the spring bloodmobile, and the offering of leadership as they represent, Mrs. Shelton noted, "the intangible spirit of Longwood."

New Geist members, left to right, are Cindy Cummins, Jan Bates, Donna Hasky, and Charlie Mason.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern
STAFF: Sherry Carmon, David Gault,
Thomas Cole, Chuck Cole, Steven
Whitten, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase,
Janet Clements, Nancy Hewins, Frank
Cressy, Lynn Swann, Nancy Willard,
Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hare, Donna
Hasker, Judi Stanley, Debbie
Cunningham, David Oakes, Doug
Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner,
Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon
Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Bennett.

Member of the VIMCA.

Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

STAFF POEM

Dear Editor,

Would you consider printing this poem from a recently retired member of the Longwood staff in your next issue.

Thank you,
Jack Millar
History and Gov't Dept.

BUREAUCRACY SPEAKS

Input, output
In terms of and finalize
Babbling bureaucrats
Speaking monstrous words
Seek to control our lives.

Spurious words
Sententious phrases abound
The meanings inverted
Darkened, made dim
In shibbolethic sound.

Cliches—cliches
They are so easy to use
Save mental labor
The pains of thought
But our minds surely abuse.

Memoranda
From the desks of the obtuse
Direct our affairs
Seek to control
Our thought processes abuse.

To speak and write
First require cogitation
Let us throw away
Easy cliches
And save the nation.

T.B. Bruck, Jr.
Ballybrack

BLUE 'N' WHITE MESSAGE

Longwood College has always been a place where people cared for the welfare of others. This warmth and sincerity is what makes us proud to be students at Longwood. It distresses us to hear about the injustices that are occurring against freshmen and upperclassmen alike. This year, especially this semester, looks like it will be a trying and difficult one for all. Upperclassmen, although you may be in an unpleasant rooming condition, put out an effort to be understanding toward the freshmen. Of us all, they have had it the hardest with last minute registration, tripled rooming situations, and various college life adjustments.

Hopefully, each one of you will do all you can to make their college life better.

We must congratulate you freshmen for the courage you have shown in all the situations you have faced since arriving at Longwood. We challenge you to overcome these difficulties. We appreciate all efforts by the upperclassmen in guiding the freshmen through the year. Try to remember that you too were once in their position.

Let's all strive to exhibit the warmth and closeness that has been traditional at Longwood!

Blue and White Love,
Libby Bowman
Donna Hughes
Brenda Coleman
Class Presidents
(1980, 1981 & 1982)

Your Turn

LIFE AT LONWOOD

"...But the Computer said I had a class here!"

Commentary

By MARK M. SLOAN

We've all had our little run-ins with the new computer scheduling system this semester, and I suppose that my tale is not unique. Much confusion has resulted from the machine's errors: schedules weren't appointed, and appointments weren't scheduled; males were given rooms in female dorms (to the delight of some and the chagrin of many), and classes were designated as meeting in the strangest places (Curry's basement, for instance and Room

37 of the Physical Plant.
Mysterious errors such as these caused me to take my print-out in hand and proceed to the Lower Dining Hall, where the same computer which had fouled up my schedule would supposedly reschedule it in its proper order.
I entered the Lower Dining Hall
anticipating a futuristic, efficiently streamlined system,
with a machine right out of Star Trek: blinking lights, strange sounds, and so forth. What I encountered, however, was one bespectacled young man, sitting in front of a TV set and working an electric typewriter. This, I was told, was The Computer.

I gave this fellow my poor, mixed-up schedule, and was informed that it would be no problem to repair. But when he entered my student number into the machine, the TV set went dark. From somewhere came the smell of smoldering wires, as the man began to press buttons seemingly at random. The screen lit up again, to show a re-run of an old Green Acres episode. The fellow grew angry, and struck the top of the machine. This time, it beeped a bit like R2-D2, and a wisp of smoke drifted out. Now there was no picture, but I could at least hear Led Zeppelin over its speaker. The man cursed, and struck the machine a final blow, causing it to groan and go dark.
"Oh no!" cried the fellow, "I've killed it!" As I exited the room he was in the process of giving the machine CPR.

I now had to take my schedule over to the main computer office, where the lady in charge entered my course-change forms into her version of The Computer. This one came to life instantly, and for a moment I anticipated an easy time of it. As a series of words and numbers flowed across the screen, she began to read out loud: "...and our contact in Angola was eliminated last night...must pay off that Cuban colonel, but we need to launder some more cash...Oh, dear," she said, "we must have gotten our lines crossed with the CIA's computer at Langley. That happens so often." She pressed a series of buttons, the screen flickered and beeped, and I saw my very own number on the screen. The speaker was playing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, but at least the schedule was mine.

I eventually got the problems worked out, and my new schedule seems to be going all right now.
But I'm still a bit leery of my Astronomy class, which the computer has listed as meeting in the playground behind the Home
Ec building...

Editor's Turn

To err is human, but it takes a computer to really foul things up!

To many these past few days this saying has been a reality in more ways than one. But, as in all things, there are both good and bad points to the new computer registration system.

For one thing, Freshmen registered in mass on one day whereas in the past, there have been summer academic advising sessions. Of the 800 schedules, only 715 were processed which created a loss of 84 schedules. The fault, according to Jerry Hill, Director of Computer Services, was a typographical error which caused an overprint. Put simply, a group of schedules were skipped over when the individual doing the job misread a number.

Secondly, the computer's collection table (counter) was set for 6,000. The approximate total of add-drops was 8,000. The computer was reset again for 10,000 to accommodate for the overflow.

Another problem involving the add-drop system developed when a student would add a class, then drop the same class, and then add the very same course again (same course and section number). This caused the enrollment figurements to error.

When asked if he thought Longwood was becoming a computerized college, Hill stated "No more so than all other colleges and no more so than society in general...Everything has a number."

It was pointed out that there was probably more human contact during this registration than before, whereby the student was forced to talk to his or her advisor. There was it seems, a chance to deal one-on-one with other individuals; students had a chance to meet the staff. Because of the use of the computer, there is no need to increase personnel. There is the need to use automation to allow a college to continue at its proper level. Without it, a college would seriously change or, quite possibly, no longer continue to exist.

The move to computerization represents change and change represents new traditions, new life styles, a loss of individualism. The question still remains — are we being reduced to a number, causing us to lose our identity with the human race, as a separate being, as a student? None of us wants to be a number.
It is a question that has to be solved by each of us — individually.

PEJ

Increase your options from the beginning.

As a freshman in college, you are looking ahead to a good first year. Your ultimate goal is getting that college degree.

To make that degree more meaningful, you should increase your options from the beginning.

And you can do that through Army ROTC.

Army ROTC offers practical leadership with on-hand adventure training. You'll get management experience, which aids in developing men and women to shoulder greater responsibilities at an earlier age than most other graduates.

You can be part of this exciting curriculum in the first two years. And there's no obligation. You'll earn $100 a month for 10 months each of the last two years in Army ROTC.

Upon graduation you'll be wearing the gold bars of an Army officer. With the kind of experience you get in Army ROTC, you're qualified for any career, whether it's military or civilian. Army ROTC provides for both—active duty status with a starting salary of over $12,000 or Reserve Component/National Guard Duty while employed in the civilian community.

Get a good start your freshman year. Increase your options from the beginning with Army ROTC.

Army ROTC.

Learn what it takes to lead.

Call:

Major Sullivan or Sergeant First Class Jordan, 392-9259, Room 301 E. Ruffner.

PLAN NOW FOR 2ND SEMESTER!

S-UN's Major Concert, Tonight

By DONNA HASKY
The first major Student Union concert of the year promises an evening of exciting entertainment. Beginning the evening is a talented entertainer who is no stranger to Longwood audiences—Robbin Thompson. Robbin began his musical career with Bruce Springsteen, but quickly moved into the limelight in his own right with hits such as "Sweet Virginia Breeze." His unique, driving vocals and balanced combination of rhythm and blues, rock and roll and a gentler style of folk rock culminate in an entertainer who has a talent great enough to satisfy nearly every taste in music.

Providing the main musical event for the evening is a talented musical team named the DIXIE DREGS. A multi-talented group of entertainers, the Dregs are equally at ease with jazz, rock, country and even classical musics, while at the same time providing an almost overwhelming stage presence to further add to the audience's overall enjoyment.

Tickets for this entertaining and exciting evening, which is September 11, are reserved seating only and are on sale in the Student Union office in Lankford and at McKay's Clothing on Main Street. Prices are $3 for Longwood students and $4.50 for all others. The show starts on Jarman stage at 8 p.m. and the combination of these two musical talents on the same stage creates no less than expectations of an evening of the highest musical quality possible.

The Dixie Dregs will provide main entertainment, tonight.

Robbin Thompson heads tonight's concert in Jarman.

Roller-Holberg To Present Recital

From Department of Music

Kristin Holberg and Dale Roller will present a senior piano recital on Sunday, September 16 at 4 p.m. in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building. They will play compositions by Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Chopin, Debussy, Ives, Schoenberg and Scott Joplin. The latter half of the program will include "Sports et Divertissements" by Erik Satie. In this work Miss Holbert will be assisted by John Hudson as narrator.

The program will conclude with piano duets of Schumann and Brahms played by Dale Roller and Sandra Martin.

Kristin Holberg and Dale Roller are piano students of Dr.

Robert Blasch. Miss Holberg of Surry, Virginia, is president of the Longwood Student Chapter of Music Educators National Conference, and vice-president of the music honor society Sigma Alpha Iota. She is also a member of the Farmville Presbyterian Church Choir.

Roller, of Weyers Cave, Virginia, has performed throughout this past summer at Busch Gardens in Williamsburg. He is treasurer of the Longwood Chapter of the music society Phi Mu Alpha, and is a member of the Longwood Camerata Singers.

The public is cordially invited to attend this recital and the reception following it in the Green Room of Wygal Building.

By BARBARA BAKER

A selection of silkscreen prints and lithographs by contemporary Neo-Realist artists will be on display in Lancaster Library Gallery through October 3.

The exhibition, sponsored by the Department of Art and the Virginia Museum, includes eight silkscreens by Richard Estes, called "Urban Landscapes" and 12 lithographs called "Radical Realism" or "Photo Realism" by various other talented artists.

The Neo-Realist artists usually work from photographs, television, and films in order to view the subject with "cool" emotional distance and photographic objectivity. The subjects of the works are frequently views of street scenes, store-fronts, subways, cars and hamburger stands. This method of working from photographs not only acts as a "buffer" to the artist's emotional response to a scene, but it reveals every minute detail of a scene captured in one instant of time.

So give your eyes a delightful break from studying while at the library and view these fascinating artworks. The exhibition is free and open to the public.

Also in the Art Department, you can see an example of what enormous talent Longwood claims, by stopping by the Showcase Gallery in the Reading Rooms of Lankford to view and admire the artworks of senior art major, Betsy Connolly.

The exhibition includes paintings in oil and acrylic, drawings in pencil, ink, conte, and pastels, linoleum and wood cuts, zinc, aluminum and plexiglass etchings, a lithograph, photo etching, and wood carving. Miss Connolly's work will be on display through September 14 and is open to the public.

MOSCOW 1980

Without your help, we can't afford to win. Make check payable to U.S. Olympic Committee, Box 1980-P, Cathedral Sta Boston, MA 02118

Please contribute to our cause—deductible

Well-known Richmond jazz musician Steve Kessler and his quartet will perform in the Snack Bar on Friday and Saturday evenings, beginning at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charged for this Student Union sponsored event.

FREE PEPSI

S-UN

FRIDAY
9 PM

DISCO

L.C. 50¢
WITH I.D.
GUESTS $1.00

RED, WHITE
AND GREEN
ROOMS

Relax and Enjoy...

The OASIS BAND

SEPT. 15
1 P.M.
THE DELL

L.C. FREE
WITH I.D.
GUESTS $1.00

"Liquid refreshments" SOLD

Soccer '79:

A Building Foundation

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood College Soccer team springs into action this week by hosting three intra-state rivals. These three games initiate what first-year coach Rich Posipanko hopes to be a successful year. Namely, a .500 season. Posipanko hopes to blend the talents of his recruits with the returning Lancer booters to bring an exciting brand of soccer action to the Longwood campus.

Coach Rich Posipanko comes to Longwood after spending three seasons as an assistant coach at Trenton State. Working under the pressure of a very short recruiting year, he was able to bring several key players to supplement his squad. His talented recruits include Gustavo and Mario Leal of Rockville, Md. The Leal brothers have had some international experience and may provide the spark the Lancer booters need in their quest for a successful season.

Joe Parker and Mike McGeehan, both Philadelphia-area recruits, are also expected to play a big part of the Lancers' season. Posipanko views Parker as a scoring threat, which will be a valuable asset to a young Lancer squad.

The captain of this year's team is senior returning forward, Dave Yerkes. He will combine with junior returnee Jerry Gilleland and Parker on the forward line to provide the scoring punch for the Lancers.

Midfield for the Lancers will showcase sophomore returnee Ken Gebbie, junior college transfer Paul Robertson, and Freshmen recruits Mario Leal and Mike McGeehan. This talented group is expected to serve double-duty, helping to provide the scoring punch while beefing-up the Lancer defense.

The key to success will be their ability to control the ball and keep the pressure on the opposition's defense.

Defensively, the Lancers will rely on the services of sophomore returnees Brian Cochran and Mike Kerrigan, and first-year player Mario Leal. Coach Posipanko is counting on a strong defense to strengthen the one questionable position in the Lancer lineup. Posipanko is still searching for a goaltender. Several players are expected to see action in the Lancer goal as the coach looks for the ability and consistency which will serve the Lancers well during the season.

The Longwood Soccer program has a great future under the leadership of Coach Posipanko. This year's squad lacks depth in some key areas, but the team has the potential for a very strong year. With a full recruiting year following the season, the Lancers should be even stronger next year. This year will be a learning and growing year for the coach and his team, but it looks like Longwood has fashioned the foundation for a strong Soccer program at Longwood.

Longwood kicked off its season September 10, with a home match against Averett College under the lights on Iver Field. This was the first night outdoor athletic event in the history of the school.

1979 Soccer Team: first row (l-r) — Mike Lewis, Harry Bunkle, Gustavo Leal, Dave Yerkes, Joe Parker, Jim Hamlin, John Faddis, Ken Gebbie, Mario Leal; Second row — Roy Atkins, Steve Welson, Brian Cochran, Mike McGeehan, John Lowe, Frank Herroth, Jerry Gilleland, Todd Stebbing, Mark Conk, Mike Kerrigan, Paul Robertson, Paul Fisher, Rob Welsh and Coach Rich Posipanko.

Photo by Chuck Cole

SOCCER
DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept.
12	H—Chris. Newport	4:00
15	H—Roanoke	2:00
17	A—Radford	3:00
20	H—Randolph-Macon	3:00
24	H—Greensboro	1:30
Oct.
2	A—Va. Wesleyan	3:00
5	A—Hampden-Sydney	3:30
12	A—Atlantic Christian	7:30
13	A—N.C. Wesleyan	2:00
20	A—UNC/Greensboro	2:00
23	H—VCU	3:00
25	H—George Mason	2:30
27	H—Mary Washington	2:00
31	A—U of Richmond	3:00

All home games will be played on 1st Ave. Field.)

Riders

Selected

By KATHY CHASE

Eleven anxious horsewomen gathered Monday, September 3, in the Bristow Parking Lot to go out to the Whitlock Stables for the 1979-80 Riding team try-outs.

Six of the eleven were freshmen, four were sophomores, and one was a junior. Returning from last year were Kathy Redmon, Kathy Chase, Robyn Walker, and Janet Young. New team members are Shannon Chambers, Erika Cristea, Mary Ball, Laura Fields, and Karla Weber.

Coach Mary Whitlock said she was greatly impressed by the number of people who signed up to try out. "The enthusiasm seems to be up" and she is really looking forward to a successful season.

The team is anticipating a busy year with five of the eight intercollegiate shows in the fall.

The Riding team would like to thank all students and faculty who supported the team last year and hopes to have their continued support.

Enthusiasm Marks

Rugby Style

By FRANK CREAMY

The Longwood Rugby Club opens its season on September 23 at Lynchburg College and Coach Stuart Tennant is optimistic about the prospects of the 1979 Lancer team. With 15 returning players and just as many new members, the ruggers promise to provide the fans with an exciting season.

The Lancers schedule should prove to be interesting. Besides Lynchburg, matches with Mary Washington, Washington and Lee, and the University of Richmond (which will be played Oktoberfest week end) have already been scheduled. Of course, the contest of the year will be against archrival Hampden-Sydney, whom the Lancers tied last spring in an exciting match.

Besides these games, Longwood will also play in the Ed Lee Cup for the state title. Being a new team, however, Longwood will compete in the B division of that tournament.

Rugby is unique in several ways. First, because of the fast paced, aggressive style of play, which also includes precision teamwork as an integral component of the attack. Second, the traditional keg party after every match. But more importantly, the NCAA does not sanction Rugby as an intercollegiate sport. Thus, the players compete independently of the school's athletic program as a club.

This, however, does not hinder the spirit of sportsmanship, characteristic of rugby. Said Tennant, "There is none of the elitism found in most major college sports."

Tennant also stated that the only requirements to play are desire and enthusiasm. He hopes that Longwood fans will inherit some of that enthusiasm and cheer the Lancer ruggers on to victory in 1979.

WANTED: Part Time Positions

Be a significant part of the 79-80 men's basketball program.

I. FOR ENTIRE BASKETBALL SEASON, (including two trips to New York and one to Florida)

Team Managers (2), Equipment Manager (1)

II. FOR HOME (12) AND AWAY (14) GAMES ONLY

Official Scorekeeper (1), Statisticians (2)

III. FOR HOME GAMES (12) ONLY

Official Timer (1), Game Administrator (1)

For individual job descriptions and salary rates, contact Dr. Bash at the Basketball Office in Tabb Basement

RIDING

DATE	OPPONENT
Sept. 27	A—Averett
Oct. 7	A—RWV, Lynchburg
18	A—Hollins
26	A—JMU, Mary Baldwin
Nov. 30	A—Sweet Briar
Feb.	A—U Va
Mar. 28	A—Southern Seminary
Apr. 11	A—Va. Intermont

SPORTS PREVIEWS

Varsity Tennis

Team Picked

By STEVE WHITTEN

With only four returnees this year, Longwood tennis has a lot of rebuilding to do. But the returnees form a hard core for the team.

Returning are Nancy Leidenhiemer, Jill Foster, Doris Keys and Christi Lewis. Teresa McLawhorn, a former player, has come back to the courts. The new players are Stephanie Ibanex, Karen Purcell and Kem Diehl.

Coach Phyllis Harris is expecting a great year with matches against very tough schools. The team starts their year against rival Lynchburg, September 18 at 3 p.m.

The team manager is Steve Whitten.

Christi Lewis displays her serving form.

Photo by Tony Mason

TENNIS
DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept.
18	H—Lynchburg	3:00
20	H—Averett	2:00
25	H—Mary Washington	2:00
27	H—Southern Seminary	2:00
29	H—JMU	1:00
Oct.
1	A—Mary Baldwin	2:00
4	H—Hollins	2:00
19	H—RWV	2:00
26	H—VCU	2:30
27	H—Chris. Newport	10:30
30	A—Sweet Briar	2:00
Mar.
13	A—Averett	2:00
Apr.
8	A—Lynchburg	2:00
9	H—Roanoke	2:00
10	A—Hollins	2:00
12	A—VCU	10:30
14	H—Bridgewater	2:00
15	H—Southern Seminary	2:00
17	H—Emory & Henry	10:30
18	VITW State Tournament	TBA

Spikers Predict Strong Season

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Confidence and team work are the watch words for the 1979 spikers. Coach Carolyn Calloway is predicting the Lancers volleyball team to be number one in Division III. In fact, she feels they should not lose to any of the 12 Division III schools they play.

Coach Calloway says this year's team members are highly skilled and are working well together. "Volleyball is a real team sport—if the players don't get along it is hard to put it together," she said.

For the first time, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) is offering three divisions for women's sports, as the NCAA does. The major difference is that each women's sport is able to decide their own division, while all men's sports at a college must be in a single division. Since the volleyball team offers no scholarship aid, the team is classed in Division III.

Three starters were lost from last year's 16-8 team which captured fourth place in the state small college division. Four other varsity players were also lost from the roster.

Returning standouts include hitter Meg Cook, described by Coach Calloway as an "all around leader"; Robyn Hungate, a second year player who will be a strong point on the front line; and Cindy "CT" Thomas, who will take over the vacancy left by All Tournament setter Linda Eagle, after hitting the previous year.

Adding to the team will be transfer student Frannie Osmer, with two years college experience. Two freshmen with great potential joined the lineup; Madeline Moose, standing 5 feet 11 inches will add height to the squad, and Elaine Oley will bring her experience.

During their busy season the team will meet one Division I team (UVA) and five Division II schools.

New Coach, High Goals

By SHERRY CARMONY

This year's field hockey squad, under the direction of Dr. Bette L. Harris, consists of 30 girls. As of right now, there is no division between varsity and junior varsity but Dr. Harris said that the selection should be made by the end of the week.

Among the players returning to the Lancers are six seniors, four juniors, and eight sophomores. Twelve team members are freshmen. Approximately seven of the girls are scholarship players.

Seventeen team members got early help with their game by attending the Mt. Pocono Hockey Conference Camp in Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania. Players who did not go to camp had early practices under the direction of Dr. Carolyn Hodges.

In a rebuilding year, the 1978

Lancers finished their season with a 4-11-2 record. The JV team had a 3-4-1 record. The team expects much better results this year starting with their first game on September 18 when they will host Lynchburg College. The game will be played at 3 p.m. on Barlow Field.

September 21 is the opening date for the Longwood College Invitational Field Hockey Tournament. The Lancers will be hosting four teams from major universities. During Fall Break a team will tour Ohio playing several nationally ranked teams.

Dr. Harris feels that Longwood can offer competition to the larger schools. Her philosophy is that you do not have to have a large school to have a good team.

The Lady Lancers are looking forward to a highly successful season.

Lancer hockey players practice stickwork.

Photo by David Gatts

VOLLEYBALL
DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept
19	A—RWML	5:00
20	Sweet Briar	7:00
26	H—Liberty Baptist	1:00
28-29	A—GMU Invitational	TBA
Oct
1	A—Bridgewater	7:00
4	H—Hampton Institute	6:00
12	A—Elmore & Henry Invitational	TBA
13	A—Hollins JMU	3:00
19	A—East-Carolina U.	TBA
20	Invitational	TBA
21	A—Wm. & Mary	7:00
24	H—Hampton Institute	7:00
26	H—Lynchburg, Eastern	7:00
30	H—Roanoke, Mary Washington	6:30
Nov
4	A—Lynchburg, UVA	7:00
4	A—VAIAW State Tournament	TBA

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

The IAA is getting ready for another year of activities which include flag football, frisbee football, tennis singles, track and field, bowling, billiards and volleyball.

Flag football starts Wednesday, September 12. Game schedules will be posted on the IAA bulletin board in the New Smoker and on the board downstairs in Tabb.

This year the IAA is starting something new, called the Longwood All Sports Trophy. A team entering the flag football, volleyball, basketball or softball can earn points according to the following system: first place — five points, second place — four points, third place — three points.

All teams receive one point for participation. In addition, any member of a team who plays in an individual sport can give points to the team of which they are a member. The winning teams will have their names engraved on a large trophy for permanent display. The dorm, sorority, or fraternity which wins the championship for three years will get a trophy to keep.

The checkout system this year is open more hours than last year. Any Longwood student who presents an ID card can check out equipment during these hours: Monday — 3:30-4:30; 6-8 p.m.; Tuesday — 3:30-4:30 and 6-8 p.m.; Wednesday — 3:30-5 p.m.; Thursday — 3:45-5:15 and 6-8 p.m.; Friday — 2:30-4 p.m.; and Saturday — 2-3:30.

The IAA has all kinds of equipment including softball equipment, soccer balls, frisbees, badminton equipment, tennis equipment, footballs, and volleyballs. There is no charge.

The IAA is selling Lancer seat cushions on September 21 from 11-11:30 and 4-6 p.m. in the New (Continued on Page 8)

Field Hockey Team Roster

Allman, Mindy — F.
Backer, Barb — F.
Casey, B. J. — F.
Cosby, Debbie — Soph.
Davis, Teri — Jr.
Dayton, Julie — Jr.
Devine, Kathy — F.
Dropecki, Cynthia — Jr.
Fuhr, Kim — Soph.
Furbie, Kim — Soph.
Garber, Kim
Garber, Lorrie — F.
Hoby, Mary — F.
Kilmer, Karen — Soph.
King, Mary — Soph.
Kinzel, Debbie — S.
Long, Janet — F.

Matson, Joan — Soph.
Mayer, Chris — F.
Melvin, Susan — Soph.
Milne, Mary — F.
Northern, Debbie — S.
Petersen, Wanda — S.
Shuffler, Doreen — S.
Stanley, Betty — F.
Steer, Jackie — Jr.
Stevens, Cherie — F.
Wakelyn, Jeannie — F.
Ware, Teresa — S.
Wood, Kim — Soph.

Sept. 25 — U of R. — H. 3:00
Sept. 27 — Mary Wash.
H. 3:30

Volleyball Team Roster

Name	Year	Home Town
Meg Cook	Sr.	Severna Park, Md.
Kathy Gunning	Fr.	Vinton
Connie Murray	Soph.	Appomattox
Madeline Moose	Fr.	Silver Spring, Md.
Elaine Oley	Fr.	Patchogue
Fran Osmer	Soph.	Southold, NY
Julie Petefish	Soph.	Shenandoah
Cheryl Pring	Fr.	Ranoke
Cindy Smith	Sr.	Appomattox
Cindy Thomas	Jr.	Buchanan
Sherry Will	Jr.	Amherst
Rhonda Woody	Jr.	Rocky Mount

Manager: Vickie Nesbitt
Scorer: Lynnie Johnson

Lady Golfers Drive For Championship

Longwood's women golf coach Barbara Smith is eagerly awaiting the beginning of her season. Coach Smith, golf coach at Longwood for the past 10 years, has carved out a reputation that ranks her tops in her profession in the state of Virginia. Lancer teams have garnered 118 wins against just 31 losses while capturing five state crowns under Coach Smith's tutelage.

Her talented golfers, who have their sights set on a berth in the AIAW championships next summer, open play Friday (September 14), hosting six teams in the two-day Longwood Invitational Tournament.

With all six of last year's top golfers returning and the addition of three highly touted freshmen, Coach Smith may have one of her finest teams in the upcoming fall and spring seasons.

"Our main goal is to qualify for the AIAW championships in June at Tucson, Arizona," said the coach. "We haven't made it in the past, but this year I think our chances are excellent."

The Lady Lancers had a string of two straight VAAW state championships snapped last fall when they came in second behind Madison. Smith's crew will be out to regain the state crown in October.

One big reason for Smith's optimism is the return of top golfer Kay Smith (Covington). Smith, a junior, had a stroke average of 80.9 last fall and was runner-up in the championship flight of the VAAW State Open. "Kay is probably hitting the ball longer than she ever has," observed Coach Smith. "She is also more consistent around the greens now. I feel she should reach her potential this year. She narrowly missed qualifying for the nationals last spring."

Other returning veterans include: senior Becky Webb (Galax) last year's runner-up in first flight at the State Open, sophomore Beth Waddell (Winston-Salem, NC) who earned an 84.5 stroke average in the fall of '78, junior Debra Hood (South Hill), sophomore Margaret Anderson (Penfield, NY) and senior Janet Clements (Vernon Hill).

Robin Andrews (Woodlawn), Janet Kelly Hingham (MS) and Sharon Gilmore (Patchogue, NY) are the three freshmen who should give Longwood golf a big boost.

Andrews, who will likely land a spot in the top five along with Kelly, was low medalist in the Virginia State Amateur Golf Association Tournament in August with a qualifying round of 74. Sought by several major universities, Andrews once smacked a tee shot 280 yards to win the longest drive competition in the State Juniors Tournament.

Like Andrews, Kelly was a member of the boys' varsity golf team during her high school career. The Longwood freshman finished fifth in the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts Edith Baker Trophy Tournament over the summer.

Despite competing in Division II of the VAAW, Longwood will face some of the country's top Division I women's golf teams in the fall and spring. The Lady Lancers will compete in the Appalachian State University Invitational, the Duke Invitational and the Lady Tar Heel Invitational (Chapel Hill) in the coming weeks, as well as several tournaments in Virginia.

DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept
14-15	H—LC Invitational	7:00
16	A—Appalachian State U.	TBA
17	A—JMU Invitational	1:00
18	A—Mary Washington Invitational	TBA
20	A—Mary Washington Invitational	TBA
Oct
5-6	A—JMU Invitational	TBA
11	A—VAAW and State	TBA
13	Open	TBA
14	A—Mary Washington Invitational	TBA
20	A—Va. Carolina Team	TBA
25	Match	TBA
Nov
1-5	A—Lady Tarheel Invitational	TBA

Fall Series Begins

From Sports Information

Coming off a fine 16-12 mark last spring, Longwood's baseball team has eight fall scrimmages on tap, with three at home and five on the road. The team began a series of fall scrimmages September 8, hosting Lynchburg at 1 p.m.

Home opponents include, in addition to Lynchburg, VCU (October 6, 1 p.m.) and the University of Richmond (October 14, 1 p.m.). Highlighting the road schedule are trips to Richmond, VCU, and Virginia Tech.

Visits by Duke and Virginia head up next spring's schedule, which promises to be the most ambitious in the school's short baseball history.

DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept
8	H—Lynchburg	1:00
14	H—VCU	1:00
15	A—Richmond	1:00
16	A—Virginia Tech	1:00
22	A—Duke	1:00
23	A—Virginia	1:00
Oct
6	H—VCU (Scrim.)	1:00
14	A—Richmond	1:00
20	A—Virginia Tech	1:00

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon.-Thur. 'Til 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. 'Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

CLOSED
WEDNESDAY MORNING

JEANS SHACK

Levi's

LARGEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S
IN THIS AREA

Painters Pants — Khakis
Name Brand Shirts & Jackets
Plus
Roach Decals and Lettering

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER
PHONE 392-4870 FARMVILLE, VA.

THE

HAIR shaft

"HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU"

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON

LINDA "Jill" DUNEVANT

HOURS:

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM

Wed.-Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM

Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

LONGWOOD LANCERS JACKETS

Reg. $16.95 NOW $12⁹⁵

Remember—
It pays to shop McKay's!

A cordial welcome
and
BEST WISHES
to
LONGWOOD COLLEGE
STUDENTS, FACULTY
AND STAFF
from CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP

3 Blocks from campus

FARMVILLE, VA.

(Across from THE CATHOLIC CHURCH)

TEL. 392-3151

IAA

(Continued from Page 7)

Smoker. They are white with the Longwood Lancer symbol on both sides in blue. The cost is $2.50. They will also be on sale during Oktoberfest.

The IAA hopes that everyone will participate in their activities. The IAA meets every Thursday night at 6:30 p.m. in the IAA room located upstairs in Lankford Building.

THAT ICE CREAM
PLACE, LTD.

142 N. MAIN STREET

SALAD BAR

Also, clubs, subs. and other sandwiches.

—"THE BEST HOT DOGS IN TOWN"

—COKE, SPRITE, MR. PIBB

—21 FLAVORS OF MONTICELLO

DAIRY ICE CREAM

—SUNDAES, SODAS, BANANA SPLITS

OPEN WEEK DAYS: 11-9

OPEN SUNDAYS: 1-9

CLOSED MONDAYS

WELCOME BACK
LONGWOOD
STUDENTS FACULTY & STAFF

Martin
The Jeweler

123 N. Main St.
Farmville, Va.

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

Portable Typewriter Repair

School Supplies

PINO'S PIZZA & SUBS

75¢ OFF
ANY PIZZA

50¢ OFF
ANY SANDWICH

— With This Coupon —

MONDAY CLOSED
TUES. WED. THURS. AND SUN.
11 AM TO 11 PM
FRI. AND SAT.
11 AM TO 12 MIDNIGHT

404 S. MAIN STREET
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-3135

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1979

NO. 3

Special Jury Clears Longwood

President Willett testified before the Richmond Special Grand Jury during the summer.

By MELODY CRAWLEY

A special Richmond grand jury found insufficient evidence in July to recommend criminal prosecution of Longwood officials. President Henry I. Willett, Jr., was called before the jury in June probing alleged corruption within state purchasing programs.

He was called before the jury after a state police investigation of contracts between Longwood and a printing consultant, Media Directions Inc., of Atlanta. This investigation stemmed from a study done in the State's Department of Purchasing and Supply, last week. The Longwood examination was part of a second interim report which included Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Virginia Commonwealth University, and University of Virginia.

The jury reviewed a series of contracts with an Atlanta design consultant and an affiliated printing company, Stein Printing Co., Inc., also of Atlanta. These companies produce Longwood's recruiting brochures and campus guides.

Media Directions Inc. is owned by Stein Printing Co. Inc. Media designed Longwood's 1972 view book and since has done a market research study which includes the 1976-78 catalog.

According to the Richmond Times-Dispatch this summer, part of the investigation stemmed from the use of color photography in the publications. They sighted the 1976-78 college catalog which used four color pictures on its front and the campus guide which uses color photos exclusively as examples.

John J. Mitchell, the college's director of public affairs, also testified before the special grand jury. In an interview with Mitchell, he explained that Stein Printing had only received two of the four contracts over $5,000 from the school. Stone Printing company in Roanoke was awarded the 1976-78 catalog contract.

Contracts for printing are awarded by the Department of Purchasing and Supply in Richmond. They handle all bids. The college only knows who receives the contract. Longwood College has requested that Stein Printing be allowed to bid.

The contracts with the Atlanta firms total $30,000 for consulting and printing services. President Willett stated that as far as he was concerned, "not a penny of tax payers dollar's was wasted."

The president told the Richmond Times-Dispatch in May that if there was something wrong with the procedures, "we would strongly recommend that the state adopt such a policy and Longwood College will be happy to abide by it." The state has since set up recommendations or guidelines that Longwood had adopted. Before the investigation there were no such guidelines.

The grand jury found that Longwood officials were possible "unwilling parties to a bidding fraud." President Willett stated that, "they found no illegal activity" as far as Longwood is concerned. He also pointed out that the special jury investigation has been completed, involving state purchasing and Longwood. A final report has been submitted by the jury.

Fees Committee Stagnant

By DOUG STROBEL

The Student Fees Committee has been an area of increasing concern among organizations and appropriate administrators over the last few years. The crust of the problem has been a stagnant or even inactive committee at key appropriation times. Apparently, it has been difficult to bring student committee members together in order that they may do their appointed jobs.

Organizations need to have their budgets approved by the end of each academic year so that some foresight can be used in planning their activities for the next school year. The committee has let budgets ride over to the fall thus fostering limited time for appeal and promoting confusion among those concerned.

The committee has been heavily made up of students and will continue so because of a strong administrative belief that students should handle the student appropriations. However, this year the committee has been reduced in size in order to make it easier to get all the members together on a specific date. The committee will be comprised of seven students, one faculty member, and the treasurer of the college. Each class will be represented on the fees committee.

Another change this year will be the introduction of set meeting times for the committee. In the past the committee was only brought together on a random basis.

Dr. Carolyn Wells, Dean of the College, has been instrumental of reshaping the committee. It must be emphasized that she and all others concerned have a fervent belief in heavy student participation on the committee. Longwood is one of the only schools where the business office does not handle student appropriation. The idea is that the students add a personal touch to an area of student concern.

during the 1960's. These studies are conducted by the Department of Planning and Budget in Richmond and should turn out to be accurate excepting a dramatic change in the nation's economical situation.

Will there be more males at Longwood next year? Dr. Peele says yes, if past figures are any indication of the future. Longwood is experiencing a steady increase of male enrollment as the news of its being coed is spread by admission counselors and students alike. Dr. Peele states that the entrance requirements for males are the same as for females and no exceptions are made for males for the purpose of increasing their number on campus.

Enrollment Projections

Predicted Stable

By BARBARA BAKER

The enrollment figures of Longwood College are predicted to remain stable throughout the 1980's. We should have all residence halls filled in the 1980's, says Dr. William Peele, Vice-President for Administration.

This year the enrollment figure of students had been predicted to be 2,355. However, the actual headcount is 2,400, plus. The reason for this greater number is the increase of returning students on campus; whereas, in the past an average number of 100 students did not return to school.

According to demographic studies, there may be a slight decline in enrollment figures in the mid to late 1980's as the result of a nationwide lower birthrate

PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY

12:45 P.M.
LOWER DINING HALL

Dalton Teams Study Business Operations

By MELODY CRAWLEY

A team of "management specialists" will be on campus this week to study the college's operations. President Henry I. Willett Jr., called for the management study after Governor John N. Dalton's announcement that the service would be made available to state operated agencies.

The service provides a consultant operation to the college. It consists of a chosen team of fiscal, personnel and management experts who will examine all of the school's records, looking for ways to streamline operations and save money.

Longwood was the first state agency to request the management team in early July. According to President Willett the team is made up of state employees under the Dalton administration. He feels that this consultant service will save taxpayers money.

The team will meet as a group with administrators this week. Each member will then return later to study his particular field. They will work only with the business operations of the college, including data processing and personnel.

Seminar Class Researches Cost Of Living

From PUBLIC RELATIONS

The Economics Seminar class, composed of ten upperclass students, under the direction of Dr. Anthony Cristo, is undertaking to conduct research projects in the local community this fall.

One of these projects is a cost of living index for Farmville and vicinity. The necessary data will be obtained by means of a "market basket" tally each month, similar to the market basket surveys taken in Richmond.

The contents of the local market basket will be based on the buying habits of Farmville area citizens, as determined by door-to-door surveys and the surveying of local merchants. The results of the local market basket surveys will be compared with those taken in Richmond and with the federal consumer price index.

The second project will be an attempt to determine Longwood College's economic impact and other contributions to the Farmville community. The college budget will be examined, and questionnaires will be distributed to students, faculty, and staff to determine the amount of money spent in the local area.

In addition, merchants and business people will be asked to estimate the college's impact on their total sales.

The questionnaires will also attempt to determine the non-economic contributions made by Longwood students, faculty, and staff to the local churches, the hospital and nursing homes, the Red Cross blood program, social service agencies, and community betterment organizations.

In preparation for these projects, the students have consulted with the Office of Consumer Affairs in Richmond. The ground work has already begun in the preparation of the questionnaires and the determination of procedures to be followed.

Dr. Cristo is hoping for "the wholehearted support of the college and the community" in these two projects. "We are asking for full and honest answers on the questionnaires," he said. "The better the answers to the questions, the more accurate the studies will be and the better enlightened we will be as a community and educational institution."

The Economics Seminar is concerned with studying the various issues of American capitalism. "These projects will give the students a practical application of the principles they learn in class," Dr. Cristo stated. "Also, we hope the results will be of benefit to both the college and the community."

The Longwood College Foundation, as well as various individuals in the local business community, are providing financial support for the projects.

The students in the Economics Seminar Class are: Rick Fore, of Farmville; Karey Friichtnight, of Alexandria; Mark Gagnon, of White Post; Hugh Gallagher, of Arlington; Richard Henshaw, of Colonial Heights; Deidri Kirkpatrick, of Virginia Beach; Kevin Larkin, of Chester; David Petroff, of Petersburg; Jamne Petty, of Buchanan; and David Wall, of Richmond.

Photo by Tony Mason

Hiner-A Building For All Ages

By JANET REYNOLDS

The Hiner building plays a major part of life at Longwood. It provides classroom, laboratory, and office space for the Department of Education and Psychology. Also, many anthropology and sociology classes meet in Hiner. The Bureau of Teaching Materials, the audio-visual center, and the tape and film library provide materials as instructional aids to teachers and students on the campus. A closed-circuit television facility expands the resources of learning further.

Through the Department of Education and Psychology, students can acquire their student teaching assignments from one of many areas in Virginia. Longwood teachers go to Appomattox, Charlotte, Halifax, South Boston, Chesterfield, Henrico, Lynchburg, Roanoke, Fairfax, Danville, Prince Edward, Colonial Heights, and Prince George regions.

Constructed in 1912, while Dr. Joseph L. Jarman was the fourth president of the college, the Hiner building was originally known to the area as the Farmville Training School. For many years, children from the Farmville area attended the school, enabling students to practice teaching.

June Ellington, a former pupil of the Farmville Training School, remembers that there was "highest regard for the teachers." Both boys and girls, from grades one to seven were taught by the student teachers. Children could choose to transfer to the public school in Farmville or remain at the Training School. There was a College High School also at the Training School.

The area of Longwood's campus today where the Coyner and Graham buildings are located, along with Barlow field, was a playground for the children that attended the campus school.

The building is named after Miss Winnie Vee Hiner, who was a head of the Department of Education and Psychology at Longwood.

Longwood has a history of being known as a teachers college. Obviously, Hiner and the Farmville Training School has contributed tremendously to that history. The various services contained in Hiner will continue to assist in the education of many of us at Longwood.

Cablevision Installation Planned

By MELODY CRAWLEY

For those who can not find any way to be entertained—How does live sports coverage, educational programs, and first run movies sound? These are some of the benefits available to Farmville residents now through the newly formed Farmville Cablevision. They will also be available to Longwood students in the near future.

Final plans are being made this week to install cablevision in the Hankford TV Rooms. There is also a possibility that the system may be installed in the dormitories' TV rooms.

President Willett stated that he was not sure how far the school could go beyond that. Negotiations are underway with the Cablevision Company. Plans may also include installing the system in the Snackbar. This will depend on laws guarding copyrights. He also stated that installation in individual rooms would be a matter left up to the students.

Dinkel Communications Corporation is installing the facility in the Farmville Area, as well as several other small towns. According to an article in the Farmville Herald, monthly charges have been set at $10 for Home Box Office and $7 for the basic package which includes both local and satellite stations. This does not include the connection charges.

The Longwood Car Decals have improved in appearance this year, and the students have noticed. (See Letters to the Editors, P. 4)

Standing Room Only Airls

By JUDISTANLEY

"Stop, Dial, Listen to SRO—Tuesdays at 1:15 p.m.—AM WFLO-470." These flyers can be seen throughout Longwood's campus; you have probably seen them and, if you are like many of Longwood students, you do not know what SRO is and you watch "The Young and the Restless" at that time anyway! But, since SRO is a program that your fellow students broadcast, there is reason to tune in.

SRO—Standing Room Only—is a weekly radio program involving the Radio and TV Broadcasting class (Speech 311) taught by Dr. Robert Woodburn. The 25-member class, which is the largest enrollment ever, is divided into four groups of six or seven students. One of the class requirements is that each group write and broadcast a twelve-to-fifteen minute radio program monthly. These original programs may be on any noncontroversial area that the group wishes; the program is recorded on Mondays and broadcast on Tuesdays at 1:15 from WFLO-AM.

Support these students as they obtain this practical experience. It may be that you, too, would like to take Speech 311.

Students Form English Club

By JODI KERSEY

The arrival of the Longwood English Club has come with great enthusiasm from students majoring or minoring in English. The first meeting was held two weeks ago and 15 people attended to begin discussing the formation of the club. Even though the club is just forming, there have been ideas proposed concerning the purposes and goals which will be extremely beneficial to those students involved. Dr. Michael Lund was selected to be the club's advisor and he has accepted this position.

Some ideas that have been agreed upon for the club are social gatherings which will include having members of the faculty as guest speakers and having discussion sessions of students writings as well as the great literary works. The club will give students an opportunity to share their opinions. It will also help to create better relations between the students and professors.

As the membership increases, the Longwood English Club can only be a successful endeavor because of the interest and determination of students and professors.

THE GOSPEL
ACCORDING TO PEANUTS

BY ROBERT SHORT

THURS. SEPT. 20 7:30 PM

Hampton-Judith Library, Heritage Room
Rides Leaving Longwood 6:45 P.M.
(Please note the change in place.)

JR. RING CEREMONY

SEPT. 19 - SUNKEN GARDEN
8 P.M.

BANQUET 6:30 P.M.

SEPT. 18 - LITTLE BROTHERS/SISTERS PICK UP
RINGS 9-6 P.M.

ROTUNDA

Preparation Advised For Job Hunters

By JUDISTANLEY

On August 29, 1979 the Longwood College Placement Office sponsored a program for student teachers and all other interested students. The speakers for the evening, Mrs. M.E. Mitchell, Don Cable, and Henry Emerson, presented information concerning job interviews, qualities possessed by teachers, hiring processes, and steps to take in applying for a job.

Mrs. Mitchell, a Longwood Alumni and Director of Longwood's Board of Visitors, spoke of the hiring processes in Newport News, an urban school system. According to Mrs. Mitchell, before interviews are scheduled, the school must have received the applicant's application, transcripts, and placement file including recommendations. After the school has secured this material an interview with the applicant is scheduled. Mrs. Mitchell stressed that "first impressions do count," so be sure to talk to the interviewer and to maintain eye contact. The interviewer will ask questions to discover your feelings in certain areas. Samples of these areas and the questions that may be asked are:

1. Planning and Organization—How important is planning in the overall idea of teaching?
2. Motivation—What type of learning environment do you seek to create in the classroom?
3. Flexibility—Would you prefer to teach alone or with others and why?

4. Professional Commitment—When did you first decide to become a teacher?

5. Diagnostic Teaching—In planning for instruction, what provisions would you make for children at both ends of the learning spectrum?

6. Teacher—Student Relationships—Describe the relationship you would like to have with your students.

7. Discipline—What characterizes your style of classroom management?

8. Reliability—What non-required activities were you involved in during student teaching?

9. Priorities—What is the ultimate goal in teaching students?

To the questioning process, Mrs. Mitchell added three areas in which the applicant is watched during the interview. The first, personal aspects, included appearance, voice quality, interest, empathy, poise, tact, and enthusiasm. In considering instructional processes, the interviewer looks for attitude towards teaching, conception of classroom management, flexibility, and knowledge of instructional strategy.

The remainder of the eligibility of an applicant is determined through experience (student teaching or other teaching experience), transcripts, and references. After this interview is held, there may be a second interview with a particular principal. Then the job candidate should maintain contact with the office through phone calls and letters of thank you.

In opening, Don Cable, director of Personnel in the Campbell County school system (a suburban system), advised the students that one should carefully follow the school system's instructions for application since each system is different. Cable informed students of items that the principals and personnel directors consider:

1. Preparation—Knowledge of subject material, variety, past work, transcripts, student teaching, and attendance records.
2. Recommendations—Get recommendations from professors, employers, student teaching, previous teachers; one principal stated, "Recommendations are of prime importance as the persons giving them have worked closely with the prospective teacher and know the person on a more individual basis."

3. Personality—Ease of composure, poise, self-confidence, desire to work, maturity, dedication, resources, outside interests, sense of humor.

4. Children—Knowledge of characteristics, child development, desire to work with children, concern, and recognition of individual differences.

5. Communications—verbal skills, grammar, using of slang, and ability to express self.

6. Miscellaneous—Aggressiveness, plans for the future, compatibility with the school community, your interest in the school (do you ask intelligent questions?).

Cable answered the question "Why does one applicant get (Continued on Page 6)

John Todd is the new Freshman Class President.

Photo by Tony Mason

Freshman Class Enthusiastic

By JODI KERSEY

The freshman class of 1983 is now at Longwood and they are letting their voices be heard for their class. Freshman elections were held this past week and the class officers are President-John Todd, Vice-President-Mary Cawthorne, Treasurer-Linda Dingman, and Secretary-Cheryl Donovan.

President John Todd and the freshman class are extremely enthusiastic about making their Oktoberfest plans. They feel they are ready for that all important paint battle on Thursday night. They have also started thinking about Freshman Commission and Freshman production.

Each of the other class officers have made statements concerning the freshman class and the upcoming events.

Mary Cawthorne, Vice-President, stressed the hope that the freshmen would begin the year by becoming involved with Oktoberfest.

Linda Dingman, Treasurer, felt that the whole freshman class should become even more enthusiastic about the year and all the activities that will be taking place.

Secretary Cheryl Donovan said that the total freshman class should unite. She felt that too often only a few people really get involved with what has to be done. She hoped that the fear of getting involved would be diminished so that everyone within the class could help to make this year a success.

"How To Study" Program Offered

By BRENDA BONUCELLI

Now that classes have begun and test dates have been set, the need for decent study habits and good organization is becoming evident. Miss Terrie Swann has recognized this need and has started a "How to Study" program for Longwood students.

This idea is not new to the campus. About four years ago a similar program was employed. At that time there were a number of facilitators and differing formats. The changes this year will be in having just one facilitator, Miss Swann, and consequently one type of format.

Each session will run from 4-5 p.m., tentatively set to begin

September 17. The areas covered will include points on motivation, organization, note-taking, reading skills and exams. The first session will be in Miss Swann's office, but roll is not taken and students are welcome to come even after missing the first meeting.

A sign up sheet is outside Miss Swann's office. So far sign up has been limited, with no freshmen registered at all. Last year this same lack of interest occurred when Dr. Brian Robie attempted a similar program.

It is hoped by the Administration and the faculty of Longwood that students will take part in programs designed to aid them with academic and social life at college. It is a well known fact that a problem is easier solved when caught at its beginning instead of at its middle. This program can be whatever the students want to make it. But an interest on the part of the students is necessary and vital if any type of counseling or academic service is to be installed and continued at Longwood.

It should be known that students have a great deal of power on campus. At many times, though, the students are not willing to put out the energy or the time required to get certain things accomplished. It should also be noted that co-operation and support needs to come from all sides, students being just one aspect.

There was once a tutoring service available on campus, but the department heads discontinued turning in the names of students willing to tutor. In turn, the service was abolished.

Was it a good program? Did anyone get anything from it? More importantly, is the need for such a service still present?

Academics are important, as we all find out one way or the other. But the motivation to "get the job done" too many times is not present. If this becomes a habit, where is the student supposed to turn to for guidance and advice?

Miss Swann's door "is open for anyone with study or campus problems." She comments, though, that student input, interest, feedback and trust are extremely essential and are some of the major factors that will start and keep such programs going on campus.

The study seminars are still open to anyone interested. If such a program would be beneficial or at least help to develop a better understanding of academic self, attend one or two sessions. There is nothing to force attendance or a return visit.

SUMMER CLEARANCE

MEN'S & LADIES' SHIRTS BUY ONE - GET ONE FREE!
ALL SHORTS ½ PRICE

Levi's

ADULT REG. CORDS & DENIM, STRAIGHT LEG
AND FLARE $13.50
STUDENTS' SIZES DENIM & CORDS $12.50
LADIES FASHION JEANS 20% OFF

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER PHONE 392-4870 FARMVILLE, VA.

The Phoenix Takes Flight
ASQ

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

MEN'S
SWEATERS — VELOUR SHIRTS
WINTER JACKETS & VESTS
LADIES'
DRESSES — COORDINATES — BLOUSES
REMEMBER ALL MERCHANDISE
20% OFF

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR. Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR. Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern
STAFF: Sherry Carmony, David Gatts,
Thomas Cole, Chuck Cole, Steven
Whitton, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase,
Janet Clements, Nancy Hawkins, Frank
Creasy, Lynn Swann, Nancy Willard,
Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hara, Donna
Heskey, Judi Stanley, Debbie
Cunningham, David Oakes, Doug
Strabel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner,
Jackie Stear, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon
Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Scott.

Member of the NIMCA

Published weekly during the College
year, with the exception of Holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

We're all still roommates!

Freshmen Plea

Dear CHI:

Longwood has been changing many of their traditions in the past few years. The newest, of which, is separating the Freshmen class from one another instead of freshmen housing as in the past.

Rumor has it that CHI basically walks each time on the Collanade and in front of the former freshman dorms. This letter's purpose is to ask CHI in their future secret walks to possibly exhibit the honorable CHI tradition in front of the Wheeler Dormitory.

This is a plea from the intrigued and awaiting freshman (and upperclassmen) of Wheeler.

Signed,
Freshmen Wheeler Residents

Stickers Commended

Dear Editors,

A touch of class has finally graced the Rusty-Chrome Bumpers of Longwood students' vehicles. Many thanks to the Administrative Staff for finally designing a very, stylish looking parking decal for our cars, that is complementary to the college. Way to stick it!

Duke Rollins

Opinion Voiced

Dear Student Body,

As a fellow student I know that one of our favorite past times is to gripe about campus affairs. Yet, just discussing the problems with our friends does not accomplish anything — except increase the carbon dioxide level in that general vicinity.

Longwood is not a perfect college. It needs fresh creative ideas to keep it going. If you have questions or solutions to problems, Longwood offers you several platforms, unlike larger colleges.

If you have something to say, or just want to know what's going on, come to the Press conference today at 12:45 in the Lower Dining Hall or come Sunday to the Student-Faculty Retreat which begins at 3 p.m. in Lankford. The Administration will be at both meetings to address your questions.

If you can't come to either meeting talk with your class Legislative Board member or write a letter to the Editors of The Rotunda. Let your voice be heard.

Sincerely,
Debbie Northern

Geist Tapping

Dear Editors,

Oktoberfest Weekend means excitement and fun for the entire student body. If it is to be a success then everyone must do their part by helping with class organization booths and skits.

Not only will your color class benefit from the help, but you will gain a sense of satisfaction knowing you were a vital part of the weekend.

Geist will be recognizing those students who have shown enthusiasm and a willingness to give their time and energy at Oktoberfest. Tapping Thursday night at 7 p.m. in Jarman. Two ushers from each class will be chosen as well as a Mittenmeister from the sophomore class, a Festmeister from the Junior class, and a Geistmeister from the senior class. Also the klowns for Oktoberfest 1979 will be announced. Everyone is invited to tapping.

Show your spirit! Become involved with plans for the biggest festival at Longwood.

Blue and White Spirit,
Geist

Prowler Escapes

Dear Editors,

This past Saturday night at around 11:30 p.m., while sitting in the chapter room on 2nd floor Stubbs, my sorority encountered a prowler "peeping tom" on the ledge outside the window. After being called, campus police responded to the cry of help and found the "peeping tom" had escaped.

This should go to prove that if a man can climb up to a second floor ledge and peer in that something is wrong with campus security. I personally think that the night security should be increased on campus.

A Frightened Zeta

Spirit Shines

Dear Student Body:

During this week the Oktoberfest spirit here at Longwood is beginning full force with Klown tryouts and Geist Recognition ceremony Thursday night to tap klowns, class ushers and the Oktoberfest meisters. Oktoberfest includes a wide variety of activities for everyone, Green and White or Red and White, to become involved. Everyone's help and participation is needed to make this year's Oktoberfest successful. Look around and see how you can get involved in Oktoberfest! Don't let all the fun pass you by!

A Spirited Green and White

Editor's Turn

When the students are away for the summer, what happens at Longwood? That's what most of the Longwood population was wondering after an article that appeared in the Wednesday morning Richmond Times-Dispatch. It seems that a lot of students had not heard of President Willett's appearance before the Richmond special grand jury this summer, or of the planned management studies.

One of the first points that President Willett made during an interview with The Rotunda, Thursday was that there was no relationship between the team of "management specialists" and the grand jury investigation.

Upon our request, we were shown the final report issued by the grand jury. They came to the conclusion that the Longwood officials which were involved in the second interim report, were possible "unwilling parties to a bidding fraud." They went on to state that, "The procedures used by most state agencies to develop specifications are particularly inadequate."

The whole investigation of Longwood came from their involvement with a hired consultant firm, Media Directions and Stein Printing Company, both of Atlanta. The main question seemed to be if there were any unfair contract awardings to Stein because of Media Directions. The awarding of contracts is not done by Longwood, but by the State Department of Purchasing and Supply. Longwood's involvement with that process was that they did request that Stein Printing Company, who owns Media Directions, be allowed to bid. They received two of the four contracts over $5,000 that they bid on.

Now that the grand jury investigations are behind Longwood, let's hope that even though there was no "illegal action" or "studied negligence" on the college's part, there was still something gained from it. Media Directions is still under contract to design two more jobs for the college: an athletic brochure and up-dates of the academic brochures. The question now is: Will the administration continue to deal with the Atlanta firms?

That may be one of the suggestions made by the "management specialists." Even though their coming here has nothing to do with the jury investigation, one of their suggestions for improvement may just be to consider hiring a local consultant firm.

The management group was designed by Governor John N. Dalton and Secretary of Administration of Finance Charles Walker to aid state agencies. The group of experts will study the business operations for the college and make suggestions for improvements.

There is one similarity in the jury investigation and the "management experts." The jury was concerned with contracts that would give the college the "highest quality goods at the lowest possible price." The management group is going to try to make suggestions to streamline operations and save money. They should be considered a welcome sight.

MCC

ABORTION: A Woman's Right To Choose

By JANET CLEMENTS

"While I was trying to decide whether or not to have an abortion, one person suggested that by the use of candles and cloves, I could have a 'will the baby out of my body seance.'" stated a Longwood student who had an abortion. Another student commented that "I knew a 15 year-old girl that found out she was pregnant, and she did belly flops off of the high diving board trying to kill the baby." Attitudes such as these could be responsible for approximately 90 abortions performed on Longwood students from September 1978 to April 1979. This number only accounts for those students who went to the Prince Edward County Health Department for help, and does not include girls who went elsewhere for help.

With its legalization in 1973

"When they told me 'yes, you are pregnant' it all collapsed on me. I thought that it could never happen to me, and I was totally shocked."

abortion has become an everyday occurrence with approximately 1.5 million being performed per year in the United States. Of these legal abortions 65 per cent were performed on girls between the ages of 14-24. This age group includes college students, and apparently Longwood students have done much to support this high rate.

The Family Planning Clinic for Longwood College students, located at the Prince Edward Health Department, was established in September 1978 at the request of college officials.

The purpose of the clinic is to help students concerning birth control, abortions, and venereal disease. There is no charge for students at the clinic, and all family planning services are totally confidential. When a person thinks she may be pregnant, the Health Department will give a pregnancy test, and if the test is positive, the family planning team will provide a counselor to help the girl make the decision that is right for her. The alternatives for a problem pregnancy are marriage, single parenthood, adoption, or abortion, and the counselor's main job is to explain each of these choices to the girl. The counselors all agree that they will not make up anyone's mind for them but will help them decide for themselves. Nan Jennings, abortion counselor in Farmville, stated that many Longwood students quit school because of a problem pregnancy. "My biggest problem comes with trying to get the girls to realize their priorities. Many girls will say that they can't have the abortion on certain days that I set up because of practice for some sports team or a test the next day," commented Ms. Jennings.

The abortions are not performed at the Health Department in Farmville, but the counselors act as a liaison between the girls and the Abortion Clinic in Richmond. "After they have the abortions most of the girls never come back to me for further counseling. I guess they are embarrassed, and when I happen to see one of the girls at the Red Lion or around town, they usually hide their face from me, avoid me, or leave altogether," she said.

Abortions performed up to 24 weeks after conception are legal in the U.S., yet the type of abortion differs depending on the number of weeks pregnant the woman is. Early abortions performed on women three months pregnant or less are done by the suction method in a clinic or hospital. In this procedure the contents of the uterus are removed by suction, and the procedure takes no more than five to ten minutes. The cost of the suction type abortion is $135, and although the procedure is uncomfortable, it is not described as being painful.

After the sixteenth week the saline method of abortion is used. A hospital stay is required, and in this procedure a saline injection is given which terminates the life of the baby and causes the mother to go into labor. This type of abortion costs approximately $800.

Abortion has become quite a controversial issue throughout the United States, and many people feel that abortion is just a nice word for murder. However, the Supreme Court has ruled that in the early stages of pregnancy the decision is up to the woman and her doctor. Some people feel that abortion is not moral — others feel that it is more ethical to have an abortion than to have an unwanted child. One Longwood student found herself in this predicament, and for her it was "the most devastating decision I've ever said 'yes, go on and have the abortion,' but at that time in my life I really wanted someone to say 'no, don't have the abortion, we'll help you.' I didn't turn to my parents, and they probably would have been the ones to say 'we'll help you.'

"My decision was based on the fact that I was young, I wanted to further my education, and most of all I didn't have any money. In making such a decision the overwhelming feeling is that you're totally alone. I decided to have the abortion because it wouldn't be fair to have a child without a father and without adequate finances. At that point I wasn't mature enough to handle the pregnancy, let alone having the child. It wasn't a question of marrying the guy because I knew I wasn't in love with him, and we could never have made it as a family.

"I went to the Richmond Medical Center for Women on a Friday morning for my abortion. The procedure there is to pair two girls up and let them be together through the entire lead-up process to the abortion. The first thing you do is have a check-up, and then you meet with your group. The girl I was paired with was about 15 years old and it was her third abortion. She was totally ignorant of birth control, and none of the counseling seemed to phase her.

"The entire counseling session was great, and I never felt pressurized. It was very much a free will decision, and if you decided you didn't want the even though my reasons for choosing the abortion were not the right reasons, they have ended up being rationalized throughout the last four years, and I can deal with it now. At the time it was more traumatic.

"I did wonder what it looked like, but I kept telling myself I have made the decision, now I'm going to have to live with it, and such a responsibility. A baby is nothing to base a marriage on, and a marriage that's forced on you because of a pregnancy doesn't have much of a chance.

"The experience did help me to mature, and at this point in time I would never be in the situation where I would get pregnant again. All I have to say to anyone in the position to get pregnant is in order to do that I had to do some sort of rationalizing. At that point in time I tried not to think about the fact that it was probably a small and miniature sample of life, and I just didn't want to deal with that then.

"What is so heartrending is a few weeks later when you are talking to someone, and they say, 'Oh, did you hear that so and so had an abortion?' you just have to let it fall off your shoulders — you've done what you think is right for you and the situation at hand. If I had let half the comments that people made about abortions bother me, I would probably be in Eastern or Western State right now tearing out my hair.

"When I look back on the experience, I regret that I put myself in the situation, but I have no one to blame but myself. That was the hard thing to face because a lot of people try to blame it on the guy or sit around saying 'why me?' You have to face the problem by realizing that it was your fault that you got pregnant in the first place.

"Considering the abortion issue, I feel that abortion is not for everyone, but that it is an individual decision. I don't want to see anyone else ever go through what I did. I don't want someone to have to sit and debate whether or not they want to have an abortion. It's a horrible burden to put yourself through and very, very awkward to have to deal with in your own life. It devastates you for a period of time because you don't know where to go or what to do. You're constantly questioning your motives and asking yourself 'Am I just having this abortion because I don't want the responsibility for my own mistake?' and that was the hardest question to answer.

"If I'd had the baby I would never have been prepared for DON'T BE STUPID because it only takes one time to get pregnant. It only takes going to bed once and that's plenty!"

For this student abortion helped her to salvage her life after her problem pregnancy, and she was able to continue with her education and put her problem in the past. Yet some people have extreme psychological problems after an abortion.

An account of such a problem occurred with a 44 year-old lady who had been childless during her marriage. A Christian woman with a Jewish husband, they had been unable to adopt a child because of their mixed religion. She longed for a child but was sterile as several tests had shown her tubes to be blocked. After a routine examination with her doctor, she was told that because of continuing fibroid enlargement, her uterus would have to be removed. After hearing this she went into hysterics and collapsed on the floor.

After considerable time, sedatives and support she revealed her story. She related how she had become pregnant while in college and had had an abortion "by an excellent surgeon." She had been sterilized by the abortion. Throughout her marriage she had hoped that she would somehow conceive. Now the doctor had just told her that her womb must be removed and her last hope for a baby was gone forever. Her only words were, "I killed the only baby I ever bore."

Throughout the United States there are many people who want to outlaw abortion and decide how the rest of the nation should conduct their lives. The abortion debate is spreading throughout the U.S., and one onlooker calls it "a battle of bumper stickers between people with their minds

(Continued on Page 6)

Abortion Facts:

— Abortions performed in the first trimester of pregnancy are six times safer than childbirth.

— An unborn baby's heart begins to beat between the eighteenth to twenty-fifth day.

— One out of every three couples practicing birth control will have an unwanted pregnancy within a five-year period.

— At nine to ten weeks the unborn baby squints, swallows, moves his tongue; if you stroke his palm he will make a tight fist and at three months he is sucking his thumb vigorously.

— Abortion is usually free in England, Sweden, Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and China. In many other countries abortion costs are subsidized by the government.

— By eleven to twelve weeks the baby begins to breathe, fingernails are present and by sixteen weeks it has eyelashes.

— "No woman can call herself free who does not own and control her body. No woman can call herself free until she can choose consciously whether she will or will not be a mother"

—Margaret Sanger

— "Thou shalt not kill." — Exodus 20:13 made." Some women cannot afford to raise another child, some do not want to bear a child out of wedlock, and some do not want to interrupt their careers. Whatever the reason, having an abortion often triggers complex emotional conflicts.

This is true in the case of a Longwood student who had an abortion four years ago. Her experiences clearly reveal the inner conflict which this life altering decision causes.

"When they told me 'yes, you are pregnant' it all collapsed on me. I thought that it could never happen to me, and I was totally shocked. I didn't automatically turn to the abortion route, and I thought seriously of adoption or even keeping the child. I turned to friends, and my younger sister, and they all advised me to have an abortion. Up until that time I had been anti-abortion, and I didn't think I could go through having one. I really love children, and the idea of having the opportunity and not taking it really bothered me. Everyone abortion, you could get up and leave at any time. The whole counseling session took about four hours since it was very involved. They were concerned about your health and concerned whether you really wanted the abortion.

"The actual abortion took all of about three minutes. They used the suction method, and there was no real pain during the course of the abortion itself. I was weakened by the abortion and some cramping did occur. The coldest part of the whole ordeal was the actual abortion itself. They got it over quickly and moved me into a room with beds in it until I was unable to stand up and walk. When I got to my apartment I did feel a little depressed. The depression was because I had not really wanted to have an abortion, and I chose it as a last resort or what I thought was a last resort. I'm sure now looking back I could have thought of a thousand things I could have done instead. I do not regret the abortion because I think that

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES

Prince Edward Co. Health Dept.

392-8187

Longwood Clinic

1st Monday of Every Month

3-5 P.M.

S-UN Sponsors "American Folk Culture"

By DONNA HASKY

The present quickly becomes past—but when was the last time you saw the past become present? You'll have a good opportunity during the Student Union sponsored Special Events Week coming up September 22 through the 28th. This year's general theme is "American Folk Culture", and will provide a good opportunity to explore what life was once like.

To set the mood for the week of entertainment and education, the first day provides some of both in an outdoor setting. From 1 to 11 p.m., the Dell will be transformed into the past by various demonstrations and exhibits of folk crafts as well as country and bluegrass bands. Charlie Mason and Dale Roller, a favorite musical combination on campus, will begin the afternoon's musical entertainment, followed by The Royal Supremes, a gospel group, at 3:30 p.m. The evening concerts will feature Allen Ross at 7 p.m. and Doyle Lawson and Quicksilver at 8 p.m. A part of the musical entertainment planned for the day includes "pickin' sessions" led by various entertainers. Students interested in music are urged to bring their banjo or guitar and play during these workshops with the professionals.

From 1 to 4 p.m. tables of exhibits and demonstrations will be set up focusing on many of the crafts and skills which were once a way of life. After the picnic dinner, provided by ARA Slater, the local square dance club, The Southside Square Dancers, will perform.

On Sunday, fiddle player Mike Cross is scheduled for an outdoor concert in Lankford mall at 7 p.m.

A veteran performer at Longwood, Jon Ims will be appearing in the "Sound Gallery" on Thursday and Friday of this week. The location is the Red, White and Green rooms and the show will start at 8:30 p.m. Allen Ross, an entertainer for Special Events Week, will join Jon as a special guest for the Friday show. Longwood students are admitted free for both shows.

Monday night's program features John Henry Faulk speaking on the art of telling American folk tales and American Folklore. The following day, on Tuesday, he will also conduct an informal question and answer period in the Gold Room to discuss the various aspects of his career. Tuesday night at 8 p.m. will be the movie "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" in the Gold Room.

Musical workshops and demonstrations are the order of the day for Wednesday. Miss Elaine Silver will conduct a workshop at 3 p.m. in the Gold Room on the banjo and hammer dulcimer. That night at 8 p.m. she will present a lecture-demonstration, also in the Gold Room.

Thursday afternoon, from 1 to 4 p.m., there will be a showing of three films dealing with folk arts and crafts—"American Folk Art", "Folk Artists of the Blue Ridge" and "Under the Covers" in the White and Green Rooms.

To conclude the week's events, The Apple Chill Cloggers will demonstrate the art of clogging to bluegrass music. The time is 8 p.m. in the Red, White and Green Rooms.

With the combination of educational and entertaining events, hopefully Special Events Week will offer "something for everyone" who is interested in a gone but not forgotten past.

A Former Gotham Gal

Players First Production

By BARBARA BAKER and DR. DOUGLAS YOUNG

The first production of the season by the Longwood Players is a new, exciting play entitled, A Former Gotham Gal. The play, a comedy set in the present, will be performed September 26-29 in Jarman Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The play was written by Gloria Gonzalez, a successful new playwright, who is presently working on a pilot situation comedy for CBS-TV, and recently completed a full length film for ABC. Miss Gonzalez resides in West New York, New Jersey. A Former Gotham Gal won the 1978 Southeastern Theater Conference Playwriting Competition and is also being put on in full production at the new Playwright's Theater in Washington.

Gotham Gal is a play about an unusual woman named Geraldine who has gathered around her a strange menagerie of people in her household. There is Anthony Baker Ford, the famous deaf-mute TV critic; Cissy, the would-be actress who entertains at shopping centers dressed as a chicken or a bear; Sammy, the black detective, dedicated to her profession, his jogging, morning coffee, and his macho image; Papa, interested in pornography and poker, and a n'er-do-well from Geraldine's past; and finally, Daphne, a photographer who wanders in off the street with Geraldine's son, Rhett; and Marty, a little league coach who barkeeps on the side.

The principal character is Geraldine, and the activity of this wild collection of people centers around her. She has a rough exterior, but is a very tender individual on the inside. She has had many husbands and lovers and has led a rather wild and permissive life. At the same time, it has been an unlucky and heart-breaking life, a not very fulfilling life. Much of the action of the play centers around the return of an old boy-friend named Jack to her life. Jack's return proves to be as funny as it is disruptive, and in the end, is another great disappointment for Geraldine. However, Geraldine has one unique quality as a person and that is endurance. In spite of all her disappointment, she maintains her humorous perspective on life and continues to collect a menagerie of unusual individuals in her household even as others leave either in sadness or in the joy of finding a new life. Vicky Mann plays Geraldine. Other members of the cast are: Kerry McCarthy, Rusty Hurley, Diane Wright, Marshall Jones, Jack Tolbert, Chris Conner, Neil Sawyer, Tom Willis, and John Crosby.

Dr. Douglas Young, who is the director, is very pleased with the hard-working cast and crew, and has enjoyed working on this play. He says that A Former Gotham Gal is guaranteed to make you laugh.

The play is free with Longwood I.D. and $2.50 for general audience. Parental Discretion is advised.

Musical Diversity Incites Enthusiasm

By FRANK CREASY

What will three dollars buy these days? Normally, not much. But the Longwood students who paid three dollars to see last Tuesday's concert would probably say that they got their money's worth (and if your Economics professor had been there, he would have agreed).

The S-UN sponsored concert packed a one-two punch of Robbin Thompson and the Dixie Dregs, whose reputations preceded their appearance. The evening began as Robbin

Thompson and the No Slack Band displayed their ability to incite enthusiasm throughout an audience. Thompson and the band, always a Longwood favorite, began with an upbeat stylization of "Sweet Virginia Breeze". Other hits such as "Even Cowgirls Get the Blues" and "Highway 101" left Jarman auditorium ringing with applause and screams of praise. The No Slack Band has proven time and again why they are respected professionals. They come armed with close-knit and finely honed instrumentation which is tempered by outstanding vocals.

Despite Thompson's spectacular show, the undisputed showcase of the night was the Dixie Dregs. The Dregs are a quintet consisting of guitar, bass, drums, keyboards and electric violin. The biggest difference between the Dixie Dregs and most new groups is that the Dregs shun vocals to highlight the quality of the music itself, which is a blend of four major musical distinctions—rock, jazz, country and classical. Any attempt to enumerate the diversity of musical talents enamored by the Dixie Dregs would tend to be voluminous in detail. Their style is so new, so unique, that it may be years before their impact on the music world, is fully recognized or appreciated.

To realize the excitement the Dregs can generate would have required only a glance at the audience in Jarman. From the strains of their country-style song "The Bash", until the end of the concert, the audience was on its feet, applauding and cheering. Few groups to visit Jarman are capable of such a feat.

Was the concert really as good as all this? Ask someone who was there, as for myself, I got my three bucks' worth.

Job Hunters

(Continued from Page 4)

job over another?" with two reasons. Individual differences play a big part, but "chance favors the prepared mind." So, be prepared to present yourself, know your resume, and know enough about the school system to ask intelligent questions.

Henry Emerson, Assistant Superintendent of Personnel in the Charlotte County school system (a rural system), told the prospective teachers of the ways his system differed from the previous. For the most part the school systems all were the same; however, he stressed that in his system the placement file and references were most important. Therefore, one should have references written by people who could make a sound, professional judgement of one's work.

When asked if it is advisable for a student to work on a masters degree before or during teaching, all three speakers said that this is a good idea. While the school must give a higher salary to a teacher who has obtained a masters degree, they like to see the enthusiasm and such plans for the future.

In answer to a question concerning job openings in the next few years, the speakers agreed that mathematics, science, special education, speech pathology, and grades four through seven would be the most open areas. The least open areas will be physical education, history, and English.

Abortion

(Continued from Page 5)

already made up." People that are pro-abortion rally around their cry of "Abortion: A Woman's Right To Choose," while their opponents shout "Abortion: A Woman's Right To Kill." There are pros and cons to the abortion issue, but only the individual can decide whether it is right for her. The Supreme Court has made its decision—the decision to let people choose. The facts only serve to add further confusion to the issue.

Midnight Show
THE GRATEFUL DEAD
Sept. 21
Gold Rooms $1.00

Tues. FREE 8:30 Wed.
Snack Bar
American Folk Life FILMS
"It Ain't City Music"
"Life, Liberty and The Pursuit..."

For everyone there is a place; you just have to find it!

Berkis Makes A Splash

By MIKE O'HARE

Dr. Alexander Berkis, 63, a history teacher here at Longwood, "wasn't trying to break a record" when he swam across Tampa Bay on July 5, 1979; Dr. Berkis was striking a blow for "Grey Rights!"

Dr. Berkis, a native of Latvia, a Soviet republic, maintains that "medical conceptions of the human organism" are somewhat faulty. He does not believe that one's body "slows down" after reaching a certain age. To prove his point, Dr. Berkis swam from Apollo Beach to Conquina Key, which is a fifteen mile swim. Yet he accomplished the feat in twelve hours and 56 minutes.

Dr. Berkis had planned a 10 mile swim, but adverse weather conditions and shifting tides forced him to change his course and add several miles. Dr. Berkis admits that it was his "toughest" swim.

A year beforehand, Dr. Berkis made headlines when he swam 10 miles across Maryland's Chesapeake Bay in less than twelve hours, earning several Red Cross mileage certificates. He accomplished this by swimming from Rosenhaven on the western shore to Tilghman's Island on the eastern shore.

In May of 1978, he completed a 100 mile swim in Florida. Berkis has also swam off the New York Shore and the Gulf of Mexico.

As a teenager, he polished his swimming skills in the Baltic Sea. Today, the "part-time Floridian" reveals that he enjoys bicycling, skiing, and skating, but "swimming is my favorite physical exercise." Despite his advanced age, Dr. Berkis was recently advised by a heart specialist to "continue strenuous physical exercises." A nonsmoker and moderate drinker, Dr. Berkis plans to continue his demanding regimen.

"Good sleep and exercise go together," he observed. He also advises people of all ages to eat a well-balanced diet, which includes fruits, vegetables, and cod liver oil.

Though he considers it "risky," Dr. Berkis is thinking about swimming across the British Channel; one of his lifetime dreams.

Berkis uses an adapted sidestroke for his Chesapeake Bay swim.

Photo from The Washington Post

Miller Rejected

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Longwood College has rejected Miller Brewers' proposal to sponsor their first basketball tournament this fall. The Board of Visitors had given its approval of the sponsorship at its July meeting with a heated discussion and a final 5-4 vote.

According to President Henry I. Willett, Jr., he decided to reject Miller's offer after hearing much opposition to the fact. He stated that this subject aroused a lot of people and he received more correspondence on this than on a lot of other matters. The major objection to Miller sponsoring the tournament was that they were a brewery.

President Willett had told the board in July that he was, "Not sure in the long run that the harm would be that great. I wish it were other than a brewery."

The Miller proposal included the bearing of some $3,000 in expenses for the four teams competing. It also included conditions that the tournament name mention Miller Brewery on banners displayed in the gymnasium, and that a hospitality room be provided. Under their plan, the college would keep all gate receipts.

The college is in the process of trying to find another sponsor for the November 23-24 tournament. However, the tournament will be played with or without a sponsor. Funds will be obtained from the Longwood Foundation. The tournament will feature four teams: Longwood, Stony Brook (N. Y.), Bowie State (Md.), and Gallaudet (D. C.).

Tourney Sept. 21-23

Entries must be received by 5 p.m. on September 18 for the Barlow Mixed Doubles Tennis Classic, which will be held September 21-23.

Entry forms may be obtained from Tournament Director Phyllis Harris or in specially marked folders around campus.

The tournament is open to anyone connected with Longwood College and their families. Members of the same family cannot play as a team. The entry fee is $3.00 per team.

Trophies will be awarded for winners and runners-up in both championship and consolation brackets.

HOME SPORTS

Field Hockey

Sept. 18 LC vs Lynchburg 3 p.m.

Sept. 20 LC vs UVA 3 p.m.

Sept. 21-22 LC Invitational

TBA

Davis & Elkins

U. of Maryland

JMU

Appalachian State

U. of Louisville

UNC-Chapel Hill

Tennis

Sept. 18 LC vs Lynchburg 3 p.m.

Sept. 20 LC vs Averett 2 p.m.

Booters Improve But Fall Twice

By CHUCK COLE

Longwood's season opened up against the Averett Cougars under the lights of Iler field on September 14. The Lancers were soundly defeated by an Averett offense which bargained the Lancer goalie Roy Adkins with 48 shots on the night. Adkins played a strong game in the net, making 15 saves for the game.

Longwood was able to put its 18 game losing streak behind them when they fashioned a 2-1 victory over the Captains of Christopher-Newport College on Wednesday afternoon. The Lancers fell behind the leadership of Dave Yerkes and the spark Roy Adkins provided in the net for the Longwood victory.

Christopher-Newport tied the game toward the close of the first half as Joe Garone found Roy Adkins out of position in the Lancer net for the score.

A direct kick by David Yerkes spelled the doom for the Captains at the 12:45 mark of the second half. Yerkes punched the ball into the net for the score.

Longwood's Roy Adkins made 12 saves before leaving the game with a bruised shoulder. John (Killer) Faddis replaced Adkins in the goal and played the last four minutes without allowing a Captain's goal.

Longwood played Roanoke on Saturday, falling in overtime 2-1. The only Lancer goal was scored by Joe Parker.

"Animals From The Sea"

By LYNN SWANN

The H-2-O Club recently held tryouts and congratulations are due to the following girls: Kass Canada, Francis Vauloukis, Marcy Shepard, Bonnie Brightwell, Susan Harris, Melissa Sager, Beth Licari, Chris Tullington, Judy Luck, Denise Goodie, Laura Prazmark, Trish King, Barbara Roberts, and Lynn Horton. The entire H-2-O Club and our sponsor, Miss Nancy Andrews welcomes the new members.

The officers are: Susie Transue, President; Pam Mayo, Vice President; Deborah Harrison, Secretary; Elise McCarty, Treasurer; and Lynne Swann, Historian. The other returning H-2-O Club members are: Susan Anstey, Beverly Mazingo, Astrid Newman, Diane Wright and Suzanne Day.

This year the Oktoberfest theme is "Animals from the Sea." Several girls are choreographing routines depicting various sea animals. The H-2-O Club will be extra busy Oktoberfest week end.

In addition to the annual water show, the National Institute of Creative Aquatics Virginia State Conference will be held at Longwood Sunday, October 28. The H-2-O Club will also be represented at the Eastern Regional District Conference Saturday, November 3 at University of Richmond.

The H-2-O Club has a busy and exciting schedule for this fall, and we are looking forward to it.

Longwood posted a 686 to take third place in the Longwood Invitational. Marshall was first with a 659 and Penn State second shooting 668. Kay Smith led the Lancers with a 163 in the two day tournament.

Photo by Janet Clements

Currie Takes On SID Role

From Sports Information Office

W. Hoke Currie has been appointed Sports Information Director at Longwood College.

Currie, who reported to his new position on August 22, comes to Longwood from Ohio State University, where he recently completed a Master's program in physical education with an emphasis in sports administration and sports information. As a part of this program, Currie worked as a graduate assistant in the Ohio State Sports Information Office.

A native of Carthage, North Carolina, Currie received his B.A. degree in English from Presbyterian College.

Currie is formerly sports editor of the Monroe, North Carolina, Enquirer-Journal, where he worked from 1974-1978. He also worked for 2 years as sports editor, photographer, and news reporter for the Messenger & Intelligencer in Wadesboro, North Carolina.

As a journalist, Currie won first place in the 1979 North Carolina Press Association contest for a series of feature articles he wrote.

Currie succeeds Bette L. McKinney, who resigned as SID at Longwood to accept a position as Public Information Officer at Southside Virginia Community College.

As Sports Information Director at Longwood, Currie will be responsible for coordinating publicity for 13 intercollegiate athletic teams for men and women.

Alumnae Speaks For Runners

By MELODY CRAWLEY and PUBLIC RELATIONS

A 34-year old Longwood Alumnae, Barbara Allen has joined that all-American past time sport of running. She was one of forty-two runners who accepted the challenge of the Old Dominion 100-Mile Endurance Race in June. Ms. Allen was one of the twenty runners who completed the 100-Mile cross-country course, the second woman in the United States to complete this distance. She established an unofficial national women's record of 22 hours, 13 minutes and 29 seconds.

Ms. Allen will speak here September 20 at 7:30 in Jeffers Auditorium on how she got started running. She is sponsored by the Southside Runners Club.

Born and raised in Roanoke, Ms. Allen graduated from Longwood in 1966 with a B.S. degree in biology. While a student, she was a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority, Chi, the varsity archery team, president of the Athletic Association, and participated in intramural sports activities. After graduation, she went to work for A.H. Robins Pharmaceutical firm in Richmond. She is now a photographer, doing medical, industrial, and graphic arts photography for the firm.

Her running began as a hobby to stay in shape for skiing and racquet ball. Her first attempt at marathoning was in Richmond in 1978 where she won the Women's Division with a time of three hours, 15 minutes, 40 seconds. She placed 104 out of 500 women in the Boston Marathon with a time of 3:12:29. She was also a participant in the Longwood-Hampden-Sydney Minithon.

All interested persons are invited to hear Ms. Allen speak

WELCOME BACK LONGWOOD

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
Flowers For All Occasions
PHONE 392-4154

SKATE TOWN
392-5908
West of Farmville on Rt. 460
Located in the Randolph Tobacco Warehouse
HOURS Sunday 2-5, 7-10 Fri. & Sat.
Wed. & Thur. 7-10 7-10 & 10-12

WE HAVE RUF CUT LUMBER FOR YOUR LOFTS & BUNKS
FOR ALL YOUR BUILDING MATERIAL NEEDS
COME SEE US...

THE HAIR shaft

"HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU"
DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS:
Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed.-Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

COME JOIN US. . .

In bringing a new fraternity to Longwood.
We stress high academics, strong leadership, service and meaningful social life.
We're Alpha Sigma Phi — a fresh expression of an old idea.

ORGANIZATION MEETINGS
SEPTEMBER 18 AND 20
HONORS COUNCIL ROOM - LANKFORD
7:00 P.M.

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:
Mon.-Thur. 'Til 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. 'Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

SALAD BAR

Also, clubs, subs, and other sandwiches.

"THE BEST HOT DOGS IN TOWN"

— COKE SPRITE MR. PIBB
— 21 FLAVORS OF MONTICELLO DAIRY ICE CREAM
— SUNDAES, SODAS BANANA SPLITS

OPEN WEEK DAYS: 11-9
OPEN SUNDAYS: 1-9
CLOSED MONDAYS

A cordial welcome
and
BEST WISHES
to
LONGWOOD COLLEGE
STUDENTS, FACULTY
AND STAFF

from
CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

3 Blocks from campus
FARMVILLE, VA.
(Across from THE CATHOLIC CHURCH)
TEL: 392-3151

AND YOU HAVE YOUR OWN MICROGRAM FOR ANY
CUTTING A PERSONAL TOUCH IN YOUR GROOMING THE PERFECT CUT FOR ANY WELL DRESSED MAN OR WOMAN

MARTIN THE JEWELER
123 N. MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA.

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies
Portable Typewriter Repair
School Supplies

PINO'S PIZZA & SUBS

MONDAY CLOSED
TUES. WED. THURS. AND SUN.
11 AM TO 11 PM
FRI. AND SAT.
11 AM TO 12 MIDNIGHT

404 S. MAIN STREET
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-3135

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1979

NO 4

Oktoberfest Spirit Begins

Geist members tap clowns, meisters, and ushers.

Photo by Tony Mason

Press Conference Discusses:

Dining Hall Lacks Workers

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The lack of dining hall waiters and waitresses was the major concern of students attending the first Press Conference of the semester, September 18 at 12:45 in the Lower Dining Hall.

Gordon H. Inge of ARA Slater reported that they were working with Financial Aid to obtain more workers. Twenty-one new waiters and waitresses had been approved for Federal Work Study.

One waiter stated that he thought "the Administration is out of touch with what is going on in the dining hall." He said that workers were having to miss classes in order to serve in the dining hall.

Dean Mary Hientz called the problem one of an "economic question." The Federal Work-Study System is provided for those students who are most needy. Longwood's budget is set up to utilize federal funds for student workers.

Another dining hall grievance was about the food running out before dinner was over. Inge stated that this had happened three times at the dinner meal. "This is something that will happen," he said. He claimed the reason for this was miscalculation.

Inge stated that all students were asked to make their suggestions and complaints known to the Food Service Committee.

Registration also ranked high on the question list. Dean Carolyn Wells stated that groups are studying registration now to try to make it smoother by Fall, 1980. She added, however, "Registrations are never totally painless."

Dean Wells called the oversight of having Freshmen processed at the same time, a "deliberate mistake." This was due to the fact that there was no Summer Planning Session.

Dr. William Peale stated that the school has until June 5, 1980 to meet requirements set up by law in regards to the

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The carnival music and Geist klowns of Thursday night brought the first official signs that Oktoberfest is on its way. This was the scene for the tapping of the 1979 Oktoberfest court.

For those freshmen present who still did not fully understand the Oktoberfest spirit and for those upperclassmen who wanted to relive last year's festivals, a slide show was presented.

The Oktoberfest Klowns are an important part of the fall weekend. Tryouts were held, under the direction of Geist member, Cindy Morris. She introduced their sponsor, Ms. Rita Howe before announcing the 22 klowns. Chosen were — Janie Carson, Lisa Cromer, Lynn Cook, Valerie Narango, Jan Jennings, Robyn Young, Lorrie Garber, Lori McKensie, Lisa Swackhim, Kim Furbee, and Jo Jacobs.

Also, Ann McCanna, Kim Gilbert, Colleen Russell, Ann Demcy, Cindy Williams, Sharon Nicholson, Jean Remlein, Julie Jones, Stella Vick, and Kim Garber. Susie Powell is the alternate.

Ushers from each class were chosen for their spirit, loyalty, and activities. Freshman ushers are Doug Wood and Mindy McDonnell; Sophomores, Betsy DeLong and Sharon Harrup; Juniors, Nicole King and Terri Davis; and Seniors, Karen Shelton and Lynn Plagman.

The three most important Oktoberfest participants were (Continued on Page 7)

Bransome Named Vice President

FROM PUBLIC RELATIONS

James L. Bransome has been named vice president for finance at Longwood College, effective October 1.

As the college's chief fiscal officer, Bransome succeeds Jimmy H. Paul who will assume a new position as treasurer of the Longwood College Foundation, Inc.

Bransome's responsibilities at Longwood will include the preparation of biennial and annual operating budgets, as well as supervision of the college's business office and purchasing operations.

Bransome comes to Longwood from Bluefield State College in West Virginia where he has been director of admissions and registrar for the past three years. In this position, he was responsible for admissions, financial aid, and registrar operations for a four-year college with enrollment of some 2,700.

His experience in Virginia's system of higher education includes serving as director of financial services at J. Sargeant Reynolds Community College in Richmond, where he had overall responsibility for accounting, purchasing, business offices, computer operations, and federal grants for a multi-campus institution.

He has also been director of instruction at Wytheville Community College. In this position, he was involved in the statewide development of the master curriculum guide for the community college system and also originated and supervised the continuing education program at Wytheville.

From 1970 to 1975, Bransome was owner and manager of King and King Personnel Consultants, a franchised employment agency in Roanoke. He began his new business and developed it into the largest such agency in the Roanoke Valley. He sold the business in 1975 to return to higher education.

A native of Hillsville, Bransome holds the B.S. degree from VPI&SU and the M.A. from Wake Forest University. He is currently completing his dissertation for the Ed.D. degree in college administration from VPI&SU.

Bransome is married to the former Elizabeth DeHaven, and they have three children. His community activities in Bluefield have included active membership in Trinity United Methodist Church, where he taught the young adult Sunday School class and served on the administrative board and the church library board. He has also coached Little League baseball and basketball.

Federal Aid Available

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Any student interested in the work-study program at Longwood should pick up a financial aid form from the Financial Aid office. The college is in need of students to work under the Federal Work Study Program.

According to Marvin L. Ragland, Director of Financial Aid, if a student fills out the Financial Aid form, he can determine before mailing it to the College Scholarship Service if he/she is available for work-study. The student may start to work before the form comes back.

The main bearing on a student receiving work-study is the parents income and assets. Parents income may be up to $25,000 if the assets are not too high.

Inge explains dining hall procedures to students present at Press Conference.

Photo by Paula Johnson

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR. Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR. Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern
STAFF Sherry Carmony, David Gatts,
Thomas Cole, Chuck Cole, Steven
Whitton, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase,
Janel Clements, Nancy Hewins, Frank
Creasy, Lynn Swann, Nancy Willard,
Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hare, Donna
Haskay, Judi Stanley, Debbie
Cunningham, David Oakes, Doug
Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner,
Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon
Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Bennett.

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

Another Point Of View

So many things seem so new
I liked your smile the first time I saw you.
But I often wonder what you see when you look at me.
Do you see just my limp as I walk by, or can you take the time to look inside?
Can you see me as a potential friend?
Or just as a means to reach an end?
Do you see something unique in me or am I just another face on the way to your popularity?
I hope this poem wasn't wrong to write
But these questions filled my head tonight
It's hard being classified as a handicapped again, a broken ego is hard to mend
I know I don't have a face that would make you look twice.
But I do think you're awfully nice.

Joanna P. Vernon

Commentary

Shape Up, You're Missing Out
It has become apparent, perhaps because of the over-crowding or integration of class levels in the dormitories, that far too many students at Longwood College lack a basic goal of education—toleration.

Our nation was conceived for the essential purpose of religious toleration. With educated mind and empathetic heart, our American society learned toleration on all levels: race, religion, and sex. As an integral part of such a society, we, as college students, educated minds and leaders of tomorrow, need to take a second look at our impressions of one another and ourselves.

However trivial it may seem as you now skim over this article, realize that no one plays their stereo at the same volume as you, not everyone studies at the same time, no one dresses alike, and not everyone parties only on the week ends. In short, no one is just like you, nor does anyone care to be. How boring it would be if regulation succeeded in designing character. Quiet hour is not a military state of existence in the dormitories, but rather, a suggested time for concerned consideration for one's neighbors. This consideration should remain in our thoughts at all times.

College today is self-contained pressure. Job anxiety has brought us here and competition will force us to achieve. The interval between this time is where we stand now. This is the prime time for self realization. Therefore, we must realize that intolerance breeds prejudice and prejudice destroys achievement. We must all develop an earnest concern for our neighbors if we can expect a successful college experience.

Marsha Booth

Editor's Turn

It isn't often that lively debate can happen between Administration and students, but last Tuesday's Press Conference was one of those times.

Debate concerning the dining hall was a highlight. As waiters and waitresses expressed their concern over the long working hours due to the lack of student workers, fellow students applauded.

It is times like this that make the Administration take notice to student needs.

The monthly press conferences are designed for students to hear the views of the Administration. Students are encouraged to attend, let their opinions be heard, and hopefully resolve any problems they may have.

Attendance is often low and, more often than not, the same people are there. No one can really say they could not attend because of a class. Press conferences are held at a time when no classes are in progress.

Take an active part in campus life. Not just by being in a club or a sporting event, but by attending a press conference and letting your opinions be known.

PEJ

In the article on "Hiner — a Building For All Ages" the position of Miss Winnie V. (not Vee) Hiner was incorrectly described. She was a former Treasurer of Longwood, retiring in 1956.

The building was also named for Miss Mary Clay Hiner, a sister, who was professor of English at Longwood.

Your Turn

Schedule Conflicts

Dear Editor:

We are writing to express our dissatisfaction and frustration with the process for scheduling activities at Longwood College. The immediate cause of our discontent is a conflict which arose in scheduling Robert Short's program, The Gospel According to "Peanuts," which was sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council. This year the IRC wanted to have a special program in September to call attention to the importance of religious activities on campus. We thought the "Peanuts" program would be especially attractive.

We followed the procedures for scheduling such an event meticulously. The first step in the process is to submit a request to the Calendar Committee. This is done through the Dean of Students' Office, and must be turned in by mid-March. Ours was in two days before the deadline. The next step is to arrange a place. We had some difficulty with this: in trying to reserve two campus auditoriums (Wygal and Bedford) we were told that they could not be scheduled that far in advance — or at least if they were professors would have priority if they wanted to have a class there, so you could be "bumped." Finally, we reserved the Red, White, and Green Rooms at Lankford. A third step which is indirectly related but no less necessary is to submit a budget request to the Student Activity Fees Committee so that the program can be paid for. We submitted our budget according to procedure, but learned in mid-June that the Student Activity Fees Committee had been disbanded and our budget was arbitrarily set at $285 for the year (one-half payable each semester). Our obligation to Mr. Short was $200.00. We went ahead with our plans after being assured that an appeal would be in order at the beginning of school.

In August we printed and disseminated our initial publicity, including the date, time, and place. During the first week of school the college calendar was finally published, listing our program as the only major activity scheduled on Thursday, September 20. We continued our publicity efforts, including an article in the Rotunda. The same day that came out we received a call from the Lankford Building saying that our program had been moved from the Red, White and Green Rooms to the Gold Room. We discovered that the Gold Room could not be properly darkened for an audio-visual presentation at 7 p.m. However, we left that matter unresolved because of the next road block which appeared.

This final blow came by way of a phone call from the Geist advisor telling us that Oktoberfest Tapping in Jarman Auditorium was scheduled in direct conflict with our program. This was discovered by reading the Rotunda article. Geist was very accommodating and offered to try to move the time of their program in order to relieve the conflict. Unfortunately, this was not possible because of other conflicts in the use of Jarman. The Geist program was not published on the college calendar because they had turned in their calendar request after the deadline last March. However, they were still given their preferred date, with the IRC being the unwitting loser. The net result was that neither organization was aware of the potential conflict until ten days before the date. The Calendar Committee evidently did not notice the conflict, or if it did, did not consider it their responsibility to notify the organizations involved.

When we brought this conflict to the Dean of Students' attention we were told that we could not expect to have an exclusive date for our program. We realize that it is unrealistic for us or any campus organization to expect an exclusive date, and perhaps it is unrealistic for us to expect that other groups might avoid schedule conflicts even out of courtesy (though one might hope that would still happen on a campus this size), yet, when an organization is planning a major event which has campus-wide appeal and requires a sizeable financial commitment, it is totally self-defeating to schedule it directly against another activity with similar appeal. It would seem, in fact, that avoiding such conflicts is the whole purpose of a scheduling process. Why follow any guidelines at all unless they insure an orderly system of planning campus events and a means of communication among organizations? At the very least, smaller organizations need some system by which they can be aware of the scheduling of large, traditional campus-wide events and try to avoid conflicts by their own planning. We would certainly have had the sense not to have planned our program against Oktoberfest tapping had we known when it was.

In a nutshell, though the IRC followed scheduling procedures to the letter, we found ourselves one week before the program scheduled against a campus-wide activity which has a long tradition at the school, with a room different than the room we had reserved and not suited for our program, with a budget hanging on an appeal procedure, and with publicity money already

(Continued on Page 7)

Always, Forever... Preppie!

By SHARON JANOVICH

Top sider shoes, tasseled loafers, pure wool socks, no socks, baggy red, lime, yellow or khaki pants, button down blouses of pink, yellow or blue, tweed jackets, striped Oxfords, tennis or Izod hats, Izod shirts, Deans and Fair Isle sweaters, and monogrammed EVERYTHING! This list could carry on FOREVER, but before we may proceed, let us interrogate this list a bit further. Do these articles of clothing sound familiar to you? Perhaps you are, or are not, PREPPIE!!!

One might be forced to wonder where the mode of Preppie dressing originated from. The Atlantic Monthly observes this enigma as "a catch-all epithet to take the place of words used in previous years, such as: privileged, aristocrat and high society." However, in this day and age, where the average American strives to "get ahead," one does not necessarily have to be wealthy to be referred to as a "prep." The preppie style of dressing has caught on like wildfire, and whereas it was at one time a bit more unusual to observe this mode of dressing, it has found its way into our society, and seems to be here to stay. The Atlantic Monthly went on to proclaim that "In this society, preppies pass for an upper class," and although their preppiness is newly acclaimed, it gives one the feeling of getting ahead. These types of preps are called "self-made preps." Although they have not been preppie since infancy, they have adopted it as a way of life, and would acclaim themselves to be loyal preppies.

On the other hand, however, there is another category of preppiness, referred to as "hereditary preppiness," which speaks for itself. The hereditary prep will have a preppie parent or two, and will more than likely attend the same prep school that at least one parent attended. The Atlantic Monthly, however, reports that an immensely large average of children refuse to attend a school merely because of parental attendance these days. Instead, even hereditary preppies are exercising more freedom and independence. Thus, the self-made preppie, (contrary to former years) far outnumbers the hereditary prep.

One might wonder as to the whereabouts of the prep schools in the nation. The Atlantic Monthly reports that there are fifteen of them in the U.S.; Andover, Middlesex, St. Pauls, Lawrenceville, Groton, Kent, Exter, St. Mark, St. George, Taft, Brooks, Choate, Deerfield, Milton, and Hotchkiss. In order for a school to be referred to as a prep school, The Atlantic Monthly devised that it must (1) arrange for a certain economic diversity among students, (2) nurture traditions, (3) serve a gratuitous social purpose, (4) be relatively isolated from the world, and (5) foster unremitting competition. At a true prep school, the preppie comes from a preppie "background."

The first occasion that an alligator shirt was sold was in 1955. Unbelievably, it was sold for nine dollars, in contrast to the approximately twenty dollar price tag seen now. The designer of the alligator shirt, Rene LaCoste, was a french tennis player. After selling them to American businessmen, who manufactured and produced them in the states, they caught on and on and on and on... Recently, in a Richmond newspaper, one American businessman, Monte Cunningham, referred to Virginia as "alligator heaven!" meaning that Virginia just cannot buy enough of the alligator shorts to go with their wardrobes.

Perhaps YOU are one of these preppies here on campus or if nothing else, you KNOW a few preps! Whatever your opinion concerning preppiness may be, it is realized that the Alligator-Izod is here to stay, which may be seen ALL OVER campus. More so, you: the person who may, have said a short time ago, "I'll NEVER be a prep!", may see a change in your wardrobe. An alligator here, khakis there, a monogram, you say? Well, don't feel foolish, for the preppie mode of dressing for many is here to stay. For many, it is a first, but for others, it is a way of life. Hereditary or self-made preppie which one, if any, are you?

Don't think twice about it instead...Enjoy!

Series To Begin In October

By KIM CAVE

Beginning with the 1979-80 school session, Longwood College will have a brand new yearly lecture series. It will be in memory of one of the most prestigious and beloved teachers Longwood has ever had, Dr. Francis Butler Simkins.

Dr. Simkins, a native of Edgefield, South Carolina, came to Longwood as a history professor in 1934 after receiving his Ph.D. from Columbia University. His special interest was in Southern social, political, and religious history.

He published various textbooks on the high school level, some of which are still used today. Dr. Simkins' keen interest in his students and his work made him a favorite member of the faculty upon which he served until his death in 1966.

The first lecture in the Simkins Series will take place October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford. It will feature Dr. Helen F. McHugh, Professor in the Department of Consumer Sciences and Housing and Dean of the College of Home Economics at Colorado State University. Her lecture is entitled "Economy and Family: Challenge for the 80's."

Dr. McHugh is one of the most outstanding persons in the field of Home Economics today. She received her B.S. and M.S. at the University of Missouri and her Ph.D. from Iowa State University, where she also served as graduate assistant for two years. Dr. McHugh has served as a Home Economics professor at many universities such as Oregon State, Indiana State, and University of Texas. She was also Dean of the College of Home Economics at the University of Delaware before coming to assume her present position at Colorado State.

Dr. McHugh's credits continue in the writing field. She has published in many of the nation's top Home Economics journals, among them, "Journal of Consumer Affairs" and "Journal of Home Economics." Some of her professional affiliations include the American Economic Association, American Agricultural Economics Association, Association for Consumer Research, and National Council for Family Relations. She has also received the Citation of Merit from the University of Missouri Alumni Association and has been elected to the honorary fraternities, Sigma Xi and Gamma Sigma Delta.

The Simkins Lecture Series Committee has scheduled two more lectures for this year in April. They will feature speakers from the fields of History and Chemistry. In the future, the lectures will continue to rotate among the departments, hopefully attracting people who are the best in their respective fields. This is a fitting tribute to a man whose name is synonymous with excellence, Dr. Francis Butler Simkins.

Man And Wife: Problem Solvers

By DOUG STROBEL

Imagine for a moment marriage, area coordinator, and head resident. This may conjure up in one's mind images of love, college, and dormitories. This description precisely fits Elaine and T.C. Jones, who are area coordinator and head resident of Cox dormitory respectively.

However, one may ask, how does a working, married couple function at a college where their unwed peers are the predominant group? Quite simply, Elaine and T.C. will tell you. Their jobs have made them grow closer together.

For Elaine, the acquisition of the position of area coordinator for Tabb, French, and Frazer dormitories has been of immeasurable benefit in fulfilling her need to be part of college life at Longwood. She will readily tell anyone of her love for her work.

Elaine's job includes everything from being a listening ear for student problems to implementing administrative policies at the dorm level. Seeing Elaine walking in the halls of her dorms is an everyday occurrence. It is a pivotal part of her job that she acts as a link between the administration and the students. She will tell you that the bridge between students and staff is one that constantly needs working upon. Elaine wants to stress that she is there for the students with their concerns whenever they need her.

T.C. has held the position of head resident of Cox dormitory for the past two academic years. He will readily tell you that Cox dorm has improved 100 per cent over last year. Vandalism and false fire alarms have been radically cut down. T.C. feels that the male students in his dorm are more mature this year and feel a greater sense of responsibility towards the place in which they live. While being head resident, T.C. continues to work towards his degree in social work and has some hopes of one day becoming a counselor. T.C. admits he has enjoyed certain economic and scholastic benefits since becoming head resident. He now has a more regimented life which corresponds to a stable study environment.

One may now ask, do T.C. and Elaine feel any drawbacks in their situation. They will tell you only one. That problem is that since they have become "authority figures" they have lost some closeness to and with friends on campus before they took their positions. Too many people look on them only as staff which can carry negative connotations in the minds of some.

However, overall their marriage on campus and their jobs are a truly rewarding and beneficial experience in both their lives. They both strongly agree on one very important point, that if they did not enjoy the students they would not be where they are now.

Photo by Melody Crawley

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

WINTER JACKETS, VESTS AND SWEATERS

20% OFF
PANTY HOSE - BUY ONE
GET ONE FREE

Hockey Team Has Demanding Week

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

During a physically demanding week, the Lancer Hockey team opened their season against Lynchburg College last Tuesday. The varsity game ended a scoreless tie in what Coach Bette Harris terms a typical first game.

Dr. Harris felt Lynchburg played a strong support system. Longwood's problem lay in cutting for the ball, Dr. Harris said. In her opinion Wanda Petersen and Kim Garber played well defensively in the predominately defensive game.

The Lancer J.V. on the other hand, showed a united, powerful force blasting Lynchburg 8-0. Scoring were Jean Wakelyn with four, Joan Matson, Barb Backer, B.J. Casey and Mary King with one.

On Thursday, the Lady Lancers played a hard fought duel against University of Virginia, who were ranked fifth in a preseason poll. The LC varsity put in their first goals of the season in this game, but fell 4-2 to the Cavaliers. Betty Stanley and Julie Dayton each had a goal.

The second game resulted in a 0-0 tie, with both teams marching down the field threatening to score.

Coach Harris was "super elated" by both teams' play. She realizes that corrections are needed, but believes the Lancers played well against the more experienced team. Dr. Harris commended Julie Dayton and Teri Davis for their supportive roles. They each "gave 200 per cent", said Dr. Harris. The Coach looks forward for a chance to play UVA again, hopefully at tournaments.

Even though the second day of action in the Longwood Invitational was rained out this week end, six exciting games were held on Friday. Longwood won their first game over Appalachian State 2-1. Betty Stanley and Cherie Stevens scored the goals. LC had a harder time containing University of Maryland, falling by a goal, 2-1.

In the other games James Madison defeated University of North Carolina—Chapel Hill 1-0, Davis and Elkins won over Maryland 1-0, Appalachian tied with James Madison 0-0, and Davis and Elkins tied and University of North Carolina tied 1-1.

Today the team hosts University of Richmond at 3:30 p.m. on First Avenue Field.

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

IAA flag football is almost finished. These results will be in the next issue of The Rotunda. Activities for October include the track and field meet and bowling intramurals. Managers are needed for these sports. If anyone is interested in this job, please contact Miss Calloway in Tabb basement. These sports cannot be played unless there are managers.

Remember that if your team is competing for the all-Sports trophy that an individual from that team can compete in an individual sport and give those points to the team. The points are one point for participation, five points for first place, four points for second place and three points for third place.

The hours for the checkout room are as follows: Monday — 3:30-4:30, 6-8 p.m.; Tuesday — 3:30-5, 6-8 p.m.; Wednesday — 3:30-5, 6-8 p.m.; Thursday — 3:45-5:15 p.m.; Friday — 2:30-4 p.m.; and Sunday — 2-3:30 p.m.

This checkout room has several hundred dollars worth of equipment just for the use of Longwood students. Come and check out a frisbee, a football, or some other equipment and have a good time. The IAA is for the students.

Cindy Dropeski tries to halt a UVA player.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Baseball Swings Into Action

By FRANK CREASY

The Longwood baseball team has swung into action for the fall season, and the Lancers are looking for bigger and better things in 1979-1980. Already Coach Buddy Bolding's players have chalked up three victories against a single loss, which came at the hands of Division I rival University of Richmond.

The fall season is not an official NCAA season, but it serves an important function as a "proving ground" especially for new and inexperienced players. Five walk-ons and nine recruits grace the Lancer diamond this fall, complemented by nine returnees. Included among the veterans are starters Barry Gordon and John "Turk" Crosby, who lead the nation last Spring in stolen bases among all NCAA Division III schools.

Home games against such opponents as Liberty Baptist, VCU, and Virginia Tech should prime the team for a highly competitive spring season. Coming off a 16-12 record last spring, Coach Bolding is scheduling mostly Division I and II teams in order to improve the caliber of play here at Longwood.

"It will be tough for the next couple of years," Bolding stated, as the Lancers build their program without the benefit of scholarships, which most of their opponents have.

THAT ICE CREAM
PLACE, LTD.
142 N. MAIN STREET

SALAD BAR

Also clubs, subs and other sandwiches

• THE BEST HOT DOGS IN TOWN
• COKE SPRITE MR PIBB
• 21 FLAVORS OF MONTICELLO DAIRY ICE CREAM
• SUNDAYS SODAS BANANA SPLITS

OPEN WEEK DAYS: 11-9
OPEN SUNDAYS: 1-9
CLOSED MONDAYS

New Dancers And Officers

By SUSAN E. BRYANT

The Longwood Dance Company, an interesting and vital facet of student participation and entertainment, has just completed auditions for positions in the Company. Ten new members are to be congratulated upon their acceptance into the troupe, bringing the total number of dancers to 22. The unique facility of the Dance Company, under the excellent direction of Dr. Betty Bowman, has always provided Longwood with a wide variety of different performances ranging from traditional to the most modern and innovative choreography.

Several performances are scheduled for this year, the first of which will be the Oktoberfest presentation. A rather tentative plan that is under consideration is the "Work-Shop" week. This would entail alumni who have made dancing a career returning to Longwood to give professional help and advice. To those interested, the Dance Company does have try-outs every semester and there is no set limit to the number of members. The officers of the Company are as follows: President—Beth Cardin; Secretary and Treasurer—Teresa Heatwole; Special projects—Cindy Morris; Publicity—Terri Stuart and Grace Ann Rogers.

If you are interested in being a dancer, try-out. If you are just interested in dance as a spectator, be sure not to miss the excellent shows put on by the Longwood Dance Company.

A cordial welcome
and
BEST WISHES
to
LONGWOOD COLLEGE
STUDENTS, FACULTY
AND STAFF
from
CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP

WE HAVE RUF CUT LUMBER FOR YOUR LOFTS & BUNKS

FOR ALL YOUR BUILDING MATERIAL NEEDS
COME SEE US...

TAYLOR MFG. CO.

NORTH MAIN STREET

Across Appomattox River Bridge

THE HAIR shaft

HAIR STYLING FOR YOU

PERM & KNOTS

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

HAIR CUTTING & STYLING

CALL 392-5685

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

Portable Typewriter Repair

School Supplies

Netters Lynch Lynchburg Aggravate Averett

By STEVE WHITTEN

The Longwood netters chalked up two wins this week, defeating Lynchburg 7-2 and completely wiping out Averett 9-0.

Facing a tough Lynchburg team Tuesday, LC swept all the singles except the number one singles in which Nancy Leidenheimer in the third set defaulted because of cramps.

In doubles the Lancers won two of the three matches. The number one doubles were defaulted to Lynchburg giving them their only wins. Winning their singles were Doris Keys, Theresa McLawhorn, Christi Lewis, Stephanie Ibanez, and Jill Foster. The strong team of Lewis and Foster defeated their opponents in two sets, while Keys and Ibanez had to go on to win their third set after dropping the second one.

The netters on Thursday swept all the singles and doubles against a much improved Averett team. The only match to go into three sets was the number one singles. Leidenheimer won the first set 6-3, dropped the second set, 2-6, and won the third set convincingly 6-1. The only other close set was during the number one doubles with Leidenheimer and McLawhorn having to go into a tie breaker for the first set winning it 7-6 (5-2).

Longwood faces Mary Washington today, Southern Seminary Thursday, and James Madison on Saturday.

Individual scores vs.

Lynchburg
SINGLES:

Leidenheimer defaulted to Smith 7-5, 4-6, 4-4
Keys d. Franke 6-2, 6-2
McLawnhorn d. Mateer 6-1, 6-4
Lewis d. Ellett 6-2, 6-2
Ibanez d. Haile 7-5, 6-4
Foster d. Dobbin 6-0, 6-1

DOUBLES:

Smith - Schivo d. Leidenheimer - McLawnhorn (default)

Lewis - Foster d. Franke - Mateer

Keys - Ibanez d. Ellett - Haile

Individual Scores against

Averett

SINGLES:

Leidenheimer d. Cundiff 6-3, 2-6, 6-1

Keys d. Tueking 6-2, 6-0

Lewis d. Haymore 7-5, 6-4

Foster d. Hunter 6-0, 6-1

Ibanez d. Hamilton 6-2, 6-3

Diehl d. Hatch 6-2, 7-5

DOUBLES:

McLawnhorn - Leidenheimer d. Cundiff - Tueking 7-6 (5-2), 6-2

Lewis - Foster d. Haymore - Hunter 6-2, 6-1

Keys - Ibanez d. Hamilton - Hatch 7-5, 6-1

The 1979 volleyball team (l-r): 1st row: Cindy Thomas, Julie Petefish, Kathy Gunning, Sherry Will, Connie Murray, and Elaine Oley. Second row: Meg Cook, Madeline Moose, Robin Hungate, Fran Osmer, Cheryl Prigg, and Rhonda Woody.

SPORTS

Oktoberfest

(Continued from Page 1)

also tapped. Duke Rollins was tapped as Mittenmeister or "Midway Marshall" from the Sophomore Class. Rollins served as Freshman Class president last year. He is involved in various class and school activities. He has recently been named as Chairman of the Student Fees Committee.

Tapped as Festmeister from the Junior Class was Cheryl Wilcox. Miss Wilcox is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority and the Student Fees Committee. She is also a student counselor.

Heading the spirited weekend as Geistmeister will be Senior David Gates. Gates is advertising manager of The Rotunda. He has been very active throughout his four years here serving his freshman year as elf.

Oktoberfest weekend will begin on Tuesday, October 23, with the Freshman-Sophomore Paint Battle and continue until the big day of festivities on Saturday.

Schedule

(Continued from Page 4)

spent. We were left with the alternatives of leaving everything as it was and hoping we could draw a significant number of students away from Oktoberfest tapping, or of changing the time of our program and hoping that people would attend two activities in one evening.

At this point in our dilemma, the chaplain's office and Department of Religious Studies at Hampden-Sydney offered to have the program on their campus. They were so supportive and encouraging that we decided this was the best alternative. In 30 conflict-free minutes we had made arrangements for putting it on the college calendar, finding an excellent room for the presentation, and for assuming the financial obligation.

We realized and felt very badly that in making this decision many Longwood students would miss the opportunity of hearing Mr. Short. However, we were so angry and frustrated because of the red-tape and road blocks cited above we felt our decision was justified. If we felt we were the only victims of the scheduling process here we would have handled this matter privately, but we suspect — actually we are quite sure — that we are not the only group that has suffered from the process described above. We think there ought to be a better way, and we hope other groups will join us in bringing pressure and making suggestions for needed improvements.

Sincerely yours,
Virginia Riggs
President, Inter-Religious Council

John H. Emmert
Faculty Advisor

Sports At Home

SOCCER

Sept. 26 — Randolph-Macon — 3 p.m.
Sept. 29 — Greensboro — 1:30 p.m.

HOCKEY

Sept. 25 — University of Richmond — 3:30 p.m.
Sept. 27 — Mary Washington — 3 p.m.

VOLLEYBALL

Sept. 26 — Liberty Baptist — 3 p.m.

TENNIS

Sept. 25 — Mary Washington — 2 p.m.
Sept. 27 — Southern Seminary — 2 p.m.
Sept. 29 — James Madison — 1 p.m.

Campus Safety

(Continued from Page 3)

request. The field lights will be turned off at 11 p.m. Students are requested to please turn off lights after they have finished.

Students are reminded of the intercampus phone system. They are also reminded to secure all valuables, including bicycles school teachers, but the college level education market is becoming more crowded," Sedgewick said.

Sedgewick

(Continued from Page 3)

"I taught four previous years in secondary school and also taught for six years at Boston University while working on my Doctorate."

He went to say that teaching full time was much better because "When I taught at Boston University, I only taught two classes and did not get to know my students very thoroughly."

Sedgewick stated that he enjoys being here.

"The students here are very good people and are not cynical. They seem eager to learn, and I know I will be happy here."

Why a Diamond?

From Biblical times, the diamond has been linked with love and fidelity. Throughout the ages, it was considered one of the world's most precious substances. The ring mounting, being circular, denotes "love without end." With this tradition, naturally, your engagement diamond should be chosen carefully, and be of the finest quality within your budget. We will be happy to explain the "Four C's" of diamond value to you according to the standards of the American Gem Society—a select, professional organization of fine jewelers working in behalf of fine diamond customers like you.

AGS MEMBER AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

SUPPORT OUR LANCER TEAMS

Rah!

The Phoenix Takes Flight

ASΦ

Longwood College is changing and with change comes some fresh expression of old ideals. Good strong ideals that have made Longwood a leader among Virginia colleges.

We're Alpha Sigma Phi and we are proud to be a part of the changes happening at Longwood.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI A fresh expression of some old ideals... See Mark Winecoff, Cox 306, for more information.

THE GREAT ESCAPE.

You dream about it at night... the day you can close your books, get out of this place and forget about studying for awhile.

Well, the Great Escape is here... this weekend, with Greyhound. Escape to the country or go see some friends. Just decide which escape route you want and we'll do the rest.

We'll get you out of town and away from the books so you can clear your head. It doesn't cost much and it'll do you a world of good.

So make the Great Escape this weekend... with Greyhound.

To	One-Way	Round-Trip	Depart	Arrive
Richmond	5.80	11.05	4:15	5:55
Springfield	12.55	23.85	4:15	9:30
Norfolk	14.45	27.50	4:15	9:45
Charlottesville	16.20	19.40	1:55	4:55
Roanoke	8.50	16.95	1:55	4:35

CL SLAYTON West 380/51 392 5151

GO GREYHOUND

Some of our classrooms aren't classrooms.

An environment that challenges your physical and mental skills will be your classroom in Army ROTC.

River rafting. Rappelling. Orienteering. Cross country skiing. Water Survival. Mountaineering.

You'll find it to be an excellent course in leadership development, as well as adventure training.

Whatever the experience, Army ROTC will teach you to think on your feet. To make important decisions quickly.

Add Army ROTC to your college program and you automatically add a new dimension of excitement and adventure to your campus life.

 Army ROTC.
Learn what it takes to lead.

CALL: Major Walter Sullivan or SFC Tim Jordan at 399-9259 or stop by the Military Science Department.

Have A Nice Fall Break

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LIX

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1979

NO. 5

Gotham Gal Pure Entertainment

A Review by
ROBERT P. WEBBER
The Longwood Players opened their 1979-80 season with a spirited performance of a new comedy. The play, which won the prestigious Southeastern Theater Conference Playwriting Competition in 1977, is in the tradition of THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER and MAME. It is pure entertainment, with scarcely a serious thought to be found. The Players gave it a rambunctious production which nearly made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in polish.

The play revolves about Geraldine, a forty-ish, somewhat faded beauty who runs a boarding house. Her boarders include a deaf-mute television critic, a policeman Lothario, an actress who can only get animal roles in children's theater, a brutish stepfather, and a newspaper reporter son. Various other eccentrics come and go. Such roles are choice plums for character actors, and Jack Tolbert, as the deaf-mute, Diane Wright, as the son's naive girlfriend, Tom Willis, as an adult who still wants to play Little League baseball, and Kerry McCarthy, as the actress, realized their comic potentials. Rusty Hurley's stepfather looked like a cross between Richard Nixon and Steve Martin, and he got his share of laughs. Marshall Jones showed a nice sense of comic timing as the policeman, but his voice was inaudible to much of the audience. Doug Blevins, playing the son, was handicapped by some oafish friends in the audience who shouted, "Oh, Doug," whenever he came on stage. He acted much better than the audience deserved. John Crosby, Neil Sawyer, and particularly Chris Conner did well in supporting roles.

Geraldine was acted by Vicki Mann. Miss Mann has a fine voice, her gestures are flawless, and her timing is impeccable. She was able to curse naturally better than anyone else in the cast. That is not idle praise. Many actors innocently emphasize curse words in dialogue, and the sound harsh and offensive as a result. Done properly, stage cursing should sound like natural speech, and Miss Mann accomplished that. However, she simply looked twenty years too young for the part. That was partially her fault, for Geraldine's smooth cheeks and neck belied her age. A few wrinkles on the forehead do not make a person look old. Neither does a head of heavily sprayed grey hair, as Rusty Hurley, playing the stepfather, demonstrated.

design put plenty of light on the state, in welcome contrast to some recent dimly-lit Player productions. The costume crew must have worked overtime, because the actors seemed to change costumes between every scene. Props looked good, but someone forgot to give the policeman a gun to go with his uniform.

Director Douglas M. Young aimed for a frantic comic pace. Often he achieved it. For example, the beginning scene of Act II, when Geraldine's long lost boyfriend (played by Chris Conner) enters and encounters a parade of the eccentric boarders, was a gem. The pace was not consistent, however. The creaking Jarman chairs showed the audience's restlessness. There were times, particularly in the first act, when the characters needed more flamboyance. The play needed a scene stealer. Jack Tolbert came close with his whistle blowing and energetic pantomime. Any of the boarders, had they exaggerated their characters a little more, could have had the audience gasping with laughter.

The Longwood Players are to be congratulated for scheduling plays this season which have wide audience, as well as intellectual, appeal. A theater's purpose must be to entertain as well as to educate, and A Former Gotham Gal got the year at Jarman off to a good start.

Photo by Tony Mason

Discussion Brings A Closer Look

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Four major topics of discussion were brought up at the Student-Faculty Retreat October 23.

Suggestions were made and questions asked on the subjects of registration, freshman housing, intercollegiate athletics and costs and energy. About 100 students and faculty members participated in this event sponsored by the Student Government Association.

Registration comments urged a return to summer Academic Planning Sessions, and sending freshmen information packets on how to register. In general, several groups felt that advisors should be in Lankford during a certain period the day of registration, having an add-drop day before registration for those who might have pre-registered to change classes, and registration by year and alphabetically. Also there was a suggestion to extend freshman registration for more than a day.

Most participants felt that mens and womens sports should remain equal. There were mainly questions under the Intercollegiate Athletics topic. Requests were made for a breakdown of cost by sport listing the number and amount of scholarships, cost of transportation and equipment costs. Scholarships were another point of contention as both students and faculty were interested in learning how much aid is awarded at Longwood and where the funds come from.

There was a major concern over whether Longwood should stress certain sports and de-emphasize others. They felt the Intercollegiate Athletic Committee needed more student representation, particularly by non-athletes and to be more open.

It was determined that the students needed to become more aware of energy conservation. Turning off lights and water campaigns, articles in The Rotunda and turning heat down in dormitory rooms and academic buildings were suggested. A monthly competition between the dormitories may be initiated.

The consensus of the Retreat was to keep the tradition of freshman housing. Suggestions were made to determine how many freshmen are housed with upperclassmen, to take a campus poll on how students feel about mixing freshmen with upperclassmen, and to relocate dissatisfied freshmen with other freshmen as soon as possible. In addition to Freshman dorms, there may be freshman halls in the future. It was felt that sophomores faced with housing problems could better handle the pressure.

Also Mr. Tom Nanzig, Director of Housing, stated that he would like to not surprise people next year with a third roommate. He proposes to mark rooms in advance that would be considered triples if the need arose. In this way the people who signed up for these rooms would be aware of that fact.

A final concern was that of Judicial Board including narcotics under the Honor System. The Board is currently reviewing the problem.

Retreat ideas on this subject included creating two separate boards—an Honor Council to handle Honor Code offenses and a Judicial Board to handle narcotics, and a permanent group of drug investigators—either Administrative or Students. Most students and faculty members present were concerned with the safety of students enforcing this law.

After talking for several hours, the groups had dinner and met for a final review of the afternoon. In all, several good ideas were offered for the betterment of the school.

The set, designed by Patton Lockwood, was gorgeous. It looked as solid as a rock. Nothing trembled when a character ran up the stairs or slammed the door. Richard Gamble's lighting

Photo by Cheryl Wilcox

Wanda Peterson, Legislative Board Chairman, and Dr. John S. Peale are among the faculty and students at the Fall Retreat.

Pi Kappa Phi Receives Charter

By PAULA JOHNSON
On September 29, Pi Kappa Phi received their charter from the National headquarters. Keith Moore, achom for the Longwood chapter, accepted the charter from Richard Flora, the area governor for the fraternity chapters in Virginia. Flora also helped in the chartering.

Among those participating were President Henry I. Willett, Jr., J. David Crute, Sr., major of Farmville, Thomas Sayre, who is involved with Pi Kappa Phi's national project, Project PUSH, and Durwood Owen, who is the executive director of Pi Kappa Phi.

Mayor Crute in his address to the gathering stated there is a question of leadership in fraternities. He also stated that there are three basic needs that man is looking for—the need of companionship, the need to increase one's learning, and the need to serve.

"Life is a learning experience," he said. We begin in kindergarten or nursery school, developing the tools that make us a worthwhile member of society.

Mayor Crute emphasized also that fraternities can be a service club. By giving service to others one becomes a good citizen, dedicated to home, college, and the nation.

Thomas Sayre, an architect from North Carolina, was the next speaker. Sayre is involved with the National Project of all Pi Kappa Phi fraternities. This project known as Project PUSH (Play Units for the Severely Handicapped) deals with the dayroom problems of many state and private institutions for the retarded.

The dayrooms at these institutions are designed in such a way that the people "sit around doing nothing." Sayre also stated that they begin to "feed on themselves...feeling pain was better than feeling nothing." What Project PUSH is trying to do is to fill this vacuum.

At the end of the program, Pi Kappa Phi gave Sayre a $150 check to go toward the PUSH project.

Keith Moore receives the charter at Saturday night's ceremonies for Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity.

Photo by Paula Johnson

Management Study Underway

By MELODY CRAWLEY

A state operated team of "management specialists" have begun their study of college operations, according to Chairman Jim Mills of the State Department of Management Analysis and Systems Development. The team is a part of the Management Support Program provided to requesting state agencies by Governor John N. Dalton.

The team consists of representatives from five executive state agencies: Management Analysis and Systems Development, Personnel and Training, Planning and Budget, Accounting, and General Services (Engineering and Building). They will make final recommendations in November on ways to streamline operations and save money. Before that time, they will be examining college records and meeting with various groups of faculty and students.

Chairman Mills explains that this is an advisory and consultative team offered to state services in early July. Longwood is receiving the specialists at President Henry I. Willett, Jr.'s request.

After receiving the final recommendations, Longwood will break them into three categories, according to President Willett. Some will be accepted, some will be reacted, and the others will be studied further by college officials.

Student Counselors Named

By SHARON JANOVICH

"The purpose of this organization shall be to insure the general welfare of the student body, to promote the cultural, intellectual, and personal development of the students and to strengthen unity, loyalty, and understanding in all aspects of college life. This organization shall maintain self-government and encourage individual responsibility among the students of Longwood College"—(Section 2: Judicial Board Constitution).

The Judicial Board, along with Residence and Legislative Boards, work to promote harmony among the College community. In the event of dishonesty, cheating or other violations of the Honor Code, the individual is summoned to appear in front of the Judicial Board. In doing so, the charged person is greeted and consoled by a Student Counselor. The student counselors for 1979 are: 1) Tracey Hormuth 2) Tammy Bird 3) Christi Lewis 4) Sharon Janovich 5) Berkeley Harland 6) Brenda Carpenter 7) Vicki Mathewson 8) Cheryl Wilcox 9) Ceresa Haney 10) Tricia Whitehurst.

Student counselors are trained by Dr. John Peale (Legislative Board Advisor) and Teresa McLawhorn (Judicial Board Chairman). Their duties are to 1) Represent the best interest of the person charged. 2) To aid in personal help or assistance to the individual. 3) To represent the accused—not speak for them. 4) To understand and explain the procedures during the trials and appeals. 5) To be present at an appeals when it would best serve the individual charged.

The student assistants are selected to aid the charged individual, and allow him-her to have someone to consult during Judicial Board trials.

Joins New Department

By BARBARA BAKER

Over the summer, the Department of English and Philosophy became the Department of English, Philosophy and Foreign Language. The move has been a beneficial as well as economic one for Longwood.

Dr. Carolyn Wells, Dean of the College, said that over the past several years there has been a nationwide decline in the enrollment of foreign language students in colleges due to the emphasis on foreign language in high schools. At present, there are only four foreign language teachers at Longwood. Dr. Wells

(Continued on Page 8)

ATTENTION ALL CLUBS, ORGANIZATIONS, DEPARTMENTS, ETC.:

The Admissions Committee of the Student Alumni Association is preparing the 2nd annual Newsletter for perspective students. Here is your opportunity to get New Students interested in your area before they arrive next year. Let us know what you have done or will be doing this year, and we will let them know. Send your news and respective pictures (black & white) to Kathy Vannice and Maia LeMaster, c/o Admissions Office. For more information please contact us. Thank you for your help.

SENIORS...

A reminder...It is time to make your appointment at

ROBERT T. FORE, PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
Flowers For All Occasions
PHONE 392-4154

Election Applications Available

By PAULA JOHNSON

Elections Committee has announced that petitions for major-minor offices are now available outside the Information Office.

On the Legislative Board the Offices of Chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, corresponding secretary, and treasurer are open. Positions available on Residence Board are chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, and two campus-wide investigators. Judicial Board positions that are available are chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, and three investigators, one from the sophomore, junior, and senior class.

Other offices that are open are chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, and treasurer of Student Union. In IAA (Intramural Athletic Association) the offices of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer are available. The position of Fire Warden is also open.

All chairmen, vice-chairmen, president, and vice-president offices are major offices. All other positions—secretary, treasurer, and Fire Warden—are minor offices.

Qualifications for these offices are as follows:

Major officers shall be a rising senior (a second semester junior) with 75 hours. They must have and maintain during the term of office a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 with no exceptions to be made. He or she must also be on campus all during the term.

Vice-chairmen and vice-presidents have to be a rising

(Continued on Page 8)

Features Michael Johnson

Michael Johnson, the singer and guitarist noted for his 1978 recording success of the ballad, "Bluer Than Blue," will appear in Jarman Auditorium Wednesday night, October 3, at 8 p.m.

Johnson's music has the kind of diversity, depth, and sophistication that take years of wide-ranging experience to develop. One of his albums titled For All You Mad Musicians, shows a true representation of his soft, melodic jazz-folk approach, his classical-Flamenco influences, and his dexterity with harmonics and light percussive effects.

His approach to song interpretation has been described as more practiced than inspired.

Yet, his first single, "Bluer than Blue" is a powerful ballad which tries to reason away the pain of a once strong, now shattered relationship.

Some of Johnson's other hits include "Almost Like Being in Love," "Sailing Without a Sail" and "Dancing Tonight."

Also appearing in concert that night is an entertainer who returns to Longwood for his fourth consecutive year. Barry Drake has a unique talent, and a sensitivity and love for what he is doing. As gently as a wandering troubador, he sings convincingly of life, its ups and downs, the good and the bad — and in doing so, carries the listener on a musical journey. In a mellow style, Drake weaves an easy fantasy in a variety of songs from "Blues for Hobo Joe" to "Over the Rainbow."

Tickets are on sale in the Student Union office. The price is $2.50 for Longwood students and $4 for General Admission.

King Presents Film

By CHRIS VOGEL

The Student Union Lecture Series will present "Song of the Northern Prairie," an Audubon Wildlife Film, personally presented by Allen J. King, tonight at 8 p.m. in the Red-White rooms.

"The vast northern prairie spreads for many miles across North Central United States and South Central Canada." Here King captures on film the many forms of wildlife found in the prairie and their significance to this environment. The film will also show how man and nature, both biological and physical, has manipulated the land.

Allen King got started in wildlife photography at an AWF program at Jackson Community College in Michigan. He became an active member in his local Audubon Society, where he met wildlife cinematographers Walter and Myrna Berlet, who encouraged him to become a wildlife photographer. When not filming or lecturing, King continues his studies in Wildlife Biology at Michigan State University.

The film-lecture is free for faculty and students with I.D. cards. General Admission is $1.00. Tickets are available in the Student Union office.

Faulk Speaks On Folklore

By PAULA JOHNSON

John Henry Faulk, noted folklorist and star of the Hee Haw television series, was on campus last week for American Folk Culture Week. While here, Faulk participated in Longwood's SRO radio show, gave a speech on Monday, and a press conference.

Faulk stated that he became interested in folklore while in College whereas his interests in Negro folk culture began as a child. "It had created a profound effect on our culture and we didn't recognize it," he said.

Faulk did his Masters thesis on "Ten Negro Sermons." "People would laugh at you when they found out you were interested in it," stated Faulk. His research attracted much attention and he became an authority on the subject. "The key to the study of the black American was the study of his folk culture."

When asked how storytelling evolved, Faulk replied, "It's cultivated. The custom of storytelling was a means of transmitting to the younger how life used to be." Faulk went on to say that storytelling was weaved throughout talk. Many times the storyteller will forget what the subject was, the story, or the original point. Often this is associated with rambling, but Faulk prefers to think of it as "free association."

Faulk also stated that gag writing is not the same as storytelling. Gag writing developed during the McCarthy era. "We became frightened of ourselves; we quit laughing at ourselves," he said. Faulk went on to say that he have not recovered from it.

Faulk was honored by Chi when a banner while he was here.

Photo by Paula Johnson

Silver Gives Dulcimer Workshop

By THOM HANDS

Last Wednesday in the Gold Room, Elaine Silver, accomplished entertainer, performed for Longwood students. At 3 p.m., she gave a workshop for all interested students, and at 8 p.m., she gave a concert of traditional songs from Ireland, England, and the United States.

During her workshop, Ms. Silver familiarized students with the Dulcimer. The dulcimer is a traditional American Folk instrument that originated in the Southern Appalachian Mountains. Ms. Silver allowed curious students to strum her handmade instrument.

The evening performance included tunes played on her guitar and banjo as well as her dulcimer. The small, but enthusiastic, audience was entranced by her talented collaboration of voice and instruments.

Ms. Silver has been performing for the past eight years. She lives in Montville, New Jersey, where she was most musically influenced by her friends, especially Judy Collins. She spends much of her time performing at colleges such as Longwood, playing Blues, Jazz, and Swing tunes.

The dulcimer was introduced to her at a 1972 Folk Festival in Philadelphia. Joni Mitchell's use of the dulcimer also prompted Ms. Silver to obtain one and teach herself to play.

McKAY'S

111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia

MEN'S
SWEATERS — VELOUR SHIRTS
WINTER JACKETS & VESTS

LADIES'
DRESSES — COORDINATES — BLOUSES

REMEMBER ALL MERCHANDISE

20% OFF

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM
CLOSED WEDNESDAY MORNING

When you know
it's for keeps...

SANTA ROSA

There's no finer way to show your love, than with a Keepsake diamond engagement ring.

Keepsake center diamonds are guaranteed in writing, forever, for precise cut, perfect clarity and fine white color.

Choose your Keepsake ring from our exquisite collection.

Keepsake

Registered Diamond Rings
What a perfect way to show your love.

Martin

THE JEWELER

FARMVILLE, VA.
Trade-Mark Reg.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern
STAFF Sherry Carmony, David Gatts,
Thomas Cole, Chuck Cole, Steven
Whiffen, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase,
Janet Clements, Nancy Hewins, Frank
Creasy, Lynn Swann, Nancy Willard,
Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hara, Donna
Haskley, Judi Stanley, Debbie
Cunningham, David Oakes, Doug
Strobel, Mark W. Sloan, Robert Skinner,
Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon
Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Bennett

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

1st Good, Yah!

Dear Student Body,
Longwood's 52nd annual Oktoberfest der Geist week end is coming up at the end of this month, and everyone is working hard to make this year's celebration the best ever.

The week end is a celebration of the unifying of the spirit which makes up Longwood College. We must draw from the resources among us. To unify is to join together; it takes people, and a celebration takes energy and motivation. We need energy, motivation, and involvement and bold print from everyone. Both color classes will be well represented and organizations have booths on the midway.

There is more than enough room for the entire student body to participate.

If you haven't found a way to get involved in this year's Oktoberfest, and are truly interested, just take a look around you. Reach out for the opportunities that are there.

Read notices in the daily bulletin and in the dining hall concerning meetings. Once you find your opportunities, join in, a willing worker or helper is never turned away.

There is a place for each of you in this year's Oktoberfest celebration. We invite you, and hope to see you; share
Oktoberfest 1979 with us!

Blue-n-White Love,
Dave Gates, Geistmeister
Cheryl Wilcox, Festmeister
Duke Rollins, Mittenmeister

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

A LIGHT-HEARTED JEST AT LONGWOOD LIFE

CHORUS:

Bumpy Roads, take me home, to the place I belong —
Farmville, Virginia, Mamma Akers, take me home, Bumpy Roads!

1. Almost Heaven, Farmville, Virginia, Longwood College,
Appomattox River. Life is old there, older than Dean
Heintz; younger than Miss Swann, growing like an oak.
2. All my memories gather 'round her, stoned lady,
No stranger to blue babies, light and proud,
Painted up by CHI, misty taste of moonshine,
Residence board is high.
3. I hear a voice in the morning hours it calls me,
The stereo reminds me of the dorm nextdoor,
And drivin' down Main Street I get a feelin'
That I should have stayed home yesterday, yesterday!

This song is sung to the tune of Country Roads by John Denver.

Article Questioned

Dear Editors:

Any newspaper, if it is to serve its function, must be objective, unbiased and most of all completely honest with all parties concerned. To recognize the value of newspapers as important instruments in molding public opinion, all one has to do is to go back to the recent Watergate era. We can all easily conclude and be thankful that there truly is no substitute for good and honest reporting.
Consequently, I take issue with and find particularly offensive and deplorable your headline of September 18, 1979 "Special Jury Clears Longwood", the follow-up story and your editorial on page 4 of the same paper. Your apparent willingness to sweep the whole matter under the rug as just another unimportant and casual event is frightening to me and should be a mystery to all who have read the Special Grand Jury's Second Interim Report. I feel that the record must be set straight for those students, faculty, and administrators who may have doubts regarding this Report.

The Special Grand Jury Report
did not completely clear Longwood College. It only cleared Longwood from criminal negligence and criminal wrongdoing and nothing else. The following quotes from the Special
Grand Jury's Second Interim
Report prove my point:

1) The relationship between Longwood College, Media
Directions, Inc. and Stein Printing, Inc. was used to highlight certain of the inadequacies found throughout the State's educational institutions (p. 1).

2) Longwood was accused of being an equally obnoxious example of using restrictive specifications involving the printing specifications submitted by College officials in the summer of 1976 (p. 2). "The printing specifications Longwood College submitted to the Department of Purchases and Supply were drafted by Media
Directions, Inc., (Media) an advertising firm, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Stein Printing Company (Stein)" (p. 3).
According to the Report, "even if no corruption was found, as in the case of Longwood, the potential for waste of tax payers' money is appalling, and this at a time when professional educators are seeking more money" (p. 3).

3) "Media prepared the brochure and a set of specifications to be used to bid the printing" (p. 4). The printing contract was awarded to Stein Printing Company. "Stein was the vendor recommended for the job by Longwood College" (p. 4).

4) "There was no written contract between Media and Longwood. The terms of the contract between Media and Longwood were contained in the two Media letters referred to earlier (in the Report).
Longwood did not have the right to review the invoices of expenditures made by Media on the College's behalf (p. 5). This, as any student in contract law knows, could open Pandora's
box.

5) "More to the point, all of these facts were known to the officials of the College, and yet they did nothing to insure that Media was not subsidizing Stein's printing. This failure was compounded by permitting Media to develop printing specifications. No procedure existed for insuring that the specifications were fair" (p. 5).

6) Even as late as 1976
"Longwood entered into a much more extensive contract with Media. Once again there was no written contract between the College and Media. Most important, however, is the fact that the procedure used to accomplish this procurement diffused responsibility among a wide circle of people. No one was responsible for the performance of the contract" (pp. 5-6). This goes back to the adage that everyone was responsible so no one was.

7) "In August, 1976, Media forwarded the specifications for 10 of the proposed publications to the College. The College, after cursory review, forwarded these to the Department of Purchases and Supply who incorporated them into an invitation to bid.
These specifications are misleading" (p. 6).

8) "The procedure followed by Longwood in preparing these specifications prevented fair specifications from being written" (p. 7).

(Continued on Page 8)

Editor's Turn

Sometimes it becomes necessary for a newspaper (mainly the editors) to explain their practices to the readers of their paper. Especially, if the readers feel that the newspaper is involved in some kind of "cover-up" scandal.

We in no way meant to "cover-up" anything concerning Longwood's appearance before the special Richmond grand jury. The jury investigation took place during the summer months when The Rotunda was not in publication.
However, President Willett was contacted by the newspaper in July and at that time was not available for an interview. He replied to The Rotunda in a letter that he would, "sit down and go through this with you in more detail," which he did after the semester began.

The article in the September 18th edition, "Special Jury Clears Longwood," had several purposes. It was written to inform the students that there had been a jury investigation of Longwood and other state agencies, that they had been possible "unwilling parties to a bidding fraud," and that they had been "cleared" of any "illegal activity." Or, as stated in the lead sentence of the article, the "jury found insufficient evidence in July to recommend criminal prosecution of Longwood officials." All of these were stated in the article.

We do not find the headline "deplorable" on our part — in the fact that Longwood was "cleared" of illegal activity. The jury did find and used Longwood "to highlight certain of the inadequacies found throughout the state's educational institutions." They also found that good procedures were not followed and suggested that the procedures be changed.

The editorial in that same issue had intended purpose, too. It was supposed to untie any connections with the management study and the jury investigation.
President Willett had made that fact very clear to The Rotunda and the fact was confirmed by the chairman of the team, Jim Mills, last week. The management team will make their recommendations in November. The other point intended by the editorial was whether or not Longwood would continue operations with Media Directions, the firm in question.

The Rotunda is not willing "to sweep the whole matter under the rug as just another unimportant and casual event." If that were true, the story would have never been printed on September 18.

Let us also say that the world is not "flat and square and free of prejudice."
If that were true we would have fallen off the world years ago. Instead, we must hope that since the state has set up certain guidelines or procedures for state purchasing which were not in existence before the jury that Longwood's
"shoddy" procedures will be improved.

MCC

Miss Clay Active On Campus

By SHARON JANOVICH

Longwood students have grown accustomed to seeing Alice Clay's friendly smile all over campus, therefore, it is necessary to recognize Alice's involvement in campus activities, as well as her academic achievements. Alice is majoring in Elementary Education, and English, certifying in Math. Upon graduation in May 1980, she will begin her career by teaching elementary education, while working on her Master's in English.

Alice is involved in numerous extracurricular activities. She is the Geist secretary, senior advisor of Alpha Lambda Delta, Historian of Kappa Delta Pi (education honorary), Tafara music director and guitar player, orientation leader, resident assistant, Phi Kappa Phi (national Honor Society) and secretary of Zeta Tau Alpha Social Sorority.

"Sometimes my being so involved with college activities makes me sacrifice extra moments which I should put into studying, into an extracurricular activity. However, although I may not do quite as well on a test or paper, I am learning just as much by assuming responsibilities and working with all sorts of people. I am so excited about Oktoberfest! I'll be the chairman of ticket selling, and will be running the information booth, and am looking so forward to it! I am particularly happy about the Juniors and Seniors who showed up for skits. I have several friends who have never been involved before, but are participating in skits this year, and are just as enthusiastic as the freshmen! I think it's great, and I know Oktoberfest will be a huge success.

I feel that if there was one thing I could change or improve on our campus, it would be our Student Union. They do an excellent job, but their lack of funds does not allow them to do what they could do to get everyone participating. I'd like this to be a college where other college students came for the weekend, instead of us always leaving to visit other colleges for the weekend!

"The thing I have loved most about Longwood is the warmth of the atmosphere and the willingness of professors to bend over backwards to help their students. I know that I've had many professors do that for me, and they are terrific. I am looking forward to teaching elementary grades and I hope to get married in the near future. I look forward to raising a family and being a successful teacher."

Longwood wishes the best of luck to senior Alice Clay, who through much hard work and dedication, should make a fine teacher.

Oktoberfest Is Coming

Clowns, Skits, Booths, Meisters, Ushers Concerts . . . these are just a few of the spirited Oktoberfest groups that will make this year's "Oktoberfest der Geist" weekend the best weekend ever. The fifty-second annual celebration will be held October 26, 27, and 28, and is run by Geist.

This year's Geist officers are: President — Cindy Morris, in charge of the clowns; Vice President — Teresa Ware, in charge of Midway and the paint battles; Secretary — Alice Clay, in charge of the information booth and ticket sales. Other Geist members will manage certain aspects of Oktoberfest: Charlie Mason, Red and Green advisor; Donna Hasky, in charge of food preparation; Cindy Cummins, in charge of Publicity; Jan Bates, in charge of ushers and meisters. Debbie Northern is the overall Oktoberfest Chairman.

"We began preparing last spring," said Debbie Northern. She went on to say, "We started ordering posters, T-shirts, balloons and everything. We even got the Clowns of America to be present during Oktoberfest for face painting! Midway this year is really big! We have so many people wanting booths, that in order to accommodate everyone, we had to set up tables. This year on Midway we'll have a Mime Group and all of the usual booths, along with the Dunking booth. The Ushers and Meisters are moving right along and everything is progressing as we planned. I only wish that more people would get involved."

The action begins Tuesday night at 6:30 when the sophomores and freshmen engage in the messy (but fun) challenge of Paint Battle. The red and green paint will be flying on Wheeler Mall, then.

The Reds and Greens vie in other ways in the competition for the Oktoberfest cup. Skits, class booths and color rush all add points to their tally.

Skits will be presented Friday and Saturday nights. Tickets will go on sale after Fall break. All seats are reserved. Committees have already written scripts, and chosen the cast for the two plays. Set construction, costume making, and rehearsals will begin soon.

Saturday will bring the Midway, H2O shows, one-act plays, and the "Pops Concert." According to Dr. Louard E. Egbert, chairman of the Music department, the college's newly formed Jazz Ensemble will join the Concert Choir at 1 p.m. for the annual "Pops Concert."

Midway will open at 2 p.m. with games, food and souvenirs for sale from approximately 50 different campus organizations: The booths will sell a variety of things from pretzels and root beer to mugs, sun visors, and T-shirts.

This year there will be something new sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council. The IRC will have a door decorating contest. All contestants must have their room or suite doors decorated in a German or Oktoberfest theme by Tuesday, October 23. Prizes will be two tickets to skits Saturday night, plus more surprises awarded that night.

Also, a spirit board will be up all day Saturday for the Greens and Reds to paint with spirited thoughts!

Following the skits Saturday night, there will be an alumni CHI Walk and cake cutting.

This year's Oktoberfest is shaping up and progressing as expected. "I'm looking forward to 100 per cent participation in Oktoberfest this year. It will be terrific, and I can't wait for it," said Debbie Northern.

Foster Parents Needed

Therapeutic foster care for disturbed teenagers will soon be available in this area. The Crossroads Mental Health Services in Farmville are recruiting foster parents to provide help and support to teens facing crises. The search for responsive homes for teens is centered in the seven county area which includes Buckingham, Cumberland, Charlotte, Prince Edward, Lunenburg, Amelia, and Northway counties.

Training for Foster Parents, selected for this new program will be provided by a mental health professional team.

Following twenty hours of training, foster parents will be paid to be part of the program while providing supportive care for an adolescent. The professional team will provide continuing help and advice to the foster parents.

Foster parents will receive an income as well as child support funds. They will be provided with opportunities to increase their skills and income as they acquire experience.

Judith Halpern, Therapeutic Foster Care Coordinator, is recruiting foster parents who have demonstrated an interest in, and concern for teens. She is looking for people who have had experience in leading teen groups or teaching. Experience with teen groups such as 4H, Scouts, Church work, Big Brothers, or other similar teen activities will be helpful.

Area homemakers will now have an opportunity to improve their skills and earn money, while, at the same time offering a needed service to the community and to a specific young person.

Those who are interested and want more information may call Mrs. Halpern at Farmville's Crossroads Mental Health Center, 392-3187, collect.

Soon we will begin to see the soft beauty and glorious wonder of the colorful coming of fall. The change in the season: the subtle growth; a unique energy is found and strength is built even as it seems to be lost and fallen.

Photo by Melinda Crawford

French Building Versatile

By MARY GRANT

The French Building serves a variety of purposes to Longwood students by providing housing, a gymnasium, a swimming pool and classrooms.

The building was originally known as The Student Building. It was constructed under the presidency of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman. Plans were begun in 1911 and construction was completed in 1924. It was one of the most popular projects ever initiated on campus, with $100,000 of the $150,000 needed, raised by students, faculty and friends.

Aside from being a gathering place for students, the Student Building contained the student government rooms, sorority chapter rooms, a prayer room and a small auditorium.

The building was dedicated in March of 1969 to Raymond H. French, a chemistry professor. French came to Longwood in 1929 and was an active participant in college activities during his 35 year tenure. He was concerned with the welfare of students and was the initiator of fire drills at Longwood College.

Tafara Chosen

By BETH PARROTT

Tafara, the Baptist Student Union folk team, is anxiously awaiting the beginning of a new year. Tryouts were held last week and now they are getting all tuned-up for a successful year.

Pam Wagner, president, is very enthusiastic about this year's group. Returning members are Pam Wagner, Kim Duncan, Jan Jennings, Jane Edmunds and Suzanne Bryant.

New members were chosen in try outs recently. They include Steve Janasko, Chris Vontsalos, Elaine Lassiter, Carol Atkins, and Kathy Buck.

The Tafara group travels to Virginia Churches representing Longwood College and the Baptist Student Union.

American Evening

By CECILIA WHITE

The Camerata Singers are sponsoring "An Evening of American Music" tonight to raise money for the Emily Clark Scholarship Fund. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Featured will be members of the college's music faculty including Ms. Freida Meyers and Paul Hesselink, piano, Thomas Williams, baritone and Dr. Robert Blasch, piano. Student Music majors will also be featured in selection of American music spanning the years from Stephen Foster to John Denver. This will include such composers as Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith, and Richard Rogers.

Featured highlights will include "The Boogie Woogie Gals", "Westside Story Medley", and the Camerata Singers. Both instrumental and vocal music will be performed.

The program will be held in the Wygal Music Building. The cost of the event will be three dollars per person. Tickets may be purchased in the Public Affairs office.

Thomas And Lewis

Outstanding Athletes Named

By CHUCK COLE

A setter is as important to a volleyball team as a quarterback is to a football team. Both are responsible for coordinating the offense and calling the plays, and must display characteristics of leadership and hustle in order to lead their team to victory.

Lady Lancer Volleyball player Cindy Thomas (Buchanan) displayed these virtues in keying Longwood's 15-3, 15-9, 15-7 victory over Randolph-Macon Women's College last week in the debut of the 1979 Lancer team. For her efforts, Thomas has been named Longwood Player of the Week.

Longwood coach Carolyn Callaway felt Thomas' play was outstanding in the win over RMWC.

"Though this is Cindy's first year as setter, she was a key to our win," said the coach. "She held the team together in calling the plays and in setting up balls for our hitters to put away. In general, she was the best player on the floor."

No stranger to the leadership role, Thomas served as captain of her volleyball, basketball and track teams at James River High School in Buchanan. Judging by the number of sports she has participated in, Cindy is a tremendously versatile athlete.

Named All-District basketball in 1974 and 1975, Thomas was selected "Most Athletic" among the members of her graduating class at James River. She has played two seasons for the Lady Lancer basketball team, in addition to playing volleyball four years.

Thomas also finds time for the academic side of college life. A Health and Physical Education major, Cindy hopes to continue her career in the area of athletic training. She was a member of the National Honor Society in high school, named in Who's Who Among American High School Students, and received a Future Teacher's of America scholarship.

Cindy, known to her team mates as CT, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis G. Ransone of Buchanan.

Sophomore tennis player Christi Lewis has been named Longwood's Player of the Week for her contribution and unblemished record in the Lancer victories against Lynchburg, Averett, and Southern Seminary.

Lancer tennis coach Phyllis Harris had high praise for Lewis.

"Christi played exceptionally well against Southern Seminary," said Harris. "She kept her composure and really played up to her capabilities. She used her head as well as her tennis ability."

"I feel Christi has definitely improved over the past two weeks," the coach continued. "She has great desire to improve her game, and it shows in how hard she works in practice."

Lewis is no stranger to practice and hard work. While attending Gloucester High School, she played both tennis and field hockey. She has also seen action for the Lancer field hockey team.

Hard work has paid off for Christi Lewis. Her senior year in high school brought many awards and championships to the Lewis home in Gloucester Point, VA. Among these awards were the District Singles and Doubles Championships, Most Valuable Player award of the Gloucester High tennis team, and senior class, Best All-Around Athlete (Continued on Page 8)

CHRISTI LEWIS

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

The IAA has recently acquired a new officer, sophomore Chris Ruppel, who was installed as Vice President on September 20. The IAA is really happy with this new officer and extends a big welcome to her.

Intramural flag football results will be in the next issue of The Rotunda. Several games were rained out last week and they had to move up on the schedule.

Coming up in the month of October is Track and Field. This is scheduled for October 31. Due to colder weather, this date is subject to change. Read the IAA bulletin board and the Daily Bulletin for word on the correct date.

An idea that the IAA is working on is the possibility of sponsoring a runner's club for Longwood students. If anyone is interested in this idea, please let the IAA know your response through letters or verbal means at the October 18 meeting.

Any person who is interested in managing IAA bowling, please let Ms. Callaway or Chris Ruppel know. Bowling begins November 5. Any help with managing an IAA sport is appreciated. The IAA needs your support.

Christi Lewis gets under the ball. Photo by Jackie Steer Riders Take Ribbons

By KATHY CHASE

The first Intercollegiate Horse Show was held September 27 at Averett College in Danville. Longwood had nine riders representing the college. Among the other colleges attending were Hollins, Mary Baldwin, Lynchburg, Randolph-Macon Women's College, Sweet Briar, Southern Seminary, Duke, Mary Washington, the University of Virginia, James Madison University, Virginia Intermont and Hampden-Sydney College.

In the Novice Equitation on the Flat, Section B, Kathy Chase won a fourth place, in Section C, Kathy Redmon won a fourth place, and in Section D, Shannon Chambers won a fifth place.

In the Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter, Section A, Mary Ball placed sixth, and in Section B, Laura Fields placed first.

Janet Young won a fourth place ribbon in her Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter class.

Point riders for Longwood were Shannon Chambers in Novice Equitation Over Fences, Kathy Redmon and Robyn Walker in Novice Equitation on the Flat, and Laura Fields and Erika Cristea in Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter.

Netters Second Sweep

By STEVE WHITTEN

The Longwood netters played two matches this week. They completely wiped out Southern Seminary 9-0 on Thursday and dropped a 7-2 loss to James Madison University on Saturday.

In Tuesday's match with Southern Seminary the competition was not as strong as previous matches. Longwood swept all singles and doubles, none going three sets. This was the second 9-0 match score for the netters this year.

Facing a tough competition Saturday afternoon, the netters lost their first match. Longwood won the number one seed match with Nancy Leidenheimer completely dominating JMU's Heidi Hess 6-2, 6-2. Also number five seed Jill Foster defeated her JMU opponent in three sets 4-6, 6-1. The only other match to go into three sets was the number 1 doubles team of Leidenheimer and McLawhorn bowing to Hess and Tyler of JMU, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1.

Coach Harris commented that JMU was "The most real competition they have faced this year," but that the team played extremely well. Yesterday (Monday) the netters traveled to Mary Baldwin College to try to break the 18 year losing streak against Mary Baldwin. Coach Harris feels this is the year that the Longwood tennis team will beat MBC.

TR Growing

By SUSAN TOWLER

The Therapeutic Recreation department at Longwood College is growing. The curriculum, the junior internships, the Therapeutic Recreation Organization are all in a period of adjustment or change.

There are more courses offered in the T.R. curriculum because the junior internship is now completed during the summer after the junior year. This added semester offers extra courses that increase the T.R. majors potential. This semester leaves room for electives.

In addition to the academic growth, the T.R. department offers a club called the Therapeutic Recreation Organization. The TRO, composed of T.R. majors, sends students to help with events such as Special Olympics.

The Therapeutic Recreation Organization is indeed a group of hard working students who spend their non-class time for their major.

All in all, the Therapeutic Recreation department at Longwood is attracting more students each year. It appears that the T.R. faculty and students are working well together to make the T.R. major at Longwood strong.

Division Decision By IAC Soon

By FRANK CREASY

The Intercollegiate Athletic Council is in the process of making a decision which will affect the NCAA division status of men's teams at Longwood. According to Dr. T.C. Dalton, the Council is expected to decide this week whether or not men's sports will compete in Division II or III of the NCAA.

For the IAC, the ruling may be difficult to come by, as the situation is touchy at best. There are quite a few considerations to be taken into account. Several of the men's teams at Longwood are just beginning to gain respectability, and the entire program is in itself still in its infancy. Moving up to Division II would mean playing bigger schools. But there are advantages to the switch; for one, the men would be able to receive scholarships, which is prohibited among Division III schools. Also, Longwood is presently an independent school, and changing to Division II would make it easier for Lancer teams to enter into a conference.

The subject of changing to Division II is not new to the IAC. Last spring, the council discussed and voted on the issue, and the result was a tie. At that time, the matter was tabled until it could be resolved in the fall.

It is difficult what the IAC ruling will be, but the suspense should not last long. If the decision is postponed past this week, the Council is still compelled to make a decision soon, as the teams are already beginning to form their schedules for the 1980-81 school year.

With the construction of the new athletic complex proceeding to its completion date, questions have been raised as to how the new facility will affect the sports program. As you might expect, there are no easy answers to this problem.

Obviously, every team cannot conveniently use the new building, and it would be absurd to condemn the other gyms as obsolete. With this in mind, the IAC has the unhappy task of informing some teams that they will not be housed in the new complex.

Many factors will affect the decisions; the average number of spectators at an event will likely be considered. Also, the very nature of the sports themselves would have an effect: while the wrestling and volleyball teams find their suitable home, the gymnastics team could not, as there is not enough room or storage space for their equipment and competition.

If this seems vague and uncertain, do not worry — it is. The IAC is hardly near a decision of any type, and since it will be some time yet before the new gym is finished, there is really no need for any swift movements. Meanwhile, do not hold your breath.

392-5908

West of Farmville on Rt. 460

Located in the Randolph Tobacco Warehouse

HOURS Sunday 2-5 7-10 Fri. & Sat. 7-10 & 10-12

Wed. & Thur. 7-10

WE HAVE RUF CUT LUMBER FOR YOUR LOFTS & BUNKS

FOR ALL YOUR BUILDING MATERIAL NEEDS
COME SEE US...

TAYLOR MFG. CO.

By SUSAN TOWLER
The Longwood College womens yball team has already ed two matches this season.
r record so far is 1-1.
e first match was played inst Randolph-Macon
ens College on September ongwood won the match by ing three out of the five es played 15-3, 15-9, and 15-7.
ording to Coach Carolyn way, the team worked on plays and kept the attack
g. She also said that Meg s and Cindy Thomas played standing games. In the second ch against RMWC, Longwood two of the three games 15-4 15-7.
The second match Longwood ed was against Liberty ist College on September 26.
gwood lost the first match scores of 9-15, 15-17, and 11-
The team kept fighting but le too many mental errors.

Rhonda Woody, Robin Hungate, Connie Murray, and Sherry Will played well and kept the team's hope alive. Though Longwood lost this match, their determination to win held up to the end.

In the second match with Liberty Baptist, Longwood won 15-13 and 15-9. Contributing greatly to this win were Julie Petefish, Connie Murray, Sherry
Will, and Kathy Gunning.

According to Coach Callaway,
the Longwood College basketball team is working together very well and they are continuing to put together the offense and defense in a way that works.

The next home game is with Hampton Institute and Ferrum
College on Thursday, October 4 at 6 p.m. There are also matches to be played at 7 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Everyone is encouraged to come support the team.

Lancers Tie Richmond

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
Despite a drizzle which turned a downpour the last seven utes of the game, the Lancer 1 hockey team hosted iversity of Richmond.
Describing the field as sloppy ld be charitable. At one end of field the ball could scarcely ound in front of the goal.
The score was tied at the half,
Betty Stanley was onsible for the Lancer score, e Richmond managed to put one by goalie Teri Davis on a penalty stroke.

No one scored in the second half, although LC made several good attempts to wallow through the mud.

In order to prevent possible injuries, the tie was not played
off.

Thursday's game against Mary
Washington was rescheduled for October 31 because of field conditions.

This week the Lancers have two away games.

Photo Courtesy of The Farmville Herald

Mike Kerrigan (14) wonders where the ball went as teammate Dave Yerkes serves as a hurdle for an opponent.

Soccer Team Appears Awesome . . . Hope It Lasts

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood soccer finally showed how it can flex its muscles as it overpowered a weak Greensboro College team 5-2 on Saturday afternoon.

Greensboro was quick to apply pressure to the Lancer booters as they took the early lead on a Robert Rahn goal with 4:51 expired in the first half.

Longwood took the initiative and the offense of the Lancers was reborn, or came out of a four-year hibernation. Ken Gebbie was credited with the first Longwood tally as he bounced his direct kick from the right hand corner off the head of Kenny Barnwell, a Greensboro defender, into the net behind helpless Greensboro goalie Barry Toler.

The Lancers continued to control the ball on offense as Gus
Leal scored on a penalty kick from directly in front of the Greensboro net. Leal's goal came with 24:58 expired in the half and is his first goal of the season.

Gebbie notched his second goal of the game as he scored unassisted at the 27:46 mark of the half.

The second half saw Longwood continue domination of the Greensboro defense as they kept the pressure in the Hornet's end of the field. Mario Leal added his first goal of the season as he beat the Greensboro defenders in the middle of the half.

But Longwood was not finished with their brutal attack of the Hornets. Gebbie notched his third goal of the game as he scored unassisted a scant four minutes and twenty-six seconds after the Leal goal.

Coach Rich Posipanko was freely substituting when Greensboro scored their other goal of the game. Lancer goalie Bud Atkins, who had just entered the game, was helpless as Captain Bob Brewer of the Hornets headed a Scott Tysinger pass into the Lancer net.

Longwood displayed some of the key things that they need to do in order to win. The Lancers were keeping the ball on offense which took some of the pressure off of the previously overworked defense. Greensboro College recorded only 13 shots on goal while the Lancer booters pummeled the Hornet net with 32 shots. This marks the first time this season that the Lancers have dominated in this statistical department.

The Lancers were also able to rewrite some Longwood soccer records in the Greensboro game.
Ken Gebbie is the first Longwood player to score the "hat trick" of three goals in one game. A hat trick is not common in the sport of soccer.

Five goals is a record for Lancer goals scored in one game and indicates that the offense is improving.

The Lancers stand at 2-4 on the season. They face intrastate rival Virginia Wesleyan on Wednesday in Norfolk before traveling to Hampden-Sydney for the "Classic Battle" on Friday.

Photo by Dave Gates

Betty Stanley outmaneuvers a Richmond defender.

THE
HAIR shaft
HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU™
DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS
Mon & Tues 9 AM 8 PM
Wed-Fri 9 AM 6 PM
Sat 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685
Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA SANDWICHES

OPEN:
Mon-Thur Til 10 PM, Fri & Sat Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392 5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

The winners of the Frazer Backgammon Tournament held September 26-27 were:
Beginners — Delanie Brown
Intermediate — Allen
"Byrd" Butler
Advanced — Elizabeth
Bauer

Your Turn

(Continued from Page 4)

9) "Oddly enough, all of these facts, including the substantial likelihood that Media's consulting fees were being used to subsidize Stein's printing bid, were known to the officials of the College. Armed with this information, they did nothing to protect the College and the Department of Purchases and Supply from becoming unwilling parties to a bidding fraud" (p. 7). Notice how this differs from The Rotunda report.

10) "In the Longwood College situation we do not know if the College could have saved money by using good purchasing procedures, rather than the shoddy ones that were followed" (p. 8).

After reading the Special Grand Jury's Second Interim Report, if anyone still believes that the Grand Jury completely cleared Longwood then one must be prepared to accept that the world is flat and square and free of prejudice.

Tony Cristo

"Longgate" Over?

Dear Editors and Student Body, Watergate is over, Koreagate is over, but there is one gate that is still not over and that one is "Longgate". Yes, there is a possibility of some type of corruption at Longwood. The headline of the September 18th edition of the Rotunda read: "Special Jury Clears Longwood," a lot of students did not know that Longwood was even unclear.

As a student who is semi-concerned, semi-suspicious, and semi-literate, I believe the whole story is not out, even though the final report of the special jury is out and can be observed in the library.

No corruption was found as the report stated in the case of Longwood on page three, but on page five there is written proof Longwood officials know of some wasteful procedures and did nothing about it. A college can not do business without written contracts but Longwood and Media Directions, Inc. did. The report also stated Longwood used "shoddy" purchasing procedures and I would like to know who is responsible and how and why this can happen?

"These procedures must be changed" is the last line of the report before recommendations for better procedures were made. Since the exposure of these "shoddy" procedures have been made I believe Longwood will correct them, but I also believe the whole story is not out. I just hope the majority of the student body knows what this letter is all about.

Jimmy Bryant

New Department

(Continued from Page 2)

stated that the move enabled a "more efficient use of space and personnel." Because of the concurrent need to offer more English courses, some foreign language professors are teaching English bringing these two fields together in a natural alliance under the study of humanities.

Dr. Maria Silvera (a Spanish teacher), is very happy with the move to the English Department, however she misses the foreign language lab. She has known the faculty of this department, is friends with many members, and feels welcome. Dr. Silvera enjoys working with Dr. Massie Stinson, chairman of the English Department.

Dr. Geoffrey Orth (the German teacher) said that there is a general trend for smaller departments to move in with larger ones and because English and Foreign Language have so many like interests, the move was a good idea. Both English and Foreign Language fields teach literature and offer a BA degree making the programs closely related. Dr. Orth said the move was "a real plus—a positive move." He is very pleased to be in with the English Department.

CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va."Your Flower
Headquarters"

Election Applications

(Continued from Page 2)

junior (second semester sophomore with 45 hours) and a G.P.A. of 2.0. Of all the organizations, the applicant must be at least a rising junior (the applicant can be a rising senior).

Minor officers can be a rising junior or senior with a 2.0 G.P.A. and the required number of hours.

A transfer student must be enrolled for one complete semester with a 2.0 for that semester.

Representatives to all boards and freshmen Judicial Board investigators will be elected after Christmas break.

Freshmen are ineligible to run in a major-minor position as they have not been on campus long enough to have a cumulative grade point average. However, all are encouraged to participate in voting and running for board representatives.

Day students are needed for two Legislative Board positions and one opening on Judicial Board. There is also an opening for a graduate student to Legislative and Judicial Board.

These petitions are due on Sunday, October 28, at 12 midnight. If there are any questions concerning these petitions, contact Jan Bates, chairman of Elections Committee.

Thomas & Lewis

(Continued from Page 6)

award. She also received the Gloucester Sports Club Award of 1977.

Lewis is a Social Work major who intends to also complete a masters program in the same field of study. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lewis.

sidney's

Campus and Career Fashions for Women

invites student credit accounts

With a valid student I.D., you can open a

SIDNEY'S CHARGE ACCOUNT

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER

10-9 MON-SAT

SEMESTER IN SPAIN

only $2,189 Feb. 1--June 1, 1980

Beginner or advanced. Study Spanish in beautiful Seville, Spain. Earn 2 full years college credit for about the same cost as a semester here.

FOR EVERYONE

Come experience the Old World with us in Spain. Fulfill your college requirements and have the time of your life in a tropical climate.

Whether you're a beginner or advanced, you'll learn Spanish much better than you could in a conventional setting. Standardized tests prove it. Spanish isn't all you'll learn. You'll experience the culture, make lifetime Spanish friends, and see this part of the world.

Our enthusiastic alumni write and tell us their semester in Spain was the highlight of their college career. Call us collect. We'll give you their names, addresses and phone numbers to contact for yourself.

Professor Barton Siebring, former Spanish professor at Calvin College for 10 years will lead the rigorous academic study.

Come with us Feb. 1-June 1, 1980. Round trip jet from Toronto, Canada, room, board and full tuition all for only $2,189. (Government loans and grants apply.)

Live it! You'll learn more Spanish, and learn it better for about the same cost as sitting in a conventional classroom. We live in Spanish homes.

Don't miss this opportunity, space fills up fast. Call us collect at once for more details. Credits will be accepted by any college.

SEMESTER IN SPAIN, 2442 East Collier S.E., Grand Rapids, Mich. 49506
Call (616) 942-2541 collect -- A program of Trinity Christian College

CANOES
FOR RENT

- Day Trips • Fishing Trips
- Camping • River Information

ARC also carries a full line of Canoes, Kayaks & River Accessories.

Located in the Taylor Mfg. Co. building on North Main Street.

CALL BOB TAYLOR 392-3161

Greyhound's
quick cure for the book blues.

The book blues. It's those sleepless nights with visions of exams, pop tests and required reading dancing through your head. They just won't go away.

But you can... with Greyhound. Take off this weekend, visit your family, see your friends... just get out of town and leave the book blues behind. It doesn't cost much and it'll do you a world of good.

So, if you've got the book blues, get on a Greyhound and split. It's a quick cure for what ails you.

To	One-Way	Round-Trip	Depart	Arrive
Richmond	5.80	11.05	4:15	5:55
Springfield	12.55	23.85	4:15	9:30
Norfolk	14.45	27.50	4:15	9:45
Charlottesville	10.20	19.40	1:55	4:55
Roanoke	8.50	16.95	1:55	4:35

(Prices subject to change)

C. L. SLAYTON West 3RD St. --- 392-5153

GO GREYHOUND

Levi's

LARGEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S IN THIS AREA

Levi's

- Shirts
- Sweaters
- Jackets

JEANS SHACK

- ADULT REG. CORDS & denim, straight leg & flare.
- Ladies Fashion Jeans

PHONE 392-4870 SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER FARMVILLE, VA.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1979

NO. 6

Festivities Begin This Week

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Oktoberfest...it's a time for everyone to get involved and enjoy! Months of preparation are finally coming to a climax as Oktoberfest der Geist 1979 festivities begin tonight. Freshmen and Sophomores will line up tonight at 6:30 p.m. for the battle of the colors at the Paint Battle. Reds and Greens have been planning the traditional battle on Wheeler Mall since August.

A new addition to Oktoberfest, the dorm room door decorations will be judged tonight. Sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council (IRC) room and suite doors will be judged for originality in German or Oktoberfest themes.

Color Skits will begin Friday night at 7:30 p.m. They will also be presented Saturday night. Reds and Greens have been secretly writing scripts, music, and painting sets for their "off-broadway" performances. The 21 Klowns will attempt to again successfully build their gigantic pyramid between skits. And the ushers and usherettes will entertain with their festive German dance.

Other color events include Color Rush at 10 a.m. Saturday and the all-new spirit board painting from 10-5 p.m. Saturday.

The H20 Club will present their water show Saturday at 2:30, 3:30, and 4 p.m. entitled "Animals from the Sea." Members have choreographed routines depicting various sea animals. The dance company will also be performing in Barlow at those same times.

Midway will open at 2 p.m. with a variety of games and sales from root beer to mugs, sun visors, posters, pretzels, German hexagones, and T-shirts. Approximately 30 different campus organizations will be represented. There will be a Mime Group at Midway also.

For those art lovers the art department is providing a shuttle bus from front campus to Bedford Gallery for the Susan Waters Exhibit. This exhibit has received National publicity and will be open to the public on Saturday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

The 100 member Concert Choir under the direction of Dr. Louard E. Egbert will perform at 1 p.m. Saturday in Jarman at their annual Pops Concert. Among the selections to be presented will include an Oktoberfest favorite, "Send in the Clowns" from A Little Night Music and "The winds of the 60's," a medley of music from the 1960's.

Sports enthusiasts will enjoy tennis at 2 p.m., Friday, and 10:30 a.m., Saturday; volleyball at 3, 4, and 5 p.m. Friday; Soccer at 1 p.m. Saturday, field hockey at 3 p.m. and rugby at 3:30 p.m.

Cake Cutting and Alumni CHI Walk will close out the festivities after skits on Saturday. Wonder what shape the cake will take on this year?

Come and enjoy as the Germans would at this year's Oktoberfest!

Meisters, klowns, ushers, and Geist decorate the dining hall for Oktoberfest.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Major-Minor Elections Approaching

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Major-Minor Elections are held by the Elections Committee once a year. The Major offices according to the Elections Committee Constitution consist of Chairman and Vice-Chairman of Legislative, Judicial and Residence Boards, Chairman of Orientation, President and Vice-President of the Student Union and the Intramural Athletic Association. The Minor offices stated by the Elections Committee Constitution consist of the secretaries to Residence and Judicial Board, secretary and treasurer to Legislative Board, Student Union and Intramural Athletic Association, the Fire Warden, two investigators to Residence Board and four investigators to Judicial Board.

There are qualifications that a student must meet before he can be elected to a Major or Minor office. Those students who wish to run for a Major office except Vice-Chairman and Vice-President must be a rising Senior or a second semester Junior unless otherwise stated in that organization's constitution. Any student wishing to run for an office must have and maintain while in office a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.0 unless otherwise stated in its constitution. The Vice-Chairman and Vice-President must be a rising Junior or a second semester Sophomore with 45 hours or a rising Senior with all other qualifications of Major officers applying to that office. Those students wishing to run for a Minor election must be a rising

Junior or a rising Senior with a grade point average of 2.0 to be maintained while in office. Students are not allowed to hold any two offices at the same time, and he shall not be a representative to a board at the same time. A transfer student may run for an office if he has been enrolled at Longwood for one full semester and has a grade point average of 2.0 which is expected to be maintained.

The positions available on the Legislative Board are: Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, and Treasurer. The positions open on the Residence Board are: Chairman, Vice-chairman, Secretary, two campus-wide investigators, and Fire Warden. The offices open on the Judicial Board are: Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, and three Investigators, one from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes. Offices open in the Student Union are: Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. In the Intramural Athletics Association these offices are open: President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

To find out who is running for an office and to which office check the petitions which will be posted on the bulletin board in the Rotunda. It is important to do this so that you will know each person's reasons for wanting to be elected to their chosen office. This can be very helpful to you in making the right decision.

Elections will be held on November 6. The petitions, however, must be turned in by midnight, October 28. If there are any questions concerning these petitions please contact Jan. Bates, Chairman of Elections Committee. There will be four tables set up in the Rotunda on November 6. One table for each class and you must vote by your class. In order to vote you must have your I.D. with you. Freshmen are not eligible to run in a Major-Minor election because they have not been on campus long enough to have a cumulative grade point average. They are still encouraged to vote and participate in campaigning.

The representatives of the boards will be elected after Christmas break. The representatives will be nominated at your class meeting and must have a majority of votes to win. Freshmen are encouraged to run for board representatives. Day students are needed for two Legislative and one Judicial Board positions. There is an opening for a graduate student to Legislative and Judicial Boards.

It is important that we do not forget that it is our duty as a citizen and as a student to vote whenever possible. If you do not vote for your choices of the best person, in your opinion, then you have no right to criticize the jobs of those who were elected by those who took the time and opportunity to vote for their choices. After all it is your country and your student government as well as theirs. So, show your interest in your fellow students and your student government and vote. You should at least get involved once a year in your school's progress. Major-Minor elections is not a spectator sport!

Photo by Melody Crawley

Conserve Energy

By MELODY CRAWLEY

According to a bulletin released by the Department of Energy, there may not be enough fuel to adequately heat homes, schools and businesses during the coming year unless the Nation acts to respond to the threat. The President of the United States has ordered the immediate imposition of the Standby Emergency Building Temperature Restrictions Plan.

Because of this, Longwood College needs to have a College Community Awareness according to Vice President William Peele. Both students and employees need to become aware of Energy Conservation.

Most of the ways to conserve energy are "Common Sense" according to Dr. Peele. "We are open to suggestions from students," he stated. Many colleges have competitions to conserve energy.

Dr. Peele also stated "Longwood would never consider a four day week for regular sessions." He said that it was not out of the question for summer school.

Suggestions for students to follow to conserve energy include:

1. Keep exit doors closed when heating is required.
2. Keep windows closed when heating is required.
3. Burn lights only when

(Continued on Page 5)

A Job Well Done:

SALT II Conference At Hampden-Sydney

By DOUG STROBEL

For three days last week Hampden-Sydney College played host to a conference on the Strategic Arms Limitations Treaty. The college must be commended on the job it did in the organization and implementation of the conference. The quality of speakers and delegates was of the first order.

Thursday began with a registration period where students gathered from as far away as Idaho and as close to home as Longwood. A cocktail party followed the registration and then the delegates were off to an elaborate banquet dinner and a keynote address. McGeorge Bundy, whose credits include former national security advisor to both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson as well as Dean of Harvard faculty and Chairman of the Ford Foundation, began by spelling out the different views of SALT which ranged from the liberal "McGovern Special", which propounded cuts in our strategic forces no matter what, to the conservative "Goldwater Standard" of flat rejection of the treaty as now written. Bundy went on to voice his support of the treaty while telling the delegates that they must weigh the arguments very carefully of this monumental issue and decide for themselves whether ratification of the treaty is in the U.S.'s best interest.

Friday morning began with a lecture by Professor Pipes, who is currently the head of Russian studies at Harvard University. Pipes began by stating that the United States has analyzed why they want SALT, however, has the U.S. attempted to understand why the Soviets want SALT. It must be remembered that the Soviets have "purposes in mind" continued Pipes. The Russians have used SALT to inhibit the development of such U.S. hopefuls as the cruise missile and the MX mobile missile system. One day the Soviets may believe that they can fight and win a nuclear war, a premise which is doubted by many U.S. analysts. Pipes believes that the SALT II treaty enhances this possibility.

Such provisions as the Russian backfire bomber's non-inclusion in the treaty and the exclusion of heavy missiles in the U.S. side has led Pipes to believe that this is an unbalanced treaty in favor of the Soviets.

The delegates then broke up into smaller seminar groups which they had earlier been assigned to. The topic for the discussions was to be "The Major Objectives of U.S. Foreign and Defense Policy." The first thing to be defined was U.S. interests around the world which were the preservation of our economic well being as well as maintaining the status quo and preventing war. Other questions emerged such as what has been the U.S. foreign policy since WW II and has it worked or not.

The afternoon speaker was George Ashworth who gave the administrations view of SALT. He said that this has been an agreement negotiated over three administrations which was in the U.S.'s security interests. The treaty sets limits which will restrain the Russia buildup and hopefully, in the long run, lead to actual reductions unilaterally. Ashworth stated that the U.S. has never sought to build heavy missiles and therefore it was irrelevant that we did not have the right to build them. He also speculated that the world without SALT would be one of increased hostility and an ever increasing arms race with little hope of restraint of any kind.

The afternoon seminar session was on the topic of "Verification—the Technical and Political Dimensions." The essential theme was how verifiable must a treaty be to be considered acceptable. The Russian possibility of building stockpiles has been argued as being non-verifiable. However, the U.S. does not have many means of verification including satellites, listening bases around the world, spy planes, and human agents.

The late afternoon lecture was presented by Lt. General Edward Rowny, of U.S. Army retired. Rowny had been the Joint Chiefs-of-Staff's representative on the SALT negotiating team until last year when he felt that he could no longer support the treaty in good faith. Rowny said that the basic problem in SALT was that the negotiations were done in Washington and not at the bargaining table. He stated that for every single confession made by the Russians the U.S. made two. Rowny does not see the treaty as making any qualitative limits only quantitative limits which are very "cosmetic".

The evening came to a close with a cocktail party followed by a banquet dinner. Following dinner, Professor Edward Luttwak spoke. He delighted the audience with his

(Continued on Page 7)

Miss Longwood First Runner-up

By SHARON JANOVICH

Our very own 1979 Miss Longwood College, Juliana Worsham recently represented Longwood in the Tobacco Bowl and was chosen to be the first runner-up. Julie also won Miss Photogenic, which she was very excited about.

"I was so very, very shocked that I got first runner-up! Having my hand shaken and being kissed by Lyle Waggoner was the ULTIMATE! He is so gorgeous! He looked like a football player!"

The participants in the Tobacco Bowl were required to be present at a luncheon, a President's reception, have two interviews, be prepared for talent night and the most exciting part of the Festival: All participants rode in the parade.

"The parade was by far the most exciting part! It rained during the game, but we were thankful that it didn't rain during the parade. I was so calm, cool and collected that I couldn't believe it! The judges also mentioned how poised I was! This was so much more fun than the Miss Virginia Pageant, because there wasn't as much competition and backstabbing. You could relax and really have a great time! I enjoyed it so much and was so excited to see two other Longwood girls there: Miss Victoria—Kathy Fallen and Miss Kenbridge — Emily Sue Wilkinson. It was terrific!"

Congratulations Julie Worsham, for a job well done!

Players Poster Contest

By LINDA WHEELER

The Longwood Players and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts has long been noted for their enthusiasm for the students on campus to become involved in each of their productions. The upcoming production of The Good Woman of Setzuan is no exception.

Patton Lockwood, the director of the play, is eager for the students to become even more involved in this production. Dr. Lockwood has announced that there will be a contest for the design to be used on the posters and the programs for the play. Students enrolled at Longwood may enter. The drawing must be in a circular shape and be seven inches in diameter. The following information should be contained on the poster:

The sponsors: The Longwood Players and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts.

Name of the play and the playwright: The Good Woman of Setzuan by Bertolt Brecht.

Place and time of production: Jarman Auditorium on December 5-8, 1979 at 8:00 p.m.

Entries may be submitted to Dr. Lockwood, in the departmental office, by November 7. A cash prize of $20 will be given to the winning entry. If there are questions, see either Dr. Lockwood or Linda Wheeler in 218 Wheeler.

"Nanook Of The North" To Show

Dr. James William Jordan, Coordinator of Longwood College's Anthropology Film Series, has announced the second film in the 1979-80 Series.

The second film in this year's Series will be "Nanook of the North" to be shown Tuesday evening, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford Auditorium. "Nanook of the North" was filmed in 1920 on the coast of Hudson Bay in central Canada. The film is a study of the bitter daily struggle of a small band of Central Canadian Eskimo to obtain a minimum of food and shelter in the harsh Arctic environment.

The film concentrates on the material artifacts—the Kayak, igloo, fishing spears, stone lamps, hide clothes—the Eskimo have developed under the most severe conditions of climate and geography. "Nanook of the North" is also important as an example of early documentary filmmaking: it was shot nearly 60 years ago using the simplest photographic equipment, the negatives being developed by hand on the spot. The original print is in black and white and is silent.

All films in the Anthropology Film Series are free.

By NORMA TALIAFERRO

Dr. Helen F. McHugh gave the first of the Francis Simkins lectures, October 3rd 7:30 p.m. in Bedford auditorium entitled "Economy And Family: Challenge of the 80's".

There are two more of the lectures scheduled in April. The lecture was in memory of the late Dr. Francis Simkins, a history professor of Longwood College until his death in 1966, and dedicated to his wife Mrs. Margaret Simkins, who was introduced and recognized by Dean Wells and Mrs. Anna S. Thompson.

The speaker Dr. McHugh was introduced by head of the Home Economics Dept., Mrs. Anna Thompson. Dr. McHugh received BS and MS at University of Missouri and her Ph.D. at Iowa State University. Recently, Dr. McHugh has received citation of merit from University of Missouri Alumni Association.

"There is a great need for each individual to control inflation, use resources wisely in order to bring prices down to control," says Dr. McHugh in her lecture. Dr. McHugh enlightened everyone as she told them what they could do as individuals to live in a well efficient economy that would be suitable for all. She explained how the changing of the labor force and the number of women heading the household is affecting the family of today. However in the process of her discussion the audience seemed to have lost their individuality trying to set up or imagine what exactly were their chances of living efficiently without wasting resources in our economy.

In the lecture, the speaker stressed that people were the valuable resources and their consumption of natural resources was what made the difference of their status in the economy.

"The family group of individuals living together", was the main subject and the predicate was the way in which the units makes decisions in the household, said Dr. McHugh midway her speech. She later went on to discuss the major changing elements in the family, the single family, and the declining value of raising children.

It was explained that housing has a big effect on our environments just as where we live has on us. Lots of values were discussed and explained and how they play on our emotions. The three E's were the big interest to the listeners. Which are energy, environment and economics.

It was mentioned that the change in number of women on labor force and the number of women heading the household insures the stability in the home and the economic outlook. In most of her lecture Dr. McHugh dwells on a reference book entitled The Energy Future; published by Random House. The book included; the project of 1972, studies and interviews, analysis, quotes by specialists in the field and issues one the declining "Baby Boom".

In concluding the lecture the speaker talked about the gasoline shortages increasing. The difference in the earnings gap because of more women heading the home. The insight for family around 1980 are smaller, mobile with more social and economic pressures. "There is a great need to control inflation, use resources wisely and bring prices under control," says Dr. McHugh ending her lecture.

Following the lecture a reception was given by the Home Economics Department at the Longwood Alumni House.

Student Fees

The 1979-80 Student Activity Fees Committee is:

Duke Rollins — Chairman
Mindy Allman
Bill Brent
Linda Paschall
Cheryl Wilcox
Robin Young
Dr. Sandra Breil
Mrs. Betty Kidder

The committee meetings are tentatively scheduled for the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 4 o'clock in the Honor Council Room.

Connecticut Dance Theatre To Perform

The Connecticut Dance Theatre will perform at Longwood College on October 29, 1979, at 8 p.m. as part of the company's seventeen state forty city 1979-80 tour. The Hartford based company is dedicating this season's tour to Doris Humphrey, one of America's greatest choreographers and pioneers in modern dance. Connecticut Dance Theatre's program will feature several Humphrey masterpieces: Ritmo Jundo, Night Spell, Day on Earth and Two Ecstatic Themes. Expertly choreographed, Ms. Humphrey's works are powerful, sensuous, moving and mysterious.

Considered an American art treasure, the Humphrey choreographic legacy is unsurpassed in American contemporary dance.

Also featured on the Connecticut Dance Theatre's program are the world premieres of "Celebration" and "Easing the Squeeze," two new works by CDT's artistic director, Mary Giannone. Celebration is an abstract contemporary ballet set to the glorious Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, by J.S. Bach. The work is a celebration of the pure joy of movement.

Easing the Squeeze is a contemporary work set to a jazzy score inspired by the elegant yet easy swing quality of jazz dance.

The program will also include "The Second of Seven Crossings" choreographed by company members Judi Tolomea and Linda Burns Phillips.

Connecticut Dance Theatre features a cast of dancers from Germany, England, Bermuda and the United States. Ms. Giannone, a Julliard graduate and former assistant to the late Jose Limon, has developed a company style that fuses the Humphrey-Limon technique with ballet and jazz. It is this unique blend that enables CDT to offer an evening of Contemporary dance that so successfully traces the roots of modern dance and highlights the paths of today's new choreographers.

Connecticut Dance Theatre was founded in 1975 by Mary Giannone, a choreographer and Akiva Talmi, a composer. The two met in New York City while attending the Julliard School where Ms. Giannone was a teaching assistant to the late Jose Limon and Talmi a Richard Rodgers scholarship student.

The two Julliard graduates founded Connecticut Dance Theatre at the Hartford Conservatory. Hartford has supported modern dance since the early 1940's and the Hartford Conservatory was the first institution of higher learning to start a modern dance department.

Since its inception, CDT has worked in the modern dance tradition of Doris Humphrey and Jose Limon. The introduction of Humphrey works to the repertory in 1977 marked the crystallization of the company's movement style, philosophy and direction.

Connecticut Dance Theatre made its New York debut in October, 1978 at St. Clement Theatre. The debut coincided with the 50th year anniversary celebration of Doris Humphrey as a creative force in modern dance. To mark this anniversary, CDT launched the Doris Humphrey Reconstruction Project. To date the company has reconstructed from dance notation four Humphrey works and plans are underway to re-record several of the musical compositions used in repertory and a redesigning of sets and costumes where appropriate.

Ray Cook, renowned dance director and notator is associate director of the Doris Humphrey Reconstruction Project.

In 1978 CDT toured Connecticut and the North East rekindling the Humphrey heritage. In its 1979-80 season the company is expanding its tour to include the Southeast and will be performing in forty cities and seventeen states.

Band Features Southern Speciality

By FRANK CREASY

Whoever it was that said, "The South shall rise again," must have heard the Plum Hollow Band. After last Saturday night's performance, one would never believe that the Yanks would have a chance against the crowd that stumbled breathlessly out of the lower dining hall.

Country and Southern rock bands have, in the past, done well at Longwood. But the reason for that is attributable to the quality of the performers which the Student Union has garnered on previous occasions. The Plum Hollow Band was no exception. As the beer and good times flowed throughout the audience, the music stirred a spark of excitement which erupted into a food ole-fashioned hoedown towards the end of the evening. The usual practice of sitting and listening gave way to hand-clapping and heel-kicking, and the infectious enthusiasm swept away many a student, including this reporter.

The War Between the States often pitted brother versus brother, but Plum Hollow decided it would be better if brothers teamed together. Barney Barnwell's lively fiddle was complemented by Larry and Nelson Baucom on banjo and bass and J.C. and Ricky Matlock on guitar and drums, respectively. Led by Barnwell's vocals, Plum Hollow's good time, hoedown style of play hit home to the Longwood crowd, and they responded accordingly. From the familiar strains of "Dixie" to the country boogie tune of "Orange Blossom Special," audience participation rose to a fever pitch before the band was allowed to leave. Finally, even I.B. Dent could contain himself no longer, as he expertly executed a free-wheeling square dance with one band member.

Of course, this is not the first time a Longwood audience has been brought to its feet during a Saturday Night Alive performance, and it will not be the last. But any band which accomplishes this feat has earned its paycheck, and Plum Hollow will probably become a favorite at Longwood. At least, Saturday night's audience looked happy to be in the Land of Cotton (and in all probability, old times here will not soon be forgotten).

Michael Johnson performs for a light house before break.

Photo by Tony Mason

Johnson Featured

By BILL LEWARNE

Michael Johnson and Barry Drake performed in Jarman on October 3 for Longwood's second major concert of the semester.

Drake, a favorite here, as indicated by the constancy with which he returns, presented his usual dynamic stage presence as romped through his lively ballads and country-folk tunes. A truly energetic guitarist and singer, Drake keeps his listener's attention easily with his rowdy never-slow-down attitude as he plays.

Michael Johnson, a now

seasoned recording artist has a more casual, mellow rapport with the audience. His music is more of the love song variety, with a few ballad-folk tunes of his own. His two top hits, "Bluer than Blue", and "This Night Won't Last Forever" drew good response, and he succeeded in making them as enjoyable as they are on the radio, even though he was playing without a backup band.

The audience seemed to enjoy two such contrasting styles of music in one concert, and both performers provided an evening of excellent entertainment.

Royal Lichtenstein Ring Sidewalk Circus entertained students Thursday afternoon.

Photo by Tony Mason

Sound Gallery
Michael Guthrie Band
Red/White/Green Rooms
8:30 p.m. SATURDAY 75¢

Midnight
Late
Show
CLOCK WORK
ORANGE
Gold Room
Friday At Midnight
$1

Open Mike
Gold Room
8 p.m. Tuesday Free

BRICE STREET
BAND

Outdoor Concert
Lankford Mall
2 p.m. Free
Sunday

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR. Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR. Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth, Mary Grant, Jodi Gilbert, Joan Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley Clore, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom Hands, Lynne Swan, Sherry Carmony, David Galts, Thomas Cole, Steven Whitten, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hare, Donna Hasky, Judi Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner, Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWorne, Cecilia White, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Janet Reynolds

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

Presidential Letter

Editors Note: This letter was sent to the Rotunda by Toby A. Friedman. It is a copy of one that President Willett received from him.

H.I. Willett, Jr.
President
Longwood College
Farmville, Va. 23901

Dear Sir:

As a concerned educator, I am writing this letter with a very confused and heavy heart.

One of our students, Janet Palmer, Powhatan, Va., graduated from our school in June 1979. She was an outstanding student academically as well as a very hard worker in the student body.

She applied to Longwood on the advice of several of our teachers. We were all very proud when she was accepted. On September 28 of this year, Janet withdrew from Longwood. Not because college work was too much for her, but because the college was too much for her.

She and her family have tried since August to get a room for her at your college so Janet would not have to commute 90 or so miles each day. At every turn she had doors slammed in her face. She was constantly told that she could not have a room. She was on a tuition scholarship yet it was a great financial difficulty for her parents as well as herself. Her desire to better herself was overwhelming. On September 28, that desire died because of the manner in which Longwood College handled this entire situation. So overwrought with the school's attitude at this point, she withdrew from school because of the stress of the drive, the cost of gasoline, and the lack of interest on the school's part.

When she and her parents, on Monday, October 1, 1979, went to withdraw her, the director's interest suddenly changed. He then asked Janet if a room could be found would she stay. Of course, at this point the child had been through enough.

Why this letter—well Sir, after twenty-one years in education, I couldn't believe a school as well known as Longwood could treat a person of the future in this manner. You live and learn. At the expense of one of the brightest stars of tomorrow—Congratulations!

Sincerely, Toby A. Friedman

Letter From Joan

Dear Student Body,

You would not believe all I've suffered during my lifetime! People simply can't seem to let me be left in peace.

I am specifically referring to the incident Friday night when some mischievous people decided to turn me around and dropped me onto the floor, giving me a splitting headache (besides literally splitting my head!). True, I do get bored always facing the same direction. When those who are given permission to turn me do so, I enjoy a respite.

I am not a light person. As those who tried to move me the other night discovered, I am very heavy. Please do not tamper with me again. My purpose is to greet visitors to this campus and I enjoy being Longwood's hostess. I like to look my best so please do not mess up my attire!

Please respect me as your patron. I have been here a long time and would like to remain as long as the college remains. Please do not threaten my existence by pranks.

I hope I will soon feel as good as new.

With Blue and White Love,
Joan d'Arc

Reds Speak

Guten Tag!!

Oktoberfest is here!! The best weekend of the year is just around the corner and it is up to us to make it great! Let your blue and white spirit shine!

Greens, we openly and publicly challenge you to the color class competitions. May the best color class win!

Reds, this is an open invitation from your fellow reds. Come and join us in the color rush and midway. Cheer us on to victory during the skits. Support your class to an Oktoberfest win!

Geist, thanks for all your hard work and dedication. Your support has been great! Good luck this week!

Blue and White Love,
Libby Bowman, Susie Transue,
Brenda Coleman, Pam Updike

Editor's Turn

Joan of Arc... a tradition, a patron saint, a work of art, and a part of Longwood College that should be respected. That is the reason that tears filled the eyes of some Longwood students as they observed the destruction that occurred late Friday night.

That's right... DESTRUCTION! It may have started out as only a prank. Yes, some people consider it fun to "turn Joanie around" because that's what CHI does when they walk. But, when they pick her up and drop her in the process... THAT'S DESTRUCTION! It's not only destruction of a tradition that's been with Longwood College for years, but of a work of art. "Joan of Arc listening to the Voices" is a reproduction of a sculpture done by Henri-Michel-Antoine Chapin in 1870. It has been a part of Longwood College since 1914 when the graduating class presented to the State Teachers College.

Friday nights incident causes us to wonder why we should be allowed to have something so valuable when some of us are so immature. To whoever is responsible, we must say that dropping a valuable statue and running is not the kind of Friday night entertainment that is welcome on this campus. We hope that you know that what you did caused pain, will cost money to repair, and may even cost the student body of Longwood some privileges that they are now enjoying.

We are thankful that she is not totally destroyed. Campus Police, along with a few concerned students, returned her to her platform after she was discovered on the floor. She did not break completely, but is severely cracked. Hopefully, she can and will be fixed before someone else decides to move her.

Now, we ask you... was the prank really worth the after-effects? If so, we plea with you that the next time you plan a prank to go to North Pole and move a glacier! Just leave Joan of Arc alone! Some of us still respect and admire her presence here!

MCC

Despite your negative feelings toward Farmville as being "boring" or "socially unattractive," this small community does have its exciting moments — you, the students are not around. Take, for example, the two events that happened while we were out on Fall Break —

The International Rodeo Association (IRA) event, which occurred October 5 and 6, was sponsored by the Farmville Jaycees. More than 2000 people attended this event — the first rodeo ever held in Farmville. Contestants came from as far away as Billings, Montana, and as close as Burkeville, Virginia. The Jaycees hope to make this event an annual affair so if you happen to be a rodeo fan, take heart — you may get to see one in Farmville yet.

Now for the Pepsi commercial... Although many of the town officials knew that the Pepsi company was coming to Farmville, they did not know WHEN. It came as quite a surprise to the local towns people when auditions were held and some 200 were chosen for parts. Dr. Patton S. Lockwood was asked by the film crew to be talent coordinator for the commercial, which was filmed at the local train station two weeks ago. Besides Lockwood, a few Longwood students were asked to work with him.

The commercial revolves around a baseball hero returning to his hometown (Farmville) after the World Series. Rick Levine, the director of the commercial, has also directed the Pepsi commercials of the frog jumping contest and the little boy receiving a horse of his own, which are quite popular on TV. The crew wanted a very down home, country feeling for its commercial. Overalls, blue jeans, and farmers are very prevalent. This commercial should appear on the air sometime in January or February.

The next time that you complain nothing exciting ever happens in Farmville, think again. Even if this doesn't satisfy your craving for excitement, there is always Oktoberfest...

PEJ

By MARK M. SLOAN

Without a doubt, Longwood College has some of the most eccentric vending machines I have ever encountered. The vending machine, as we all know, was invented for the sole purpose of serving their creators: Man. But more and more, they seem to be metamorphosing into Man's adversaries.

How many of us have stood in front of the chronically out-of-order munchie-machine on first floor Ruffner, helplessly shoving quarters and dimes into it voraciously maw and pressing its many buttons, only to watch the wrong spiral spin around, dropping nothing because the only spiral that works is the one that is empty? And how many of us have paid for foods at the munchie-area in Frazer, only to find that the microwave oven is out-of-order, and been left standing there with a cold sandwich? Canned-drink machines, too, have their idiosyncrasies, but the ones that issue their wares in cups are the most exasperating.

I recently encountered a machine of this sort in the basement of Main Cunningham. Innocently, I dropped my quarter into its plastic slot, and pressed the brightly-lit button (most vending machines have colorful, brightly-lit decorations, having the purpose of distracting the customer from any visible malfunctions). This machine, however, displayed no intent of giving me my drink. It gurgled and chugged, but nothing more. After pressing all of the other buttons, and juggling the coin-return lever (has anyone ever gotten their coins returned by jiggling the coin-return lever?), I dropped another quarter into it. This time, I got a paper cup, some carbonated water and ice, but nothing more. Now, like the Las Vegas gambler, I was hooked—I shoved yet another coin into this malevolent metal monster. Hopefully, I hit the button again. This time, it gurgled, hissed, sputtered, and finally showered forth my much-awaited drink. It also neglected to spit out a cup, so all I could do was to helplessly watch the stuff run down the drain (Placed there on the assumption that the machine only issues a cup one-third of the time). At that point, I gave up.

Pinball machines are another form of vending machine (vending a few minutes of teeth-gritting excitement for your quarter), and Longwood has its share of oddly-working pinball machines. Take the one in Lankford, for example, that works on pennies, in lieu of a quarter. Or the one that used to sit beside it last year, and which tilted every time someone made a strike in the bowling alley next door. Pinball machines have one difference from other forms of vending machines in the fact that they are designed to limit the amount of time one can play. Much skull-sweat went into the idea of placing magnets under the boards of these machines, which have the effect of pulling the metal pinball into the wrong areas.

Much skull-sweat also goes into the many sophomoric attempts to thwart vending machines in their seemingly intentional acts of coin-stealing. Think of the delight one got when watching the munchie-machine in Main Cunningham spit out endless streams of quarters during that period of its life when its coin-box was broken. While the plexiglass face of this machine is impervious to anything up to a point-blank blast from a howitzer, it is not, however, "sophomore-proof". Someone is always figuring out a way to answer the age-old question: How to get something for nothing, and better yet, how to get something for nothing from a machine? When the inner workings of this same machine went totally crazy, one could get millions of calories worth of artificially-flavored junk food merely by holding down the last three buttons. One can envy the thin-armed person who reaches up inside this machine and picks out whatever he or she wants.

Activities such as these, while frowned upon by the leasers of vending machines, show that people aren't always ruled by their machines. When we wish to, we can fight back.

A part of the Susan Waters Exhibit this oil on canvas, "Mary E. Kingman" is on display in Bedford Gallery.

Waters Collection Opens

By BARBARA BAKER and LYNNE SWAN

Longwood College is pleased to present a beautiful collection of works by Susan C. Waters, a 19th century itinerant painter, on exhibit in Bedford Gallery at Longwood from October 19 through November 19.

The paintings, brought together in an exhibition for the first time, include a selection of landscapes, still life, animal paintings, and portraits. The works displayed are from several public and private folk art collections.

Mrs. Waters began her artistic career by painting portraits, however, due to the invention of the camera her commissions for portraits diminished sharply and she began painting still life and animal scenes. She was exceptional in her paintings of sheep, painting them from her own back yard.

Because of the poor health of Mrs. Waters' husband, the earnings from her painting was a major source of the family income. Her work was greatly appreciated and encouraged by her Quaker husband. In 1876, Mrs. Waters successfully exhibited at the Centennial Exhibition in Pennsylvania. She painted for 60 years until shortly before her death in July 1900.

The Susan Waters collection owes much of its information to Colleen Heslip, a master's candidate at the State University of New York. She has put together this account of the artist from old family records. Ms. Heslip has catalogued about 25 out of hundreds of Mrs. Waters' portraits.

The Susan Waters Exhibit is sponsored by the Longwood Fine Arts Center. The LFAC aims at providing an exhibit and lecture program to serve both the College and surrounding community. The Susan Waters collection in Bedford Gallery will be open to the public Monday through Sunday 2-5 p.m. An illustrated catalogue of the works by Mrs. Waters ($3.95) and poster ($2.00) may be purchased from the Art Department.

Another very talented artist,

Greg Gilliam, has a collection of artworks on display in the Showcase Gallery at Longwood. The exhibition by Gilliam, a senior art major, includes acrylic and oil painting, drawings, and prints.

Gilliam, from Farmville, is concentrating in studio painting and will receive the bachelor of fine arts degree in May. Greg's talent is not only in art, he has played baseball and basketball for Longwood and performed in the Longwood Players' production of "Our Town."

Greg's work is on exhibit in the Reading Rooms of Lankford from October 14-25 and the public is cordially invited to view this fine display of talent.

Conserve Energy

(Continued from Page 1)

necessary.

4. Report lights burning outside in day light hours to physical plant (392-9311) or Campus Police (392-9321).

5. Blinds, shades and other window coverings should be kept closed at night in order to reduce heat loss through windows.

6. Open blinds, shades, and other coverings during the day to admit sun's heat.

7. Turn off lights when leaving working area.

"We will be complying with the energy building temperature restrictions which restrict new warm classrooms and offices, for example, can be heated 65 degrees and now low air conditioners should cool 78 degrees," stated Dr. Peele. "Saving money through energy conservation will benefit us all individually and collectively."

He also stated that although the dorms were not included in the restrictive temperatures, the school is "very interested" in not overheating. Students are asked to let the Physical Plant know when rooms get too hot.

Senior Spotlight:

P.E. Major Sees Friendship Important

By SHARON JANOVICH

"I would like to be remembered by my smile and friendship," began this week's acknowledged senior, Teresa McLawhorn, "But not so much by anything that I've done. Friendship is important, and I hope I'm remembered by that."

Teresa is a physical education major who is involved in numerous extracurricular activities. She is the Judicial Board Chairman (Freshman, sophomore and Junior representative to Judicial Board), Alpha Gamma Delta Social Sorority Chaplain, Tennis Team, and last year's Oktoberfest Chairman.

Teresa feels that her years at Longwood have been terrific. "The closeness and spirit at Longwood has kept the fire burning inside of me. The closeness here is so neat. Also, we are so fortunate to be the size we are, because everyone knows everyone, and more people become involved in school activities! At Longwood, we are PEOPLE—NOT just a number!"

Last year's Oktoberfest workers became used to seeing Teresa's friendly smile EVERYWHERE! "Working with Oktoberfest is the greatest thing I've ever done! I enjoyed every minute of it! I had so many good and cooperative people to work with, that I didn't struggle in anything! Everyone had tremendous attitudes and it was so neat to see the guys get involved, too! It is exciting to have guys here to work with! Longwood has gotten a great quality of guys, and going co-ed has been the best thing that has happened to us!"

"It was tough learning to be the Judicial Board Chairman. At first, I had difficulty in accepting when I had to sentence someone and-or tell them that they were expelled, but thanks to Dr. John Peale, I've learned to accept these things that had to be accepted. He has helped me face realities in people and been a terrific influence over my years at Longwood. He is a wonderful man!"

After graduation, Teresa would like to settle down and teach Elementary P.E. "After I become established, I'd like to obtain my Master's in Business Administration and do some type of administration work," said Teresa. After graduation, Longwood students will always remember her smile, friendship, and most important: her dedication to every aspect of Longwood College!

ΣΦΕ
WANTS YOU!

(And so does Minnie)

LADIES NIGHT
at the Red Lyon

very Tuesday 9-12
rst 2 silver barrels
10' a drink.

For All Your Oktoberfest
Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

Men's Athletics Applies For Division II Status

From Sports Information

Longwood College has taken a significant step toward upgrading its men's athletic program by deciding to apply for reclassification from NCAA Division III to NCAA Division II for the 1980-81 school year.

The recommendation to apply for Division II status was made by the college's Intercollegiate Athletic Council in a near-unanimous 7-1 vote and approved by President Henry I. Willett, Jr. this week.

According to IAC chairman Dr. T.C. Dalton, administrative assistant to the president, the decision to upgrade the men's athletic program is only a part of a long range study concerning the future of athletics at Longwood.

At present, Longwood Fields men's teams in basketball, baseball, golf, wrestling and soccer, with all teams competing on a non-scholarship basis in Division III. In women's athletics, which includes teams in basketball, field hockey, golf, gymnastics, lacrosse, tennis, riding and volleyball, athletic scholarships are currently offered in four sports.

In practical terms, the decision means that Longwood will offer athletic scholarships for men's basketball for the 1980-81 season, after the NCAA has approved the college's application for Division II.

To meet requirements for Division II the basketball team must schedule at least half its games against Division II schools for 1980-81 and the college must offer six sports teams for men.

Tentative plans call for the college to add men's tennis for 1980-81 as the sixth men's sport. Women's softball, a sport that is growing rapidly, may also be added.

In announcing the decision Dr. Dalton emphasized two major points.

"Longwood will continue to uphold its strong tradition in women's athletics," he said. "We do not intend to build up the men's athletic program at the expense of the women's program."

The Longwood administrator added that the school will have to look for outside sources for funds to finance its athletic program in the future.

"We intend to look for new ways to secure money for our athletic program," Dalton explained. "We plan to pursue the areas of fund raising and soliciting private contributions, and with the completion of our new physical education complex set for this summer, the possibility of securing funds from gate receipts is also under study."

Currently, the Longwood athletic program is financed by funds from student fees.

Lancer athletics will greatly benefit from the college's new $4.5 million health, physical education and recreation complex. Included in the new facility, which will be ready for use prior to the opening of the college next fall, will be a large gymnasium with 3,000 permanent seats, an auxiliary gymnasium, modern training facilities, an indoor pool and five outdoor tennis courts, plus classrooms and offices for the college's health, physical education and recreation programs.

Booters Hold Own

games. The Leals' absence forced coach Rich Posipanko to insert two reserves in his starting lineup.

Saturday's game with N.C. Wesleyan was unusual to say the least. Final statistics showed that the Bishops had 56 shots to Longwood's 16 and that Welsh saved a shopping 36 shots from entering the Lancer goal.

In the first half Longwood's Mike Lewis (Charlottesville) and Ken Gebbie (Virginia Beach) were ejected, leaving the Lancers with only nine players to N.C. Wesleyan's 11. Starting midfielder Paul Robertson (Wellesley, MA) was knocked out of the Lancer lineup by a first half knee injury.

After a 0-0 tie at the half, Joe Parker (Hathor, PA) scored to put the Lancers on top 1-0, but the Bishops answered Parker's goal with one of their own.

Longwood and Welsh, in particular, spent the final 80 minutes (15 min. in first half, 45 min. second half plus two 10-min. overtime periods) fighting off N.C. Wesleyan shots. Saturday's tie was more than a moral victory for the Lancers.

SPORTS

Debi Kinzel nearly has a goal.

Netters Win Two More

By STEVE WHITTEN

The Longwood Netters won two more matches to up their record to 5-1. On Thursday, Oct. 4, the netters defeated Hollins College 7-2. Longwood swept all singles with the exception of the number 2 seed with Doris Keys falling to Hollins, Amy Lipsitz, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3. The number 3 doubles went to Hollins' Herndon and Nassikas. They defeated S. Ibanez and K. Diehl, 6-2, 6-3. Coach Harriss commented that she felt the team played exceptionally well and hoped that they could continue their fine play throughout the season. The only other close match with Hollins was the number three singles which went into three sets. T. McLawhorn defeated her Hollins' opponent 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

On Thursday, the 18th, Longwood netters defeated Randolph-Macon Women's College by a score of 6-3. Four seeds went into three sets with Longwood winning three of them. Longwood won the first singles with N. Leidenheimer winning over M. Thomas, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1; T. McLawhorn won number 2 singles with a 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 victory over L. Norris of RMWC. C. Lewis of LC battled a three setter with M. Myers losing 2-6, 6-2, 6-3. J. Foster won over her RMWC opponent, B. Bass, 5-7, 6-4, 6-0. Longwood won the number one and two doubles, but dropped the number three doubles to RMWC. The score was 6-3, 6-0, with K. Diehl and S. Ibanez taking the loss.

Teresa McLawhorn smacks the ball across the net.

Hockey Team Faces Many Trials

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lancer field hockey team gained a lot of experience and more than their share of frustration during their journey to Ohio over Fall Break to take on the Ohio State Buckeyes, Purdue and Denison.

Excitement mounted as LC stepped on the astro-turf in Ohio stadium. A cold, heavy mist fell the entire game as the Lancers were shut out by this powerful team 5-0.

The Lancers were unused to the fast paced turf. OSU controlled the ball getting off 23 shots to LC's one. The first half went fairly well as Longwood's defense held the Buckeyes to one goal. In the second half, Ohio was able to get their final four goals into the cage.

The next day, the Lancers hit some more turf to take on Purdue. Again the Lancers had trouble adjusting to the fast pace of turf, after preparing at home on a slow, bumpy surface. Firing 25 shots to Longwood's two, Purdue took a 2-0 victory.

Their final day in Ohio, Longwood played a scrimmage match with Denison University. DU junior Hilary Robinson had an outstanding game, contributing four goals to their 5-1 win. Cherie Stevens put in the Lancer's only score in the second half.

The team returned home with an active schedule of five games. Last Tuesday, they travelled to Old Dominion University. In a hard fought battle, LC fell 2-1. At half, the score was tied and remained that way until the end of the second half of the game.

The Lancer offense was just unable to rally. Cherie Stevens had Longwood's only goal.

The JV Lancers ended the game in a scoreless tie with ODU.

Thursday both teams returned to school from Harrisonburg with a victory under their belt. The varsity chalked up their second win with a 2-0 score over Bridgewater. Julie Dayton put in a goal in each half for LC.

The JV team pounced on Bridgewater for a 4-0 victory. Kim Wood led the Lancer attack with her excellent play to score three goals. Jean Wakelyn scored the other goal.

After five road games, the Lancers returned home to host Duke Saturday. Despite a fine effort, the Lancers ended the game in a 3-2 deficit.

The varsity record now stands at 2-2-2, while the JV has compiled a 2-1-3 record. Two contestants will be at home this week. Today they play Virginia Tech at 3 p.m.

Riders To Co-Host Meet

By KATHY CHASE

On Sunday, October 7, seven members of the Longwood College Riding Team travelled to the Randolph-Macon Women's College and Lynchburg College Intercollegiate Horse Show. Plans were made in the Coaches Meeting for Longwood and Mary Washington to co-host an intercollegiate show on March 20 at Hazelwild Farm in Fredericksburg. This will be the first time Longwood has sponsored an intercollegiate horse show.

Kathy Redmon won two fifth place ribbons—one for Novice Horsemanship Over Fences and one for Novice Horsemanship on the Flat. In Section D of Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Shannon Chambers placed third. Kathy Chase placed sixth in Section B of Novice Horsemanship Over Fences. A first place ribbon was won by Erika Cristea in Section A of Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter, while in Section B Karla Weber placed sixth.

Janet Young placed fifth in her class of Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter.

Point riders for this show were Kathy Redmon and Kathy Chase — Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Shannon Chambers — Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, Mary Ball — Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter, and Janet Young — Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter.

On October 18 Hollins College held an intercollegiate horse show. Longwood made a fine showing, bringing back 12 ribbons from eight riders.

Once again Kathy Redmon brought in two fifth place ribbons — one for Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Section D, and one for Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, Section A. Shannon Chambers also won two fifth places. Her ribbons were won in Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Section A, and Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, Section B. Kathy Chase won two fourth place ribbons — one in Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Section B, and one in Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, Section C.

In Section A of Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter, Erika Cristea won second place. Karla Weber took a third place in Section C and Mary Ball took sixth place in Section D, both in the Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter division.

Janet Young placed fourth in her Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter class.

Pointe riders for this show were Kathy Redmon and Shannon Chambers — Novice Horsemanship on the flat, Kathy Chase — Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, Erika Cristea in Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter and Janet Young in Beginner Walk-Trot-Canter.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN.

Mon-Thur 11:10 PM Fri-Sat 11:10 PM

104 HIGH STREET 392 5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Experienced Threesome Leads Lancer Hockey

Without a backbone, the human body would be a shapeless mass, unable to perform its basic functions. The Longwood field hockey team would be in much the same shape without its "backbone"—juniors Julie Dayton and Teri Davis and senior Wanda Petersen.

Dayton (Laurel, Del.), Davis (Alexandria) and Petersen (Alexandria) can be found in the thick of the action anytime the Lancers perform.

While Longwood, 2-8-2 has gotten mixed views on its early season performance, the play of Dayton, Davis and Petersen has been exceptional. Coach Bette Harris is extremely high on her trio of leaders.

"These three hockey players are experienced," she stated. "They provide us with leadership both on and off the field. Julie, Terri and Wanda possess qualities which help keep team unity and performance on a high level."

While all three are serious hockey players, they contribute in different ways. Dayton, a forward, leads the attack with her exceptional quickness. Petersen, an aggressive center-half, is all over the field on both offense and defense. In goal, Davis provides her teammates with the assurance that the last line of resistance is in good hands.

The Lancer captain this season after serving as a tri-captain in 1978, Dayton has been playing field hockey since the seventh grade and always on offense. At Laurel Senior High School, she played hockey four years in addition to basketball and softball.

The pint-sized (5'0") Dayton was attracted to Longwood by the school's strong field hockey program and its small college atmosphere. The lancers face some of the top field hockey teams in the nation each year, such as Virginia, William and Mary and Ohio State.

Dayton's talents have been recognized at the national level. Chosen as one of 90 players to advance from the lower level camp to middle level in national field hockey tryouts last summer, Julie hopes to move up the ladder to the top level camp this summer. The junior passes on tips gained from the experience to her teammates.

"I saw some really good hockey in camp and learned a lot," Julie said. "I played some defense as well as offense for insight into that part of the game. The camps are both mentally and physically demanding," she added.

Dayton realizes that her goal of reaching to top level of tryouts is an ambitious one, but then she has always strived to reach the top. "I guess one of my problems is that I expect too much out of myself. I expect perfection," she said.

A Health, Physical Education and Recreation major, Dayton is shooting for a career as a teacher and coach on the college level. She has scored four goals for the Lancer hockey team thus far.

While Davis and Petersen both hail from Alexandria, the two were opponents in high school in several sports. Teri played hockey, softball and basketball at Groveton, while Wanda competed in basketball, softball, track and hockey at Fort Hunt.

A versatile athlete, Petersen has played several positions during her field hockey career. A goalie and halfback in high school, she has played link for three years at Longwood and now plays center-half. Like Dayton, Wanda is a three-year starter.

A senior majoring in Government and Social Science, Petersen was a team captain last season.

Speed and strength are perhaps Petersen's greatest asset on the hockey field and she uses them to good advantage. The senior is particularly adept at pilfering the ball from opponents and starting a charge toward the other team's goal.

Reacting too quickly and using strength instead of technique are shortcomings which Wanda admits to being guilty of at times. A positive thinker, she feels that Lancers can do well in the remainder of the season if the team doesn't get down on itself.

"The only thing that will defeat our team is not a lack of skill, but a lack of experience," she said. "But, if we don't think we can do it, we will defeat ourselves."

Also a standout on the national level in flatwater kayaking, Petersen attended the lower level national field hockey camp last summer. This active senior hopes to pursue a career in law or teaching.

As goalie, junior Teri Davis is constantly under fire in her position as the team's last line of defense. Playing against some of the nation's top teams, she has recorded 110 saves in ten games. Prior to an 8-1 loss to 15th ranked William & Mary, she had allowed only eight goals in five contests.

To play goalie one must have speed, quick reflexes and a positive attitude. That Davis possesses these qualities is evidenced by her accomplishments. Named MVP for her undefeated District championship team at Groveton in 1976, she was selected as the All-Camp goalie at the Mount Pocono Hockey Camp this past summer.

More than perhaps any other position in field hockey, goalies experience emotional highs and lows. While fending off repeated scoring attempts by an opponent brings a feeling of satisfaction, allowing one shot to find its way into the net can wipe out this good feeling.

Davis says she becomes frustrated if a goal is scored which she felt she could have prevented.

"If it's a good shot, I accept it better," she admitted. "You have to play every game like a championship game. I'll do anything to keep the ball out of our goal."

Davis also credits her teammates with keeping her spirits up.

"My teammates give me confidence and spirit, constructive criticism and praise. They think about you," says Teri. "Without their help, I would not want to be in the cage."

A Health, Physical Education and Recreation major, Davis aspires to be a coach someday. With her varied athletic background, she should be a natural. In addition to her exploits in field hockey, Teri was MVP in softball in 1975 and 1976 and Most Outstanding Senior Girl Athlete in 1977 at Groveton.

Dayton, Petersen and Davis also participate in lacrosse at Longwood, but the trio do not confine their activities to athletics. They are also leaders on the student Legislative Board. Wanda is president of the student body, Julie is corresponding secretary and Teri is treasurer.

As is the case with the field hockey team, the school would not be the same without them.

Spikers Outplay Opponents

By SUSAN TOWLER

The Longwood College women's volleyball team cleaned up the past two weeks with four wins and one loss. Facing opponents such as Bridgewater, Ferrum College, Hampton Institute, James Madison University, and Hollins, the volleyball team showed what hard work and determination can do. Losing only to JMU the team now has a 5-2 record.

On October 1, the volleyball team defeated Bridgewater with scores of 15-9, 15-7, and 15-3 in the first match. Meg Cook and Julie Petefish both played outstanding games. Their skill and aggressiveness was a big threat to Bridgewater. In addition, the consistent play of Robin Hungate and Sherry Will brought the team together for good play. The most outstanding feature of the Bridgewater game, however, was the score of the last game of the first match. Trailing by a score of 2-13, Longwood pulled together to beat Bridgewater for the game and the match, recovering with a score of 15-13.

In the second match with Bridgewater, Longwood won with scores of 15-13, 3-15, and 15-10. The players worked hard in this match and came back to win the third game and the match.

Having their hands full on October 4, Longwood played both Hampton Institute with scores of 15-4 and 15-11. With identical scores they also beat Ferrum. The play in both of these matches was consistent and the team kept to their game plan as much as possible. Strong hitters and a smart defense were also great assets to Longwood in these matches.

Traveling to Hollins on October 16, Longwood played both Hollins and James Madison University. Longwood beat Hollins with scores of 15-13 and 15-18. The team played well and very consistent, even when Hollins threatened to come back. Rhonda Woody and Kathy Gunning, who usually substitute, started the second game of this match and stayed the entire game to help win the match.

Longwood lost to Madison with scores of 7-15 and 14-6. The second game of this match was very close and could have gone either way.

The volleyball team looks really strong this season. They have a lot of potential in two new team members, Kathy Gunning and Madeline Moose. These new team members and the already consistent old members combine to promise an exciting volleyball season. The next home match is against Christopher-Newport, October 24, at 6 p.m.

The conference ended with a debate between Senator Gary Hart (D-Colorado) and Senator William Cohen (R-Maine) with Mr. Burt of the New York Times acting as moderator.

Senator Hart emphasized that the treaty enhances U.S. security and lessens the chances of nuclear war. The treaty places limits on weapons and also forces the Soviets to dismantle ten per cent of their existing weapons. Hart went on to state that the U.S. is left unrestrained to continue its programs of defense which the U.S. feels necessary to their security.

Senator Cohen stated that there was no real reduction under SALT I or II He could not understand why the Soviet backfire bomber was not included in the agreement while the aged U.S. B-52 was. Cohen felt that the protocol which call for restraint of U.S. cruise missile would give the Russians an excellent bargaining position to start with when the protocol ran out and the U.S. deployed the cruise missile. He felt that the question of verification has not been adequately resolved considering such things as cruise missile range and misur in Soviet missiles cannot be verified. Cohen also believed that the sell publicized MX missile would not be deployed in the most advantageous way to the U.S. because of Soviet objectives to verification of the number of MX's.

SALT II

(Continued from Page 2)

wit and humor. He saw SALT as totally dominating U.S. foreign policy. Luttwak felt that SALT should be placed in a proper perspective which is a subordinate role to overall strategy. He thought that the U.S. last had an effective strategy between the years of 1944-1961 which was dominated by the U.S. policy of containment.

Saturday began with a lecture by Walter Slocum. He told the audience that SALT set meaningful limits on strategic arms and slowed a Soviet arms buildup which otherwise would not be curbed. Such items as ten misur per missile and also an overall ceiling of 2,250 on bombers and launchers, the last seminar session was on the "Consequences of Ratification or non-ratification of SALT II." Some delegates wondered if SALT II would really change anything in terms of expenditures and world stability, still others believed that if SALT process would be doomed to failure.

Sports At Home

HOCKEY
Oct. 23 - Va. Tech - 3 p.m.
Oct. 27 - VCU - 3 p.m.
VOLLEYBALL
Oct. 24 - Chris. Newport - 6 p.m.
Oct. 26 - Louisburg, E. Mennonite - 3 p.m.
TENNIS
Oct. 26 - VCU - 2:30 p.m.
Oct. 27 - Chris. Newport - 10:30 a.m.
SOCCER
Oct. 23 - VCU - 3 p.m.
Oct. 25 - George Mason - 2:30 p.m.
Oct. 27 - Mary Washington - 2 p.m.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

WE HAVE RUF CUT LUMBER FOR YOUR LOFTS & BUNKS

FOR ALL YOUR BUILDING MATERIAL NEEDS
COME SEE US...

TAYLOR MFG. CO.

CANOE FOR RENT

- Day Trips • Fishing Trips
- Camping • River Information

ARC also carries a full line of Canoes,
Kayaks & River Accessories.

Located in the Taylor Mfg. Co. building on North Main Street.

CALL BOB TAYLOR 392-3161

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26

2:30 p.m.
3:00, 4:00 & 5:00 p.m.
7:30 p.m.
8:30 p.m.
After Skits
12 Midnight

Tennis
Volleyball
Skits
Mime Troupe
Beer and Pretzel Party
Late Show

OCTOBERFEST 1979

Barlow
Iler
Jarman
Gold Room
Lower Dining Hall
Gold Room

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27

9:00 a.m.-11:00 a.m.
9:00 a.m.-12 Noon
9:00 a.m.
10:00 a.m.
10:00 a.m.
10:00 a.m.-12 Noon
10:00 a.m.- 2:00 p.m.
10:00 a.m.- 5:00 p.m.
10:00 a.m.- 5:00 p.m.
10:30 a.m.
11:30 a.m.- 1:00 p.m.
11:45 a.m.
12 Noon- 6:00 p.m.
1:00 p.m.
1:00 p.m.
1:00 p.m.- 3:00 p.m.
2:00 p.m.- 5:00 p.m.
2:00 p.m.- 5:00 p.m.
2:30 p.m.- 3:30 p.m.
2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00 p.m.
2:30, 3:00, 3:30, 4:00 p.m.
2:30 p.m.- 4:30 p.m.
2:30 p.m.- 4:30 p.m.
2:45, 3:45 p.m.
3:00 p.m.
3:30 p.m.
4:00 p.m.- 5:00 p.m.
5:00 p.m.- 6:30 p.m.
5:00 p.m.- 6:30 p.m.
7:30 p.m.
8:30 p.m.
After Skits
After CHI Walk

Mime Workshop
Admissions Tours
Parents Coffee and Registration
Parents Meeting
Color Rush
Alumni Executive Board Meeting
Longwood & VAGWS Girls' High School Golf Tournament
Works by Susan Waters - 19th Century Itinerant Painter Spirit Board Painting
Tennis
German Smorgasbord Picnic
Parents Advisory Council Meeting
Cake Display
Concert Choir
Soccer Game
Admissions Tours
Midway
Clown Face Painting
Longwood College Band Concert
H2O Water Show
Dance Company
Art Display
Biergarten
One-Act Play
Hockey Game
Rugby Game
Parents Cocktail/Social
Young Alumni Beer and Hot Dog Picnic
Dinner
Skits
Sound Gallery
CHI Walk
Cake Cutting and Sing

Gold Room

Jarman
Jarman
Iler
Board Room

Bedford Gallery
Information Booth
Barlow
Wheeler Mall
Prince Edward Room
Lower Dining Hall
Jarman
1st Avenue Field

Midway
French Pool
Barlow
Library Mall
Upper Dining Hall
Tabb Circle
Barlow
Campus School
Alumni House
Cabin
Dining Hall
Jarman
Red/White/Green Rooms
Colonnade
Lower Dining Hall

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 28

2:00 p.m. Concert

Lankford

THAT ICE CREAM
PLACE,
LTD
142 N. MAIN STREET
THE BEST HOT DOGS IN TOWN
COKE SPRITE MR PIBB
21 FLAVORS OF MONTICELLO
DAIRY ICE CREAM
SUNDAES, SODAS, BANANA
SPLITS
OPEN
Mon.-Sat. 11-5
Closed Sundays

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.
A Distinctive Writing
Pleasure
Give the pen that is the master of distinctive penmanship. The Cross soft tip in select and precious metals.
From $12.00.
CROSS
SINCE 1846
soft tip pens

SENIORS...
A reminder...It is time to make your appointment at
ROBERT T. FORE
PHOTOGRAPHY
119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

THE GREAT ESCAPE.

You dream about it at night... the day you can close your books, get out of this place and forget about studying for awhile.

Well, the Great Escape is here... this weekend, with Greyhound. Escape to the country or go see some friends. Just decide which escape route you want and we'll do the rest.

We'll get you out of town and away from the books so you can clear your head. It doesn't cost much and it'll do you a world of good.

So make the Great Escape this weekend... with Greyhound.

To	One-Way	Round-Trip	Depart	Arrive
Richmond	5 80	11 05	4 15	5 55
Springfield	12 55	23 85	4 15	9 30
Norfolk	14 45	27 50	4 15	9 45
Charlottesville	10 20	19 40	1 55	4 55
Roanoke	8 50	16 95	1 55	4 35

(Prices subject to change.)

C. L. SLAYTON West 3RD St 392-5153

GO GREYHOUND

$5 OFF
RENTAL OF ANY TUX
McKAY'S
111 N. Main Street Farmville, Virginia
— With This Coupon —

THE
HAIR shaft
HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU
DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT
HOURS
Mon. & Tues 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM
CALL 392-5685
Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Levi's
LARGEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S IN THIS AREA
JEANS SHACK
Levi's
• Adult Reg. Cords & Denim,
Straight Leg & Flare.
• Ladies Fashion Jeans
• Shirts
• Sweaters
• Jackets
• Roach Lettering
& Decals
PHONE 392-4870 SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER FARMVILLE, VA.

Happy Halloween

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1979

NO. 7

Blue Spirit Of Oktoberfest Shines

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Longwood's Blue-and-White spirit rose to its highest peak Saturday as the Oktoberfest der Geist 1979 climaxed with a big day of festivities. "Today showed the true love and friendship that grows from our spirit," commented one student on the overall support of the students.

Involvement in the German celebration started months ago with the leadership of nine very important people on campus: Geist. This year's Geist members are Debbie Northern, chairman of Oktoberfest; Cindy Morris, Teresa Ware, Charlie Mason, Bill McKaig, Jan Bates, Donna Hasky, Alice Clay, and Cindy Cummins.

Red and White spirit hit the top with their winning color rush and the skits, giving them the Oktoberfest Cup, the final score being 94 to 77. The skit score was 58 (Reds) to 52 (Greens). Green and White spirit is not to be overlooked, however, with their dedicated support of all these events. And when the colors flew on Wheeler Mall, Tuesday night, the Baby Green-and-Whites won the Paint battle. The Seniors won first place in the booth competition at Midway, Saturday, the Freshman class came in second, Sophomores, third, and the Juniors, fourth.

The Red-and-Whites also won in the spirit link competition sponsored by the Junior class. Tammy Lincks presented the chain with the help of the Klowns at Saturday night skits.

The class skits were both original and diverse this year with the greens showing Oktoberfest spirit in "Die Fliedermas" and the reds showing that traditions change, but the meaning of Longwood stays the same in "Blue and White Will Never Die." Much hard work was put into the scripts, musical scenes, dance arrangements, sets, costumes and performances. Class Chairmen of Oktoberfest: Sue Transue, Pam Cudike, Ken Jones, and Nick Ciucci headed up the class activities.

Midway's opening highlighted Saturday's festivities. Mid-afternoon found most of the parents, alumni, and students gathered around some booth, ranging from the Junior class's Oktoberfest mugs to the Freshman's frustration pencils. Others were ordering yearbooks, buying t-shirts, and playing games. Favorite attractions included the face painting and the Klown dunking booth. I. B. Dent attracted special attention there. Those that were not found on the midway could be found relaxing and "living it up" in the biergarten.

The choir concert featured its annual pops concert. They performed to an almost packed auditorium, which enjoyed the familiar tunes. The newly formed Jazz Band Ensemble was a special feature at the concert. The choir consists of over 100 female voices and is under the direction of Dr. Louard E. Egbert.

The Oktoberfest Cake this year was four color class balloons with an usher and usherette dancing in the center. The Cake took ten hours for the ARA kitchens to complete, the total weight being 400 pounds.

In an all-round fashion, Oktoberfest was a huge success for everyone involved.

Oktoberfest Class Chairmen are featured in Midway Parade.

Student Dies In Accident

Longwood senior, Stephen K. Nelson, was killed in a two-car collision, Sunday morning in Rockingham County.

According to Virginia State Police dispatcher the accident occurred at 1:25 a.m. 1½ miles West of Elkton, Virginia on Route 33. There were two vehicles involved, Nelson's Datsun and a Ford LTD.

Nelson was traveling west in the East bound lane of Route 33. He was killed instantly, according to Investigating State Trooper E. M. Harris.

Trooper Harris also stated that the accident was still under investigation. He said that there was a witness to the accident, and that there was no excessive speed involved on either vehicle.

There were two occupants of the second car who received minor lacerations and broken bones.

Nelson was a member of the Longwood Soccer team and of Sigma Phi Epsilon Social Fraternity. He was a native of Charlottesville. Funeral services have been scheduled for Tuesday.

Miss Longwood

1980

By CHERYL WILCOX

If you are interested in becoming Miss Longwood 1980 applications are now available. Applications were sent out this week to all campus organizations, but additional applications can be picked up from Sharon Raunswinder in Stubbs 222. This year's entrance fee is nine dollars per contestant.

The date for preliminaries is set for November 14 and 15 in the Gold Room. Interested contestants will be notified when the deadline for applications is due. A banquet will be held on November 7 for all contestants and all pageant committee members.

A little additional information which might be of interest is that this year's Miss Longwood will receive a $1,000 scholarship. Joy Serene, pageant committee chairman, hopes for a large amount of interest in the pageant.

This year's pageant committee consists of: Chairman — Joy Serene, and her assistant, Sharon Raunswinder; Director — Cheryl Wilcox, and her assistant, Terriann Poore; Producer — Cary Bell and her assistant, Sara Stump, and Business Manager — Wayne Moore. Dr. Louard Egbert will serve as advisor, co-sponsors Peggy Golubic and Barbara Stonikinis.

Don't forget to pick up your application this week to be Miss Longwood 1980.

New Committees Added

By KIM CAVE

Dr. Carolyn Wells, Academic Dean of the college, has recently assigned three new committees, one being an ad hoc committee, and the other two, standing committees. They are: the ad hoc committee to study the five-day period (before exams), the Teacher Education Council, and the Council for Research on Human Subjects.

Dean Wells said that the need for the ad hoc committee had arisen as a result of controversy and misinterpretation over what can and cannot be done the week before exams begin. Also, the passages found in the college catalog and the student handbook on the five-day period do not clearly agree with one another. One names the time element as seven-days and the other calls it five-days.

In the past, it seems that some faculty members have abided by the policy which says no major tests or assignment shall be given and no major meetings held the five (seven) days prior to the beginning of exams, but some others have not. The purpose of the ad hoc committee will be to clear up all discrepancies and misinterpretations concerning the policy, or do away with it altogether.

The members of the ad hoc committee are: Dr. E. T. Noone, chairman; Mr. Peter Cunningham, Dr. Richard Heinemann, Col. Raymond Gilchrist, Mrs. Carmelita Tinnell, and Cindy Byrd, student representative. Dean Wells urges students to give any ideas and/or questions to Dr. Noone. It is hoped that the committee will come up with a solution by May, so it can be implemented next year.

The two standing committees assigned resulted as requests to the dean from their individual chairmen to help fill the needs of their individual departments. The Teacher Education Council Committee members are: Dr. Charles Patterson, chairman; Dr. John Arehart, Dr. Lee Banton, Dr. Crayton Buck, Dr. Marguerite Griffith, Miss Anne Huffman, Dr. Louis Kovacs, Dr. Bruce Montgomery, Mr. Edwin Vassar, Dr. Carolyn Wells, and Mrs. Rebecca Butcher and Miss Sheila Parker, student members. The Council for Research on Human Subjects committee members are: Dr. Jerry Cardwell, chairman; Dr. Donald Merkle, Miss Eva McCreary, Dr. Ed Smith, Miss R. Aileen Lintz, Mrs. Gail Gilligan, Dr. William Harbour, and Dr. Gerald Graham.

Board Changes In Process

By SHARON JANOVICH

The Judicial Board at Longwood is in the process of undergoing some changes that they feel will enable procedures to be more efficient.

Primarily, the investigation procedure (initiated and first used by Chairman Teresa McLawhorn) is being studied, and a possible structure change may take place. Possibly, the investigation procedure may be improved and bettered.

Vanadism is now handled by the Administration, due to the Judicial Board not possessing beneficial and/or appropriate violation penalties. The procedures dealing with narcotics are of major concern at this time.

"Serious violations of student conduct are being investigated," said Miss McLawhorn. "The Administration is working with us and the change will most likely be a major one. One change I am excited about is having two males on Judicial Board. Eric Benjamin and Keith Moore do a terrific job."

She went on to say that "All else concerning Judicial Board has stayed the same. Right now we are working on some changes, and hope soon to complete these changes."

Feature Series:

Residence Board And IAA

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a series of articles dedicated to describing the offices to be elected in the upcoming Major-Minor elections. This week's article features the Residence Board and Intramural Activities Association. Students should give special consideration to the job requirements.)

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

The main purpose of the Residence Board is to promote and enforce beneficial study conditions and to motivate within the student body refinement in social conduct. The Residence Board works with the Residence Hall presidents which are elected by each hall. Residence Hall Councils in each Residence Hall function under and work with the purpose of Residence Board to make and enforce the Residence Hall, Dining Hall, fire, and social regulations.

The Residence Board investigates and tries cases. The chairman of the Residence Board presides over all meetings and deals with the administration. Vice-chairman is head investigator and chairman of Dining Committee. He also works closely with the chairman in dealing with the administration. The secretary takes minutes and handles the filing. The Fire Warden is in charge of fire drills and fires. There are two elected investigators who investigate cases and bring them to trial.

The purpose of the Intramural Activities Association is to promote participation in intramurals and other activities for enjoyment of the student. Some of those activities are: Color Rush — a series of relay races between greens and reds during Oktoberfest weekend; and Song Contest — a competition between classes for the best song held in February; and various team and individual intramurals. The treasurer of I.A.A. usually is in charge of Color Rush. The vice-president is in charge of Song Contest. The secretary records the minutes, and the president coordinates the whole program.

The I.A.A. also has its own Check-Out Equipment system where the student will be able to sign out any type of sporting equipment that the I.A.A. has to offer. I.D.'s must be presented to check out any equipment.

The I.A.A. Board is made up of the elected officers as well as representatives elected by each dorm. Meetings of the organization are weekly and open to the entire school. Students are recommended to run for these offices or else there will not be any intramurals in the future.

Craft Exhibition

The Colonnade Club is sponsoring an Artists Night Sale featuring demonstrations and sale of crafts by several Virginia craftsmen. The sale will take place on Thursday, November 8, from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Red-White-Green Rooms.

Exhibiting will be potter Tray Eppes, woodcrafters Carmon Cooper and Frank Robinson, silversmith George Loody, cornhusk doll maker Peggie Kilgore and weaver Danby Ludgate.

All students, faculty and staff of the College are invited to attend. Lemonade and pretzels will be served.

Committee

Hears Complaints

By MIKE O'HARE

When one has constructive criticism of the Dining Hall, one can air one's complaints to the Dining Hall Committee. This organization's purpose is to provide a means of communications between Food Services and the student body.

This committee consists of representatives from the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes, waiters and waitresses, plus Dining Hall hosts and hostesses; in addition, there are representatives from several prominent campus organizations. Dean Mary Heintz is a member, as is Gordon Inge, manager of the Dining Hall.

The group meets with a degree of regularity—about once a month. During their meetings, the Committee discusses various problems which relate to the Dining Hall. According to Inge, criticisms lodged against the Dining Hall will be corrected, if at all "feasible."

"The more communication we can have with the student body, the better!" insists Inge. Inge urges all students to contact a committee representative if they want the committee to consider their opinions. Each class elects a representative to the committee. "Students are welcome to come see me," the influential Inge added.

Bad Checks Present Problem

By KAREN PARKER

Longwood College students have been experiencing problems with Farmville merchants, lately. A problem of major concern is that of not being allowed to cash or write checks. According to some local merchants this problem stems from the high rate of bad checks received from students.

The Legislative Board has formed a committee, the Bad Check Committee, to investigate this situation. The committee hopes to discover a possible solution to develop better relations between students and merchants.

Legislative Board began its investigation by visiting local stores and banks, questioning them on their present check situation. The committee discovered many merchants are refusing to cash checks and some banks will not cash a check unless the student has an account with their bank. Other merchants continuously receive bad checks, especially on Friday as students leave for the week end.

One suggestion from a Farmville merchant is that students open checking accounts in town. Some merchants have tried to alleviate this problem by having students fill out a check cashing card to be presented in their store when writing or cashing a check.

Tammy Bird, a member of this committee, stated, "Legislative Board is serving for the welfare of the students. It is striving through this committee to eliminate the future problems with delinquency of checks. The students cooperation in this matter is greatly appreciated."

A Woman's Place

From Public Relations

Home economists and their guests from throughout the Virginia Home Economics Association's Central Region will gather here on Monday, November 5, to learn about women's legal and financial responsibilities, their place in the work force, and the plight of displaced homemakers.

The regional meeting will begin with registration and coffee from 9:30 to 10 a.m. in the Lankford Building on the Longwood campus.

Dr. Nancy Young, a licensed professional counselor from Lynchburg, will speak at 10:15 a.m. on the topic, "What's New with Women in Today's Work Force." She will trace the history of the influx of women into the work force and discuss what's happening today, with its challenges and opportunities.

Dr. Young works with Alty Associates, a consulting firm offering corporate performance services to business, educational institutions, and public service organizations in many facets of management. With primary emphasis on women, she conducts training in human resource development and management of time and stress.

At 11 a.m., Mary Jo Sledd will discuss the financial responsibilities facing the working woman. Ms. Sledd is a stock broker and member of the board of the Women's Bank of Richmond.

Rosel Schewel, wife of State Senator Elliott Schewel, will speak at 11:45 a.m. on "Displaced Homemakers." Mrs. Schewel is an adjunct faculty member at Lynchburg College, serves on the board of Virginia Baptist Hospital, and is an active member of the League of Women Voters. She is now serving as chairman of the displaced Homemaker's Committee of the Women's Resource Center of Central Virginia.

All three of these addresses are open to the public at no charge. Persons interested in attending the entire day's program, including luncheon, are asked to contact Melinda Ingram, Department of Home Economics at Longwood College, for reservations.

One of the pictures displayed at the art exhibits on campus.

Display Includes Works By Longwood Faculty

By BARBARA BAKER

The Richmond Artists Association is currently displaying artworks in Lancaster Library. The exhibit, on display until November 16, includes works by two talented Longwood teachers, Miss Barbara Bishop and Homer Springer.

The Richmond Artists Association is an organization of artists with common interests and a desire to exhibit their work. Most of their work on exhibit is for sale. The works include various medias of acrylic, hand-made paper, collage, pencil, charcoal, pen and ink, oil, and watercolor. Richmond natives will recognize the Masque in an exceptional acrylic painting of a ballet dancer. Miss Bishop said the show was one of "good quality works," and she is "pleased to have it here."

Another exhibit by Longwood artists is on display at Eggleston Library, Hampden-Sydney College through November 9. The works, by last Spring's Print-Making class, consists of various medias of photo silkscreen, etching, woodcutting, linoleum and experimental relief. There are also some artworks on exhibit by Hampden-Sydney students.

Paperbacks Available

The Library staff would like to call your attention to the display case at the foot of the steps in periodicals, labeled "Swap Shelves." We have placed on these shelves some paperback books that have been given to the library. They are the only books in the library that may be taken without filling out a card. We hope you will enjoy them and return them. If you have any paperback books you no longer need, please donate them for these shelves, so that others may enjoy them, too.

SENIORS...

A reminder...It is time to make your appointment at

ROBERT T. FORE

PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va.; 392-8710

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

Pops Music Comes Alive

By SHARON JANOVICH

"Concert Choir was good last year, and they'll be even better this year," said Dr. Egbert, one week before the actual Oktoberfest concert, which indeed does seem to improve every year.

The concert began with the Concert Choir singing "The King and I" by Richard Rodgers, "Send in the Clowns" by Stephen Sondheim and "Fool on the Hill" by Lennon and McCartney. The Choir then exited to make way for the Jazz Ensemble, which did an excellent job on "Another Kind of Blues," "Hey Jude," "Watermelon Man," "Just the Way You Are" and "Peg." "We've only been together since September, and are still learning and practicing quite a bit" said their conductor, Frank Coffey.

The Jazz Ensemble was followed by solos by Choir members. Andrea Mott sang "Long, Long Ago" which was a beautiful melody written by Longwood's own Betsy Duncan. Miss Mott was followed by Nancy Hewins, singing "Walk it Off," a blues selection. One of the concert highlights then followed with Jennifer Ferguson, Joanne Mosca and Andrea Mott singing "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" by John Raye. The Lennon Sisters would probably have been a bit envious, after hearing that particular performance.

The Concert Choir then returned to sing "The Winds of the Sixties" arranged by John Coates, with such selections as "Moon River," "Downtown" and "I Want to Hold Your Hand." Following "The Winds of the Sixties" was "In the Mood" by Joe Garland. "Do you hear the beat? Gets you in the mood; gets you tapping your feet," began the Concert Choir. Much to everyone's surprise, seven of the Concert Choir members appeared to perform a dance choreographed by Marjorie LaReau. The dancers were Doug Blevins, Pamela Craft, Sharon Janovich, Lou Howell, Melanie Hudnall, Marjorie LaReau, Joanne Mosca, and Andrea Mott.

"Who's the man with the Beautiful Eyes?" sang Melanie Hudnall during the dance, followed by Lou Howell singing "Come Swing with me NOW what a wing it'll be!" Meanwhile, Doug Blevins was dancing from girl to girl when Sharon Janovich sang "May I intrude? Don't keep me waiting. I'm in the mood! Hold me tight, let's dance. Boy, oh boy, it's a dreamy romance!" The choreography took them to the very end of the selection where the girls raised hands and joined the concert choir in the last line in "In the Mood," showing that the Concert Choir was truly "In the Mood" for this year's Oktoberfest Concert.

Reserve A Librarian

By JOAN CRUMPTON

If you are having trouble starting the research paper that you were "just" assigned, then maybe you should check into the counseling service that the library is offering.

Some preliminary research should be done before going to the library to fill out an appointment request form. The form should be filled out at least two days in advance. These forms can be picked up at the library or you can call 392-9376 or 392-9377 and ask to speak with someone in the Reference Room.

At this point the Librarian working with you on a one-to-one basis can suggest several reference tools, where to find them and how to use them.

The librarians prefer not to do this on week nights or during the (Continued on Page 8)

Sound Gallery Sparkles

By GEORGE BENNETT

The Sound Gallery last Saturday night was the setting for what only could be described as a "journey back in musical time."

The Michael Guthrie Band was the guest at an almost sold-out crowd and performed almost 3 hours of solid Rock 'n Roll. This three-member group out of Atlanta, Ga. got a very tired audience (who wouldn't be after a day like Saturday, way up on its feet with such favorites as the Who's "Pictures of Lily" and "Substitute" along with a few original songs.

The band started back in 1964 with two brothers, Mike and Herb Guthrie in Hamburg, Germany. Seven years ago, they picked up their bass player, Mike McIntosh and based their act in Atlanta. Besides hard driving vocals by all three members, this band succeeded where many others have failed by way of the purity of this musicianship.

For all those that attended The Sound Gallery it was an evening of pure entertainment.

Tom Sullivan plays at Tuesday night's Open Mike.

Music Convention, Weekend Event

By CECILIA WHITE

The annual Virginia Music Teachers Association (VMTA) Convention for 1979 was held here this weekend.

Guest Convention artist was the renowned Ms. Ruth Slenegynska, also known as the "Wonderkind." Ms. Slenegynska has been hailed as a "Second Mozart," appearing in her first performance at the age of four with Isaac Steer. She closed out the convention on Sunday, October 21, with a lecture demonstration: Chopin's Impromptu.

Among others at the convention were Longwood personalities Dr. Louard E. Egbert, currently chairman of the Department of Music, and Thomas A. Williams, associate professor of Music.

VMTA performers also included our very own Dr. Paul Hesselink who presented an organ recital on Saturday, October 20. Others were Allan Blank, associate professor at VCU, who has been chosen as Commissioned Composer, his composition being entitled "Introduction and Rondo Fantastics for Basson and Piano," Walter Noona, presently director of Virginia Beach Civic Chorus, the Virginia Orchestra Group and St. Nicholas School, and Dr. Milton Granger, piano teacher at Hollins College, and his wife, Linda, who performed Brahms-Hayden Variations. Debussy-EnBlanc it Noie for piano duet.

Friday evening performers included the Cameratas in Dixit Dominas by Mozart, and Rene Rowland singing "Non Pin mesta" from Rossini's opera Cinderella. Other winners of the VTMA concerts competition held last August appeared with Nonna.

McCarthy And Mann Perform

By JUDISTANLEY

The One-Act Play performed twice on Saturday afternoon on the Lancaster Mall had only two characters, played by Carrie McCarthy and Vicky Mann. Despite a few minor problems with lines, the characterizations of the two women were well-portrayed.

In the one-act, the women, whose children were grown, had nothing left to live for. They fantasized about their children, their husbands, and their lives. One woman said, "I'm sick of being me," and so she simply ignored the life she had and lived in fantasy.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

CANOE FOR RENT

- Day Trips • Fishing Trips
- Camping • River Information

ARC also carries a full line of Canoes, Kayaks & River Accessories. Located in the Taylor Mfg. Co. building on North Main Street. CALL BOB TAYLOR 392-3161

Quiet Riot Performs Silent Demonstration

By GEORGE BENNETT, III

The sign said simply, "Welcome to an evening of Mime." But what unfolded as two men approached the stage was more like a "Happening."

Kevin O'Connor and Bill Metter were the two performers in the Mime Company. "The Quiet Riot" who brought their unique form of Mime, storytelling and gymnastics to the Gold Room last Friday night. Their show consisted of over an hour of innovative theater. The many glimpses of life they mimicked were easily recognizable in the skits they performed.

Giving an exacting reality to their movements, O'Connor and Metter captivated the "standing room only" audience with skits such as the comic "Pay Toilet" of which everyone instantly identified. One of the most poignant points of the night was the brilliant interpretation in the skit "Visions of a Mental Patient," in which O'Connor portrayed the anguish associated with a person trapped within his own mind, and how each of us can empathize with him. With a recording by Musica Orbus setting the mood for him, O'Connor seemed to sense of his audience a feeling of inapplicable torment which hung over the audience like a fog.

Then to the enjoyment of the crowd, Bill Metter armed with an amiable voice and humorous gestures, told the story of an all-too-human truck driver and how he "crushed" his antagonists, to close their show they showed what it would be like to have a life-size "Mechanical Doll" and with some impromptu volunteers from the audience, gave some hilarious implications of what you could do with it.

"Quiet Riot" was not the term to use at the close of their show as the crowd gave a well-deserved standing ovation to their superb performance. To show their appreciation they returned and did a comic sketch on two persons waiting for a bus.

Metter gave the reason why mime is such a unique form of art, because "it's the only job where you can create stories. Mime in its ability to be self-contained give the performers the ability to create imaginary worlds." On where he draws the material for his skits, O'Connor stated, "I'm into pain. Well... to make it more clear, I take a look at when people are void of hope. I try not to give answers, only to portray the sense of struggle that they are experiencing."

The next day a workshop was given in the Red, White and Green Room with both Mimists showing with words and skillful articulation the main "tools" a minst uses to convey the main message to his audience using only his actions. This workshop was to its participants both informative and educational.

Special thanks to the "Quiet Riot." If Mime "is the art of imagining the world together with others," then this statement was justly fulfilled at its finest.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR. Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR. Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF: Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth,
Mary Grant, Jodi Gilbert, Joan
Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley
Clara, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom
Harris, Lynn Swan, Sherry Carmony,
David Gatts, Thomas Cole, Steven
Whitten, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker,
Mike O'Hare, Donna Hasky, Judi
Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug
Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner,
Jackie Stear, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon
Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Cecilia White,
Beth Parratt, Robin Black, Chuck Cole,
Janet Reynolds

Members of the S.W.M.A.
Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of Holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.

Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the writers. Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

(Editor's Note: It is the policy of The Rotunda not to print a letter to the Editor unless the letter is signed by the writer. The person writing the letter can then request that it be printed unsigned. The Rotunda received an unsigned letter this week. It will be printed after the writer contacts the newspaper.)

In Memorium

To The Longwood Community:
For most everyone, Oktoberfest '79 was a joyous occasion. But the celebrations for this year's Oktoberfest have had a tragic ending. On the night of Saturday past, Steve Nelson, a good friend to many here at Longwood, died in a car accident.

To those of you who didn't know Steve, the loss may not seem great. But take the time to look upon the faces of those who knew him—his SPE brothers, soccer teammates, and his fellow classmates. Then you might know a little of what Steve Nelson was to his friends.

It cannot be helped that we shall mourn for Steve for some time. But after you have dried your eyes, try to cheer up—if Steve could talk to us now, he would probably ask that your day not be ruined just on his account.

What else can be done? There is very little any of us can do to overcome the feeling of helplessness about Steve's death. But take the time to say a prayer for Steve's family, for they are the ones who are hardest hit. Let's not remember Oktoberfest '79 as the time when Steve Nelson died. Rather, let's remember Steve as he was in his brief life here on earth. And finally, thank God you were lucky enough to call Steve your friend.

Fellow Mourner

Thank You's

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank everyone who took part in Oktoberfest 1979 — the Reds, Greens, Klowns, Ushers, Meisters, students, faculty, administration, staff, and visitors. You all added a special touch to the spirit of the weekend.

In addition, I would especially like to commend my fellow Geist members: Cindy Morris for her work with Klowns, Jan Bates as usher and Meister chairman, Donna Haskey for Cake Cutting and Biergarten, Teresa Ware as Midway Chairman, Alice Clay as Ticket and Information Booth Chairman, Cindy Cummins as Publicity Chairman, Bill McKaig as Judges and Spirit Board Chairman, and Charley Mason as Skits Advisor and Spirit Board Chairman. Also a special thanks goes to our advisors, Mrs. Nancy Shelton and Dean Terri Swann for keeping me cool and collected.

I enjoyed my part in Oktoberfest '79 and bringing the spirit of unity and fun to the campus. I hope everyone had a fantastic time!

Sincerely,
Debbie Northern
Chairman of Oktoberfest

Editor's Turn

"Among the gleaming columns, Along the crowded halls, A spirit dwells among us . . ." A spirit dwells . . . and it has its peaks. One of those peaks at Longwood is Oktoberfest. Through the struggles and trials of making successful Oktoberfest, we, the students found the true love and togetherness of friendship. That is the spirit that dwells among us!

Everyone has to have leaders — that's a known fact. Those leaders in Oktoberfest ranged from the class committee chairmen to Geist, who headed up the festivities. They all deserve a great hand. The nine members of Geist should be congratulated for their great leadership and many hours of hard work.

There are also three other very important leaders that the celebration could not have done without. These three people were drawn into their positions to honor them for their already shown spirit and participation in the school. These three continued to shine throughout the many preparations for Oktoberfest and during the weekend. And even though they had three million things to do, they could always take on one more . . . They were the Meisters: Dave Gates from the Senior Class as Geistmeister, Cheryl Wilcox from the Junior Class as Festmeister, and Duke Rollins from the Sophomore Class as Mittenmeister. Our spirit has grown through their leadership, and we thank them.

We have survived the glorious weekend of celebration and anticipation of the Mass Murder on Longwood's campus.

It's always interesting to sit back and listen to hear the many sided accounts of a rumor. Especially when it is something as exciting and horrifying as an account of Jean Dixon's prediction of a Mass Murder on Longwood's Campus. Students were either terrified or ecstatic with laughter. And from it stemmed many different versions of the story. Who knows which one is true?

One Longwood student claimed the account read that it would happen on one of five small Virginian colleges, Longwood being one of them. Another claim was that the Virginian school name would have an "L" in it, Longwood has an "L."

The most outrageous was however that there would be a sniper on the roof of Jarman during the Oktoberfest picnic, Saturday. If he was there — we sure did not see him.

Everyone agreed, however, that she said it would happen this past weekend. And it did not! So, we must assume that we are now safe from any Mass Murderer of Farmville!

Bang! Bang! This is not the end!

MCC

G-n-W Thanks

Dear Editors,

We, as members of the Green-and-Whites, would like to take this opportunity to do several things.

First, we would like to congratulate the Red-and-Whites in winning the Oktoberfest Cup. You did a terrific job on your booths, in skits, and in color rush!

Next, we would like to take this opportunity to thank two very special people who led us in Oktoberfest. They were our Chairmen— Junior Ken Jones and Freshman Nick Ciucci. They both did an excellent job.

Also thanks to our Green-and-White committee chairman and those special few who put out so much. Their spirit makes us proud to be a part of the gang!

Love,
A Couple of
Green-and-Whites

Business Graduate Successful

By JUDI STANLEY

Though Jack Reynolds, a 26 year old 1979 graduate of Longwood College, has only recently received his degree in business, he has been employed as manager of Jeans Shack in the Southgate Plaza here in Farmville.

Jeans Shack, owned by Lowell Thomason, is a small chain with stores in Colonial Heights, Petersburg, and Charlottesville. Reynolds said that the store is definitely doing as well as expected and that business is expected to improve as more people learn of Jeans Shack's existence.

Reynolds feels that, for someone just out of school, his job entails a good deal of responsibility. As manager of Jeans Shack, he is in charge of hiring and supervising the personnel for his store. Price changes, ordering merchandise, bookkeeping, and anything else that directly pertains to his store. Reynolds enjoys his work very much, saying that he meets many different kinds of people and has gained much knowledge about the business world. He further explained, "It's amazing how much...economic education and maturity that you get being in a position like this."

Before Reynolds attended

Longwood, he earned an associate degree from Southside Virginia Community College. After obtaining his degree from SVCC, he worked for a few years as a dye specialist, a steel plant parts line checker, and with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. While attending Longwood, Reynolds continued to work part time with ASCS. When asked why he returned to school, Reynolds replied, "I could see a lot of benefits in it...Education definitely helps...when you're trying to advance in this line of work."

At Longwood Reynolds majored in business with a concentration in management. Some of the classes that he took which are helping him most now are Personal Finance, management and accounting classes, and "just all the business classes help." Lacking three hours for a minor in psychology, Reynolds feels that Industrial Psychology was one of the most helpful also.

Until he hires an assistant manager, Reynolds will be spending a great deal of his time at the store. However, he still finds the time for life at home in Charlotte Court House. Describing himself as "an avid auto enthusiast," Reynolds explained that he loves "to fool around with cars," especially antiques. Right now he owns five antique cars and enjoys finding them, fixing them up, and sometimes selling them. Reynolds also owns some land where he does a little farming and is making plans to raise cattle. He enjoys walking through the woods on his land and being able to say, "Hey, this is mine."

Reynolds said that, considering all things, he feels "really lucky that I'm this close to home and this close to school, with all my friends, and still being in the position that I am in...They trained me well and I guess they figured I could handle it." Reynolds also pointed out that his recommendations on file in the Placement Office were important in his getting the managerial job. He added, "All of Longwood's administration, faculty, and staff were always very helpful. Without everyone's support and trust, success would be hard to attain."

In closing, Reynolds made the remark that, "Going to school was one of the best choices of my life, and I wouldn't take anything for it. Being older, I could realize how important school is and how it would benefit one of these days."

Have You Considered ROTC?

By TOM DEWITT

"Have you thought of joining R.O.T.C.? No, I didn't think so." This conversation is very common around campus. The average person just doesn't get into flying around in helicopters, rappelling off high buildings, or canoeing down the James on a Saturday afternoon. All of this training is good and all can be done by just being in the Basic Course (first two years). However, have you ever thought what R.O.T.C. can mean financially? Let's get back to the Basic Course. It is just what its name implies. You learn the basics about the Army, Military, History, Leadership, and Map Reading. All are two hour classes that you can add or drop just like any P.E. or Science Class. As far as the Army is concerned, they don't know you unless you have a scholarship. You're just a student at Longwood College.

Basic Camp

O-kay, you missed the boat your sophomore year and soon you'll be a junior. There's still hope. If you're still indecisive about the Army but you think you want to give it a try, go to Basic Camp. It is in Fort Knox, Kentucky, and held three times a summer, each session lasting six weeks. At Basic Camp you'll learn all about the Army of course, but you'll also get paid for your efforts. Pay is usually in the neighborhood of $500. If you do exceptionally well you also might win a scholarship.

At the end of Basic Camp you have a decision to make; to continue into the advanced program or not to. At this point you still are not committed to the Army.

Scholarships

Four, three, two and one year scholarships may be awarded to anyone in or who will be in the R.O.T.C. program. The scholarship pays for all tuition and lab fees. However, if you are a scholarship student you are committed to four years active duty.

Advance Camp

Advance Camp is attended between your Junior and Senior years. At this time you put into practice all things that you have learned in your first year of the Advanced course. The payment received for this camp is approximately $600.

Advance Program

I see you made it, great, we can go on from here. The Advanced Program is the real start of learning leadership skills. It is at this time that you also sign your contract and commit yourself to the Army, Army Reserves or National Guard. Now you also begin to receive a check for $100 a month. Your commitment, after you sign is for six years in the National Guard or Army Reserves (ADT).

Let me explain this further. After you graduate you will be commissioned a Second Lt. in the Guard or Reserves. You will go to your officer's basic school (OBC) for three months, at which time you will be paid as a 2nd Lt. After your officer's basic course you are free to go home, find a job, go to graduate school, or do whatever you wish. You will also have your commitment to the Guard of Reserves. One week end out of every month and two weeks in the summer you will be required to go to a meeting in your area. As a 2nd Lt. you will receive $97.72 for your week end and close to $600 for your two weeks during the summer. This you'll do for four years (Pay increases will come with Promotions). Ah, but the commitment is for six years. For the remaining two years you are placed on an inactive Reserve list which means you no longer go on week ends or during the summer. Your name is on a list and you will be called if you are needed. Your commitment to the Army is finished.

There is another route you can take if you wish. Upon commissioning, you can go on active duty. If you do this your commitment is cut to four years. Active duty means the Army is your job for four years. You will be stationed with Regular Army units all over the world or in the U.S. and serve as a 2nd Lt. after commissioning you report to your OBC and are sent to your first duty assignment. If this is the route you take, it's good to know that coming right out of college your starting salary will be $12,751.32 per year ($13,363.32 if married), plus all the military benefits and privileges. After one and one half years your salary jumps to $16,524.52 ($19,087.32 if married). Land a job like that coming out of college today and you are lucky.

Added Advantages

Most people are not interested in going on active duty and the Guard having a critical demand for 2nd Lts. has started a new program. It is called the SMP (Continued on Page 12)

Senior Spotlight:

Social Work Major Encourages Involvement

By SHARON JANOVICH

"Okay everyone—carefully—let's come down from the pyramid!" this week's Senior Spotlight, Lynn Plageman, might have been heard to say, as an Oktoberfest klown her sophomore and junior years. This year, Lynn was chosen as an usherette for Oktoberfest. "I missed not being a klown this year, but have really enjoyed being an usherette. I ushered everyone to their seats and then we did the Midway dance, among other things. We served mainly as spirit boosters. It was so much fun!"

Lynn Plageman is presently the vice-chairman of Residence Board, President of Alpha Sigma Tau Social Sorority, Head Student Assistant, Dining Hall Committee Chairman, Constitutional Review Committee, Longwood College Council and Vice President of last year's junior class. "I love being so involved, but one thing to learn is how to take involvement in stride. I had to find a balance between involvement and academics and stick to it," said

Lynn. "I am a social work major and plan on going to graduate school, if I can get an assistantship. I'd really like to work with children, like in child abuse, or something, which I imagine, stems from me having four younger brothers and sisters. My whole social work department is terrific," said Lynn. "They are honest and straightforward, and tell us what they think, which teaches us to be honest in dealing with people."

Lynn went on to say that "This year's Oktoberfest klowns were original. They were funny and really spirited. Guys were involved in Oktoberfest, too."

When asked about the males at Longwood, Lynn said, "the guys are really taking stands on things and the fraternities are trying to get an Inter-Fraternity Council. Guys are really getting involved. And we've been lucky to get such good guys here at Longwood."

Lynn attended St. Gertrude's High School and loved the closeness and friendliness there. Lynn went on to say that she had found the same closeness here. "Working with people is most important to me, and people here are such fun to work with. I just wish that Longwood wasn't called a suitcase college."

She praises Student Union for trying to change that image, but adds that more big weekend events are needed. To get the most out of college she feels, participation and working together are two of the most important things. "We just need more involvement," concluded Lynn.

Lynn plans to continue her education by working on her master's degree next year. The best of luck to her as a 1980 graduate in Social Work from Longwood College.

Book Review:

Rolling Stone Visits Saturday Night Live

By MARK M. SLOAN

"LIVE...FROM NEW YORK...IT'S SATURDAY NIGHT!" With these words has begun many an entertaining evening for anyone who rearranges their weekend partying in order to watch what is probably the best in improvisational comedy on contemporary television. Unaccountable is the number of times I have seen keg parties halted, blenders unplugged, stereos silenced, and other forms of weekend paraphernalia stashed away in order for everyone to go watch Saturday Night Live. The show itself needs no introduction to anyone residing in the continental U. S., having collected quite a large following in the past few years (so why do they still call themselves The Not-ready-for-prime-time-players?). Being such a popular phenomenon, it is no wonder that books are being written about the show, and the most recent is entitled Rolling Stone Visits Saturday Night Live. This volume captures the elan vital, the coldly intellectual wit, and the essential hubris of Saturday Night Live. In case the reader misses this point, it is printed on the back cover: "Only the editors of Rolling Stone could have captured the elan vital, the coldly intellectual wit, and the

(Continued on Page 12)

Octoberfest

My

Princess

79

Members of the sophomore class work on their booth before the judges arrive.

Skits Show Oktoberfest Spirit

By BETH RITCHIE

The 1979 Oktoberfest skits begin with a warm traditional welcome from the ushers and usherettes. This warmth was continued in the official welcoming speech made by Mittenmeister Duke Rollins. The klowns of Oktoberfest gave an exhibition of their acrobatic skills. Next the class chairmen were introduced by Geistmeister Dave Gates. The class chairmen were Senior Susie Transue and Sophomore Pam Updike (Red and White) and Junior Ken Jones and Freshman Nick Cuicci (Green and White). Next, Festmeister Cheryl Wilcox gave a summary of the day's events and introduced the skits.

The narrator of the Green and White skit, Bill LeWarne, explained that the skit would deal with the German legend of The Bat. The Green and White interpretation of the legend involved a mysterious stranger from Romania who comes to a small German town, played by Mark Winecoff, is followed to the town by Professor Van Helesnik played by Frank Crea. In the course of the skit it becomes apparent that the mysterious stranger is a vampire and that the Professor has come to the town to capture and perhaps kill him. At the Oktoberfest celebration, the stranger and the professor are encouraged to join in the festivities by the toastmeister (Jim Dunn) and his daughter Issa (Marie Dovillard). However, the professor and the stranger remain intent upon destroying one another. The moment in which the two men met is intense, however, due to the intervention Issa, neither of the two men are harmed. The mysterious stranger states the "even one such as me" can not help but feel the warmth of the townspeople and the spirit of Oktoberfest. The professor realizes that he, too, may have been wrong to pursue the stranger. He states that "there is perhaps a little good in the worst of us." The theme of the Green and White skit was summarized in the final song which stated that friendship and spirit like that of Oktoberfest can span all differences.

After the Green and White skit, the klowns gave another exhibition of their talents. They showed their expertise in performing cartwheels, tumbling and by constructing an abstract machine. Then they skillfully made the traditional 22 klown pyramid. Afterwards they received tremendous applause from the audience and they also congratulated themselves on their achievement.

The Red and White skit was announced shortly after the Klowns performance. The Red and White skit opened in a gift shop in Farmville. An irate Longwood alumnae Mrs. Thompson (Susan Bryant) is discussing with Mr. Mitchell (Mike Derflinger) how Longwood has changed since she graduated in 1958. Then a present Longwood student, Janet, played by Ann Wyatt, strolls into the gift shop. Mrs. Thompson proceeds to tell Janet how different Longwood was when she went to school here. Her first description is of May Day, while she is describing the scene it appears on the opposite side of the stage. Janet is very impressed with the description of May Day, but she wants to show Mrs. Thompson how the spirit of May Day has continued in Spring Week end. As Janet is describing Spring Week end the scene appears on stage,

Midway Was Child's May Day

By JUDISTANLEY

The traditional parade at the opening of the midway started off with a new twist this year, thanks to a mime troupe and some Longwood students. At about 1:45 on Saturday afternoon they took their places in the windows of Hiner and entertained the crowd waiting for the midway to begin.

Then the parade, consisting of geist members, meisters, ushers and usherettes, class chairmen, and twenty-two klowns, started down the street. As the parade ended, the ushers and usherettes performed a German dance.

Duke Rollins, mittenmeister, welcomed everyone to this year's Oktoberfest and recognized those involved for all their work. After announcing some special events, Duke cut the ribbon and set the balloons afloat as the official opening of the Midway.

The Oktoberfest Midway was as festive as always this year.

There were many different things to be bought, games to be played, and things to see. Being towed by a four-year-old, I'm sure I bought, played and saw them all. At one booth we threw darts and I won one toy; out of three darts, my nephew won three toys! We bought a "crazy pencil" from the freshman booth, threw balls to dunk Mark Munoz at the clown's dunking booth, bought a gingerbread man, coke, cotton candy and apple cider, threw wet nurf balls at an AXP member, and bought a mug from the juniors and a hat from the seniors. Did he ever clean me out of money!

Along with all the booths, there were special activities at the midway, too. The Longwood College Band presented a pop concert; the Clowns of America painted the faces of children of all ages; and the Oktoberfest klowns smiled and played and sold balloons.

Social Work Dept. Expands

By BRENDA BONUCELLI
"Social Services," "The Helping Profession," "Social Work" — all of these are terms describing one basic idea — people helping people. The undergraduate social work program at Longwood College is greatly expanding as is the entire field of human services.

George Stonikinis, the department chairman, cites several reasons for this expansion. A reason most prevalent during this time of narrowing job opportunities is the wide range of career opportunities available to someone with a B.S. in Social Work. An example of this diversity in career opportunities can be seen in the eclectic teaching methods of Longwood's professors. An independent decision is made by each student as to field assignments and future job placements. No particular field of study is stressed for a student social worker.

A second reason for more participation in social work programs is that more and more states are requiring a degree in social work to be able to work in the human services at all. Some states still accept graduates from Psychology and Sociology programs to work in juvenile courts and such. Professional credentials are now beginning to be recognized and demanded for specific careers.

The way of living adopted by most social workers is another strong point in explaining the program's growing popularity. The social worker's life takes on increased meaning. The needs of people become important as do central issues.

By becoming thoroughly professional, influence within the community is promoted. This enables policy changes to occur through the advocacy of the social worker. This is the way of living which suits the needs and personalities of those entering human services.

Longwood College's Social Work program has three full time professors. The personalities and methods of teaching employed by these professors reflect the beliefs that Longwood's Social Work department holds. Classes and learning situations are not tightly bound. There is a flow of honest, forthright communication between professors and students. Problems are recognized openly and taken seriously — as is the need for fun and relaxation.

Jane Froemel is a second year Social Work student. On the advantages of the program she comments that "Classroom atmosphere is very relaxing, but a sense of professionalism still exists."

Another student says, "I like the way the professors can get together with the students and bridge that terrible idea of professor versus student."

This year the Social Work program entered 20 freshmen and 30 transfers. This is another illustration of the great expansion taking place. With the ever increasing enrollment one would wonder if placement after graduation, held so important, is suffering. According to Stonikinis, the placement level is still 70 to 90 per cent successful. A point to be stressed here is students must be willing to go where the opportunities lay. It often takes some time to get into the exact field which interests the new graduate. This must be recognized. Also, 25 per cent of all graduates go on to obtain a Masters degree in this profession.

The whole area of Social Work is always growing. At this point it

(Continued on Page 12)

ATTENTION STUDENTS

Dennys Grant, Senior Vice President, Director of Personnel, Wheat First Securities will speak on THE JOB MARKET AND YOU — HOW TO DECIDE WHAT JOB TO GO AFTER AND HOW TO GET IT.

(Discussion on various aspects of the job market such as career decision-making, preparing for a job, changing positions and interviews.)

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1979 AT 1:00 p.m.

JEFFERS AUDITORIUM

Sponsored by: Office of Career Planning and Placement

Librarian

(Continued from Page 3)

week end because they are short of help at these times.

This is the first time a program of this nature has been offered at Longwood. According to Mary Jo Dollins, assistant librarian, they have had a very good response.

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU™

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon & Tues	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed - Fri	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Animals From The Sea

Page 9

THE ROTUNDA

Tuesday, October 30, 1979

By BARBARA BAKER
The 1979 Oktoberfest production of the Catalinas (formerly the H2O Club) presented in French swimming pool was entitled "Animals From the Sea." This aquatic show created an aura of being in the mysterious undersea world. With beautiful music in the background, the atmosphere was mostly one of relaxation and enjoyment.

The first animals to make their appearance were some playful seals. Music by the Carpenters enlivened the spirited antics of the "Seals," choreographed by Susan Anstey and Laurie White.

A "School of Fish" appeared next swimming in synchronization to "The Banana Boat Song" by the Living Strings. This delightful routine was choreographed by the members of the Synchronized Swimming class.

Music from "Jaws" sent tremors throughout spectators as they breathlessly viewed a calm swimmer unaware of her impending danger — not so friendly sharks. The "Sharks" routine was imaginatively choreographed by Deborah Harrison and Pam Mayo.

Natural, magnified whale sounds gave intense realism to the next routine, "Whales," choreographed by Elise McCarty. The synchronized swimmers spouted water as they swam in formation, looking very graceful for whales.

The final animals to be seen were the "Octopi," choreographed by Pam Mayo. Swimming to the beautiful music of Neil Diamond, the elegant octopi swam into a star pattern and then around in circles under water.

The Catalinas presented a very fine show, thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. The members of the club appreciate the help and generosity of their dedicated sponsor Miss Nancy Andrews.

Wheelchair Sports Growing

By BRENDA BONUCCELLI
There are many reasons why people have found sports to be enjoyable. Some thrive on the feeling of competition and winning; others enjoy the feelings of comradeship that develop. And for some there is a sense of accomplishment, a sense of pride at displaying what one is capable of achieving despite certain handicaps.

There is a nationwide camping being developed to foster the interest and involvement of college campuses in sports for the handicapped individual. Only about ten colleges have such programs available. At this present time, certain laws mandate competitive programs for the handicapped on campuses where a need is visible.

The games available to colleges are varied. Just about every sport imaginable can be constructed so as to be played by the physically disabled. Usually these persons are confined to wheelchairs.

One game that has gained amazing popularity among the physically disabled sports addicts is wheel chair basketball. One of the oldest wheelchair teams in the nation is the Illinois Gizz Kids, founded in 1948. This team travels all around the country competing in tournaments and playing in exhibition games. Sponsored by Delta Sigma Omicron, the Gizz Kids engage in other sports, also, such as track, swimming, archery and table tennis. There are national and international competitions open to both men and women.

Wheelchair basketball started its popularity growth after World War II when sedentary activities such as ping-pong, pool and even softball and touch football began to lose their appeal. Basketball held its own, however, and has spread across the world.

The actual game of wheelchair basketball is played by the same

(Continued on Page 12)

Be A Clown

By JUDI STANLEY
"Oh, it tickles!" "Will you do a heart on me?" "Mama, please let me get my face painted!"

The people, mostly children and college students (and a few "undignified" adults), gathered around the table to watch while they waited for their turn. Two professional clowns, Feather and Rainbow, from Clowns of America made clowns of a lot of people on the midway Saturday afternoon.

The face-painting was free and took about seven minutes per person according to Feather. They used grease paint, which comes off easily with baby oil, put powder over the paint, and sprayed with water to set it. Feather said that the paint would last all day and all night if necessary.

Rainbow, who treated us with magic tricks while he painted, told me that the Clowns of America are called on to do many things. They are from Richmond and, in and around Richmond, they perform at birthday parties, grand openings, picnics, retirement parties, and the like. There are clowns who juggle, do magic tricks, ride motorcycles and unicycles, and pantomime. "You name it, we do it!" Rainbow said.

What they did on Saturday was give a lot of people a lot of big smiles.

Win Door Contest

By SHARON JANOVICH
This year Oktoberfest presented a new idea to Longwood with a Door Decorating Contest sponsored by Geist and the Inter-Religious Council. It was adopted at the last minute as an additional spirit raising activity, and offered skit tickets to the winners.

The contest was judged by Laurie Cole, IRC secretary, and a few other members. Betty Lou Smith and Chris Vontsolas won first place. Since they already had two skit tickets, they were given two Oktoberfest tee shirts.

"We probably would have had more participation, had we had more time to prepare for it," said Miss Cole. "Betty Lou and Chris won on originality for the Big Oktoberfest clown on their door."

"I'm sure we'll have the contest next year, too, only next year, we'll have more time to prepare for it. It was fun. Everyone who participated enjoyed it," stated Miss Cole.

In Memory Of

Stephen K. Nelson

July 31, 1958 - Oct. 27, 1979

From The Brothers Of Sigma Phi Epsilon

"Gifts That Are Different"

Large Selection Of
Fraternity And Sorority
Decals, Mugs, Stationary.

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP
408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

WEDNESDAY MORNING

When you know
it's for keeps...

SANTA ROSA

There's no finer way to show your love, than with a Keepsake diamond engagement ring.

Keepsake center diamonds are guaranteed in writing, forever, for precise cut, perfect clarity and fine white color.

Choose your Keepsake ring from our exquisite collection.

Keepsake
Registered Diamond Rings

What a perfect way to show your love.

Martin

THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE VA

TradeMark Reg.

LARGEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S IN THIS AREA

JEANS SHACK

- React Leathers & Denims
- Shirts
- Sweaters
- Jackets

- Adult Reg. Cards & Denim
- Straight Leg & Flare
- Ladies Fashion Jeans

PHONE 392-4870 SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER FARMVILLE, VA.

McKAY'S

YOUR HEADQUARTERS
FOR FORMAL WEAR

FREE!

COKE, SPRITE
OR MR. PIBB

WITH THIS COUPON AND THE PURCHASE
OF EVERY SANDWICH, HOT DOG, OR SUNDAE.

"16 FLAVORS OF DELICIOUS MONTICELLO ICE CREAM

VALID THRU SAT., NOV. 10, 1979.

That Ice Cream Place, Ltd.

OPEN MONDAY THRU SAT. 11 A.M. - 5 P.M.

VALID THRU SAT., NOV. 3, 1979

142 N. MAIN ST.

Lancers Lose Emotional Game Against Madison

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Lancers played some of their finest hockey this week in their games against Virginia Tech, James Madison University, and Virginia Commonwealth University.

On Tuesday the team hosted Tech. Playing in cool, rainy weather, they were unable to hold on their early lead to end the contest with a 2-1 deficit. Cherie Stevens scored LC's only goal. Tech scored two early second half goals to clinch the game.

The JV played Tech to a 0-0 tie.

Thursday, the Lancers journeyed to Madison and fell in overtime 2-1. The equally matched teams marched from one end of the field to the other. LC opened the scoring with a goal by Julie Dayton. JMU answered a few minutes later with one of their own. After the first half, neither team could break the tie in regulation time.

It remained dead-locked through two 7½ minute overtimes. Following this were penalty strokes. Teresa Ware executed a fine flick for the Lancers, but Madison also was one for five during the set. In the following round of strokes, Madison scored twice to take the win.

Goalie Teri Davis had an outstanding game with 14 saves out of 19 shots at goal. She also had the awesome responsibility of facing ten one on one situations.

Longwood outplayed VCU Saturday to a 2-0 victory. The Lancers had 14 shots compared to VCU's one. Dayton and Stevens each had a goal.

So far the Lancer record stands at 3-9-2 and the JV team at 3-1-4. Their final regular season game is October 31 against Mary Washington. The JV team will take on Radford.

Debbie Kinzel tries to put her stick on the ball. The Lancers owned the ball most of the game against VCU.

Smith Receives Weekly Honor

From Sports Information

It was just a matter of time before Lancer golfer Kay Smith broke out of an early season slump, and it happened last week at the Mary Baldwin Invitational in Staunton.

Smith (Covington) fired an 80-77-157 to finish as the top individual in the tourney and lead Longwood to the team title. For her performance, the junior has been named Longwood College Player of the Week.

The top finisher for Longwood in three of four fall outings, Smith has the top competitive average on the team, an 82. According to coach Barbara Smith, the veteran golfer will likely get even better as the season progresses.

"Kay has steadily improved and I feel will continue to improve throughout the rest of the fall season," said the coach. "Shooting a 77 on the Ingleside Golf Course (site of the Mary Baldwin tournament) was a major accomplishment, especially since the fairway grass was very long and the greens were not in the best of condition."

Smith, a junior, had a stroke average of 80.9 last fall and was runner-up in the championship flight of the VAAIAW State Open. She narrowly missed qualifying for nationals last spring.

KAY SMITH

An outstanding golfer and basketball player at Covington High School, Kay held down the number one or two position in golf and started for three years on the hardwood.

In 1977, Smith was named All Blue Ridge in basketball, received the Covington MVP and was named top athlete in her senior class.

A history major, Kay enjoys all sports. Music, mainly playing the piano, fill up much of her spare time.

Golfers Win State Crown

Sparked by junior Kay Smith (Covington) and freshman Robin Andrews (Woodlawn), Longwood won the Virginia Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (VAIAW) State Golf Championship Wednesday at the Country Club of Staunton.

Longwood, coached by Barbara Smith, came back with a second round score of 336 Wednesday to go with Tuesday's 340. The Lancer total of 676 was 29 strokes better than runner-up William & Mary's 705.

The victory gives Longwood its sixth state title in the nine years the event has been held.

Smith paced Longwood with an 81-78-159 win the VAAIAW State Individual Championship. Finishing right behind her was Andrews with a 79-83-162. The freshman's first round 79 had enabled her to win the State Open crown Tuesday.

Coach Smith, who has guided Longwood to all six of its state titles in a 10-year stint at the Farmville school, felt her team's ability to play well in spite of poor weather conditions was the key to the victory.

ROBIN ANDREWS

"I am thrilled to death for all my girls," said Smith. "It was 36 degrees and windy this morning, but all my players shot under 90. We played in the rain all day Tuesday. Weather conditions were terrible both days."

Greyhound's quick cure for the book blues.

The book blues. It's those sleepless nights with visions of exams, pop tests and required reading dancing through your head. They just won't go away.

But you can... with Greyhound. Take off this weekend, visit your family, see your friends... just get out of town and leave the book blues behind. It doesn't cost much and it'll do you a world of good.

So, if you've got the book blues, get on a Greyhound and split. It's a quick cure for what ails you.

To	One-Way	Round-Trip	Depart	Arrive
Richmond	5.80	11.05	4:15	5:55
Springfield	12.55	23.85	4:15	9:30
Norfolk	14.45	27.50	4:15	9:45
Charlottesville	10.20	19.40	1:55	4:55
Roanoke	8.50	16.95	1:55	4:35

(Prices subject to change)

C.L. SLAYTON - West 3RD St. - 392-5153

GO GREYHOUND

Sports Commentary

Hampden-Sydney Where Were You?

By T. C. JONES IV

As many people saw on Saturday afternoon, the Longwood Rugby Club did not play the Hampden-Sydney club as promoted all last week. This was due to a last minute cancellation by Hampden-Sydney at 11:45 a.m. Friday morning.

The Longwood Club had to contact the Hampden-Sydney Club after word of mouth reached some of Longwood's players that Hampden-Sydney had decided not to play. Hampden-Sydney, when called, stated that they could not reach Longwood by phone. We, the Longwood Rugby Club, feel that Hampden-Sydney would not have reached us right up until match time. This is about how much class Hampden-Sydney has shown, NONE!

Hampden-Sydney gave reasons for not playing as scheduled as injured players, sick players, and two weeks no practice. If Hampden-Sydney was that bad off, why didn't they call us early last week? Then, at least we could have tried to reschedule another club, as Friday afternoon was too late for Longwood to find another club to play.

As the writer of this article, I have consistently had a low opinion of some of the boys that attend Hampden-Sydney College. This latest low act on their part just reconfirms my now lower opinion of Hampden-Sydney and some of those boys that attend there. As for our Rugby Club, if Hampden-Sydney ever wants to reschedule with us again, we will think twice about it. We do not really think their Rugby Club has the backbone or the maturity to back up their commitments.

The Longwood Rugby Club plays the United Rugby Club this Saturday, November 3rd on the Campus School Field. Come out and enjoy the afternoon.

Chambers Wins Class

By KATHY CHASE

On October 26 the Longwood Intercollegiate Riding Team participated in the James Madison University-Mary Baldwin College Intercollegiate Horse Show. Fifteen colleges participated in this event as teams from VPI and William and Mary made their debut.

Longwood started off the day extremely well as Shannon Chambers won her Novice Equitation On the Flat, Section A class. In Section B, Kathy Chase won fourth. Kathy Redmon won fifth in Section C and Robyn Walker won third in Section D.

In the Novice Equitation Over Fences, Shannon Chambers won sixth place in Section B, while Kathy Redmon won third in Section D.

Laura Fields won sixth place in her Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter class.

Point riders for the show were: Kathy Redmon and Robyn Walker — Novice Equitation On the Flat; Kathy Chase — Novice Horsemanship Over Fences, and Laura Fields and Erika Cristea in Advanced Walk-Trot-Canter.

Accidentally deleted in last week's paper were Robyn Walker's results at Hollins. Robyn won a sixth in Novice Equitation Over Fences and a fifth in Novice Equitation On the Flat.

The next intercollegiate show is at Sweet Briar College on November 30.

New Games Workshop

On Sunday, Nov. 11, 1979 from 1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m. in Iler Gymnasium, a New Games Mini Workshop will be held for all interested individuals at no cost to participants.

New Games is a series of noncompetitive games for all people five years and older. They can be used in Education, Recreation, camp, and child care programs or just for fun! They require little if any equipment and no special facilities.

Basic principals and many games will be presented in this workshop. Emphasis will be placed on teaching participants to direct the games themselves. Preregistration is required. To register get a form from any IAA member and return it to Debbie Fore, no later than November 5 at 5 p.m.

Sports At Home

HOCKEY

Oct. 31 Mary Washington 3:30 p.m.

Radford Club (JV) 4:30 p.m.

VOLLEYBALL

Oct. 31 Roanoke, Mary Washington 6:30 p.m.

SOCCER

Nov. 4 H-SC 3 p.m.

NEXT WEEK

Previews on Men's and Women's Basketball, Gymnastics and Wrestling.

Longwood Men's Basketball: From Losers To Winners

By DONNA MOTTLEY

"Time out with the score, in overtime, Longwood Lancers 86 and the Radford Highlanders 85."

"Well, Bill, what do you think of tonight's game?"

"Frankly, Brent, I didn't expect this type of game tonight. Radford is an undefeated Division II team, considered by some to be the best small college basketball team in Virginia this season. Longwood is a Division III team whose basketball program is only in its third year. No one expected this game to be so close."

"Right Bill, on paper, Radford should have locked this game up a long time ago."

"Instead Radford has had to fight back all this second half."

"Now with twelve seconds remaining, it's Don Wilbourne shooting at the line for Radford."

"The first shot is up and good! That ties the score at 86."

Radford would go on to win that game, 88 to 86. The Longwood Lancers would not win that one, but they did impress a lot of people that night. In fact, they impressed a lot of people all season.

Gone are the days of the "joke sport", the 2-12 record and the apathetic crowds. The three-year-old men's basketball team at Longwood College has learned to win and win big. After going through 26 losses as compared to 10 wins, and two coaches in as many years, the administration came up with Dr. Ron Bash, a coach from Stony Brook College in New York known for his ability to turn a team's luck around. Longwood did turn around last season with a 19 and 9 record. Not only was the record a complete switch, but also the team morale, the attitude towards the coach and players, and student's participation. What makes an 8-16 team suddenly become a 19-9 team? What persuades a player to come to a Division III school? How much does a coach effect a team?

According to Coach Bash the first step to building any successful basketball program is "new blood" recruiting. Bash, a native of New Jersey who attended Temple and received his doctorate from Boston University before coaching at Stony Brook, built this year's team around only two returnees. The Lancer squad had two transfers and seven freshmen. Last year Bash opted to come to Longwood long after the heavy recruiting season (January and February) was over. He had to rely on recruiting players from the New York area because he feels these players are more aware of his record at Stony Brook where he took the men's basketball program from 2-22 record to fourth place in the Division II National Collegiate Athletic Association Championship in just three seasons.

Although Longwood's geographic location (one player calls it the "middle of nowhere") and new program could be major deterrents to recruiting, Bash can use these factors to his advantages in certain situations. Shack Leonard was contacted by Bash while attending Palm Beach Junior College. He decided to come to Longwood "because he wanted to play ball up North," and was lured to Longwood "by the new program and the experience." Shack proved to be a valuable recruit by averaging fifteen points a game.

Randy Johnson came from nearby Richmond out of George Wythe High School, but was interested in Longwood by the new program too. Although he was recruited by VMI and Navy, and feels that his old high school team could probably beat the Longwood team, he likes "the team in the production stages." Johnson was talked into coming to Longwood by a friend of his on the Board of Visitors.

"Connections", such as board members and friends, were as helpful as Bash's influence in recruiting certain Longwood players as in the case of Kenny Ford, a transfer out of Shaw College in Raleigh, North Carolina, who came to Longwood after talking to a friend. Ford tried out for the team and is considered to be the most improved on the squad by Coaches Bash and Keilbeck.

Many players stress not only the new program but also the academic record of Longwood as a major point that attracts them to this school. Bryon Bracey and Kevin Newton, the only two members of the squad to see the transition from losing to winning, came initially and then returned to Longwood because of its decent academic record. Study halls were held during the beginning of the season. All players express the desire to get a "good education." Perhaps the most academically inclined member is physics-major Elliott Hedley, a sophomore from Bronx, New York. "Nothing comes before my studies."

Bash faces extra problems when trying to recruit talented players. Because Longwood is a Division III school, it can offer no scholarships and has little to offer for a gym. Bash sees the gym as a problem for his particular game plan which includes a four corner offense designed to get the high percentage shot. Because of the court's smaller size this particular offense is harder to implement. Johnson has misjudged shots at other courts because of the difference in court size.

Bash feels that although you can show perspective players the new gym, that is no advantage because it will not be complete until August, 1980. Recruits should be much easier to attract to Longwood next year because of the greatly improved '78-79 record. Bash and assistant coach Don Keilbeck have been able to bring students from Florida to New York to Longwood this year. When looking at perspective recruits, Bash looks for the "team player." Bash's game plan is built around an offense that is designed so that "all players touch the ball." Bash's basketball philosophy is suited to the small rising basketball team. "I don't believe in the star system. All the starters are in double figures. If one of them has an off night there are four others to pick up the slack." Longwood has an unusually high percentage in field goal percentage. In January the Lancers lead NCAA Division III schools in the nation in field goal percentage. Tom Alston was third in individual shooting percentage in the national ranking.

Reserve players see limited action. Bash sees the major function of the bench as to "push the starters to play better." Elliot Hedley a reserve player last season accepts his position as reserve player. He says, "I'm no baby about it. He knows I can do it. My time will come." Kenny Ford, a starter and one of the leading scorers on the team felt that "sometimes I saw too much playing time."

Whether he is a reserve player or a starter "seeing too much action", the Lancer basketball player has witnessed a turnaround at Longwood last season. Along with the complete reversal in the record, and very probably the main reason for the turnaround, is the total change of attitude. With the new recruits and transfers, and a positive coach, last year's squad has a very different outlook from the two previous Lancer basketball teams. The team has gotten the confident feeling passed down to them from Dr. Bash. They identify with his confident feeling as Johnson says, "The winning attitude rubs off on you. He builds you up to be the underdog, then you get into a game and discover you're not."

The team members also had confidence in each other after experiencing problems early in the season. The team basically had no leader. Because the players had been together such a short time and all players were on an "even balance", a leader did not emerge. Newton feels that "Everyone had their own responsibility. It's level. We had to find out where we fit in."

Stress developed between players. Hedley contributes the stress and uncooperation of players to "a lack of communication." The unhealthy attitude was cured by talk sessions. Hedley says, "We would sit down on the gym floor and talk out our problems." Newton then feels "the puzzle came together during the season and our respect for each other grew. Everyone knows what everyone else has to do. We play because we want to." Through his confident and sometimes domineering attitude, Bash bulled two rookies and two veterans into a team oriented, balanced squad.

A winning men's basketball team at Longwood College has brought a change in student attitude too. As one student put it, "you would come and watch the game mainly out of curiosity or because you felt it was your duty. This year, maybe because they're winning, you want to see them play." Byron Bracey feels, "Students are fair weather fans. They like it when you win and don't care about you if you lose." Bash is impressed by enthusiastic student body, and says a good crowd can sway a game in the home teams favor. Not only are there students at games, but also more faculty members. The team feels that the faculty is behind them.

Longwood has witnessed the men's basketball program come of age. The new coach brought with him from New York a confident and winning attitude and many recruits. The team worked hard and long. "It was hard, but it was worth it," and because Longwood was not accepted into Dixie Conference, this year's basketball schedule looks to be even tougher with many long road games. What kind of attitude is left over from last season? Byron Bracey feels that "This year we're going to make it to the playoffs." With Bash, new recruits, returnees and continuation of good attitude, it's certainly possible.

Booters Narrowly Defeated

By FRANK CREAMY

During Oktoberfest week, the Longwood soccer team stayed busy with three home games. The first game was on Tuesday against a physical VCU team. The entire game was rough-and-tumble, as neither team could put the ball in the net. But the game came to an exciting finish. With less than 30 seconds to play, Gustavo Lael provided the Lancers with the game's only score, and the Rams walked away with a 1-0 defeat.

Thursday saw the Lancers facing Division I opponent George Mason University. Longwood gave the Patriots a stiff challenge before falling by a score of 2-1. Jerry Gilleland put Longwood on the scoreboard with less than ten minutes to play.

Oktoberfest Saturday proved to be a disappointment, as Longwood dropped a 1-0 decision to Mary Washington College. The Lancer attack proved to be sporadic, as they were unable to provide a consistent offense against the visitors. A single goal late in the game was enough to give Mary Washington the win.

Longwood's record stands at 4-8-1 with two games left. Wednesday the Lancers visit the Spiders of Richmond, and Sunday, November 4, closes out the schedule with a trip to Hampden-Sydney.

Netters

Win And Loss

By STEVE WHITTEN

The Longwood Tennis Team had to struggle this week for a win which came to them Saturday with a 5-4 victory over Christopher Newport. The other struggle took place Thursday which ended in a 2-7 loss to Virginia Commonwealth University.

Longwood won only one single's match against VCU, number five seed Jill Foster handed her VCU opponent, J. Waller, a 6-1, 6-2 defeat. In other singles, N. Leidenheimer (LC) fell to J. Liscio, 6-0, 6-2. T. McLawhorn (LC) lost to K. Watkins, 6-2, 6-3. C. Lewis (LC) dropped her singles to B. Nierle, 6-3, 6-1. After a close first set, T. Loehre defeated D. Keys (LC) 7-5, 6-0. S. Ibanez (LC) lost to her opponent, E. Goldstein, 6-3, 6-2.

In doubles, again J. Foster with her partner C. Lewis (LC) took a victory over Nierle and Loehre with a stunning 6-2, 6-0 in the number two position. Leidenheimer and McLawhorn (LC) dropped their doubles to Liscio and Watkins, 6-3, 6-3. Ibanez and Diehl (LC) lost to Waller and Goldstein 6-3, 6-4 in a close match.

Playing before a large crowd on Saturday, Longwood struggled again, but this time they were the victors with a 5-4 win over a much improved team from Christopher Newport.

Longwood's number one seed, N. Leidenheimer defeated her opponent, D. Duncan, in a close match, 7-6, 6-4. T. McLawhorn (LC) fell to L. Phill, 6-0, 6-4. Lewis (LC) lost to V. Nebinger, 6-3, 6-3. J. Foster (LC) soundly defeated her opponent, M. Reagin, 6-1, 6-0. After dropping the first set 7-6, K. Diehl (LC) fought back to defeat R. Clark, 6-7, 6-4, 6-2. S. Ibanez (LC) lost to J. Waddy 6-0, 6-2. This put Longwood in a tough position, going into the doubles with the score tied at three-all.

In doubles, Leidenheimer and McLawhorn (LC) took their opponents in three sets, but finally fell to Duncan and Nebinger 6-0, 4-6, 6-1. Lewis and Foster (LC) defeated their opponents, Phill and Waddy, in three sets 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. Diehl and Ibanez (LC) then defeated their opponents Clark and Reagin 6-3, 6-2 to give Longwood a 5-4 win.

Longwood travels to Sweet Briar in their last match of the season today. Also Longwood's Jill Foster will try to go undefeated this season in singles as her record now stands at 7-0. The team record is now 6-2.

Nancy Leno grimaces as she sends a ball over the net.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN:

Mon. - Thur. 11 to 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. 11 to Midnight

104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 11 til 9 —

Book Review

(Continued from Page 5)
essential hubris of Saturday Night Live." Steve Martin, frequent host of the show and author of the recent book, Cruel Shoes, called it "the second best book in the world."

Rolling Stone has for some time now been printing articles about SNL, and six of the sixteen chapters in the new book are reprints from the magazine (which, besides saving time, is a great way to save money on writers). But we can't hold it against anyone for printing old material in a new book, can we?

Relative newness of its contents aside, Rolling Stone's book is an in-depth examination, not particularly of the SNL cult phenomenon, but rather of the history of the show and its performers. Even the famous (infamous?) Blues Brothers get a chapter of their own, as do Gilda Radnor, Bill Murray, Jane Curtin, Garrett Morris, John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd, and Laraine Newman.

The book is not authored by any one person, being a collaboration (art by committee?) of many Rolling Stone writers, and is edited by Marianne Partridge, the editor of the magazine. It is illustrated by Edie Baskin's excellent hand-tinted photographs, which should be familiar to viewers of the show (you know; those funny stills that flash on the screen before commercials), and which add a more explicit visual dimension to the book as a whole (they also serve to entertain those who are discouraged by large pages full of small type).

The individual chapters give much background and biographical information on the players, with the exception of the enigmatic Jane Curtin, (whose chapter merely states that "Jane Curtin does not give interviews"). These kind of details fascinate fans who "get into" the personal lives of each actor (with the sort of dedication previously found only in Trekkies).

One should be warned against drawing any great philosophical meanings out of humorous ones, depth and heaviness being reserved for works assigned in English class. SNL does embody a message of sorts, however. In his chapter on John Belushi, writer Charles M. Young states it best: "The product of people in their midtwenties to early thirties, (SNL) relays a message from a generation that marched against the war . . . to a generation that gets congratulated in U. S. News & World Report for shutting up and attending medical school: trash something, people, or you won't have anything to remember at your five-year reunion."

ROTC

(Continued from Page 5)
(Simultaneous Membership Program). If you are currently in the National Guard or want to be in the National Guard and would also like to be in R.O.T.C. you can now do it. This is how it works.

You enlist in the National Guard, go through their Basic Training and become active in their unit. Then you sign your contract for R.O.T.C. Your commitment is now with R.O.T.C., however, you remain in your Guard unit. In your Guard unit you are promoted from E-1 (private) to E-5 (Sergeant) and receive the pay of a sergeant. You also receive your $100 a month from R.O.T.C. You may also now apply for the Guard tuition assistance program. Because you are in ROTC and the Guard both, they will give you $500 a year for your tuition.

There is something else if you are a freshman. Enlist in the Guard, finish your basic training with your unit, and you are now eligible to enroll in the advanced course. As a freshman you will be eligible to receive all benefits stated above, plus, since the advanced course is only two years you'll finish as a junior (depending on when you went in the Guard).

You are commissioned a 2nd Lt. in the Guard when you finish your ROTC requirements. You will be going to school and be a 2nd Lt. in the Guard. When you graduate from college and decide to stay in the Guard (not active duty, however you may go active if you wish) you count the years since your commissioning not since graduation to fulfill your commitment under ROTC contract.

An officer's job means responsibility and that's what employers today are looking for.

Social Work

(Continued from Page 8)

is only in its beginning stages. Still the program has achieved a tremendous amount of diversity in what it offers students.

There is a national honorary fraternity available for Social Work majors, although Longwood has not yet taken advantage of the opportunity. There is, however, Pi Gamma Mu, which serves to instill a desire to solve social problems through scholarship in social studies. The Federation of Student Social Workers is the organization on campus which brings together social work majors and non-majors in an effort to widen personal perspectives, to help others and to enjoy life. It meets twice a month and has scheduled a widespread agenda of events. Many students who have become involved in the Federation are of the opinion that they learn much from the interaction and activities. It helps, as an outside-of-class impetus, to get one involved in what is going on within the major and within the human services in general. This serves to expand personal knowledge which in turn expands the entire program.

As Nancy Willard puts it, "For me, I like it (the Social Work program) because it is a chance for me to learn about myself and others."

Wheelchair

(Continued from Page 9)

rules as the "normal" game, with the necessary rule modifications. Examples of these are extended lane violation times from three seconds to five seconds. This accounts for the extra time needed to move a wheelchair from the lane. A player is allowed only two pushes on his/her chair and then he must dribble the ball. Gliding is permitted as long as the momentum will carry a player. All players must stay seated in their chair during the game.

At the present time there are 120 wheelchair basketball teams in the nation. Competitions range from state level to national level to international level. The 1977 International Wheelchair Basketball title is held by the Netherlands team. The United States team won regularly in the beginning years of the international competition, but began to lose in the mid-1960s. It has regained the title twice since then.

It can be seen that wheelchair basketball is no simple sport conducted merely for pleasure and on a limited basis. Its players are true athletes and their teams play for real.

RICHARD E. FORE III
Jr. Business Adm.
Farmville, Va.

BRYON W. BRACEY
Jr. Business Adm.
Glenn Allen, Va.

ASTRID E. NEUMAN
Soph. Therapeutic Rec.
Palatine, Ill.

PATRICIA I. CARNES
Jr. Business Adm.
Richmond, Va.
2 Year ROTC Scholarship

ROBERT W. MEESKS
Fresh. Business Adm.
Stoughton, Va.

JANICE M. JOHNSON
Soph. Physical Ed.
Dillwyn, Va.

E
V
E
R

W
O N
D
E
R

What Kind of People at LC Take ARMY ROTC?

They're all kinds of people from every walk of life with all kinds of interests. Theater, sports, music, business, physical education, pre-med, journalism, and almost every academic major.

Their reasons for taking ROTC are as diverse as they are themselves.

Some want the personal benefits they'll get from a pure leadership course. Others want the experience they'll get from serving as an Army officer, and the head start it will give them in a civilian career.

Some can use the $100 a month they'll get their last two years. Others just like learning to think on their feet, facing both mental and physical challenge.

What kind of people at LC take ARMY ROTC? People who want to get everything they can, out of their college years. People like you! Next semester is not too late. At pre-registration why not register for military science?

JELIKA V.E. MCGREGOR
Jr. Therapeutic Rec.
Chester, Va.

WHY NOT YOU?

DAVID A. SAWYER
Fresh. Business Adm.
Hampton, Va.

ARMY ROTC: Contact Major Sullivan of SFC. Jordan in East Ruffner 301 or call 392-9259

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1979

NO. 8

Among Other Actions:

Board Votes To Write-Off Accounts

By MELODY CRAWLEY

In Board actions, Thursday, Longwood's Board of Visitors approved the request to write-off 12 students' accounts totalling $9,871.10 as uncollectable. Four of these students had accounts unpaid for two consecutive years. President Henry I. Willett, Jr., pointed out to the Board that the college had, "made considerable improvement through the years."

All of the accounts had been turned over to the collection agency. Nine of these had been returned to the agency marked "will not pay," while three were marked "Skip-no address." The other four were bankrupt. The accounts covered 1972-77.

Board member Mrs. Overstreet questioned the use of attorneys instead of collection agencies in this area. President Willett explained that the Attorney General's office had taken over in this area.

PROMOTION AND TENURE

The Board passed the provisions set up by the Ad Hoc Committee on Promotion and Tenure. They had left the decision unresolved after last July's meeting and called for the reconstruction of the Ad Hoc Committee.

The provisions are set up to provide that chairmen be considered for promotion and tenure in the same way as other members of the faculty, except where provided substitutions for chairman recommendations are needed.

In voting to approve the provisions, Board member Ralph Page said, "Thank you, and this has been a long haul." The Ad Hoc committee, composed of Dr. Susan H. May, chairman; Dr. Betty A. Bowman, Dr. David A. Breil, and Dr. James M. Helms, had considered several alternatives and recommendations which had been rejected by either the Board or the faculty.

FACULTY TRAVEL:

In other action, the Board unanimously approved the use of $913.67 interest on a memorial gift to the college for faculty travel. This was an area that was cut back extremely in this year's budget due to lack of funds.

BUDGET REPORT:

Vice President of Finance James L. Bradnscome, along with President Willett, gave an update on the statewide fiscal situation and Longwood's budget.

According to President Willett, there is, "not a lot of extra money to look at." He explained to the Board that he feels a need to increase tuition, but is not allowed to because of State regulations and limitations. Longwood's actual budget for 1979-80 is $6,272,900.

OFF CAMPUS HOUSING:

Dean Mary A. Heintz presented a committee's study on off campus housing. The committee, made up of some faculty, but no students, felt that the off-campus housing rule should stay the same. No student is allowed to live off-campus unless he is living with his parents or guardians. Most of this committee's work was done during the summer.

HEAD COUNT:

Dean Carolyn Wells reported that the opening head count for this semester was 2470. She emphasized that this is an increase over last year due to the increase in students remaining in school. According to Dean Wells, approximately 100 more upperclassmen returned than planned.

In answer to a question from Board member, Mrs. J.L. Davidson, Dean Heintz answered that 28 students had withdrawn at this point in the semester. She also said that there were still some triples in the dormitories.

INTERNAL PERSONNEL SHIFTS:

Dr. William Peele reported the shifting of three college personnel in August, in order to comply with State Personnel limits. Two Clerk Stenographers, Mrs. Peggy Golubic and Mrs. Lena R. Dowdy, were switched from administration offices. Mrs. Mildred Mason was transferred from Wynne Campus School to the Financial Aid Office.

Dr. Peele emphasized that no money was lost and a lot of thought was put into these lateral transfers. He also added that no one realizes, "how much each individual was actually concentrated on." Board member Lester E. Andrews replied that the complaints he heard dealt with the manner in which it was done.

MARKET RESEARCH:

John J. Mitchell, Director of Public Affairs, reported that the college had finished a Market Research in which Longwood College was seen as a four-year, state-supported, co-educational, comprehensive school. He also commented that Longwood did not appeal to minority students because of the location of the school and the history of the area.

GRANTS:

According to Director of College Relations George R. Bristol, the college will probably sell the recently acquired Robertson land. He described it as low land in a residential area.

"No official action has been taken," he stressed. He also stated that the college has acquired one of its largest grants last week, but he has not received official notification as of Friday.

Other various reports were given by administrators on Friday.

The Board of Visitors chaired by Mrs. O. A. Mitchell was in session Thursday and Friday last week.

Photo by Melody Crawley

The Ad Hoc Committee on Promotion and Tenure: (l to r) Dr. Helms, Dr. May, and Dr. Breil present proposals to the Board.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Lack Of Applicants

Poses Election Problems

By PAULA JOHNSON

Problems are developing with the upcoming Major-Minor elections. The main problem has been the lack of applications for Judicial and Residence Boards, IAA, and Student Union.

The deadline for these petitions was Sunday, November 4, at 12 midnight. In an interview Saturday with Jan Bates, Chairman of Elections Committee, Miss Bates states, "If the petitions are the same, we might extend the deadline through Wednesday."

She also stated that applications for Legislative Board are relatively unopposed. As far as the other offices, Residence and Judicial Board are wide open. So far two people have applied for positions with Student Union, these positions being chairman and treasurer. Only one application has been received for IAA, that being the office of vice-president.

The reason for the lack of interest was cited as being the new Judicial Board proposal that is before the administration. "There is no way to recruit people for positions because there is no way to be sure what their duties will be," Miss Bates said. "It all depends on the proposal."

The new proposal will go before President Willett on Tuesday.

Elections will be run one way or another. "If need be, we will run the offices that we already have," stated Miss Bates. "It is just a 'wait and see' situation."

Wall Resigns Board

By MELODY CRAWLEY

David Wall resigned as Fire Warden of Residence Board in a letter presented to President Henry I. Willett, Jr., Dean Mary A. Heintz, Residence Board and other administrators, October 30. A copy of the letter was also given to The Rotunda and is printed on page four of this edition.

According to Wall, he resigned for various reasons, which dealt with actions of Administrators and Board Members. He stated that he and other board members have talked to members of the Board of Visitors and have written to the Management team about these problems.

Wall stated that the Resident Assistants feel the Staff does not support them when they need it. He sees the present Residence Life system as having too many channels to go through.

Wall expected one of three responses to his resignation: to be ignored, to receive "flack," or to gain others support. He met with both Dean Heintz and President Willett, Thursday, to discuss his accusations in the letter.

Of major concern to both of them was part D of the letter that accused an administrator of breaking regulations. Wall deleted that paragraph from the letter after his meeting with the administration. "I know it happened, but I just can't prove it at this time," stated Wall. President Willett asked him for more proof.

In an interview with The Rotunda, Wednesday, President Willett stated that all matters (especially D) mentioned in Wall's letter would, "be dealt with head on." He went on to say that it was, "not going to be washed under the table."

President Willett stated that he would have to disagree with the unwillingness to listen. "That's about all we have been doing lately." Both President Willett and Dean Heintz agree that there is room for change.

Wall, on the other hand, feels that they do not always listen. He also feels that unless there is some type of restructuring there will no longer be a board system.

Athletic Questions Answered

Dr. T. C. Dalton, chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletic Council, released, last week several responses to suggestions and questions on Athletics from the Fall Retreat.

Of major concern to many athletes is what teams will be housed in the new gym. According to Dr. Dalton, the question is still under study and has not been finalized. "We know because of space limitations that all teams cannot be housed in the new facility. We must keep in mind that physical education and intramural activities will also be held in the new facility."

Dr. Dalton explained that academic trips were cut and athletic trips were not because of the college's two broad budgetary categories. "One is education and general," he explained in his release, "which includes all the academic budgets. Athletic expenses are funded by student athletic fees, which are an auxiliary enterprise budgetary item." He further explained that state regulations do not allow the transfer of money. The funds for athletic scholarships also come from student fees.

The standards of both men and women sports were also questioned. To participate in the program, athletes must not be on academic probation. Dr. Dalton also stated, Longwood will continue to uphold its strong tradition in women's athletics. We do not intend to build up the men's Athletic program at the expense of the Women's program."

Feature Series:

Judicial Board And Student Union

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM and PAULA JOHNSON
The Judicial Board enforces the regulations made by the Legislative Board and strives to instill the meaning of the Honor Code in the minds of the students of Longwood College. Its members work with the students both openly and confidentially in their interest in the individual and his welfare.

The Board is currently undergoing restructuring changes. Members of the Board are working with the administration to revise a plan for structure that seems workable to both students and administrators.

The positions available are chairman, vice-chairman, and secretary. There are also two representatives from each class plus four investigators (one from each class).

The chairman presides over trials. Vice-chairman currently oversees investigators. The secretary does everything from writing notes to members reminding them of meetings to taping actual trials.

The Student Union is a student-operated organization which sponsors the majority of events on campus. As a programming organization, the Student Union plans and executes such events as mixers, concerts, trips, lectures, coffeehouses, and films. "Special Events Week", "Mardi

(Continued from Page 8)

Often unrecognized for their outstanding efforts, the Longwood Company of Dancers added to the entertainment during Oktoberfest weekend with another enhancing performance. Photo by David Gaffs

Fine Art In Motion

The Longwood College Company of Dancers will present their fall concert on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, November 8-10, at 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

The program will include ten dances choreographed and performed by students, under the direction of Dr. Betty Bowman.

The first dance on the program will be "Quiet Moments," choreographed by Grace Ann Rodgers. Performed by seven dancers to the music of Satie's "Gymnopédies," the dance reflects "the inner quietness" the choreographer sometimes feels.

"Assimilation," choreographed by Teresa Heatwole, is "a story of the natural and necessary assimilation of life experiences, sometimes taken a bit tongue in cheek."

Elizabeth Cardin is the choreographer of "For This Season," which employs the cyclic pattern of the seasons to show the flow of emotions within relationships. "Primitive Collage," choreographed by Adrienne Heard, is "a collection of imaginings about Africa," including village life, a hunt, a fight, and return to the village.

Other dances and choreographers are: "Duet for Four," Tracey Hormuth; "Trio," Vanessa Baird; "Permutations," Tracey Hormuth and Grace Ann Rodgers; "Rehearsal Hall," Terri Stuart; and "Midnight Wind," Cindy Morris.

The final number, "Finale," was choreographed by Ellen Hitt to capture the fun and exhilaration of the polka.

The dance concerts are open to the public at no charge.

Grant Lectures On Job Market

By MARY GRANT
Dennis Grant, Senior Vice President and Director of Personnel at Wheat First Securities in Richmond gave a lecture on "The Job Market And You-How To Decide What Job To Go After And How To Get It" on Thursday, November 1, in Jeffers Auditorium.

Grant began his lecture by telling the audience that "the job market is never good". He explained that job competition is not only between people who are unemployed, but includes those people who are employed and looking for a better or more satisfying job.

Grant went on to explain how the job market is continuously changing. In 15 years there will be new jobs created to keep up with our changing society and some jobs will be obsolete.

"Go Hire Yourself An Employer" by Dick Irish, is

(Continued on Page 8)

The Longwood College Athletic Budget:
I. General
Personnel	$194,408
Operational budget for Women's Athletics	68,055
Operational budget for Men's Athletics	47,937
Operational budget for Athletic Training	5,000
Operational budget for Cheerleaders	800
Operational budget for Sports Information	500
	$321,200
$146 per student for athletic fees X 2,200 students = $321,000
Total amounts allocated for women's and men's operation budgets were determined by the percentage of women and men participating in the intercollegiate athletic programs.
II. Operational Budgets for Women's Athletics
Basketball	$18,900
Field Hockey	11,500
Golf	12,900
Gymnastics	7,350
Lacrosse	2,300
Tennis	1,800
Volleyball	3,800
Riding	1,500
Operations (telephones, supplies, etc.)	8,005
Contingency	0
Total	$68,055
Scholarships
Basketball	$9,040
Field Hockey	7,070
Golf	5,420
Gymnastics	3,060
	$24,590
III. Operational Budgets for Men's Athletics
Basketball	$23,000
Baseball	9,116
Golf	2,050
Soccer	4,500
Wrestling	2,650
Operations (telephones, supplies, etc.)	5,800
Contingency	821
Total	$47,937

Hodges Honored By Lynchburg

Longwood's Director of Women's Athletics Carolyn Hodges, a native of Forest, Virginia, was one of 13 persons inducted into the Lynchburg College Sports Hall of Fame in induction ceremonies at Lynchburg Friday night.

An outstanding two-sport athlete and later head basketball coach at Lynchburg, Hodges was cited for bringing credit and distinction to the college through her involvement in intercollegiate activities both as an athlete and a coach.

A member of the Longwood athletic staff since 1972, Hodges made a name for herself in both basketball and field hockey at Lynchburg from 1960 to 1964. A varsity participant in both sports for four years, she was recognized as the school's outstanding eager during her last three years. In the period in which she played, Lynchburg basketball teams had combined record of 40-13, including 12-2 marks her last two years.

Hodges, who once scored 31 points in a game, also performed well in field hockey, earning All-Blue Ridge Conference honors in her senior year. She was also chosen as "Senior of the Year" in the Insignia Club in 1964.

After serving as assistant basketball coach at Lynchburg 1964-68, she took over the head post and led the Lady Hornets to a three-year mark of 32-19. Hodges also coached lacrosse during that time.

Hodges who coaches Longwood's women cagers in addition to her duties as Women's A.D., expressed surprise at being chosen for the honor.

"I was surprised. I wasn't expecting it," she said. "It is really a special occasion for me because one of my former players (Pat Rhodes-1969 grad) was also inducted. I just feel honored to have been chosen."

POSTERS

Bring your favorite snapshot, portrait or any other picture and have it made into a poster.

ROBERT T. FORE PHOTOGRAPHY
119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
PHONE 392-4154

McKAY'S
111 N. MAIN STREET FARMVILLE VIRGINIA

MEN'S SLACKS
20% OFF
NEW SHIPMENT OF
LADIES DRESSES
20% OFF

Duck's Breath Brings Life

By LISA HUGHES

Longwood College Student Union has a winning record of preselecting entertainment which enlivens otherwise dull week ends. Saturday night's performance of Duck's Breath Mystery Theatre was certainly no exception.

Duck's Breath was truly bizarre humor at its best. The troupe of five men ran the gamut of parody on everything from artistic culture and English theatre to Saturday morning television and punk rock.

Unlike most theatre, where the audience sits back and watches, uninvolved, the troupe made an effort to bring the audience in on the fun. A carousing rendition of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" certainly did just this. But, the audience didn't stop there! A favorite sketch, "Sky King" had the watchers become players.

It was an evening to be cherished by lovers of Fire Sign Theatre and Saturday Night Live. Duck's Breath did it all, even at Longwood College!

Cranton Is Wednesday's Saturday Night Alive

By MELODY CRAWLEY
The Lamont Cranton Band began in 1969 as a five piece hard core blues band on the Twin Cities bar circuit...and in 1974 they released their first album. By 1977 the Cranstons had become a seven piece R and B band that conveyed the "Let's Have Fun" theme wherever they played.

Now in 1979, the Longwood Student Union is presenting the Lamont Cranton Band in Saturday Night Alive, this Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. in the Lower Dining Hall.

The Cranstons are both a club and concert attraction around the country. Their song, "Excusez Mai Mon Cheri" can be heard on the flip side of the Blues Brothers' hit single, "Soul Man." Their current album, "El Cee Notes" is on Waterhouse Records. One reviewer recently wrote about the band's tight, full Sounding Party feeling: "a sound so tight that it could only be called state-of-the-art boogie."

Marson, Ltd. Holds Oriental Art Sale

A special exhibition and sale of Original Oriental Art will be presented on Thursday, November 15, at Bedford Building—first floor hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Marson Ltd. of Baltimore, Maryland specializes in exhibiting for sale a collection of Original Oriental Art totaling approximately 500 pieces from Japan, China, India, Tibet, Nepal and Thailand. The oldest prints date back to the 18th and 19th Century and include Chinese woodcuts. Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts and master works by such artists as Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, and Kunisada. The modern pieces consist of a large group of original woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints created by such world renowned contemporaries as Saito, Azechi, Mori, Katsuda, and Maki. A representative will be present to answer questions about the work, artists, and the various graphic techniques employed. Prints are shown in open portfolios in an informal atmosphere and you are invited to browse through this fascinating and well-described collection. The price range is wide and there is a treasure to be found for most everyone's budget. Marson Ltd. specializes in arranging exhibitions and sales of Original Oriental Art at colleges, universities, and museums throughout the United States.

Eppes To Display

By LIZ RAMMELL
The Colonnade Club will be sponsoring a craft exhibition Nov. 8 in the Red-White-Green rooms from 8-10 p.m. Six Virginia artists will be featured.

Tray Eppes, a potter and former Longwood art professor, will have his bowls and mugs on display. Danby Ludgate, a weaver from Charlottesville will display her hand-woven clothing. Corn husk dolls ranging from $20 to $25 will be presented by Mrs. Peggie Kilgore. Carmon Cooper will display carved wooden toys. Frank Robinson also a carver will present his specialty—hand-carved wooden walking sticks, along with jewelry made of deer antlers. George Moody of Charlottesville will present his creations in gold and silver jewelry.

The craftsmen will also be displaying some techniques of their arts.

The Colonnade Club encourages students, faculty and staff to come, and reminds them that Christmas is just around the corner. Refreshments will be served.

Hearn Described As "Good Time Musicians"

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Bill and Bonnie Hearn, those "good time musicians" who play that "down home southern flower", will be here for a return visit to the S-UN Coffeehouse November 9, 10, and 11 from 8-11 p.m. The Hearnes were here last Oktoberfest week end for a three night engagement.

Bill and Bonnie, a husband and wife duo team from Texas, do not write their own songs and although they do sing other artist's songs, they do not copy their style. They are "musical interpreters."

Both members of the duo are legally blind. Bonnie has been totally blind due to congenital cataracts since she was young.

The duo has played in a lot of concerts as the opening group for famous artists. "John Denver would have to be my favorite," commented Bill last year. They performed with him in 1973 for a benefit. They have also opened for the Pointer Sisters and the New Riders of the Purple Sage.

Music Dept. Hosts Festival

By CHRIS VOGEL

The Longwood College First Annual High School Choral Festival was held last Thursday. Students from four Virginia High Schools and the Longwood College Camerata Singers and orchestra ended the Festival with a performance of Gabriel Faures "Requiem", that night at 7:30 in Jarman Auditorium under the direction of Dr. Louard E. Egbert.

The High Schools represented were Douglas Freeman in Henrico, under the direction of Deen Entsminger; Gloucester under Donald Sandridge; Hayfield from Alexandria under Falle Nelson; and Fluvanna County in Palmyra under Jeffrey

Suling.

Solos in the "Requiem" were sung by Longwood voice teachers, Thomas Williams and Miss Patricia Lust.

Rowland Music Recital

The Longwood College department of music will present Rene Rowland in a senior piano recital on Tuesday evening, November 6, at 8 p.m. in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building.

Miss Rowland's program will include works by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and Debussy. In addition, she will be joined by Miss Sandra Goodwyn in the performance of "Sonate" for four hands by Francis Poulenc. The recital is open to the public at no charge.

Miss Rowland is a music education major at Longwood and is studying piano with Miss Frieda E. Myers, assistant professor of music. She is president of the college's concert choir and is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, music honorary fraternity.

She has also held office in Longwood's chapter of Music Educators National Conference, served on the Visiting Artist Series Committee, and is a member of several other college organizations.

#1 Admission

FILMS TONIGHT

CLINT EASTWOOD

7 P.M.

MAGNUM FORCE

9 P.M.

The Enforcer

SUPPORT
MAJOR-MINOR
ELECTIONS

The Class of 1981
presents

JR. RING DANCE

FEATURING
"THE GRANDEURS"

NOV. 10 - 9-10 P.M.
LOWER DINING HALL

JUNIORS $4 PER COUPLE ALL OTHERS $5 PER COUPLE

Tickets on sale in the New Smoker Mon thru Fri 11:30-1 and 5-6:30, and at the door.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF—Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth, Mary Grant, Jodi Gilbert, Joan Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley Clore, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom Hands, Lynne Swain, Sherry Carmony, David Galls, Thomas Cole, Steven Whitten, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hare, Donna Hasky, Judi Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner, Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Cecilia White, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Janet Reynolds, Tony Mason, Kathy Chape

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

CHI Speaks

Dear Longwood College Students,
In a 1975 issue of the Rotunda, a special feature was done by The question was asked—Where do you think CHI will be five years from now? Well, 1980 is right around the corner and as it approaches CHI can still be seen and felt as the same.

Despite the many changes that have taken place on the campus of Longwood, CHI's essential purpose, which is to promote and maintain a spirit of cooperation among students, can still be seen in the hearts and minds of those who seek its real purpose.

With this in mind, every member of the student body is a member of CHI. The members of the organization itself serve only as a representation of the ideals of the college.

To represent our support of the students of Longwood College, CHI is displaying a table in the new smoker or Rotunda sometime during the week of November 5, 1979. CHI would also like to recognize and support "Arts up front", in their purpose of continuing the arts at Longwood.

It is through your support of CHI and CHI's support of you, that the ideals and consistent spirit that is felt by many, will continue throughout the years.

In Blue and White Spirit,
CHI of 1980

Resignation

Letter

To the Student Body:

I am resigning as Fire Warden of Residence Board effective at Noon on Tuesday, the 30th day of October 1979.

I am resigning for many reasons. These include:

(A) The lack of support Residence Board receives from the faculty and staff of the college.

(B) The unwillingness of the administration to listen to the students, who pay their salaries, in dealing with some of the archaic rules and regulations of the Boards. And especially the obstacles the administration presents to the Boards when they try to change these rules and structures to remain current and viable organizations on campus.

(C) The inability of the Residence Board and Resident Staff to work together. Such as, a member of the staff telling RA's that they do not have to enforce Residence or Judicial Board rules and policies. And of members of the staff and board participating in, and helping plan, violations of college policy and state law.

(E) The hypocrisy of some of the members of both Residence Board and Residence staff in dealing with certain rules and state laws.

I feel that Residence Board could become a very important and essential part of Longwood, but only if reorganized into a viable organization. Residence Board, as it is now, can and will not be a functioning Board and I am tired of wasting my time in dealing with it.

Sincerely,
David Wall

Worth It?

Police Adequate?

Dear Editor,

Recently a friend and I were walking to Curry, and out of nowhere three guys came up to us and asked directions to Cox. After telling them, they began to follow us. They told us they were from Farmville and wanted to know where to find people to party with. They were obviously in no need of a party. There was no hope of losing them although we tried. They followed us all the way from Lankford to the front steps of Curry. Not more than fifteen minutes later, around 11

Dear Editor,

Being a senior at Longwood College (and one of the first males to graduate), I have seen many traditions hold a cherished spotlight in the hearts and minds of the students here. Unfortunately, some of these traditions have been around so long that they defy any logic to explain them.

Now, don't get me wrong. Some traditions at Longwood are unique and promote good morale on campus. One in particular, however, has just gotten to the point of complete foolishness.

Last week, during Oktoberfest, ARA Services compiled with a tradition which was started many years ago. They supplied a 400 pound cake to be enjoyed by the parents and friends (not to mention a few students), after the skits. Approximately 350 people had a slice of this cake.

Talking to Mr. Inge, director of the food service, he informed me that the cake cost $2.50 a pound to produce. This does not include the man-hours paid to the people who made it. If you do a little quick arithmetic, that means the Oktoberfest cake this year cost over $1,000 to produce, or roughly $2.85 a slice for every person who ate it last Saturday.

Granted, there was a lot of cake left over which will be recycled in various ways by our dining service, and that ARA Services paid for the cake entirely (not using any student money). But couldn't that $1,000 be used in a better way to serve the students?

There has been a lot of talk lately that the food service here at Longwood has deteriorated. This may have no basis in fact, but I can remember when ARA first provided a salad bar and the wonderful selection it had, and what the salad (?) bar looks like now. I would think that a $1,000 could bring back a quality to the food service here (or at least to the salad bar) that we students have sorely missed.

Remember, one man's cake is another man's poison.

Brown and White love,
George Bennett
(Class of '80)

Editor's Turn

"What if there was an election and nobody ran?"

We have all seen these signs at one time or another on campus, but have we ever stopped for a moment to think of the question it asks?

Major-Minor elections will be held soon and according to the chairman of Elections Committee, not many are running. Of the three boards, all are virtually unopposed. Applications for Student Union and IAA have a combined total of three positions. As stated elsewhere in this paper, the problem stems from the new Judicial Board proposal (see Page 1).

Longwood has often been noted for its spirit when it came time for Oktoberfest, Mardi Gras Weekend, and Spring Weekend, but now that it is election time, where is all that spirit? Our spirit has been replaced by apathy. It has been written that apathy is sometimes good because it keeps those out of office who were not qualified.

Someone wrote on one of these signs, "It'll be great for Longwood." We ask you, would it really be "great" if our college had no rules or means of enforcing these rules? It is doubtful that it would be. Think of it this way — would you rather live in an environment where pandemonium prevailed and everyone was out for Number One?

If our Federal and state governments had no one running for offices, what would our society be like? Would we end up with a dictatorship or would we fall into decay — perhaps like that of the Roman Empire? True, these are all suppositions, but think about it. The freedoms we hold dear to us would be gone.

But back to the situation here at Longwood . . . As students we should take pride in our school and participate in as many ways as possible. That means academically as well as extracurricular activities — sports, committees, etc. This also means serving in an elected capacity.

Do not be apathetic about Major-Minor elections. If you feel you are capable for any of the various offices available, please become a candidate. What we need is responsible leadership.

Think about it!

PEJ

I think I shall never see
A problem that baffles me...
The P.E. tree.
Dr. William Peele

Photo by Melody Crawley

Waters Display

Features Portraits

By CHRIS VOGEL

A collection of works painted by Mrs. Susan C. Waters is on display now in the Bedford Gallery, at the Longwood Fine Arts Center. Mrs. Colleen Cowles Heslip of Wilmington, Delaware is guest curator.

Susan Waters was a Nineteenth Century itinerant painter. Born in 1823, in Binghamton, New York, she married William C. Waters in 1841. Most of her early works were portraits, painted in small towns in southern New York and Northern Pennsylvania in the 1840's.

Many of her early portraits were painted on any available material found. This consisted of cotton, linen, or mattress ticking, often primed with a white ground.

The treatment of the faces in Mrs. Waters' earliest portraits (1844) were rather harsh. The faces contained many hard lines and the eyes and mouths appeared pinched. The young children appeared much older than what available documentation indicated. By 1845, her style improved, showing more softness in line and a less "pinched" expression.

Common to Mrs. Waters' portraits was an eye for detail in the fabrics. Mrs. Waters handled the great detail in the lace and prints quite well.

Also common in Mrs. Waters' portraits were the addition of animals, plants, and foliage. The animals in the early portraits were very primitive. They lack dimension, but have a charm all their own. Potted plants and foliage are evident in all the portraits except those of the men. The inclusion of plants and foliage, along with schematic landscapes; longlobed ears; and fat, boneless hands are characteristic of Susan Waters' portraits.

With the development of the camera, the portrait market dwindled. Mrs. Waters turned to the camera herself and continued traveling, taking daguerreotypes and ambrotypes, while teaching drawing and painting.

Mrs. Waters returned to painting in the 1860's. Her subjects then were animals, landscapes, still life, marine, and religious pictures, and at least one more portrait.

Mrs. Waters' later treatment of animals was much more realistic. The animals had more dimension and many show a sense of humor. Favorite animal subjects were chickens, rabbits, squirrels, and especially sheep. Mrs. Waters continued painting until a few months before her death in July, 1900.

The Susan Waters exhibit will continue at Longwood College until November 19, 1979. After that, it may be seen at the New Jersey State Museum, Trenton from December 1, 1979 until January 1, 1980; and then at the Arnot Art Museum, Elmira, New York, from January 5-31, 1980.

Available from the Art Department are "Mrs. Susan C. Waters, 19th Century Itinerant Painter," published by the Longwood Fine Arts Department. This catalog of Mrs. Waters' works is $3.95. The poster, "Mary E. Kingman," is available for $2.00.

The Susan Waters display includes: (top left) The Explorer, an oil on canvas; (top right) Man in Black, an oil on mattress ticking; (bottom left) Chickens and Raspberries, an oil on canvas; (bottom right) Children With Melon and Cat, an oil.

Gamble Enjoys All Forms Of Theatre

By JUDISTANLEY

Richard Gamble, the new technical director in Longwood's Drama Department, has tried various occupation ventures, but has always come back to theatre.

Gamble grew up in Wisconsin and attended Rock Valley Junior College, planning to go into engineering. However, he "got caught up in doing theatre stuff" and, changing his major, received an associate degree in the arts. He then attended Stevens College in Missouri, a women's college which accepted two men in technical theatre, and graduated with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Theatre. After graduating, Gamble worked with Stevens for two years as technical director.

Gamble then decided to get "out of theatre to make some money," and took a job as a draftsman for a water pollution control company for a year. Realizing that he had rather been in theatre, Gamble returned to school and received his masters degree from University of Illinois in 1974. He worked for four years at Southern Oregon State College where, because of lack of production facilities, he and the director began staging productions as dinner theatre. This program worked so well that Gamble and the director decided to open a dinner theatre in Portland, Oregon. "The market seemed good," says Gamble, but due to lack of investments they had to open outside the city and did some business, though at a loss. "We weren't making any money. To me it was sort of like an adventure. We closed before we lost our shirts," Gamble relates. He wanted to go back to working at a college because in the dinner theatre, "I found myself operating a restaurant more than doing theatre and I never wanted to be a restaurant operator."

When Gamble discovered the job opening at Longwood, he had never heard of the college. However, he and his wife liked it better than other opportunities "because Kathy and I wanted to move east, close to our families and, besides, I like a smaller school."

Gamble had pretty much decided to accept the job before he came to Virginia for the interview in August; in fact, he says that Kathy had started packing and when he returned to Oregon, they rented and packed a U-Haul Truck, sold their car, and headed for Virginia with their eight month old son, Jesse. Of the five and a half day trip across country Gamble says, "It was incredibly hectic. Jesse liked it; he thought it was great fun. He was the ONLY one who thought it was great fun. The cat hated it!"

Gamble says that Longwood is what he expected it to be. "I am happy with it. I like working in a smaller college; it's not only so small that you lack resources, not so big that it's impersonal or that you can't experiment with things and get to know the students," Gamble relates. In between plays, Gamble has been working with his stage craft class to build a storage loft in the scene shop, along with similar projects in Jarman. Gamble says that one thing he'd like to see is a better Studio Theatre and he hopes to work on this in the future.

When he is not working on a play or various projects in the scene shop, Gamble is at home still unpacking and settling things. When he can get to them, he has a model railroad and train that he enjoys working with. Also Gamble says, "My son takes a lot of my time. I used to have fears about raising children, but Jesse has taken care of that."

Kathy Gamble enjoys working with costumes for productions and at this time is sewing for a ballet company in Richmond. She will also be helping with costumes for the upcoming play "The Good Woman of Settsuan."

Senior Spotlight:

Longwood Scholar Is Involved

By SHARON JANOVICH

"Everybody is for everybody here at Longwood. The Administration, Faculty and Students are on a one-to-one basis," said this week's senior spotlight, Karen Shelton. Karen went on to say that the "Atmosphere, smiles and people make Longwood a terrific place. I wouldn't want to be anywhere else."

Karen is involved in numerous extracurricular activities on campus. She is the Recording Secretary of Legislative Board, Vice-President of Scholarship for Alpha Gamma Delta, Vice President—Baptist Student Union, Tafara—Freshman, Sophomore and Junior years, Class Activities Committee, Colleague and Orientation Leader (Junior and Senior years), Oktoberfest Usherette and a Longwood scholar. "Being involved doesn't interfere at all with my academics. Budgeting my time is the key," said Karen.

"I was chosen as a Longwood scholar by the Longwood Review Board. It is based on SAT scores and class rank as an individual graduates from high school. They selected me and wrote me a letter, and I accepted. You must have a minimum of 3.5 cumulative per semester; and I now have a 3.88 cumulative average." Karen went on to say that she "always wanted to be involved in student government in high school, but I lived so far away from school, that getting to meetings was difficult. Also, it was just a big popularity contest then. Now, I've gotten so involved, that I just love it. I've enjoyed being on Legislative Board very much and I've done that for two years."

Then asked about Oktoberfest, she said, "I'll never forget Oktoberfest, though. Wearing my usherette costume made me have an automatic smile. I'll treasure those memories forever."

Karen felt that she is happy about everything at Longwood, with the exception of rumor-telling, hypocrisy and backstabbing. "Too many people are hurt by unjust statements. People often come to me with problems and more often than not, it is because of rumors that they're upset. I think that that is the most unfair thing in the world that can be done," said Karen.

Karen is an English major with Speech, Drama and Journalism certification. After graduation, she plans to teach and if she enjoys it, she will pursue it. "Graduate school and seminary are possible choices, too," said Karen.

"I'd like people to remember that everything I did, I did for my growth and to help others. I sincerely care about this campus and all of the people and hate the thought of leaving Longwood College in May."

The best of luck is wished for Longwood's scholar—Karen Shelton after graduation in May 1980.

Red Cross. The Good Neighbor.

A Public Service of this newspaper & The Advertising Council

Last year millions upon millions counted on us.

Men's Basketball Building

By CHUCK COLE

Several projects are currently underway on the Longwood campus. Among those is the rebuilding of the rooms destroyed by the fire in Curry Dormitory last year. Also included is the construction of the new Health and Physical Education Building scheduled for completion this summer.

Longwood students have grown accustomed to the noise and the dust which are associated with construction of these types. But there is one project currently underway whose noise may be the most significant in the brief history of men's athletics on the Longwood campus.

November 15 marks the first public appearance of the 1979-80 Lancer basketball team as they exhibit the form which they hope will carry them to the NCAA Division III Tournament in a Blue and White scrimmage at 8:15 p.m. The JVs will play at 6:30.

At the helm of the Lancers once again will be Dr. Ron Bash, who led last year's team to a record-setting 19-8 season and a Virginia Invitational Kiwanis Tournament Championship. The Championship was the first one brought to the Longwood campus by a male athletic team.

Joining Coach Bash court-side this year will be Assistant Coach Mo Schoepfer. Schoepfer brings an impressive basketball background to the Lancer coaching staff. Among his credentials are a few years in professional basketball with the Hartford Capitols and MVP award in his senior year at Boston University.

Coach Bash commented on his goals for the season.

"When the season is winding down, I want the Lancers in the South-Atlantic NCAA Division III Tournament as the At-Large team." (The At-Large bid is the only nonconference bid in the South-Atlantic Region). We will be bucking precedent, as Virginia teams have never been selected over northern powerhouses like Upsilon and New Jersey State. There is a chance of switching regions, but the chance is not that good. We must win all of our Division III games."

Winning all of the Division III games of the schedule will be no easy feat. Stony Brook (Bash's former school), Salem, Manhattanville, Queensville, Greensboro, Averett, and the

(L to R) First row: Byron Bracey, Ken Ford, Joe Goydich, Shack Leonard, Jim Sixsmith, Joe Remar, Darrell Jenkins, Orlando Turner, Larry Williams, Second row: Mo Schoepfer, Tee Alston, Larry Meyer, Randy Johnson, Ron Orr, Michael Wills, Kevin Newton, Barren Lewis, Mike Owens.

University of D.C. are all formidable opponents. The tough schedule may be an asset to the Lancers in the Tournament selection if they have the year Coach Bash is projecting. The Lancers will be playing eleven games outside of the friendly confines of French Gymnasium.

The Sky's the Limit

The Lancers will once again be playing teams with height advantages. Longwood will retain last year's offensive ideas which was given the moniker (Continued on Page 8)

Lady Lancers Look For Improved Season

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Longwood's women's basketball team, which opened preseason drills October 1, has high hopes for improving on last season's 7-16 record as the Lancers begin their fourth year under the tutelage of head coach Carolyn Hodges, who will be assisted by Ms. Jane Miller.

The Lady Lancers, 33-30 during Hodges' three years at the helm, came in second in the state in 1976 and third in the state in 1977 while competing in the large college division of the VFISW. This season, however, Longwood is playing in Division II of the Virginia Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

"We should be much improved," says Hodges.

The only difference this change will make in the Lancer schedule is that national champs Old Dominion will not be included. However, the Lady Lancers will host the Lady Monarchs in an exhibition game November 15, 1980, to celebrate the opening of the new gymnasium.

There are still five Division I schools included on the Lancer slate. Highlighting their winter action will be a trip to Florida to take on Bethane-Cookman College, Florida Tech, and Eckerd College during Christmas Break.

"We should be much improved over last season," said Hodges, "with the experience gained last season by our returning players plus the addition of several strong recruits, we should have more scoring punch and stronger rebounding."

Hodges can count on eight returning lettermen plus a strong group of incoming freshmen recruits to bolster her team's chances in the upcoming campaign.

Returning to the lineup will be 5'9" junior Brenda Fettrow who doubles as a forward and guard. Last year she averaged 12 points and six rebounds per game.

Sophomore Robin Hungate will also be seeing a lot of action this fall. The 5'10" forward averaged nine points and five rebounds per game.

After a short absence, Mary Jane Smith returns to the roster. A 5'9" forward, Smith only played eight games last year, averaging 14 points and five rebounds per game.

Adding additional height to the team will be freshmen Cindy Eckel, Karen Savarese, Teresa Ferrante, and Robyn Goff. Eckel, a 5'11" forward South Plainfield, N.J., averaged 18 points and 10 rebounds per game in high school. The tallest Lancer will be 6' Savarese from Trumbull, top three in our division and have a winning record, we'll have better overall height, but we'll have to score more points to reach our goals. We would like to get our points per game into the 70's," says Hodges. Last year the Lady Lancers averaged 58 points per game.

Hodges, director of women's athletics, hopes her team will get off to a strong start with five of its first six games at home.

First row (left to right) — Assistant coach Jane Miller, Connie Murray, Chris Romeo, Patty Lia, Cindy Eckel, Deb Taylor, Beverly Harris (manager), head coach Carolyn Hodges. Second row — Sandi Cram (manager), Brenda Fettrow, Theresa Ferrante, Amy Gates, Karen Savarese, Sue Naughton, Robin Hungate, Linda Pullen, Absent — Maryjane Smith, Robyn Goff, Kitty Hughes, Laurie Grimm.

Conn., who averaged 11 points and seven rebounds per game. She is noted for 158 blocked shots in her high school career. Ferrante, a 5'10" forward from New Carlisle, Ohio, averaged 14 points and 13 rebounds per game. An All District player from Warrenton, 5'7" Goff averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds per game. She is presently out of action due to an injury, but will see playing time later in the season.

Out of a sixteen member team, eight players are on scholarship. There were seven partial and one full scholarship given out this season.

While the Lady Lancer season officially opens November 17 with a home contest against Christopher-Newport, a preseason unveiling of the team took place Nov. 5 when Longwood's women Cagers and gymnasts teamed up for an exhibition doubleheader.

"We'd like to finish among the

No.	Name	Position
42	Thomas Alston	F
43	Byron Bracey	F
33	Ken Ford	G
23	Joe Goydich	G
25	Darrell Jenkins	G
45	Randy Johnson	F
15	Shack Leonard, Jr.	F
35	Barren Lewis	F
55	Larry Meyer	F
44	Kevin Newton	F
32	Ron Orr	C
53	Mike Owens	F
14	Joe Remar	G
13	Jim Sixsmith	G
24	Orlando Turner	G
34	Larry Williams	G
54	Michael Wills	C

DATE	OPPONENT
Nov. 23	H - L.C. Invitational Classic I
24	L - Stony Brook, Bowie St., L.C. Gallaudet
27	A - Shenandoah
30	H - Mary Washington
Dec. 3	H - St. Paul's
4	A - Emory & Henry
8	A - Bridgewater
Jan. 10	A - Southeastern (FL.)
12	A - Clearwater (FL.)
15	A - Mary Washington
18	H - Bowie State (MD.)
19	H - Greensboro (NC.)
22	H - Salem (WV.)
23	H - Averett
25	A - Manhattanville Alumni Tournament (NY.)
26	L.C. Maritime
28	A - St. Mary's (MD.)
30	H - Bridgewater
Feb. 2	H - Southeastern U. (DC.)
4	A - John Jay (NY.)
6	A - Queens (NY.)
9	A - Southeastern U. (DC.)
12	H - Shenandoah
14	A - Greensboro (NC.)
18	H - Emory & Henry
23	H - U. of D.C.

HEAD COACH: Ron Bash

Gymnasts Young, But Experienced

By DEBBIE KINZEL

If you pop your head in French gym, you would find ten hard working young ladies, either flip flopping on the mats, bouncing over the horse, or even swinging on the uneven bars. These gymnasts have been practicing since the first day of classes and have been preparing for their first meet, which is November 17 at Georgia College.

After speaking with Coach Ruth Budd, she feels like the stronger events will be floor exercise and balance beam. Vaulting will be fairly strong, with the weaker event being the bars. She has more depth to the team than in previous years, which consists of two veteran gymnasts Kathy Idelson and Jean Powers, and then eight freshmen with tons of enthusiasm.

Even though with a great number of freshmen, experience among the gymnasts is a strong quality of the team. Sharon Pillow has competed internationally in Nova Scotia, and Kathy Idelson also has competed internationally in Poland and qualified to go to the national tournament last year.

The season outlook is very optimistic with three definite all-around gymnasts — Sharon Pillow, Kathy Idelson and Sheila Gould. But there are three others who are all-around possibilities — Margie Fanton, Karen Mazzonna and Margi Janjer. Donna Banger specializes in floor and vaulting, Jean Powers in bars and vaulting, Robbie Hanger in beam and floor, and Barbara Jolly in vaulting.

Coach Ruth Budd is excited about the season and really impressed with the determination that the team has shown. She is sure all their hard work will pay off when it comes time for their first meet.

Gymnastics Team Members: Sharon Pillow, Fr. Donna Banger, Fr. Margie Fanton, Fr. Karen Mazzonna, Fr. Sheila Gould, Fr. Margi Janjer, Fr. Jean Powers, S. Kathy Idelson, S. Barbara Jolly, Fr. Robbie Hanger, Fr.

Schedule:

Nov.	17 Georgia (Away)
Dec.	1 W. Carolina (Home)
8 USGF Invit. (LC host)
Jan.	18 Duke (Away)
22 UMBC (Home)
25 E. Carolina (Away)
31 W and M (Home)
Feb.	2 Madison (Home)
8 UPI (Away)
16 Radford (Away)
24 State Meet (W and M)
March	14 Regionals (Radford)
28 National (Centenary College, Louisiana)
29

BASKETBALL

DATE	OPPONENT
Nov. 19	H - Chris Newkirk
19	H - U. Va.
27	H - Hampton Institute
29	H - Norfolk State
Dec. 3	H - Wm & Mary
5	H - U. of Charleston (SC.)
8	A - UNC/Greensboro (NC.)
10	A - Bethune-Cookman (FL.)
12	A - Fla. Tech (FL.)
14	A - Eckerd (FL.)
15	H - Davis-Elkins (WV.)
18	A - Bridgewater
19	H - JMU
27	A - Liberty Baptist
24	H - Radford
29	H - U. of Richmond
Feb. 1	A - VCU
5	A - Va. State
7	A - Winthrop Tournam. (SC.)
13	H - George Mason U.
15	H - Va. Tech
17	H - St. Mary's
19	H - Liberty Baptist
21	A - U. of D.C.
23	A - Catholic U. (DC.)
Feb. 28	A - VAAW State Tour. nament
6	A - AIAW, Region II
10	A - AIAW Division II, 1st
16	Round Satellite
17	TBA - AIAW Division II
23	Finals

HEAD COACH: Carolyn Hodges

Spikers Win Division Title

By SUSAN TOWLER

The Longwood Spikers have really put it together the past couple of weeks. Facing opponents such as U.Va., Lynchburg, Roanoke, and Mary Washington, and coming out with a Division III title, the Longwood College volleyball team has something to be proud of.

On Tuesday, October 30, Longwood travelled to Lynchburg to play both University of Virginia and Lynchburg College. Longwood beat U.Va. with scores of 13-15, 15-6, and 15-12. Meg Cook served the 6-11 points in the second game with Robin Hungate, Cindy Thomas, and Madline Moose at the net. It was this trio, combined with Meg Cook's serves that won this game for Longwood. In the third game, Robin Hungate served the first five points with Meg Cook, Sherry Will, and Fran Osmer at the net. This combination was successful as Longwood took this game for the match with a score of 15-12.

On the same night, Longwood played Lynchburg College and lost with scores of 9-15, 15-12, and 6-15. Even though Longwood fought hard, they made one too many errors.

The next night, however, Longwood really got it together to squash Roanoke College at home with scores of 15-2 and 15-6. This match was an aggressive one and this was the key to Longwood's victory. Serving the most points in the first game was Sherry Will. Cindy Thomas and Meg Cook served the majority of the points in the second game. The spikers as a whole looked good in this match. Spirits were high and the players were confident in their game.

On the same night, Longwood also played Mary Washington, a very important opponent. Longwood won with scores of 16-14, 10-15, and 15-7. This victory put Longwood's volleyball team in first place in the East Conference for Division III. The first game was very close and could have gone either way. Good team play and determination brought Longwood through to win this game 16-14. Madline Moose served the 12-15 points for the win.

The second game was won by Mary Washington with the score 15-10. Longwood had trouble putting their plays together in this game. When the third game rolled around, Longwood straightened up and beat Mary Washington 15-7 for the match and the East Conference Division III title. Connie Murray, Kathy Gunning, Madline Moose, and Sherry Will all played outstanding games and never missed an opportunity to put the ball away. Coach Callaway indeed has something to brag about.

The LC Soccer team played Hampden-Sydney Sunday, with a final score 0-1. Here Ken Gebbie eludes an aggressive H-SC opponent as he attempts to maneuver down the field.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Golfers, Rider Claim Honors

From Sports Information
Junior Kay Smith (Covington) and freshman Robin Andrews (Woodlawn), who led the Longwood women's golf team to the VAAW state title, have been named Longwood College Players of the Week.

Andrews, one of the top high school golfers in Virginia a year ago, fired a 79-83 - 162 and Smith came through with an 81-78 - 159 to pace Longwood's triumph in the state tournament at the 5,845 yard, par-72 Country Club of Staunton golf course. The Lady Lancers accumulated a two-day total of 676, 29 strokes better than second place William & Mary.

Both Andrews and Smith won individual titles. In the one-day VAAW State Open Tuesday, Andrews' 79 was tops, and Smith's two-day total of 159 was best among competitors in the VAAW State team championship.

"Robin had an outstanding round," said Coach Barbara Smith in reference to Andrews' 79 in the State Open. "It rained for the entire 18 holes, which made the course play much longer than the 5,845 yards recorded."

"Robin has contributed to the

SHANNON CHAMBERS

total team score in every tournament this fall and is beginning to score to her present skill level," the coach continued. "I am very pleased with Robin's performance to date as a freshman and I am confident she will continue to play well during our last tournament at Carolina (Nov. 3, 4, 5)."

The Lady Lancer coach praised Smith for her consistency.

"Kay has played number one on the team throughout the fall season," said Coach Smith. "She deserves to be Player of the Week because of her consistency in being able to score low for the team effort. Her performance in the State Championship was simply great in that she shot an 81 for the first 18 holes in a steady, heavy rain and a 78, best round of the entire field, for the second round on a very cold, windy day."

Smith is the year's first repeat selection for Player of the Week. The junior was also picked on October 8, after she won the Mary Baldwin Invitational with an 80-77 - 157.

Sophomore Shannon Chambers (Yorktown Heights, NY), a member of the Longwood equestrian team, has been chosen

(Continued on Page 8)

Netters Finish

6-3

By STEVE WHITTEN

Longwood netters ended their season Tuesday at Sweet Briar with a 3-6 loss. This put their record for the season with six wins and three losses. Longwood won two singles and one doubles against Sweet Briar.

N. Leidenheimer (LC) lost to S. Capozzoli 6-3, 6-1; T. McLawhorn (LC) won against J. Dure 7-6 (5-4), 6-4; D. Keys (LC) lost to E. Holladay 3-6, 6-0, 6-1; C. Lewis (LC) lost to E. Bibb 6-2, 6-2; J. Foster lost to H. Green 6-0, 6-3; K. Purcell (LC) won against C. Shirley 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

In doubles, Leidenheimer and McLawhorn (LC) lost to Dure and Bibb 7-6 (5-3), 6-2; Foster and Lewis won against Hutson and Capozzoli, 6-1, 7-5; Diehl and Ibanez lost to Green and Paulson 6-0, 6-0.

Ruggers Win

by CHRIS CONNER

The United Rugby Club out of Richmond was handed a loss this past Sunday, at the Campus school, by our own Longwood Club. The game was very physical and saw scores by Chris Poh who had a 30 yard field goal and Gary Cunningham who punched in a try from 10 yards out, to carry the Longwood club through the rest of the game.

This latest victory boosts Longwood's record to 4-0. The next, the last, home game will see a very good game between Longwood and Hampden-Sydney Thursday afternoon. The time is yet to be announced.

P. E. and T. R. majors enjoy the REAL experience on Saturdays.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Real Experience

By SUSAN TOWLER

Some physical education and therapeutic recreation majors at Longwood, under the direction of Dr. Eleanor Bobbitt and Frank Brasile, are conducting a unique recreational program on campus called Recreational Experience at Longwood. It is better known as REAL and is held every Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. through December 8.

REAL is a developmental program for disabled children using a variety of activities. Students from Prince Edward County special education classes between the ages of 6 and 13 years get together on Saturdays for lots of fun.

They participate in activities such as swimming, gymnastics, games, sports, tumbling, and rhythms. There is no charge for this program.

REAL is one way that Longwood is helping the community and this program deserves a lot of credit.

Hockey Finishes Sixth

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lancer field hockey team ended its regular season last Wednesday in a 0-0 tie against Mary Washington. The team was plagued by a season-long ailment: they could not put the ball in the goal.

On Friday, the sixth seed Lancers met Virginia Tech in the VAAW State Tournament at James Madison. The game was played in a steady rain on a slick, muddy field. LC held its own until the second half when they allowed Tech to gain a 2-0 advantage.

During the second half Teresa Ware left the game because of an injury suffered when a Tech player forgot she was not playing football.

The loss pitted LC against ODU in the loser's bracket where they played to a 0-0 tie in regulation time. The Lancers offensively played one of their best games, but the plague continued. The Monarchs scored on a penalty stroke in the overtime period to keep LC in sixth place.

Fourth Seed JMU went on to win the championship by defeating top seed William and Mary and second seed UVA.

The varsity ended with a dismal 3-11-3 season record. The only goals scored this fall were by Julie Dayton with seven, four each by Cherie Stevens and Betty Stanley, and one for Debi Kinzel.

The JV compiled a winning 4-1-3 record, losing only to William and Mary. Scoring for the Lancers this season were Jeanne Wakelyn with six, Mary King and Kim Wood with four, and Kathy Devine, Joan Matson, Barb Becker, and B.S. Casey each with one goal.

The future looks bright for the team, though, as most of the players on both teams will return next year. Only six seniors will be lost from the varsity and JV.

PRESENTS

"LADIES NIGHT"

AT THE RED LYON

Tonight and every Tuesday

9 TO 12

GUYS
$1.00

LADIES FREE
UNTIL 10:00 then 50¢

FIRST 2 SILVER BARRELS 10¢ A DRINK
DRIVERS LICENSE REQUIRED

Grant Lectures

(Continued from Page 2)
strongly recommended by Grant, and was much of the reference for his lecture. He explained that there is no scientific approach to getting a job. Many college graduates and young people do not know exactly what they are looking for in a job and many companies do not know what they are looking for in an employee. He explained that the interview is not generally a pleasant experience because it is a "screening out" process. High grades are not always the basis for hiring; motivation is an important factor.

"The perfect job does not exist," explained Grant. Many people experience a lot of frustration, especially in their first jobs. A person may or may not be in a job that is correlated with their major. Some people have to start in lower positions than they desire and work their way towards a position they want. The important thing is to start to work in an area that you really enjoy.

Grant concluded his speech by encouraging sophomores and juniors to begin thinking about the jobs they want and doing "research" in how to go about getting them. He strongly suggests using the placement office and the advice from any sources that may be available such as parents or friends.

Student Union

(Continued from Page 2)
Gras Weekend," "Spring Weekend," and the Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon are all coordinated by the Student Union committee. These events are open to the entire student body, faculty, staff, and their guests, either free, or at a minimal charge.

The Student Union is designed to provide varied, affordable, quality entertainment, geared toward the interests of all segments of the campus population. To meet the needs and interests of all students, suggestions and ideas regarding Student Union programs are not only welcomed, but are also imperative to the operation of a successful Student Union.

Positions available are chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, and treasurer. Every student of campus is automatically a member of S-UN. Student Union meetings are held every Monday night at 7 p.m. in the S-UN room in Lankford.

Men's Basketball

(Continued from Page 6)

"Basketball" during last season. Basketball is a ball-control offense which depends on a tough aggressive defense.

"We hope to pressure the opposition while also wearing them down," the coach explained. "Defense is the key to easy buckets. The team has displayed high intensity and great defense which will be a big key in a successful season."

Defense will be a factor in the season, but rebounding may provide a bigger challenge to the Lancers. Bash hopes to be able to use the depth of the Lancer squad to supplement his rebounding corps. Lee Alston, Kenny Ford and Randy Johnson return to solidify the front line, but look for freshmen Barrin Lewis and transfer Mike Owens to see a lot of action.

Shack Leonard returns to coordinate the Lancer offense. Leonard was named Male Athlete of the Year for last year's contributions.

Kevin Newton is also returning to add his outside touch to the Lancer's offensive machine. Freshman Joe Remar will also see game action in the guard position.

Bash is concerned with how well his freshmen will adjust to the college style of basketball.

The major concern of mine is to see how fast the freshmen adjust to the college basketball environment. They must be able to adjust to the travel, the studies, and the pace of the college game, as he explained his concerns. "Remar is performing beyond all expectation . . . his passing and control make him a prime candidate for a starting berth. If he doesn't start, he will see a lot of playing time."

Wrap-Up

The stage is set. The one thing left is performance. Bash is striving to get his players to concentrate on the strengths of their game instead of trying to do it all themselves.

Coach Bash sums it up this way. "The Lancers will have to do the things they do best in order to win and reach their goal."

Golfers & Riders

(Continued from Page 7)

for her performance in the James Madison and Mary Baldwin Intercollegiate Horse Show October 26.

Chambers won a first place (blue ribbon) in novice-horsemanship-on-the-flat in the JMU-MBC show. The sophomore turned in an outstanding performance.

Lancer riding coach Mary Whitlock was very impressed with Chambers' showing.

"With 15 colleges competing in the show, Shannon had to perform particularly well to win a blue ribbon," said the coach. "The competition in the JMU and Mary Baldwin Show was very tough. I am extremely proud of Shannon."

An Art major at Longwood, Chambers participated in junior varsity field hockey last year before turning her talents to riding. She enjoys art, playing the guitar, singing and working with ceramics in her spare time.

Before the James Madison-Mary Baldwin Show, Chambers had won at least one ribbon in every show Longwood entered. She is the first member of the equestrian team to be chosen as Player of the Week this season.

Point of Interest

The artist of the painting published last week on page 2 was Gregory Gilliam, a senior Art major.

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:
Mon-Thur. Til 10 PM. Fri. & Sat. Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392 5665

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

COUPON

FREE!

COKE, SPRITE OR MR. PIBB

WITH THIS COUPON AND THE PURCHASE
OF EVERY SANDWICH, HOT DOG, OR SUNDAE.

"16 FLAVORS OF DELICIOUS MONTICELLO ICE CREAM"

VALID THRU SAT., NOV. 10, 1979.

That Ice Cream Place, Ltd.

142 N. MAIN ST. OPEN MONDAY THRU SAT. 11 A.M.-5 P.M.

VALID THRU SAT., NOV. 17, 1979

HOW TO HIT MOM AND DAD UP FOR YOUR HOLIDAY TRIP HOME.

It's easy.
All you have to do is cut out, sign and send the letter below.

Dear Mom and Dad,

How are you? I'm fine, and the doctor says I'll feel even better when I get a few days' rest and a couple of home-cooked meals. But with the condition of my wallet, it looks like I'll have to hitchhike home for the holidays.

My roommate just made plans to go home with Greyhound and says Greyhound is a great way to fight inflation because their fares are so reasonable.

Greyhound even makes it possible for someone to prepay a ticket in one place so someone at another place can just pick up the ticket and come home. You can even send along a small cash advance with the ticket. Greyhound will take care of everything for just a small fee. Boy — is my roommate lucky.

Well, I have to run to pick up some more of that expensive medicine. I miss you all very much and hope to be home next weekend.

Love and kisses,

GO GREYHOUND

Fashion's Latest

Tancy Shape
Diamonds
Distinctively Mounted

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

THE HAIR shaft

"HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU"

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS:

Mon. & Tues	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri.	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1979

NO. 9

Committee Recommends Proposal To President

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Committee To Study Judicial Responsibilities approved a final proposal last Tuesday. They recommended to President Henry I. Willett Jr. that the proposal be implemented on a trial basis for a one year period beginning January, 1980. "I anticipate it will be approved," stated President Willett, Wednesday. He said he had looked through it and would review it several more times before his final decision was made.

Copies of the proposal were mailed to the Liaison Committee of the Board of Visitors, Wednesday. Board members Eric L. Robinson, Gay Kampfmüller, Mrs. J. L. Davidson, and Mrs. Joshua Pretlow are expected to return the proposal with their comments, this week.

President Willett says he anticipates "minor changes for clarification."

The diagram of proposal does not change the violations handled by Judicial Board. It does, however, change the channels of investigation. Dean Mary A. Heintz, chairman of the committee, emphasizes that, "it is not intended to take the place of Residence Board."

The new proposal sets up the judicial system to consist of a Judicial Board and two Investigative Committees. The members of the two committees will do all the investigations and the Board members will only judge the cases.

The committees will consist of a total of 13 people. Each committee will be headed by a coordinator selected by the committee.

One committee will handle all Honor Code Violations: lying, cheating (including plagiarism) and stealing. This committee will consist of four students, one elected from each of the four classes. Two investigators will always handle each honor code violation.

The other committee will investigate all college violations handled by the Board: vandalism, physical abuse, threats, disruptive conduct, interference with Judicial Board, repeated and/or serious violations of college regulations and narcotics. This committee will consist of six students, two elected from each of the sophomore, junior and senior classes, and three Administrative staff, appointed by the President. Three people (two students and one staff member) if possible, will conduct searches. Campus Police will accompany these investigators in narcotics investigations. The Board advisor will also act in a consulting position to the investigators. All investigators will go through a training procedure.

The judging part of the Board will consist of a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary, all elected by the student body; three senior members, three junior members, three sophomore members, and two freshman members, all elected by their respective classes.

Committee members are Dean Heintz, Dr. T. C. Dalton, Dr. John Peale, Neil Sullivan, Sally Lowe, Cindy Byrd, Wanda Petersen, Lynn Plageman, Chief Smith, Keith Moore, Eric Benjamin, and Jan Bates.

Diagram of the Proposal

JUDICIAL BOARD

Members: Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary

3 senior representatives

3 junior representatives

3 sophomore representatives

2 freshmen representatives

Subcommittees of the Judicial Board

INVESTIGATIVE COMMITTEE FOR HONOR CODE VIOLATIONS

Members: 4 students
(one elected from each of the four classes)

Areas of Investigative Responsibility:

Lying, Cheating (including Plagiarism) and Stealing

INVESTIGATIVE COMMITTEE FOR COLLEGE VIOLATIONS

Members: 6 students
(two elected from each of the sophomore, junior and senior classes)

Areas of Investigative Responsibility:

Student Investigators: vandalism, physical abuse, threats, disruptive conduct, interference with Judicial Board, repeated and/or serious violations of college regulations

Administrative and student members:
narcotics

Suggestions Needed For Name

As a member of the Longwood community, your assistance is needed. The Naming Committee has been asked to make a recommendation to the Board of Visitors of a name for the new physical education building now under construction. The Committee is requesting suggestions for consideration from students, faculty, staff, and alumni. If you would like to suggest a name for the Committee to consider, please submit the name and any pertinent information to the Naming Committee, in care of Mrs. Nancy B. Shelton, Director of Alumni Services, Alumni Office, Second Floor East Ruffner. Suggestions will be accepted until December 21, when the College closes for the remainder of 1979. Although it is not a College policy, it has been a precedent that, under normal circumstances, a building is not named for anyone currently employed by the College.

The Naming Committee hopes each member of the College community will consider making a recommendation. Any questions may be directed to any member of the committee. The members are Mrs. Kathleen Cover, Mrs. Gail L. Gilligan, Willard G. Leeper, Mrs. Nancy B. Shelton and Dr. Leslie Sneller.

Tree's Fate Questioned Again

By JUDISTANLEY

"Tree's Fate Decided" headlined an article which appeared in the Rotunda in September of 1978. Many students put forth a great deal of effort to keep the sugar maple tree on the lot of the new Physical Education building in September of last year. Yet, it seems that, while many want to save the maple tree, it may die or have to be removed despite these efforts.

While there is no contract to have the tree removed, according to Dr. William Peele, Vice-President for Administration, it will cost a "considerable amount of money" to keep the tree alive. According to three tree specialists, "if the tree is allowed to remain on the site, a great deal of care will be required in the form of fertilizing, watering, and probably severe pruning." The specialists also said that the tree's chances of survival are good if there is no further site disturbance. However, to keep the tree from sliding down the bank, a retaining wall must be built which, again according to the specialists, will give the tree a less than 45 per cent chance for survival.

Dr. Peele says that he has been informed by the architect that the retaining wall, ground work, and future care of the tree will cost "in the neighborhood of $15,000." He says that they will wait "as long as possible before making a decision." He hopes to be able to wait until the spring to see if the tree buds and shows signs of life. "It is just not cost effective to invest this much money into a tree which has so little chance for survival," says Dr. Peele. He also emphasized that the student interest has kept us from taking it down" and perhaps the interested students will consider private donations for the protection and care of the tree.

Dr. David Breil, Chairman of the Landscape Planning Committee for Longwood, feels that it is "up to the students and faculty to express concern" to save the sugar maple. Dr. Breil feels that the tree has given a lot of pleasure in the past and, though there will be two oaks and a dogwood on the site, they will not contribute as much beauty as the sugar maple does.

Dr. Breil is, at this time, developing alternate plans for the preservation of the tree which he feels will be "less costly; and perhaps less destructive than the current plans. Dr. Breil says, "If the work for the tree is done with an honest effort, it should cost little over $1,000." In discussing whether the tree was worth spending the money, Dr. Breil stated, "Whether or not it's worth saving is a matter of concern to the students. If the Longwood College community feels the tree is worth saving then it's worth the money." Dr. Breil says that his opinion as a botanist is that the tree can be saved.

Both Dr. Peele and Dr. Breil emphasized that how the students feel about saving the maple tree is important.

The long tree stands after being sawed by students last year. What will its fate be now?
Photo by Melody Crawley

Trio, a dance accompanied by Fogelberg and Welsberg, was among those performed in the Dance Company's Fall Concert. It was choreographed by Vanessa Baird.

Photo by David Gott

Dance Co. Displays Talent And Imagination

By JANET REYNOLDS
And DAVE GATES

Longwood's Company of Dancers presented its annual Fall Concert this past Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, November 8, 9, and 10, in Jarman Auditorium. The various portions of the program were excellent. Each segment displayed vast talent and imagination that are welcome in the world of dance. The themes were each special in their own ways and provided variety in the program.

The program began with "Quiet Moments," a superb display of relations of movement creating a mellow radiance of soothing gracefulness. The more lively "Duet for Four" was a "study in alternating pairs."

"Assimilation" was uniquely centered around an unusual hand motion. The choreography was quite expressive and was able to grasp the emotions. Working with movement for three dancers, "Trio" attempted to draw the energy from the music into motion.

"For This Season" permitted the seasonal imagery in the progressive structure to flow and convey that which is within the relationships. "Primitive Collage" became a derivation of an image. Through precise use of the elements of the music a collage was drawn together to form a unified work. Contrast was essential to "Permutations" as the dancers used individual movement to create their own unison.

A lively scene is set in "Rehearsal Hall" as the dance draws its energy from the ragtime music and portrays the light emotions found in a rehearsal. "Midnight Wind" captured the atmosphere of a step in life through the rhythm and imagery. Utilizing scarves the solo dancer conveyed contrast and yet unison in the development of movement. The finale, in which the entire company participated, attempted "to capture the fun and exhilaration of the polka."

The choreographers and dancers that took part in this year's Fall Concert deserve to be well praised for their talents: Vanessa Baird, Karen Baker, Vicki Berman, Lorie Blackard, Elizabeth Cardin, Mary Cawthorne, Adrienne Heard, Teresa Heatwole, Ellen Hitt, Tracey Hornmuth, Diane Hudson, Rebecca Johnson, Melanie Lowery, Eileen Mathis, Cindy Morris, Grace Ann Rodgers, Jennifer Selby, Lola Shartzter, Terri Stuart, and Kathy Yonce.

The unity felt, the energy, and the effort of each of the members showed in their performances and radiated through the vitality of the entire company. The concert was an enhancing evening of the beauty and grace found in the performance of those dedicated to the fine art of dance.

Fawcett's Summer Research Includes Uranium 238

By CINDY CUMINS

Dr. Louis F. Fawcett, Associate Professor of Physics at Longwood, met this summer with nuclear scientists from eight countries at an International Conference on Nuclear Cross Sections for Technology.

Chosen to be a member of the Faculty Research Program funded by the Department of Energy, Dr. Fawcett's research studies in "Measurements of the Fast Neutron Capture Cross Section of Uranium 238" provided for him what he describes as "the most concentrated research effort that I have experienced."

The studies, which focused upon the relative importance of Uranium 238 as an influential factor in the development of future forms of nuclear power, were of particular interest to Fawcett whose doctoral work concentrated upon related nuclear studies.

"It gave me an opportunity to catch up and become aware of the latest techniques used to determine cross sections," said Dr. Fawcett, who added, "...it was a feeling of elation to have an opportunity to be associated with those on the cutting edge of nuclear research."

Working a rigorous schedule
(Continued on Page 8)

FCC Grants Station Construction

By GEORGE BENNETT

Longwood College received word from the Federal Communication Commission Tuesday, October 30, that the college has been granted permission to start construction on the campus radio station.

This welcomed news is the culmination of many years of hard work by two faculty members of Longwood. They are Dr. William Frank, professor of English and Dr. Patton Lockwood, Chairman of the Drama department. For these two men this announcement is the beginning of the end of months of preparation.

The idea for a radio station on campus started about 10 years ago but did not start to materialize until the fall of 1976. At that time, a small group of students met and formed the Longwood Radio Association and actively petitioned the administration for funds to buy the equipment for the station. The Administration appointed a committee to investigate the matter.

The events that followed seemed to insure that a student-run radio station would be broadcasting in the near future. But the wheels of government are slow.

In the beginning of 1977, Longwood submitted the request for a building permit to build a 10 watt FM educational radio station. The official owners were specified as the Board of Visitors at Longwood and Dr. Lockwood as the General Manager. The station would be student-run. With money allocated from the Longwood Foundation and the certification of the availability of funds by the Board of Visitors to supplement the college request, it seemed that everything was ready to go.

Unfortunately, the FCC was, at the time of our request, rewriting the Communications Act of 1934. While this was going on, a moratorium was imposed on all new station licenses. The Longwood request was caught up in this red tape.

Dr. Frank, meanwhile, was clearing the way with the state organization, the Virginia Telecommunications Commission, which coordinates all telecommunication of state institutions. They sent consultants to Longwood and appointed a lawyer to help clear the way for our request.

The radio station (if our request is cleared) will be called WWLC-FM and will have an assigned frequency of 93.1 megahertz. The transmitter and studios will be located on 3rd floor Jarman with the antenna located on top of Jarman. The Longwood Radio Association will be meeting in the next few weeks to hold an informational meeting. Anyone interested in working with the new radio station should watch the daily bulletin for information.

With luck, Longwood College will be "on the air" by the spring of next year.

Dance For Those Who Can't

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

The Muscular Dystrophy Superdance will begin March 7 at 7 p.m. and end March 8 at 3 p.m. That date seems far off but there is a lot of planning and preparation that needs to be accomplished. The goal for Longwood College is $6,000. There is approximately 2 million dollars raised each year for Muscular Dystrophy from colleges alone.

We should like to make this a school-wide effort. There are many different committees that still need many more members to help carry some of the responsibilities. They are: Finance, Publicity, Special Events, Registration, Refreshments, Facility (first aid, setting up and decorations), and Correspondence Committees.

The word Superdance implies that the dance-a-thon is for the purpose of Muscular Dystrophy. This word also unites all of the colleges that are participating in raising funds for this worthwhile charity. The theme for the dance-a-thon this year is "Ain't No Stopping Us Now," and there's no use trying because the results of this project will help to bring the cure of Muscular Dystrophy out of the abstracts and make it a reality. The dance-a-thon is a worthwhile event that might help to make some people's lives a little happier. We can do it with your support!!!

If you are interested in serving on one of the above committees contact Michelle Smith at 392-5402 or Carolyn McDaniel at 392-6920.

Daily Lecture

Patrick Henry Portraits Scarce

By KIM CAVE

On Wednesday, November 7, the Art Department of Longwood and the Virginia Museum sponsored a lecture and film presentation on the portraits of Patrick Henry. Patrick Daily, director of the Patrick Henry Shrine at Red Hill in Brookneal, Virginia, presented the lecture before a small group in Bedford Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Daily centered his lecture around the scarcity of portraits of Patrick Henry, and also
(Continued on Page 8)

College News Glimpses

Oktoberfest attendance has been estimated at 5400 people. It was observed that there seemed to be an increase in local attendance.

The college community is cutting back in fuel and electrical cost an estimated ten to twelve thousand dollars over Christmas break this year. The campus will be almost completely closed down from December 22-January 2 as an energy saving measure. Several departments, such as the Power plant and Campus Police will remain open.

Point of Clarification: The figure of 2,200 students used in the Athletic budget in last week's Rotunda was termed an educational guess by Dr. T.C. Dalton. In explaining the difference between that figure and this semester's actual enrollment figure of 2,442 he said that the budget figure was an average. He also added that first semester enrollment is always larger than second semester.

Phi Beta Lambda is sponsoring John McCannless of Citizen's Savings and Loan as guest speaker November 15, at 7:30 p.m. He will speak on current interest rates and their effect on the economy.

Count Baise Brings Jazz To Jarman

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The performing Arts Series will present "The Most Explosive Force in Jazz," with Count Basie and his orchestra, on Friday, November 16, at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

SNA Goes Jazz

By DONNA HASKY

Continuing in the established tradition of providing first-class entertainment in an informal atmosphere for the college community, the Saturday Night Alive program on November 17 will feature Tim Eyermann and East Coast Offering.

For those who are unfamiliar with the name, Tim Eyermann and East Coast Offering are considered by many professionals to be one of the hottest jazz ensembles around.

Under Eyermann's direction, the group combines guitar, drums, percussion, keyboards and electric bass into a jazz performance "par excellence." Eyermann handles the reeds and the woodwinds with an ease born of natural talent and years of training and practice with such professionals as Della Reese, Clark Terry and Count Basie.

The program will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the lower dining hall. Admission is $1.50 for Longwood students (with I.D.) and $2.50 for guests.

Count Basie has led a big band continuously for four decades and has gained a global reputation for his "undying allegiance to the beat."

The band was born in 1935 in Kansas City. Since that time, the Count and his orchestra have headlined Jazz festivals all over the world, playing at the inaugural ball for President John F. Kennedy, given a command performance for Queen Elizabeth of England, appeared in concert with Sammy Davis, Jr., Frank Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald, Tom Jones, and many others.

Longwood College students are free. Tickets may be picked up in the S-UN office this week. They may not be available at the door.

Count Basie pledges allegiance to the beat.

Tafara To Perform

By DORIS DODSON

Wesley's program on Wednesday, November 14 at 6:45 p.m. will be given by Tafara, a folk group from the Baptist Student Union. "Tafara" is an African word meaning "We are happy." This happiness is evident as the group travels all over Virginia performing their various musical selections.

This group consists of ten dynamic people who are willing to share their happiness with us here at Longwood. They will sing selections and then lead some group singing.

Everyone is invited to come to this, or any of the Wesley Foundation programs. The student center is located on High Street across from French dormitory.

In Recital

Betsy Duncan and Peggy Roettger will present a junior recital on Tuesday, November 20, at 8 p.m. in the Molnar Recital Hall (Wygall Building). Miss Duncan will play piano compositions by Purcell, Schumann, Dello Joio and Bartok. She will also perform one original composition. Miss Roettger will play trumpet compositions by Goltemann, Tartini, Buononini, Balay and Purcell. Larry Smith, pianist and organist, will accompany these trumpet solos.

Betsy Duncan of Farmville is a piano student of Dr. Robert Blasch. She is a past president and the present accompanist of the Wesley Foundation Choir. Her musical activities include membership in the Longwood Concert Choir, Camerata Singers and the Farmville United Methodist Church Choir.

Peggy Roettger, of Chesterfield, is a trumpet student of Douglas Kilpatrick. She is the state president of the Student Chapters of Virginia Music Educators Association and the corresponding secretary of the Longwood chapter of the music honor society Sigma Alpha Iota. Her other musical memberships include the Longwood Concert Band, Camerata Singers, and the Fellowship of Christian Musicians.

The public is cordially invited to attend this recital and the reception following it in the Green Room of Wygall Building.

Diamond Lectures Tonight

A positive, grassroots approach to the twin problems of escalating energy costs and the deteriorating environment will be presented by Stuart Diamond in a lecture on Tuesday, November 13, at 8 p.m. in Wygall Auditorium.

Diamond is the environment and energy writer for the Long Island (N.Y.) newspaper, Newsday. His stories have appeared in most of the nation's major newspapers. A professional journalist for ten years, he has won several awards for his reporting and has been nominated for a Pulitzer Prize.

He is the co-author of the book, "It's In Your Power," which Stewart Udall, former U.S. Secretary of the Interior, called the best non-technical energy book he has ever read.

In his lectures, Diamond shows how Americans have become

"enslaved by energy and those who supply it—and how we can take back control."

He discusses the interrelationship between environment, energy, economics, health and lifestyles. The solar energy movement and other alternate forms of energy, conservation of water and energy, waste disposal and recycling, and biological pest control will also be discussed.

Diamond presents innovative ideas and solutions, which concrete plans of action for individuals and communities, such as organizing collectives, guerrilla tactics for apartment dwellers, and a variety of methods to force polluters to clean up.

Diamond's lecture at Longwood is sponsored by the Student Union. The admission fee is $1.00 per person.

White's Music Expressive

By DONNA HASKY

What type of music does Josh White Jr. sing? Well, one can use the labels of "folk" or "rock" or even "gospel" to describe the sound. But, the music is more than a sound, it's an expression of the whole man.

"I sing because that is an expression of my soul. When I'm on stage, I feel I'm totally in control of the situation, but when I come off the stage, I'm vulnerable, like anyone else. I not only sing for me, but I sing for a lot of other people who feel the same way I do," says White.

Now touring the United States, White recently finished a tour of eleven European countries. His performance at Longwood will be on Sunday, November 18, at 8 p.m. in the Gold Room of Lankford.

The Student Union is providing free Pepsi and there is no admission charge for the concert.

Josh White will perform variety of music from rock to gospel.

Tim Eyermann and East Coast offering will perform Nov. 17.

Cranston Brings Unique Sound

By GEORGE BENNETT

S-UN presented the Lamont Cranston Band last Wednesday night in the Lower Dining Hall.

Despite a small turnout, it was a good night to enjoy a type of music that is becoming a strong force in music today. The Lamont Cranston Band played a good mixture of blues and jazz tunes that gave SNA a unique sound. Backed up by hard, driving lead and bass guitars, the songs punched out to the excited crowd.

If anything was lacking, it was the absence of a solid horn section.

It was unfortunate that there was such a small crowd for this performance. The S-UN was trying a new programming idea of having bands play here at Longwood during the week instead of just on the week ends. But the people that did come to the Saturday Night Alive this Wednesday enjoyed a great band and had a good time.

MIXER

FRI., NOV. 16

CHOICE

Lower Dining Hall

9 UNTIL 1

ID REQUIRED

$1.50 I.C.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth, Mary Grant, Jodi Gilbert, Jean Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley Clore, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom Hands, Lynne Swan, Sherry Carmony, David Gaffs, Thomas Cole, Steven Whitten, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hara, Donna Masky, Judi Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner, Jackie Steer, Brendo Bonicelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Cecilia White, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Janet Reynolds, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

—Your Turn—

Ensemble Overlooked

Dear Editors,
In your last issue of The Rotunda, one of the colleges' newest organizations was all but overlooked concerning Oktoberfest activities. The Longwood College Jazz Ensemble has just been formed in the past year and is now showing its' first signs of success. The members and director have all worked long hard hours to get the jazz ensemble started and to keep it going. In your issue, the concert choir received mention as to soloists, dancers, narrators, etc. to most of their selections while the jazz ensemble was only mentioned as to the pieces performed and a very brief statement from the director and with no mention of soloists or the fact that we are a new group and are still in need of more performers. Being a Longwood ensemble for numerous years, the concert choir hardly needs to be publicized as such to gain new members. The jazz ensemble, however, is still growing and needs the support of The Rotunda and other campus organizations. We are still an experimental group and without your support we could very easily lose members and subsequently, lose the group as a whole. We hope that in future articles, you will not fail to recognize us as a professional ensemble here on campus.

Yours truly,
The members of the
Longwood College
Jazz Ensemble

Dining Hall Poll

Dear Editor,
Sunday, November 11th, as students came to the Dining Hall, some of them were handed ballots and were asked to mark whether they wanted buffet style or family seating for Sunday lunch. I noticed, however, that some students came in with the slips of paper, and some did not. Some of the students turned them in as they left and some left them on the tables after they had eaten. I feel that this opinion poll voting style could have been held in a much more organized fashion, and should have been presented in such a way that—

- (1) All of the students could have been able to vote,
- (2) the poll should have been carried out by one particular organization to assure fair voting,
- (3) The student body should have been presented with this poll on a week day when all students were at school, and NOT at home for the week end!

"A Concerned Waitress"

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

The Building With No Name

—Senior Spotlight—

Chemistry Major Enjoys Involvement

By SHARON JANOVICH

"It is so much fun being involved," said this week's Senior Spotlight, Robin Young,

"but you have to find a happy medium between studying and extra-curricular activities." Robin went on to say, "I've learned to budget my time, because you can't be a person who is all studies and no activities!" She is involved in the Lynchnos Society, Chemistry Club, Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority, Student Activity Fees Committee, Oktoberfest Kiwon, Alpha Lambda Delta, and in Orientation, as a colleague, student assistant, and an Orientation Leader. Robin mostly enjoyed Orientation due to being able to return early and meet all of the Freshmen.

"When I first came to Longwood, I was a pre-nursing major, but Mr. Novak, who is no longer here, taught me my general Chemistry Class, and he helped me decide that I'd like to change my major only to Chemistry. He was the biggest influence on me academically, and although he is no longer here, we do keep in touch. He helped me to decide that after I graduate, I'd like to go to graduate school and eventually work in an industry with my major." Robin went on to say "I'd like to be remembered by people in my department, as a person striving to better the department. We are trying to involve more people, and improve everything about being a chemistry major. If I could change one thing about Longwood, however, I'd change the reputation that we have about being a teachers' college. People look at me so unusually when I say that I won't be teaching Chemistry. All in all, though, I've been very pleased with my years at Longwood, but soon, hopefully I'll be in graduate school and then on to some type of industrial work!"

The best of luck is wished for Robin Young in all of her future endeavors as a May 1980 Longwood College Graduate!

—Editor's Turn—

The Judicial Board Reconstruction proposal lies in the hands of the President. That statement is both literally and figuratively meant. The committee turned it over to him last Wednesday and he has promised a decision this week . . . today might even be the day. He awaits the comments of Board Members Robinson, Kampfmüller, Davidson and Pretlow before making his final decision.

Many outcomes depend on this one decision. Major-Minor elections is the first one. As of now, there is a great need for students to run for Judicial Board offices. It seems that Major-Minor elections essentially depends on President Willett passing this proposal as far as Judicial Board is concerned. And even with its passage, there still could be a possible delay until December to allow a major campaign to explain the new procedures to you, the student body.

There are actually three major changes that we take place in the structure. Under the new proposal the Judicial Board members will not do any of the investigating. They will only judge the cases. There will be 14 members sitting in judgment.

All of the investigating will be done by two subcommittees of Judicial Board: one for honor code violations and the other for college violations. There will be a total of 13 people on this committee. Three of these will be Administrative staff. This provides the first infiltration of administration into the Boards. There have been many questions raised about this and we are sure there will be more. However, we must look at the committee's (made up mostly of students) purpose for asking that they be on the investigative part of the Board. They will only be a part of the College Violations Committee which, among other things, will investigate narcotics cases. One of the three will accompany two students on these investigations.

In considering the administrators, we must consider that most Virginia colleges already have administrators taking over their Judicial Board or Honor Council. At a recent Peaks of Otter Conference that three Longwood students attended, we learned that most colleges have at least a one to one ratio of students to administrators in their judging board. In the new proposal, the administrators will only serve an investigative purpose and possibly even a safety one.

The last major change is the number of students who must become a part of the Board. As the proposal is now set up, Judicial Board will need 24 student to make it run effectively and efficiently.

President Willett says he sees no problem in it passing. If it does, it will be put into effect on a trial basis starting in January for one year. Whether it works or not is all up to us, the students.

MCC

Morality Views Diverse

By MARY GRANT, JODI KERSEY, GEORGE BENNETT, and LISA HUGHES

Dr. John S. Peale was the first speaker for the seminar on sexual morality held on Saturday, November 10, at 9 in the Lankford Red-White-Green rooms. The seminar was sponsored by the Longwood College Foundation, Inc.

Dr. Peale, Associate Professor of Philosophy at Longwood College, spoke on "The Search For Ethical Principles In Sexual Morality". The audience appreciated Dr. Peale's humorous comments as he explained "how to make intelligent decisions about sexual morality" from the perspective of philosophy.

He began by explaining that the question of ethics deals with how we decide what is the right or wrong thing to do on any given specific situation.

Dr. Peale explained that people look for a pattern of ethical reasoning about moral problems and a process of ethical justification of moral judgments and that moral judgments are based on the philosophical quest for principles.

The pattern of ethical reasoning that a person may choose to follow is dependent upon their values, interests, laws and religion. It is also dependent on the definition of such terms as "obscenity" and what determines when a fetus is a person. Personal private feelings are set aside in the situation. We guide our behavior according to what we determine the relevant ethical principles are. We determine "what it would mean to apply our chosen principles in the situation, e.g. the effects in both the long and short runs, the motives or internal states of the agents in the situation, the question as to who benefits and to what degree and what effects would have to be lived with if strict egalitarian justice were applied". We develop a priority for these principles. "We then apply the relevant ethical principles, making a reasoned ethical judgement." Personal feelings are then again tested; these feelings move us to act.

Through this process we can ethically justify moral judgments, and "we now do what we ought to do".

Dr. Jerry Cardwell, associate professor of Sociology, contributed to the day's lectures by speaking on "Religious Commitment, Premarital Sexual Permissiveness and Changing Attitudes Towards Induced Therapeutic Abortion." Dr. Cardwell began his lecture by introducing the main concepts of the science of Sociology and how they relate to and explain social behavior. It is believed in the realm of Sociology that humans do not respond directly to the empirical world, but through identifiable variables or symbols. Because of this constructed reality which consists of an underlying order of one's physical and social world, sociologists can recognize these variables and can, therefore, predict human behavior. Dr. Cardwell focused his lecture on the theory of symbolic interactionism, which is just one of many theories of human behavior within Sociology.

Dr. Cardwell explained that sexual morality varies within different societies, but that in any society where there is religion there are always three conditions present within the society that causes man frustration. These are three conditions which the church is supposed to help man deal with, but is failing. The three conditions which were developed by Thomas O'Dea are: uncertainty, scarcity and powerlessness. These three antagonistic forces against man propose great problems for the survival of man and, also, for the survival of the institution of religion. Dr. Cardwell believes that we are beginning to witness a breakdown in the church because it is not capable of changing with the rapid changes in society. The institution of religion cannot change its basic eternal truths to accommodate the everchanging society. An example was given which exemplifies the influence of religious commitment with premarital sexual permissiveness and the attitudes towards induced therapeutic abortion. In their research, sociologists have found that the higher the church attendance of an individual, the more an individual is opposed to premarital sex and abortion. However, Dr. Cardwell added that this example is only true when applied to females. Male attendance at church did not necessarily promote an attitude against premarital sex.

Dr. Cardwell further developed this process by explaining that human behavior is influenced from birth through socialization. References to any inherent aspect such as a soul, a spirit, or instincts are not recognized by the science of sociology. Sociological predictions concerning religious commitment and sexual morality can be done because as individuals live and function in the social and cultural world adhering to certain patterns of behavior, sociologists can then compose and predict patterns for behavior. Individuals behave according to their socialization which varies as societies vary.

As the third lecture of the Sexual Morality Seminar, Dr. James W. Jordan presented "Some Functions of Sexual Mores in the Organizations of" (Continued on Page 8)

Dr. Jordan of the Sociology and Anthropology Department conducted part of the Sexual Morality clinic, Saturday.

Photo by David Gott

Research Determines Reputation

By DOUG STROBEL

Longwood College did a market research survey in 1975, and performed its most recent survey this past spring. The 1979 survey was coordinated by J. J. Mitchell who is the director of Public Affairs here. The results were tabulated by Thomas and Chuck Cole who are Longwood business majors.

The research was done by mailing out questionnaires to various groups who are familiar with the college. Those questioned included current and prospective students, parents, guidance counselors, alumni representatives in the Farmville area, along with faculty and administrative staff members.

The questionnaires were designed with the purpose of determining how these various segments of the Longwood affiliated groups felt about the college on various topics. The information acquired will be used in designing recruiting materials to be used during 1980-1982.

Many interesting and helpful insights were found during this survey. One set of answers that had not changed since the 1975 survey were those of high school students questioned about what is important when choosing a college. Fields of study and cost were still the most important items to be weighed when selecting a college. Friends were still the most influential group upon students when choosing a college.

In the 1979 survey Longwood received a 73 per cent favorable impression of the college as compared to 43 per cent in 1975. The negative response dropped from 9 per cent to 2 per cent. Another area of questioning indicated that Longwood had a much greater number of people who knew that Longwood is coeducational as well as being state supported.

Guidance counselors around the state were asked of their impressions of Longwood as well. Ninety-six per cent felt that the college's admission materials were effective. However, in the area of minority recruitment appeal, Longwood could only manage a 33 per cent approval rating. Counselors indicated that 80 per cent of their students had an interest in Longwood. A majority of counselors selected the wide range of offerings at Longwood as the most outstanding feature of the college, with cost and academic reputation coming next.

Only 25 per cent of Longwood's current students felt that the social life here was of a good quality as compared to 20 per cent in 1975. There was a significant increase in the dissatisfaction with Longwood's social regulation from 21 per cent in 1975 to 48 per cent in 1979.

Of those alumni polled, 58 per cent stated that they were currently working in a field related to their major. A great majority of the alumni polled said that the education they received at Longwood was excellent or above average. Eighty-six per cent would encourage a prospective student to attend Longwood College because of the academic programs and traditions at the college.

Faculty members felt that Longwood offered a high degree of personalization, which adds to a student's education. A strong feeling of academic strength and a close faculty-student relationship adds to the college's appeal.

The strength of the survey for Longwood is that the college has penetrated the market place to a much higher degree since 1975. Most importantly, Mitchell feels that Longwood has experienced a sizable increase in the "number of students who have a favorable impression of Longwood in 1979 as compared to the 1975 figures."

The Magic Of Circle K

By SHARON JANOVICH

Were you in Key Club or Keyettes? Do you want to be involved in social activities as well as service ones? The International Circle K Club has sent a representative to organize a Circle K chapter at Longwood! Circle K has chapters internationally, with some of the closest chapter to Longwood, being Virginia Tech, Mary Washington College, University of Richmond and ODU.

Circle K is designed to continue its dedication to the betterment of the surrounding world, carrying on from Key Club and Keyettes in high school, to Circle K, and finally, to the Kiwanis organization. Circle K chapters sponsor activities such as paint-a-thons, tennis clinics, talent shows, "chapter-night parties," and a district party, which will be held on Saturday, November 17, in Richmond.

The district party would be an excellent way for Longwood students interested in organizing a Circle K, to get together and observe exactly what the Circle K Club stems from and consists of.

Circle K has a magazine published five times a year, and numerous district as well as larger group gatherings to allow each Circle K member to meet other group members.

An organizational meeting will be held here at Longwood on Tuesday night, Nov. 13. Watch the bulletin for more details to learn how "Taking action for the betterment of the world around us is what Circle K is all about. The world's largest college service invites you to join in the friendship and sense of accomplishment that can be had from your school's club!"

Fall Concert Music Varied

By SHARON JANOVICH

The Fall Concert featuring the Camerata Singers, Concert Choir and the Chamber Ensemble was held at 4 p.m. on Sunday, November 11. The program began with the Chamber Ensemble performing "Prelude and Air" by Henry Purcell, "Two Moods" by Georg P. Telemann, and Menuetto by Georg Lickl. The ensemble was followed by the Concert Choir singing "The King and I": a melody by Richard Rodgers with Concert Choir President, Rene Rowland, conducting. The Cameratas then proceeded with "Followers of the Lamb" Shaker Tune, "Shaffe in mir, Gott, ein reinlertez" by Brahms, Nun danket alle Gott by Pachelbel, with Thomas Sullivan and Peggy Roettger on trumpet, and Michael Robinette and Peter Tideman on Trombone. "Dixit" by Mozart, "Christus Factus est" by Bruckner, "Ching-a-Ring-Chaw" by Aaron Copland then followed. The last selection for this year's Fall Concert was one of the program highlights. "I Bought Me a Cat" a humorous selection written by Aaron Copland was performed, bringing the 1979 Fall Concert to a successful end!

The music department's Christmas Concert will be December 2.

Feature Series:

Legislative Board And Chairman Of Orientation

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Chairman and Vice-Chairman are the Major offices of the Legislative Board. The Minor offices of the Legislative Board are: Corresponding Secretary, Recording Secretary and Treasurer.

The Legislative Board oversees all phases of student life. The Chairman of the Legislative Board has the responsibility of interacting with the administration and students, and also to coordinate with the other two boards, Judicial and Residence, so they all are unified. The Chairman of the Legislative Board also has the job of keeping open communications with the students more than the other two boards. The members of the Legislative Board make regulations and discuss key problems involving the welfare of the student body. The Chairman of the Legislative Board is also the President of the student body.

The main functions of the Vice-President of the Legislative Board are to serve on the Students' Activity Fee Committee, and serving on the Appeals Committee. The Vice-Chairman must also fill any vacancies that occur on any of the college committees.

The Chairman of Orientation must remain on campus throughout the summer. She is responsible for setting up all the orientation programs for Freshmen and transfers in the Fall and Spring. She also serves on Appeals Committee and is Parliamentarian for the Legislative Board.

Spikers Fourth In Tournament

Longwood was one of 12 volleyball teams in the VAIAV Division III State Tournament Friday and Saturday at Emory and Henry. The participants were divided into three pools for opening round play Friday. The top two teams from each pool began single elimination play Saturday morning with the state finals slated for 1:00 in the afternoon.

Coach Callaway felt Lynchburg, Radford and Mary Washington would be her team's main competition in the state tourney. The Lancers lost to Radford and Lynchburg during the regular season, but defeated Mary Washington.

Callaway's prediction was correct, as the Lancers faced Lynchburg and Mary Washington in the tournament. Yet, the tables were turned from the previous meetings.

On Friday, the Lancers ended with a 3-0 record defeating Hollins 15-12, 15-10, Eastern Mennonite College 15-8, 11-15, 15-2, and Roanoke 15-2, 15-7.

Saturday Longwood first met Lynchburg. After bowing to them 8-15 in the first game, the Lancers narrowly came back 16-14 in the second game and came full force in the final game 15-0.

Next they met Mary Washington and lost 8-15, 3-15, which sent Longwood to vie with Emory and Henry for third of fourth place. In the second game against Mary Washington, Cindy Thomas dislocated her thumb. This was the only injury for Longwood.

Longwood ended up fourth in the state after dropping to Emory and Henry, 13-15, 6-15.

The championship was won by Mary Washington. Bridgewater came in second place.

Longwood had a 3-3 week in its final round of regular season play. The Lancers defeated the University of Virginia 13-15, 15-6, Roanoke 15-2, 15-6, and Mary Washington 16-14, 10-15, 15-7, but lost to Lynchburg 15-9, 12-15, 15-8, Louisburg 15-6, 15-11, and UNC-Greensboro 15-2, 18-5.

The two senior co-captains, Meg Cook and Cindy Thomas were named to the All-Tournament Team. There were two out of seven players picked for this honor. "Both had a super tournament," according to Coach Callaway.

Callaway guided Longwood to a fourth place in last year's small college state volleyball tournament. After sending her team up against some tough Division I and II competition during the regular season, the coach had hoped the experience gained would pay off in the Division III tourney this past week end.

LC Rugby players battle against HSC.

Photo by Jodi Gilbert

Double Forfeit In Rugby

By THOM HANDS

Last Thursday afternoon at the Campus School, a crowd of over 150 enthusiastic Longwood students watched as the Longwood Rugby Club was assumedly defeated by Hampden-Sydney in an awesome 15-4 game. Due to the loss of tempers and a few fights, the game was called by the official twenty minutes into the second half. Both teams were asked to forfeit because of the fighting.

The first half was purely dominated by Hampden-Sydney.

They scored field goals at five, 16, and 20 minutes, respectively. At the halftime the score was 9-0.

The second half showed a more aggressive Longwood team. An unlucky break for Longwood occurred eight minutes into the second half when Chris Poe's field goal attempt bounced off the right post. Jeff Wall quickly scored a four point try on a 25 yard run, but it wasn't enough to stop Hampden-Sydney. They scored two more field goals, making the score of Longwood's last home game 15-4, but the official final outcome was a double forfeit.

Gymnastics Exhibition: A Real Success

By DEBI KINZEL

The LC gymnastics team performed last Monday night and proved to themselves as well as to the spectators, that they are just about ready for their season, and a winning one at that.

According to Coach Ruth Budd, they basically did a good job and even though it is still too early to tell, their season should prove to be a successful one. She also said they have to iron out some wobbles on beam, stumbling on floor, falls on bars and sticking those landings on vaulting.

However, the real test will be when the team travels to Georgia this week end for their first meet on Saturday, November 17.

Another comment that Coach Budd made was the fact that the gym was the packed "full house." she was really pleased with spectator support and feels this enthusiasm by the crowd helped the girls to perform better.

The gymnastics exhibition was definitely "a good experience", but more important, it was the mark of an optimistic season.

IAA

By SUSAN TOWLER

The IAA has a lot of activities planned for November. Intramural bowling, volleyball, and billiards are coming up soon.

Bowling starts on Wednesday, November 7. Volleyball starts Thursday, November 15. Entry blanks can be picked up outside Miss Calloway's office in Tabb basement Tuesday, November 6. They are due on Tuesday, November 13.

Billiards entry blanks can be picked up November 12 and are due on November 19. All dormitories, sororities, and fraternities are encouraged to participate in these activities.

With the fall semester coming to the end, the IAA is getting ready for a good spring semester. Starting in the spring, the IAA will have new officers and dorm representatives. The intramural program, in addition to needing officers and representatives to run its organization, needs the support of the student body. Every activity the IAA runs needs managers, officials, and people to help with equipment. Students are encouraged to help the IAA in any of these ways. Students are also encouraged to attend IAA meetings, held every Thursday night at 6:30 p.m. in the IAA room in Lankford. New ideas and suggestions are always welcome.

Remember, the IAA needs you to do its work. Please come out and give us a helping hand.

Karen Mazzonna executes a split on the balance beam.

Photo by Hoke Currie

Two Teams Look Strong

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

How do Virginia women's basketball programs rank nationally? Very well, according to Women's Sports Magazine.

Old Dominion, the 1979 AIAW basketball Division I national champions, head the top ten picks by Women's Sports. The Lady Monarchs have an excellent chance of capturing the title again this year as all five starters have returned.

Nancy Lieberman, 1979 Player of the Year, heads the list of Old Dominion's returnees, along with 6'5" center Inge Nissen.

As if their five starters won't be enough, Old Dominion has acquired two of the top 20 recruits in the country. Anne Donovan, a 6'8" freshman from Paramus, N.J., can step in for Nissen, giving the team additional height.

Beth Wilkerson, a 5'10" freshman from Paris, Kentucky, will be playing both guard and forward. Yet, this Top-20 selectee may only see limited action if a summer knee injury plagues her.

Two other recruits who may make their marks at ODU are 5'10" guard Noreen Kemether from Pennsylvania and 6' forward Peggy Smith out of West Virginia.

The only other Virginia team mentioned in Women's Sports was University of Virginia. Even though they were not ranked in the Top Ten, the Lady Cavaliers got two top recruits to add to their line up.

U.Va. coach Debbie Fagan was able to add Pennsylvanians Chrissy Reese, a 6'1" forward, and highly recruited 5'10" guard-forward Jill McKone. A teammate of Reese's, Colleen McShalley will also join the Cavalier roster.

Ranked second in the poll is Louisiana Tech, the 1979 runner-up. They were the first team to match ODU's Nissen in height. Elinor Griffith gave Nissen a hard time at the nationals last year. When the two teams meet in the Manufacturers Hanover Christmas Classic at Madison Square Garden, she will probably do so again. Tech adds to their roster junior college transfer Janice Mulford who can also look Nissen in the eye.

The other top ranked teams are, in order, Stephen F. Austin, North Carolina State, Tennessee Tech, Penn State, Rutgers, and Long Beach State.

Pino's PIZZA AND SUBS

NOW COME AND ENJOY
OUR NEW SPECIALTIES OF THE HOUSE

Small Salad
Large Salad
Spaghetti w/ Tomato Sauce
Spaghetti w/ Meat Sauce
Spaghetti Carini (Baked with Cheeses and Meat Sauce)

Small Deluxe Salad
Large Deluxe Salad
Spaghetti w/ Mushroom Sauce
Spaghetti w/ Meatballs
Spaghetti w/ Italian Sausage

Baked Lasagna (with Cheese and Meat Sauce)
Baked Manicotti (Stuffed with Cheese)
Baked Cannelloni (Stuffed with Meat)
Sausage and Peppers
Meat Ball and Peppers

404 South Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-3135

Pre-Season Warm Ups Help Lady Lancers

Junior co-captains Linda Pullen and Brenda Fettrow helped their white team rally from an early 9-2 deficit to overtake the Blues and gain a 62-48 victory in Longwood's Blue-White women's basketball scrimmage Monday night in French Gymnasium.

Pullen worked inside for 18 points and eight rebounds while Fettrow pumped in 14 points, mostly on medium-range jump shots off the break. The White team moved out to a 25-18 lead at the half and then held off a Blue comeback before pulling away at the end.

Freshmen Chris Romeo and Patty Lia led the Blue attack. The first-year cagers scored 13 points apiece while hitting 10 of 17 shots between them. Senior Maryjane Smith chipped in with 9 points and 11 rebounds.

A crowd estimated at 200 people was on hand for the basketball clash and an earlier exhibition by the Lancer women's gymnastics team.

Saturday night the Lady Lancers hosted the Virginians, a club team from northern Virginia, in a final pre-season warm-up.

The Lancers easily won the game 57-43, but they came out with a cold start. Neither team could put the ball into the hoop in the early part of the game.

With almost three minutes gone, the Virginians scored the first bucket. The Lancers came back for a 24-19 lead at the half.

In the second half, Longwood sprung a 20 point lead over the six member Virginians, who were tiring. The Virginians ended with only five players on the court as one of their starters fouled out.

The scrimmage showed that the Lancers need to score more. Overall the team worked together well, even with student teachers, Kitty Hughes and Lori Grimm in the line-up. Still the cagers gave up quite a few turnovers (24).

Pullen and Fettrow both showed scoring strength again, as Fettrow had 17 points and Pullen 10. Smith and Lia each added eight. In assists Fettrow and Smith each had four.

The 5'10" Smith led the rebounding with ten, closely followed by Fettrow with nine. Amy Gates had five for the night.

The Lady Lancers officially opened their season November 17, hosting Christopher Newport at 7:30 in French Gymnasium. The Lancers are hoping a large home crowd will attend.

Mary Jane Smith and Karen Savarese go up for the jump.

Photo by Mike Currie

Catalinas Place In Regionals

By LYNNE E. SWAN

November 3, 1979.

The Catalinas (formerly the H20 Club) are pleased to announce the members who participated and passed the swimming skills test of the National Institute of Creative Aquatics Eastern Regionals held at the University of Richmond

Congratulations to: Denise Goody, Judy Luck, Trish King and Barbara Roberson for passing the novice level. Susan Anstey and Elise McCarty competed for the beginning level of N.I.C.A.

The Catalinas are especially proud of Pam Mayo and Laurie White because their duet qualified and was chosen to represent us at Nationals given at Converse College in South Carolina next April.

The Catalinas are selling raffle tickets for N.I.C.A. as part of an outreach program to bring N.I.C.A. to schools who do not have it. Tickets are 25 cents each and may be purchased from any Catalina member until November 17. The prize is $100. Please support us in our program to benefit N.I.C.A. by buying raffle tickets.

Workshop Presented

By KAREN PARKER

Future Educators, Therapeutic Recreation workers, and physical education students made use of the New Games Workshop held on November 11 under the direction of Debbie Fore, a senior physical education student at Longwood.

Fore gave students the opportunity to not only learn games for classroom use, but also how to teach these games. The games were a series of non-competitive games basically for the child's enjoyment. Fore stated that "some elementary schools do employ a physical education instructor to do the P.E. program. This workshop will give future teachers a chance to learn ideas for their own program."

Sports At Home

Women's Basketball

Nov. 17 Chris. Newport 7:30
Nov. 19 Virginia 7:30

Cagers Preview In Scrimmage

The Longwood Lancer cagers will give a preview of the upcoming season November 15 when they stage their second Blue-White scrimmage in French Gymnasium. A junior varsity exhibition will tip off the proceedings at 6:30 and the varsity is set for 8:15. No admission will be charged.

The JV team consists of 14 freshmen and sophomore players. Coaching the team is Buddy Bolding with the assistance of Dale Portner.

The first men's JV season will include a 13 game schedule and the Fork Union Tournament.

MEN'S JV BASKETBALL

Date	Opponent	Time
November
27	A—Virginia	5:30
29	A—Richard Bland	7:30
30	H—Richard Bland	6:00
December
3	H—St. Paul's	6:00
8	A—Bridgewater	6:00
January
18	H—Liberty Bapt.	6:00
19	H—Va. Tech	6:00
23	H—Averett	6:30
24	A—St. Paul's	6:00
30	H—Bridgewater	6:00
31	A—Averett	5:45
February
2	A—Liberty Baptist	5:30
3	A—Va. Tech	2:30
8-9	A—FORK UNION TOURNAMENT: Frederick Military Academy, Fork Union Military Academy, Massanutten Academy, Longwood	6:45

JV players gear up for exhibition game. Photo by Jackie Steer

Women's Basketball

21 Cindy Eckel	F 5-10 Fr.
12 Theresa Ferrante	F 5-10 Fr.
23 Brenda Fettrow	G 5-9 Jr.
44 Amy Gates	P 5-10 So.
31 Robyn Goff	G 5-7 Fr.
24 Lori Grimm	G 5-2 Sr.
11 Kitty Hughes	F 5-7 Sr.
32 Robin Hungate	F 5-10 So.
25 Patty Lia	F 5-9 Fr.
14 Connie Murray	G 5-1 So.
45 Sue Naughton	P 5-10 Fr.
30 Linda Pullen	F 5-10 Jr.
34 Chris Romeo	G 5-8 Fr.
43 Karen Savarese	P 6-0 Fr.
35 Maryjane Smith	F 5-10 Sr.
22 Debbie Taylor	G 5-6 Fr.

Varsity Basketball

No Name	Pos.	Ht.	Cl.
24 Sam Bagley	G	5-11	Fr.
33 James Burton	G	6-1	Fr.
25 Bob Carter	G	6-2	Fr.
34 Steve Crowder	F	6-2	So.
15 Harold Hatchett	G	5-11	Fr.
44 Ed Leonard	F	6-4	Fr.
43 Pete Hofrichter	G	6-3	Jr.
13 Earl Middleton	G	5-10	Fr.
23 Tim White	G	5-9	So.
35 John Todd	F	6-3	Fr.
53 David Weaver	G	6-2	So.
22 Walt Taylor	G	6-0	So.
54 Robert Fleming	F	6-5	So.
14 Dean Lakey	G	5-10	Fr.

PRESS CONFERENCE THURSDAY

12:45 P.M.

LOWER DINING HALL

Three things are essential for our athletes' success:
Preparation.
Ability.
and most of all,
OUR SUPPORT.

PRESENTS

"LADIES NIGHT"

AT THE RED LYON

Tonight and every Tuesday.
9 TO 12

GUYS
$1.00

LADIES FREE
UNTIL 10:00, then 50¢

8:30 to 9:30 - 10¢ Draft

—DRIVERS LICENSE REQUIRED—

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon-Thur. 11:10 PM. Fri & Sat. 11:10 PM
104 HIGH STREET 392 5065

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Fawcett's Research

(Continued from Page 2)

with nuclear scientists from "among the best in the world" was an edifying experience for the professor who appreciated an opportunity to "begin building an international reputation as an experimental nuclear physicist."

A dedicated educator, however, Dr. Fawcett's previous research has included the field of education as well. Regarding his recent studies as more than an opportunity for personal growth, Fawcett recognizes the potential benefits his experience makes available for students interested in research.

Noting that Longwood has what he describes as "an outstanding faculty," many of whom are also engaged in active research, Dr. Fawcett commends the quality of his fallen educators.

Aiding in the completion of what he considers "a tremendous amount of work in three month's time" Dr. Fawcett helps perpetuate that level of quality discussed the uncertainty of whether the likenesses were genuine or not. Daily concludes that the Fleming miniature and Thomas Sully's portrait of Patrick Henry seem to be the most accurate in the statesman's true appearance. Other pieces shown and discussed were the Meredith miniature, a few sketches, the Clarkson and Peale portraits, and the famous bust of Patrick Henry done by an Italian sculptor.

Daily Lecture

(Continued from Page 2)

Daily concluded that the search continues for the Patrick Henry Foundation in the hopes of tracking down other portraits of Patrick Henry.

In 1977, Daily assumed his position at Red Hill, the authentically restored home and grounds where Patrick Henry lived with his family for the last six years of his life.

Sex Seminar

(Continued from Page 5)

Human Societies". This was a more descriptive than analytical approach of how societies cope with sexual morality.

Dr. Jordan stated that there were 3,000 societies on our planet today and that many treat the area of sex differently than our own western society treats it. He used a triangle as a diagram of the three interrelated functions of sex in a proscribed group. These are Sexual Taboos, Sexual Permission and Sexual Obligation. All of these factors are present in all societies.

In describing the types of families that exist, Dr. Jordan gave an interesting point in that the majority of cases, most societies are polygamous, that is, that there is one husband for two or more wives. In fact, the idea of a small, nuclear family is quite rare in the world.

Drawing on personal research in Africa in 1971, Dr. Jordan talked about the way different tribes formed groups and how the sexual unions come about within them. The practice of Unifamilial relationships help to frame the type of sexual practices within an individual group.

Owen Norment, associate professor of religion from Hampden-Sydney, spoke on "Biblical Perspectives on Sexuality Morality" at the seminar.

Dr. Norment's speech dealt objectively with the biblical view on sexuality. He emphasized that the Bible is not a rule book but rather a historical narrative of a certain people. He touched on such points as moral authority of the Bible and themes that relate to sexuality, i.e.—creation, salvation and covenant. He also talked on controversial topics such as premarital sex and homosexuality.

The title "Biblical Perspectives on Sexual Morality" makes the skeptical person sigh, "Oh no, another sermon." But Dr. Norment's approach was a teaching view not a preaching view—an informative and enjoyable experience.

LONGWOOD ITEMS

LONGWOOD MACE PIN . $8.00
A two inch pewter pin of the Mace
LONGWOOD NOTEBOOK . $1.25
20 single-fold sheets
LONGWOOD ALUMNI
COOKBOOK $4.50
253 pages of recipes plus
40 pages of helpful hints
COUNTED CROSS-STITCH
Seal or Lancer Kit $8.32
Seal or Lancer Graph $2.08
LONGWOOD CHAIRS
Boston Rocker $72.80
Captain's Chair . $78.00 and $83.20
Deck Chairs $41.60
THESE ITEMS ARE ON SALE IN ALUMNI
OFFICE 2ND FLOOR EAST RUFTER

Share
a tradition
with Thomas
Jefferson.

The authentic
Jefferson Cup.

In 1810, Thomas Jefferson designed a handsome, round bottomed drinking cup. He commissioned a Virginia silversmith to craft eight cups in silver lined with gold. Jefferson treasured them highly, and bequeathed seven to his daughter for her children.

Stieff faithfully reproduced the eight-ounce Jefferson Cup (as well as two-ounce miniatures), for you and your family. It is the only authentic reproduction available—truly something to treasure and hand down.

In sterling (with or without gold lining) and pewter.

Martin

THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA

CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

POSTERS

Bring your favorite snapshot, portrait or any other picture and have it made into a poster.

ROBERT T. FORE PHOTOGRAPHY
119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

"Gifts That Are Different"

Large Selection Of
Fraternity And Sorority
Decals, Mugs, Stationary.

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

CLOSED
WEDNESDAY MORNING

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNLAVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

Christmas Gifts & Decorations,
Handmade Crafts, Much More...

HANDPAINTED SKIRTS & VISORS BY KIM
STAGHORN FERNS MOUNTED ON
WOOD, CORN HUSK DOLLS BY PEGGY
KILGORE.

CURIOSITY SHOPPE

FARMVILLE SHOPPING CENTER 392-4008

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET FARMVILLE VIRGINIA

WIDE VARIETY OF STYLISH FASHIONS FOR MEN AND LADIES

20% OFF

Longwood
College Night
Monday Tuesday Wednesday
5-9

Show us your Longwood Student I.D. card
and get $2.00 off any large or medium pizza.
(Pitchers of your favorite beverage available)

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1979

NO. 10

Seniors Nominated To Who's Who

By MELODY CRAWLEY
Twenty Longwood Seniors were informed at a luncheon today that they have been nominated to 'Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.'

Nominations were made in September by the Department Chairmen, Advisers to Legislative Board, Judicial Board, Residence Board, Intramural Activities Association, Student Union and Geist; Senior Class Sponsor, and the 1978-79 Senior members of CHI.

The final selection was then made by a committee consisting of the College President, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Vice President for Student Affairs, Administrative Assistant to the President, Chairman of the Faculty Advisory Committee, and President of the Junior Class. Consideration for nominations are based on the student's scholarship (2.5 gpa minimum), participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities; citizenship, and service to Longwood; and promise of future usefulness.

This year's nominees include Janet Carol Bates, a Social work major from Culpeper, Ms. Bates is a member of Geist, and serves as chairman of the Election Committee.

Senior Class President, Elizabeth Ann Bowman, is an Elementary Education Major from Newport News. She has also been a member of Concert Choir.

Cynthia Denise Byrd, of Gretna, is a Physical Education major. Ms. Byrd served as Chairman of Orientation this year, and is a member of Legislative Board.

Geist member, Alice Leigh Clay is an Elementary Education major from Richmond. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi and Judicial Board.

Cynthia Heather Cumins, an English major from Falls Church, is a member of Geist and the 1979-80 editor of The Gyre.

A Therapeutic Recreation major, Elaine Marie Dempsey is from Richmond. She has been active in Student Union and is a past president of the Virginia Recreation Park Service.

Donna Lea Hasky is an English major from Culpeper. She is a member of Geist and an active member of Student Union.

A Music Education major from Boyce, John Eugene Hudson is a member of the Camerata Singers.

Charlie Mason is a Music Education major from Verona. He is a member of the Camerata Singers and Geist.

From Tampa, Fla., William Preston McKaig is a Music Education major. McKaig is a member of Geist and is a past president of the Camerata Singers.

Teresa Ann McLawhorn is a Physical Education major from Roanoke. She is a member of the Tennis team and a Judicial Board Chairman.

An Art Education major, Keith Franklin Moore of Richmond is Vice Chairman of Legislative Board.

Geist President, Cynthia Marie Morris, is a Physical Education major from Springfield. She is also a member of the Dance Company.

Deborah Lynn Northern, an English major from Warsaw, is a member of Geist, and is a former editor of The Rotunda.

A Government major, Wanda Price Petersen, is from Alexandria. She is the chairman of Legislative Board.

Andy Curtis Pittard is a Music Education major from Sterling Park. He is a member of the Camerata Singers.

Lynn Ann Plageman, of Richmond, is a Social Work major. She is a member of Residence Board and was Head Student Assistant in 1978.

An English major from Vernon Hill, Karen Nanette Shelton is a Longwood Scholar and secretary of Legislative Board.

Geist member, Mary Teresa (Continued on Page 4)

Last week's Press Conference brought more student involvement.
Photo by Melody Crawley

Press Conference Leads To Heavy Debate

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Discussions of off-campus housing policies brought heated discussions at the Press Conference Thursday, November 15, in the Lower Dining Hall. The discussions lead President Henry J. Willett to set his foot down on the matter by saying that this was a residential college, and he saw no future change in the policy.

Studies were done this summer by a Faculty and Administrative Committee. Their report was approved by the Board of Visitors in November stating that they saw no need for change. Members of the committee were—Dr. Raymond Fawcett, Gary C. Groneweg, Dr. William J. Peele, Dr. James Gussett, Miss Terrie Swann, and Dr. Mary A. Heintz. Much of the Press Conference's discussion centered around the fact that no students were on the committee.

It was brought out at the Press Conference that there will be a change in the menu in the Dining Hall. We should start noticing this after Thanksgiving. Many students expressed their feelings for a meal ticket plan. Here there is a 21 meal plan which consist of three meals a day seven days a week. President Willett expressed his opinion that a meal ticket plan would not raise the quality of the food but would raise the cost by a considerable amount. Many students still feel that they would rather pay this extra expense in their fees than spend more money eating outside the Dining Hall.

The college has been checking into putting in another drink machine to help decrease the lines at the drink machines that are present. Another change is that there will be beverage served in the balcony of the Dining Hall. The estimated profit margin on the meals is around five to eight per cent. The cost of each meal for food alone served in the Dining Hall is 80-90 cents.

There is approximately 1.5 weeks worth of food kept on hand most of the time. Another issue having to do with the Dining Hall discussed Thursday was the large number of glasses missing because of breakage and theft. The money spent to buy new glasses comes out of the food budget.

Other points discussed were: —Her gym being locked at 5 p.m. to keep non-students out, but it is also keeping students out.

—The fringe benefits received by the Faculty and Administration to get them involved in activities like the Artists Series.

—The fact that female athletes receive scholarships, but male athletes do not. This will change when men's athletics go division II.

—The number of times Campus Police patrols the campus at night. The reasons why no police stay in the station at night. The Campus Police check the dorms a minimum of four times a night.

College Receives Grant

From PUBLIC RELATIONS

Longwood College has been awarded the largest single grant for the purchase of equipment in the history of the college.

The grant, in the amount of $90,000, has been provided by the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable, and Educational Fund, bringing to a total of approximately $200,000 which Longwood has received from the duPont Fund since 1970.

The current grant will be used to purchase new equipment and replace worn equipment used in the instructional program of the college. All 13 of the college's academic departments and the Wynne Campus School will benefit from this grant.

The Dean of the College and the President have allocated the following amounts to the various departments:

Art, $3,500; Business, $11,000; Education, $2,500; English, $2,000; History and Social Sciences, $1,000; Health, Physical Education and Recreation, $5,000; Home Economics, $13,000; Mathematics, $1,000; Music, $15,000; Social Work, $1,000; Sociology, $3,000; Sciences, $20,000; Speech and Dramatic Arts, $2,000; and Campus School, $1,000.

The rest of the money totaling $9,000 will be put on reserve.

In receiving the grant, President Henry J. Willett, Jr., stated, "The equipment necessary to provide quality education has received a low priority in recent years, falling victim to higher priority items of salaries, supplies, and operating costs. This grant and the equipment it will purchase should make a major impact on our instructional equipment needs."

Mrs. duPont, a member of the class of 1903 at Longwood, took personal interest in providing scholarships for needy students during her lifetime. She personally reviewed applications for assistance from students and decided which ones she would assist.

At the time when Mrs. duPont attended Longwood, the college was engaged primarily in teacher training. Since that time, the college has broadened its curriculum into 26 major areas of study and, in 1976, changed from a women's college to a coeducational one. Current enrollment of approximately 2,400 students includes some 600 men.

Count Basie and his band performed to a packed Jarman Auditorium, Friday night. (See page 3 for review)
Photo by Melody Crawley

Editors Named For Gyre

By DONNA STEPHENS

The new editors for The Gyre for the 1979-1980 session are Cindy Cumins, chief editor, and Lisa Cumby, art editor. According to Dr. Martha Cook, Ms. Cumins was chosen by the English department because she has shown a talent as an English major and also an art minor. Dr. Cook will be the acting advisor for the Gyre while the faculty advisor, Dr. Quinton Vest is away for one year teaching in Romania.

The Gyre is the literary magazine that acknowledges the talents of the student body and is free to the students at Longwood College. It is published annually in the spring and is now going into its 36th year of publication. The Gyre was first called the "Collonade" until 1965 when the name was changed in an attempt to update the publication and make the magazine more contemporary. It is the only magazine that is compiled and edited by the students.

Upon receiving the job as editor, Ms. Cumins expressed that she is very optimistic as well as challenged by the need to make The Gyre more established within the student community. She also remarked, "Over the past few years The Gyre has not received as much student body support which has hindered the publication from achieving the kind of quality that active participation would make possible." Ms. Cumins emphasized the need for more staff members and an increase in student interests.

All work can be submitted to Box 430. Ms. Cumins assures that the work will be handled with care. There will be cash awards given for selected quality work and an annual literary festival will be hosted when The Gyre is distributed in the spring. She says, "The festival is a time for students to meet with professional writers to discuss their works."

Ms. Cumins concluded with the following remark: "There's a great deal of talent on Longwood's campus, thus I hope through The Gyre that we can uncover it for everyone to share and enjoy."

Elections Set

By MARY GRANT

The election of the major-minor officers will take place Wednesday, November 28, 1979.

The SGA Forum will be held Tuesday, November 27, at 7 p.m. in the Gold Room. This forum enables the candidates to give campaign speeches to the student body. All students are encouraged to attend the forum to get to know the candidates and participate in the election.

All candidates running for an office may begin putting up campaign posters Monday, November 19.

In the event of a tie, runoffs will be held approximately one week after elections.

Election of class representatives may not occur this year due to a time factor. Each class must meet and nominate their candidates for representatives before election dates can be set.

ROTC Experiences

By THOMAS COLE

Longwood's ROTC students attended their first semester's Field Leadership Exercise at Fort Pickett, VA, on November 9-12.

Our cadets tasted many phases of military life through drill and ceremony, and numerous classes on subjects such as: operation, care and cleaning of the M-16 and M-60 machine gun, operation of the LAW weapon, grenades, and basic first aid for soldiers.

Saturday's training included the firing of the M-16 and M-60. The experience was fun filled and the memories of the week end are unforgettable.

With the approach of Thanksgiving, a person begins to think of home, roasted turkey with all the trimmings, and a break from studies. For some of us, however, Thanksgiving also means it is time to finish up the projects, the term papers, or anything else the teachers decide on at the "last minute." Also there are exams to start worrying over. How many of us, though, really buckle down to study when we know we are at home, free from our class to class, homework and paper filled schedules? Probably not many.

Whatever happened to the old fashioned Thanksgivings we had when we were kids? You remember — grandmother's house, a big turkey, cranberry sauce, your favorite pie, and all your aunts, uncles, and cousins? Sure you do! Everyone was happy to see you, to find out how you were doing in school, and to tell a few tales of what Thanksgiving was like when they were "your age." Life was easier then, wasn't it? Today, it seems, the only time the family really gets together for the turkey and the talk is between the football bowl games or at halftime!

We all say we are thankful for our health, for our friends, and for our family. But do we really mean what we say or do we just say it once or twice a year (Thanksgiving and Christmas) to please others? In this rapid paced world we live in today, it is hard to know exactly what we mean. The simple joys of life are lost — joys like those of Thanksgiving because Mom doesn't want a house full of people or she just doesn't want to do all of the cooking herself.

Thanksgiving — or any holiday that brings the family together for that matter — should not be this way. While it is true that college life does somewhat alter past traditions of a homework free break, try not to let that be the only thing you do while you are at home. Take the time to enjoy yourself and your family. And instead of having Thanksgiving once a year, why not give thanks every day?

PEJ

Practice for "The Good Woman of Setzuan" includes characters, Marie Douillard and Frank Creasy. Photo by Tony Mason

The Good Woman Of Setzuan

By LINDA WHEELER

Have you ever seen someone walking on platform shoes that were seven inches in height? Or how about a female playing both a female and a male role in the same play, with an extra "surprise"? If that wasn't enough, how about three gods flying off in a Chinese junk? If you never have, the students and the rest of the community here at Longwood will be able to with the upcoming production of "The Good Woman of Setzuan," by Bertolt Brecht, on December 5-8, 1979 at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. The Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts and the Longwood Players will once again bring to Jarman and to the community a high quality of theatrical entertainment which has proven to be noteworthy in the past.

So come out and see the play and find out what the extra "surprise" is!

Columns And Comments

Letter Of Resignation

Dear Student Body:

Because I no longer feel that the Judicial Board is receiving the kind of administrative support necessary for the board to function effectively, I hereby submit my resignation as Chairman of Judicial Board effective immediately. Please understand that this resignation has nothing to do with whether or not the current proposal for Judicial Board changes is accepted or rejected.

Respectfully submitted,
Teresa McLawhorn

(Editor's Note: The Rotunda contacted Ms. McLawhorn on Sunday after receiving the letter. She stated that she did not wish to comment at this time.)

Student Counselors

Dear Editor,

With the approach of Major Minor elections and the training of new student counselors for Judicial Board, I feel that it is appropriate at this particular time to explain the role of counselors as interpreted by the constitution of the Student Active Counseling Service and my own personal experience.

As an acting student counselor, I feel that this position needs to be understood by the student body not as a position of a defending or prosecuting attorney, but as a position as protector of the student's rights before, during, and after a trial. The counselor's role is to prepare the student on trial for what should and does occur in a trial, and also to procure answers to all questions the student may have concerning the trial.

I would also like to state that Teresa McLawhorn has my full support, understanding, and sympathy in her feelings of necessity to resign as Chairman of Judicial Board.

Sincerely,
Tricia Whitehurst

Private Spaces

Dear Editor:

I would like to know what Longwood College is going to do about the current parking problem. I have noticed that students as well as staff members are being allowed to park in fire lanes (in front of Curry and Frazer) and in drive ways of parking lots without receiving a ticket. Here is a little story that might help to explain my anger.

Last Monday, November 12, I went out to my car which was parked in the lot below the Her Tennis Courts. Students had already blocked one of the exits and there was a Van in the second. Well, I recognized the van and went to its owner. I asked him if it was in fact his van. After I had given a description and location he said that it was. I asked him if he would mind moving it so that I could get out, that he was blocking me. He got angry and told me that someone had parked in his private parking place and that if I was blocked I must have been in that place. I informed him that I was not illegally parked and that he was blocking my car. He carried on this argument until we got out to the lot and he saw that I was not in his "Private Parking Place". (However he didn't apologize for unjustly accusing me.) He went over to his van and told me that there was plenty of room to drive through. A friend of mine was with me and she agreed with me that there was not enough room to safely drive past. He then came up to me and said that he would drive my car through the space in question and show me that there was plenty of room. I informed him that I was the only person who drove my car and that if he didn't move his now I would call the police and get his van towed. He continued to argue as I went to my car. I looked at him and he was standing in the middle of the lot telling me or should I say, yelling at me, "There is enough room here for a Greyhound Bus to go through."

As you may have guessed this was with an ADULT of this college. I'm not putting all the blame on him. I have had to go to Campus Police before and get them to get other cars (students cars) moved so that I could get my car out.

I realize that some people who are not on my side with this matter would tell me to park my car somewhere else where I might not have such a problem. But if that is for parking why don't the Longwood community use it to full capacity.

Sincerely yours,
A Greyhound Bus!

Closing Time

Editors,
College life is a life of work and study and should be taken
(Continued on Page 4)

Mike Williams Returns

By DONNA HASKY
Mike Williams will be making yet another return performance tonight when he appears in the Count Basie— Jazz Elite

By BILL LEWARNE

The Performing Artists Series presented what will probably be remembered as the highlight of its entertainment package this year when Jarman's house lights went down Friday evening, and the stage lights came up to reveal Count Basie's orchestra in total possession of the stage.

As was expected, the concert sold out, and when the Count walked on stage the roar that greeted him filled any empty spaces that were left.

Musically speaking, there is little that can be said about this world-famous entity that has not been said before. These men are professional musicians in every sense of the word, and their skill and dexterity in playing knows no bounds.

But, if Friday night's concert was any indication, it is not just their talent that has made this group an institution, it is their tremendous rapport with the audience, their all-out efforts to please.

It is evident in the smile of the bass player, as he coaxes out a rhythm that seems to be as satisfying to him as to his listeners. It shows in the puffed, red faces of the brass section they strain to push out the exacting quality the Count's music demands. It shows in the expression of the drummer, who seems to lose himself in his concentration of making a perfect beat for each number.

If the orchestra could be compared to an army, then the Count is undeniably their general. His activeness on stage has decreased somewhat over the years, but he is still in total control, and his players exhibit an enormous, and righteous, respect for the man, glancing towards him occasionally for directions, or smiling hopefully at him at the end of a piece, as though for a nod of approval or some word of praise.

But perhaps the highest evidence of respect and love the Count has earned from his players is shown at the end of soloist's performances, when they not only bow and thank the audience, but turn and bow towards Count Basie as well.

And that is certainly a summation of the feelings the audience expressed in its echoing standing ovation at the end of the concert. The Count had triumphed again.

"Sound Gallery" at 8:30 p.m. in the Red, White and Green Rooms. Admission is only 75 cents for Longwood students.

You could describe Mike Williams as a "tall Texan with a deep honey-smooth voice and a 12-string guitar that can make more music than most orchestras"—of course, that's a rather romantic way of putting it. And it doesn't take into account his sense of humor...or all that hair. But then again, no definition of Williams could possibly cover everything—or explain the seeming contrasts. In the same respect, the music is just as complex—and simple—as the man. He calls it "people music"—the stories of real, everyday life set to music. Some of them are sad or sweet, or a mixture of both; some are off-color or uproariously funny—but they're all a glimpse of life, Mike Williams-style.

Page 3

THE ROTUNDA

Tuesday, November 20, 1979

Mike Williams will appear at "Sound Gallery" tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Eyerman Labeled Unique

By FRANK CREASY

Every now and then, the Student Union likes to bring in new and unique talent to its events. The last Saturday Night Alive was just that.

Tim Eyerman and the East Coast Offering proved to be something foreign to Longwood students, and the reactions to his music were mixed. But that is not unusual, since progressive jazz is unfamiliar to many on campus.

Eyerman and Company displayed a professional performance to the small crowd in the Lower Dining Hall. The band's namesake leader exemplified total diversity, going from one wind instrument to another. His musical prowess is unquestioned. But this did not distract from the rest of the band, but rather complemented it. Although Eyerman took the spotlight, the others showed themselves as outstanding musicians, especially drummer Dale Kerrigan. Guitarist Phil McKusker deserves credit too. Eyerman evoked a rare response from usual Saturday night Alive crowds; the reaction appeared close to indifference. But then again, jazz is lent more to foot-tapping than foot stomping. In this respect, Eyerman accomplished his purpose.

Anyway, it was a nice change of pace for all.

Diamond Lectures

By CHRIS VOGEL

Stuart Diamond, environment and energy writer for the Long Island newspaper, Newsday, presented a lecture on energy awareness and conservation last Tuesday night to a rather small crowd.

Diamond stressed that energy is both necessary for the synthesis of everything and to keep many things running. The U.S. uses two to three times as much energy per capita than any of the overseas countries. Most U.S. consumers spend 12 per cent of their gross income on energy.

Diamond advocated the use of the Sun as an energy source. Solar energy as an energy source is not a new innovation started by the modern "back to earth" movements. The Sun has been utilized for centuries, but with the boom of coal and the other fossil fuels, it was used less. Only now, when these supplies dwindle, is the Sun being reconsidered as a major energy source. Diamond feels that by 1985 an effective solar cell will be made to substantiate a solar economy.

Recycling is a necessary step, according to Diamond. He feels that Americans live in a "throw away" economy—more of a product is thrown out than is used. There is usually more to the packaging than to the product. Things like this could be recycled.

Diamond feels that Americans need to learn "energy efficiency." These are little things a person can do to cut down on energy consumption and save money in the long run. Examples of this include:

—You can save about $100 a year in gasoline costs by inflating your tires to the pressure stated in the operators manual.

—A 20 cent washer can stop a leaky hot water faucet that may save approximately 3260 gallons of water a year.

—Caulking and weather stripping windows and doors could save up to $700 in heating costs.

In conclusion, Diamond stressed a need for energy programs to evaluate energy problems so solutions may be sought to create a more "energy efficient" society.

The featured artist for the November 28th Spotlight Concert will be the dynamic vocalist guitarist Louise Dimiceli. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. in the Gold Room and is free of charge.

"WIZARDS"

THURSDAY FRIDAY SUNDAY
NOV. 29 NOV. 30 DEC. 2

RED/WHITE ROOMS

7 AND 9 PM

$1.00

Hudson-McClain Recital Held

By CHRIS VOGEL

Miss Lynnette Hudson, soprano, and Miss Pamela McClain, clarinet gave a joint Senior Recital last Thursday night in Molnar Music Hall, Wygal.

Miss Hudson, accompanied by Miss Rene Rowland, sang pieces by Handel, Mozart, Faure, Kingsly, Schuman, and Barber. She also performed a comedic scene from Pergolesi's opera La Serva Padrona. She was assisted by Mr. Charles Lafferty, baritone.

Miss McClain, accompanied by Mr. Larry Smith, performed works by Wanhel, Pierre, and Depelsenaire.

Miss Hudson and Miss McClain concluded the recital with Meyerbeer's Hirtienlied (Shepard's Song), a composition for soprano and clarinet.

Miss Hudson from the studio of Thomas Williams and Miss McClain from the studio of Darrell Harbaum both gave exceptional performances.

Miss Hudson, a Music Education major from Portsmouth, is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Vergil Hudson. She is Treasurer for both Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music fraternity, and the Longwood chapter of Music Educators National Conference. She is also a member of Camerata Singers.

Miss McClain, a Music Education major from Springfield, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil McClain. She is Vice-President of Concert Band, a member of Music Educators National Conference, and a pledge for Sigma Alpha Iota.

S-UN PRESENTS THE CHRISTMAS DANCE

featuring
"SANDCASTLE"

Gold Room - 9 PM TO 1 AM - Sat., Dec. 1
Formal/Semi-Formal $5.00/Couple

Lancer Cagers Open Season With Invitational

Longwood men's basketball coach Ron Bash will take the wraps off his 1979-80 edition when the Lancers meet Gallaudet (D.C.) in the opening round of the Longwood Invitational Classic I Friday night at 9:00 in French Gymnasium, and the Longwood coach is hoping for an auspicious debut.

Bowie State (Maryland) and Stony Brook (New York) kick-off the four-team tournament Friday night at 7:00 with the Longwood-Gallaudet contest to follow. Consolation and championship contests will follow Saturday night at 7:00 and 9:00, respectively.

The tournament is a big one for Bash and his team and not just because the Lancers will be opening their season. The event is the first men's basketball tournament ever hosted by Longwood, a school with a growing tradition in men's athletics. Adding significance to the tourney is the fact that Bash will be going for his 100th career victory when the Lancers play Gallaudet Friday night.

Should Longwood win its opening round contest and Stony Brook defeat Bowie State, Saturday night's championship contest would match the Lancers against a team which Bash coached before he journeyed south in the summer of 1978.

Bash, who has a 99-58 career record, downplays the significance of a possible contest with his old team, Stony Brook, despite the fact that Patriot coach Dick Kendall used to be his assistant and that four players whom he recruited may start for Stony Brook.

"It's just another game," said the Longwood coach. "I guess a match-up with them (Stony Brook) would have had more significance last year when more of the players I had worked with were on the team."

Bash, who guided Stony Brook to a 27-4 mark in 1978, picks the Patriots as tourney favorites, based on last year's record (24-3) and the fact that they have the most height of any team in the tournament field. The Longwood coach doesn't rule his own team out of contention, however.

"I think we'll do well," he said when asked about Longwood's chances. "If our kids play up to their potential, we could win the tournament."

Gymnasts Bring Home Trophy

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Longwood placed second out of eight teams in the Georgia College Invitational with a score of 113.8. Georgia College was first with 115.25.

Freshman Lancer Sharon Pillow was first All Around with a 31.5. She placed first on the bars (7.75), first on the beam (8.35), second on the floor (7.65), and third in vaulting (7.85).

Karen Mazzona was second in the floor (7.65). Shelia Gould was third on bars (6.8), and Margie Fanton was fourth on the floor (7.3) and vaulting (7.65).

Coach Ruth Budd was very pleased with the Lancer's performance.

"We could have won first place if our performance on the beam had been stronger. The team was shaky as it was the first collegiate meet for the seven freshmen on the team," Budd said.

This will be the first trophy the gymnastics team has brought home since taking second in states a few years ago.

Wrestlers Take To The Mats

From Sports Information

Lancer coach Nelson Neal admits that Longwood's wrestling program is still in the building stages, but the second-year coach looks for his team to improve on last year's 1-9 mark.

"In our second year of varsity competition in Division III we will be building our program for the future," said Neal. "If all our wrestlers can recover from some nagging injuries we will have a chance to win some matches and use our depth to give experience to some of our younger performers."

"We have two or three wrestlers capable of compiling winning records and qualifying for the Eastern Regionals," the coach continued. "Our goal is for each wrestler to win at least one match and to have three to five wrestlers go to the regional championships."

Neal, who has a career mark of 17-23-1, can count on six regular performers from last year's team. Heading up the list is Kurt Coffield (Virginia Beach), who turned in a 9-5-1 mark last season at 134 lbs. Coffield won first place in the Capital Collegiate Conference Championships (Washington, D.C.) and third place in the Washington & Lee Invitational last season.

Other returnees include: 126-Bobby Hulsey (Stanleytown), a sophomore who was 3-9, 142-Garry Ferris (Moneta), a sophomore who was 4-8, 150-Aubrey Huffman (Crozet), 2-8 last season and a sophomore, 150-Mike Mercil (Arlington), a junior who was 1-7 and Bob Carlin (Crozet), a sophomore who was 1-13.

Among the newcomers are: 158-Steve Shennett (King of Purssia, PA), a freshman, 167-Terry Howell (Lorton), a junior, 134-Chuck Meek (Virginia Beach), a freshman, 134-Tim Myers (Charlottesville), a sophomore, 177-Tom Bolling (Bedford), a freshman, 177-Patton White (Bealeton), a freshman, 190-Bill Klink (Williamsburg), a sophomore, heavyweights Dave Crute (Farmville), a junior, Ed Russell (Charlottesville), a freshman, Bill Stafford (Moneta), a 6-6, 230 lb. freshman and at 142, freshman Mark Moreno (Norfolk).

Following the JMU Tournament, Longwood hosts Lynchburg and Richmond November 29.

Parker, Leal Receive Honors

Longwood freshmen Joe Parker (Hatorbo, Pa.) and Gustavo Leal (Rockville, Md.) were among those honored last week when the Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association announced its all-star selections.

Parker, who led the Lancers in shots with 51 and scored two goals over the past season, was one of 11 players named to the Eastern Division All-Association team which was selected by the division coaches.

The Longwood forward joins Leal as one of 18 players chosen for the Eastern Division All-Star team which will play a team of Western Division stars December 2, in the VISA All-Star contest at Averett College in Danville.

Leal, second on the team in shots with 42, scored two goals during the past season. He and Parker played leading roles as Longwood finished 4-10-1 to establish a new school record for wins in a season.

Linda Pullen controls the ball against Christopher Newport.
Photo by Jodi Gilbert

Ladies Land Victory

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

In their season opener, the Lady Lancers stamped the Lady Captains of Christopher Newport 76-58.

The Lancers played well from the beginning, established a 38-24 lead by the half. Longwood looked especially strong under the boards out rebounding their shorter opponents to get several attempts if necessary. For the game, Longwood had 49 rebounds to Christopher Newport's 33.

The Lancers went on to pump in another 38 points for victory. Maryjane Smith led the offense with an excellent showing of 22 points. Brenda Fettrow was the only other Longwood player in double figures; she had 10 points, and five assists.

Fettrow also led the rebounding with nine, followed by Amy Gates with eight.

Christopher Newport got upset by what they felt was poor officiating. Coach Phil See and his team collected six technicals during the game for questioning the calls. The captains had a total of 47.

Overall the Lancers played very well, with good fast breaks and outside shots.

Comments

(Continued from Page 2)

seriously. In anyone's life, though, there must be time for rest and relaxation. Longwood College offers the Lankford Building as a location for activities to fulfill this need. It is difficult to utilize this facility to its utmost, though, when any and all occupants are run-off like unwanted varmints up to one-half hour before printed and published closing hours.

Hours for the Lankford Building, as published in the Longwood Student Handbook, are until 1:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights. Two nights have passed when I and uncounted others have been rather rudely ordered to leave. It is very nerve racking when the television you are watching is cut off at 12:26 a.m., early Saturday morning, just as the Nightstalker is fitting together the pieces of a mysterious string of events. The feeling is similar when the television is turned off again at 12:52 a.m., early Sunday morning, as Bill Murray, Lorraine Newman, et. al. are just beginning one of the few yet to come spoofs on American living that make life a little (even if not much) funnier.

If the people working in the building on Friday and Saturday nights do not wish to remain on the premises until published closing times, perhaps these workers should refrain from working these nights and allow someone else to work, someone who does not feel burdened with an unbearable task when waiting until 1:00 a.m. to close up.

It is my hope that one of two things may occur in the future: the Lankford Building will remain open until specified hours as to be used to its full benefits to students, or the new, seemingly rotating hours of the facility will be announced, posted and printed in the appropriate places.

Elizabeth J. Conner

H-SC Thanks

Dear Editor:

I want to thank all the students from Longwood who came out to give blood at Hampden-Sydney on November 8th. I do not know how many students came out last year, but from what I gathered, there were more students here this year than in the past years, we had approximately 50 students from Longwood participate in our blood drive this year. I believe this reflects a lot in character of those people who came out to give for such a worthy cause. Also, I want to thank those girls who walked, typed, and did the canteen for me. Without these girls to help me, the blood drive would not have had the success that it had. I cannot thank them enough.

Again, I want to say thank you for coming out to give blood, and I hope that we can have another great turn-out next year.

Sincerely,
Galen Hobbs,
H-SC Blood Chairman

Hampden-Sydney Wins?

The Longwood Rugby Club was scheduled to play Hampden-Sydney Club at 3:30 on Oktoberfest Saturday. Because of a rumor that H-SC was not going to play, Longwood contacted H-SC on Friday, October 26 to reconfirm the next day's game. H-SC then reported that their team was sick of various illnesses and would not be able to play. This late notice caused Longwood to be unable to set up another game with another team to save the Oktoberfest festivity.

A new game was scheduled for Thursday, November 8, which was reported in the November 13 issue of the Rotunda as a double forfeit. However, after a conversation with the H-SC match secretary, Dave Phillips, they seem to feel that they did not forfeit, but won the game. Contrary to what H-SC told Longwood on October 26, it was the "A" team that was too sick to play. The "B" team was just fine but had made other plans. The Longwood Rugby team is classified as a "B" team and had scheduled their game with the H-SC "B" team. As stated by Dave Phillips, it was the "A" team that played on Thursday, November 8 and some of the "B" team members were on the sidelines.

H-SC feels that Longwood was responsible for all the fights and that Longwood would have to have a better attitude or they would not play them anymore. H-SC accused certain LC players as very unsportsmanlike and that they did not know the rules. H-SC feels that they would have had an even better score in the game if one player hadn't given blood that day and others were playing with injuries.

H-SC wishes to play Longwood on Greek Week end next spring. Who knows, maybe Longwood will be too sick to play that day, also.

Lucy Lee Hollins
Patricia Cullen

Who's Who

(Continued from Page 1)

Ware, is a Social Work major from Jacksonville, Fla. She is also a member of Legislative Board.

Elizabeth Ann Wyatt is a Sociology major from Herndon. She is chairman of Residence Board.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1979

NO. 11

Bird, Lowe, Wheeler Head SGA

The SGA forum was held Tuesday evening, November 27, at 7 p.m. in Lankford Gold Room to provide an opportunity for Major-Minor candidates to give campaign speeches and for students to ask questions.

Elections were held on Wednesday, November 28, and the winners are as follows:

Legislative Board Chairman will be Tammy Bird. She has previously served on the board and promises to use her knowledge and expertise to the full benefit of the students.

Legislative Board Vice-Chairman will be Cindy Droupski. At the forum, Cindy's campaign manager, Cindy Byrd, spoke in her behalf. Byrd stated that Droupski will be "fair minded and honest on appeals" and "is efficient and successful." Cindy Droupski served on the board last year also.

Legislative Board treasurer will be served by Sharon Harrup and the secretary position will be filled by Christi Lewis.

Linda Wheeler will serve as Residence Board Chairman. She is currently president of Wheeler Dormitory. She stated that she "knows students are concerned and that she wants to keep the spirit of togetherness and concern for others present at Vice-Chairman of Residence Board is Bill Johnson. He is striving for a more open system of government that treats students as adults."

Longwood."

The Secretary of Residence Board will be served by Lisa Comer.

The position of Judicial Board Chairman will be served by Sally Lowe. She feels strongly about upholding the Honor Code and was a member on the committee that revised the Judicial policy.

Eric Benjamin will be serving as Vice-Chairman of Judicial Board. He has previously been a member of Judicial Board and is also on the reconstruction committee. He would like to see the Judicial Board work at its most effective potential.

The secretary position for Judicial Board will be served by Brenda Coleman.

Student Union Chairman will be Marjorie Croxton. She was Vice-Chairman last year and has been involved with the Student Union since her freshman year. She started the dance marathon here at Longwood College. Mary B. Ibanez will serve as secretary and David Wall as treasurer of the Student Union.

Vice President of the Intramural Athletic Association will be served by Susan Towler, who feels she can do a good job due to her previous experience. Kim Fuhr will serve as treasurer.

A runoff was held Monday, December 3, to determine the Chairman of Orientation. Candidates are Brenda Fettrow and Cheryl Wilcox. Cindy Byrd spoke in behalf of Brenda Fettrow stating that she had "good leadership abilities." Cheryl Wilcox has had previous experience working with large groups and a desire to help the freshmen become acquainted with college life at Longwood. Election returns from the run-off were not available at the time of printing.

TAMMY BIRD

SALLY LOWE

LINDA WHEELER

Photos by Melody Crawley

Food Survey To Be Taken

By MELODY CRAWLEY

ARA Food Services will be taking a Food Preference Survey, Wednesday, according to Gordon H. Inge, Food Service Director. Inge said that the Residence Board would be in charge of the survey. Forms will be distributed by the Resident Assistants on each dormitory hall.

Inge added that a survey had just been taken last spring but with the turn over in students, he felt another one should be taken now. "We are trying to react positively to upgrade the menu," stated Inge. "My door is always open to problems and complaints."

The food service has made approximately 21 changes in the menu since Thanksgiving break. Inge sighted such things as serving soup at lunch, to "make your own hoagie" lunch, and Sunday night, soup, salad, and sandwich bars as examples. He said that the students should bring noticing a lot of difference.

Later next semester the service will also take a Dining Service Survey. This will survey such things as waiters and waitresses and cleanliness of plates and utensils.

Inge urged students to bring their complaints to him and the Dining Hall Committee.

Characters Marie Douillard (Shen Te) and Lisa Hughes (Mrs. Shin) rehearse for opening night of "The Good Woman of Setzuan," Wednesday.

Photo by Mike Latton

Players To Present Brecht Play

By LINDA WHEELER

The Longwood Players and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts will once again bring the stage in Jarman Auditorium to life with their production of "The Good Woman of Setzuan," by Bertolt Brecht, on December 5-8, at 8 p.m.

The story of the play centers around Shen Te, played by Marie Douillard, who is visited by three gods, played by Susan Clift, Frank Creasy, and Mark Winecoff. The gods are searching for someone good and they find Shen Te, by way of Wong, the water seller, played by George Hughes.

As in most theatrical endeavors, there is a touch of romance to the play. Yang Sun, portrayed by Randy Cook, is the unemployed mail pilot, with whom Shen Te falls in love with. The mail pilot business falls apart and with the help of his mother, played by Ronda Landis, Yang Sun ends up being foreman in the tobacco factory, owned by Shen Te and managed by Mr. Shui Ta, her evil counterpart.

Other people come and go throughout the play and cause problems for Shen Te. Such characters are Mrs. Mi Tzu, an influential real estate person, Mrs. Shin, a meddlesome curiosity seeker, Mr. Shu Fu, a lecherous philanderer, and a family of eight all take their toll, in their own ways, on Shen Te.

The play itself is a combination of both farcical situations and serious moments. At times, one would stop and wonder what the purpose of all this was. The purpose is summed up towards the end of the play when Shen Te says simply, "Help!" there is good and evil in all of us and sometimes we all need help on the way.

Dr. Patton Lockwood, who is the director of the play and the composer of the music for the show, has brought together a multi-talented cast that works hard to achieve their ultimate goal: a good performance.

The set and the lighting was designed by Richard Gamble, Longwood's new technical director. Mr. Gamble, as in the past, will give the audiences in Jarman something "pretty nifty," an imaginative setting which reflects the precarious uncertainty of Shen Te's life. The play is free with Longwood I.D. and $2.50 for general admission. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Student Board Member Proposed

The Virginia National Democratic Caucus has endorsed a plan which would place a voting student member on the Boards of Visitors of Virginia's state supported colleges and universities. By their endorsement the VNDC committed themselves to lobbying in favor of the proposal in the upcoming session of the General Assembly.

Daniel S. Alcorn, Vice-Chairman of the VNDC explained that board members would appreciate having within their ranks a source for information on student needs and opinions.

"The plan we favor would add one member to each board and allow the student governments at each school to determine the method for selecting the representative", he added. He pointed out that Virginia Governors have appointed recent graduates to governing boards in the past, but criticized these appointments as "political pay-offs which may or may not result in the concerns of the students being represented." The UVA student Council has already endorsed the student board member idea.

Alcorn asserts that the students should not be picked by the governor and that, "He or she should be an enrolled student who can fairly represent the current student body."

The Start Of Christmas

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

One of the first things to occur at Longwood to signify that Christmas is coming is the election of the Freshman Christmas Elves. The election of the Elves here at Longwood is an old tradition that was originally sponsored by the YWCA. After the YWCA disbanded the Freshman class took over the running of this tradition. This is a very special and unique tradition. It serves to start to get the student body into the Christmas spirit even when you are studying for exams and working on other projects. Twelve Elves from the Freshman class plus the class president are elected Christmas Elves. This is a true honor to be elected an Elf.

This year's Freshman Christmas Elves are: Nick Ciucci (head elf), John Todd, Ross Conner, Mary Ball, Ilona Wilson, Kim Zackery, Dean Leakey, Trotman Simpson, Mark Moran, Minday McDonald, Winona Baynes, Michelle Lewis and Marie Douillard.

The Elves are kept busy promoting Christmas spirit through such activities as the Christmas Parade (Sun., Dec. 2, at 2:00 p.m.). On Monday, Dec. 3, at 4:30 they decorate the Christmas tree in the Rotunda and at 7:30 they will decorate tree in ABC Rooms. On Tuesday, Dec. 4, from 12:00-6:00 they will be at the CHI Crafts Sale, at 6:30 they will visit Holly Manor Nursing Home, and from 5:00-6:00 they will be singing in the Rotunda. On Wednesday, Dec. 5, at 10:30 a.m. they will be at the Nursery (Campus school) to decorate Christmas Tree. At 1:30 they visit Campus School, and from 5:00-6:00 they will sing around the Christmas Tree. On Thursday, Dec. 6, at 5:00 p.m. "Twining of the Greens," and at 7:30 there will be Elf Skit in the Gold Room; where the Senior Madonna will be presented. At 8:45 there will be the Judging of Door Decorations. On Friday, Dec. 7, at 5:00 p.m. there will be the "Shower of Pennies"—be sure to bring your pennies! From 5:00-6:00 there will be singing around the Christmas Tree.

These events are a great time for students to show their love and spirit of Christmas. Become involved and show you care about the feelings of others. Although we should do this year round Christmas seems to be the best time for most people to do this. Have a Merry Christmas and show you care!!!

TRO Plans

By DEBORAH HARRISON and REBECCA WILLIAMS

Do you know where the ACTION is? Well, the action on the Longwood College campus and off is generated by the TRO. Talk about busy...The Therapeutic Recreation Organization has been busy planning projects for the coming year. Some of the activities planned include: the organizing of a Christmas party for the people participating in the READ (Recreational Experience at Longwood) Program; the organizing of the First Special Olympics Program ever to be held in Prince Edward County; helping to organize the Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy; the organizing of a trip to Richmond to see a wheelchair basketball game; the organizing of an Adaptive Aquatics Workshop to be held this spring; and the planning of a Therapeutic Recreation Organization Banquet for all T.R. majors.

TRO was formed to promote and develop an interest and understanding of therapeutic recreation within the college, community, and state. In order to be a member one must have declared therapeutic recreation as his/her major or profession.

The advisor for TRO is Frank Brasile and the officers are: Chairman-Deborah Harrison; Vice-Chairman-Dawn Legg; Secretary-Astrid Newman; and Treasurer-Stacy Southwick. Officers appointed are: Historian-Jackie Steer and Reporter-Rebecca Williams. The Student-Faculty representatives are: Freshman-Aleace Bryant; Sophomore-Debbie Spencer; Junior-Michelle Smith; Senior-Dawn Legg.

To find out more about TRO and the action of being involved, come to the next meeting. The meeting will be December 4, at 7 p.m. in the Honor Council Room in Lankford.

Painter Receives ROTC Honor

Lynn Painter, a Longwood College sophomore, has been awarded a three-year Army ROTC scholarship.

The scholarship will pay all purely educational expenses, including tuition, books, classroom supplies, and laboratory fees, for the remaining three years of Miss Painter's college career. In addition, she will receive a $100 per month subsistence allowance for up to ten months of each academic year.

Factors considered in the selection of scholarship recipients include overall academic achievement and leadership abilities displayed in extra-curricular activities in both high school and college. Miss Painter's academic average at Longwood is 3.82 out of a possible 4.0.

The selection process was initiated here last February when Miss Painter appeared before a Scholarship Review Board, consisting of two military representatives (Colonel George N. Ivey, professor of military science at the University of Richmond, and Major Walter R.

Sullivan, director of Longwood's military science program), two Longwood faculty members (John E. Arehart, assistant professor of education, and Mary Virginia Mitchell, assistant professor of art), and one senior ROTC student from the University of Richmond.

Upon recommendation of the review board, her scholarship application was submitted to headquarters, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command at Fort Monroe, Va., which receives and processes scholarship applications from throughout the country.

A total of 110 women scholarship recipients were chosen from among the 305 who made application. In addition, 662 scholarships were awarded to male students, chosen from among 1,126 applicants.

Miss Painter, is majoring in chemistry. After completing her studies at Longwood, she hopes to be admitted to a dental school.

Upon completion of her education, Miss Painter will serve four years in the U.S. Army, commissioned as a second lieutenant.

Colloquium Features Dr. Smith

The second Faculty Colloquium Lecture of the year was given by Dr. Edward D. Smith on Wednesday, November 28, in Wygal.

The lecture, a discussion on the mysteries of the human memory, was entitled "Search Processes in Memory: Models and Magic."

Dr. Smith, who is assistant professor of psychology at Longwood, states that recent theories hold that we may never really lose anything from memory. "Forgetting is conceptualized as a retrieval problem," he says.

This view has led to a great deal of research in recent years on "retrieval or search processes in short-term and long-term memory." Dr. Smith discussed findings from this research and the effects it has on different learning processes.

Dr. Smith holds the B.A. degree from Heidelberg College, the M.A. from the University of Hawaii, and the Ph.D. from Kent State University. He joined the Longwood faculty in 1971.

The Longwood College Faculty colloquium, established in 1973, is a lecture series which provides opportunity for members of the college's own faculty to share their original research and special studies with colleagues, students, and the public.

"Gifts That Are Different"

SHOP WITH LANSCOTT'S
FOR CHRISTMAS.

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

WEDNESDAY MORNING

CLOSED

Photo by Tom Cole

Measell Joins Growing Dept.

By TOM COLE

Due to the growth and popularity of the business department at Longwood, several new instructors have joined the faculty of the program, Richard F. Measell is one of these new academicians.

Measell brings an impressive background to the Longwood campus. Included is an undergraduate degree from Furman University. He also completed work in two academic areas in the Master's Program at the University of Maryland, receiving a Master's in History and one in Economics. He has begun his doctoral work, also at the University of Maryland.

Measell is very active. In addition to teaching four classes in Economics, he co-sponsors the Longwood chapter of Phi Beta Lambda. Measell also serves with his wife as patron to the Zeta Tau Alpha Social Sorority.

When asked why he chose Longwood, he replied "I was looking for a place with an excellent student faculty rapport, and I believe that I have found it here at Longwood."

"I believe that Longwood should offer more classes in Economics, possibly even a concentration or a minor program," he further explained.

Measell has brought some youth and vitality to the business department here at Longwood while coupling his sense of humor with his lectures. He is being received very well in his classes.

Phi Beta Lambda Officers Installed

By ANNE IMRIE

Phi Beta Lambda, the business fraternity, is proud to announce a membership of 70 students! The organization is currently in full swing and the year promises to be a busy one for us.

On October 18, they held the installation of the 1979-1980 officers: President — Beverly Lewis; Vice President — David Daussin; Secretary — Robyn Black; Treasurer — Cindy Weeks. Faculty advisors are Mr. Dickens and Mr. Measell. During Oktoberfest, they sold Pink Panther, Tweety Bird, etc. plaques very successfully. On October 30, they had a luncheon with a speaker for the membership and the business and economics faculty. November 15, John McCannless gave an informal talk on current interest and its effect on the economy.

Phi Beta Lambda is planning a variety of activities for the business students. Watch for publicity concerning the cabin party, speakers, Thanksgiving care package, seminar with FBLA from an area high school, and MD Dance-a-thon.

On December 6, they are sponsoring a speaker, Dr. James Kimball, of VEPCO. He will speak on Government Regulations in the Utility Industry at 7:30 p.m. in Jeffers Auditorium. The public is invited.

If you are a business major-minor and are interested in becoming a member of Phi Beta Lambda, please come to the meetings for information. General meetings are the second and fourth Thursdays of every month at 6:30 p.m., in Room 306 Ruffner.

INSTANT MINI-PORTRAITS

2 Color Portraits - Mounted
While You Wait...$7.95

A PERFECT GIFT
THIS CHRISTMAS!

ROBERT T. FORE
PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va. 392-8710

Performance Of Warmth And Enjoyment

Last Wednesday evening in the Gold Room, a crowd of about 70 students gathered to see and hear Louise Dimiceli and her bass cello player Peter Deekman.

Louise is a very enthusiastic performer who has creatively delved into her experiences and into her music. Her energy and enjoyment is conveyed throughout her performance. The audience was at times humored and at times touched by her music. Her songs had a personal touch allowing the listeners to feel the beauty and sentiment of each. Her attempt to amuse and relate her songs to her audience was well done and most enjoyable.

Her talent was evident throughout the concert. Her voice and guitar were in perfect sync. Having been a voice major in college, she was able to develop her projection and range, which she beautifully displayed in her opening song, "Moondance," written by Van Morrison. Most of the 15 songs that she sang were written by herself, with the exception of a few.

Miss Dimiceli hails from Chicago. She enjoys in all seriousness... well, forget the seriousness. Her enjoyment of life is enhanced by such things as ice cream, cattle with stripes, playing her lips, rubber fish, drive-ins, underwater maneuvers on the first date, and anything that makes an Italian say, "Oh, Wow!"

Peter, her tremendously versatile bass player, is from Madison, Wisconsin. The two have been playing together since last April.

Louise is a gifted singer who left an audience with warm applause and comfortable smiles.

An evening of warm entertainment as Louise Dimiceli sang of melting ice cream to melting emotions.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Series Screens Film On Giraffe Hunt

The third in an Anthropological Film Series sponsored by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology will be shown, Tuesday, December 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford Auditorium. The film is entitled "The Hunters."

This is a film study of the culture of the Kung Bushmen of the Kalahari Desert of southern Africa. The Kung are one of the few hunting and gathering cultures of the contemporary world. They are also unique linguistically in that the velar clicking sounds which characterize their language — Khoisan — are found nowhere else in the world. The film, by the anthropological film maker John Marshall, emphasizes the quest for food in the harsh desert environment of the Kung. The climax of the film is a thirteen-day chase after a giraffe is wounded by a poison arrow.

All films in the Anthropological Film Series are free. A brief introduction to the film and the Kung Bushmen will be given before the film is shown. The entire program will be completed by about 9 p.m. Students and faculty of Longwood College and the general public are invited to attend.

Couture Researches Powhatan History

"A History of Powhatan County," researched and written by Richard T. Couture, assistant professor of history at Longwood College, has just been published by the Powhatan Historical Society.

A two-year project for Couture, the comprehensive history includes information on the county's founding fathers, business and industry, education, politics beginning with the boundary settlements that formed the county, black history from 1770-1970, Jefferson Landing (the once prosperous town on the James River that is now deserted), crime in the county, roads, ferries, railroads, and bridges.

The history begins with the Monacan Indians and the first English settlers. A chapter is devoted to the Huguenots who came to Virginia in search of the religious freedom denied them in France. The American Revolution, the Civil War and Reconstruction, as they affected Powhatan County and its people, are also discussed.

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the history may contact Mrs. E.C. Bolte, P.O. Box 293, Powhatan, Va. 23139, telephone 598-3052.

A native Virginian, Couture grew up in Portsmouth. He holds the A.B. degree from the College of William and Mary and the M.A. from the University of Virginia. A member of the Longwood faculty since 1966, he teaches courses on Georgian and Victorian England, American Colonial history, and Virginia history.

Girl Scouts Organize Here

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Campus Girl Scouts is a fairly new campus organization. Unlike the Girl Scouts for younger girls, this group is for the college students who wish to be a part of scouting.

Since their formation last year, the Campus Girl Scouts functions have included the sale of Girl Scout cookies, calendars, and holding a pajamboree for 60 girls from junior and cadette troops of Farmville and Cumberland.

Other events include a Brownie Day December 1, cookie sales, helping at the Muscular Dystrophy Marathon and another pajamboree next semester.

The group has grown from four to 11 members, some of whom have been past scouts and others who were never involved with scouting. The group has neither uniforms, nor a scout leader. Any one is invited to join the Campus Girl Scouts. Interested persons may contact Jennifer Inman at 913 Curry.

Evening Planned

By JOAN CRUMPTON

On December 7, 8, and 9 Blackwell Dining Hall will once again be clothed in the festivities of 15th century England. The Renaissance Dinner is presented by the Camerata Singers. Dr. Louard E. Egbert portrays the Lord of Misrule, director of the evenings entertainment and Joy Pague is the court jester.

Dances include the "Candlestick" and "Hay Branl." Some traditional music for the evening will be "Torches Torches" for the lighting of the candles and "Boar's Head Carol" which accompanies the boar's head procession.

The dinner consists of Roast beef (a substitute for the roast boar of olden days), winter vegetables, Yorkshire pudding, fresh fruit, wassail and hot wine punch with figgy pudding for dessert.

Bill Haymes will provide an informal evening of music and fun as he performs in the Snack Bar, December 7, 8 and 9 at 8 p.m.

Art Displays Feature Milton

By CHRIS VOGEL

A collection of twenty-one etchings by Peter Milton, based on Henry James' Jolly Corner are now being exhibited in the Lancaster Library Gallery.

The images created by Milton for this suite are based on photographs Milton has collected, and are put together in a collage-montage fashion. Milton hand draws these images, and photoetches them onto copper plates, which are permanently etched in acid baths to create a permanent printing plate. The twenty-one print series took two years to complete.

An article accompanying the exhibit states that The Jolly Corner Suite is not about instances in the story, but rather the underlying themes that concerned James, as well as Milton's own feelings about the story.

Many of the images are repeated over many of the etchings. These include men engaged in construction, a nude woman, stairwells, prominent looking men, angels, and animals.

The exhibit will remain in the library gallery until December 11. It may be seen during library hours.

There is also a collection of works by Rebecca Ison, a senior Art Major now on display at the Showcase Gallery, in the Lankford Reading Rooms.

Rebecca Ison's works show a variety of mediums. Included in the collection are a number of prints, some pencil drawings, charcoal drawings, and a painting.

Subjects for her works vary, but many of them convey a fantasy quality. This is particularly evident in her Mountain of Mystery and her Dragons drawings. The trees in two of her drawings have an eerie feeling about them. Other subjects she employs include the bathroom sink, a dog, a Chinese sage, some human figures, and an abstract.

The exhibit will remain in the Showcase Gallery until December 8.

Alpha Sigma Phi Receives Charter

By CHUCK COLE

The Alpha Zeta Colony of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity received its official colonization charter from Evin C. Varner at its Colonization Banquet on December 2. Forty Guests witnessed the ceremony, which took place in the Prince Edward Room.

Colony President Chuck Cole, who emceed the affair, accepted the Colony Charter from Varner, who is a member of the Grand Council of the Fraternity.

Three new members joined the ranks of the colony in the pledging ceremony which took place after the banquet. Chris Conner, Ross Conner, and Wilson White joined Alpha Sigma Phi.

The colony, currently 15 members strong, received colony status after only two months. The members are engaged in several projects currently, including sponsoring Miss Jane Bruce for the Miss Longwood Pageant.

National Fraternity Representatives Jeff Hoffman, Rob Sheehan, and Evin Varner attended the banquet. The membership of the colony received pledge certificates. The members are Chuck Cole, Tom Cole, Paige Tilghman, John Trout, Mark Winecoff, Randy Cook, Wilson White, Chris Conner, Ross Conner, Wayne Moore, Jack Barker, Bob Lemux, Jeff Sledjeski, Steve Scalski. Steve Myers was absent. Dave Schanic is Colony Advisor.

OPEN MIKE . . .

GOLD ROOM
8 PM, DEC. 4, FREE

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR. Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR. Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Debbie Northern

STAFF— Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth, Mary Grant, Judi Gilbert, Joan Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley Cline, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom Hands, Lynne Swan, Sherry Carmony, David Gatts, Thomas Cole, Steven Whitten, Frank Creasy, Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hare, Donna Hasky, Judi Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner, Jackie Stear, Brande Bonucelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Cecilia White, Beth Parratt, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Janet Reynolds, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase

Member of the VIMCA.
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Your Turn

Judicial Board

To the Student Body —

The members of Judicial Board feel that it is necessary to write this article to reassure the student body that we still exist and will continue to enforce the Honor Code in spite of the recent resignation of our Chairman. The Board has undergone a reshuffling of Officers. The acting Chairman for the remainder of the semester will be Sally Lowe. Keith Moore will continue as Vice Chairman and Head Investigator. The secretary's position will be filled by Board members when needed.

In case of violators of the Honor Code people are to call Keith Moore, 2-9398, to report the violation. Sally Lowe will act as the chairman and will run the trial proceeding. All Board members will be involved on a rotating basis to conduct investigations.

The board would like to thank the student body for its support during this period of turbulence and we look forward to serving you for the remainder of the semester.

Keith Moore
Vice Chairman,
Judicial Board

Judicial Board Searches
Effective immediately, whenever Judicial Board investigators receive permission to search a room or area, the Campus Police will accompany investigators into the room and will assist in control of traffic to and from the room or in the immediate vicinity; will act to prevent verbal or physical abuse, intimidation or interference with Judicial procedures. Campus Police will not participate in the search.

The Dean of Students Office

Student Poem

Both so close — yet . . .

Theirs was one of the heart chosen at different times

The love each had for the other never met, never entwined

Both so close — two, so far

This feeling never shared to the same amount, to the same degree.

Only to hope that some day,
one day
mutual longings would agree.

Both so close —

Choosing never is easy
neither is it very clear
I'll let him go,
decide for himself what is most dear

— two, so far.

vlg

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

Commentary

By DONNA STEPHENS

Is the United States' Power declining abroad? After having forty-nine American Hostages kidnapped and held for twenty-five days by the Iranians in the American Embassy in Iran, the American people must feel that since the United States has not acted forcibly that the United Stated power is deteriorating. People are shouting to use militant force, to take harsher action, and to result to war, but do the people realize how disastrous these hasty actions could be?

Of course, it would be unprecedented for any government to support or participate in actions such as kidnapping or blackmailing. Hence, just because the U.S. has not taken stronger action against these crimes does not make our nation weak. Each should try to see the importance of viewing the issue at hand over and over again, diligently and as cautiously as possible until the best option is derived.

Is war our best option? Think about it...not forty-nine lives, but millions upon millions of lives...bloodshed...destruction and total disaster. Is this what we as Americans want? Will war solve the problem? Let us let this be an exercise of International Law to illustrate what real power is derived through peaceful means. Let us as a nation "pursue the situation" as Carter puts it, "with grim determination" and only if the hostages are harmed are we then to accept the harsher of the options.

No, No! The United State's Power has not declined abroad. According to our President, the United States is strongest militantly, politically, economically and in his opinion as well as my own, ethically.

As Carter sees it, "Our country is strong with ourselves." We are not getting weaker, but we as a nation, unified, are getting stronger.

Is strength or power a question of dominance? Dominance is not the answer to strength. Dominance is the killer. A nation will only lose its power when dominance becomes the groundwork by which a government builds its frame. Shall we as a people become architects that use dominance as our tool? No, we as Americans, proud Americans, should become architects that build our foundations with sturdier "Peaces."

MCC

GOOD LUCK ON EXAMS!!!

Editor's Turn

As Christmas draws near, a lot of us will be heading downtown in whatever spare time we can find to buy a few of those Christmas presents. What would we do if the merchants refused to take checks from Longwood College students?

According to a recent survey done by members of the Legislative Board, there is an increase in bad checks being passed to local merchants by students here. There are also a lot of students who never even try to balance their accounts and then there are others who do not know how.

The Student Government Association hoped to help these students at their Bad Check Seminar last week. Students working on this seminar spent a lot of time in preparation for it. Banners were put up in the Dining Hall and Flyers tacked up all over campus publicizing it, but no one seemed to care to show up. Well, almost no one! Dr. Cristo had been invited to speak at the seminar. He showed up and at 7 p.m. when the seminar was to start, four people were there including him. So — it was cancelled. A few people came in after 7 p.m., but it was too late then.

The SGA had also gone to a lot of trouble to run off handouts on "How to keep a healthy bank account." It included five easy steps to balance your check book. It also included five other steps to follow if your balance does not correspond with the bank balance: 1) Check your subtraction-addition carefully, 2) Make sure you have all fees and accounted for your outstanding checks, 3) Cry and ask your roommate for help, 4) Go to your bank, and 5) Keep an accurate ledger.

The step number three is what a lot of students are going to do when local merchants refuse to take student checks. Some merchants have already gone to the policy of making students have check cashing cards from their particular store.

Its a problem that needs to be delt with. The SGA has tried. It's all up to the students, now!

Breil, McCombs Attend Foundation Courses

By DONNA STEPHENS
Two Longwood Professors were selected to attend the National Science Foundation Chantauqua-Type Short Courses in Maryland. The two participants were Dr. David A. Breil who teaches morphology, Ecology and Botany; and Dr. Freda S. McCombs who teaches elementary science and Methods at Longwood.

According to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the NSF Chantauqua-Type Short Courses are an annual series of forums throughout the U.S. in which scholars at the frontiers of various sciences meet with the undergraduate college teachers of science intensively for four days, two days in the fall and two days in the spring. Between this period, participants are to work on an interim project relating to the course.

Dr. David A. Breil who attended the University of Massachusetts and Florida State University graduating with a B.S. degree in Geology and a M.A. and Ph.D. in Botany, was awarded a grant from NSF to attend the course on the Reproductive Biology of the Flowering Plants. The course was taught by the author of The story of Pollination Dr. Bastiaan J.D. Meeuse of the Department of Botany at the University of Washington.

In reference to Dr. Meeuses assessment of the course, the objective was to aid the participants in seeing the various aspects of Pollination. Attention was given to Pollination, the pollinators, and the latter's behavioral and physiological characteristics. There were eighteen participants from the Eastern Coastal Regions other than Dr. Breil.

The other Longwood Faculty participant was Dr. Freda S. McCombs who attended Salem College and the University of North Carolina graduating with a B.S. degree in Biology and Chemistry, and Ed. D. degree in Science Education.

Dr. McCombs attended the course on Energy and Society-Concepts and Teaching Strategies. The course was taught by two professor Dr.

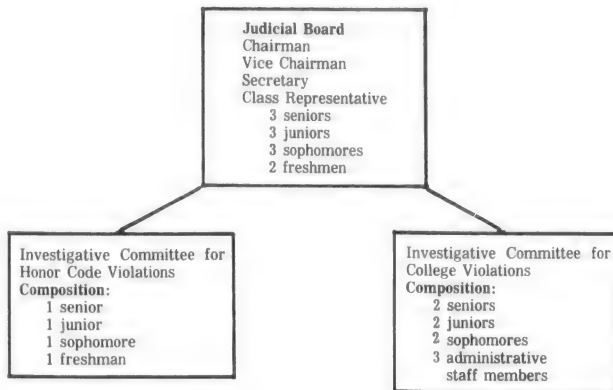

Michael Fiasca of the School of Education and Dr. George Isongas of the Department of Engineering and Applied Science at Portland State University.

According to these two men, the purpose of the course was to explore the energy problem. The course examined the specifics of U.S. and World energy requirements and usage, energy resources, energy conservation, technologies, policies, and future energy scenarios. There were twenty-four participants also from the Eastern Coastal Region.

After reading the course, both professors make comments about their experience. Dr. Breil said, "Their courses are extremely valuable for science teachers because the effect of the courses is very similar to recertification in Reaching. They serve as an updating or renewing process."

Dr. McCombs remarked, "The thing that was unique about the course I took was that this was the first time the National science Foundation had sponsored an education-oriented course. It was excellent!"

New Judicial Board Policy

(Editor's Note: The following Judicial Board policy has been approved on a trial basis for one year beginning January 1, 1980. All students will receive copies to insert in their handbook next semester. According to Dean Mary A. Heintz this policy has been restructured into handbook form from the proposal submitted.)

Investigative committee's sole responsibility is to investigate and present evidence in reported violations of the Honor Code and College Regulations.

Honor Code Committee: (lying, cheating, plagiarism, stealing) Students shall report violations of the Honor Code to the coordinator of the Investigative Committee for Honor Code Violations.

College Violations Committee: (vandalism, physical abuse, threats, descriptive conduct, interference with judicial procedures, repeated and/or serious violations of college regulations, narcotics) Violations will be reported to the coordinator of the College Violations Investigative Committee.

Elections

1. The Chairman, Vice Chairman and Secretary of Judicial Board shall be elected by the student body during major-minor elections.
2. The Judicial Board class representatives and class representatives on the investigative committees shall be elected by the classes during class elections.
3. Administrative staff members will be appointed by the President to serve on the investigative committee for College Violations of Judicial Board.
4. The investigative committees shall select one member to serve as coordinator for the respective committee.

Responsibilities

Judicial Board:

1. To hear all Judicial violations of the Honor Code and college regulations.
2. To render a decision on the innocence or guilt of the accused student.
3. To recommend a penalty in cases where a determination of guilt has been made.
4. To follow the procedures for judicial hearings as prescribed by college policy and published in the Handbook for Students.
5. To send representatives of the Judicial Board to Appeal Committee hearings to present the case to the committee. These representatives will be the Chairman and Vice Chairman except when alternates have been in charge of the hearing.
6. To notify the student as to the findings of the Judicial Board. This is done by the chairman and an adviser.

Investigative Committees:

1. To select a coordinator for the committee.
2. To participate in training programs for investigators.
3. To assign, through the coordinator and on a rotating basis, two investigators to investigate each case reported.
4. To determine whether or not a case should be heard by Judicial Board. This step is carried out by the two investigators on a particular case in consultation with a Judicial Board adviser, if necessary.
5. To present all evidence from the preliminary investigation to Judicial Board during the hearing as witnesses for Judicial Board.
6. To determine what witnesses should be called by Judicial Board from information gathered during the preliminary investigation and notify Judicial Board as to their names and kind of testimony each has to present. Judicial Board will call these witnesses to the hearing.
7. To present all evidence from the preliminary investigation and Judicial Board hearing to the Appeal committee should an appeal hearing be scheduled.
8. Members of the investigative committees do not remain in the hearing room during deliberations nor vote as Judicial Board members.

Searches

When investigators are called to investigate a case which involves a search, one of the two investigators shall call the President for permission to search. One administrative staff member appointed by the President and the Campus Police shall be notified if permission to search is granted. Generally, narcotics cases will require two representatives from the Investigative Committee for College Violations, an administrative staff member and two Campus Police to be present during a search. The two investigators conduct the search while the other persons control the traffic to and from the room or rooms and prevent harassment, intimidation or interference during the search. At times, it may be necessary to regulate traffic or conduct in the hall. There may be searches for other violations which will require the presence of all representatives. This would be determined by the President or his representative when permission to search is given.

Yule Concert Presented By Singers

By SHARON JANOVICH
"Silent Night, Holy Night, All is calm, All is bright" . . . the aura of this Christmas melody reigned supreme in this year's Christmas Choral Concert. The Melodic voices of the Camerata Singers and the Concert Choir floated through the Farmville Baptist Church on December 2, at 7:30 p.m.

The program was initiated by the Camerata Singers performing the "Fanfare For Christmas," by Ron Nelson, "O Magnum Mysterium," by Vittoria and "Sing Noel": a 15th century French carol.

The Concert Choir followed with "The Angels and the Shepherds" by Kodaly, "So Deep" and "Fallen Leaves" by Persichetti; with Lola Shartzter on flute and Kristin Holberg on xylophone. The Persichetti pieces were followed by "Dancing Day" by John Rutter.

The Camerata Singers again appeared performing "The Twelve Days of Christmas," "There is No Rose of Such Virtue" by John Jonbert and "Christmas Day" by Gustav Holst. The Concert Choir then filed out in the aisles to initiate the Congregational Carol, Sing and Candlelighting, upon which "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night" was sung.

The Congregational Sing was followed by the Cameratas performance of "E'en So Lord Jesus, Quickly Come" by Paul Manz.

GRADUATION ANNOUNCEMENTS

MAY BE ORDERED
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 5
10-5, in The Rotunda

DECEMBER SCHEDULE

OFFICE OF CAREER PLANNING AND PLACEMENT SEMINARS— (December Graduates, Seniors and Interested Students)

Tuesday, December 4 — Job-Search Strategies, 12:45 in Hiner, Room 341. A video tape will be shown followed by discussion, questions and answers.

Tuesday, December 11 — Writing Resumes, Letters, and Preparing for Interviews, 12:45 in West Ruffner, Room 120.

EMPLOYER RECRUITING

Wednesday, December 5 — Roanoke County Schools
Thursday, December 6 — York County Schools; Hopewell City Schools; Henrico County Schools.

Sign up in Office of Career Planning and Placement. Interviews will be held in Placement area — 2nd Floor South Ruffner.

Gymnast Show Strength In Meet

The Longwood gymnasts had a strong performance Saturday night against Western Carolina University winning the meet 123.2-101.9.

Freshman Sharon Pillow was first in the All Around competition with a score of 33.5. Longwood also captured second and third places in All Around. Kathy Idelson was second with a 32.3 and Shelia Gould had a 28.6 for third.

Pillow had the highest score of the meet with an 8.9 in vaulting. She also was first in bars (8.5) and floor (8.3) and third on beam (7.8).

Idelson was first on the beam (8.2), second on bars (8.2) and floor (8.2).

Margie Fanton was second in vaulting (8.05), and third in beam (7.8) and floor (7.95).

Shelia Gould was second in beam with a 7.9.

Some of the East Coast's finest gymnasts will be on hand Saturday afternoon in French Gymnasium when the Lady Lancer gymnastics team hosts a United States Gymnastics Federation meet for advanced and private club gymnasts in Virginia and Maryland.

The competition, which gets underway at 2:00, is designed for competitors aged 8-20. Among the competing teams will be Gymnastics Inc. (Hampton), Olympiad (Richmond), the Royal T's (Crofton, Maryland) and the Rebounders (Timonium, Maryland).

Spectators will be treated to performances by some of the country's finest gymnasts. Top individual talents include: Francie Eisenbrandt, 13, of the Rebounders who won first place in all-around in the German (Continued from Page 8)

Kathy Idelson goes from a two leg hand stand into a bent leg straddle down on the beam.

Photo by Hoke Currie

Grapplers Face Tough Opponents

By SPORTS INFORMATION and FRANK CREASEY

Longwood's young and inexperienced wrestlers ran into some stiff competition in the James Madison Takedown Tournament in Harrisonburg Saturday, Nov. 17, but coach Nelson Neal was pleased with his team's performance despite the fact that no Lancer placed among the top four in any weight class.

Mark Moreno (Norfolk) and Garry Ferris (Moneta) each won one match in the 142-pound class, but were the only Lancers to take a victory. The tournament, strictly an individual competition, featured wrestling with takedowns only and no grappling on the mat. Longwood wrestlers competed against foes from big schools like James Madison, Towson State, George Washington and Richmond.

"Considering the competition, I felt really good about our performance," said Neal. "I could see a big improvement over last year at this time. We still have several wrestlers who are new to the sport, but even some of them looked good at James Madison."

Ten Lancers competed in the unofficial tourney, which had a field of 11 teams and 139 wrestlers.

The Longwood wrestling team started its season on a disappointing note last Thursday. In a triangular match, the Lancers were shut out by the University of Richmond to the tune of 56-0, and were also soundly defeated by Lynchburg 53-3.

Terry Howell provided Longwood's only score by decisioning his Lynchburg opponent. Experience proved to be the key factor in both losses, as the Lancers used a freshman-studded lineup in both matches.

Now 0-2 in duals, the Longwood grapplers take to the mats again on Wednesday with a home match against Washington & Lee. Then on Friday the Lancers host archival Hampden-Sydney.

Name	Wt. class	Ht.	Wt.	Class
Tom Bolling	190	6'	195	So.
Bob Carlin	177	6'1"	181	So.
Roy Carswell	150	5'7"	150	So.
Kurt Coffield	134	5'8"	140	So.
Dave Crute	HWT	5'11"	220	Jr.
Garry Ferris	142	5'7 1/2"	150	Jr.
Terry Howell	158-167	5'10"	170	Jr.
Aubrey Huffman	150	5'9"	160	So.
Bobby Hulsey	127	5'8"	130	Jr.
Bill Klink	177-190	5'9"	195	So.
Chuck Meek	134-142	5'9 1/2"	146	Fr.
Mike Mercil	150	6'	160	Jr.
Mark Moreno	142	5'9"	148	So.
Tim Myers	129-134	5'7"	135	Fr.
Ed Russell	HWT	5'9 1/2"	214	Fr.
Steve Shennett	150-158	5'9 1/2"	165	Fr.
Bill Stafford	HWT	6'4"	240	Fr.

Cook, Pillow Top Players

By CHUCK COLE

Senior co-captain Meg Cook (Salem), who led the Longwood women's volleyball team to a fourth place finish in the VAAW State Division III volleyball tournament November 9-10, has been chosen as the Longwood College Player of the Week of November 19.

Cook, who made the Division III All-Tournament team along with fellow co-captain Cindy Thomas (Buchanan), received strong praise from coach Carolyn Callaway.

"Meg had a great tournament," said Callaway, "but she was at her best in our quarter-final game with Lynchburg. We were trailing 10-14 after losing the first game, but thanks to Meg's leadership and skill we won 16-14 and went on to beat Lynchburg 15-0 in the next game and win the match."

"Meg kept the team morale up and was determined to play the best she has played all year—and she did," the coach continued. "In the four matches we won at the tournament, Meg served a total of 17 points. When she was at the net, Meg put away (points) two out of every three balls she got."

A four-year starter at Longwood, Cook had a star-studded athletic career at Andrew Lewis High School. Captain of the school's volleyball and basketball teams, Meg was named All-District in Basketball and team MVP in volleyball. She also played on the state champion softball team in 1977.

The senior physical education major was also named as Longwood's Player of the Week last season for her exploits on the volleyball court.

Meg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Cook of Salem. Freshman Sharon Pillow (Richmond), who led the Longwood gymnastics team to a second place finish in the Georgia College Invitational November 1, has been chosen as the Longwood College Player of the Week of November 26.

Pillow, competing in her first meet as a collegian, took first place in the balance beam and uneven bars with scores of 8.55 and 7.75, respectively. Her combined score of 31.8 also earned the all-around title for the meet.

Pillow received strong praise from coach Ruth Budd.

"Although Sharon is not new to competition, this was her first collegiate meet," said Budd. "Conditions in Georgia were very chaotic, with a tremendous amount of noise during the meet. Sharon did a super job of maintaining her composure, especially on the beam where concentration is so crucial."

The talented gymnast brings a wealth of experience to the Longwood squad. Pillow competed for the John Randolph Tucker High School gymnastics team in her freshman and sophomore years at the school. She was named Most Valuable Gymnast both years and was the district champion and regional runner-up in her sophomore year.

She also competed for the Richmond Olympiad, placing sixth in all-around in the United States Gymnastics Federation state meet in her senior year. She also qualified for the USGF Regionals and Eastern Nationals in her senior year.

Pillow is a Physical Education major who enjoys swimming and diving in addition to gymnastics. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Pillow of Richmond.

Leonard, Fettrow

Share Weekly Honor

A pair of Floridians, senior guard Shack Leonard (Riviera Beach) and junior guard Brenda Fettrow (Indian Harbor Beach) have been named as co-winners of the Longwood College Player of the Week honor for their performances in leading their respective teams to victory last week.

Leonard, a 6-2 standout, was the catalyst as Longwood defeated Gallaudet and Stony Brook, rated fifth in the East among Division III teams, to win the Longwood Invitational Classic I championship November 24. The Lancer co-captain, who was selected as tournament MVP for his scoring and steady play in running the Lancer offense, scored 15 points in Longwood's 82-61 triumph over Shenandoah Tuesday night.

An all-around performer, Leonard has been a key factor in Longwood's 4-0 start with his passing, scoring, defending and playmaking.

Fettrow, a co-captain with the Lady Lancers the last two seasons, turned in a magnificent showing in Longwood's triumph over Hampton Institute November 27. She scored 19 points, hitting 9 of 17 shots from the floor, grabbed nine rebounds, handed out five assists and had five steals as Longwood took a 68-52 victory.

In much the same manner as Leonard, Fettrow has helped Longwood's women's team get off to a 3-1 start. Lady Lancer (Continued on Page 8)

Dance Workshop Planned

By DEBI KINZEL

Have you ever had the urge to try and "disco," but were a little shy? How about "Swing your partner and promenade?" These are the types of dancing that are going to be taught Sunday, December 9, 1979, from 1:00-3:30 in French gym, along with a touch of aerobic dancing.

The workshop is open to the Farmville community, as well as to Longwood students and faculty.

There will be a special appearance by the Southside Squares, which is the local square dancing association. The club is six years old with membership of 28 couples. They will be demonstrating "modern-western" square dancing. The disco instructor is Kim Furbee, a senior Physical Education major with a strong background in ballet, tap and jazz as well as disco. The international-folk instructor is Debbie Bloodworth, a graduate-assistant at James Madison University, assistant coach for field hockey and lacrosse, who specializes in the area of folk.

It will be a fun-filled two and a half hour period so why not "let yourself go" and give it a try. The deadline for turning the completed registration forms is Wednesday, December 5.

Sports At Home

Women's Basketball
Dec. 5 Charleston (WV) 7:30 p.m.

Wrestling
Dec. 5 Washington and Lee 7 p.m.

Gymnastics
Dec. 8 U.S. Gymnastics 2 p.m.
Federation Meet

POSTERS

Bring your favorite snapshot, portrait or any other picture and have it made into a poster.

ROBERT T. FORE PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

By CHUCK COLE

Coach Ron Bash's basketball team is currently undefeated after four games. Included in their victories is the championship of the Longwood Invitational Classic I, with a 61-53 victory over Division III powerhouse Stony Brook.

The Lancers are averaging 84.5 points per game while allowing the opponent only 66.5 points per game, an eighteen point differential.

Junior Kenny Ford is leading all Lancer scorers with a 16.5 ppg. average. He is followed by freshman Joe Remar with a 15.3 ppg. average, and senior Shack Leonard with an 11.3 ppg. average.

In the Longwood Classic, Joe Remar and Kenny Ford were named to the All-Tournament Team while Shack Leonard was named Most Valuable Player of the Tournament, the first tournament hosted by a male athletic team at Longwood.

Longwood's victories include a 107-70 thrashing of Gallaudet, a 61-53 victory over Stony Brook, an 82-61 victory over Shenandoah College on the road, and an 88-74 victory over intra-state rival Mary Washington.

Gallaudet's defeat gave Coach Ron Bash his 100th career win.

Longwood's victory over Mary Washington was marred by 65 turnovers, including 42 by our Lancers. The Lancers did shoot 60 per cent from the floor and 71 per cent from the line in the game in which the referees stole the show with their whistle-blowing antics. Kenny Ford and Joe Remar had 22 points each.

The Lancers hosted St. Paul's in French Gym on Monday night. They travel to Emory & Henry on Tuesday, then play Bridgewater on the road on Saturday night, wrapping up their first semester schedule.

Brenda Fettrow dribbles between Norfolk State opponents.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Lady Lancers Take Two At Home

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Cagers won twice at home this week against Division II opponents, with excellent ball control and defense.

Last Tuesday night against Hampton, the Lady Lancers took a 68-52 decision. Brenda Fettrow led the offense with 19 points. Freshman Patty Lia came off the bench in the second half to pump in six for six field goals for 12 points.

Senior Maryjane Smith, despite a bout with the flu, pulled down eight rebounds and had nine points.

The Lancers shot 50 per cent from the floor and 57 per cent from the charity stripe.

On Thursday night the Lancers battled Norfolk State for a 69-65 victory. Sparked by the hot hand of Maryjane Smith, who sank a field goal and a free throw to break the tie and put the Lancers ahead in the final seconds of the game.

Smith had 28 points, the highest individual effort at Longwood. Since Sue Rama scored 36 points, the highest against Radford in the 1977-78 season. She put extremely good moves on the defense to take the ball to the basket.

Also in double figures was freshman Cindy Eckel with 11. Fettrow had seven rebounds. The Lancers shot 52 per cent from the floor and 62 per cent from the line.

The Spartanettes biggest problem was their fouls. They had twice as many as the Lancers, including one technical for a player not reporting in.

The Lady Lancers are now 3-1.

Longwood Vs. Mary Washington

	FG	FT	R	P	PF	TP
Sixsmith	0	0	1	0	0	0
Remar	9	4	2	0	22
Leonard	3	2	8	3	8
Goyensh	0	2	1	1	2
Turner	0	2	1	2	2
Jenkins	0	0	1	0	0
Ford	6	10	6	3	22
Williams	1	0	2	1	3
Alston	1	1	0	1	3
Bracey	0	0	1	2	0
Newton	0	2	0	3	2
Johnson	3	4	9	7	12
Orr	3	2	8	1	8
Willis	0	0	2	2	0
Meyer	1	3	1	2	3
Totals	27	34	50	24	88

Longwood Vs. Norfolk State

	FG	FT	R	P	PF	TP
Murray	1	2	6	3	4
Eckel	5	1	1	0	11
Fettrow	4	8	7	1	8
Grimm	1	0	0	0	2
Lia	0	0	0	0	0
Pullen	3	0	1	0	6
Hungate	0	0	4	1	0
Smith	9	10	3	3	28
Gates	4	2	4	3	8
Naughton	0	2	0	0	2

JV Cagers 2-1

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

After a 76-70 loss to Virginia last Tuesday, Lancer JV Cagers came back to win at home 74-67 against Richard Bland Junior College.

It was a tight game ending in a 58-58 tie after the regulation period. The only time the Lancers were down was by eight in the first half.

James Burton had 21 points and Walter Taylor had 15 points to lead the Lancer offense. Pete Hofrichter had 13 rebounds.

Defensively, the Lancers had to control Richard Bland's Ron Harris who averages 30 points per game. They held him to 21 points.

The JV record is now 2-1.

Jue Remar takes the ball to the loop.

Photo by Hoke Currie

Riders Bring Home Ribbons

On November 30 the Longwood Intercollegiate Riding Team traveled to Sweet Briar College for their fifth show of the season. Co-hosts for the show were Sweet Briar and Hampden-Sydney. The judge was Mr. Scott Keller of Alexander. Sixteen colleges participated in the show.

In Section A of Novice Horsemanship on the Flat, Kathy Redmon won a 5th place ribbon. Shannon Chambers placed 6th in Section B of the same division.

Novice Horsemanship over Fences, Section A, brought Kathy Chase a 3rd place and Kathy Redmon a 5th place. Shannon Chambers placed 5th in Section B of the same division.

Mary Ball won 6th place in Section A of Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter. In Section B of the same division Erika Christea won a 3rd place ribbon.

By placing 2nd in Section B of Beginner Walk, Trot, Canter, Janet Young qualified for the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter Division.

The next show is February 15 at the Barracks in Charlottesville.

Several weeks ago Longwood accepted the donation of a horse. Tea for Two is a chestnut Thoroughbred mare with lots of personality. "Tiffany" shows a lot of promise for future showing, as well as use for team practice.

Erika Cristea practices jumping.

Photo by Paula Johnson

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

PRESENTS

"LADIES NIGHT"

AT THE RED LION

Tonight and every Tuesday.

9 TO 12

GUYS

$1.00

LADIES FREE

UNTIL 10:00, then 50¢

—DRIVERS LICENSE REQUIRED—

Prince Gardner
"BANKIT" checkbook/credit card case for men and women

Martin

THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon. Thur. 11:10 PM, Fri. & Sat. 11:10 PM
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

SCHEDULE OF EXAMINATIONS
First Semester, 1979-80 Session

Examination Day and Date	Morning 9:00-12:00	Afternoon 2:00-5:00	Evening 7:00-10:00
Friday December 14	English 100 (All sections and 4:00 Monday)	8:00 Monday	9:25 Tuesday or 8:00 Tuesday*
Saturday December 15	10:50 Tuesday	12:00 Monday	4:50 Tuesday* or 11:00 Monday*
Monday December 17	8:00 Tuesday	2:30 Monday	4:50 Tuesday or 3:25 Tuesday*
Tuesday December 18	1:30 Monday	9:00 Monday	9:25 Tuesday* or 10:00 Monday*
Wednesday December 19	10:00 Monday	3:25 Tuesday	2:00 Tuesday* or 9:00 Monday*
Thursday December 20	11:00 Monday	2:00 Tuesday

Christmas Gifts & Decorations,
Handmade Crafts, Much More...

HANDPAINTED SKIRTS & VISORS BY KIM.
STAGHORN FERNS MOUNTED ON
WOOD. CORN HUSK DOLLS BY PEGGY
KILGORE.

CURIOSITY SHOPPE

FARMVILLE SHOPPING CENTER 392-4008

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

TWO-WAY WINTER JACKETS

It's a Ski Jacket
Or a Winter Vest

REG. $39.95 NOW $31.95

Shop and Save at the JEANS SHACK for all your jeanswear needs or for perfect gift ideas.

DENIMS OR CORDS

- ADULT REG. STRAIGHT
LEG, BELL AND BOOT $12.50
- STUDENT STRAIGHT
LEG & BOOT $11.50
- KIDS SIZES
8 TO 14 $10.50
- LITTLE KIDS
SIZES 0-7 $10.00

Plus flannel shirts, sweaters, Levi accessories, wallets, belts, buckles, hats, socks, etc.

JEANS SHACK

USE OUR SOUTHGATE ASK ABOUT
LAY A WAY PLAN SHOPPING CENTER GIFT CERTIFICATES
PHONE 392-4870

THE
HAIR SHAFT

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCANTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM 8 PM
Wed. - Fri. 9 AM 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Leonard, Fettrow

(Continued from Page 6)

coach Carolyn Hodges felt Fettrow's play against Hampton was outstanding.

A graduate of Red Land High School, Etters, Pennsylvania, Fettrow has been a starter with the Lady Lancers for three years. Last season, she averaged 12.8 points and 6 rebounds while leading the team in steals and assists.

Leonard, who graduated from Palm Beach Gardens High School and Palm Beach Junior College before coming to Longwood last season, was chosen as one of three Lancer tri-captains for the second year. Called by head coach Ron Bash as "the most complete player" on the team and "the most dedicated" player he has ever coached, Shack averaged 16.1 points and handed out 119 assists last season as Longwood went 19-8.

Longwood coaches consider Leonard to be a bonafide All-America candidate among guards in NCAA Division III.

Gymnasts

(Continued from Page 6)

International Meet; Joanie Fisher, 15, of the Royal T's, who was a balance beam finalist in the USGF sectionals and is a national competitor; Tami Elliott (Olympiad) a Junior National competitor and Jan Herndon (Gymnastics Inc.) a Virginia State Champion and national competitor.

The sanctioned meet will serve as a qualifier for the Virginia State Meet. Longwood team members, who compete as collegians in AIAW, are not eligible for the USGF private club competition.

Admission to the meet is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. Longwood students and faculty will be admitted free with identification card.

LIBRARY HOURS DURING EXAM WEEK

December 13 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 14 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 15 - 8:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
December 16 - 2:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 17 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 18 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 19 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 20 - 7:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Pino's
PIZZA AND RESTAURANT

SPECIAL

BAKED MANCOTTI (Stuffed w/cheese)
BAKED CANNELLONI (Stuffed w/meat)

REG. $3.00 NOW ONLY $2.25

— WITH THIS COUPON —
— GOOD THRU DECEMBER 9 —

LONGWOOD ITEMS

CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

Longwood
College Night
Monday Tuesday Wednesday
5-9

Show us your Longwood Student I.D. card
and get $2.00 off any large or medium pizza.
(Pitchers of your favorite beverage available)

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1979

NO. 12

Report To Be Released Monday

Willett Denies Accusations

By MELODY CRAWLEY

President Henry I. Willett Jr. has denied charges that he has either created a "climate of fear" among his staff and faculty or failed to keep the board of visitors properly informed on college matters.

Willett stated Friday that inducing fear on the faculty is "not my style." He also said that he challenged anyone to cite an example in which he had done that. He also said that his policy with the Board of Visitors was one of "no surprises."

Dr. Douglas M. Young, associate professor of speech and dramatic arts, and Dr. Charles W. Sydnor, Jr., associate professor of history, have both publicly criticized Willett in Richmond papers the past week.

Dr. Sydnor is quoted as saying that several faculty members "are fearful that there will be repercussions against them as a result of what they told the management team." Other faculty members have stated that they feel a distinct lack of freedom on campus."

All of the allegations stem from a recent team of management investigators who have for the past month probed deep into Longwood's managing affairs. The team came to Longwood upon Willett's special request of Governor John N. Dalton. Governor Dalton has offered this team to all state agencies, Longwood being the first to receive it.

Team members presented a 100 page rough draft of the report to Willett and his staff in a closed meeting on Thursday. Dr. John McCluskey, a representative of the secretary of education was also present at this meeting. Willett said that he did not sense anything comparable to the recent news reports, adding that he could not discuss the contents of the report.

He has five days to develop his report in the form of a written response to what was revealed Thursday. His report will be combined with the management teams and presented in a public meeting of the Board of Visitors, December 17.

Reports have also charged Willett with trying to "debrief" any faculty member or administration who talked to the Dalton investigators. He also denied this allegation saying, "I have not talked to anyone during any time except those people who came to me."

All appointments with the team were made through the office of the vice president of administration, Dr. William J. Peele. The team was given an organizational chart of the college from which they picked some people to talk to. Other faculty, staff, and students volunteered to talk to the team. Willett added that Dr.

Peele had talked to all members of the administrative staff trying to evaluate the process the team had used, but they had only discussed the procedures of the team.

Three specific questionable areas cited in recent Richmond paper articles were the Campus School, the hiring of Dean of the College, Carolyn Wells; and the need of a faculty senate.

A Richmond-Times Dispatch article reported that management team investigations had raised questions "about the (Continued on Page 8)

Theatre Elements Create Illusion

By WILLIAM C. WOODS

The set was the star of the Longwood Players' production of Bertolt Brecht's "The Good Woman of Setzuan" last week—no small praise, since planks and paint won out over good acting and direction. No error, either: Brecht always insisted that each element of theater speak strongly enough to defeat its own power of illusion.

Looking like a vast cubist collage or a magic junkyard, Richard Gamble's props pushed themselves even more urgently into the audience than the actors did, at times, shuddering under the invasion of a very literal deus ex machina, others fading to reveal the presence of a Chinese band, the mouth of sewer, or the cloudy home of the gods.

Against this perfect background, an able cast spun Brecht's epic parable of good and evil, concepts that sound less ponderous when expressed as the Chinese "yin and yang," whose symbol appropriately crowned the playbill scroll handed each theatergoer.

(This too provided—unwittingly?—a Brechtian interference with illusion, since the audience on Thursday night enjoyed rolling the rubber bands on their scrolls back and forth, filling the theater with a noise like crickets. Less welcome was the piglike behavior of a few young men seated at center rear, who seem to have mistaken the play for "Animal House.")

While all the performances were secure, special mention must be made of George Hughes' energetic Wong the water-carrier; Lisa Hughes' cranky Mrs. Shin; and Marie Douillard's graceful reading of the two lead roles—Shen Te and Shui Ta. Patton Lockwood's direction kept the stage in ferment, and his cast seemed always on key even when a few went out of control. (Brecht is well suited for student actors since even their errors can be enlisted in the service of transcending the real.)

The uniting of two roles in one actor recalls a convention of the Elizabethan stage, a source for Brecht's theory of "epic theater." First explored by the playwright in the 1920's as a reaction to Berlin expressionism, the form enjoyed a position of dominance by mid-century, though its political thrust made its author an exile twice over.

A marxist who fled from the Nazis to California in the early 40's, he had to flee the house Un-American Activities Committee after World War II, ending up a respected figure in East German theater until his death in 1956.

The fundamental tenet of epic theater is the destruction of dramatic illusion. By disrupting the audience's emotional involvement with the characters, Brecht hoped to compel its objective attention to the social issues explored in his plays. Thus, paradoxically, the approach to proletarian theater was made via experimental stagecraft.

But time has robbed Brecht's work of its experimental nature simply by making its devices familiar. No contemporary audience is surprised at being addressed from the stage, transfixed by mass media, or distanced from the action by commentary from the actors themselves.

That being so, the audience to the Players' production was able to concentrate on "The Good Woman's" message (be good), and to enjoy the performers' evident enjoyment of the play. A minor caveat: almost none of the singing was strong enough to rise above the music, even when the music was weak. That aside, Longwood College audiences were treated to a handsome production of a classic of the 20th century stage.

Pro American Students Rally

By CHUCK COLE

Campus tension has been mounting since the Iranian crisis began some five weeks ago. It culminated in a Pro-American Rally which was held in Her field on Monday night, December 3rd.

The Rally, under the direction of student leader Hugh Gallagher, attracted about 250 students, faculty, and administration of the college. The gathering was designed to show support for the Americans being held hostage in the American Embassy in Tehran, Iran.

The featured speakers of the rally were Drs. Cristo and Berkis. Dr. Cristo, a professor of economics, spoke to the crowd about the economic impacts of the cut-off of Iranian oil shipments to the United States. Cristo commented that Iranian oil supplies only four per cent of the total United States oil consumption.

"If we can drive three miles less per week, and turn down our thermostats one degree, we won't feel the effect of the cut-off of Iranian oil," explained Dr. Cristo.

"Can we do it," he asked the crowd several times. Each time the crowd responded, "Yes," offering their support and aid in the crisis.

Dr. Berkis, a former P.O.W. in World War II, gave a crowd-stirring talk on international law and the benefits that Iranian students enjoy in this country. Berkis also suggested that America "Blow Iran into the seventh century," to the delights and screams of the anti-Iranian crowd.

Several signs were carried by supporters in the crowd. Some suggested that the U.S. "Nuke-um til they glow". Most suggested some type of military intervention or embargo that should be imposed on the Iranians.

Hugh Gallagher asked everyone to show their support for the hostages by wearing a white armband. Many students, faculty, and administration can be seen around campus wearing the bands.

The crowd also joined in singing the National Anthem.

One person at the rally burned the Ayatollah Khomeini in effigy.

Dr. Berkis speaks to students who gathered at the rally.

Photo by Chuck Cole

Elves Spread Christmas Spirit

By KAREN PARKER

It is hard to believe Christmas is just around the corner, but if you were in the Gold Room December 6, you could have enjoyed a little touch of Christmas. Freshman Commission began with a skit performed by the elves to remind us of the real meaning of Christmas. One highlight was when Nick Cucci portraying Santa's elf complains "Who's making toys for Me?" Santa then reminds all of us that the importance of Christmas is not what we receive but the joy we give to others.

Following the elves was Tafari who performed a few of the well known Christmas carols and also invited the audience to sing along. The evening was completed by the unveiling of Senior Madonna 1979, Cindy Moss and Tafari led the audience in "Hark The Herald Angels Sing." This touch of Christmas brightened the day of all who attended wishing everyone "Good luck on exams."

After the skits, if you were in your room feverously studying when you would have sworn you were hearing bells jingle—do not worry, you were not delirious. Because the elves were searching Longwood's campus in the annual Door Decorating contest.

The elves of 1979 would like to congratulate Joy Pague, Donna Cox, Jeri Griffin and Donna McMullen in 834 and 863 Frazer for their winning decorations. Also they would like to thank all who participated in the contest and wish a "Merry Christmas to all."

Photo by Melody Crawley

Nick Cucci portrays the role of Elmer, the Elf in the Freshman Commission skit.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Lund Turns Clock Back To Victorian Age

By BARBARA BAKER

On December 5, Dr. Michael Lund, assistant professor of English at Longwood, presented an interesting talk on "Real Time and Fictional Time: Clocking the Reader in the Long Victorian Novel." This was the second talk presented this semester by a member of the Department of English, Philosophy, and Foreign Language, and was held in the Lower Dining Hall.

Dr. Lund, from Rolla, Missouri, received his BA from Washington College in St. Louis and his MA and PhD degrees from Emory University in Atlanta. Dr. Lund spoke on how the inter-mixing of real time (i.e., the time in which the audience reads the novel) and fictional time (i.e., the time occurring for the characters in the novel) blend to create a powerful effect for the long Victorian novel. The novels, usually by Dickens or Thackeray, were written in installments (usually one per month over a period of a year or two). This installment purchasing of novels caused the audience to become closer to the characters in the novel because they had more time to think of what was occurring in the story between segments and in a sense bringing fictional time nearer to real time. To make the theme clear to his audience, Dr. Lund read a poem entitled: "How The Helpmate Of Bluebeard Made Free With A Door," by Charles W. Carryl in segments throughout his lecture. This helped illustrate to the audience the effects of reading a Victorian novel in installments. The segments were timed with a "real" clock at 8 minute intervals. The seminar was very well attended by students and faculty.

Senior Madonna Selected

By MELODY CRAWLEY

With the celebration of Christmas, there come some very special traditions at Longwood. Beginning with the decorating of the tree, last week displayed these events.

Another such event is the naming of a Madonna from the Senior Class. The Madonna is picked by the seniors and represents a very special honor. She is a person of strong religious faith, humility, and genuine character. She is also one who shows her willingness to help others more than she does herself.

The Class of 1980 held elections for Madonna Wednesday. She was presented at the Freshman Commission skits in a special ceremony, Thursday night.

This year's Madonna is Senior Cindy Moss. Cindy is a math major from Virginia Beach. She is a member of both Pi Mu Epsilon honor fraternity and Lychnos honor society. She also has been a member of Judicial Board, and is chaplain of her sorority, Alpha Sigma Tau. Also active in sports, Cindy has played both Field Hockey and Lacrosse.

Cindy feels extremely honored to be selected by the senior class as this year's Madonna.

Bollinger Named Registrar

From PUBLIC RELATIONS

Sandra A. Bollinger has been named registrar of Longwood College, effective January 2.

A member of the Longwood faculty since 1968, as assistant professor of mathematics, Mrs. Bollinger is a native of Pittsylvania County. She received her bachelor's degree from Longwood in 1964, the Master of Mathematics degree from the University of South Carolina, and is currently continuing research for the Ph.D. degree in Applied Mathematics from the University of Virginia.

Her professional memberships include the National, Virginia, and Piedmont Council of Teachers of Mathematics. She is president elect of the Piedmont Council. She is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi and Delta Kappa Gamma education honoraries.

Mrs. Bollinger was the recipient of two National Science Foundation fellowships for graduate study and, in 1973, was selected to participate in the Summer Institute for Mathematics Teachers at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Pageant Finalists Selected

By CHERYL WILCOX

Who will be the next Miss Longwood? Ten young ladies were selected from a group of 21 in pageant preliminary contests held December 2 and 3 in the Gold Room to compete for the title of Miss Longwood 1980 on March 15. This year's judges for preliminaries were Mrs. Peggy Cave, Mrs. Peggy Golubic, the Rev. Chet Smith and Dr. Paul Jagasich, foreign language professor at Hampden Sydney College. They did an excellent job selecting the ten contestants, Julie Boca, Jane Bruce, Debra Colbert, Linda Hitt, Melanie Hudson, Margie LaReau, Karen Parker, Kathy Redman, JoAnne Segraves and Carolyn Sulley.

All contestants performed excellently in interview, poise and talent competition the judges had a difficult discussion to choose ten contestants from such a lovely and talented group of girls.

Fettrow Heads Orientation

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

On December 3, a run-off election was held between Brenda Fettrow and Cheryl Wilcox to determine who would be the next Chairman of Orientation. Brenda Fettrow will head the orientation of new students next year.

Jan Bates, the Chairman of Elections Committee, says that she had heard about two petitions, to fill the still vacant positions but has not received them yet. Of the two she has heard about, one is for the position of fire Warden and the other is for one of the Investigators. However, two Investigators are needed.

Another election will be held on January 17th for the positions of Fire Warden and Investigators. Representatives will also be voted for that day. The representatives, however, must have been nominated at a class meeting. These nominations will be passed on to Chairman of Elections Committee who will then put them on a ballot and run them in the election.

Craft Collectables Displayed

By LYNNE SWAN

Bedford Gallery in the Bedford Art Building is currently exhibiting CRAFT COLLECTABLES V works by Virginia craftsmen. The exhibition, open through December 14, is a very fine showing of crafts as works of art. On display are pieces of jewelry, ceramics, and various woven articles including shirts, belts and hatbands. Many of these works are for sale. This exhibition is the fifth in a series of CRAFT COLLECTABLES at Longwood. Bedford Gallery is open for visitors Monday through Friday 9-12 and 1-5. On Saturday and Sunday the hours are 2-6.

In January, TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS are coming to Bedford Gallery. This traveling exhibit is sponsored by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS is a show of the work of twenty artists who work in Utah making pictures for twenty different reasons. The artists' styles cover the spectrum from traditional realism to formal exploration. Characteristic of the Utah artists is the fact that they are the ones who are most comfortable working in a relatively small scale, highly personal mode. The art now produced in Utah is acknowledged as important as any in the country. Longwood College and the Art Department are pleased to be hosting TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS.

Christmas Gifts & Decorations,
Handmade Crafts, Much More...

HANDPAINTED SKIRTS & VISORS BY KIM.
STAGHORN FERNS MOUNTED ON
WOOD. CORN HUSK DOLLS BY PEGGY
KILGORE.

CURIOSITY SHOPPE

FARMVILLE SHOPPING CENTER 392-4008

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

Library of Lancaster

Library

Lancaster College

Farmville Virginia

Campus Organizations Add Variety

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

There are a number of religious affiliated organizations on campus. These organizations attempt to get students involved, and they offer a lot of extra curricular activities for students.

The religious organizations on campus are: Baptist Student Union (B.S.U.), Catholic Student Organization, the Canterbury Association, and Wesley. There are also a couple of non-denominational organizations. They are Intervarsity and Inter-Religious Council.

The Farmville Area Baptist Student Union is composed of both Longwood and Hampden-Sydney students joined together in Christ to seek His will for our lives. The B.S.U. belongs to whoever chooses it; some are Baptist and some are not, all are equally welcome. Their meetings are held in the Baptist Student Center. The B.S.U. choir, Tafara, visits other churches and sings, they practice on Monday and Thursday nights. They have a week-day ministry for helping children, it's on Mondays from 4-5 p.m. They have sunrise meetings on Mondays at 8 p.m., and Bible Study on Mondays at 7 p.m. B.S.U. meets at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. They have activities such as dinners and parties. They are having a Christmas party, and the B.S.U. choir is performing "The Clown." They are also starting a ministry with local children, it is at the Project (low cost housing).

The Catholic Student Organization is a fairly new organization and last year it was not active at all. They have a Secretary and a President, but no board. It is open to all students, but mainly to those in St. Theresa's Church. Weekly meetings are held at the Parish at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday nights. On the Monday before Thanksgiving they had Thanksgiving Mass and a pizza dinner afterwards. Sunday night meetings consist of sharing ideas and feelings, and singing. They are very much interested in finding out what students are interested in. Other activities are: going to the nursing home, and having Bible Study on Sunday nights which is presented on tapes, they also have guest speakers and next semester they will be speaking on subjects as education and the space program. They have a Folk group that sings at Sunday Mass at 10:30 a.m. and they welcome any interested students to come to rehearsal at 3:30-5:00 p.m. on Fridays and at 9 a.m. on Sundays before Mass at the Parish house. The Parish house is open for all students to use from 4-9 p.m., Monday through Friday to study.

Wesley (Methodist) have their regular council meetings every other week. They have Prayer Breakfast on Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 7:15 a.m. On Tuesday nights they visit Holly Manor Nursing Home, and on Wed. nights at 6:45 p.m. they hold varying programs. On Thurs. at 6:15 p.m. they have a Bible Study group and at 6:45 p.m. they have Wesley choir practice. Twice a month they visit the Reading Room, and once or twice a month they have a luncheon on Thursday. They also have parties and coffeehouses when it doesn't conflict with a mixer of the Student Union. They have a Sunday School class for the college students, and they have just started this semester working with pediatrics ward at the hospital. They have "Phone-a-Friend" where you call on the elderly people. In January they will be sponsoring a "Rock-a-Thon" to raise money for CROP. They put on different programs for different churches. They are having a Christmas party and they will be pledging money for a particular needy family and will raise money for this family in many ways.

The Canterbury Association is sponsored by the Episcopal church, but is actually non-denominational. They have their regular meetings on Sunday nights and also have a dinner and different programs. These programs vary. Programs are sponsored outside of the Sunday meetings on a fairly regular basis. They also sponsor disco's, basketball games, picnics, talent shows and other fun activities at Longwood and Hampden-Sydney. Everyone is welcome to their meetings and activities.

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship (IVCF) is a worldwide interdenominational student lead group. Its purpose is to establish, assist and encourage groups of students (and faculty members) to witness for the Lord Jesus Christ as God Incarnate. This purpose is achieved through our major objectives of evangelism, discipleship, and missions. Our Inter-Varsity Chapter meets jointly with Hampden-Sydney's chapter. They meet weekly on Wednesday nights at 7:30 p.m.; one month all meetings are held at H-SC in the Parents and Friends Lounge and the next month all meetings are held at Longwood in Lankford. Rides to H-SC are available when the meeting is held there. Besides the weekly meetings which include singing, sharing, prayer and a devotional, they have other socials such as dances, picnics, and dinners together. Officers include one president, two vice-presidents (one from each college), and a secretary and treasurer. The officers at Longwood are: Vice-President, Joy Posey, and Secretary, Janet Leavell.

The Inter-Religious Council at Longwood serves as a coordinating body among the religious groups. Each group on campus has two representatives on the board. The IRC sponsors speakers and programs to promote religious awareness at Longwood. Their goals are to make students aware of the variety of religious groups that are available for them at Longwood, and to coordinate activities sponsored by these different groups.

S-UN sponsored entertainers next semester include Oliver (top, left), Willie Tyler and Lester (top right) and Janice (bottom).

Mixture Of Old And New

By DONNA HASKY

A mixture of old and new faces, as well as a variety of different types of entertainment will highlight the Student Union Calendar for the upcoming second semester. Although some of the acts are only tentative bookings at this time, the lineup exemplifies the Student Union's attempt to bring high quality entertainment to the campus at a low cost.

Beginning the semester's activities will be William Oliver Swofford (better known as "Oliver") in concert on January 17 in the Gold Room of Lankford. Oliver was very warmly received last year at Longwood when he was featured as the opening act for Gene Cotton. His two-million selling recordings of both "Jean" and "Good Morning Starshine" typify the warmth, happiness and quality of his entire performance.

Mixer bands for next semester provide proven quality from three groups who are making repeat performances at Longwood. Featured on January 18 will be "Sugar Creek"—who had people dancing in the aisles during their Saturday Night Alive performance last year. February's dance will star the ever-popular husband and wife combination of Janice and Reggie Saddler—or simply, "Janice." April brings the highly professional sound of "Fat Ammon's Band" back to Longwood to conclude the semester's dancing days.

Other musical entertainment in store is the "Putnam County Pickers," who are scheduled for mid-April. Their prior two concerts at Longwood have been extremely well received and this one should be no exception.

Entertainment of a form other than musical is also included during the semester. For example, February 13 will find Willie Tyler & Lester sharing the stage. A topnotch ventriloquist comedian, Tyler and his "friend" Lester promise an evening of laughs and relaxation.

All of these events, combined with movies, guest speakers and a number of large and small concerts will provide a variety of entertainment opportunities in the upcoming semester. For more information, check the Student Union Calendar and the publicity of each individual event.

Christmas Spirit Of Yesteryear

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Renaissance Dinner presented by the Camerata Singers, December 7, 8, and 9, brought fourteenth century English Christmas traditions to

Concert

Tonight

By CHRIS VOGEL

The fourth Annual Christmas Band Concert will take place tonight at 8 p.m. in the Gold Room. Mr. Darrell Harbaum will conduct most of the program.

Andy Pittard, president of the band, will conduct "Sleigh Ride." Pam McClain, vice-president, will conduct "Lullaby for Band."

Among the pieces being performed are "Christmas Festival"; "Washington Post Suite"; "Slovakian Folk Suite"; "West Side Story Medley"; "America the Beautiful"; and "Trumpeter's Lullaby" featuring Tom Sullivan.

The band, now about fifty members strong, has been working hard all year. They played at Oktoberfest and in addition to this concert, present a Spring Concert.

The Christmas concert is for everyone, young and old. Take a little time tonight and feel the spirit of the holidays conveyed through the band's music.

Blackwell Dining Hall. The dinner each year brings guests from all over to celebrate Christmas in a unique way.

The ceremonies began in the Rotunda balconies with the Singers welcoming the feast guests. Trumpeters announced the commencing of the dinner.

Roving minstrels played and sang for the guests after they were seated. Candelights flickered as the Cameratas sang "Torches, Torches" and the guests cheered as they toasted the Christmas season with wassail and hot wine punch.

John Hudson brought in the boar's head which heralded the serving of courses, and the singing of the traditional English carol, "Boar's Head Carol."

Following the dinner, the Cameratas in medieval costumes entertained with songs, dances and musical instruments. Two favorites included the jester, Joy Pague's rendition of "The Twelve Days of Christmas," and the performance of "The Cushion Dance."

All three evenings were sold out. Everyone attended left with a true feeling of the Christmas of yesteryear.

Camerata Singers portray 14th century minstrels at Christmas Feast. Photo by Debbie Northern

POSTERS

Bring your favorite snapshot, portrait or any other picture and have it made into a poster.

ROBERT T. FORE PHOTOGRAPHY
119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Melody C. Crawley
Paula E. Johnson

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT: Dave Gates
BUSINESS MGR: Wayne Moore
ADVERTISING MGR: Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR: Debbie Northern

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Marsha Booth, Mary Grant, Jodi Gilbert, Joan Crumpton, Mary Lou Travis, Shelley Clore, Chris Vogel, Kim Cave, Thom Hands, Lynne Swan, Sherry Carmon, David Gatts, Thomas Cole, Steven Whitten, Frank Crassy, Barbara Baker, Mike O'Hara, Donna Hasky, Judi Stanley, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Robert Skinner, Jackie Steer, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Cecilia White, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Janet Reynolds, Tony Mason, Kathy Chase.

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by The Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Your Turn

Christmas Wishes

Dear Students:

It's that time of year again—the time for "Season's Greetings" and "Happy New Year" wishes. These familiar words express a feeling of good will, an emphasis on the human values and aspirations which enrich our lives. As we prepare to enter the decade of the Eighties, I challenge you to hold fast to these values as the basis for greater achievement and successful solution of the problems facing us.

My wife and sons join me in wishing each of you safe traveling during the holiday season, a truly joyful Christmas with family and friends, and a New Year filled with opportunities to be seized and challenges to be met. I look forward to seeing you in 1980.

Sincerely,
Henry I. Willett, Jr.

Students Confused

To The Student Body—

In the last few weeks much adverse publicity has been centered on Longwood College. For those students who are not aware of the situation, a management team, established by authority of Governor John Dalton, has been investigating many college policies and procedures.

Recent media accounts hint toward the possibility of mismanagement or inefficiency within certain administrative offices of the college. The Grand Jury report which surfaced prior to fall semester was a primary factor in spurring an investigation. It was also the cause of many student questions—questions which were dealt with unsatisfactorily by the administration in a closed meeting of Legislative Board members only and left completely unaddressed for the remainder of the student body.

The Grand Jury report was the first hint of a shadow over the integrity of Longwood. As the disclosure of the management team's final report approaches, the media has been predicting possible serious repercussions which may stem from the report.

After reading accusations by Dr. Charles Sydnor and reports from Dr. Henry I. Willett, Jr. in the Richmond Times Dispatch and comments by Dr. Douglas Young in the Richmond News

(Continued on Page 5)

Commentaires

The Iran Protest: Two Opinions

By MARK W. SLOAN
"Watch out, Iran — Longwood's after ya now"

Sounds crazy, right? Like that nasty old Khomeini's really gonna be quaking in his sandals when he finds out that Longwood held a rally against him and his country. "Well, that's it, boys," he says, "those Longwoodians are after us — let 'em loose."

The above situation might not be too far-fetched. For Longwood College isn't the only place where protests are being held about this Iranian issue. People are having demonstrations and rallies everywhere, backing up Carter and slashing Khomeini's regime to ribbons. I saw one in Washington over the Thanksgiving break, during which they burned the Khomeini in effigy, shouted slogans and waved signs, and generally had a good time; demonstrations traditionally provide everyone with a chance to go out and give somebody hell, and are enjoyed by all save the protestees.

And Longwood's rally wasn't really any different from anyone else's, which illustrates an interesting point. For the participants in the recent protest weren't made up from any single, particular faction of the student body — everybody was there: from the organizers and speakers of the rally, to a few band members waiting for a six-o'clock class who spontaneously broke into the national anthem (more people would probably have sung along if they had known the words), to those who were going to or from dinner and hung around out of curiosity.

And everybody who attended the rally participated in some way, even if they only clapped a little, or only yelled once or twice. Even the policemen assigned to the area wore the white arm-bands showing support for "the cause." Which shows that nearly everyone held similar views about the whole situation (I say "nearly everyone" because somewhere out there is probably someone who believes the Khomeini is doing the right thing).

This is really unusual for America, where people have traditionally taken up both sides of any issue, for whatever reasons. But at Longwood's rally, which can be taken as typical of most demonstrations, there was no "counter-protest" — no one burned Carter in effigy, or held up signs reading "let 'em stay in the embassy." Everyone is, in this case at least, on America's side of the conflict, and for the first time in quite a while. Ever consider what we'd be doing if we were attending college a dozen years ago? We'd probably be protesting the war in Viet Nam — heaving tear gas canisters back into the police lines, and getting shot at by National Guardsmen. Now some Longwoodians are in the National Guard, and, as I said, the only smoke at the rally was from the effigy of America's adversary.

So, "Watch out, Iran — Longwood's after ya now . . . seriously."

By CHUCK COLE
"Farmville, Va. — Student rally at Longwood College. Students support the hostages in Iran. They also pledge their support to the policies of the Carter administration during the Iranian crisis."

This possibly could have appeared in the Associated Press of United Press International wires on Monday night. Some people have commented that it was mentioned on a national news program on Tuesday morning. Articles have also appeared in The Richmond Times-Dispatch and The Farmville Herald.

Why all this fuss? Students here at Longwood College rallied support for the hostages in the American Embassy in Teheran, Iran.

But, were the students here at Longwood supporting the hostages, or did they put a seal of approval on the death certificates of the Americans being held in the embassy?

Among the chants of the crowd were some unprintable slogans challenging the Iranians to war. Even student leader Hugh Gallager was heard to say, "The only good Iranian is a dead one."

Are these the same students that are supporting the hostages in the embassy and their families? And pledging their support to the President of the United States, an ardent champion of human rights?

The crowd's sincerity on Monday night is to be doubted. Out of a crowd of 250 students, maybe 50 were ranting and raving or babbling about crushing Iran with the swift blow of an American military action. Most of the students were watching the rally, many from a considerable distance. It has been said that the mentality of a crowd sinks to its least intelligent participant. This is one reporter who believes that this was probably true in this case.

One could wonder about the motivation of the students rallying their support on Monday night. Many were there to hear the promised free music. Was this possibly a chance for some thrill seeking student to raise hell with the stamp of approval from the iron-fisted administration of this college?

One could be led to believe that all student rallies are the same. Burning figures in effigy is old stuff, can't someone think of something else? Besides manipulating the crowd for The Richmond Times Dispatch reporter found to the left of the podium, the speakers never proposed any solution short of war.

There was definitely a feeling of playing up to the press during the rally on Monday night. Is it possible that Longwood College can receive the same press as VPI or the University of Richmond?

I believe it is time for Longwood to concentrate on staying out of the papers for a while, as we have been getting too much press lately. Maybe the next rally can be for or against an issue that hits closer to home.

PEJ

Editor's Turn

Something is wrong here at Longwood, but we are not quite sure what it is. But then, things are all right, too.

Last week accusations and denials involving President Henry I. Willett, Jr., his administration, members of the faculty, and the Dalton management team were bouncing back and forth in the Richmond newspapers like a ping-pong ball during a game. It seems that of late, newspapers have become a place for airing one's grievances, no matter how petty they may be. We are not saying that a person should not air his views on a certain topic, because those views can raise questions that make us stop and think about what is going on around us. Statements made by both Dr. Charles Sydnor and President Willett are an example of this.

If the faculty and the administration have made an improvement in their working relationship, why is it described as "marginal"? Why is the faculty morale low? If President Willett does not oppose a faculty senate, why hasn't one been formed (Dr. Willett stated that he thought the faculty would rather participate directly as compared to a representative participation)? How did Dr. Sydnor get his "evidence suggesting that the investigators are right and Dr. Willett is wrong"? What is this evidence and where did it come from?

These are just a few of the questions raised as we ponder over the situation. Perhaps on December 17, these questions will be answered.

Whether you want to think about it or not, exams are just a few days away. Hopefully everyone is studying — or beginning to study — for that last harrowing test. There is one consolation, however. Christmas is just around the corner. If you are like most of us, everything in the world around us seems a bit brighter, people are happier, old animosities are buried. It would be nice if everyday could be this way. Unfortunately, it never is. What a pity because the real reason we celebrate Christmas is because of the birth of Christ, the one person who showed us how to live in harmony with the world. Commercialism has taken the true meaning out of Christmas. We no longer see a tiny child lying in a manger. In its place, we see bright, twinkling lights, presents under the tree, and the gifts that Santa Claus brought to the younger children of our family. This Christmas, let's try to remember what Christmas is all about . . . the birth of Jesus Christ.

A Look At Iran

By DOUG STROBEL

A group of 400 students marched throughout the streets of Teheran denouncing the United States, President Carter and the Shah. Upon arrival at the U. S. Embassy compound, the demonstrators cut the chain on the gate and took up positions on the embassy grounds. The Iranian guards offered no resistance to the intruders while U. S. Marine guards inside moved staffers to the basement and then the second floor of the embassy.

Contact was established with the State Department and permission was quickly given to destroy classified documents. It took the students almost three hours to gain total control of the embassy.

It was obvious that the students were well organized. One student later told Newsweek magazine that blueprints of the embassy had been studied and that each demonstrator had been assigned a specific job in the takeover.

Bazargan, and Foreign Minister Ibrahim Yazdi were rendered helpless when they received no support from the Khomeini government. They were told by Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, head of the revolutionary council, that "A number of our faithful youth are angered at the acceptance of the criminal Shah by the U. S." Bazargan then felt that he had once again been left out of the decision process and resigned. Questions immediately arose as to whether the Khomeini government had been behind the planning of the takeover or did the Ayatollah have to embrace the students for fear of losing support for his increasingly wavering government.

Some have suggested that the students were of a Marxist orientation and planned the incident to embarrass Khomeini. They had hoped that the Ayatollah would be forced to denounce their actions, thus fostering an increasingly factionalized base of support for the government. However, Khomeini foiled the plan by supporting the students and hoping to mobilize the people behind the upcoming referendum on the Islamic constitution.

It would have been political suicide if Khomeini had not supported the students who were calling for the return of the hated Shah. A denunciation would have given the different factions new ammunition in which to mobilize an opposition front to the Ayatollah.

The Bazargan resignation changed the complexities of the situation. The United States had lost its western connection with the Iranian government. It would now be much harder to negotiate with a government who supported this leftist action.

The administration then sought to set up a negotiating team. Ramsey Clark, former Attorney General and an interpreter were to be dispatched to Iran. Clark had visited Khomeini in Paris and his compassion for the Ayatollah was widely known. Iranian officials had led the administration to believe that an audience with a number of the revolutionary council members would be possible. However, the U. S. envoy received word in Turkey that they would not be welcome in Iran. Similar negotiating attempts by the P.L.O. also failed to produce tangible results as well.

American sentiment by this time had grown to outrage. Many Americans suggested immediate military action against Iran. This would show that the United States could not be kicked around any more. However, the Carter administration had quickly ruled out the possibility of a rescue operation. The element of surprise that the Israelis had at Entebbe Airport was not possible in Teheran. A rescue mission could be detected well before it reached the U. S. embassy, thus inviting the possibility of a massacre of the hostages.

Right before Thanksgiving, 13 American hostages were released while 49 were still held. Khomeini continued to speak of trials for the remaining hostages. President Carter reiterated the American position of a peaceful solution while not ruling out military action if any of the hostages were harmed. Carter ordered the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk to the Arabian Sea. This was seen as an attempt to make the students think twice before harming any hostages.

A wave of anti-American sentiment seemed to be moving across the Islamic world. An attack on the U. S. embassy in Pakistan resulted in the deaths of two American service men. Charges of American involvement in the takeover of the holy shrine in Mecca proved false but aroused more anti-American feelings. In Turkey and India, angry crowds destroyed U. S. property.

It had been expected that the Shah was going to return to Mexico. This would have taken much of the validity out of the students' actions. However, Mexico, possibly fearing a backlash against itself, denied entrance to the Shah. The Shah then took up residence on an Air Force base in Texas.

Another glimmer of optimism had come from the announcement that Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr would come to the U.N. However, this also went astray when Khomeini relieved Sadr of his post and placed Sadegh Ghotbzadeh in control of the Foreign Ministry.

An agonizing twist occurred when the students reported that they had uncovered a secret memo which implemented two of the hostages as CIA agents. The memo spoke of the need for stringent cover of any involvement of the CIA in Iran.

In his first news conference since the embassy seizure, Carter reiterated the American position of a peaceful solution, but warned that military action had not been ruled out. Carter also stressed what he believed to be a united country on this issue.

However, there did seem to be a lack of consensus or communication in the Khomeini government as to what would be done with the hostages. Ghotbzadeh had been warning of trials and the next week stated that trials were not a possibility now. However, Khomeini later stated that there would be trials. The students did not go along with a government pronouncement that three more officials of the embassy could go free. The students stated that they had evidence which proved that these men were spies and therefore would not be released.

What then are the American options? Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger said that the unique situation presents the US with very few options. Stanley Hoffman, a Harvard political scientist, suggested that the United States should attempt to isolate Khomeini internationally. However, one cannot be sure that Khomeini even cares about his international standing at this time. Diplomatically speaking, every option had seemed to fizzle out.

In this event it has been suggested that the United States should put pressure on Iran. A number of people have put forth the idea of an embargo on goods shipped to Iran. Others want an international commission which would have the power to try the Shah if warranted.

Dr. James Crowl suggests, however, that the U. S. must remember that Khomeini, much hated, must be kept in power. Otherwise a radical leftist regime could come to power which would move farther away from the West and closer to the Soviet Union. Khomeini hates the Godless Russians as much as the imperialistic Americans. Dr. Crowl also suggests that oil shipments will be resumed to the United States out of economic necessity for Iran. Clear, rational thinking about the safety of the hostages and future relations with Iran should be the policy followed, says Dr. Crowl.

(Information from Newsweek Magazine, November 19, December 3, and December 10)

—Senior Spotlight—

College Size Unique To Business Major

By SHARON JANOVICH

"I love Longwood," began this week's Senior Spotlight, Susie Transue. "Its size is so unique I like to know people on a one-to-one basis, and with LC being so small, we are people, not numbers."

Susie is extremely involved in extracurricular activities. "and I love it," she said. Susie has worked with Oktoberfest every year, and was senior class chairman this year; she was on Residence Board and was Hall President Freshman Year. Susie was her dorm's President and Secretary of Residence Board last year, H2O Treasurer, Catalina's President, Senior Representative to Legislative Board, Freshman Production, Co-Chairing Senior Assembly, Sigma Kappa Third Vice President, Orientation Leader, Colleague and Longwood Players.

"I'd like to see more involvement in sports and Student Government. And not only involvement in the big name sports, but smaller, lesser known ones too. Student Government is good, but right now it is going through growing pains. We are like the guinea pigs with everything now. Students look at Student Government as they look at any authoritative thing. They don't want to abide by it, but most of them do. Some of the rules need to be changed, but the Administration won't let them change. It will take a while to get these changes, but then again, good changes take time."

Susie is a business major, with a concentration on management and computer science. She would like to go to Washington, D. C., and get a job with a big company, where she would like primarily to use her computer science, then move up to management.

Susie feels that "Having guys here at Longwood make girls more careful with their appearance. With guys here, though, we lose our sense of closeness. Now, if girls get close, people think they are . . . funny. And with guys here, girls get catty instead of being close. Co-ed schools are okay, but I was interested in Longwood because it was a girls' school."

"I have lived all over the world, (Continued on Page 7)

Your Turn Continued

(Continued from Page 4)

Leader, the student body is confused, angry, and skeptical. They have no idea what sources to believe.

There have been few, if any, administrative comments concerning the matter directed to the students at Longwood. The conflicting accounts as stated in news articles have created an atmosphere of distrust of the administration on the campus.

A shroud of secretiveness has enveloped Longwood. Students seeking answers remain just as uninformed as those students who do not inquire. This lack of knowledge fosters extensive rumors throughout the college community.

Not only do these rumors hurt college morale, but give an uncomplimentary image of Longwood. We hope the student body will strive for the truth and not be satisfied with unsubstantiated rumors.

Any persons chosen to administer to a state or institution should devote themselves to upholding the dignity and integrity the position demands.

Not until December 17 at an open Board of Visitors meeting at 11 a.m. in the Virginia Room will the student body know the content of the management team's report.

If there is any conclusive evidence of improper conduct on the part of any administrator at this college, it is our hope that the Board of Visitors will take immediate and appropriate action on the matter. Until this time, we hope you, our fellow students, will continue to be optimistic and maintain the principles on which this college was founded: honesty, scholarship, spirit, and integrity.

During this time of trial in which the reputation of our school hinges on responsible action, we hope that you realize that the faculty and administration do not compose the entire college; the student body is the vital factor behind it. We, as responsible students, should work for the continuing excellence of the school. You can make the difference.

Sincerely,
Debbie Northern
Janie Petty
Teresa Ware

Students

Rude

Why the hell do you call yourselves business majors? It seems to me if you have declared business as your field of study then every facet of the business world should be a meaningful learning experience. For those students that attended Dr. Kimball's lecture on Government Regulation in the Utility Industry on Dec. 6, the subject was informative and Dr. Kimball was an excellent speaker. Some underclassmen business students, however, could not refrain from talking during the lecture or leaving early. This is not the first case either. It is very embarrassing for those of us that are sincerely interested in the subject. Your fellow business majors do a lot of planning to bring various speakers to enlighten our business education. If you are out for brownie-points from your teachers by attending these lectures—then you are in the wrong major. There is a lot more to gain by attending a business lecture than extra-credit points. If you don't have the consideration, maturity, or interest in the subject—then don't come and disrupt the lecture for others.

A Business Student

Young Gymnasts Display Talents

By KATHY IDELSON

On Saturday, Dec. 8, last week Longwood's gymnastics team played host to four private gymnastics clubs in the school's first United States Gymnastics Federation Championship Meet. Gymnasts ranging in age from eight to 18 years of age, represented teams from Maryland and Virginia.

The two Virginia teams were Olympiads from Richmond, the former club of Longwood's Sharon Pillow, and Gymnastics, Inc. from Hampton. The Olympiads are coached by Jim Roe while Gymnastics, Inc. is coached by Wayne Oberstadt.

The third team is the Royal T's from Crotton, Md., the former team of Longwood's Kathy Idelson. The Royal T's are coached by Carolyn and Jerry Shrewsbury, also. The Rebounders Gymnastics team from Timonium, Md., is coached by Jeff Schneppers.

The competition began at 2:00 in front of a very enthusiastic crowd in French Gymnasium. This was the first meet of the season for these teams and many teams were throwing new and very daring skills on all of the equipment. Although many of the skills were unpolished as well as missed, the spectators were very appreciative of the gymnasts' performances.

On vaulting Joanie Fisher of the Royal T's Gymnastics team took first place with a score of 9.00 for her handspring with a full twist. Kelly Crepps of Gymnastics, Inc., took second place with a score of 8.95 for a tsukahara vault (½ twist on, 1½ back flip off), and a handspring front flip vault. In third place was Lindley Kight from the Royal T's with an 8.85 on a handspring full twist vault.

On the uneven parallel bars Tami Elliott from the Richmond Olympiads took first place with an 8.65. Highlights of her routine included a front flip mount, front flip with a full twist, free-back hip circle shoot to handstand on the high bar, and a hecht full twist off the high bar. Mary Ellen Williford, also from the Olympiads, won second place with an 8.4. Janine Rankin of the Royal T's won third place with an 8.35.

On the balance beam Christine Thorne from the Royal T's Gymnastics team won first place with an 8.45. Although Thorne had a fall, she outdid the other competitors with her risk and originality. Royal T's Lindley Kight was second with a very impressive and steady routine. Kight scored an 8.30. The Olympiad's Jessie Whitten scored an 8.20 on a no-fall routine to take third.

Tami Elliott of Olympiads scored the highest individual score for the day with a 9.15 on her floor exercise routine which included a lay-out double-full, and a single full twist at the end. Second from the Royal T's with an 8.75 was Joanie Fisher and third was Francie Eisenbrandt from the Rebounders with an 8.45.

In the all-around competition Fisher from the Royal T's took first place with a 33.40. Crepps from Gymnastics, Inc., took second with a 32.95, and Eisenbrandt took third with a 32.85.

In the team competition the top five scores counted for each team as opposed to the top four scores counting for each team in collegiate competition. Royal T's from Crotton, Md., were first with 162.15. The Richmond Olympiads were second with 160.10. With a team score of 150.45 the Rebounders from Timonium, Md., took third place, while Gymnastics, Inc., from Hampton, Va., were fourth with 147.65.

Brent Wins Contest

Sophomore Bill Brent was named Teenage Mr. Metropolitan Friday, Dec. 7, in Washington, D.C., in a contest sponsored by the Potomac Valley Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Besides taking the first place trophy, he won the Most Muscular Trophy against his seven competitors.

Brent heard about the contest at Tyson's Olympia gym where he works out when he is at his McLean home.

During the contest, the contestants were judged by appearance by a group of judges. Then they each performed a minute routine. Front runners were then brought out on state to pose. Contestants were judged on body size, muscle definition, posing, and general appearance.

The only other competition Brent has entered was the Teenage Mr. Region II contest.

Longwood Vs. Bridgewater

	FG	FT	R	TP
Sixsmith	2	2	0	4
Remar	4	4	3	12
Leonard	5	1	4	11
Goudish	1	0	0	2
Turner	0	2	2	2
Ford	5	4	8	14
Williams	1	0	4	2
Aiston	2	0	5	4
Newton	4	0	5	8
Johnson	3	4	6	11
Orr	3	4	5	10
Willis	1	2	4	8
Meuser	0	3	2	3
Jenkins	0	0	1	8
Team			3
Total	31	26	57	90

A Lancer wrestler tries to stay on top.

Photo by Hoke Currie

Wrestlers Taken Down

The wrestling team had two meets this past week. December 5 they hosted Washington and Lee, taking a 49-6 thrashing. Chuck Meets in the 142 pound class won Longwood's only match with a pin.

Two days later they faced a tough Hampden-Sydney team falling 52-3. The Lancers' Bobby Hulsey won by decision in the 126-pound class.

Longwood is now 0-4.

Remar: A Big Catch For Longwood

By CHUCK COLE

Before Joe Remar even heard of Longwood College he had made plans to attend Division I Fairleigh Dickinson in Madison, New Jersey. The fact that the 6-1 guard is now an integral part of the Lancer team can be attributed to the fact that Longwood coach Ron Bash was interested in Remar's teammate at Elizabeth (NJ) High School 6-6 Ron Orr.

Noticing Remar in game films he was viewing, Bash talked with Remar on a recruiting trip to New Jersey and persuaded him to come to Longwood for a visit. The trip south convinced Remar to cast his lot with the Lancers and Orr, his high school teammate.

No one is happier with Remar's decision than Bash, who calls the first-year sensation "one of the top freshman guards in the country on any level."

Thus far, Longwood has run off a 7-0 record, including a big 61-53 decision over Division III power Stony Brook in the finals of the Longwood Invitational Classic I, November 24. Remar has had a hand in each of those wins, and Orr is Longwood's leading rebounder.

Longwood's second leading scorer, Remar is averaging 15.3 points per game while shooting 58.7 per cent from the floor. In addition he has handed out 15 assists.

It was his first half play that helped the Lancers take the lead at halftime against Stony Brook. Remar canned 7 of 8 shots from the floor for 14 points in the first half. He was the only freshman named to the five-man All-Tournament team.

Considering the level of performance he has reached, it seems strange that at one time Remar wasn't even interested in basketball.

"A friend convinced me to try out for the basketball team in seventh grade," explained Remar. "I wasn't really into basketball. Baseball was my game."

Despite his previous lack of interest, Remar made the team and played guard. His style of play back then, however, was quite different than it is now. In those days, he never thought about shooting. He was a ball-handler and passer.

Remar's fortunes and style of play changed in his junior year when coach Don Stewart encouraged him to use his quickness and become more offensive-minded. Heeding his coach's advice, Remar has developed into a prolific scorer who can bomb from outside or twist down the lane for a spectacular layup, jumping above taller opponents.

The freshman likes to pattern his play after that of Denver Nugget David Thompson, another cager who makes up for a lack of height with jumping ability. Remar also likes to go one-on-one with the feeling of being Free, Lloyd Free that is.

"I don't like to be a gunner like Lloyd Free, but he is a great one-on-one player," Remar stated.

The Lancer guard has more team-oriented goals that personal ones, and would like to see Longwood go unbeaten in the current season.

"I would like to see us go undefeated," he said. "This will be very difficult, but I hope the team doesn't get a high head. We should play hard in every game and not worry about points and playing time."

It's a long way from Elizabeth, New Jersey to Farmville, but Remar doesn't seem to mind too much as long as the Lancers keep on winning. If the freshman guard continues to play the way he has been lately, Longwood's basketball success will likely continue also.

Senior Spotlight

(Continued from Page 5)

and I love moving. I don't have any marriage plans in the immediate future, but before I do get married, I would like to find out who I am. I would like to be remembered as a girl who puts her heart into everything she does . . . and gets things done. I set my goals and try to obtain them, and am disappointed if I don't."

The best of luck is wished for Susie Transue as she looks forward to a May 1980 graduation.

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

LONGWOOD LANCER JACKETS

REG. $17.95

NOW ONLY

$7.95

WITH THIS COUPON

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon - Thur 10 PM, Fri & Sat 11 PM, Sun 10 PM
104 HIGH STREET 392 5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Lancers Win Three More... Still Undefeated

By CHUCK COLE

Coaches Ron Bash and Mo Schoepfer received their biggest Christmas present a little early this year. The Lancer basketball team powered its way to a 7-0 record for the first semester schedule with a 90-68 victory over intra-state rival Bridgewater College at Bridgewater on Saturday night.

This victory, coupled with the victories over St. Paul's Clawing Tigers 91-85 and the squeaker over Emory & Henry 60-57 rounded out a tough week for the Lancers. The Lancers will enjoy the most deserved rest, of which you can call exams restful. They carry their 7-0 record over the Christmas holiday, resuming action in Florida on January 10 versus Southeastern and January 12 versus Webster.

The Lancers powered over Bridgewater with a balanced scoring attack. Kenny Ford once again led the Lancers with 14 points. Teammates Joe Remar (12 pts.), Shack Leonard (11 pts.), Randy Johnson (11 pts.), and Ron Orr (10 pts.) round out the Lancers scoring in double figures.

Longwood continued shooting at its hot pace, hitting 31 out of 55 shots for 56 per cent from the floor. They also managed to can 15 out of its 20 shots from the free-throw line for an impressive 75 per cent.

The Lancers continued to dominate the boards, outrebounding the Bridgewater squad 57 to 35.

The Junior Varsity won against Bridgewater 88-49.

Pillow Shatters Records; Wins Award

From Sports Information

Freshman Sharon Pillow (Richmond) established two school records and helped the Longwood gymnastics team set yet another in only her second collegiate meet December 1, against Western Carolina. For her achievements, Pillow has been named as the Longwood College Player of the Week for the second time in three weeks.

A former outstanding gymnast at John Randolph Tucker High School and with Richmond Olympiad, Pillow set Longwood individual standards for highest score in a single event (6.9 in vaulting) and highest score in all-around (33.55). In addition, she led Longwood to a 123.25 team score, highest ever by a Lady Lancer squad, according to available records.

Pillow had been named Player of the Week previously for winning the all-around competition and leading Longwood to a second place finish in the Georgia College Invitational November 17.

The young gymnast has a bright future ahead of her, according to coach Ruth Budd.

"I expect Sharon to get a 9.0 or better before too long," said Budd. "I don't think the 8.9 will stand long as a record. Her 33.55 all-around mark probably puts her among the top Division II gymnasts in the nation."

Budd is looking for more such performances from Pillow when Longwood resumes action at Duke, January 18.

Pillow was named Most Valuable Gymnast both years she competed at Tucker High School. While competing for Olympiad, she placed sixth in all-around in the United States Gymnastics Federation state meet in her senior year. She also qualified for the USGF Regionals and Eastern

SHARON PILLOW

Nationals.

A physical education major, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Pillow of Richmond.

Women Cagers Stage Comeback

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Lancers brought their record to 4-3 this week with a win and a loss. They started off Monday, December 5 on a bad note by falling 72-64 at home to University of Charleston (WV).

Maryjane Smith was the offensive key for Longwood with 23 points. Brenda Fettrow had 16 points, Amy Gates 13, Linda Pullen 8 and Connie Murray 4 to round out the scoring.

At the half, the Lancers trailed 35-24. Charleston came out strong in the second period to take a commanding 13 point lead, which Longwood chipped down to six in the final minutes. Charleston recaptured an insurmountable 12 point lead to finish the game.

Saturday, the Lancers traveled to University of North Carolina-Greensboro. After a disappointing 32-27 halftime deficit, Longwood rallied to get 58 points in the second period for an 85-68 victory.

Again Smith had an outstanding game, contributing 32 points, including 20 in the second half. She hit 10 of 13 from the floor, 12 of 14 free throws and grabbed 12 rebounds. Fettrow added 16 points and Robin Hungate 10 for the Lancers.

Fettrow also had six steals and Murray six assists in the game.

The Lancers will journey to Florida over Christmas break to meet Bethune-Cookman January 3, Central Florida, January 4 and Eckerd January 5.

Fever Can't Stop Longwood's Smith

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

As the final minutes of Longwood's 68-52 victory over Hampton Institute ticked off Tuesday night, Lady Lancer senior Maryjane Smith sat at the end of the bench with a thermometer dangling from her mouth and a look of exhaustion on her face.

Despite suffering from a touch of the flu, Smith played 21 minutes against Hampton, scoring 9 points and grabbing 8 rebounds. By game's end, she was suffering from the effects of playing while sick, but you would never have known it from how she played on the court.

During the winter months Maryjane suffers from a malady common to most college cagers-basketball fever. She has a particularly bad case in this, her senior season.

Off to a strong start, Smith is averaging 13 points per game and hitting around 45 per cent of her shots from the floor. Her play has been a major factor in Longwood's getting off to a 2-1 start. The Appomattox native is determined that her final year of college basketball will be her best.

As one of three seniors on the team, Smith has seen many changes in women's basketball at Longwood. Coming in as a freshman, Maryjane, called

"Mur" by her friends, landed a spot in the starting lineup at forward. The Lancers finished third in the state that year and beat Old Dominion.

Over the last two years Longwood has lost ground to the state's other Division I schools, mainly because of a lack of height. This season the Lady Lancers are playing in VAAW Division II, and Smith applauds the change.

"Personally, I'm glad we switched to Division II this year," said Smith. "It was bad knowing we would inevitably have to play Old Dominion. This year we know we have a chance to be first at tournaments. I feel we should win the division. I want it really bad since this is my last year."

Smith believes the Lady Lancers are much quicker and a better team unit than they were in her first year on the court.

"The first couple of years we were dependent on one or two persons," she said. "Since we have a height disadvantage, we can't rely on just one person to score. We all have to contribute."

While most third and fourth grade girls are interested in playing with dolls, Smith was spending time shooting baskets at that age. By the time she entered Appomattox County High School, Maryjane had picked up a lot of basketball savvy playing with boys in her neighborhood. She says she learned practically everything she knows about the game from her 6-2 brother.

In addition to playing basketball, Smith was a member of her high school volleyball and softball teams all four years. She earned All-District honors in each sport and was chosen captain and Player of the Year in basketball.

Known for her ability as a shooter, Smith says the key to her success lies in concentrating on moving constantly and shooting for the basket without worrying too much about the defender who is trying to stop her.

A Health, Physical Education and Recreation major who now lives in Farmville, Smith had to adjust certain aspects of her game when she started playing college basketball.

"I've had to be tougher physically to play college ball," said Smith. "I've learned not to let my opponents psych me out. During my freshman season I'd lose confidence if my opponent was taller or as tall as me. I've learned that I can overcome this problem by using quickness and outsmarting them."

Maryjane, who plans to teach and coach after obtaining her masters degree, would like to infect others with basketball fever.

Page 7 THE ROTUNDA Tuesday, December 11, 1979

Longwood Vs. UNC-G

	F	G	F	T	R	P
Hughes	0	7	3	2
Fierante	3	0	5	6
Murray	2	0	2	4
Eckel	1	0	3	7
Taylor	1	0	2	2
Fettrow	5	4	6	16
Grimm	0	0	0	0
Lift	0	0	1	0
Pullen	1	0	3	2
Goff	0	0	0	0
Hungate	5	0	3	10
Romeo	0	0	0	0
Smith	13	12	12	32
Savaseve	1	0	2	2
Town				11
Total	32	20	59	85

Sports At Home

Women's Basketball

JANUARY

- 15 Davis & Elkins 7:30 p.m.
- 24 Radford 7:30 p.m.
- 29 Richmond 7:30 p.m.

Men's Basketball

JANUARY

- 18 Bowie State (Md) 8:00 p.m.
- 19 Greensboro (NC) 8:00 p.m.
- 22 Salem (WV) 9:00 p.m.
- 23 Averett 8:30 p.m.

JV Basketball

JANUARY

- 18 Liberty Baptist 6:00 p.m.
- 19 Va. Tech 6:00 p.m.
- 23 Averett 6:30 p.m.

Gymnastics

JANUARY

- 22 Maryland-Balt. Co. 7:00 p.m.

Broadcasts

Scheduled

Southside area basketball fans will have an opportunity to follow Longwood's men and women cagers in the coming weeks thanks to Farmville radio stations WFLO-FM and WPAK-AM, who have agreed to broadcast 16 Lancer games (eight men's contests and eight women's games).

WPAK, 1490 on the AM dial, has already broadcast Lancer games in the Longwood Invitational Classic I, held last weekend. The station will air four additional men's games and three women's contests. All broadcasts will originate from French Gymnasium on the Longwood campus.

Men's games scheduled to be heard on WPAK include: St. Paul's, December 3, Bowie State, January 18, Southeastern (D.C.), February 2 and University of District of Columbia, February 23. The station has already aired the following women's games: Hampton Institute, November 27, and Norfolk State, November 29, and will broadcast the Virginia State game on February 5. Men's games begin at 8:00 and women's at 7:30.

Handling the broadcast for WPAK will be brothers Tom and Chuck Cole, Longwood students, assisted by Al Davis, Prince Edward County High School teacher.

WFLO, 95.7 on the FM band, will begin its series of broadcasts in January. The station's broadcasts of men's games include: Bowie State, January 18, Salem (WV), January 22 at 9:00 and Shenandoah, February 12. Women's games slated for broadcast are: Davis-Elkins (WV) January 15, Radford, January 24, Richmond, January 29, Virginia Tech, February 15 and Liberty Baptist, February 19.

Veteran Farmville area sportscaster Al Smith will handle the play-by-play for WFLO while Gene Eike will provide color commentary.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

Willett

(Continued from Page 1)
propriety of using public funds to operate a campus 'laboratory school' with a screened enrollment." The campus school, which opened in August, 1970, is used for teacher training.

Longwood is one of four schools in the state to have such a program. The others are James Madison University, Virginia State, and Hampton Institute. Willett was involved in the planning of the building when he first came here in 1967. The Board of Visitors had initiated the Campus School plans before Willett's arrival.

The Campus School was also cited as a "desegregation dodge" for those "who didn't want their children going to school with blacks." According to the Director of Public Affairs, John J. Mitchell, the college has never used that as an admissions policy. He stated that the college did give employee's children first preference and that preference was given to a younger brother or sister of a child already attending campus school.

Dr. Sydnor cited the hiring of Dr. Wells "as evidence of irregular hiring practices" at the college. Dr. Sydnor was a member of the advisory committee in 1975 who recommended five other people for the position. None of the five were employed at Longwood. According to Willett, he interviewed all candidates at that time and felt that Dr. Wells was "far superior." He also added "Most state officials recognize her as one of the most talented in the academic department program."

Dr. Young argued in his interview with the Richmond News-Leader that the administration controls the faculty meetings. He also cited that there was no faculty senate. President Willett says that he does not oppose a faculty senate, adding that he saw the argument stemming from the question of who was going to run the college: the Board or someone else.

Dr. Willett admitted that he knew there was "low morale among the faculty but it is basically caused by low pay and because 17 positions have been lost over the last two years." He added that this year's budget is low causing a controversial cut in the travel budget. There was no cut in salaries and no member of the faculty was released.

Shop and Save at the JEANS SHACK for all your jeanswear needs or for perfect gift ideas.

DENIMS OR CORDS

- ADULT REG. STRAIGHT LEG, BELL AND BOOT $12.50
- STUDENT STRAIGHT LEG & BOOT $11.50
- KIDS SIZES 8 TO 14 $10.50
- LITTLE KIDS SIZES 0-7 $10.00

Plus flannel shirts, sweaters, Levi accessories, wallets, belts, buckles, hats, socks, etc.

JEANS SHACK

USE OUR SOUTHGATE ASK ABOUT
LAY-A-WAY PLAN SHOPPING CENTER GIFT CERTIFICATES
PHONE 392-4870

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

LIBRARY HOURS DURING EXAM WEEK

December 13 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 14 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 15 - 8:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
December 16 - 2:00 p.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 17 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 18 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 19 - 7:45 a.m. - 11:00 p.m.
December 20 - 7:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

"Gifts That Are Different"

SHOP WITH LANSCOTT'S
FOR CHRISTMAS.

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM CLOSED
WEDNESDAY MORNING

INSTANT MINI-PORTRAITS

2 Color Portraits - Mounted
While You Wait...$7.95

A PERFECT GIFT
THIS CHRISTMAS!

ROBERT T. FORE
PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va. 392-8710

Such a simple way to get attention...

BULOVA takes you back to the classics.

Go back to the classics
... Strap on a Bulova
Classic, a watch so elegant and uncluttered,
it's as much a pleasure to look at as your other fine jewelry. Inside, of course, it's all Bulova, accurate and extremely dependable. The Bulova
Classic here is in a goldtone case with a stark white dial. With 17 jewels. $125.00.

Martin

THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

"IT'S BULOVA WATCH TIME"

Longwood College Night Monday Tuesday Wednesday 5-9

Show us your Longwood Student I.D. card
and get $2.00 off any large or medium pizza.
(Pitchers of your favorite beverage available)

To our customers who are going...

An end-of-semester announcement about our new Phone Return Program.

It used to work like this. When the school year ended, you'd move everything out... except the phones. They stayed behind.

We're changing that. Now when you graduate or move to another address, we are asking you to return your phones to your local Centel Business Office.

You will then get a $4.00 credit for your first phone return. Plus $2.00 for every additional phone. When phones are not returned like this, Centel will have to bill you for the value of the unreturned phones.

Return Program is this: Centel won't have to send an installer out to pick up the phone. And that means a sizable manpower savings to us. And when we save money, you save money on your rates. It is simply a more efficient system for all of us.

If yours is a jack-phone, just unplug it. When it's a fixed installation phone, snap the cord between the telephone and the wall.

We think this new system means many happy returns for all of us. CENTEL
CENTRAL TELEPHONE

The idea behind our new Phone

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1980

NO. 13

Geist Recognizes Eleven

By DAVE GATES

Wednesday, January 16, Geist, Longwood's honorary leadership society, held its annual Geist Recognition Assembly. Every year a number of juniors and seniors are tapped into membership as recognition of their outstanding scholarship, leadership, and service.

The past president, Cindy Morris, greeted everyone and introduced the speaker, Dr. Rosemary Sprague. Dr. Sprague directed her talk to consider these recognizable qualities in larger context. She delved into the idea that "we are all committed to being honorable." She stressed that the elements of honor are created from within us.

The ceremony itself consisted of speeches by members of Geist, and the lighting of the candles representing the qualities of integrity, humility, and intellect in an individual. A bit of mystery and much joy were added as the new members were introduced and tapped.

First to be tapped were the honored seniors, beginning with LYNN PLAGEMAN, a Social Work major from Richmond, Va. She has been active as a member of Residence Board and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority. She acted as Head Student Assistant in 1978.

MARCIA GRAY is a member of Concert Choir, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Delta Psi Kappa honorary. She is from Hampton, Va., and is a Physical Education major.

CYNTHIA POORE has been active in Alpha Lambda Delta and her major is Home Economics. She is from Powhatan, Va.

DALE ROLLER will be serving as the new Treasurer of Geist. He has been quite involved in the Cameratas and other Music Dept. activities. He is a Music Education major from Weyers Cave, Va.

Then there were the juniors starting with TAMMY BIRD, who was Head Colleague in 1978, and a member of Alpha Lambda Delta honorary and Concert Choir. An Elementary Education major from Richmond, Va., she is presently serving as Legislative Board Chairman.

Geist's new President, BILL LEWARNE, has worked on The Rotunda staff and with the Student Union. He is an Art Major from Prospect, Va.

DONNA HUGHES is a member of Concert Choir and Judicial Board, and is the President of the Junior Class. She is an Elementary Education major from Timberville, Va.

VAL CAMPBELL is a Resident Assistant and Moderator of the Student Alumni Association. A Biology major, she is from Lynchburg, Va., and was chosen as Secretary of Geist.

PAM WAGNER is presently a member of "Tafara" and the Jr. Class Treasurer. She has been active in the Student Alumni Association and Alpha Lambda Delta honorary. Geist's new Oktoberfest Chairman, she is a Social Science major from Orange, Va.

Chosen as Vice-President of Geist, ELAINE McDONALD has been quite active in the Music Department as a member of Concert Choir and president of Cameratas. She is from Tampa, Fla., and is majoring in Music Education.

MARJORIE CROXTON, a day student, was recently elected as Student Union Chairman. She is an Art Education major from Chester, Va., and was chosen as Geist's Publicity Chairman.

The first event that the new Geist members will be working on is the upcoming Bloodmobile, sponsored by Geist, in February.

First In Series:

Management Team Releases Report

EDITOR'S Note: The final report of Governor John N. Dalton's Management team was released to the College Board of Visitors, December 17, before a standing room-only crowd of faculty, students, and reporters. After the opening session, the board went into executive session where they gave the College's academic program, personnel, and student body a "vote of confidence." They also chose to release the management study to the public; however, refused to comment further on it until their next meeting.

The report is broken down into five parts: Executive Summary, Organization and Management, Personnel Administration, Financial Management, and Budget Management. The Rotunda will examine the report in a series of features. The features will attempt to summarize the report, and point out important findings and recommendations.

ORGANIZATION and MANAGEMENT

By MELODY CRAWLEY

According to the team, "Longwood's rapidly changing environment requires an effective decision making process." The team found that the college's decision making board needs to be more involved in the academic planning of the college. "The Board should also be aware of the potential problems of adjusting curriculum strictly to meet student desires." Findings concerning the board include that the Board members seem unsure of their role, that they receive inadequate information on college performance, and that communication between the President's office and the Board was inadequate.

Cited as examples were the Field Survey and Placement Reports. The field study, conducted annually by the Administrative Assistant to the President, was found questionable by the team. They also cited the Board's lack of information in admissions policies. In a review of student records and with interviews of Admissions staff, the team found "that students were admitted this fall outside normal procedures." According to the report, there is evidence that "standards were lowered significantly" for several school athletes.

The team made nine recommendations concerning the board including that they become more actively involved in long-range planning.

Also examined was the College's committee system. The team questioned the use of the over 30 committees that currently exist. They questioned the function of the College Council and the Administrative Council saying that their authorities are unclear and not well defined.

The Intercollegiate Athletic Council, headed by the President's Administrative Assistant, was questioned on several decisions made in the past year. The team found the decision to apply for Division II status controversial, as well as the decisions to drop fencing and riding. They also brought out the fact that, "Two council members indicated that poor judgment was used in selecting two student-athletes, both in the basketball program, as members."

The team recommended that the College committee system be reevaluated. They said that the committees should have clear guidelines and that committees should be disbanded that rarely meet. "Special attention should be given to the IAC and the Admissions Committee."

In the Central Administration, the team found that personal relationships and decisions played an important part. Cited as examples were the Public Affairs Office being separated from the Director of Development, and Data Processing being shifted from the Finance Division to the Administration Division.

The report stated that, "The President's Administrative Assistant is not being used effectively." They cited that his major functions were to conduct the field survey, be the College's Affirmative Action Officer, and head the IAC. Also questioned

(Continued on Page 8)

New Geist members are (left to right) row 1, Elaine McDonald, Dale Roller, Bill LeWarne, row 2, Marcia Grey, Val Campell, Tammy Bird, row 3, Pam Wagner, Marjorie Croxton and Donna Hughes. Not pictured are Lynn Plageman and Cindy Poore.

Photo by Dave Gates

Representatives Elected

By CHERYL WILCOX and MELODY CRAWLEY

Class and Major-Minor Elections were held on Wednesday, January 23. In the overall school elections Janice Johnson was elected to the position of Fire Warden. Winning the positions of Residence Board Investigators were Amy Wilson and Terry Keesee.

In the run-off election for Vice Chairman of Judicial Board, Kathy Vannice was the winner. Jerry Richman was elected to the position of Vice Chairman of Student Union.

Under the new Judicial Board Structure there are 11 Class representatives for the Board. Elected to these positions were Freshmen Judy Clement and Susan Frallie, Sophomores Pam Updike, Nancy Setzer, and Cathy Reynolds, and Juniors Frank Creasy, Linda Paschall, and Donna Bruce.

Two Investigative Committees were also formed under the new structure. Elected to the committee for Honor Code Violations were Karen Driskill, Chris Vontsolos, Sara Hazlegrove, and Ann Wyatt. Debra Spencer, Kim Fuhr and Mitzi Mason were elected to the committee for College Violations. These committees will be responsible for investigating Judicial Board violations in their respective fields.

Legislative Board Representatives were also elected from each class. Cheryl Donovan and Mary Cawthorne were elected as Freshman representatives. From the Sophomore Class were Mary Slade, Vicki Mathewson, Julie Combs, and Beth Waddell. Junior representatives are Julie Dayton and Donna Hughes, with Senior Class representatives being Janie Petty, Debbie Northern, Libby Bowman, and Susie Transue.

There will be a run-off this week for one Legislative Board representative position between Terri Davis, Karen Love, and Cheryl Wilcox. Becky Lee is chairman of the Elections Committee.

The Music Of Longwood

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

If you are interested in culture, fine arts, and a wonderful way to relax, the Concert Choir, the Concert Band, the Jazz Band, and the Camarata Singers have some very noteworthy plans for this semester. One of the most exciting undertakings for the music department is to be anticipated further in the future. A new group is going to be born in the music division. According to Dr. Egbert, Director of the department, it will be "a super-select group, chosen from the Camarata Singers." The Camaratas, themselves, are a highly-select, mixed ensemble of 40 voices. At this point, the deviating company will be called the "Vocal Arts Ensemble".

The Camarata Singers are the busiest group of the four. January 27, they will travel to Washington D.C. and sing in the National Cathedral. On March 12-13 there will be a Contemporary Music Symposium. The Camaratas will perform the music of Ross Lee Finney exclusively. Mr. Finney is a composer-in-resident at Michigan University. He will be visiting Longwood and watching the groups perform. The concert will be March 13 at 8 p.m. On March 16 the Camaratas will be performing at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond at 2 p.m. They will have a concert here on April 12. Two days later they will go, once again, to Richmond to participate in an Intercollegiate Chorus. They will have the honor of singing with the Richmond Symphony. The music they will be doing is called "Serenade To Music" composed by Vaughan Williams. Their spring concert will be April 20.

The concert Choir's spring concert will, also, be the 20th of April. They will be performing Ross Lee Finney's music for the Contemporary Music Symposium, along with the Concert Band. The Concert Band will give their spring concert April 29. The Jazz Ensemble's concert for the spring will be held in April, also.

So whenever you have the time, and would like to enjoy some relaxing and enlightening performances, there is much to choose from.

Dale Roller and Charlie Mason added to an evening of versatile and enjoyable entertainment at the S-UN open Mike Night, Thursday, Jan. 24.

Photo by Jodi Gilbert

Take A Ride On A "Carousel"

By SHARON JANOVICH

Want to "get away" from your studies for an evening? If so, the presentation of the musical Carousel, is for you, and will provide Longwood students with the opportunity to do so, from February 20 to the 23rd.

"The music is Fun," began stage manager, Lisa Hughes, "and there are some beautiful ballads in Carousel. It begins with a carnival barker who marries a nice girl, and then through a series of happenings, learns that every minute of his life becomes equivalent to a certain amount of years. It is very interesting to see what happens to him." Linda went on to say that Carousel is being directed by Dr. Young, with Dr. Neal doing choreography. The music is being handled by Dr. Egbert, and let's just say that Carousel will be enjoyable to everyone. The male lead role is held by Doug Blevins with the female lead being Mary Breeden."

Get away for an evening. Plan on seeing Carousel from February 20 to the 23rd. "It is similar to West Side Story," said Lisa. "It has some humorous parts as well as some serious parts, but on a whole, Carousel will be a very enjoyable production!"

Activities Of The Office Of Career Planning And Placement

February 4 — Highroad Camp (Summer Employment)

February 12 — Busch Gardens (Summer Employment)

February 13 — National Center for Paralegal Training

Ms. Niki Falls
Director of Placement

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

SGA 1979

The SGA in the past year has tried to serve the interest of the student body. In doing so many, but not all, things were accomplished, but the Judicial, Residence, and Legislative board members and officers can be proud of their achievements. Here are just some of the things that the SGA did in the past year:

1. Placed Honor Code signs in all classrooms.
 2. Increased Open House Hours.
 3. Reconstructed the Judicial Board.
 4. Had two successful Fund Raisers — Spring-Fall.
 5. Student Government Day Spring '79.
 6. Fall Retreat (Faculty, Administration, and Students) Different issues of interest were discussed.
 7. Telephone Directories — having the numbers of private phones on campus.
 8. Safety poll
 9. Lighting Committee— checked on lighting of the campus for safety.
 10. Press Conferences with President Willett to answer questions raised by students.
- If you as a student feel that you've missed out on some things don't worry, you still have a chance. You can become a representative from your class to one of the boards, get involved, let your voice be heard! Don't complain about Longwood — do something — become a representative. The SGA would like to thank all of the students, faculty and administration that have supported us and especially all our advisors. Yes, Longwood College, you do have a Student Government, it's you, the students.

The Class of 1980, accompanied by the Red-and-White mascot, Sally Red-and-White, sang their winning song, "Farewell, With Love" at Songfest, Wednesday night.

Photo by Linda Paschall

Senior Song Takes First

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The class of 1980 produced the winning song for the fourth straight year Wednesday night at song contest.

The first place song entitled "Farewell, with Love" was composed by John Hudson. Hudson, also composed the other three winning songs.

Second place was won by the sophomore class; third and fourth places went to the juniors and freshmen respectively.

Song contest is sponsored by the Intramural Athletic Association each year to promote class unity and spirit. Original songs are presented each year at the contest.

The judges for this event were Ms. Sally Bush, Dr. Lawrence Hlad, and Dr. Donald Merkle.

Utah Artists' Exhibit

By LYNNE SWAN

TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS, a collection of the work of twenty of Utah's finest contemporary painters, will be on display in Bedford Gallery from January 21 through February 11. Bedford Gallery is open to the public from 9-12 noon; 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. On week ends, the hours are 2-6 p.m.

TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS is part of an exhibition exchange program developed between the Utah Arts Council and the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. The program informs artists and the public of work being created in other parts of the country. Works by twenty of Virginia's outstanding artists are concurrently being displayed throughout the state of Utah.

The twenty artists represented in this exhibition express a vision of their local environment in a wide variety of styles. These styles cover the spectrum, from traditional realism to abstract art. A realistic interpretation of Mt. Logan at Dusk by Harrison Groug captures Mt. Logan in soft, earthy colors often associated with the west. Anna C. Bliss' RV Pane is a square within a square, painted on a square canvas using only three bright colors.

The variety of styles and techniques, whether in oil, acrylic or watercolor, adds flavor to TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS. Each one of the artists gives his or her own interpretation of the local scene in a highly personal style, characteristic of Utah artists. Longwood College and the Art Department are pleased to share some of the best art produced in Utah today.

TWENTY UTAH ARTISTS is sponsored in part by a grant from the Virginia Commission for the Arts, and by programming funds from the Utah Arts Council.

Catalinas Plan Show

By LYNNE SWAN

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the Catalinas held swimming workshops in preparation for club tryouts on Thursday, January 24. The following girls are now members of the Catalinas: Susan Hall, Carol Moninger, and Cindy Whiteside. The Catalinas and their sponsor, Miss Nancy Andrews, welcome the new girls and congratulate them. A banquet honoring the new members will be held Thursday, January 31, in the Prince Edward Room.

The Catalinas are currently practicing for Mardi Gras weekend. They will present two routines and swimming demonstrations on Saturday, February 2. Showtimes at French Pool are 3, 3:30, and 4 p.m. Admission is free with a block ticket, otherwise admission is 25 cents.

On February 29, the Catalinas are traveling to James Madison University as part of an outreach program for the National Institute of Creative Aquatics. They will be giving a combined lecture-demonstration on synchronized swimming. At Madison they hope to start a NICA program because some students have expressed an interest in aquatic art.

The theme for the 1980 Spring Water Show is Broadway, and the dates are March 12, 13, and 14. Choreographers and swimmers are getting ready for the best spring show ever.

Sea Level Emulates Allman Brothers

By GEORGE BENNETT, III

As the kickoff to this year's S-UN Mardi Gras week end, it would be hard to come up with a better concert name than Sea Level. And with good reason, this group of six talented musicians share a history befitting of inclusion in any rock and roll hall of fame.

Three members of the group were with the original Allman Brothers Band. Along with Drummer Joe English, formerly of the band Paul McCartney and Wings, Sea Level brings with it a wealth of musical talent.

Their first album, Sea Level, in 1977 produced a style of music that could be described as a fusion of jazz-rock and R&B sounds. The band members at that time were Lamar Williams on bass, Chuck Leavell on keyboards and vocals, Jimmy Nalls on guitar and George Weaver on drums. After an enthusiastic response on their first album, the band picked up Randall Brabett (who already had two solo LP's to his credit) and his close friend, longtime session guitarist and veteran roadman Davis Causey. This helped to bring many different styles of music to the group such as rock, jazz, classical, rhythm 'n blues, baroque, even eastern music.

In early 1978, the band released their second album, Cats on the Coast. Riding on the crest of good sales throughout the U.S., Sea Level played to an ever-widening span of audiences all over the country, peaking with a European tour that included London and the historic Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland. A chart single, "That's Your Secret", also came from the LP, bringing Sea Level even more attention.

After a grueling 1978 concert season, George Weaver, the drummer, left the band. As the sessions for the new album, On The Edge, got underway the vital replacement proved to be none other than Joe English. Renowned as drummer for Paul McCartney & Wings, Joe had been featured on the Wings albums Venus and Mars, Wings at the Speed of Sound, The Wings Over America LP and tour, and the critically acclaimed London Town.

So with the Sea Level existing for two years and three albums now, On The Edge, with its rocking and melodic force, shows the growth and fulfillment of six master musicians.

Sea Level will be appearing with master music-juggler Chris Bliss (who appeared last year at Longwood's Saturday Night Alive!) tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. Advance tickets are available at the Lankford Student Union office. Don't miss this exciting musical happening !!!

Nina's Back

By DAVID MITCHELL

Thursday night at Longwood will be very special for those in the Gold Room at 8:30 p.m. S-UN

Spotlight Concerts will present Nina Kahle, bringing her original folk music that has delighted so many LC students in the past. Admission is 75c.

Nina Kahle performs on piano and dulcimer, but more than that, she captures you as she sings songs drawn closely from her own life. You'll be enchanted by her presence and you will discover an original artist, but most of all, you'll fall in love with Nina Kahle.

Extra Spicy

By MAURICE FRANK

On Friday night, at 8:30 p.m., the Student Union will present a beer and pizza party in the downstairs dining hall, featuring Bill Blue and His Band.

The band has presented their form of blues and rock 'n' roll with such greats as Bonnie Raitt, B. B. King, J. Geils, and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

Bill Blue traces his musical roots to the raw blues of the early fifties. Other members of the band have developed through blues, jazz, and rock 'n' roll backgrounds. Vocalist Sharon Poole has been compared to Linda Ronstadt but with a gusty voice perfectly matched with the blues style the band plays. The band as a whole has been compared to Little Feat in their unity and individual dexterity.

The Bill Blue Band will provide an evening of high energy and emotion. Admission for Longwood students is $1.00 and general admission is $2.00.

S-UN mardi gras

Jan. 30 - Feb. 3

Oneness To Perform

The Oneness of Juju jazz group, will trace the development of Afro-American music and the influence of African music on jazz and today's disco sound in a performance February 3 in Wygal Auditorium.

The Richmond-based recording group, which has performed at the Newport Jazz Festival and at similar festivals in New York, Berkeley and San Francisco, is sponsored locally by S-UN and Central Virginia Chapter of the Virginia Museum.

Their music explores the relationship between jazz-rock, fusion music of the sixties, and the rhythms and color of traditional African music.

The group will perform at 4:00 p.m. and admission will be 75c for Longwood College students. Tickets may be purchased at the door or the S-UN office.

Oneness of Juju has recorded albums on the Black Fire and Strata-East labels, and will discuss innovators and major personalities of Afro-American music in addition to performing contemporary and traditional works.

The leader of the group, James Branch, studied music in the Richmond public school system and attended Columbia University in New York. He is a veteran of the university and public school lecture circuit, and in 1975 he founded Black Fire Record Company, for which the group records.

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW

a different set of jaws.

© 1978 BY THE S-UN OFFICE. LANKFORD BUILDING.

Only four (4) tickets can be purchased (two Longwood & two General). Tickets are available for third Green Westland (ungraded Students Only).

LATE SHOW
Friday Night 12:30 AM
Saturday Night 12:30 AM

—ILER GYM—
L.C. $1.00 Guests $2.00

There will be NO chairs.
Bring Blankets
NO Candles Allowed
NO Motorcycles Allowed

MIXER
SATURDAY
FEB. 2ND, 9-12
LOWER DINING HALL

Jamie XXX

L.C. $2.50
Guests $4.00

MIXER

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Jodi Gilbert,
Joan Crumpton, Thomas Cole, Frank
Creasy, Barbara Baker, Judi Stanley,
Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel,
Mark M. Sloan, Brenda Bonucelli,
Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George
Bennett, Bill LeWarne, Beth Parrott,
Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Kathy Chase,
Lynne Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jack
Hattori, Jul Morton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari, Susan Butlin, Debbie Northern

Member of the VIMCA.
Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

LIFE AT LONGWOOD

"Sorry Mom. It's 10 o'clock. You've got to leave."

Rules Questioned

Dear Editor,

I thought I had gained at least a fairly adequate idea of how our government boards operated during my time here, but I had never seriously considered the implications of many of its rules until I was recently one of several "victims" of a residence board offense.

It was our first night back from Christmas break, and I and a couple of friends (male) were visiting some other friends (female) in their dorm. Well, we were all talking, playing Monopoly, and involved in other innocent pursuits, and time crept by. Soon we were in jeopardy of committing a cardinal sin, that of breaking the visitation rules. Well, we figured, what the heck. It had been a long time since we'd all seen each other and we didn't think anybody would catch us if we were quiet. Not so.

First there came a tapping (gentle tapping...at her chamber door). Assuming the worst, we guys hid in the shower. This was when I first had to laugh to myself. Why, I asked, should I be hiding in a dark bathroom? Well, it didn't matter, because we got caught anyway by some residence board people, who informed us that we had 24 hours, etc., etc. (Quoth the board, Nevermore...)

Now this, I thought, is ridiculous. Here I am, twenty years old, I can vote, pay taxes, and get drafted, but I can't play Monopoly in a girl's room after ten o'clock on a Monday night! I bet I could even have a girl in my room at home later than that if I asked my parents nicely and didn't turn out the lights.

But this was only the beginning. Not only do these rules tell me that I can't visit girls during certain lengthy periods of time, but when I get caught, I have to be humiliated by turning my own self in. (Father, forgive me, for I have sinned). So then, to add insult to injury, not only did we all have to suffer the embarrassment these rules necessitate, but we also had to be punished by losing our so-called privilege of visitation for two days. Big loss, huh??

O.K., the circumstances don't matter. We broke a rule, and that's not right. So why does such a rule exist? I wondered. Mainly for security reasons was the most frequent answer I got. Nobody wants unauthorized boys or girls running around at any hour in any dorm. Well, that makes sense, but these rules don't really curtail security problems. So what was wrong with the old sign-in but not sign-out system? Then, guys or girls would be signed in the rooms where they wanted to be, and as long as they weren't bothering anyone else, I see no reason why they shouldn't be there, even if it's later than ten o'clock. Then, if resi-board got complaints from people that were being bothered, or saw people running around loose in the halls that weren't supposed to be there, stick them with the 24 hours and yellow slips. They're the only security problem.

But possibly security isn't the only concern here. Many students seem to think that such rules serve mainly to enforce the administration's questioning attitude about, shall we say, our moral standards and what might happen if visitation was too lengthy. No way, I thought. But the more I considered it, the less far-fetched it sounded, and the more insulted I felt. I couldn't deny that it made sense. So, I thought, not only does the administration not trust me after ten o'clock, but it questions my moral and ethical behavior. And don't forget, this is the same administration that has set such awe-inspiring examples of ethical quality in recent months.

But, rules are based in part on student desires, so maybe that's the way a majority of students want the rules to be. Not that I believe that for a minute.

But there's even more. After a while, I said, waitaminit—there's no way anybody would have given resi-board the right to come knocking on someone's door just because they "thought" they heard voices from the wrong sex in there. I was wrong. Get this folks. Residence board has that very right, and the way I see it, most people, if their rooms are invaded in such a way, aren't going to lie about their guests, because that's an Honor Code offense, and I for one, wouldn't risk that. Catch-22, right?

So, until I learned this, the whole thing was kind of funny. I felt like a five-year old who'd had his hand slapped, but I didn't feel like I was wearing a scarlet "A" on my shirt or anything. (Remember, we were playing Monopoly) But this was too much. This board could conceivably pick a hall and knock on every door and inquire about any illegal guests. And to top it off, if they felt strongly enough about it, they could get a search warrant if they didn't believe you! I don't think such an event is likely, but it's a scary thought.

Rules are rules, but I don't think any group should have the right to have such power, even in theory. Nor do I think any group of peers or administrators should have had the right to give them the power that was demonstrated to me in the first place. It's unjust, unfair, and unnecessary. And I don't think a lot of people realize just how much legal power is held over us in such cases. I haven't been living in a cave for the last two and half years, and I didn't know about it.

But please, members of residence board, or others who may feel offended, don't. I don't blame any individuals or the boards themselves for the system, and I have the utmost respect for all who serve on these organizations. Yours is a thankless job at best, and only the bravest and most conscientious among us attempt it, as evidenced by problems during election times. However, despite my respect for the institutions themselves, or those who serve on them, I cannot bring myself to respect or even believe in such rules that I can only consider inadequate, and that tend to insult me not only as a student, but as a reasonably mature adult as well.

Sincerely,
Bill LeWarne

Editor's Turn

"The Board of Visitors is totally supportive of and reaffirms its faith in Longwood College and its mission and goals, including its academic program, its personnel, and its student body." This was the last sentence in a statement issued by the Board of Visitors, December 17, after the Dalton Management Team gave their final report.

That statement sounds good, but let us take a look at what the team said about the Board of Visitors. Finding number two under the College-Wide Administration of Organization and Management states that, "A number of Board members seemed unsure of their role and authority in certain administrative and policy areas." They are unsure of their role. Is this the kind of Board that we, the student body, can be supportive of and have faith in?

The report also says that communication from the President's office to the Board of Visitors is inadequate and that information provided to the Board or the College's performance is inadequate. But, what about Communication between the students and the Board? After all, everyone will have to admit that if it were not for the students no one would be here.

The Board of Visitors has quarterly sessions when Longwood's campus is occupied by the 11 prestigious members of the governing body. But, how many of Longwood's students can say they know any of the Board members. And, how many of the students realize that the Board meetings are open to the public and have been since July, 1979? Maybe its time that we meet the Board members and they meet us.

The teams recommendations included a long list for the Board. It was headed by the fact that the Board "should become more actively involved in long-range planning." Verbs such as clarify, consider, review, evaluate, assign, and strengthen were used by the team in evaluating our Board.

The team definitely left Longwood College with some very serious recommendations to consider. They must start with the Board, and then to the Administration to be carried out. It's going to take a lot of planning and visits to Longwood's campus by the Board.

Express your opinions
... Write a Letter to the editor.

Box
1133

LC Undergoing Transition Period, Changes Occuring

By MARK M. SLOAN

It has become obvious from recent events here at Longwood that our school is undergoing a period of transition. Nearly every facet of Longwood College is experiencing changes that will effect the entire future of it. My purpose in writing this article is to point out some of the more monumental changes that are occurring, how they are being dealt with, and some possibilities as to future changes at Longwood.

Longwood College, in the past, has been an elite, conventional, and isolated institution, where southside Virginia belles went to be educated as school teachers (a field which was, at the time, a career primarily reserved for women).

These 'Longwood Ladies' would then go out into the public schools of nearby counties, to teach for a while until they got married, or to remain teaching for the rest of their working lives. Longwood, says Dr. Charles W. Sydnor, Associate Professor of History here, "used to have a substantial reputation for turning out highly proficient graduates."

But that form of institution has no place in our world today. That era is 'gone with the wind,' to use a familiar phrase. Longwood is now in the process of becoming a larger, more modern school, experiencing the same problems that other American colleges are facing. Our recent student rally on the Iranian crisis points out the involvement we have with 'the outside world.' Longwood is no longer immune to changes in society, but rather mirrors them as any modern institution naturally must.

The College, however, is having some difficulties in making a smooth transition to a contemporary, modern institution. These problems stem from many areas, not all of them the fault of the school's.

One major change at Longwood is its shifting of emphasis away from 'teaching teachers.' There has recently been an over abundance of qualified teachers on the job market. Public school enrollment, like collegiate enrollment, has also declined, complicating the problem. We have all heard of the post-World War II baby boom having ended, and of how so many public elementary schools are being forced to shut down completely due to lack of students.

It would seem incongruous, then, that public schools should now be under attack for the quality of education they are providing. A 'back to the basics' attitude has developed, because of the discovery that many high school graduates cannot read or write at the appropriate levels. As Dr. Sydnor states, "I've had students who come from different places all over the state who've had real difficulties here, coping academically. They can't spell, they can't read, and they can't write." When these students get to college, they do not, of course, perform at the levels required of college students.

Longwood College is compounding this problem by lowering its admissions standards for certain factions of prospective students. The recently completed Management Report on the College states that "students were admitted this fall outside the normal procedures," and that "admissions standards were lowered significantly in several cases." The agencies which prepared this report found that "faculty members have openly questioned the academic quality of some students being admitted to the College." The declining enrollment of the past few years has forced colleges to compete fiercely for prospective students.

Another change, not unique to Longwood, is that the values of college-age people have changed drastically over the past decade. As a poll described in the Richmond Times-Dispatch recently stated, today's students are more materially inclined; that is, their goal in life is to be 'well-off' financially. This is a drastic diversion from the Sixties, when anti-materialism movements abounded. There has, therefore, been a sharp increase in the more pragmatic majors such as Business, which at Longwood has exploded rapidly.

But if Longwood can no longer teach only teachers, in what direction should its academic emphasis be placed? Should Longwood follow the rapidly swinging pendulum of practicality in today's values, constantly changing its direction to follow every little social transition? Says Dr. Michael Lund, Assistant professor of English here, "most other colleges are thinking about what sort of curriculum they should offer for the Eighties. I think every facet of the College needs to consider what are our strengths and weaknesses, what direction we should move in. I, personally, am leery of responding too quickly to trends."

When asked about what she felt would be the best academic direction for Longwood to place its emphasis on, Dr. Rosemary Sprague, Board of Visitors Distinguished Professor of English here, responded, "my own opinion is that the person who can make the best contribution to the society is one who is very well versed and educated in the Liberal Arts. I have noted with great interest that medical schools are asking their applicants, for heaven's sake, to major in something else besides Science. Law schools are asking their applicants to please major in something besides Poli-Sci. Because the professions are beginning to realize that the broadening of the mind that one gets with the study of Literature and History—and the Sciences, the Mathematics—all of this gives the person a dimension that is badly needed in the legal and medical professions, and for that matter, in Business, too." The Liberal Arts and Humanities major, it would seem, is more easily adaptable to any field than the major who concentrates in only one curricular area.

Dr. Sprague's comments were echoed by Dr. Lund, who said "I think you have to design your curriculum to produce educated individuals who are competent to go in a number of different directions. In my own lifetime I have seen radical shifts from one field to another. When I was in college, everybody was going into space, into Physics, into all of these sciences that were part of the space industry. But overnight, we got to the Moon and funding for those programs stopped, and all of those people in that curriculum were in trouble, there were no jobs; engineers were out of jobs, Ph.D's in Physics were out of jobs. I guess that sounds more like coming out for a Liberal Arts curriculum. I think it should give you a fundamental education in a broad range of things." Dr. Sydnor, too, agreed that the Liberal Arts major is better equipped to become an effective member of society. He stated that "I don't think that we should become a trade school simply because for the next three or four years we can attract large numbers of Business majors. The Liberal Arts education should be a series of learning experiences, exposures to the civilized, cultivated values of civilization."

From this it would seem clear as to the best direction for Longwood to take. But can the College make this transition? Can the current staff, faculty, and (most importantly at this point in time) the Administration make the necessary changes needed for Longwood to prosper as an institute of higher learning?

The Management Report indicates that it would be extremely difficult for Longwood to make such a transition. The multitudinous administrative inefficiencies pinpointed in the Report make it clear that any policy changes here are difficult, stating that "Longwood's rapidly changing environment requires an effective decision-making process," but that "Longwood's minimal planning efforts are diffused, leaving little central focus." The Report suggested that "new development work should be curtailed until the present problems are solved." There would seem, according to the Report, to be no real long-range academic planning methods here. The staff and administrators are shown as having no clear ideas as to their specific duties, hence there is a lack of definitive authority whenever measures are taken to remedy problems.

Dr. Sydnor summed it up by saying, "There are extraordinarily gifted people here in the faculty. Many of them are ignored by the Administration; they're not encouraged, they're not given the types of incentives that are necessary to enhance academic productivity. It's up to Management, or Leadership, in any activity, to recognize the abilities and strengths of the people it manages, the people it leads. Good leadership, I think, should be structured on the premise that you lead by example as well as by direction or order. And I don't think that that's one of the College's strong suits right now."

Whither Longwood? Only time will tell.

"Nightie-Watch"

Apprehends Stubbs Prowler

By CHERYL WILCOX

"Nightie-watch" the slang word by most Longwood students in reference to Campus Police seems to lack the respect these officers deserve. Campus police are usually seen cruising around in their cars or unlocking doors, but they do so much more than the students are unaware of.

One such incident occurred last semester, Stubbs dormitory was being plagued by an early morning prowler. Frequent mornings in late November and early December a black man had been seen by several residents roaming on first floor after the maids had unlocked the doors. Campus Police set up an early morning watch to catch the prowler in early December. Finally on the morning of December 13 Officer Curtis L. DeMuth received a phone call from a Stubbs resident saying "that black man is on first floor." In approximately 1½ minutes Officer DeMuth was entering Stubbs front door. There was a young woman in the hall who told him the man had gone through the stairwell doors. Following the man into the stairwell and persuing him up to the second floor the officer stopped and questioned the man to ascertain who he was and what he was doing in the building at this time. At this point the man identified himself as Jack Copeland, a resident of 206 Parkview Garden, Farmville. He told the police he was looking for some friends he had gone to school with who lived in Cox dormitory. Officer DeMuth then informed Copeland he was trespassing and placed him under arrest for this charge. The officer then preceded to handcuff the prowler and escort him outside to his car. He was given a 30 day jail sentence and fined. He was released from his jail sentence after the fine was paid.

Stubbs was safe from this prowler thanks to campus police being duly trained police officers. Without their protection things like this incident would be a common occurrence on our campus. So the next time you say "Hey Nightie-watch" remember they do more than cruise campus and unlock.

Students Get Exciting Taste Of Army Life

"What Army ROTC Basic Camp offers," according to Major Walter Sullivan, Department of Military Science at Longwood, "is a way to try before you decide to buy."

Each summer, over 2,000 young men and women from all across the country converge on Fort Knox, Kentucky, for six weeks of Army ROTC Basic Camp. And they get paid for their efforts.

These are students who think they just might be interested in enrolling in Army ROTC but aren't certain. Some of them are students from a host school such as Longwood who, after two years at college, have decided that ROTC might be the right course of action for them and their futures. Others are students who have transferred from schools where Army ROTC was not available. Still others are students from community and junior colleges who have enrolled for the final two years in a school offering Army ROTC.

They all have one thing in common: they are interested in testing out Army ROTC and like

(Continued on Page 8)

THE HAIR SHAFT

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRONCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

INTERESTED IN BECOMING A

RESIDENT ASSISTANT?

Informational Meetings

Thursday, January 31, 1980

1:00 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.

7:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Commonwealth Room

Fifteenth-Ranked Lancers Complete Toughest Week

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood Lancers culminated a tough week which included a tough one-point loss to a powerful Salem College team by the score of 76-75. The loss, the Lancers' first of the season after 12 straight victories, may have been a direct result of a malfunctioning scoreboard.

The Lancers then overcame a lackluster performance to defeat a sticky Averett Cougar team by the score of 58-53 on Wednesday night.

Weekend action saw the fifteenth-ranked Longwood Lancers capture first-place honors in the Manhattanville Alumni Tournament by defeating SUNY-Maritime by the score of 75-62 (OT) in the opening round. In the championship game, the Lancers thrashed Manhattanville College by a 71-54 count.

The fifteenth-ranked Division

III team had a difficult time making the finals of the two-day affair. An aggressive Lancer defense shut out SUNY-Maritime for the final 54 seconds of regulation time. Longwood tied the score at 62 on Ron Orr's jumper forcing the game into overtime.

Longwood continued dominating the Maritime offense and pulled out to a 75-62 victory. The Lancers were led by Ron Orr's 23 points. He was aided by Kenny Ford's 12 points, and Joe Remar and Shack Leonard, who added 11 points each.

The championship game proved to be a Ron Bash masterpiece. With 17 minutes remaining in the second half, Longwood held a slight 23-22 advantage. Coach Bash deployed the Lancers' four-corner offense and preceded to blow Manhattanville out of their own facility. Longwood outscored its opponent 22-4 to take a 45-26 lead behind the superlative play of Kenny Ford, who scored 17 points during this stretch in the game.

Ford was named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament. He scored 28 points in the championship tilt. Ford's 28 points stand as a season high. He was joined on the All-Tournament Team by freshman Ron Orr, who pumped in 23 points in the first round game against SUNY-Maritime.

Longwood is on the road Monday night against St. Mary's before returning home to host Bridgewater on Wednesday night and Southeastern University on Saturday night in the French Gym. The Southeastern game may be heard on WPAK radio (1490 AM) starting at 7:50. Both home games begin at 8:00 p.m.

Kenny Ford Is One Of Longwood's Better Ideas

KENNY FORD
Tournament MVP

By CHUCK COLE

It is a rare occurrence for a walk-on to make a college athletic team, especially in the highly competitive world of college basketball. It is almost unheard of for a walk-on to be leading the fifteenth-ranked NCAA Division III team in field goal percentage (.624), free throw percentage (.816), points scored (191), and points per game (15.9 ppg). Not many recruits are able to post statistics like these. Add to this player an extraordinary jumping ability which enables him to block shots and to have 55 rebounds twelve games into the season. One might think that players of this caliber are only found in coach's dreams. But at Longwood College, the dream is a reality and his name is Kenny Ford.

And to think that Ford almost took his basketball talents to the University of North Carolina-Wilmington, a Division I school which invited Ford to try-out for its team as a walk-on. It's almost enough to make Lancer fans break into a cold sweat.

Kenny Ford is not the product of an intense recruiting campaign. In fact, the only reason that Ford came to the Farmville campus was to join high school teammate and best friend Jimmy Huskey in hopes of playing basketball for the rebuilding Lancers under the direction of first year head coach

Ron Bash. Huskey briefed Coach Bash on Ford's arrival and intentions of attending Longwood. Huskey must also have told Bash about Ford's basketball reputation at Crest High School in Shelby, North Carolina which included being named MVP in his junior year. (Huskey was MVP in their senior year.)

Well, Coach Bash arranged a pick-up game to test Ford's basketball abilities. But Kenny Ford was overweight, out of shape, and had not played basketball for a year while he attended Shaw University; and it showed on the court. After the work-out, Ford conferred with the coach in his office. The actual words of the conversation may be lost forever, but Kenny Ford was told in essence that he would probably not even make the team.

But Ford was not discouraged. In fact, he went home to Shelby, N.C. and began to sharpen the basketball skills which he learned at the Gardener Webb's Basketball Camp under the watchful eye of basketball greats like Artie Gilmore, Gus Gerrard, and Coach Dean Smith. He played many hours of one-on-one with his brother Albert, to work himself back into shape. (Albert Ford played two years of college basketball at King's Jr. College in Raleigh, N.C. under the direction of Coach Rick Holdt, who is now an assistant at UNC, Wilmington.)

The rest is history as the Lancers posted their best-ever record of 19-8, with Kenny Ford playing a key role for the young team. This year, the Lancers are ranked fifteenth in the nation, sporting a 15-1 record. They are aiming for an unprecedented NCAA berth. This dream is closer to being a reality.

The Ford name has been used by a president of the United States, an All-World basketball player by the name of Phil Ford from North Carolina, and a major American automobile. But Longwood fans can be eternally grateful that Kenny Ford is one of Longwood's better ideas

Grapplers Struggle

By FRANK CREASY

The Longwood grapplers traveled to Lexington last weekend for a tournament at Washington and Lee. The Lancers found the going tough, as just two wrestlers managed to find the consolation bracket final. None of the Longwood matmen made it to the championship round.

One hundred fifty-pounder Steve Shennet gained the highest place for Longwood, taking third place. Shennet lost his opening match to the eventual champion, then won his last three matches for the consolation championship.

Mark Segal was the only other finisher for the Lancers, grabbing a fourth place at 126 pounds. Bobby Hulsey was the only other winner for Longwood. After losing his first match against the eventual champion, Hulsey pinned his W&L opponent in less than a minute, but lost his third match to be eliminated.

The Lancers' next home match is February 6 at W&L.

Photo by Kendall Adams

Longwood strives for the top.

Pillow Honored For 3rd Time

Freshman gymnast Sharon Pillow (Richmond), who has already begun to break her own school records, has been chosen as the Longwood College Player of the Week for the third time during the current winter sports season.

A talented all-around gymnast, Pillow has led Longwood to a 5-1 record by winning the all-around competition four times. She placed first in the Georgia College Invitational, against Western Carolina, against Maryland Baltimore County and Saturday against East Carolina and Western Carolina.

Pillow was cited as Player of the Week for breaking her own record with a 9.0 score in vaulting in Tuesday's 126-109.35 victory over Maryland Baltimore County. Her 33.4 rally in all-around helped Longwood set a new school mark for total score (126). Sharon had broken the old school record December 1 when she received an 8.9 for the same vault.

A Physical Education major, Pillow was named Most Valuable Gymnast both years she competed at John Randolph Tucker High School. While competing for Olumpiad, a private club team, she placed sixth in all-around in the USGF state meet in her senior year. She also qualified for the USGF regionals and eastern nationals.

Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Pillow of Richmond.

Johnson Earns Double Honor

Sophomore center Randy Johnson (Richmond), who gave the Lancer cagers exceptionally strong play inside in three recent victories, has been chosen as Longwood College Player of the Week, an award which goes to the top individual athlete in the total athletic program. In addition, Johnson was selected by the coaching staff as McDonald's Player of the Week, an honor which goes to the top men's basketball player of the week. This honor was awarded for play prior to January 21st.

A graduate of George Wythe High School, Johnson grabbed 36 rebounds and scored 43 points as Longwood defeated Southeastern 121-84, Webber 81-67 and Mary Washington 74-53. Coming on strong in recent weeks, the lefthander has upped his rebound average to 7.5 per contest and his scoring mark to 8.2. His rebound mark is 11.0 for the last five games.

A prime ingredient in Longwood's getting off to a 12-0 start, Johnson is hitting 58.5 per cent of his shots from the floor and 65.5 per cent of his free throws.

A three-year starter at Richmond's George Wythe High, Johnson earned awards as best rebounder and offensive player in his senior season. As a freshman at Longwood last year he led the team in field goal percentage and ranked as the third leading rebounder.

Majoring in Business Administration with plans to become an accountant, Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis T. Johnson, Jr. of Richmond.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN:

Mon-Thur 11 to 10 PM, Fri & Sat 11 to Midnight

104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Pillow Leads Gymnasts To Big Gains

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Freshman Sharon Pillow had four first places and one second place to help the Lancer gymnastics team overcome University of Maryland-Baltimore County 126 to 109.35 last Tuesday. This score is the highest ever by the Lady Lancer squad, breaking their previous 123.25 record over Western Carolina on December 1.

Pillow was first in All-Around competition with a 33.4. She was also first in vaulting, on the balance beam and floor exercises. Her second place was on the bars.

The freshmen again set a record at Longwood for individual standards for highest score in a single event. In this meet, Pillow had a 9.01 in vaulting. On December 1, she set her previous record with an 8.9 in this event.

Kathy Idelson was second in All-Around with 30.5. She had a fourth place in vaulting and bars, and a second in floor exercises.

Margie Fanton was third in All-Around with a 28.3. She had a second in vaulting, and a fourth on beam.

Other Lancers placing were Jean Powers with a third in vaulting, Sheila Gould with a third on bars, Karen Mazzonna with a third on the beam, and Marg Sanger with a third on the floor.

The Longwood gymnasts, again led by freshman Sharon Pillow, had outstanding performances last Friday night at Eastern Carolina in a tri-match to capture first place with 117.15 total points. ECU was second with 114.7 and Western Carolina University was third with 99.2.

Sharon Pillow was first All-Around with 31.3 points. She took all firsts in bars, beam, and vault. Her highest score, an 8.85, came on the vault.

Kathy Idelson was third All-Around with 28.8 points. Idelson was third on the beam, fourth on the vault and second on the floor, which was her best event, netting an 8.0.

Other Lancers who placed include Sheila Gould with a third on bars, and Margie Fanton with a second on vault and a third on the floor.

The team (5-1) seems well on its way to becoming one of Longwood's best. Thursday night the Lancers will host William and Mary at 7 p.m. and Saturday night they host James Madison at 2 p.m. These two meets will be tough competition to the talented, young team.

Page 7

THE ROTUNDA

Tuesday, January 29, 1980

Sharon Pillow displays form in floor exercises.

Photo by Jodi Gilbert

Lady Lancers Lose Several Close Contests

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Before Christmas break, the Lady Lancer cagers had a 4-3 record, but after some extremely close, and not so close losses, now have a 5-10 overall record.

The Lady Lancers dropped two contests and took their only after Christmas win to date during their Florida tour.

Bethune-Cookman (FLA), with an aggressive, tall team, leaped to an early lead for a 10 point spread at the half on January 3. Longwood could not overcome the gap, falling 57-66. Maryjane Smith led the Lancer offense and defense with 14 points and 10 rebounds. Cindy Eckel put in a strong show off the bench with 10 points and six rebounds.

The next night the Lancers played a tight game against Central Florida University. With a one point deficit at the half (35-36) the cagers saw a chance to pull out the game. CFU had other plans though, and went to the attack to win 71-57. Maryjane Smith continued to dominate Longwood's scoring and rebounding with 21 points and 11 rebounds. Brenda Fettrow was also in double figures with 16.

A determined Lancer team took the court in their final Florida contest against Eckerd College, crushing them 74-36. Three players hit double figures in the game. Maryjane Smith had 16, Lori Grimm 12, and Patty Lia 11.

Longwood completely dominated the boards with 64 rebounds to Eckerd's 38. Maryjane Smith pulled down 13 rebounds for the Lancers.

Coming off a strong win, the Lancers confidently hosted Davis and Elkins January 15. The contest was evenly matched with both teams vying for the lead. Yet, Davis and Elkins had pulled ahead five points by the half.

The Lancers had their work cut out for them with Smith and Fettrow leading the offense with 22 points and 21 points, respectively. The Lady cagers were able to get a two point spread in the final seconds of the game and began to celebrate what appeared to be a sure win.

The game was not over yet, as one of the visitors sent up a 20 foot "hoop" shot which dropped through the hoop, as the buzzer sounded. An overtime situation did not result because one of the Lancers fouled the shooter. With the scoreboard showing no time left, Davis and Elkins gained a 69-68 win at the charity stripe.

This loss might have been in the Lady Lancer's mind when they travelled to Bridgewater January 19. At the half Longwood was on top 28-26. The game remained close throughout the second half, but the Lancers could not quite grasp victory giving Bridgewater a 59-55 edge. Brenda Fettrow led the Lancer scoring with 15 points, while Maryjane Smith had 12 rebounds.

The next night Longwood was pitted against a strong James Madison team losing 55-68. Smith headed the scoring with 19 points and had 10 rebounds.

Another heart-breaker for Longwood occurred at Liberty Baptist January 22. Reminiscent of the Bridgewater contest the Lancers were on top at the half 29-28, and came out in the second half looking for a win to break their string of ill fortune. At one time the Lady Lancers commanded a 12 point spread. Yet, the Flames did not give up and capitalized on some outside shooting and Lancer mistakes to close the gap. During the final minutes several Lancer turnovers, fouls, and a loyal Liberty Baptist home crowd turned the momentum around and led the flames to a 63-61 victory. This Lancer loss, as in the Davis and Elkins game, was gained at the charity stripe.

Smith was high-scoring for Longwood with 21 points. Eckel came off the bench to add 14 more, along with Chris Romeo, who had 10 points in the contest. From the foul line, the Lancers were 15 for 17. Eckel, Romeo, and Smith were 100 per cent for the night at the line.

Under the boards Amy Gates and Smith each snagged nine rebounds. Eckel had seven.

The team returned home last Thursday night to host the Radford Lady Highlanders, falling 59-81. The Lancers could not get their shots into the bucket and were outscored 53-27. Three Lancers did hit double figures. Smith had 17 points for the night, followed by Fettrow with 14. Theresa "T.J." Ferrante came in the second half with a hot hand to score 11 points.

Tonight the Lancers host University of Richmond at 7:30 p.m.

IAA

The Intramural Activities Association got off to a great start this semester with a successful Song Contest. On January 23, each class met in the Gold Room and presented an original song with a blue and white theme. This year the senior class took first place. The red-white class has won song contest for the past four years. Their songs and spirit have always been exceptional and the IAA wishes them all luck in the future. The sophomores placed second, the juniors third, and the freshmen fourth. All of the classes had great songs and the IAA thanks everyone for their participation.

The activities for January and February are basketball, innertube water polo and foul shooting. Basketball started on Monday, January 28. Water polo starts on Thursday, February 7. Foul shooting begins Monday, February 11. Everyone is encouraged to participate in these activities.

Ron Orr: Pushing Longwood To The Top

By BETH LICARI

The excitement of all Longwood fans reaches to a high voltage full of screams and cheers from everyone's heart! The whistle is blown and exploding from the huddle is a lofty, multi-talented freshman with enough enthusiasm to fill every corner of the gym! That ball of fire is no one other than the towering 6'-6" center of Longwood's nationally ranked team. . . Ron Orr. Orr begins his first year at Longwood snatching eight rebounds and averaging nine points per game. Ron models his game after Larry Kenon of the San Antonio Spurs. "I like to play aggressive team ball," said Ron.

Ron always tries to find new ways to work harder and better himself mentally and physically. He'll be the first to admit that his defense and vertical jumps can improve and these are the two factors of his game that he is now striving to improve. Ron said, "By next year, I should be tougher. Fifty per cent better than now!"

Ron gives full credit for his college career to his performance on the basketball court. "Basketball was my means of getting into a good college" said Ron. Ron wanted to attend a college that was bucking for a top spot in the polls. He wants to be a main part of a growing team, such as Longwood.

On the court, Ron Orr tries to be himself. He always enters the floor with an attitude of fair game and of course winning! It was hard for Ron to adjust from high school to college basketball. He realized that college ball is more aggressive and physical. He also realized that a good mental condition is mandatory in order to succeed.

Ron feels that there is no real "superstar" on the team, "but Shack Leonard and Ken Ford are always there to give encouragement and advice, and Randy Johnson can always supply tips to make a good play work." The reason for the team's record being such a success, Ron believes is due to team unity from ALL the players. Ron also believes that Coach Bash places a lot of pressure on the freshman and transfers, but as Ron explains, "then again we are worth it!"

Elizabeth, New Jersey is a long way home for Ron and his high school and college teammate Joe Remar, but he keeps himself busy studying, playing ping pong, chess, backgammon, meeting new people and spending lots of his time in the gym improving his game in every way. Ron is a lover of adventure movies and all types of music from mellow to disco. As a major in Business Administration, Ron sees himself wearing a suit and tie and maybe someday in the near future owning his own 42nd street.

Ford Named

Junior Ken Ford, Longwood's leading scorer, has been selected as the McDonald's Player of the Week by the Lancer coaching staff. The award is presented weekly during the basketball season to Longwood's top male cager as chosen by Lancer coaches.

A 6-2 forward, Ford leads the Lancers in scoring and has been the team's top percentage shooter from the line and the floor for most of the season. He was chosen as Player of the Week on the basis of his performances in wins over Bowie State, Averett and Greensboro and a loss to Salem.

Perhaps his top performance came in the 76-75 loss to Salem last Tuesday. Despite playing against players with as much as a seven-inch height advantage, Ford grabbed 11 rebounds and scored 21 points as Longwood suffered its first loss of the season.

A gifted athlete with great strength and leaping ability, Ford is able to mix it up inside with taller players and pop in jumpers from outside. He is equally adept at scoring on the break.

Currently averaging 16.3 ppg., the junior from Shelby, N. C., has helped Longwood run up a 15-1 record, one of the best marks of any team in the nation.

THIS WEEK IN SPORTS

HOME GAMES:
Jan. 29	— Women's Basketball, Richmond, 7:30 p.m.
Jan. 30	— Men's Basketball, Bridgewater, JV - 6 p.m., Varsity - 8 p.m.
Jan. 31	— Gymnastics, Wm. & Mary, 7 p.m.
Feb. 2	— Men's Basketball, Southeastern, 8 p.m.
Feb. 5	— Women's Basketball, VA State, 7:30 p.m.

Management Team

(Continued from Page 1)
were the responsibilities of budget management, the Vice President of Administration, and the Vice President of Student Affairs.

Under Academic Administration, the team found that Longwood's academic program "lacks long-range direction and focus." They stated that the Dean of the College is overworked, the Dean's span of control is too broad, and communication between the Dean and faculty is weak on critical issues.

The team called for a study of the College's campus school program, saying that it "may no longer be needed." The school was initiated "to help recruit qualified faculty and staff; and to provide an enriching educational experience for Longwood's education and home economics students."

Other processes questioned under the Academic Administration were the need for the College catalog revisions, the need for a standardized pay plan for faculty members, and the control of travel funds for professional development. Under the Student Services Administration, the team found, "That the Vice President, by choice, assumes direct responsibility for many minor administrative details such as scheduling the use of meeting rooms..." They stated that Longwood needs a counseling program and a program for minority students.

They found that the new approach to student personnel programs in dormitories was an important first step; however, they questioned the long term role of the area coordinators. According to them, there is a need for better communication between the Director of Housing and the Admissions Office. They also challenged the structure of the student government saying that, "Responsibilities given to the judicial board and residence board may unnecessarily jeopardize board members."

In the area of the dining hall, the team found that the performance and operation of the food service should be reviewed. Next week's feature will include the management team's findings in Personnel Administration and Budget Management.

Army Life

(Continued from Page 5)

the idea that they can try it out. If they don't like it, they are under no obligation to enroll in ROTC even if they complete Basic Camp with flying colors.

"What we've found here at Longwood, Major Sullivan said, "is that once our students try us out, and discover how much ROTC has to offer now and for their futures, and once they find out how it helps build confidence, leadership, and gets them in shape, they want to enroll. We're proud to have them."

"This year seven Longwood students attended Basic Camp and four of them made the decision to continue in Advanced ROTC here at Longwood," SFC Jordan said. Two of these four students were awarded full ROTC Scholarships for their achievements while at Basic Camp. "James Wright and Pat Carnes did an outstanding job at Fort Knox last summer," Major Sullivan emphasized. "They proved they were physically fit and displayed outstanding leadership potential. These facts, coupled with their academic accomplishments here at Longwood, resulted in their scholarship awards," SFC Jordan added.

Not all who go to Basic Camp decide to continue with ROTC. Several Longwood students said they enjoyed the experience, but that was enough. "Advanced Military Science is not for everyone," Major Sullivan stated, "it is a personal decision, based on the student's realistic appraisal of his or her goals, needs, and opportunities!" "Basic Camp is just one of the opportunities ROTC provides students so they can make decisions concerning their future with 'ALL' the facts," SFC Jordan added.

If you might be interested in ROTC Basic Camp as a summer job or a chance to learn more about your future opportunities, stop by and talk with major Sullivan or SFC Jordan in the Military Science Department soon. You may be glad you did.

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

CLOSED WEDNESDAY MORNING

MINIATURE VALENTINE PORTRAITS

A Perfect Gift
For Family, Friends or Loved Ones

A Regular $29.95
Value $5.95

CALL NOW FOR AN APPOINTMENT

ROBERT T. FORE, PHOTOGRAPHY
PHONE 392-8710 119 MAIN ST. FARMVILLE, VA.

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET FARMVILLE VIRGINIA

—JUST ARRIVED—
DADDY'S MONEY

LADIES FASHION JEANS

REG. $15.95 NOW $10.00

Levi's

30% OFF

JEANS SHACK

WHOLESALE
CLOTHING CENTER
PHONE: 392-4876

JUST ARRIVED:
FELT & CORDUROY
WESTERN HATS
Price a fine selection of wool, felt or tweed country
VISOR DRESS CAPS

Entire Stock Men's & Women's
SWEATERS

- FLEECEWEAVERS
- WARMWEAVERS
- MOIST-WEAVERS

SALE! 1/2 OFF

Entire Stock Men's & Boy's
LEVI SHIRTS

- FLANNELS
- PLAIDS
- SOLIDS

SALE! 1/2 OFF

Ladies Levi
BLouses & TOPS

1/2 PRICE

WHILE THEY LAST
Ladies Levi
LINED JACKETS

1/2 PRICE

JUST ARRIVED! NEW SHIPMENT LADIES' PLOW BOY LEVI SHIRTS - Y-A-GOTTA-SEE 'EM!

YOU CAN'T BEAT BASIC DENIMS OR CORDS

● ADULT REG. STRAIGHT LEVI BLUE AND WHITE	15.50	● ADULT REG. STRAIGHT LEVI BLUE AND WHITE	13.50
● STUDENT STRAIGHT LEVI & BOY	14.50	● STUDENT STRAIGHT LEVI & BOY	11.50

$1.00 OFF
ALL LEVI'S JEANS
WITH LONGWOOD I.D.

Maureen is shaping the New Year

...with a new styled, shaped hair fashion just for you! For a cut that's "ready to go anytime, anywhere" ...visit Maureen today!

HAIRCUT & BLOWDRY

Please Present Longwood I.D. Card

$5.00

BJ's Styling Center
College Plaza Shopping Center, Farmville, Va.
Phone 392-HAIR

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1980

NO. 14

Capitol Outlay Projects Set

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Every other year Longwood submits a capital outlay request for planned projects for the upcoming three bienniums.

"This process takes a lot of planning," said Dr. William Peele, Vice President of Longwood College.

Roy Hill, Director of the Physical Plant, and Ivan Finney, Physical Plant Resident Inspector, along with Peele have a hand in the plans. The plans must go through many college and state committees before they become a part of the college budget.

Funding for proposed projects come from a variety of sources. General Funds consist of state tax dollars; Revenue Bonds are funds taken from the sale of bonds on which the state or college (depending on which institution is taking out the bond) pays back a certain amount each year; i.e. the state took out a Revenue Bond to finance the construction of Longwood's gymnasium complex. Auxiliary Funds are collected from student fees.

Any proposed projects which cost over $10,000 come under Capital Outlay.

In order of priority the college requested the following expenditures for 1980-82: 1) renovate Iler Gymnasium (cost: $650,000); 2) rebuild parapet walls on Dining Hall ($105,910); 3) Increase electrical service to Hiner Building ($47,758); 4) energy conservation ($65,313); 5) refurbish Jarman Auditorium ($249,583); 6) renovate French dormitory ($629,914); 7) construct Fine Arts Center ($781,465); 8) procurement of athletic and recreational equipment ($50,000); and 9) procurement of motor coach ($110,000).

All but three of these projects were accepted by the state. Those not approved were Iler Gym renovation, Jarman refurbishing, and the Fine Arts Center.

Iler was scheduled to become the headquarters of the Math Department. It would be a two floor facility with seminar rooms and the computer center on the first floor. The Math department, classrooms and library would occupy the second floor.

Jarman was to get new stage lighting, seats, and a floor. Peele said he was disappointed that this project did not go through because there had been no work on Jarman for 20 years.

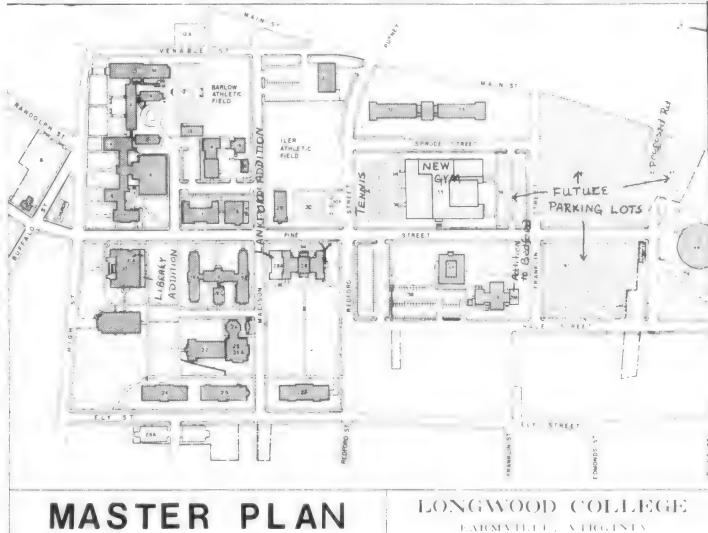

The proposed Fine Arts Center would probably be built with private funds, Peele indicated.

"There are foundations which only give to this type of facility," he said.

The Center would consist of a wing to the Bedford building. Its ground floor would include a photography laboratory, curator's office, storage and workshop rooms. The main hall would contain a permanent college gallery. The second floor would have a film research room and a lecture-film room.

"It takes a while for these types of facilities to be approved. You can be sure we will request them in other biennium" stated Peele.

All of the other projects were approved. The bus will be purchased with existing funds, the athletic equipment is needed for the new gym, and the rest are modernization improvements.

Ideas for upcoming years include an addition to Lancaster Library, which would extend the building to the sidewalk on the Mall; repairs to steam tunnels; renovation of the First Avenue property for academic purposes; construction of second and third floors of McCorkle, which was planned when the building was built; air condition Stevens and Hiner, renovate and air condition Grainger, equip and air condition the Home Ec. Building; and renovate North and Main Cunningham.

Peele explained that the State Council of Higher Education had guidelines for how many square feet a college could have for such areas as classrooms, general use and physical education facilities. There are a total of 15 categories. Therefore anything which exceeds these limits are unlikely to be approved.

This factor may be linked to the rejection of the Iler project and Fine Arts Center.

"We feel the library addition will pass because we have less space than we are allotted for this purpose, although nothing is automatic," said Peele.

Second In Series:

The Management Report

By MELODY CRAWLEY
(Editor's Note: This is the second article in a series of features explaining the report released by Governor John N. Dalton's Management team. The features attempt to summarize the report, and point out important findings and recommendations.)

Personnel Administration:

The Personnel Administration report can be summarized by saying that the employees of Longwood have a very low morale and feel that communication is limited.

Among the ten reasons for low morale was a lack of confidence in the personnel office, and the feeling that the Personnel director was "pro-administration."

The team found that, "Personnel policy developed by the Administrative Council is not communicated effectively to employees." They went on to say that most employees have very little input in policy decisions.

Recommendations from the team include developing a communications system insuring "a free flow of information," updating employee handbooks, and reorganizing of personnel functions structurally. They also suggest that the Personnel Director should be a member of the Administrative Council.

Under the subtitle of Compensation and Classification, the team found that Longwood's personnel felt they were understaffed. They also questioned the classification system of the employees. They recommended that a job evaluation program be developed.

Other recommendations under personnel administration included the implementing of an orientation program provided by the Department of Personnel and Training, improving the affirmative action program, and establishing a uniform personnel filing system.

Budget Management:

Longwood's budget development is the responsibility of the President and his committee which includes the four Vice-Presidents, the College Treasurer, and the Internal Auditor. This group makes decisions as to what should be

(Continued on Page 8)

Black Culture Heads Week's Activities

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

The Afro American Student Alliance has a very special week planned for interested Longwood students. From Monday, February 4, to Sunday, February 10, a series of speakers and activities are scheduled. This week of events is called Black Culture Week. The purpose of Black Culture Week is to educate the public of the black population's contributions to American society.

Monday night at 7:30, the week begins with an important speaker. Jack Gravelly, executive-secretary of Virginia's NAACP, will give a lecture in the Red and White Rooms of Lankford. This is a free event. Also free, Tuesday the 5th, is a fashion show. The models will be Longwood students, both male and female. It will be at 8:00 in the Gold Room. Wednesday evening at 8:00, also in the Gold Room, a concert will be given by John Bayley. This is a free activity. Thursday at 8:00 p.m., a small play production will be presented in the Gold Room. Further information for this affair could not be obtained. Friday night, Longwood will have the good fortune of having Sound Tech return. The dance will be held in the Lower Dining Hall. The tickets for Longwood students are $1.50, guests pay $2.00. Saturday in the Virginia Room, a banquet will be given at 6:30 for all those who wish to attend. The tickets are $5.00. The guest speaker will be Reverend John O. Peterson, President of the Virginia Christian Leadership Conference. To end this special week is a concert in Lankford at 8:00 p.m., given by the Longwood Gospel Choir.

Miss Adrienne Heard, a member of the Afro American Student Alliance, is the chairperson of this week's events. Adrienne deserves to be congratulated for organizing and arranging the informative, varied, and lively affairs of Black Culture Week.

AASA sponsored speaker, Stokely Carmichael spoke on development of All African People's Revolutionary Party.

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Alumni Speak Out

On Wednesday, February 6, the Office of Career Planning and Placement will sponsor an "Alumni Speak Out" Banquet. The banquet will feature five recent alumni as guest speakers, and they will be directing their discussions to the area of job opportunities, academic preparation, and job search "tips." The speakers will be drawing from their personal experiences as Longwood graduates and participation in the Virginia job market.

Among those speaking will be Jackie Singleton, a '79 graduate. Ms. Singleton was a Drama major, and is currently working as a Recreation Instructor for the City of Richmond.

Lyndi Chalkley graduated in 1978 with a degree in English Communications. She is working in Marketing for Dominion National Bank.

Anna Butler graduated with a degree in Biology in 1978. She is currently working at MCV (Continued on Page 8)

"On Broadway" Theme For Miss Longwood

By CHERYL WILCOX

The 1980 Miss Longwood Pageant is coming to Jarman Auditorium Saturday, March 15 at 8 p.m.

The theme for this year's pageant will be "On Broadway". Tickets for the pageant will go on sale beginning March 10 during lunch and dinner in the New Smoker.

The ten contestants in this year's pageant will be Julie Marie Baca of Fairfax, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority; Jane Haskins Bruce of Chesterfield, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity; Debra Marie Colbert of Chesterfield and Linda Venus Hitt of Lorton, both sponsored by Kappa Delta sorority; Melanie Jo Hudnall of Virginia Beach, sponsored by Sigma Kappa; Marjorie Gayle LaReau of Lynchburg, sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota Sorority; Karen Anne Parker of Hampton sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta; Mary Katherine Redmon of Hartfield sponsored by Sigma Sigma Sigma; Joanne Marie Segraves of Hamilton, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi; and Carolyn Ann Scully of Portsmouth, sponsored by Delta Zeta.

Share Your Opinions With SGA

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Student Government Association is providing a way for students to express their opinions through an old medium. Head Table, which has been used in past years will meet in the dining hall beginning Wednesday from 12 noon to 12:30 p.m.

Students are invited to stop by the table with questions and suggestions for improving student life. It will also be a time when students can voice complaints. It is the SGA's hope that Head Table will help to bridge the gap in communications.

Head Table will consist of Tammy Bird, Chairman of Legislative Board; Linda Wheeler, chairman of Residence Board; Sally Lowe, chairman of Judicial Board; Marjorie Croxton, Student Union chairman; Susan Towler, vice-president of Intermural Athletics Association; Brenda Feltrow, chairman of Orientation and Melody Crawley, Editor-in-Chief, The Rotunda.

Tammy Bird, chairman of Legislative Board and President of the Student Body, urges students to drop by with their questions. She adds that students are welcome to sit down with them.

The Head Table is located on the right side of the Dining Hall's main entrance.

Stokely Carmichael Recruits At Longwood

By JOCK MALLORY

On January 31 at 7:30 p.m., Stokely Carmichael was sponsored by the Afro American Student Alliance at Longwood. He was introduced by Miss Anita Ross, a student here.

Stokely Carmichael was born in Port of Spain, Trinidad on June 29, 1941. He was brought to the United States by his parents at the age of ten. An activist even in high school days, Carmichael participated in the late fifties marches on Washington D.C. over the issue of quality education. He graduated in 1960 from the Bronx High School of Science in New York. He continued his education at Howard University, graduating in 1964 with a major in philosophy. In 1971 he was awarded an honorary Doctorate of Philosophy Degree by Shaw University. He has traveled extensively in Africa, the Middle East, North Vietnam, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Europe, Canada, and the United States; meeting and working with people and expanding his knowledge about revolutionary movements. Stokely Carmichael recently changed his name to Kwame Toure. Some of Toure's activities include:

— The struggle for Civil Rights and Black Power in the United States, and for national liberation on the continent of Africa, the Caribbean, and Central and South America.

— The "Memphis to Montgomery March" in 1966 from which the cry for "Black Power" came, which reverberated around the world.

— The urban rebellions of 1967 and 1968 and the struggles to free the Civil Rights and Black Power movements from Zionist domination and control.

— He accepted an invitation from the Black Panther Party to attend a rally to free Huey P. Newton. The Panther leadership asked him to organize chapters across the world.

— In 1969, he resigned from the Panthers for ecological reasons.

Toure continues to travel throughout the world organizing and recruiting for the realization of the objectives of Pan Africanism "The Total Liberation and Unification of Africa Under Scientific Socialism" which when achieved will provide a concrete bases for all Black people throughout the world for total liberation rather than temporary conditions.

Toure spoke on the historical conditions which produce the inevitable development of the need for an All African People's Revolutionary Party. His main topic was "Truth." He stated that "truth" is objective and not what you think, but what it is. Toure made some very good points and that made these in attendance take a look at themselves as an individual. He labeled students as being conscious and unconscious. A conscious student is a student who achieves humanity where as an unconscious student may make an assumption, instead of finding out the true facts. In conclusion, Toure wants a college student to be aware of him or herself in today's society.

Council Is

Coordinating Body

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

What is the College Council? According to the recent management report it is "the major coordinating body of the College," and is one of "a variety of mechanisms for involving administrators, faculty and students in the decision making process." Its 16 members include the three vice presidents, the Assistant to the President, several top-management directors and staff assistants, members of the Faculty Advisory Committee, the Chairmen of Legislative Board and Residence Board, four class presidents. "Its broad membership makes the Council potentially valuable as a planning function (longrange academic mission, admissions) or a problem solver (Bookstore, dining hall)." According to the management report the council could be made more effective if its purposes were "expanded and formalized." The main purpose of the council, however, is to assist and "advise the President of the College on college policies and serves in a liaison capacity between the various constituencies of the College." The College Council was started in the year of 1969-70. The Council is now considering over 150 suggestions at its monthly meetings. It discusses the role of the Council, the long-range planning needed, and just about all of the things that Longwood College does.

Woodwind Quintet To Perform

The Richmond Symphony Woodwind Quintet, comprised of musicians from the Richmond Symphony, will perform at Hampden-Sydney College on Wednesday, February 6 at 8 p.m. in Johns Auditorium. The concert, which is part of the college's performing arts program, is free and open to the public.

Led by Ann Migdal who plays the oboe, the Woodwind Quintet is made up of Jonathan Friedman, bassoon; Judith Britton, flute; David Niethamer, clarinet; and Bryan Kennedy, French horn. All of the members are principal musicians with the Richmond Symphony. They will play compositions by Rameau, Francaix, Riegger and Danzi.

The Quintet's performance schedule is as varied as their selection. They have played for colleges and universities throughout Virginia, in numerous community concerts, and, in one instance, for a White House state dinner honoring King Hussein of Jordan.

Highlighted by polished solos, the Quintet blends excellence in musicianship and mastery of the instrument in their performances, guaranteeing the Hampden-Sydney listener a delightful evening of music.

Dancers Add Even More New Steps

The Longwood College Company of Dancers has again begun another semester of hard work, long hours, and a great devotion to the fine art of dancing. An exceptional amount of effort and time goes into the work and performances these ladies produce. They put forth much of themselves and much energy toward the development of their creativity and enhancing the public with the experiences that the fine arts have to offer.

The new officers of the company were installed this past week. Taking the position of President is Tracy Hormuth. Elizabeth Cardin will be acting as secretary-treasurer of the group. Adrienne Heard and Vanessa Baird will be working on Publicity as chairman and co-chairman, respectively. The area of Special Projects will be headed by Grace Anne Rogers.

New members were also chosen this past week. Joining the company are: Jan Jennings, Emily Bellwin, Travis Kidwell, Lisa Snellings, and JoAnne Kalarakis.

The active and devoted Company of Dancers deserves any rare recognition that the fine group of ladies can be given. The support of the college community is essential for their efforts to be successful.

For that special someone... Say it with flowers.

VALENTINE'S DAY IS FEB. 14

Rochette's Florists

112 N. Main St.
Farmville, Va.

Sea Level And Chris Bliss Get Students On Their Feet

By LISA SPENCER

Longwood students enthusiastically welcomed Sea Level and Chris Bliss to Farmville Wednesday night. Although Jarman Auditorium was barely three-fourths full, the crowd that was there enjoyed the show tremendously. The opening act, Chris Bliss, was a very unusual one. Chris juggled fluorescent tennis balls, scarves, and small mirror balls to the tunes of everything from the Beatles to Tchaikovsky. His rapidly-moving hands managed to hold on to most of the balls, although several of the front row fans had souvenirs to take home. Not only was his hand-work fancy, but so was his footwork. Chris controlled his black lights, strokes, and colored lights with his feet. Between numbers, Chris entertained by telling jokes and welcoming new members of his "Cult of the Blue Glasses" and his "Asshole Liberation."

By the end of Chris' performance, the crowd was already screaming for Sea Level. And they were not disappointed. Sea Level burst onto the stage and this jazz-rock band kept the crowd cheering all night. Sea Level played many familiar songs such as "King Grand" and "Living in a Dream," as well as a lot of their own material. Much of their music was instrumental.

Their entire performance was appreciated by the audience, but the biggest raves must go to the pianist. He rocked and jazzed on the keyboards until everyone was on his feet. The saxophonist was also received well for his solo.

By the end of their show, the crowd was on its feet the entire time. Hand clapping and yelling and screaming brought the band back for a final number. Sea Level was definitely a hit at Longwood.

Sea Level has recorded three albums to date. They are now signed with Arista records, and they plan to be releasing a new album around May. So Sea Level fans—get ready!

That Special Something

By BILL LeWARNE

The performance of Nina Kahle, who appeared in the Gold Room last Thursday evening, must surely rank as one of the highlights of Mardi Gras week end. It is seldom that we find such a diversity of talent, feeling, expression, or style in one performer, and even more seldom that we find in one the ability to share that uniqueness so easily with the audience.

It is difficult to describe Kahle's depth of talent without comparing her to others. Her singing voice has a quality that is reminiscent of Carly Simon, but with the infinite range of Karen Carpenter, and the gutsiness of Linda Ronstadt. Her mastery of the piano is incomparable. At times, her compositions seem to have almost classical overtones, but can snap from the intricate subtleties of one of her love melodies into the piano-shaking chords of its chorus in the space of one note.

But Miss Kahle is more than a talented singer and pianist (not to mention her flair for the dulcimer). She is a true entertainer. Behind every song is a story, often humorous, usually touching, but always full of an inner meaning for her, that she finds the need to express in song. And so, she doesn't just play for the audience, but for herself as well, and in so doing, provides a far more forceful and complete performance than others who stand back from their music when the song is over. For Nina Kahle, the music never stops.

Willie Tyler And Lester Come To Longwood

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

Willie Tyler, America's foremost ventriloquist-comedian, will be this February 9th, "Saturday Night Alive!" featured performer. Willie began his art of ventriloquism at the age of ten. He performed in schools and amateur contests held in the Detroit area where he grew up. Lester was "born" after he went into the Air Force where he worked in the local clubs in and around Detroit. From these appearances he got an audition for the Merv Griffin Show.—This was Willie's big "break" on National T.V. From this came The Flip Wilson Show, a regular spot on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In, to the Mike Douglas Show and the Tonight Show. He is also an actor and was featured in the film "Coming Home" starring Jane Fonda and Jon Voight. Willie and Lester's other T.V. appearances include commercials for beer, credit cards and for Maxwell House coffee which are currently being shown on National T.V. This is Willie's first time performing at Longwood College and he'll receive our usual pleasant hospitality. Don't miss seeing him or you'll never get to say "Gosh, I saw T.V. star's WILLIE TYLER AND LESTER."

Extrordinary Performance Adds To Weekend

By FRANK CREASY

One of Mardi Gras week end's more successful aspects appeared Friday night in the Lower Dining Hall. Bill Blue and his Band brought their unusual blues rock fusion before a packed house, providing everyone with another Student Union Treat.

The idea behind the affair was a pizza and beer party to accompany Bill Blue, and the trick worked to a tee. The audience soaked up a fair share of music, food and ale and the complaints were few and far between.

Those who frequent Hard Times in Richmond are familiar with "ol' Billy Blue," and he made believers of the others who were foreign to his act. Blue and Band used a steady driving rhythm which seemed to gush forth straight from the soul to captivate the spectators. The music perfectly suited the atmosphere, and the union of blues 'n' beer usually proves a delight to all. This instance was no exception.

From the outset it was obvious that this was not your ordinary performance. While a saxophone and trumpet dished up a blues background that was vital to the band, the real professional was clearly coming from lead guitar. With short, combed-back hair and black patent leather shoes, the guitarist proved that Billy Blue said—"white men can play the blues," too. The patent leather shoes stepped lightly over the tables while skillful fingers fretted and picked the strings. Even the facial expressions opened the window to the soul, from whence the blues sprang forth. Close your eyes, and you could swear it was old Lucille, B.B. King's favorite guitar, that tweaked at your insides.

One of the favorite songs, however, was not an "oldie but goodie," but was an original—"Lowdown Richmond Blues." This tune hit home to many in the crowd, while the rest probably inserted "Farmville" to identify with the song.

John Bayley will be featured in S-UN's spotlight Concert on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 8:00 in the Gold Room. Admission is free.

THE RETURN OF

SOUND TECH DISCO

FEBRUARY 8 — 9:00-1:00

LOWER DINING HALL

STUDENTS $1.50 GUESTS $2.00

The Office of Career Planning & Placement And The Afro American Student Alliance Committee invite you to a Seminar on

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES FOR MINORITY STUDENTS

Speaker: Dr. Alvin Anderson, Director of University Affairs, AN SA-Langley Research Center.

TUESDAY, FEB. 5, 1980, 12:45 PM
MAIN RUFFNER 306...PLAN TO ATTEND!!!

VERNON A. McCART CLAVICHORDIST

In A Lecture Recital

Reading Rooms, Lankford Building

THURSDAY, FEB. 7, 1980 - 1:00 PM

S-UN CLASSIC FILM FESTIVAL

FEB. 10-12

Red/White Rooms
Double Feature $1.00

SUN., 3 PM "All About Eve"
7 P.M. "Citizen Kane"

MON., 7 PM "Camille"
9 PM "Citizen Kane"

TUES., 7 PM "Camille"
9 PM "All About Eve"

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert, Joan Crumpton, Thomas Cole, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Susan Butlin, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strabell, Mark M. Sloan, Brenda Bonucelli, Sharon Janovich, Susan Towler, George Bennett, Bill LeWano, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Chuck Cole, Kathy Chao, Lynne Swan, Robie Reynolds, Jack Mallory, Jul Morton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Lican, Debbie Northern, Linda Paschall

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Are we bound to being monopolized?

Alarmed

Dear Editor,

Being a very well-rounded, very poor student at this school, I understand that buying books is mandatory for passing a class. And yes, I know that text books are expensive, but hey, I don't like being ripped-off! In some mix-up between the teacher of my class and Mr. Harper, not enough texts were ordered for the class. This was not my fault or the fault of anyone in the class (World Lit. II). Anyway, about half the students could not purchase the book at the beginning of the semester. We were promised that more would arrive soon. Well, they showed up last Thursday and when I went to obtain one I noticed that the price had jumped by almost three dollars! Now, I don't know what the policy is regarding the book store, but I don't feel that I should have to pay for someone else's mistake! What's going on here?

Signed,
Poorer but Wiser (wise enough to go Elsewhere

S-UN Thanks

Dear Students:

I'd like to take a minute to sit back and reflect on a very successful Mardi Gras Week end. This week end was only a success because of the hard work and dedication which the individual S-UN committee chairmen and their crews put forth. A special thanks also goes out to the S-UN technical personnel who played a vital part in this week end. The Longwood College Catalinas also deserve thanks for their excellent watershow performance Saturday afternoon.

Also, we owe our thanks to Mr. Inge and his entire staff for their hard work in preparing the excellent New Orleans Style Meal for last Sunday's lunch. It was definitely a treat and was enjoyed by all who were there.

Thanks again to everyone who made the 1980 S-UN Mardi Gras Week end a success and thanks to all of you students who supported it. Your continual support of S-UN events is appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
Jerry Richman
S-UN Vice Chairman

Letters to the Board

To the Student Body,

The Rotunda and the Student Government Association are sponsoring a monthly column entitled Letters to the Board beginning with the February 18 edition of The Rotunda. This is an attempt to improve communications between the Boards and the Student Body.

The letters should be written and submitted to either The Rotunda office in Lankford or Tammy Bird, chairman of Legislative Board by February 8. The letters will be answered by the Board at their meeting and the reply, along with the letter will be printed in the newspaper.

The letters must follow the same rules as Letters to the Editor. They must be typed and signed. The writer may request that his/her name not be printed.

The column will provide a chance for students to voice their complaints, ideas, and requests. If participation is high the column will be a monthly one.

A Request

From S-UN

Over the past few days, Mardi Gras Week end, over 3,000 people attended Student Union events. While the great majority who came were extremely well-behaved, a small number caused trouble at the doors for the Beer and Pizza Party and The Rocky Horror Picture Show. S-UN workers were harassed, yelled at, and even threatened. The Student Union asks you to consider a few facts.

1) S-UN workers are your classmates, hallmates, and friends and certainly do not deserve the abuse they receive.

2) Student Union members normally are not paid for working events. Usually the only pay is free admission to an event which they miss while selling tickets or beer.

3) Student Union members work long hours to prepare for events for your enjoyment. For example, the mixer committee works usually from 2 p.m. until 2 a.m. with only a dinner break. Furthermore, the work is hard, physical work—moving tables and carrying technical equipment.

4) The Student Union is required to abide by Virginia ABC laws. Failure to comply could result in loss of ABC license—in other words, no events with beer available, including mixers.

5) In compliance with ABC laws, S-UN is required to check IDs at the door of any event at which beer is available. Guests of LC students must be able to prove they are of age. These are state laws, not S-UN whims.

6) S-UN workers are members of Longwood College. Please do not ask them to violate the Honor Code by letting you sneak yourself or your illegal booze into an event.

Many students who were rude at the doors of events this week end were those who wished to attend events which were sold out. Please do not blame S-UN workers for your failure to buy tickets which had been on sale for five days.

The Student Union would like to thank those of you who attended our events during Mardi Gras week end. We hope that the student body will continue to support and enjoy our programming. Once again, the S-UN heartily appreciates your patronage. At the same time, we would ask more; we would ask your consideration.

Thank you,
Concerned S-UN Members

PRESS CONFERENCE
February 12,
1980

Lower Dining Hall 12:45 PM

Editor's Turn

Time is drawing near again for one of the most favorite activities at Longwood — Housing Assignments. Everyone just loves the mile long lines of number draw, room sign-up, and the waiting lists. But, wait a minute — there's another problem to solve before we can talk about those activities. Where are we going to put everyone?

Meetings are being held this week by the Director of Housing, Tom Nanzig, in each dormitory to hear students views on how it should be handled this year. The meetings began on Monday night and will continue through out this week. He has already met with Residence Board to discuss issues with them.

The trend in thinking among students is to return to freshman housing. The freshman class this year has taken a poll among themselves which shows the majority of them feel that freshmen should be housed together.

This year marked the first year that Longwood has not had freshman housed together. The decision last year was a very controversial one which ended with only one freshman dorm, Tabb. (North Cunningham was designated as a male freshman dorm but was changed during the summer to a female dorm.)

Why is freshman housing so important? There are several reasons that have been thrown out by upperclassmen who remember those days. Students feel that it provides for class unity and good communications. It also keeps the freshmen from feeling left out — they have the same problems and are usually better problem solvers than us, upperclassmen, who are always scurrying off somewhere to do something for someone.

It just always seemed like a natural thing to have freshmen together — until last year!

Now, we must consider the one disadvantage to going back to freshman housing — that is the Sophomore waiting list. Last year's transactions took care of that dreaded problem for the sophomores. But, now, with the reconsideration of former plans, the Class of 1983 will again be the one's to pay. They were the ones who did not receive the experience of being housed together, were thrown in as the only freshman in a suite, were tripled up in rooms only meant for two people, and now, if freshman housing is resumed, will be put on waiting lists after all the rooms are taken probably not knowing where they will be living until next August.

Yes — that's it! There are just no ends to the problems that occur around here. Maybe this year we will be able to come up with a solution to Longwood's housing problem that will stay the same for at least two years. (Maybe more!)

Commentary

Pot Can Ruin Your Life

By Dr. Mark G. Weatherly

Associate Professor of Education

During the past several years I have been very much concerned about the smoking of marijuana by adolescent young people and more recently by children in our elementary schools. In my role as a supervisor of student teachers for the past ten years I have witnessed an alarming number of secondary students smoking pot right on the school campuses. I have seen more students than I can remember enter the classroom absolutely stoned. The problem has not diminished. It has spread like a cancerous growth right on down to the youngster in our lower schools. It is more dangerous than alcohol.

With the fervent hope that you will read this letter and give very serious thought to the consequences of smoking this insidious drug, I wish to apprise you of the very latest findings based on close clinical studies.

Dr. D.H. Powelson, at the University of California's Berkeley Campus, is Chief Psychiatrist at the University Hospital. He has only recently made some very profound statements about the use of pot. Here are some of his words and findings: Bear in mind, if you will that being on a university campus, he sees a very large number of students. "After seeing more than 1,000 patients, I have come to believe that marijuana is the most dangerous drug we have to contend with today." What makes this statement so very profound is that only a few years ago this same Dr. Powelson was one of the nation's leading advocates for the legalization of marijuana. He used it himself and was quoted in hundreds of newspapers and appeared on TV to lend it credibility. He has in less than five years admitted that he was dead wrong in what he did.

Mr. Powelson has completely reversed himself. He says that extensive world wide tests back up his conclusion that pot "can cause sometimes irreversible brain damage, lung damage, a greatly weakened immunity system and birth defects."

The doctor goes on further to say they have found that it can adversely affect the reproductive systems of both male and female adolescents. It causes chromosomal damage as well as personality changes and disorders. Marijuana's effects on the brain are actually much faster than alcohol. It is a very serious threat because it is so common and easy to obtain and because there are many ignorant adults who are persuading young people that it is harmless.

We now know that heavy or even moderate use of pot causes apathy, shortened attention span and a significant loss of motivation. When young people smoke it regularly for only three years it can cause irreversible insult to the brain and other organs. It has been found that smoking only one joint daily or even two or three a week can be extremely dangerous without the smoker realizing it at the time.

Extensive experiments have been carried out with Rhesus monkeys, the type most like man, to determine if brain damage that would account for the clinical changes we see in human beings does result from the use of marijuana. The researchers now state unequivocally that significant permanent changes occur.

The long term use of marijuana actually alters the structure.

Dr. R.C. Heath, chairman of the Department of Psychiatry Neurology at Tulane University, adds that the rapid rise of pot users who are now in mental hospitals comprise the largest single category of the mentally ill.

Lab tests on female Rhesus monkeys, which ovulate like human females, result in a significantly higher mortality rate in pregnancies. These effects range from delayed conception to sterility, still-births and early infant mortality. We have found that sex hormones, both male and female, are disrupted. As little as one dose of THC, one of the most dangerous components of marijuana, affects fertility which can have permanent impact on an adolescent young person.

We have also found that among adolescents (13 to 19 years) that this crippling drug destroys motivation, damages short term memory, the capacity to learn and has caused impaired speech.

It has created a kind of sexlessness. There is positive proof that this habit demands stronger and stronger dosages which creates a psychic addictiveness. The effect of pot on the lungs is up to ten times as damaging as that of tobacco.

The recent research entitled Marijuana: Biological Effects: contains over eight hundred pages of scientific data. This research completely and conclusively destroys the media propaganda that pot is harmless.

Pot has a residual effect. Small quantities of it remain in the brain and genital system for long periods of time. It finally contributes to impotence.

Finally, this dangerous drug is now being smoked by children in elementary schools. Some of the lower school students themselves are pushing it! It has been discovered that school children as young as nine years of age have been smoking it before, during and after school. It has become a billion dollar industry that must be stopped. The latest figure denotes that about ten per cent of our children are on marijuana regularly!

Let there be no doubt that marijuana can ruin your life and resultantly the lives of others as well including the children you will procreate. It is a subtle invidious killer. I have seen and heard with my own eyes and ears the confessions of young people who were finally hooked on this drug. It can lead one only to eventual ineptness and sorrow.

If you are smoking marijuana, stop and very seriously consider the final repercussions and repudiate the practice before your body and mind is further damaged.

American Soaps

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

Tuesday, January 29, Longwood students, mostly females, had the pleasure of listening to and talking with one of today's leading authorities on soap operas, Jane Kutler. Ms. Kutler was an avid soap opera fan in her college days. She attended classes at Ohio State University and scheduled her day around the afternoon soaps. When Ms. Kutler graduated from Ohio State, she went to work as associate editor of the magazine "TV Dawn To Dusk". She then became editor of "Daytime TV".

Why would someone want to make soap operas a career? Jane Kutler, along with millions of others, feels that these daytime TV shows are very educational and informative. Now, soaps are even being used for therapy. To some people, seeing how others deal with problems similar to theirs, is very beneficial. And college courses are being taught concerning soap operas. Many of the actors on the shows feel that soap operas are worthwhile. They take great pride in their line of acting. Although, other actors are very much against them. These actors use soap operas as stepping stones to "bigger and better" things, such as movies and the theatre.

The soap opera is a very popular form of TV program, because the writer knows how to handle the audience. The scripts play upon the viewer's curiosity. It is a technique called "cliff-hanging". The episode will end with a major dilemma unsolved, or a suspenseful question unanswered. This method is not new. In fact it is as old as the ancient Greek, Homer, and Charles Dickens. Both of these men used this style of writing to keep their audiences entertained.

The first soap opera to make it from radio to TV, therefore being the first daytime TV soap opera, was "The Guiding Light" in 1953. During the past 27 years of soaps, the subject matter has been unlimited. They include everything and anything. Abortions, divorces, rapes, major operations, death, child abuse, nothing has been omitted. The one and only topic not yet introduced on daytime TV is incest.

The term "daytime TV" includes talk shows and game shows. They are shown five days a week, from 11:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m. The daily nationwide viewers totals 15 million plus. Because of this overwhelming loyalty of the public, the daytime TV shows support nighttime television.

Along side with this surprising statistic is another. Seventy nine per cent of all revenue in the major networks is brought in by soap operas alone. How is this possible?

It is possible simply by advertising. At present fourteen soap operas are aired daily. It costs $68 million a year to produce these fourteen shows. The production companies then sell their rights to the major networks for $175 million. The big name sponsors, like Procter and Gamble or Screen Gems Films, pay the networks an astronomical price to run one minute of their commercials. For one minute of advertising on national TV, the sponsors will pay $22,000. This is four times the amount of five years ago. Five hundred, forty hours a year are used in commercials during soap operas. From these many hours of advertising, the networks bring in $725 million. This, remember, is just in advertising during soap operas. In this way the networks make an annual profit of $550 million.

Up there along with the high cost of advertising, is the high cost of the actor's salary. A starting actor and actress will make $20,000 annually. The more well-known they become, the higher the actor's salary is raised. Many of the well-known soap opera actors and actresses are making $500,000 per year. Great business to go into, huh?

If you are willing to put in a good lifetime's work, it is. The actors receive their scripts three days before the taping of the show. This is for the half hour shows. The hour long shows take two-three weeks to film. The day of filming is a confusing blur of blocking, memorizing, and putting on make-up. It requires a tremendous amount of work and dedication from the actors and some help from the soap opera fans.

The viewing audience is very important to the outcome of an episode. The viewer becomes very involved with the character. They study the situation, how the character handles it or solves it, and soon the character is a member of the family. If the audience sees the story leading to a crisis or situation they don't agree with, the writer may change his course. Most likely he will, if he doesn't he will lose his audience. Viewers' reactions are very important.

Jane Kutler's viewing and participating audience this night was a very lively one. Her mostly

(Continued on Page 7)

Catalog To Come Out On Time

By BILL LeWARNE

One of the findings of the Dalton Management Team that directly concerns the welfare of the student body deals with the College Catalog. As most students are aware of, the catalog is a manual for the different academic programs and the requirements of each major. Of course, to be useful, the catalog should be available at least before Fall registration begins, and would be more beneficial if completed early enough to provide prospective freshmen with copies.

However, as the team pointed out, this year's catalog "was not completed, printed, and distributed to the College community until two and a half months after this Fall's orientation and registration." This naturally contributed not only to confusion at registration, but made it virtually impossible for faculty members to confidently or accurately advise students on major requirements and "academic procedure."

Compounding this evident lack of farsighted judgment on the part of the administration was the discovery that this was not an isolated lateness. The catalog has been published "habitually late" for at least the past four years, rendering it virtually worthless as far as an aid to student scheduling.

Chronic lateness itself is enough to question the planning behind the catalog, but even when finally printed, it contained enough mistakes and oversights to even further decrease its value. The 78-79 catalog revealed that "discussion of an entire academic major was omitted" and that many courses covered in the manual are not even being taught this year, "calling into question the planning and reviewing of the document."

The team decided that the diffusion of responsibility for the manuscript (divided among the Registrar, the Dean, the Academic Policies Committee, and the Director of Public Affairs) was contributory to the delay, and recommended that the registrar assume full responsibility for the catalog. Furthermore, a "rolling calendar of classes to be taught in succeeding years" should be instituted which would indicate which semesters courses would be taught and would follow a definite timetable.

Apparently this is one instance in which the administration has taken the recommendations to heart. The responsibility for the catalog now lies with Mrs. Sandra Bollinger, the recently appointed registrar. Mrs. Bollinger has already made plans to insure the 80-81 catalog's timeliness, and is tentatively predicting on an August 1 delivery date. This was specified in the print bid, and should insure the catalog's availability when students arrive for the Fall semester. There of course has not been enough time to totally replan the manuscript in order to follow the suggested rolling calendar, but Mrs. Bollinger stated that responsibility for each area's accuracy would probably eventually lie with the department heads. However, inaccurate or obsolete material will be deleted from the upcoming catalog, and any new policies or changes will be included.

Woods To Speak

"Apocalypse Now," Francis Coppola's controversial film about the Vietnam war, will be the subject of a talk today by William C. Woods, Assistant Professor of English.

This latest event in the Department's Seminar Series will be held in the Lower Dining Hall at 4:15 p.m.

Wood's presentation — entitled "Rumors and Random Intelligence" — will explore the links between the film and its fictional prototype, Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness. Woods will also discuss the aesthetic problems of "imagining a war," and examine some structural relationships between film and fiction in general.

"Apocalypse Now," which has been playing nationwide since its September New York opening, is expected to arrive at the State Theater in Farmville in early March.

Refreshments will be served a half-hour prior to the talk. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The Fabulous Four O. T. (Orlando Turner), Phil the Thrill (Jim Sixsmith), D. J. (Darrell Jenkins), and Ponch (Joe Goydish).

The Fabulous Four! (Who Are They?)

(Editor's Note: The Fabulous Four were a big factor in Saturday's thrashing of Southeastern by a 118-85 count. Darrell Jenkins was high scorer for the Four with twelve points).

By BETH LICARI

FAME, GLORY . . . a little playing time? "Playing time," that phrase seems to be a big joke for four very talented and surprisingly enthusiastic players on Longwood's varsity basketball team.

Joe Goydish, Darrell Jenkins, Jim Sixsmith and Orlando Turner are all new students here at Longwood and to the basketball team. They anxiously sit on the bench ready to put everything they know on the court and show Coach Bash and Coach Schoepfer that they can also be leaders of the team. Each of these guys has various hidden skills that have yet to be shown off to the fans as well as the coaches. Their attitudes toward the basketball team and college life reflect humor and seriousness in their individual write-ups.

Joe "Ponch" Goydish, a 6-0, 170 pound, 19-year-old, sophomore transferred to Longwood from Union Community College in New Jersey. Ponch heard of Longwood, during his freshman year, through a basketball scout who visited Union.

Ponch heard Longwood was small, in good academic standing, and realized that if he was going to play college ball, Longwood would be, as he put it "my last fling."

During his year at Union, Ponch averaged 12 points per game. During his high school years at St. Patrick's High in New Jersey, Ponch was captain of his varsity team for three years. Ponch was also involved in baseball throughout high school. During his senior year he was awarded the Sportsmanship Award and totaled the highest batting average for the season.

Ponch enjoys western, mystery, and old army movies; Bruce Springsteen, and rug hooking. Ponch also stated that he's a lover of "good wine and good women." Off the court, Ponch uses his time at Longwood working hard and studying. As a History major, Ponch sees his future as teaching history and coaching his own basketball team.

Fourteenth-Ranked Lancers Continue Hot Streak

By SUSAN BUTLIN

The Longwood Lancers entered the week of January 28th sporting a 15-1 record and the fifteenth-ranking of NCAA Division III teams. They completed a very successful week, picking up three more victories including a 118-85 thrashing of Southeastern University on Saturday night. They also moved up one notch to become the 14th ranked Division III team.

Bridgewater College invaded the French Gym on Wednesday night only to be handed a 69-51 setback to the Lancers. This victory coupled with an earlier JV victory over Bridgewater by a 92-83 count, sent Lancer fans on a natural high.

Without a doubt, the Lancers

Ponch is a real "hot dog" on the court. He likes to have fun in the game. Ponch models his style of game after Jerry Sloan of the Chicago Bulls.

Joe excepts the fact of his limited playing time for now, but as Ponch puts it "I don't always agree with Coach Bash's decisions, but he's winning." "I'd like to be contributing more to the team" says Ponch. "I hope that Coach Bash realizes that he has on his hands, a solid fundamental sound basketball player." When asked if he's returning to the team next year, Ponch simply said "I'm bringing my sneakers with me, whether they'll be for jogging or basketball is up to Coach Bash."

Darrell "D.J." Jenkins, a 6-3, 170-pound, 18-year-old freshman is another New Yorker on Longwood's team. D.J. attended Andrew Jackson High School in New York where he was first contacted by Coach Bash to attend Bash's former college team Stony Brook (NY). When Bash transferred to Longwood, D.J. was still interested in working under Bash, so he decided to attend Longwood also.

During his years at Andrew Jackson, D.J. achieved All-Queens and All-City honors in New York. D.J.'s possession of a powerful jump enabled him to snatch 8 rebounds and average 14 points per game.

D.J., being very shy and quiet, can always be found with lots of friends wherever he goes. He explains his life here at Longwood so far as being "just plain old happy." D.J. enjoys science-fiction movies, stories with happy endings, and playing miniature golf. He keeps himself busy at Longwood jogging, reading and socializing.

D.J. plans to get a degree in Business Administration and Management and after graduation, a few years in the military service. D.J. plans to be the owner of the largest business firm in the U.S.

D.J. gives an impression of being patient and understanding with Coach Bash's decision about one amount of playing time he receives. "When I came to play Longwood ball" says D.J. "I knew I'd be starting over again." D.J. keeps pushing hard because he believes by next year he will be more experienced and will see a starting position in the very near future.

Jim "Thrill" Sixsmith, a 5-10, 155-pound, 19-year-old freshman had never heard of Longwood until he was contacted by Coach Bash during his senior year at Holy Family High School in North Babylon, N.Y.

During his time at Holy Family High, Thrill was awarded All-Catholic, Private, and Public honors by the North Babylon newspapers. He was also awarded the Huntington Trophy, numerous certificates, and achieved MVP in his senior year. Thrill accented his high school team with a wopping average of 28 points per game.

Other than basketball, Thrill enjoys army and comedy movies, and southern rock such as Neal Young. With the few spare hours Thrill has to himself, he works, studies, or goes out to have a good time.

Thrill, as a major in business, in the future plans on getting a good job that will put him in a nice income bracket.

Thrill's specialties on the court include ball handling and long range shooting, but he believes his whole game will improve with time. Thrill doesn't model himself after any great ball players. As Thrill puts it "I play like Jim Sixsmith!" Thrill is a firm believer that if he received the time on the court that the others do he would be just as good, if not better.

"I'm coming back here to play next year" says Thrill, "and Coach Bash is gonna have a hard time getting rid of me. I'm gonna show him!"

Orlando "O.T." Turner, a 6-3, 160-pound, 19-year-old freshman comes to Longwood from Springfield Gardens High School in Queens, N.Y. O.T. was first contacted by Longwood's former, coach Bill McAdams. Finding that he had left, O.T. still attended Longwood to be under the coaching of

In his past years of basketball at Springfield Gardens High, O.T. received honorable mentions to the All-City and All-Queens teams. O.T., a smooth shooter averaged 12 points per game for his high school team.

O.T. found everyone surprisingly friendly here at Longwood. And, being as outgoing as he is, O.T. adjusted to college life just fine. O.T. enjoys dancing, roller disco, and girls' company. O.T., as a major in Business Administration also, plans on becoming a Certified Public Accountant in the future.

O.T. gets the charisma of his plays from not just one superstar but picks bits and pieces of everyone and as O.T. puts it "gets 'em on!" "I believe I'm just as talented if not better than some of the guys on the team" says O.T. "but Bash overrides my talent for experience."

O.T. seems to get more and more discouraged about playing on the team next year but it doesn't show in games or practices. "I get discouraged" said O.T. "but I improve by working harder and harder."

Despite any conflicts with Coach Bash about his low playing time O.T. still holds great respect for him. O.T. can't understand why he's sitting down, and sometimes he believes he's losing his confidence about being a good ball player. But, no matter how high or low O.T. may seem, he still strives hard for a starting position on the team.

Learning For The Future

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The job of co-captain is a big responsibility, as junior Lancer Linda Pullen (Gainesville) has discovered. Yet, she feels being co-captain will give her greater insights into dealing with players for her future career as a coach.

Besides serving as a vital link between the team and the coach, Linda is busy absorbing in intricacies of play on the court for future use. She is molding together philosophies from her Brentsville District High School coach Diana Dryer, Lancer coaches Earlene Lang and Carolyn Hodges and Longwood assistant coach Jane Miller.

"I really admire my high school coach Diane Dryer," said Pullen. "She took a young team and brought it to the championship by my senior year. She was my inspiration for going into Health, Physical Education and Recreation. She was not only a coach, but a friend. In other words, a 'perfect' coach."

During her first two years at Longwood, the team played freestyle on offense. Now, the team runs set plays and Linda has learned to find the open man, especially cutting through the middle of the key.

Reflecting back on her basketball years, Linda has seen many changes, especially from her high school play to college ball.

"I started playing on a basketball team in the eighth grade. It was the first year the junior high had a team," Linda recalls. "I was the tallest person on my teams until my senior year when a girl my height (5-10) transferred to my school."

"In high school I played center. As the tallest player I could just reach for the ball, but coach Dryer trained me to jump."

Pullen has found greater challenges in college where the play is getting more and more physical. College teams have more height, so Linda has moved to the forward position.

"When I came to college I was too short to play center. Soon, I'll be too short to play forward," says Pullen.

Not only does Linda take her Physical Education major seriously, she also concentrates on her job on the court as a starter for the Lady Lancers. She is averaging 4.9 points and 3.3 rebounds per game, despite having to adjust to contact lenses (after having worn glasses) and playing with a weak knee.

Even though she feels the pressure of the game, Linda says she would hate to see college basketball change into a business.

"I still enjoy the game. It should be recreational and fun, but taken seriously. When I don't enjoy it any more I'll quit playing."

Linda hopes women's basketball will continue to get stronger with more talented players and taller players. She is not, however, as concerned with the development of professional or large college teams as much as with the small college teams.

During her three years at Longwood she has seen women's programs grown at several schools, such as Liberty Baptist, which beat Longwood 63-61 on January 22.

After losing several close games, the Lady Lancer team has met with frustration in recent weeks. Linda feels the enthusiasm and team work which was exhibited at Liberty Baptist will motivate the team and bring them back on top.

"Everyone is trying so hard—maybe too hard, but they realize they can't give up," she said.

After graduation, Pullen's goals include first becoming an elementary or secondary school basketball or softball coach. She hopes to return to school eventually to work on a Masters and ultimately a Doctorate in Physical Education.

With the talent and leadership she has shown on the floor and her sensitivity to both players and coaches, the Gainesville native will most likely achieve her ultimate goal of becoming a college basketball coach. While Linda is enjoying her college life on and off the court, she is also learning for the future.

Coach Harris Has Seen Women's Roundball Grow

By HOKE CURRIE

Fifteen years ago, Bette Harris made $5 per game officiating girls' high school basketball. Today, she takes home $75 for doing top Division I women's college contests in North Carolina and Virginia.

Much like the women's game itself, Harris has come a long way, Baby. She is one of only 43 officials with a national rating in basketball officiating for the National Association for Girls' and Women's Sports. Harris, Longwood College field hockey coach and assistant professor of Physical Education, has had 17 years' experience as a roundball ref.

After starting as a high school official in the early 60's, Harris has risen to a level of prominence matched by only a handful of whistle-toters nationwide. She worked the 1978 national finals in Pauley Pavilion between Maryland and UCLA, the first nationally televised women's collegiate contest.

With her wealth of experience officiating, the Fishersville, Virginia native qualifies as something of an expert on women's roundball. She has seen the game develop from the slow-moving, defensive-oriented style of the 60's to the fast-paced, run and shoot style of the 70's and 80's.

"It's great to have seen the change in the women's game," said Harris, an avid fan of a variety of men's and women's sports. "The coaching is so much better now for women's teams, and the players are able to do things we never thought they'd be able to do."

"The players have so much more knowledge and versatility today," she continued. "They're playing a different style game. Probably the biggest area of improvement is in body control. It's not that it hasn't been there. It's just that you have to have the coaching that allows it to develop. Women players are getting that kind of coaching now, at a much earlier age than before."

Harris sees the development of the women's college game in the increasing fan interest, and the performance of teams like Old Dominion.

"I've seen the change from 20 interested parents sitting in the stands to a couple of thousand excited fans looking on," said Harris. "That's a drastic change. We're not going to have capacity crowds now, but as we grow and get more opportunities this will improve."

"Teams like Old Dominion are calling attention to themselves because they play good basketball, not just good women's basketball," she explained.

The veteran official, who holds a Doctorate in Education from UNC-Greensboro, says it is much more exciting and challenging working women's games now.

"It's exciting to see women competing with high skill level and good coaching," she said. "There used to be just a few of those games. Now there are lots. The games are also much tougher to work than they used to be. You have to be in great shape physically. I just finished my 2½ mile jog this morning," said Harris, who runs regularly.

She sees several causes for the growth and development of women's roundball. The establishment of a national championship in the early 70's, the women's movement and Title IX, the removal of some of the myths about women not being able to do certain things, the rules that women collegians play under, all these things have had a hand in the growth of the game.

"Simply having a place to go at the end of the season has made a big difference," she pointed out. "Before the early 70's, there was no national title to work toward. When national tournament was begun it created a lot of incentive."

"At the heart of the whole thing has been the Women's Movement and the influence of Title IX," Harris continued. "We've been able to dispell some of the myths that women can't do certain things in athletics. Once we got past those stereotyped barriers, we could begin to look at athletes as athletes, not as men or women."

While girls' high school basketball is played under the same basic rules as boys' high school and men's college basketball, the rules of the women's college game are much more like those of pro basketball.

You won't find any slowdowns or 7-0 halftime scores (Duke-UNC 1979) when women's team from say Virginia and Virginia Tech get together. Why? Because of the 30 second clock which dictates that each team get off a shot within 30 seconds or lose possession.

As Harris points out, there are many additional rules differences between the men's and women's game on the college level. For example, there is no backcourt violation in women's roundball; it is much more difficult to draw a charge (blocking being the usual call); technical fouls can be called on defenders who yell or clap while an opponent is shooting; also, walking or traveling is called much tighter.

With the differences in men's (Federation) rules and women's (NAGWS), it is difficult, if not impossible, for officials to cross over and call both men's and women's games.

Harris, who coordinates the national rating teams for NAGWS, is one of only four refs in Virginia with a national NAGWS rating. She points out that of the 43 officials who have earned a national rating, less than half are women.

"We have very few women who still officiate," said Harris. "That's one of the reasons I'm still at it. I want to see women continue to be involved with officiating."

With her coaching and teaching responsibilities at Longwood taking much of her time, Harris is finding less and less time for officiating, but she doesn't want to give it up.

"It's a real challenge to keep up with the level of play now," she explained. "It's so much better than it was. There's some ego involved too. I enjoy being tested by the different situations that come up."

Perhaps the most pressure-packed situation Harris has faced was when she worked the 1978 National Finals. With a crowd of 10,000 plus a national television audience watching, Harris felt the pressure probably as much as the Maryland and UCLA players did.

"The pressure was fantastic," said Harris. "The fact that the game was being televised didn't concern me. It's just that there is pressure to make sure your performance as an official is equal to that of the players."

Harris' reputation is evidence that she has responded well to such pressure over the years. The veteran official does have one regret, however.

"I wish I were 15 years younger," she said. "There are so many places to go now and high level games to call. I have a great interest in officiating."

Wrestler's Win!

By FRANK CREASY

Longwood's wrestlers came up with their first win of the season last week, downing Virginia Union by a score of 30-27.

The match proved to be a comedy of forfeits, as Longwood gave away two weight classes while accepting three from Virginia Union. Only five matches were wrestled. Although the Lancers dropped three of those five, two pins, combined with the forfeits, gave them the edge to come away victorious.

Steve Shennet won his fourth match in a row at 150, decking his opponent in the first period. Longwood's only other win came at 167, where Gary Ferris, wrestling over his weight, flattened his man with just one second left in the first period.

As the season draws to a close, the Lancers have one home match remaining. That will be against arch-rival Hampden-Sydney on Feb. 12.

Soaps

(Continued from Page 5)

girl audience knew the characters well. Ms. Kutler showed slides with actors from the soaps. She related stories of backstage romances, and real life occurrences. The girls were just as involved with the personal lives of the people as they were with the actor's soap opera life. As the evening progressed and the girls became more relaxed, they began to participate and ask questions. Like the following: Does Scottie get killed and Luke and Laura get married? Did Erica go to Hollywood on the show to really leave to have her baby? They received some answers, but according to Jane Kutler, the world of soaps is just as mysterious to the actors as it is to the audiences. The writers just "ride with the tide". This may be the element that makes soap operas such a fascinating subject. Ms. Kutler surely made it seem exciting. She knew her material well, and related it to the students in an understandable interesting fashion. Who knows? Maybe one of Longwood's young students will end up here teaching a course on the American Soap Opera.

Longwood Gymnast Karen Mazzonna demonstrates a power move on the beam. Photo by Jody Gilbert

Lady Lancers Win And Lose

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Lancers notched a win at home and a loss on the road to set their overall record at 6-11.

Last Tuesday night Longwood blew out University of Richmond 87-57 at home. The Lancers had an easy time over their opponents who were 0-11 coming into the contest.

The early moments of the game were close, but the Lancers took a 10 points spread at the half, 46-36.

Longwood fired in six unanswered points at the start of the second half and held Richmond to two points in the first four minutes. The Lancers' biggest lead was 31 points with four minutes remaining.

Brenda Fettrow led the Lady Lancers with 20 points for the evening, followed by Maryjane Smith with 18. Cindy Eckel had 12 points and Robin Hungate 11.

Smith also dominated the boards with 11 rebounds.

The Lancers went from easy street to hard times Friday night at VCU. The Lady Rams won 73-55, scoring 23 points from the foul line.

Outside of the foul shooting and rebounding, the statistics were remarkably close. The Lancers only capitalized on 7 of their 18 freethrow attempts while the Rams were 23 for 29. The Rams also outrebounded Longwood 50 to 33.

Only Brenda Fettrow, with 10 points, broke in to double figures. She also led in rebounding with eight.

The Lancers will host Virginia State at 7:30 tonight.

Gymnasts Beat JMU: First Time Ever

By LISA SPENCER

The Longwood gymnasts competed with James Madison University, Saturday, February 2. Contending with a noisy audience and interference, Longwood still held on to win the meet with a score of 124.60. James Madison had a total of 118.25 points.

Longwood captured the top three places in the all-around competition. Sharon Pillow placed first with a score of 32.55. Kathy Idelson was second with 31.25, and Shelia Gould third with a total of 30.30.

Individually, the gymnasts held their own very well. Sharon Pillow placed first on Bars (8.1) and vault (8.7) and second and Beam (7.6) and floor (8.15). Her vault score was also the highest score of the meet.

All-American Kathy Idelson powered to a first place on floor with an 8.25. She also placed third on beam (7.4) and vault (8.1) and fourth on bars (7.4).

Shelia Gould earned a tie for third on the beam (7.4) and a tie for fourth on vault (8.0). Jean Powers also tied for fourth on vault (8.0) and Karen Mazzonna placed third in the floor exercises (7.95).

This win over James Madison boosts the team's record to 6-1. The next meet is tentatively scheduled at home with the University of William and Mary. It will be held in French gym on February 7 at 7 p.m. Also, February 8, the team will travel to Virginia Tech for a meet.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW

FRESH SALADS

OPEN:
Mon-Thur 11-10 PM, Fri-Sat 11-Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392 5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Management Report

(Continued from Page 1)

funded.

The team recommendations include informing departmental budget managers of funding, and establishing three accounts (Personnel Service, Fringe Benefits, and other Non-Personnel Costs).

The team also found that the annual budget for campus school had grown from $172,417 in 1976-77 to $245,972 in 1979-80. They recommended that a cost-benefit study be done on Campus School to decide whether its operation should continue.

Physical Plant Maintenance and Operations:

Under this area, the team recommended several studies. One such study included determining whether or not the entire Physical Plant could be accommodated in the Bristol Building. Their reasoning behind this is that, "Having the entire work force together should aid in better coordination and supervision and promote better work performance."

The team also found that where normal maintenance was conducted on a regular basis, preventive maintenance was not. They found that there was a need for regular inspections and for an inventory of equipment.

"A good system to prevent student vandalism is needed," according to the report. They advise consultation with other Virginia colleges and universities.

Under Service Contracts, they recommended that an elevation service be contracted that has call back service. They also advised that "the Attorney General's office review all service contracts which have not been previously reviewed by that office."

The team also discovered that the college vehicles were in "poor condition. There are 16 vehicles with over 100,000 miles on them. The school bus mileage is 400,000."

A study of the laundry operation was also suggested. The cost to produce steam for the operation was estimated at $3.99 per 1,000 pounds of steam.

Next week's feature will include Financial Management.

Alumni Speaks Out

(Continued from Page 2)

Hospital, in the Department of Pathology.

A 1979 graduate, Mary Kay McDaniel, majored in Business Admin. / Management. Ms. McDaniel is an Assistant Budget Analyst in VEPCO's Nuclear Fuel Resources Department.

Tony Wilkins graduated in 1979 with a degree in Secondary Teaching — Gov't. / Social Science. Wilkins is a Government teacher at Prince Edward County High School.

The banquet will be held at 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, in the Virginia Room. A sign-up sheet is available outside the Dining Hall; or call 392-9254 for reservations. The banquet should be quite beneficial for all those attending in preparation for their future situations in the job market.

MINIATURE VALENTINE
PORTRAITS

A Perfect Gift
For Family, Friends or Loved Ones

A Regular $29.95 Value $5.95

CALL NOW FOR AN APPOINTMENT

ROBERT T. FORE, PHOTOGRAPHY
PHONE 392-8710 119 MAIN ST. FARMVILLE, VA.

SHIRTS WINTER DRESSES
SWEATERS JACKETS & VESTS COORDINATES
SLACKS LADIES FASHION JEANS BLOUSES

TO SHOP McKAY'S IT PAYS
111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

REMEMBER ALL MERCHANDISE
20% OFF

THE
HAIR shaft
HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS
Mon. & Tues. 9 AM 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685
Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Tiffany's Bridal and Formal

$1,000 FREE!

To see lucky Tiffany Bride! Register at any Tiffany's location before drawing on April 15. No purchase necessary.

Virginia's Largest Selection of Bridal Fashions

NORFOLK
Military Circle Mall
461-1690

PETERSBURG RICHMOND
Walnut Mall 3120 West Cary St.
861-4140 355-4522

HAMPTON/NEWPORT NEWS
Newmarket North Mall
827-0790

SEND OR TAKE HOME
OUR FTD
LOVEBUNDLE[®]
BOUQUET

YOUR VALENTINE
WILL LOVE IT!

The romantic FTD Love-Bundle[®] Bouquet We can send it almost anywhere, the FTD way.

Valentine's Day
Thursday, February 14
CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP
711 W. 3rd. St.
Phone 392-3151

College Graduates

BECOME A LAWYER'S ASSISTANT.

- Program approved by American Bar Association.
- Day or Evening classes available.
- Employment assistance.

A Representative from The National Center for Paralegal Training's Lawyer's Assistant Program will be on campus on Wednesday, Feb. 13, from 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. at the Placement Office to meet interested students. For more information contact the Placement Office or The National Center for Paralegal Training, 3376 Peachtree Road, NE, Suite 430, Atlanta, Georgia 30326, (404) 266-1090.

Please send me information about a career as a lawyer's assistant.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Phone _____
College _____
Yr. Grad _____

1980
☐ SPRING DAY June 11 - May 9 ☐ SUMMER DAY June 12 - Sept 9 ☐ FALL DAY Sept 10 - Dec 16
☐ SPRING EVE March 18 - Sept 20 ☐ FALL EVE Oct 21 - May 9

THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR PARALEGAL TRAINING
3376 Peachtree Rd., NE
Atlanta, Ga. 30326
404/266-1060

A Distinctive Writing
Pleasure.

Give the pen that is the master of distinctive penmanship. The Cross Soft Tip in select and precious metals. From $13.50.

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

CROSS[®]
SINCE 1848
soft tip pens

We need people who like people. And dragons.

If you enjoy meeting people and being part of their memories, then you're the person we're looking for.

Busch Gardens—America's only European Entertainment Park—needs ride operators, food service workers, cashiers, musicians and other people-oriented people of all ages.

You'll work in an Old Country atmosphere and earn a fair wage while you help make our own unique brand of magic happen. If you're partial to charming dragons, fabled knights and thrilling rides, you might just have to remind yourself that it's work.

People 18 and over may apply.

Audition date:

Feb. 12, 1980 (Tues.)
10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Ask placement office
for location
Longwood College

The Old Country
Busch Gardens,
Williamsburg, Va.

An equal opportunity employer M/F/H

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1980

NO. 15

Board Studies Management Recommendations

President Henry I. Willett Jr., Board Rector Mrs. A. O. Mitchell and Vice Rector Roland Thompson prepare for Board of Visitors meeting. Also pictured is Board Member Lester E. Andrews.

Photo by Melody Crawley

By MELODY CRAWLEY
Longwood's Board of Visitors adopted a resolution introduced by Mrs. J.L. Davidson which "thanks the study team and its assistants for their time, effort and clarification of the needs of Longwood." The board also stated that it provided, "the tool with which to improve our college."

In another resolution, the Board said that they would study the team recommendations and adopt those in the best interest of the college.

Three committees were appointed by the Rector at the Board's request after studying the management report. The first came as a request of Mrs. J.L. Davidson and the unanimous support of the Board. A committee of Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Joshua Pretlow, and Gay Kampfmüller was established to study the compiling of a Board manual.

Lester E. Andrews, Eric L. Robinson, and M. Ralph Page were appointed to a budget and finance committee. The Board also unanimously voted to appoint a committee to formulate college policies and appoint personnel. This responsibility was removed from the president. Members of this committee include Mrs. E.A. West, Mrs. Jesse Overstreet, Mrs. William L. Anfin, Roland E. Thompson, and Eric L. Robinson.

The Board concentrated on the 42 recommendations of the Executive summary, beginning with the ones on the Board itself.

The Board voted unanimously to stress an open line of communications with students, faculty, and staff.

A unanimous vote was also carried on the motion to have summaries of all Executive Board meetings. "I think the full Board needs to know the score," stated Mrs. Davidson.

President Willett explained the role of the Longwood College Council to the Board. This 15-member council was established seven years ago. The team suggested that the role of the Council be expanded and redefined. Under the college's entire committee system, the Board asked Dean Carolyn Wells to submit a review of all the committees at the next meeting.

(Continued on Page 8)

Board of Visitors

LESTER E. ANDREWS — Post Office Box 582, Farmville, VA 23901, (804) 392-5391 — (804) 392-6144

MRS. WILLIAM LLOYD ANFIN — Post Office Box 949, Radford, VA 24141, (703) 639-4120 (after 6 p.m.) — (703) 639-5571

MRS. J. L. DAVIDSON — 4728 John Scott Drive, Lynchburg, VA 24503, (804) 384-3446

MISS A. GAY KAMPMÜLLER — 909 Abingdon Road, Virginia Beach, VA 23451, (804) 428-9210 — (804) 340-5151

MRS. A. O. MITCHELL — 30 Madison Lane, South, Newport News, VA 23606, (804) 596-0883 — (804) 599-4411, Ext. 208

MRS. JESSE R. OVERSTREET, JR. — Post Office Box 904, Clarksville, VA 23927, (804) 374-5431

M. RALPH PAGE — 3301 Delano Street, Richmond, VA 23234 (804) 233-7110 — (804) 321-1850

MRS. JOSHUA PRETLOW — 5931 Everetts Road, Suffolk, VA 23434, (804) 255-4741

ERIC L. ROBINSON — Route 1, Farmville, VA 23901, (804) 392-4427 — (804) 382-6171

ROLAND E. THOMPSON — Corotoman Farm, Upperville, VA 22176, (703) 592-3384 — (703) 273-1062

MRS. E. A. WEST — 114 Claiborne Avenue, Rocky Mount, VA 24151, (703) 483-5885 — (703) 483-5142

Regular Business Brings Needed Questioning

The Board of Visitors, in their regular business session, Friday, approved the college's existing policy on foreign student fees. The reevaluation of the current policy came as a request from the Governor to all Virginia state supported colleges. According to the report given by J.L. Brascome, Vice President for Finance, foreign students pay the same tuition as an out of state student. Under federal regulations, they are not eligible for financial aid.

Also, under the Office of Vice President for Finance report, the Board approved the 1980 Summer School fees for the two five-week sessions. The Comprehensive fee for a five-week period will be $250.

They approved the payment of over $20,000 for overload and adjunct faculty. Questioned was the status and necessity of the cheerleading coach. Three new appointments were approved by the Board: Mrs. Sandra A. Bollinger as Registrar, effective January 2, 1980; Dr. Jennings G. Cox as Director of Counseling, beginning April 2, 1980; and Boyd M. Fisher as Admissions Counselor and Instructor, as of January 2, 1980.

Mrs. A. O. Mitchell, Rector of the Board, raised a question as to the status of "the tree." Dr. William Peele, Vice President of Administration, reported to the Board that the tree was still standing. He stated that a final decision would not be made until the spring outcome is viewed.

Concern was expressed as to how much was being done to recruit "other-race" students. Dr. Peele assured the Board that the school was doing everything it could to recruit them. He stated that a minority admissions counselor had been hired for two days a week just to work with minority hopefuls.

Board member Lester E. Andrews of Farmville requested a report on the baseball field project. Dr. Peele reported that bids for this project were received Thursday and would be opened that day (Friday). He approximated the cost to be around $25,000-$30,000 for the field to be built in the Campus School area.

The need for this field arouse due to the fact that the college can not use the Prince Edward County field prior to 2:45 p.m., when county school dismisses. Both President Willett and IAC Director T.C. Dalton reported that County Superintendent James Anderson had worked with them on this problem, but the County needed their field when school was in session.

Dean of Students Mary A. Heintz reported that the Residence Hall staff was in the process of holding meetings in the residence halls to receive input on next year's housing. She noted that her office is open to any input from the students.

Earlier, Board member Andrews addressed the overcrowding situation of this past year. Administration assured him that there was communication between admissions and the Housing director. Although facts and reports show an apparently different situation, Dr. Peele stated that "the team had a definite misconception about communications between housing and admissions." President Willett claimed that it is a "theory of ours" that the change to co-education had a lot to do with the increase in upperclassmen returning. Apparently, "in the past... some were withdrawing to go to co-educational institutions."

T.C. Dalton, Administrative Assistant to the President, reported that a Junior-Senior survey is now nearing completion. Juniors and Seniors were selected at random to reevaluate the college's academic, social, and co-curricular activities.

The Board voted 8-1 to support the college's efforts to change to NCAA Division II in men's athletics. Much discussion was brought forth as to the implications, mostly financial, of the move. Lester E. Andrews

(Continued on Page 8)

Board Backs Willett

By MELODY CRAWLEY

After spending more than seven hours in executive session Friday, the Board of Visitors announced that they supported President Henry I. Willett Jr.

The announcement came Friday night after a 5-4 vote of confidence was cast in their concluding executive session.

Members supporting President Willett and the administration were Mrs. William L. Anfin, of Radford; Gay Kampfmüller, of Virginia Beach; Mrs. Joshua Pretlow, of Suffolk; Eric L. Robinson, of Farmville; and Vice Rector Roland E. Thompson, of Upperville. Dissenting votes were cast by Lester E. Andrews, of Farmville; Mrs. J.L. Davidson, of Lynchburg; Mrs. E.A. West, of Rocky Mount; and Mrs. Jesse Overstreet, of Clarksville. Mrs. Davidson's disapproval of President Willett was evident throughout the two-day meetings. "I want you to read our by-laws. We've given all our privileges to Henry."

Board member M. Ralph Page, a Richmond Lawyer, was absent from the Board meetings because of court commitments.

The Rector of the Board, Mrs.

A.O. Mitchell, of Newport News, also cast her vote in support of President Willett bringing the vote of those present to 6-4. However, the Rector's vote is not legally counted except in a tie vote.

Both President Willett and Mrs. Mitchell were satisfied with the Board's two day meeting. "We are very, very positive," concluded Mrs. Mitchell about the college. She also stressed that the Board was "a unified body and will act together." President Willett remains confident that there will be an "overall effort of communication." He and Mrs. Mitchell announced that the Board will be meeting with the College Council during their March meeting. At this time they hope to receive questions and input from all aspects of the campus. In addition to the present members of the College Council, representatives from the Student-Union, Judicial Board, The Rotunda, and the classified employees will be in attendance.

President Willett added that "the college has a lot going for it." He said that admissions looked good and "the college picture looks bright."

Sorority representatives to the Panhellenic Council were recently installed. Pictured are (l. to r.): first row, Margaret Fowler, AEA; Linda Hitt, KD; Nikl Falls, advisor; Mitzi Mason, AGD; Sherry Wiggins, DZ; second row: Beth Navin, Tri-Sig.; Janet Robertson, AET; Lisa Thomas, ZTA; Pat Carnes, EK; Veronica Cary, ADT. Informal Rush was held last week leading to various Panhellenic activities, culminating during Greek Week in April. Photo by Bill LeWarne

Changes Needed In Bookstore

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

The Bookstore committee, consisting of faculty, administration, and students, will meet with Mr. Harper on February 21. They will be discussing the Bookstore's business, making sure that things are running smoothly. Thus far, only recommendations for changes are being made, it is not assured, however, that the alterations are going to come through.

In the last Management Report that came out, some questions were brought up. For example, is the bookstore beneficial to the school and to the students financially? It was also pointed out that a study in areas like these has not been made in a long time and one is needed very badly. The committee will work with Mr. Harper in these areas of concern and suggestions will be made.

A student survey will be out the middle of this week, asking for suggestions and revisions. These proposals will be brought up at the meeting. The students are asked to please participate, as a certain per cent is needed before the survey will be considered valid.

The committee will discuss these changes, but they do not have the power to force the changes. The general consensus of the committee, however, is that changes are needed to improve the students' relationship with the bookstore business.

Once again, the students are urged to fill out and send in the survey. After all, it is the students who do business with the bookstore, they should have a say in this matter.

Last In Series:

Team Evaluates Financial Management

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Editor's Note: This is the third and last article in a series of features explaining the report released by Governor John N. Dalton's Management team. The features have attempted to summarize the report, and point out important findings and recommendations.

Financial Management:

The Department of Accounts examined the offices under the direction of the Vice President for Finance. These consist of Purchasing and Accounts Payable Office, Payroll Office, Treasurer's Office and Central Stores' Office.

The team recommended that, "The College, on a routine basis, should have contracts such as contracts with the ARA Food Service and the Book Store reviewed for bid to determine if the College is obtaining the most effective and economical services." They also brought questions concerning the College's golf pro. They stated that they found the Media Contract approval had been obtained from the Attorney General after July, 1980.

Another recommendation made by the team was that the College conduct an annual college-wide equipment inventory. This will be implemented on July 1, 1980 with plans for completion by June 30, 1981.

"Tighter control in the distribution of pay checks is necessary," according to the team. They recommended that the checks be distributed by departments instead of in the faculty and staff mailboxes.

The team found that the Internal Auditor has become more involved with being an accountant than an auditor. They made several recommendations concerning the auditor including:

1. The Internal Auditor report only to the Board of Visitors.
2. That he give up his accounting duties after helping to train someone else.

Under Internal Systems, the team recommended that the Burroughs system for accounting should be discontinued no later than July 1, 1980. They also stated

(Continued on Page 8)

Future Housing Plans Discussed

By LISA SPENCER

This past week, Housing Director Tom Nanzig visited most of the dormitories on Campus, asking for and discussing ideas for next year's housing plans. Student attendance for the meetings was very poor, but those students who did attend had some very good ideas.

Many suggestions discussed are topics that will be considered for next semester's housing. The most popular idea under consideration will be the subject of freshman housing. Should there be freshman halls or dormitories? Should freshmen be kept together or should they be allowed to stay in any dorm? (These questions will be answered when the Administrative Staff makes its decision). However, Nanzig says that the general consensus is to keep freshmen in the same dormitories wherever possible.

Other topics discussed included — allotting more space for men in Frazier Hall, room selection by suites, keeping Stubbs Hall for sorority use only, and allotting more rooms to fraternities and sororities.

One particularly interesting idea that has been presented is that of having Roommate Selection Cards. This would be for those people who would not have a particular roommate in mind for the next year. These people would fill out a card which would contain information about themselves such as their interests, allergies, etc. They would then try to find another card that contained information similar to theirs and contact that person as a possible roommate. This is only a possibility; no decision has yet been reached.

Definite proposals for next year's housing should be announced within the next couple of weeks. What is known now concerns the selection of rooms:

February 22 — All students who want to return to Longwood must have paid their $100 deposit. Otherwise, they will be placed at the bottom of the list for room selection.

February 29 — Sorority and Fraternity sign-up

March 10 and 11 — All those who wish to homestead will sign-up.

March 12 — Number draw for rooms will be held in the Lower Dining Hall.

March 13 — Senior Room Selection (LDH)

March 18 — Junior Room

Selection (LDH)

March 20 — Sophomore Room Selection (LDH)

Students are encouraged to have in mind some idea of where they would like to room, and who they would like as a roommate. This is in order to avoid long lines and unnecessary delay. "I want to make housing selection as logical, reasonable, and as pleasant as possible," stated Nanzig. Students will be informed ahead of time as to which rooms will be available for selection next semester.

Anyone who has a problem or a question concerning housing is encouraged to first contact Residence Board. "Residence Board is a voice of the people," said Nanzig. Other places to try are the Housing Office, the area coordinators, and even the Resident Advisors in the dorms. Ideas and suggestions from the students are welcomed.

Woods Lectures On "Apocalypse Now"

By JODI KERSEY

On Tuesday, February 5, William C. Woods, associate professor of English, delivered the latest department's seminar entitled "Rumors and Random Intelligence". Many students and professors attended this lecture on the controversial film "Apocalypse Now" directed by Francis Coppola and its fictional prototype Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness.

Woods began the lecture by giving an array of movie reviews about "Apocalypse Now" which helped to convey the controversial effect the movie is having since its September opening in New York. The psychological impact, Woods stated, formulates "battles in minds and foxholes". Woods felt that Coppola's transition from fiction to film was convincing because Coppola was faithful to Conrad's text. The movie was like "an inverted compliment to Heart of Darkness", noticed and judged along with the movie.

Through the use of quotations from the movie, Woods exemplified the difference in cultures during the Vietnam war and the fact that war was the commanding force. There were few ideas and emotions, just clean information. An example of this is when a man was lying in a trench and another man stepped on his face and the first man yelled "You stepped on my face" and the other explained, "Sorry, I thought you were dead". And secondly, when Captain Willard asked one of his soldiers if he knew who was in command and the soldier just answered "yes". Such an answer as this suggested that war itself became the commander as each man shared the common denominator—to stay alive.

Marlon Brando was the European traitor who went mad and continually recited T.S. Eliot in the movie. Martin Sheen was the American captain sent to kill Brando for being a traitor. Brando who portrayed Colonel Kurtz, and his encampment displayed Eliot's idea of "Shape without form". As Brando tried, rather unsuccessfully, to make appear the psychological effects of war by mentioning the third internal eye which was like being "Shot with a diamond bullet". Woods stated that Brando had gone "Native". Captain Willard, portrayed by Martin Sheen, could kill Kurtz and break with the army but he could not overcome or leave this culture and technology as Woods quoted Willard; "They were going to make me a major and I wasn't even in their army".

Woods also discussed some of the problems and faults which manifested during the production of the movie. Coppola, the director of "Apocalypse Now",

(Continued on Page 8)

For that special someone...
Say it with flowers.

VALENTINE'S DAY IS FEB. 14

Rochette's Florists

112 N. Main St.
Farmville, Va.

DeFrates To Return With Compelling Sound

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT
S-UN Spotlight Concert, Feb. 19, 1980, in the Gold Room proudly presents for the second time, Jamie DeFrates. DeFrates was born in Springfield, Ill. He began singing at the age of 5 and started playing acoustic guitar and writing songs at the age of 10. He went to the University of Ill. and studied architecture while performing in clubs around the campus. Jamie has played in such distinguished clubs as Gerdes Folk City, New York, The Armadillo World Headquarters, Austin, and the Great Southern Music Hall, Orlando and Gainesville.

DeFrates is a poet and a musician with a sense of mystic about him. He views the world with compassion, wisdom and amusement. His voice is of silky sacred sounds set to a soft rock beat. Dramatizations of his stages of voice intensities are of such a great flow that he compels the audience to listen. In 1974,

The PBS Television Network aired a half hour special on DeFrates and his musical poetry. In 1976, he formed his own record label "Sweet Apollosa Music" which he produced his first album "Pegasus Inflight", a solo effort. His new album "Son of Dust" is now receiving airplay in many areas of the country. Jamie has been the opening act for such notables as Janis Ian, Jimmy Cliff and Melanie with excellent reviews.

DeFrates defies putting himself in a category but says "I'm just a product of the times, that's all, just a product of the times." The concert is FREE-8:00, and worth to your advantage to hear Jamie's lyrics of odes of love with religious echoes that will intertwine with life as it does his.

The Spirit Of A Show

By LINDA WHEELER

Longwood has long been known for its spirit of togetherness and people who are willing to help one another. One can find this "spirit" in just about all of the buildings on campus. That "spirit" is evident in Jarman Auditorium with the upcoming production of "Carousel" by Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Four academic departments are combining their talents for this production. Dr. Young from the Department of Speech and Drama, Dr. Egbert from the Music Department, Miss Bishop from the Art Department, and Dr. Neal from the Department of Health and Physical Education are bringing their many talents together to present to the audiences in Jarman a show filled with music, adventure, love, and even a few tears.

All together, the show includes the help and hard work of close to, if not more than, 100 people. All have worked hard to bring "Carousel" to life. As Dr. Young, Dr. Egbert, Dr. Neal, or Miss Bishop could tell you, any play, concert, physical activity, or exhibit takes time to plan and to present, but it can only be done with the help of many hands; "Carousel" is no exception.

So come out and see "Carousel" in Jarman Auditorium from February 20 through the 23. Longwood students are free with their I.D.'s and general admission is $2.50. Curtain time is 8 p.m. You won't be disappointed!

The annual exhibition of work by members of Longwood College's art faculty is currently showing in the Lancaster Library Gallery at the college.

As usual, the exhibit encompasses a great diversity of creative expression and interests, as well as very individualistic uses of media and techniques.

Mark Baldridge is showing 14-carat gold earrings with emeralds and a wedding set of 14-carat gold with sapphires and diamonds.

Barbara Bishop is showing a group of nine photo collages, a "Landscape Series" of five works using handmade paper, a silkscreen print, and a pencil drawing.

Her photo collages originate as a collection of images taken with a Polaroid SX-70 camera equipped with a close-up lens. Before the prints are completely dry, the artist manipulates them with a pencil or ball-point pen to move the emulsion around, creating added color and texture. Her silkscreen, titled "Mr. Lincoln," also originated as a Polaroid SX-70 photograph.

Randall Edmonson, who joined Longwood's art faculty this year, is showing his paintings and pottery for the first time in this area. His two acrylic paintings, "Presidio Barracks" and "Mae Smith," are crisp, with hard edges, achieved by a flat application of color with a focus on shadows. His other contributions to the exhibit are porcelain and stoneware bowls and bottle with handsome glazes.

Dr. Elisabeth Flynn and Dr. Carolyn Wells are showing photographs, both color and black-and-white. Virginia Mitchell is showing tie dyed mats, two large tie dyed wall hangings, and a batik. Conway B. Thompson's contribution is a sculpture of Vermont marble, titled "Highland County Landscape, Winter." Homer Springer's "Homebody" series is a group of mixed media works on handmade

(Continued on Page 8)

Yea, though our hopes be but in "vein",
GEIST NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

The event is drawing near-
Be thinking about it now.

GEIST BLOODMOBILE
FEB. 25 & 26

- DETAILS TO COME -

A Sensitive Touch And A Humorous Touch

By FRANK CREASY

Good music and good laughs highlighted the Student Union's Saturday Night Live. A talented singer-guitarist, Jacqui Singleton, opened the show followed by the main attraction, Willie Tyler with his sidekick, Lester.

Jacqui Singleton, a 1977 Longwood graduate, was enthusiastically greeted by those who knew her abilities, and those who were unacquainted with Jacqui will not soon forget his remarkable performer.

Jacqui sang several popular numbers by her favorite artists. The audience particularly enjoyed her rendition of "House at Pooh Corner." She readily gained her audience's respect with her quick, witty one-liners and her expressive, emotional voice.

Yet, the crowd also liked her original compositions "Time and I" and her closing number "Love Alive". Both old and new friends appreciated her rhythmic "upside-down" guitar playing and beautiful voice.

In the tradition of Edgar Bergen, Willie and Lester entertained a receptive Saturday night crowd. Willie, with his "dummy" partner, Lester, kept the audience laughing and captivated them by his amazing ventriloquism.

Lester was the big hit of the evening, so much so that few people were interested in watching Willie's lips to see if they were moving, which, incidentally, did not. They really began to see Lester as a person.

From such TV spots as the Merv Griffin, Flip Wilson and Tonight shows, this comedy team honored Longwood with their presence.

Lester, a cute, wooden, black "man" with a cap and wire glasses took on the rowdy crowd and made even Willie look like the dummy as he made fun of the drunken mumbling, and played comic to Willie's straight man.

Lester was always on top of the situation. For example, Lester asked Willie his interpretation of sex. The reply was, "Sex is a pain in the neck." Lester quickly responded, "Man you must be doin' something wrong!"

This was just a small sample of the humor displayed during the performance, all of the lines were original material, except for one skit borrowed from Abbott and Costello: the classic "Who's on first, what's on second, and I don't know who's on third" routine.

One of the most impressive moments of the evening was when Willie made one sound simultaneously with Lester making another sound.

Willie and Lester's repertoire not only included comedy, but also two original songs. Having a good voice and the art of ventriloquism makes Willie Tyler an exceptionally talented performer.

The audience let Willie and Lester know how much they enjoyed the act by honoring them with a standing ovation. No one wished to call it a night and have Lester put in his black box.

Jazz Band Still Alive

Although unheard from so far this semester, Longwood's Jazz Ensemble is still "alive and kickin'." The one year old group has just added new members for the 1980 year including a rhythm lead guitarist and a larger trumpet section. According to members of the band, the main element lacking in the band is trombonists. "There are people on campus who can play the parts but won't take the time to join and come to class. With another trombonist or two, we could really have a full band," remarked one member.

Frank Coffey, the group's director, shows both desire and confidence in the group's performing this year. He is a former music student-jazz musician and presently is a music teacher in Appomattox county where he still performs in his own jazz band. Several members of the group have taken special interests in the welfare of the group and, without help from the music department, obtained an electric piano and several other instruments for its temporary use.

The Jazz Ensemble hopes to perform several times this semester and have been asked to play such functions as the M.D. "Superdance," Spring weekend, and three other possible on-campus performances. They are also presently searching for a shorter name for the group and will appreciate any suggestions. These suggestions may be sent to: Tom Sullivan, Box 1014.

The Freshman Class Invites All To The

VALENTINE DANCE

Featuring
'UNION PACIFIC BAND'

FRIDAY, FEB. 15.

9-1

TICKETS $5.00 COUPLE

$3.00 SINGLE

SEMI-FORMAL

RED-N-WHITES UNITE

AND JOIN IN CELEBRATING THE EXCITEMENT OF YOUR COLORS

RED-N-WHITE DAY
THUR., FEB. 14

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gales
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert, Thomas Cole, Frank Croasy, Barbara Baker, Susan Burtin, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Sharon Janovich, Bill LeWarne, Beth Parroti, Robyn Black, Lynne Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jack Mallory, Jill Marton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari, Debbie Northern, Donna Hughes, Linda Paschall

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by The Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Board Responds

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to Bill LeWarne's letter from your January 29 issue of THE ROTUNDA.

Bill does bring out some very valid points in his letter about our rules here on campus: What is wrong with playing Monopoly in someone's room, whether it's a girl's or guy's room, after 10 p.m. on a week day? Why not return to the old sign in but not sign out system? Why do rules like visitation hours, exist?

We are adults. Wherever you go in life, whatever you do, there are going to be restrictions, "rules," of some type. In our own world here at Longwood, one of our rules is that a male is not supposed to be in a female's room, and vice versa, after 10 p.m. on Monday through Thursday. Visitation hours are determined, or rather made, by the students themselves. Yes, there is a lot of "red tape" to go through to get changes in visitation hours. But until changes are made, present rules should be abided by. We may not like them, but, then again, who likes everything in life?

The old sign in but not sign out system was a good one. The students here at Longwood are supposed to abide by the Honor Code, which did play a part in the old system. Returning to such a system is well worth consideration.

The boards, Judicial, Legislative, and Residence, are made up of students which were elected by the student body. Legislative Board meetings and Residence Board meetings are open for the students to attend. Those on the boards can be your friends, sorority sisters, fraternity brothers, or even your roommate! Some of us on the boards do believe the rules should be changed. Some of the rules are archaic and out of date, and it's time for these things to be considered now if they are to be different in the future.

If you want things changed, come out and support SGA! Come to the meetings, write "Letters to the Editor," or write in questions in THE ROTUNDA'S column "Letters to the Board." Because, after all, it's your SGA!

Linda Wheeler
Chairman
Residence Board

Harper Responds

To Students in World Lit II:

There was a mistake in marking the book for this class and eight books were marked incorrectly at $15.95 instead of $13.95. The amount printed on the invoice was misread. (A human mistake). We are Sorry for this Error. There was no intention to rip anyone off, and as soon as the mistake was called to our attention we called the professor to announce in class for the three persons that had purchased their books at the wrong price to bring the book back to the bookstore and we would gladly refund their two dollars.

If there is ever any doubt as to the price of a textbook, our policy has always been—We will gladly show the invoice on any book in question. The publishers set the prices on all textbooks—not the bookstore. These prices are shown on all invoices.

Thank you,
O.W. Harper
Longwood Bookstore

Dissatisfied

Dear Editor,

I have been reading this poorly written school newspaper for three years now and I finally just had to bring something to your attention.

In the January 29, 1980 issue, I found more than 25 errors, not merely typographical errors. The errors consisted of grossly misspelled words, sentences, comma splices, names changed in the middle of an article ("Take A Ride On A Carousel", p. 2), very poorly used words, clichés that have no connection with the subjects, almost false information ("powerful Salem College team," p. 6, col. 1) and tense changes (the fourth paragraph in "Ron Orr: Pushing to the Top," p. 7, contains six tense changes). That article also ends very poorly.

I was an editor of my high school newspaper (James Monroe High School, Fredericksburg, VA.) and I went over several of the old issues of our high school paper and found less than five errors in twelve issues. Your one issue on January 29 contained at least 28! Is this what we should expect from a college publication? I feel that the students should not be subjected to such poor grammar and misspellings.

This letter is not written in an air of anger, merely in disgust. I feel that a college publication should publish a more
(Continued on Page 8)

Commentary

By DOUG STROBEL

America's foreign policy has received in recent months its most serious challenge since the Vietnam war. Hopefully the United States foreign policy has turned the corner toward a greater sense of realism in dealing with other countries.

The embassy takeover in Iran presented the administration with a dilemma that it found difficult to resolve. A group of marxist oriented young people had taken fifty American hostages and demanded the return of the Shah for the captives' release.

The main criticism of the administration's handling of the crisis had been that the United States did not act immediately, and take advantage of a chaotic first few days. However, it must be said that Americans have long let their sense of moral responsibility guide their actions in many international dealings. While acting morally is a virtuous thing to do, it often works to the detriment of America.

In this world of power politics, countries do not play by the same rules or seek the same objectives. The Russians have clearly shown this in their meddlings in the internal affairs of countries in Africa, the Middle East, and the Persian Gulf area.

The Russian's blatant invasion of Afghanistan showed their insistence on controlling these areas. The motives behind the invasion could have been any number of things or a combination of elements. An increasing concern over their own growing muslim population may have prompted the Soviets to control a neighbor with a heavy muslim orientation.

The Soviets clearly had an opportunity to move into a country where they already exercised a strong degree of control over the government in Kabul. However the Soviets decided that an even tighter control was necessary.

It is easy to see that the Russians might well have perceived American foreign policy as being weak and chaotic. The Americans have long made grand pronouncements of wanting to curb Soviet influence and defend freedom throughout the world. The bad taste of Vietnam and a general attitude of apathy have contributed to such a weak policy. Therefore the Soviets did not expect a very strong American reaction to their invasion of Afghanistan.

However it is important that hysteria not be the rule of the day. Hopefully recent world developments will be an awakening experience for the administration and the country. This awakening should include equipment support for the rebels in Afghanistan and renewed emphasis on conventional weapons, which has been done. Also America must reiterate its support for its allies throughout
(Continued on Page 8)

Editor's Turn

Communication can be described as "an active interchange of thoughts, ideas or information." Hopefully, after the past week's Board of Visitors meetings and indepth study of the Management Team report that is what Longwood College can strive for "open communication on all levels." And there are many levels for communication to look at . . .

The Board took a small step forward at a luncheon with students, last Thursday. Students were able to sit down and talk to the Board members on a one-to-one basis. Their big step towards bridging the communication gap comes in March when they meet with members of the Longwood College Council and other selected individuals to talk about the college and exchange "thoughts, ideas, and information" that will help to improve policies and procedures. The Board claims that they have always supported "open communication on all levels."

Likewise, the administration claims that they have always exhibited good communication with the Board. We must stop and wonder if this is the communication of accurate, timely information as the Management report calls for or the "just enough correct information to get by" communications line. After observing two days of Board meetings, we can positively conclude that both methods are used. We should hope, however, that accurate and timely information will eventually win out.

Now, we come down to a most important subject; that is student input and communication on the administrative level. When Board members ask about the amount of student participation and input on the housing meetings last week, Dean Heintz answered that there were very few students in attendance for these meetings. However, upon further questioning by the Board, the group was told that the Dean of Student and the Director of Housing doors were always open to the students for any type of suggestions or input.

Faculty, Staff, and classified employees are also offered the same "open doors" policy at any level.

This makes it sound like communication is a pretty simple thing. But is it really? Those attending the Board meeting will remember many instances where the Board seemed to know nothing. Members ask such questions as what is the College Council? Or why is Longwood described as a comprehensive school? And they received such answers as the Council was established seven years ago and Longwood has been described as a comprehensive school for years now. Sure, they had been given the information, but not enough of it . . . in other words, only what was necessary.

So now . . . the Board has reaffirmed its stand on open communication . . . Let's swing the doors "wide-open" for understanding on "all levels."

Commentary

Highlights Of The Management Report

By BILL LEWANE

The Dalton Management Team Report is a six-chapter manuscript that few students will ever read in full. Much of it represents, of course, a fairly mundane and routine report of findings and recommendations for the college, with a range of topics from the highest administrative post to the custodial staff of the dorms. However, many of the findings of the team deserve more than a quick glance or a raised eyebrow. The following article is a collection of "highlights" of sorts from the report. Many of these are simply humorous, and are merely examples of unnecessary actions or the phenomena of red tape. On the other hand, several findings reported here necessitate a student concern for our college's administrative handling. Many students will realize that some of the issues we have been concerned with, (housing, admissions standards, etc.) and inquired about, have been investigated by the Dalton team. The fact that their findings, in many cases, directly contradicts what we were told must cause at least a certain amount of distrust or a questioning attitude about how much our administration can mislead us before any corrective action is taken.

Quoted material is directly from the report. Inserts or explanations are in parentheses. Budget "Budget management responsibilities at the college are unclear. Budget managers were sometimes operating for as much as a month, at the beginning of the year without knowing what their approved budget was, or what were the priorities of the administration."

Housing (Longwood's rolling admissions process permits the college to admit applicants until dormitory space is filled)

"However, this year students were admitted as late as August,...(resulting) in extreme overcrowding, with resultant breakdowns in the quality of resident hall life...The problem is continuing. Longwood was admitting students for the second semester when the team left the campus...However, the Director of Housing had no data on second semester admissions, and voiced concern that the dorms would remain overloaded."

It is also, generally accepted that student-athletes, particularly those admitted in the summer, were admitted and given dormitory rooms after it was clear that the dorms were overcrowded."

Student needs "There is a need to focus on student activities and programs. Such planning is essential, and should...deal with programs on critical issues such as...sexual relationships, as well as the normal social activities." (It should be sincerely hoped that the preceding is not to be taken literally, or the management team may not be as useful as we thought.)

"Admission of students (into the dorms) arriving late should be assigned to the resident assistants. At many colleges the R.A.'s assume, on a rotating basis, responsibility for dorms during the evening and nighttime."

Admissions "According to the February, 1979 Board (of Visitors) meeting minutes, the Board was informed that admissions standards 'would not be lowered for athletes, however, some would be reviewed differently'...memorandums stated that admission standards were lowered significantly in several cases."

"The College Admissions Committee...operates without clearly written operating guidelines...As a result, the Committee is questioning the President's authority to admit student-athletes outside the committee process."

"College faculty members have openly questioned the academic quality of some students being admitted...(indications are) that some students are not able to perform in the class at the customary level..."

Intercollegiate Athletic Council "The council, headed by the President's Administrative Assistant establishes policies and makes operating decisions dealing with intercollegiate athletics, but its membership has undermined the credibility of its decisions...The Council recently dropped fencing and riding programs, despite success at the State and regional level, in order to redistribute funds to other programs, mainly basketball."

Committee System "A number of minor committees exist. The Committee to Name Unnamed Buildings (is an example) of a committee that rarely meets and has no apparent output." (That's not hard to believe.)

Administrative Council "Several problems can be attributed to poor Council communication. The summer registration program for incoming freshmen and transfer students was cancelled by the Council without consulting the Registrar, the Director of Data Processing, or faculty members. The result was a chaotic fall registration."

Physical Plant and Operations "Despite adequate maintenance procedures, several of the vehicles (from the motor pool) are in poor condition. As many as 16 vehicles have over 100,000 miles...The school bus used for student activities has the highest mileage which was reported as 400,000 miles."

Grounds "Findings—'An 8-year old tractor used for lawn maintenance stays broken down and parts are hard to find.'"

"Conclusion and Recommendation—Replace 8-year old tractor." (It's concise and straightforward decisions like this that keeps this college going.)

(Self-explanatory) "The performance and operation of the Dining Hall needs review." (Amen.)

Dr. Jordan Featured In Colloquium

By CHERYL WILCOX

This year's third Faculty Colloquium Lecture will be given by Dr. James William Jordan tomorrow night, February 13, at 7:30 in the Molnar Recital Hall, Wygal Building. The public is cordially invited to hear him discuss "The Role of Nonhuman Animals in the Worldview of Humans".

Dr. Jordan, who is an assistant professor of anthropology, will discuss animals and their interrelationships with society. Dr. Jordan will make many interesting points, one of which is that "we tend to think that the particular animals which are today domesticated are the only animals ever domesticated by humans. This is disproven by drawing on field reports of anthropologists studying contemporary human cultures, we find many examples of "wild" animals tamed by humans: The Zebra (used to pull stage coaches), alligators, reindeer, skunks and rhinoceros." He will also point out that "we symbolize the role of animals in our society by assigning them names formally similar to human given names although they seldom are the exact names borne by humans."

Another idea Dr. Jordan will discuss is that during the five million years of human prehistory our ancestors adopted the patterns of the important animals around them and nodded their human behaviors after these patterns. Dr. Jordan is of the belief that humans attempted to appear and to behave in animal patterns in their own human society. Dr. Jordan will sight many excellent examples of the closeness of humans and humans in some cultures: An example of which is a woman feeding a baby pig with her own milk so that it may live.

This is only an overview of Dr. Jordan's lecture and cannot possibly relate all the subject matter that he will cover, only attending the lecture can give you the necessary insight into this subject.

Embark On An Adventure

By CHERYL WILCOX

The Friendship Force is a nonprofit organization which arranges exchange visits between the citizens of American cities and the citizens of other nations. The program was announced March 1, 1977, by President Jimmy Carter at a meeting of the National Governors Conference.

The Farmville Committee has agreed to recruit 30 ambassadors and 30 hosts for the exchange. The committee headed by Dr. Anthony Maurice, will be responsible for the selection of the local travelers and also those who will receive the visitors from the exchange city in their homes.

The Friendship Force will leave Farmville May 25 by chartered bus to Dulles Airport, in Washington, to board a 747

On the left is the Heathkit Digital Weather Computer and on the right is a Barograph which records weekly barometric pressure reading. Located at the bottom center of the picture are the buttons used to work the computer.

Austin Creates Weather Computer

By CHERYL WILCOX

Our world is now turning to using Computers for almost everything, even weather information. John Austin, an associate professor of Physical Science, has built a Digital Weather Computer which is used to gather local weather information. This weather computer is located on second floor Stevens just past the science museum and is available for daily student use.

Austin built the computer from a Heathkit "which saved the science department approximately $200." The science department could not have afforded a Digital weather computer otherwise, according to Austin.

The computer can give many different types of weather information. It can tell wind speed, wind direction, wind chill factor and the peak wind gust and also the time the peak gust occurred. The machine also gives the present temperature both inside and outside. It also records the maximum and minimum temperature during a 24 hour period. Barometric pressure can also be recorded. The computer also records the rate of barometric pressure change and records rising and falling of pressure per hour.

The Digital Weather Computer works 24 hours a day recording information which Austin records daily. The machine is hooked to two lantern batteries to be used for power in case of an electric blackout. While running on battery power the visual reading lights will be out, but the machine will still record data to be recorded at a later date.

Gravely, Anderson Speak

By JOHNETTE MALLORY

On February 4 at 8 p.m., Jack Gravely, the Executive Secretary of the Virginia State Conference National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was sponsored by the Afro American Student Alliance.

Gravely is a native of Pocahontas, Va. He attended the public schools in Pocahontas and Bluefield, Va. He is a veteran of Vietnam and a former student of Fayetteville State University and the University of Virginia School of Law. He has been an Associate Professor of Law at North Carolina Central University.

His main topic was "Expectations of a college student." He stated that college students do not know what real challenges are because while a student is in college and living on campus, he or she is not really carrying the responsibilities of paying bills, such as VEPCO charges. The real challenges are met after graduation and in order to be successful, one must continue to strive for better Opportunities in Life.

Dr. Alvin F. Anderson spoke on February 5 at 12:45 p.m. He was also sponsored by the AASA. Dr. Anderson is the Director of University Affairs at NASA-Langley Research Center. He is the author of the book, The Challenge to Black Counseling In A Black College. He has also written several articles and publications which concern blacks and employment. During his speech, he stated that minority students are now looking or seeking into the top job openings which are Radio Broadcasting, Mass Communication, Program Computing, and other business fields. He also advised students to get into some type of COOP program to prepare them for job opportunities and gain experience in their field of interest. An employer hires you according to your academic ability and background experiences. If you are an "A" student with no experience, you can be rejected as quickly as a student with no background at all.

Gymnasts Break More Records: Demolish Tech

By LISA SPENCER

Longwood's dominance of the gymnastics scene continued last Friday with a record-breaking win over Virginia Tech. The winning score of 128.05 not only broke Longwood's team score record, but it is the highest team score earned in the state this year. This was an easy win over Tech who only scored 106.9.

Also breaking records were Sharon Pillow and Kathy Idelson.

Sharon placed first in the all-around competition with a score of 34.05. Kathy was second with 33.75. Both of these scores broke the previous all-around record for the team.

The Longwood Gymnasts proved their dominance by taking first place in all events except the uneven bars. Sharon Pillow placed first in vaulting with a score of 8.9. She also placed second in bars (8.35), balance beam (8.35), and floor exercise (8.45). Kathy Idelson had her best meet of the year and had two first places to her credit — balance beam (8.45) and floor exercise (8.6). Kathy also took second place in vaulting (8.55) and third place on the uneven bars (8.15).

Margie Fanton, returning to action after an injury, placed third in vaulting (8.4) and fourth in beam (7.45) and floor (8.2). Shelia Gould placed fourth in all-around competition (29.45) and tied for fourth place in vaulting with Jean Powers (8.1).

This win over Tech boosts the team's record to 7-1, and their average team score to 124.1. According to Coach Ruth Budd, this places the team in excellent shape for the upcoming regional and state meets. The next meet for the team will be Saturday, Feb. 16, at Radford University.

Jean Powers demonstrates her bar mount.

Photo by Jul Morton.

Longwood To Expand Athletic Program

By JANE TUNSTALL

A recommendation to expand the athletic program at Longwood College was made by the Inter-Collegiate Athletic Council and received approval from President Willett. The expanded program will include tennis and cross-country teams for the men and junior varsity basketball and softball for the women. This would bring the college's total number of sports to 16: nine for women and seven for men.

According to IAC chairman Dr. T.C. Dalton, these additions were made in response to student interest and have been under consideration for some time. He also stated that the addition of these teams and the completion of the new facilities (including five additional tennis courts and the $4.5 million Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Complex) would better equip the college to meet the needs of the student body.

With the addition of three new sports coupled with the resignation of Coaches Neal and Callaway, Longwood is seeking to hire coaches for wrestling, tennis, volleyball, and softball. Martin Schoepfer has been named head coach of the cross-country program.

Final decisions have not been made concerning the use of the college's athletic facilities. Barlow gym, which has been used for men's wrestling, will be used by an academic department next year. Therefore, the wrestlers will be moved into Iler, French, or the new gym. Some of these decisions will be resolved at the next IAC meeting. Opinions concerning the use of the facilities should be communicated to Brenda Fettrow and Byron Bracey, student representatives of the IAC.

Sheila Gould displays her vault in the pike position vs. Virginia Tech.

Photo by Jul Morton

Smith Repeats As Top Player

Senior forward Maryjane Smith, who came through with 17 points in the second half to lead Longwood to a 56-54 victory over Virginia State Tuesday night, has been named Longwood College Player of the Week for the second time during the winter sports season.

Not only did Smith rally the Lady Lancers in the second half, she also scored a field goal with one second remaining to provide the margin of victory and give herself 1,001 points for her career. Smith is only the second player in Longwood history to score 1,000 points.

Coach Carolyn Hodges had this to say about her senior standout:

"Maryjane came back after a very cold first half to score 17 of her 20 points as well as to sink the winning basket of the game. Her performance sparked the play of the entire team. It was definitely a team effort and enthusiasm that produced the win, but it was also a superior individual performance by Maryjane."

Longwood's leading scorer and rebounder for most of the season, Smith is a former three-sport standout at Appomattox High School. A native of Pamplin, she is a Physical Education major. Last semester she made the Dean's List.

Maryjane is the daughter of Mrs. Anne C. Smith of Pamplin.

Lancer Basketball Machine Keeps Rolling! 21-1

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood Lancers narrowly defeated the Southeastern Hawks by the score of 57-54 on Sunday night. They stand at 21-1 on the year.

Kenny Ford continued to lead the Lancers scoring parade as he added 19 points. Shack Leonard added 12 points while Randy Johnson added 10. Johnson made four key free throws in the final minute of play to secure the victory for the Lancers including two free throws in the final three seconds which iced the victory.

Longwood continued its dominance of New York teams as they brought home a pair of victories on their latest trek to New York.

John Jay was the victim on Monday night as the Lancers rolled past the number one defensive team in Division III by a 72 to 49 count.

The Lancers once again were led by stellar forward Kenny Ford with 24 points. Joe Remar added 16 points and Shack Leonard added 12 points for the victors.

Longwood defeated Queens

College by a 96 to 83 count on Wednesday night. Five Lancers scored in double figures with scoring honors once again going to Kenny Ford with 22 points. Joe Remar and Shack Leonard both added 14 points while Ron Orr hit for 16 points and Randy Johnson added twelve. Kenny Ford also picked up 7 rebounds to aid the Lancer cause.

The Lancers round out the season this week with three games at home and one on the road. Longwood plays host to Shenandoah on February 12th. Emory and Henry on the 18th and the University of D.C. on the 23rd. Their only road game will be played at Greensboro College on the 14th.

The University of D.C. game will be heard on WPAC radio (1490 AM) at 8:00 p.m.

Alpha Sigma Phi President Chuck Cole plays defense on the fast break in IAA action. Alpha Sigma Phi defeated Undecided by the score of 33-32.

Wrestler's Struggle

By FRANK CREAMY

Last weekend found Longwood wrestlers meeting with woeful circumstances in a series of dual matches. Three wrestlers were hurt, and the Lancers dropped four team matches in less than forty-eight hours.

During the Elon match Friday night, Longwood had two wrestlers hurt and unable to wrestle the next day. Steve Shennett won by a pin at 150 lb., but the Lancers lost in the end by a 33-6 score.

The next day Longwood dropped three more losses in a tri-match at Chowan College. Newport News Apprentice College downed the Lancer grapplers to the tune of 39-18. Longwood's points came by forfeits. Montgomery College of Maryland was the next opponent and Steve Shennett gained a 1-0 decision for Longwood's only win. The final was 51-3. The other loss was to host Chowan, 57-0. Longwood gave away five forfeits (30 points), so only five matches were wrestled.

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Daddy's Money

LADIES' FASHION JEANS

REG. $15.95 NOW $9.95

THIS WEEK IN SPORTS	MEN'S BASKETBALL
	12	H — Shenandoah	8:00
	14	A — Greensboro	7:30
	18	H — Emory & Henry	8:00
HOME GAMES:	GYMNASTICS
	Radford		2:00
	WRESTLING
	12	H — Hampden-Sydney	7:30
	13	A — Richmond	7:30
	16	A — Lynchburg	2:00
	WOMEN'S BASKETBALL
	13	H — George Mason	7:30
	15	H — Va. Tech	7:30
	17	H — St. Mary's	8:00

Dramatic Shot Lifts Longwood; Pushes Smith Over 1,000 Point Hurdle

Maryjane Smith launches her 1001 career point shot. Photo by Jul Morton

Carolyn Callaway: The Backbone Of The IAA

By LISA SPENCER

For those who don't know, IAA stands for the Intramural Athletic Association. Also, for those who don't know, the pillar behind the IAA is Ms. Carolyn Callaway.

Ms. Callaway teaches two classes; volleyball and advanced life saving. Fortunately, these are her two favorite subjects. Also important to her is the IAA. Most of Ms. Callaway's day is spent making out entry blanks for intramural activities, keeping the intramural bulletin board up-to-date, organizing intramural tournaments, attending meetings, and handling protests from those who have run afoul of the IAA.

The purpose of the IAA is to promote and provide opportunities for participation in the intramural and recreational activities, to promote participation by members of the student body, and to stimulate school spirit. Unfortunately, according to Ms. Callaway, enthusiasm has diminished over the past few years.

When Ms. Callaway began advising the IAA in 1969, there were only 4 teams that participated (one from each class.) Now there are about 40 teams. The lack of managers hampers the program's efficiency. Ms. Callaway encourages any student who would volunteer to be a manager, or who would like to help with the program in some other way to contact her. Her office is in Tabb basement.

"I want the students to see the value of the program," says Ms. Callaway. "Any suggestions or questions about the program can be handled by Intramural Athletic Association board that meets every Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Students are welcome to attend these meetings."

Ms. Callaway stresses that the IAA is based on what the students themselves want. New intramural sports are added each year. This semester's schedule includes: men's and women's basketball, innertube water polo, foul shooting contests, spades, tennis singles, ping pong, and the Superstars Competition.

If more students don't participate in the intramural program, Ms. Callaway fears that it will be taken away. Students, the IAA is here for your benefit,—make use of it.

By HOKE CURRIE AND DEBBIE NORTHERN
Sometimes a single moment in the sporting event can transcend an entire season, even an entire career. At the conclusion of Tuesday night's game between women's teams from Longwood and Virginia State there was such a moment.

Maryjane Smith (Pamplin) put up a jump shot with one second showing on the clock and the score tied 54-54. The ball hit the rim, bounced three times and fell through as time expired giving the Lady Lancers a 56-54 victory and also giving Smith 1,001 career points.

The basket that was so much more than just a basket left the Longwood team and French Gymnasium crowd in a frenzy.

Smith entered the game with 981 career points and that fact weighed heavily on her in the first half as she scored but three points, all from the foul line. The 5-10 senior forward attempted only one shot from the floor. As she would admit later, the pressure got to her.

The Lady Lancers had played poorly and trailed Virginia State 32-23 at the half. As the second half opened the stage was set for Smith, Longwood's leading scorer (18.2 ppg.).

With 15:46 remaining, Maryjane canned her first field goal. Then she was off to the races, sinking her next five field goals and helping Longwood take a 48-42 lead with 6:05 left to play.

She didn't score again until one second remained when the game was on the line.

She finished with 20 points and 10 rebounds, hitting seven of 10 field goals attempts, and with her last second shot she became only the second player in Longwood history to score more than 1,000 career points. Sue Rama ('78) scored 1,459 career points.

REALLY NERVOUS

Smith admitted the pressure bothered her in the first half.

"In the first half the pressure got to me," she said. "I just choked. But, once I made that first shot in second half I was alright."

"Things had been building since Friday night when Coach Hodges (Longwood coach Carolyn Hodges) told me I had 981 points," Smith explained. "I had been thinking about tonight's game quite a bit."

What was Smith thinking about as the last-second shot bounced around the rim?

"I was trying to blow on the ball to make it go in and saying to myself 'Please Lord, let it go in.' I never wanted anything so much in my life."

Smith, who also scored over 1,000 points in an illustrious career at Appomattox High School, was particularly glad the shot gave Longwood a much-needed win.

"We needed to win very badly," she said. "We have lost several close games recently. I hope this will help us turn things around."

Brenda Fettrow had 10 points in the contest.

The Lancer luck did not extend south as the team traveled to South Carolina for the Winthrop Invitational Tournament, finishing last out of eight contestants.

In their first game Thursday against Winthrop College, Longwood fell 53-48, although they led at the half 29-25. Linda Pullen had an outstanding night as the only Lancer to hit double figures. She was six for seven from the floor and four for four from the line for a total of 16 points. Smith led in rebounding with 12.

The next day the Lancers dropped 77-72 to Appalachian State University after establishing a one point lead at the half. Fettrow and Smith both had 20 points and Pullen had 10 for the game. Smith pulled down a total of 11 rebounds.

Finally Longwood was pitted against University of South Carolina-Spartanburg who defeated them 68-57. Fettrow was high scorer with 23 points followed by Smith with 16. Pullen worked hard under the boards for 10 rebounds.

The Lady Lancer record now stands at 7-14. The Lancers have three games at home this week. Thursday night at 7:30 they host George Mason and Friday they play Virginia Tech. St. Mary's invades French Gym on Sunday at 3 p.m.

Maryjane Smith and Coach Hodges celebrate Smith's 1001 career point. Photo by Hoke Currie

1979-80 Longwood Lancer Basketball

GAME RESULTS

LONGWOOD	107,	record: 21-1	70
LONGWOOD	61,	Gallaudet	53
LONGWOOD	82,	Stony Brook	61
LONGWOOD	88,	Shenandoah	74
LONGWOOD	91,	Mary Washington	85
LONGWOOD	60,	St. Paul's	57
LONGWOOD	90,	Emory & Henry	68
LONGWOOD	121,	Bridgewater	84
LONGWOOD	81,	Southeastern (FL)	67
LONGWOOD	74,	Webber (FL)	53
LONGWOOD	51,	Mary Washington	33
LONGWOOD	60,	Bowie State	45
LONGWOOD	75,	Greensboro	76
LONGWOOD	58,	SALEM (WV)	53
LONGWOOD	75,	Averett	62
LONGWOOD	71,	SUNY-Maritime	54
LONGWOOD	76,	Manhattanville	71
LONGWOOD	69,	St. Mary's (MD)	51
LONGWOOD	118,	Bridgewater	85
LONGWOOD	72,	Southeastern (DC)	49
LONGWOOD	96,	John Jay (NY)	83
LONGWOOD	57,	Queens (NY)	54
		Southeastern

Share
a tradition
with Thomas
Jefferson.

The authentic Jefferson Cup.

In 1810, Thomas Jefferson designed a handsome round bottomed drinking cup. He commissioned a Virginia silversmith to craft eight cups in silver lined with gold. Jefferson treasured them highly, and bequeathed seven to his daughter for her children.

Swift faithfully reproduced the great master's Jefferson Cup in precious metals. It is the only authentic reproduction available. Truly something to treasure and hand down.

In sterling (with or without diamonds and rubies).

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE VA

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN.
Mon-Thur Til 10 PM. Fri. & Sat Til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Board Studies

(Continued from Page 1)

The area of long-range planning brought about discussion of the questioned statement of Institutional Purpose.

The Board suggested that the word, "comprehensive," be defined in terms that are more understandable to the public. Comprehensive is defined as dedicated to Liberal Arts, Professional Training, and Cooperative Programs. The Board voted to continue to pursue and study long-range planning and policy development as an ongoing, continuous activity. They added that the topic should continue to be reviewed at least once a year.

The administration reported to the Board that the Vice President for Finance has become responsible for data processing management. He will also chair the newly formed Automated Data Processing Steering Committee as the team recommended.

The Board received further report that an orientation program will be developed immediately for training and personnel. They also received report that a college-wide equipment inventory would be implemented as of July 1, 1980.

In discussing the responsibilities of the Internal Auditor, the board found that he will be relieved of his fiscal responsibilities by July 1, 1980. After questioning from Mrs. E.A. West, the Board found that the Internal Auditor was "not in position now to report directly to the Board as Internal Auditor."

All other recommendations were discussed in the Board's executive sessions.

Regular Business

(Continued from Page 1)

cast the negative vote.

Director of Public Affairs, John J. Mitchell, reported that the college is interviewing consultants interested in working with the school's recruiting materials. Four firms had been interviewed according to Mitchell.

Other actions by the Board concerned Governor Dalton's Management team report.

Adventure

(Continued from Page 3)

ambassadors and hosts are selected in both cities, to ensure that prospective ambassadors are not using the program as an inexpensive way to tour a foreign country or to conduct business. The destination will be announced on February 24 at 3 p.m. to all those participating.

Host families or individuals and ambassadors are still needed and any interested member of the college community may apply to be a member of the largest Friendship Force ever sent from Virginia. Applications can be picked up from Dr. Anthony Maurice, 110 Grainger, or Dr. Sandra Breil, 132 Stevens, co-chairmen of the committee.

Art Exhibit

(Continued from Page 5)

paper, showing images of three literary figures (Thoreau, Dickinson, and Wolfe) as they might have been "at home." Springer is also showing an acrylic painting and two ink drawings on handmade paper.

Jackie Wall is exhibiting two assemblages called Icon No. 1 and No. 2, which are containers with "remnants and relics of our society" which she is recycling. She is also showing a metal construction called, for obvious reasons, "My Dog, Rusty."

The public is cordially invited to view the art faculty exhibit during regular Lancaster Library hours: Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, 1 to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 2 to 10 p.m. The exhibit will continue through February 22.

Commentary

(Continued from Page 4)

the world. Those allies in the middle East, and western Europe must feel that the United States will support them in a crisis. However, America's allies must be ready to sacrifice some economic growth for the longrun interest of themselves and America.

The Soviets only understand power and must be met with equal force in those areas defined as vital to American interest.

Team Evaluates

(Continued from Page 2)

that open communications are necessary for the Finance Department and Data Processing.

In the section on Default Loan Process, the team found that a private collection agency is used to collect the accounts which the school is unable to collect. They recommended that the Board's approval be sought to use attorneys to collect these delinquencies. Also recommended was the transfer of NDSL loans collection from the Aid Office to the treasurer.

The report praised the school in financial aid saying, "Overall, this office recommends that Longwood be commended for a well-defined program and operation in the area of Student Aid."

The entire Management team report contained over 150 recommendations for the Board of Visitors to consider.

President Carter has rightly stated that the Persian Gulf area is in the vital interest of the United States.

Relating the Russians' invasion of Afghanistan to the Olympics does not seem unreasonable. The Soviets have put a lot of time and money into the Olympics and seem to want to show the world their society's unlimited abilities. In other words it will be a great propaganda show.

However, this is not the main reason for a boycott. If America participated in the Olympics it would legitimize the Russians' invasion of Afghanistan. In the larger perspective the Soviets must realize that their actions throughout the world will hurt their relations with other countries.

Dissatisfied

(Continued from Page 4)

responsible, grammatically correct newspaper because I find it appalling to read The Rotunda, knowing it is written by college students and seeing the terrible grammar. I do not expect this letter to be published, since I did not type it, although I would like to see it in the paper. I did want to bring to your attention the problems that I have seen in this paper for three years. Please improve!

Sincerely,
Kevin D. Lee
107 D Appomattox Street
Farmville, VA.

Woods Lecture

(Continued from Page 2)

revealed himself the difficulty of trying to find the most adequate dialogue which he eventually solved by using a large amount of narration. This enabled him to produce the screen play and fill in sound later. The main fault or disappointment, Woods stated, was the rapidity of the conclusion which leaves the audience quite unsatisfied because of the complexity of the ending. The confusing conclusion which completely broke the stream of consciousness of the audience was the main problem with the film.

"Apocalypse Now" is just as controversial and a permanent part of the conflict, stated Woods, as other movies such as "The Deer Hunter" and "Coming Home" that have been recently produced about the Vietnam war. Woods felt that these are like small personal films which display "the secret politics of American life".

SEND OR TAKE HOME
OUR FTD

Hearts & Flowers

YOUR VALENTINE
WILL LOVE IT!

The romantic FTD Love-Bundle Bouquet. We can send it almost anywhere.

FTD way.

$15.00

$17.50

$20.00

Valentine's Day
Thursday, February 14
CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP
711 W. 3rd. St.
Phone 392-3151

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

WEDNESDAY MORNING

CLOSED

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON

LINDA JILL DUNEYANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

WINTER CLEARANCE

ALL LONG SLEEVE
SHIRTS AND SWEATERS
1/2 OFF

MEN'S FASHION JEANS 20% OFF

LADIES FASHION JEANS 30% OFF

$1.00 OFF ALL BASIC LEVI'S
WITH LONGWOOD I.D.

JEANS SHACK

USE OUR LAY-A-WAY PLAN

SOUTHGATE
SHOPPING CENTER
PHONE 392-4870

ASK ABOUT
GIFT CERTIFICATES

Longwood College Night

Monday Tuesday Wednesday
5-9

Show us your Longwood Student I.D. card
and get $2.00 off any large or medium pizza.
(Pitchers of your favorite beverage available)

Housing Among Conference Questions

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Members of the three student boards added a new flair to the first Press Conference of the semester, February 12, in the Lower Dining Hall. Representatives from each board were present to answer any questions that students might have.

In answer to student questioning on the new Judicial structure, Sally Lowe, Chairman of the Board, answered, "So far, all we've had is narcotics cases." Students also questioned administrators being able to help in searches. Ms. Lowe replied that investigators could ask their assistance if it were needed. "If you'd like to see it in black and white, we can sure put it down," she added.

Dean Mary A. Heintz reported that the College would not have the Summer Academic Planning Session this year. Reasons given include the cost of the program and the continuous rise in the price of gasoline.

According to Tom Nanzig, Director of Housing, only about 150 people attended the Dorm meetings on housing. Concerning tripling, Nanzig stated, "I certainly hope we don't have the amount of triples." He said there would be three considerations given to those tripled: space utilization, letting those involved know during the summer, and tripling Freshmen with Freshmen and upperclassmen with upperclassmen.

"I'd like to keep things fairly stable," continued Nanzig. He hopes to find a plan which will not change the structure already used.

A question was asked concerning the use of the flag pole outside of the dining hall. President Henry I. Willett, Jr., explained that the pole was used by different student groups. The coloring on the pole was designed after those used in Germany for Oktoberfest. President Willett turned the matter over to Legislative Board.

President Willett dismissed the question on a student member on the Board of Visitors by saying, "I doubt it very seriously."

Mrs. Betty Kidder, Treasurer of the College, reported on two items that are continually questioned by students. Student teachers pay no dining hall fees for the time they are out reaching; therefore, they can not eat in the dining hall on weekends. Also, the Therapeutic Recreation Majors do not pay full tuition and fees while they are on field work. They only pay tuition and supervisory fees.

According to Nanzig, several break-ins occurred over Thanksgiving and Christmas breaks. "We recovered some; others are gone," Nanzig said about items stolen. He emphasized that students should lock their doors before leaving. The break-in reports lead to questioning on college insurance. President Willett reported that the school checked into the insurance again after the fire. "No colleges in Virginia or anywhere else I know of carry that kind of insurance," he reported.

Assistant Dean James L. Gussett, who is a member of the Bookstore Committee, explained that check cashing was a service provided to current Longwood students. A student must show his college ID to cash a check. O.W. Harper is given $50 for providing this service. The Bookstore Committee is currently looking into changes in the bookstore.

President Willett announced that the college was now looking into an Auxiliary Campus Police program made up of students. The responsibilities of this group have not been defined yet. The official announcement will come this spring.

This announcement came in response to a question about times that doors lock on weekends. According to T.C. Dalton, the college has had trouble with "a large group of town people coming in and using the facilities." He was referring to the gyms such as Iler. Extended hours in Lankford are going to be investigated.

Vice President William Peele reported that the maids responsibilities include keeping the classrooms and hallways President Willett and Housing Director Tom Nanzig discuss housing for next year at Press Conference.

Photo by Melody Crawley

clean. "If you have questions bring it to the attention of the residence staff people," he said.

Concerning the question on the intense heat in some dorms, Peele stated that they "constantly monitor" the thermostats trying to keep the temperature comfortable. He asked the students to let the Physical Plant know of any problems saying, "We don't want you to barbeque."

The last question of the conference dealt with the additional fees charged in Economics 202. The class is being taught by the Community College in the area. The teacher is coming every week from the college to Longwood. Each student is paying over $30 because they need this class to graduate.

Press Conferences are held several times during the semester.

Tammy Bird, Chairman of Legislative Board, answers questions to the Boards at Press Conference. Photo by Melody Crawley

Nominations Sought In Faculty Award

Initiated in 1972, the Faculty Recognition Award is presented annually to a faculty member who best exhibits qualities of competence and efficiency in the classroom. Concern for students outside the regular classroom situation is also taken into consideration.

The award consists of a $300 check and a bronze medallion on which is inscribed, "For Professional Excellence and Devoted Service to Students."

A committee comprised of clubs, class, and departmental representatives will screen the nominees, research the top candidates, and make the final decisions. Nomination applications will be available to students in the Rotunda this week during lunch and dinner.

The result of the final committee ballot is kept secret until May. The award is presented each year at commencement.

It should be emphasized that the award is given by the students. The overall importance of the award is the fact that it is given by students in appreciation of a faculty member believed to have gone above and beyond teaching requirements. The program not only recognizes a deserving faculty member, but also exposes the students to the fact that Longwood has many outstanding faculty members.

The award is not given to the same faculty member in a ten-year span. Mrs. Cada Parrish was the recipient of the award last year. Other faculty receiving the honor since the award's beginning were Miss Barbara L. Bishop, Mrs. Eleanor Bobbitt, Dr. James L. Gussett, Dr. Mary Cristo, Dr. Herbert Blackwell, Dr. Rosemary Sprague, and Dr. James McCray.

The program is coordinated by the Student Alumni Association and Office of College Relations.

The Daily Bulletin

There was some discussion in the recent press conference concerning the distribution of the Daily Bulletin. The Daily Bulletin is distributed Monday through Friday in the following areas:

1. 25-Mr. Dent's mailbox for distribution in the Student Union.
2. Shelf in the mailbox area in the basement of Ruffner.
3. Table outside of the Information Office in the Rotunda.
4. New Smoker.

Needs Your Support

By BILL LeWARNE

Geist's annual bloodmobile will be held on the 25 and 26 of this month in the red-white-green rooms of Lankford. Blood donations will be taken from 12 noon until 6 p.m. each day. Students are urged to sign up before hand on the preceding Thursday and Friday in the New Smoker during mealtimes to insure smoother organization and to provide students with definite times to donate blood that will not interfere with other activities. However, it is not mandatory to sign up in order to give blood.

Student support is urgently needed for the bloodmobile if Geist is to reach its quota and fulfill its pledge of support to the Red Cross. Incentive to participate should be heightened by CHI's announcement that they will award a banner to the class or organization which has the greatest overall participation. This banner will be handed down from year to year to the group which has the highest amount of involvement. Besides the CHI banner, Geist is also planning a special award (to be announced at a later date) for the organization or color class that has the most participation in the bloodmobile. If one cannot give blood because of medical reasons (or acute fear), Geist will also need volunteers to type, escort donors, and help with other aspects of the drive before and during donation times. Any help of this sort earns points for the group for which the student is working.

But there is a much more important incentive here than the fact that one's individual support will help a class or an organization. Giving blood or helping the Red Cross collect blood is something to be proud of for its own sake. A little of your time, a little of your caring, or a little of your blood could save a life. It could save the life of a young child with leukemia, the life of a car accident victim, or even the life of your best friend. Think about it. It's worth it.

Sophomore Week Planned

By ROXANNE SLAUGHTER

Sophomore Week is just a week away and the Class of 1982 is busy like little bees preparing the activities for this week.

What is Sophomore Week? Well, it has been a tradition of the Sophomore Class for many years past. The Sophomores join together and create a week of events to produce a goal of excitement and unity. Through the spirit that they have, and share, they hope to raise the spirit within the other classes.

Monday, February 25 is Green and White Day! The Sophomore Road Show will be traveling to Holly Manor Nursing Home to put on this year's skit with the title of "Anything for a Smile."

Tuesday, February 26, is Blue and White Day! The Sophomore Auction will be held that evening. The auction enables the college community to participate in the week's events by offering different services for sale. These services are usually performed by the faculty, staff, and administration as well as other college organizations and townspeople. For example, last year CHI contributed a cake for the auction. The auctioneer will be Dr. Robert Webber of the Math Department. Susan Towler is this year's chairperson of the Auction.

Wednesday, February 27, is Red and White Day! The Road Show will put on their big performance that day. This year's show is going to the Crippled Childrens' Hospital in Richmond. The skit which is entitled "Anything for a Smile" is about getting the Sesame Street character, Oscar, to smile. Also, accompanying the people in the skit are fifteen clowns who will sit in the audience and give out candy to the children as well as keep them amused. This year's chairpersons for the Road Show are Bonnie Vaughan and Sharon Harrop.

On Thursday, February 28, Sophomore Open Mike will be held. The Open Mike will be like all others held by S-UN except the acts will be performed only by Sophomores. So far there have been between five and ten acts scheduled. There will be a fish bowl at the Open Mike to collect money for Muscular Dystrophy. This year's chairperson is Duke Rollins.

Friday, February 29, Sophomore Week will make its grand finale with a mixer. The band will be Nickel Bridge in the Lower Dining Hall from 8 p.m. until 12 midnight. Sophomores, when buying a ticket, may purchase a ticket to the Student Unions' Saturday Night Alive for a discount of 50 cents. The chairperson of the Sophomore Mixer is Jerry Richman.

That is it folks, this year's outline for Sophomore Week. The Class President, Brenda Coleman, said that "things are going well." Come on out and give your support and spirit to the Sophomore Class for the week of February 24-29.

Freshman Production 1980

By LISA SPENCER

If you have seen strangely silent freshmen sneaking around the past few weeks, there is actually a good reason for it. No, it's not a plot against Longwood, they are planning the Freshman Production—the biggest secret kept by the Freshman Class.

The play is being directed by Kelly Jones. The stage managers are Laura Carroll and Suzanne Frayley. The script (the plot of which cannot be revealed) was written by Pam Winger and her assistants.

Starring in this year's Freshman Production are Mark Winecoff, Patty Carey, and Carrie Chumney. Supporting them in other major roles are Laura Akers, Beth Carr, Ross Conner, Judy Luck and Wendy Sublett.

If you are becoming curious as to what surprises the Freshman Class have in store, you can satisfy your curiosity on March 6, in Jarman Auditorium. The freshmen involved in this year's production have been working hard to make this a good one. The play is free to everyone, so take the time out to see it. Support the Freshman Class!!

SUPPORT YOUR LITERARY MAGAZINE

the "GYRE"

Literary And Artwork Needed

Submit Work To BOX 1135

Two-year scholarships are also (Continued on Page 8)

Dr. Jordan was the third colloquium speaker this year. Photo by Melody Crawley

To Share An Antelope

By TED KEANY

Dr. James W. Jordan, Asst. Professor of Anthropology, spoke Wednesday night at the Faculty Colloquium in Wygal Aud. The topic of his speech was the role of non-human animals in human cultures. This might not sound like the most electrifying topic for an in-sept talk, but don't let the title fool you. As well as informative, Dr. Jordan's speech was both intriguing and humorous.

He began by stating that animals play roles in a society that we would not expect them to play. As an example of this, Dr. Jordan spoke of pre-historic man and his hunting process known as corraling. This corraling method was used as an alternative to the stalking method. Its major advantage was the gain of tens and hundreds of animals rather than just one. From his research Dr. Jordan pointed out some other advantages, namely—enhanced social relationships. Before corraling was used, the stalker was a loner. He rarely had any interactions with other humans. As a result of corraling the pre-historic humans had time for activity other than hunting; such as throwing a huge feast. The members of one clan would invite a neighboring clan to share an antelope. Not only was it the main course, but also the main topic of conversation. Dr. Jordan stated that, due to corraling, both the quality and quantity of interaction improved.

Dr. Jordan pointed out other facts to reinforce his viewpoint. He spoke of the Neuwairne men of Africa, whose entire culture is centered around their herd. Dr. Jordan spent months in Africa, where he was involved in a field study. He also spent time in Appalachia, where he studied the role of dogs in that particular culture.

As a conclusion, Dr. Jordan cited several instances when animals were actually treated as humans. He said that 14,000 field mice were once excommunicated by decree of the Pope, and that a court order was once delivered to have millions of caterpillars removed from an orchard.

A knowledge and awareness of the substantial role of the animal was defined and developed to create a worthwhile evening for the listeners present.

ROTC Offers Scholarship

The Army ROTC offers a comprehensive scholarship program to qualified Longwood College freshmen and sophomores, according to Major Walter Sullivan, Officer in Charge of the Department of Military Science.

These are three-year and two-year scholarships available on a competitive basis to college students.

"Scholarships are available to both men and women," he said.

Financial benefits of the ROTC scholarships are substantial. Scholarships pay the full cost of tuition at Participating schools plus the cost of textbooks, lab fees and other educational expenses.

"A big plus to both students and their parents is that an Army ROTC scholarship also provides a living allowance of as much as $1,000 for each academic year of the scholarship period," Major Sullivan said. "A scholarship can be worth thousands of dollars."

SFC Tim Jordan stressed that the ROTC scholarship program attracts the top performers in their respective schools. "The competition is tough, but well worth it."

"One of the reasons, besides the obvious financial ones, is that we see the top people in their class vying for ROTC scholarships," Major Sullivan added. "Today's Army ROTC is vastly different from the old perception of ROTC cadets doing nothing but drilling and learning military tactics."

"Today the Military Science curricula relates to the cadets' other academic programs. Classes meet the accreditation requirements of colleges and universities. Our aim is to give ROTC cadets practical experience in leadership and management. We want them to be able to relate to the world outside of the military experience."

Requirements for three-year and two-year scholarship applicants are that the student be enrolled in college, have maintained satisfactory grades; be recommended by the Professor of Military Science; and have three or two years remaining for a degree, depending upon whether the student is applying for a three-year or two-year scholarship. Applicants do not have to be a member of ROTC, but they do have to enroll in Military Science if selected as a scholarship winner.

Two-year scholarships are also (Continued on Page 8)

8 p.m. Jarman General Admission $4 Students free with I.D.'s

FEBRUARY 20-23, 1980

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
PHONE 392-4154

Elements Combined For Production

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

In producing a major college musical play successfully, several fundamental elements are needed. Of course, the number one element is the play itself with a well-written entertaining plot. The next important basic is a cooperative effort between different departments of the school. Thirdly, a dedicated, hard-working cast is needed to perform the play. And last but definitely not least, is the all-important set crew and set production. These four basic elements have been combined sufficiently, and the product is Longwood College's presentation of "Carousel."

"Carousel" is the second musical written by the famous musical play pair, Rodgers and Hammerstein. It was written in 1949, four years after their first, "Oklahoma!". This ingenious duo of writers achieved something in musical plays that had not been done before. They incorporated their songs into the plot of the play and made them part of the character. "Carousel" is appropriately two hours long, with twelve songs, four dance numbers, and nine scene changes. This play was definitely an undertaking for Longwood College.

This brings us to the second essential factor, cooperation. Everybody has lent a helping hand, it seems. Dr. Louard E. Egbert of the Music Department is the musical director. He has arranged and is conducting the seventeen or eighteen piece orchestra. He also directed the musical numbers. Dr. Douglas Young of the Speech and Dramatic Arts Department is the stage director. The Department of Health and Physical Education is also getting in on the act. Nelson Neal from this department choreographed the dance numbers. Set production was under the charge of Richard Gamble and the Stage Craft class. Gamble also designed the lighting. Kathleen Gamble, Gamble's wife is in charge of costumes. The head electrician is Mike Lawson. Also, working with these various departments, is the cast of "Carousel." The members of the cast were chosen from Longwood students and faculty and members of the community. The end product is a well-written play, with an entertaining plot.

The story takes place in a New England fishing town in the 1870's. It centers around a young barker at the Carousel, Billy Bigelow, who is played by Douglas Blevins. Billy is a ladies' man and very brash. Then, Billy finds himself in love with a local mill worker, Miss Julie Jordan. Julie is portrayed by one of Farmville's community members, Mrs. Mary Breeden. Billy and Julie marry, and this costs Billy his job. (The barker should be single to attract the young girls.) He cannot find work for several weeks, and then to add to his misery he discovers that Julie is pregnant. In desperation to support Julie and their child, he is driven to rob the rich banker of the town. Billy does this with the aid of a new friend of a questionable reputation, Jigger Craigin, played by George Hughes. Billy is caught and rather than go to prison, he stabs himself and dies. However, when he gets "up there," he is given one more chance to do something good. Billy is allowed one more day on earth. He steals a star from the Starkeeper, performed by Buddy Bourne. He arrives on earth and attempts to give it to his daughter Louise. Louise, played by Nina Leffue, is now fifteen years old. Since she had not been born when he died, she is frightened of him and refuses the star. Julie does know him and accepts the gift. She knows that Billy still loves her as well as Louise. And so the play ends happily.

Along with this serious love pair, is a comic duo. Carrie Pipperib, played by Rebecca Munez, is Julie's best friend. She falls in love with a man called Enoch Snow who is portrayed by Robert Webber. Their songs are "absolutely delightful." They marry after a quarrel and have nine children. Other principal characters are Nellie Fowler. Nellie is played by another talented community member, Mrs. Anne Moore. She is the

(Continued on Page 8)

DON SANDERS

FRI., SAT., SUN.
FEB. 22-24, 8-11 P.M.

COFFEEHOUSE IN SNACKBAR

FREEFREEFREEFREEFREEFREEFREEFREEFREE

Visual Stage Language

The National Theatre of the Deaf, described as America's most remarkable theatre company, will appear in Jarman Auditorium on Monday evening, February 25, in their production of "The Wooden Boy or The Secret Life of Geppetto's Dummy."

The NTD is a fully professional company of 14 actors who combine sign language with simultaneous narration, song, dance, and mime in a unique and eloquent theatrical form. In addition to the beauty of the visual stage language of the deaf, spoken words and song are provided by the three hearing actors.

The play is an adult's retelling of "Pinocchio," focusing on the boy's comic misadventures along the thorny road to manhood. Confronted by rogues and villains of every description, Pinocchio is duped, captured and imprisoned, pressed into labor, robbed, swindled, flogged and seduced.

With a determination stronger than all misfortune, Pinocchio attains manhood and what he finds surprises him.

Now in its 24th national tour, the NTD has also made 11 European tours, two Asian and Australian tours, and two Broadway runs. In 1977, the company won the Tony award for theatrical excellence. They have starred in television specials on NBC, CBS, and PBS, appeared on the "Today" show and major talk shows, and are regulars on "Sesame Street."

The NTD's appearance at Longwood is sponsored by the college's Performing Arts Series and is supported in part by a grant from the Southern Arts Federation. General Admission tickets (2.50 each) will be on sale in the Student Union office, Lankford Building, beginning February 18, or may be purchased at the door. Curtain time for the performance is 8 p.m.

ON THURSDAY NIGHT SATURDAY NIGHT NIGHT ALIVE!

THURSDAY, FEB. 21 8:30 PM

L.C. STUDENTS $1.50 GUESTS $2.50

D.D. HALL I.D.S. REQUIRED

ENTER THE DRAGON

MIDNIGHT LATE SHOW

FRIDAY, FEB. 22

$1.00

S-UN Spotlight Concerts

Present

Jamie DeFrates

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1980

8:00 p.m.

Gold Room

Admission- Free

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF: Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert,
Thomas Cole, Frank Creasy, Barbara
Baker, Susan Butlin, Debbie
Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M.
Sloan, Sharon Janovich, Bill LeWane,
Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Lynne
Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jack Mallory,
Julie Morton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari,
Debbie Northern, Donna Hughes, Linda
Paschall

Member of the VIMCA
Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of Holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

Parental Note

Dear Editor,

Mr. LeWane's three column dissertation in The Rotunda January 29, 1980 on "What's Wrong With Longwood" appears to me he should have chosen a college more in keeping with his views.

We have a daughter at Longwood and we chose this college for exactly the things he opposes. I have always been of the opinion that if one is in conflict with the regulations, one should go where they would be happier.

Rules and regulations have always produced good order; without good order there is chaos.

There are Virginia Colleges who have unrestricted visitation rights and they have had dire results. The students' safety is constantly in jeopardy.

This is a great concern to parents and they are looking for colleges where rules and regulations are enforced. Also, they want assurance of safety not only in the dorms but on the campus as well.

Thank you,
Mr. and Mrs. L. Peterson

Comment

At this time of varied decision-making, be sure to use all channels to reach the administration. They are open to comments, thoughts, and suggestions. For your voice to be heard, you've got to say something.

Day Students

Dear Editor:

Once again day students have become the victims of another mischievous prank. This time our only working refrigerator was ripped off. Since many of us day students bring our lunches from home, the refrigerator has become a necessity to us.

It has come to the point that we are uneasy about leaving our belongings in the Day Student's Lounge. The lounge is important to us and, in a sense, is our "home away from home."

We feel that other students should have the same respect for us and our properties that we have for theirs.

Thank you,
Patti Bowman
Matt Lair
Ginina Anderson
Mitzi Coleman
Frank Bowman

EDITOR'S NOTE: Longwood is one of 14 colleges that could be affected by the following report submitted to the General Assembly by the University of Virginia.

A recent report presented to the Virginia General Assembly recommends that a student be elected to each Board of Visitors at four-year, state-supported institutions. The report was prepared by the Student Council of the University of Virginia.

In Virginia, Board of Visitors are responsible for "the effective government" of their respective institution. It is only natural that a student be a full voting member of that board which directly effects the college as a whole.

The students are a large and key part of any college or university and their views must be reprinted in order for the boards to be sensitive towards student needs.

The report concluded that direct student election of its representative was the best way to ensure a wide base of support for the student representative. Appointments by the Governor amount to virtual representation. A student body will have renewed interests in the activities of the board if they feel that they have directly elected their representative.

It was also stated that the student representative should have full voting rights. Otherwise the respective board members may not feel that they must take the student seriously. Having voting rights forces the board members to lobby for the students vote, thus making him an integral part of the board's decisions.

A one year term allows for a strong accountability factor since the student representative's voting record can be published in the student newspaper. The students can have a check on how well their interests are being represented.

There can also be a strong case made for the student representative being a current student at the institution that they represent. This enables the representative to be fully in touch with the many students.

Many students spend long hours on various activities on campus and there is no reason that a student representative could not spend the hours needed to be an effective member of the board.

Editor's Turn

If a survey team were to step foot on Longwood's campus today, they would become very amused trying to take a Gallup Poll on Current Events.

Current Events . . . Most of us know that President Carter is proposing a draft resolution, but what it actually is and how we really feel about it is questionable. We seem to sit in class not knowing how to respond to the question, "What do you think of the draft?" And when we do respond it is, "Well, I heard that they're only drafting those 18-20, beginning with the birthdate January 1, 1959 . . . but I'm not sure. I haven't read the newspaper recently."

This doesn't apply to all students, but we must admit that a lot fall into this category. The majority of students do not take time out to read the newspaper. As a matter of fact, surveys have shown that the average American watches the television for their news. On campus, students are lucky to read a newspaper once a week or month. Most just do not have the time, it's not that they are not available. What we do pick up is usually from the radio or a friend (sometimes a TV.)

Let's take Sunday's Richmond Times Dispatch front page for example. What were the headlines? Those who took the time to glance at the front page, before turning to the comic section would know that the lead article was "Games Fans Are Stranded; Emergency Steps Taken."

Moving a little closer to home, let's look at Longwood Current Events . . . Reporters here during the recent Board of Visitors meetings were very interested to find out what the average student strolling along on Longwood campus sidewalks felt about the management team report. They soon learned that even though most students knew there was a report; very few students had read or even skimmed it. They also questioned the fact that there were very few students at the open meetings.

This brings us to stress the fact that the Board meetings are open. Even though students have to come in and out during the meeting (just like professors and other staff), attending at least one hour of a meeting is very educational and entertaining.

Life at Longwood

AND I THOUGHT THE LINE
COMING IN HERE WAS BAD!

IT WAS ... AND SO WAS THE MEATLOAF

Commentary—

Student Board Member

THE ROTUNDA
STAFF
MEETINGS

Monday, 7p.m.
Lankford
we need your help!

Admissions Outlook Good

Page 5 THE ROTUNDA Tuesday, February 19, 1980

By SUSIE CRAWFORD

Getting into college has always been a baffling experience. A perspective student must evaluate a school's academic programs, extracurricular activities, social life, expenses, and school locale. When a student finds the school that's right for him he sends in an application and hopes for the best. Sometimes, a student will not get his first choice, so he then goes through a process of elimination.

For some, Longwood may be the ideal school—A small, residential college with a traditional campus, twenty-eight fields of study, and a variety of sports and social organizations. This maybe is why Longwood has so many applicants. Although there has been a predicted decrease in college applicants, there seems to be no immediate decline at Longwood.

According to Gary Groneweg, Director of Admissions, there are just about the same number of applicants as last year, and male applicants are up thirteen per cent.

Some students here feel that Longwood has been more lenient with the admissions of male students and athletes. Contrary to popular belief, the admissions staff has confirmed that this is not the case. All applications are reviewed on a rolling admissions basis. (Most applicants will receive a reply within ten days.) The applicants are judged on class rank and board scores, which are usually weighted more than grade point average.

If a perspective student is not accepted he can appeal the decision to Dr. Willett. Appeals come from the coaching staff, faculty members, Senators, and even Governors.

The admissions team does not try to go out and "sell" the college, but rather to find those who are looking for a school like Longwood. They feel that it is a total college effort and that current student's attitudes will influence a perspective student's decision.

Groneweg stated that "Everything that we do in marketing, we must do better in the 1980's." He also stressed "unity in college" as an integral part of the admissions team's future success.

The Showcase Gallery is currently featuring a group of works by art education major Kim Walker. The painting above is entitled "Colonnade in Turmoil." Included in the exhibit are paintings in oil and acrylic, pencil drawings, watercolors, etchings, a silkscreen, lithograph, and woodcut. The exhibit is open to the public in the Reading Rooms of the Lankford Student Union Building through February 22.

Need A Job?

Over 15,000,000 students and teachers will want summer jobs in 1980. Many have started looking already, but even those who begin early may find jobs much harder to come by this year than last. Higher unemployment has made competition for all jobs tighter than ever this year.

If you're looking for a summer job, there's still a shortcut way to find one. That's with the help of the 1980 Summer Employment Directory of the United States (Writer's Digest Books: $6.95) an annual handbook that lists employers with over 57,000 job openings.

For the past quarter century, thousands of students have spent the summer working at exciting places, earning money for next year's expenses, too, thanks to the annual Summer Employment Directory.

This directory is packed full of listings that give you the prospective employer's name and address, a description of the jobs available, employment dates, salaries, and other important information — such as whether or not room and board are available.

This year's version of the annual directory lists 900 summer employers: amusement parks, summer camps, national parks, private resorts, summer theaters, office temporaries, marketing and sales organizations — literally everybody who hires summer workers. Jobs are listed at amusement parks like Busch Gardens in Florida, Disneyland in California, Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio, and Six Flags Over Texas.

All the listings are checked and updated annually. In addition to the listings of summer jobs, the directory provides tips on applying for jobs, a sample job application and information about the summer job market.

The 1980 Summer Employment Directory of the United States. 208 pages; $6.95. Writer's Digest Books, 9933 Alliance Road, Cincinnati, Ohio 45242. Copies ordered directly from the publisher should include $1.25 for postage and handling.

Longwood Sponsors Debate Tournament

Longwood College will sponsor its twelfth annual high school debate tournament on Saturday, February 23, 1980. Students will compete in three divisions: switchman, four-man varsity, and four-man novice with all debaters arguing that the foreign trade policy should be changed. The high school students will be starting at 8:30 a.m. and finishing shortly after noon.

The tournament is under the direction of I.B. Dent, Mrs. Nancy Anderson, and the class members of the Forensic and Debate Class. If any Longwood student would be interested in judging the entire tournament or several rounds, please contact Dent's office 392-9346.

Schools expected to attend are: Albemarle High School, Dan River High School, Prince Edward County High School, Tunstall High School, Trinity Episcopal High School, Buckingham High School, Douglas Freeman High School, Prince Edward Academy, Randolph-Henry High School, Amelia County High School, and approximately ten other schools from over the state.

Two weeks ago Longwood sponsored its twelfth forensic meet for twenty-six high schools and over three hundred students. Central Lunenburg High School of Victoria emerged as the first place winner, scoring 34 points. In second place was Prince Edward Academy with 31; Kenston Forest School with 29; and J.R. Tucker High School of Richmond with 22 in fourth place. In the novice division Southampton Academy of Courtland took first place with 13 points, followed by Kenston Forest School and Prince Edward Academy, tied in second place with 12 points. Over one hundred Longwood personnel were involved in judging and running the tournament with students, staff, and professors working together to make the tournament successful.

AKD To Form

The department of sociology and anthropology has been authorized to establish a chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta on the campus.

Alpha Kappa Delta is an international society of scholars dedicated to the ideal of "investigating humanity for the purpose of service."

The purpose of the Longwood chapter will be "to promote an interest in the study of sociology, research on social problems, and other social and intellectual activities which will lead to improvement in the human condition."

The first student members of the Longwood chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta will be initiated during the current semester. To be eligible for membership, a student must be an officially declared sociology major (or demonstrate a serious interest in sociology within an official program of the department of sociology and anthropology at Longwood), must be at least a junior who has completed four regular courses in sociology, and must have an overall grade point average of 3.0, as well as a 3.0 grade point average in sociology courses taken at Longwood.

The Golden Days Re-Visited "TV: The Fabulous 50's"

Return with us now to those exciting days of yesteryear, those days when television was a brand new thrill. They were the days of experimentation and daring, bright hope and live performances in drama as well as comedy. They were television's "golden years."

As part of its Festival '80, public television will look back at those fun days on TV: THE FABULOUS 50's, to be seen March 7 at 10:10 p.m.

With clips from dozens of the early programs, TV: THE FABULOUS 50's is divided up into six distinct segments, each hosted by one of the performers who was outstanding in the field. Red Skelton, for example, hosts the segment on comedy and there could hardly be a more appropriate choice. His pantomime and clowning brought the art of comedy in some of its finest manifestations to this new, huge audience being reached by the supposedly magical screen. And Skelton's impish sense of fun seldom resisted an opportunity to prove that the performances were live, as he repeatedly broke up his guests with impromptu bits. He has said that it was "a wonderful, energetic, enthusiastic era . . . A lot of tremendously talented people not only believed in an experimental new kind of entertainment but literally made it 'come alive.'" His enthusiasm showed in the 50's, and it still shows as he looks back.

The segment on situation comedies is hosted by the queen of them all, Lucille Ball. The resilience of her work is well attested to by the fact that her "I Love Lucy" shows are still in syndication all over the country.

For the action series, everything ranging from crime fighters to space cadets, there is David Jansen, "The Fugitive" whose downcast anti-hero looks inspired cults of supporters. The amazing success of the "Fugitive-type" storyline has remained popular into today's fascination with the wanderings of Dr. David Banner, a.k.a. The Incredible Hulk.

The wild, wild West and its sometimes-not-so-wild series are hosted on TV: THE FABULOUS 50's by a man who has really grown up with the medium.

Michael Landon made a big hit as part of the Cartwright clan on "Bonanza" and has since stretched his creative skills as actor-director-writer-producer on numerous specials and series including the still-successful "Little House On The Prairie."

For those old enough to remember the early days of TV, there should remain a special warmth for Mary Martin, who will host the segment on drama. She flew into our hearts on stage as Peter Pan and then translated the play to TV with seemingly effortless grace. Her personal contributions to the medium in those days are numerous, and her reflections on the fusion of art forms are valuable stories.

Dinah Shore will host the segment on the variety features of the 50's. She was a big star then, and has remained a big star today, because she is a lady of infinite charm and talent. She was a big part of the reason why it can still be said that TV in the 50's was "fabulous."

Director Of Counseling Announced

Dr. Jennings Cox has been appointed by the Board of Visitors to serve as the Director of Counseling Services as of April 2, 1980.

Dr. Cox received his B.A. degree from Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, his M.S. degree from Virginia Commonwealth University, and his Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology from the University of Missouri. He is a certified rehabilitation counselor, and a certified parent effectiveness training instructor. He is licensed by the Texas State Board of Examiners of Psychologists, and is in the process of becoming licensed in the State of Virginia.

Dr. Cox has served as a Rehabilitation Counselor, Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, Central State Hospital, Petersburg; as a Research Assistant, Regional Rehabilitation Research Institute, University of Missouri; and as a Counseling Intern, University Counseling Services (APA approved), University of Missouri. From 1975 to present, he has served as a practicing psychologist, and is an Associate Professor with the Department of Rehabilitation Science, School of Allied Health Sciences (School of Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences), University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

Gymnasts Beat Radford- Prepare For State

By LISA SPENCER

Longwood Gymnasts took their talents to Radford University Saturday night, and returned home with another victory. The meet was a tough one, Radford is a formidable opponent. But the Lancers brought home a 122.85 to 118.25 victory.

The score of this meet was lower than other meets of the season, but Longwood still held onto take first place in all events except the floor exercise.

Sharon Pillow captured four first places in the meet: All-around (32.9), vaulting (8.9), bars (8.15), and beam (7.65). She also took third place in floor with a score of 8.2.

Kathy Idelson placed second in the all-around competition with 31.0 points. Kathy took second in bars (7.75), third in beam (6.85), and tied with Margie Fanton for fourth place in vaulting (8.45).

Shelia Gould held on for a fourth place finish all-around and a second place on the balance beam. Her all-around score was 30.0, and her beam was 7.55.

The girls finish their season with an impressive 8-1 record. This next week will be spent preparing for state competition to be held at William & Mary on Sunday, February 23, at 1:00 p.m.

Coach Budd and the team encourage everyone to come out and support Longwood during the state meet. It will be a tough competition and all support from Longwood students will be appreciated. Good luck, gymnasts — WIN STATE!!

Steve Shennett on his way to a pin while Lancer coach Nelson Neal and teammates urge him on.

Photo by Jui Morton

Lancers Await NCAA Bid!

By CHUCK COLE

The Longwood Lancers enter their final week of the regular season sporting an almost perfect 23-1 record with two games remaining. Longwood hosts Emory & Henry on Monday night at 8:00 and the University of D.C. on Saturday night at 8:00 in the French Gym.

The Lancers overpowered Shenandoah College by a 97-73 count on Tuesday night to earn its 22nd victory of the season.

Five Lancers scored in double figures on Tuesday night. Former high school teammates Joe Remar and Ron Orr led the Lancers with 14 points. Joining them in double figures were Shack Leonard with 13 points and Kenny Ford and Daryl Jenkins added 10 points each.

Longwood then overcame a very deliberate Greensboro College team on Thursday night to pick up a 33-30 decision in the contest.

Joe Remar led the Lancer scoring parade with 8 points while Mike Wills, Ron Orr, and Kenny Ford added 5 for the victors. Tee Alston was the high rebounder with 4 for the game.

The Lancers are waiting for a NCAA Division III At-Large bid which should be announced today. The Lancers, currently 15th ranked, are sporting a 23-1 record.

Remar Is Week's Top Cager

Freshman guard Joe Remar (Elizabeth, N.J.), Longwood's assist leader and second leading scorer, has been chosen as McDonald's Player of the Week by the Lancer coaching staff.

A starter all season for the nationally ranked 23-1 Lancers, Remar scored 22 points in a pair of games last week, 14 in a 97-73 victory over Shenandoah Tuesday night and eight more in a 33-30 triumph over Greensboro College Thursday night. For the two games, Remar hit seven of nine shots from the floor and eight of 10 from the free throw line.

In Thursday's narrow win over

Greensboro, the 6-1 guard hit a free throw with only six seconds left to seal Longwood's 23rd win of the season.

Averaging 12.7 points and nearly five assists per contest, Remar has been a standout for Longwood all season, performing more like a veteran than a rookie.

Remar was an All-County performer for coach Ron Kelly at Elizabeth High School where he played with current Lancer teammate Ron Orr.

A Social Work major, Remar is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Remar of Elizabeth.

Shennett Finds Niche, Earns Player Of The Week Honor

Longwood's wrestling team is going nowhere fast with a 1-10 record, but Lancer 150-pounder Steve Shennett (King of Prussia, PA) is coming on strong. So strong in fact, that after a 4-2 week which included three pins (a school record four for the year), Shennett has been chosen as Longwood College Player of the Week.

After going 0-3 in pre-Christmas matches at 158 pounds, Shennett has logged an 8-3 mark at 150 and has dispatched foes with vaunted reputations. Wednesday night the freshman pinned Division I Richmond's Rick Joyce. He also pinned Hampden-Sydney's Tom Varner as a screaming crowd of some 200 well-wishers cheered him on Tuesday night.

Shennett has done so well in recent weeks that he's decided to go up against the top Division III wrestlers in the East February 22-23 in the Eastern Regional at Salisbury State in Salisbury, Maryland.

A former Marine with tremendous upper body strength, Shennett performed for three years on the mat at Upper Merion High School (Philadelphia). As a free-style wrestler for 3 years while in the Marines, he won the interservice championship in 1979 at 149.5 pounds.

Shennett had a difficult time re-adjusting to college style wrestling, but appears to have found his niche at 150 pounds.

"Steve has been working very hard since we came back from the holidays," said Longwood coach Nelson Neal. "It took him a while to adjust from his free-style experience in the Marines, but he's been coming on fast."

A two-time regional champ who placed fifth in the Pennsylvania State Championship in 1976, Shennett is majoring in physical education. He hopes to become a Marine Corps officer.

Lady Cagers Take Two Wins

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Lancers took a home court advantage this week to gain two wins out of three games.

Longwood began by defeating George Mason 82-59, falling to Division I foe Virginia Tech 75-58, and then winning over St. Mary's 79-56. The Lancer record now stands at 9-15.

Against George Mason Wednesday night, Maryjane Smith led the offense with 24 points. Also in double figures were Brenda Fettrow with 12 and Patty Lia with 10. Fettrow had eight rebounds.

The score of the Lancers' battle against the Lady Gobblers Friday does not reflect the strong play of Longwood. The Gobblers would gain a sizeable lead which would dwindle to an eight to ten point spread after persistent efforts by the Lancers.

At the half, Tech was on top with a narrow 39-32 margin. The Lady Lancers, despite their strong playing, could not topple the Gobblers who drastically outrebounded them.

Smith held their own on the court scoring 23 points. Fettrow followed with 13 points and nine rebounds.

Sunday afternoon the Lancers picked up the pace after a slow start in which St. Mary's had their only lead. At the half Longwood was on top 36-24.

Using pressure defense fast, running offense the Lancers continued to control the game and hold Terry Harford, the Saints' leading scorer, to four points.

Again Smith took honors with 19 points and 11 rebounds. Patty Lia and Cindy Eckel came off the bench to add 13 points and 10 points respectively.

Tonight the Lady Lancers play their final home game against Liberty Baptist before traveling to the nation's capital to play University of D.C., Thursday and Catholic University Saturday.

Brenda Fettrow looks for assistance against the strong defense of Va. Tech.

Photo by Linda Paschall

Division III Top-Twenty

	Pts.
WITTENBERG (Ohio), 21-1	120
NORTH PARK (Ill.), 21-2	112
JERSEY CITY STATE (N.J.), 20-2	104
POTSDAM STATE (N.Y.), 18-2	96
CLARK (Mass.), 15-5	76
OHIO NORTHERN, 18-4	72
UPSALA (N.J.), 18-4	67
SAVANNAH STATE (Ga.), 19-4	56
HUNBOLDT STATE (Calif.), 15-7	40
SOUTHWESTERN (Tenn.), 16-4	39
ST. LAWRENCE (N.Y.), 16-3	37
ALBRIGHT (Pa.), 17-5	34
DICKINSON (Pa.), 14-6	33
BELOIT (Wis.), 14-3	30
LONGWOOD (Va.), 21-1	20
ALBANY STATE (N.Y.), 16-4	20

Robin Hungate: An Artist On Court And Off

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
Sophomore center Robin Hungate displays her artistic talents both on and off the basketball court.

As a player, she demonstrates good, fluid movement on the floor, grabbing rebounds, making crisp passes and playing defense. As an artist, her work is also eye-catching. She designed the cover of this year's basketball program. And, she also designed the programs for her high school team.

Besides basketball and art, Robin is also a talent on the Lancer volleyball court. She did not begin playing varsity sports until her sophomore year in high school, but soon made a name for herself by being chosen all-District in both volleyball and basketball and winning district championships in track in high jump and hurdles.

"I like to jump. That is the only similarity I see between volleyball and basketball.

Volleyball is more mental while basketball is more physical," she explained.

The Vinton native particularly enjoys the center position. She believes it is more of a challenge than forward because there is more physical contact.

"I try to keep the ball from my player and out of my area. When I'm up against someone taller than me it works best if I front them; that is, keeping my hand in front of them to discourage the pass," says Robin.

On offense, Robin likes layups the best. She also tries to move the opponent out of her way by head and body fakes. This tactic seems to work well as Robin is the sixth highest scorer, with 74 points so far this season. Her best games to date have been against University of Richmond with 11 points and University of North Carolina-Greensboro with 10 points. She also averages three rebounds per game.

In her second year on the Lancer team, she has further matured in the ways of college ball from last season.

"College ball is rougher and quicker. You have to be more physically fit than in high school. I love the run, pass, and shoot type of game. College ball is also more team oriented. In high school you saw a lot of individualized play," Robin commented.

She feels Longwood has had some bad luck in losing several close contests, but thinks their luck is changing and their win Wednesday night over George Mason is a positive sign.

"I feel our defense is very strong, especially in the 2-1-2 zone and man-to-man. Offensively we can shoot both inside and outside which is a plus. We are a lot quicker than we were last year," Robin said.

She is optimistic about future Lancer prospects. If all the underclassmen return, she feels the team will be strong, but it will still be young and need another few years to grow.

Robin chose Longwood because she liked the small size and she thought the basketball team and art department were quite good.

Robin, an art major who wants to become an architect, got interested in technical drawings in a class at William Byrd High School.

Much as she did in her high school days, Robin continues to prove that art and athletics go together quite well.

Gymnasts ranked No. 1 for Regionals! TOP (left to right) Karen Mazzonna, Sheila Gould, Margie Fanton. SECOND ROW — Jean Powers, Margi Janger. THIRD ROW — Kathy Idelson, Barbara Jolly, manager Faith Brewer, Robbie Hanger, BOTTOM ROW — manager Patti Twyman, Head Coach Ruth Budd, Sharon Pillow. ABSENT: Donna Barger.

Photo by Hoke Currie

Rebounding Favorite Job Of Longwood's Gates

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
In basketball, the center is a pivotal player both offensively and defensively. Fairfax native Amy Gates has successfully served the Lady Lancers in this position for two years.

"I try to be aware of what's going on around me and try to help out where I'm needed. This is important for a center. I also need the people behind me to talk," said the 5-10 sophomore.

Amy, called "Thunder" by her teammates, has found her spot on the court, where rebounding and blocking shots are highlighted.

"My favorite part of the game is rebounding. I block out my opponent to keep them off the boards and go for the ball. Since I don't jump as well as some other players, I have to get position, especially when there are taller players in the game," said Gates.

This solid player shows no fear when fighting under the boards for rebounds. She likes the physical aspect of rebounding. Her enthusiasm for this part of the game is evident as she is the Lady Lancers' third highest rebounder, averaging 4.9 rebounds per game. She also has 11 blocks to her credit this season.

Offensively, she prefers to put up inside shots. At present, she says she is in a scoring slump, but she is averaging 4.4 points per game. Amy believes that her scoring will pick up, but she is not overly concerned as she is a team player who has accumulated 10 assists this season.

"I'm looking to give somebody who's open the shot rather than getting the personal stats," she said.

Amy feels the team's greatest weakness is when it tries to create plays which are not there. Usually this happens when Longwood is behind and is desperate. Defensively, she feels the team is holding its own.

"We need to be more disciplined as a team. Sometimes we just get crazy and start playing our opponent's game instead of our own. Although I think we improve each game; we need to get it together at the same time. For instance, one player might have a good night, but the rest of the team is in a slump," Amy said.

A basketball player since the sixth grade when she began playing for a recreational league team, Amy believes that women's basketball is continuously improving. She has seen high school players become more skilled over the years. Yet, she does not think that the world is quite ready for women's pro ball. The interest just is not there at this time, she believes.

Amy has not just confined herself to rebounding. At Oakton High School she took district and regional honors in track as a shotputter. She also learned how to play lacrosse on the Lancer jayvee team last spring.

An accounting major, her future goal is to become a CPA and eventually establish her own firm. Amy, though wishes to aid the progress of women's sports by staying in touch with basketball, as so much of her life has been dedicated to this sport. She would like to go back to her basketball roots and coach a recreational team some day. With her experience in college ball and her love of the sport, she should be a good coach.

Ron Orr shoots a lay-up in Lancer basketball action.

Photo by Hoke Currie

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW

OPEN:

FRESH SALADS

Mon-Thur 11-10 PM, Fri-Sat 11-Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

This Week In Sports
Men's Basketball
18	H - Emory & Henry	8:00
23	H - University of D.C.	8:00
Women's Basketball
19	H - Liberty Baptist	7:30
21	A - University of D.C.	7:00
23	A - Catholic University	8:00
Gymnastics
23	A - VALAW State Meet at William & Mary	1:00

ROTC

(Continued from Page 2)

available to Longwood students who attend ROTC Basic Camp this summer on a competitive basis similar to that in the Four-Year Program.

"Because we're looking for the highest quality men and women as ROTC cadets, the Army has designed one of the finest scholarship programs available to students entering academic life," said Major Sullivan.

"We're looking for young men and women with leadership and management potential. But we're also looking for men and women with spirit, with a sense of duty and pride in their country, and the determination to defend it should that become necessary."

"Carousel"

(Continued from Page 3)

leader of everyone and takes care of Julie and Billy while he is out of work. The owner of the Carousel is Mrs. Mullins who is played by Vicky Mann.

The chorus also plays a major part in the performance. Dancers and singers are portrayed as fishermen or sailors or the like.

The set production, under Gamble's guidance, was "ingeniously designed." The Carousel moves on a turn table run by electricity. In a different scene, a house sits on this turn table, and in yet a different scene, the house turns around to become a red schoolhouse. The scenery platform that is used, among other things as a pier, moves down to the front of the stage. It is activated by air, by using a bicycle pump as an air cylinder. This unique device was actually invented by Gamble, and it actually works. It is indeed a clever apparatus.

By multiplying an excellent play, people working together, and a hard-working set crew, the end result is sure to be a success. The musical will be held in Jarman Auditorium on February 20-24 at 8 p.m. Longwood students get in free with their I.D.'s. General admission is $4.00 and student rate is $3.00.

"Gifts That Are Different"

ALL LONGWOOD JACKETS

1/2 PRICE

This Week Only!

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

CLOSED

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM

WEDNESDAY MORNING

REG. LEVI'S Denim & Cords,
Straight Leg & Bell. . . $15.50
STUDENT SIZES. $14.50
$1.00 OFF W/ Longwood I.D.

ALL LADIES WINTER

SWEATERS & BLOUSES2 FOR $13.00

MEN'S
SWEATERS
& FLANNEL SHIRTS
30% OFF

LADIES'
LEVI'S JEANS
30% OFF

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER

USE OUR FARMVILLE, VA.

USE OUR

LAY-A-WAY PLAN PHONE 392-4870 LAY-A-WAY PLANCARTER'S FLOWER SHOP711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va."Your Flower Headquarters"

The perfect way to express your love

Show your love with a perfect Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Each Keepsake center diamond has perfect color, cut and clarity. Be assured of a perfect, brilliant diamond set in a beautifully styled 14 karat white or yellow gold ring.

Come choose your Keepsake ring today.

Keepsake
Registered Diamond Rings

Martin
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

Trade Mark Reg.

Pino's PIZZA AND RESTAURANT

SPECIAL...

LARGE PIZZA

WITH ONE TOPPING OF YOUR CHOICE

$4.25

.....THRU SUNDAY.....

TRY AND ENJOY ALL OF OUR SPECIALTIES OF THE HOUSE

404 South Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-3135

THEHAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON

LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri.	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The Farmville Shopping Center

Tiffany's Bridal and Formal$1,000 FREE!

To some lucky Tiffany Bride! Register at any Tiffany's location before drawing on April 15. No purchase necessary.

"Virginia's Largest Selection of Bridal Fashions"

NORFOLK
Military Circle Mall
461-1690

PETERSBURG RICHMOND
Walnut Mall 3120 West Cary St.
861-4140 358-4522

HAMPTON/NEWPORT NEWS
Newmarket North Mall
827-0390

A career in law—without law school.

After just three months of study at The Institute for Paralegal Training in exciting Philadelphia, you can have a stimulating and rewarding career in law or business—without law school.

As a lawyer's assistant you will be performing many of the duties traditionally handled only by attorneys. And at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you can pick one of seven different areas of law to study. Upon completion of your training, The Institute's unique Placement Service will find you a responsible and challenging job in a law firm, bank or corporation in the city of your choice.

The Institute for Paralegal Training is the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training. Since 1970, we've placed over 3,000 graduates in over 85 cities nationwide.

If you're a senior of high academic standing and looking for an above average career, contact your Placement Office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on:

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19

The Institute for Paralegal Training

235 South 17th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103
(215) 732-6600

Approved by the American Bar Association.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1980

NO. 17

Carousel Termed Cautious Success

By DUDLEY SAUVE

Seeing a production of a Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is like greeting an old friend you haven't seen for a few years. After a joyful reunion you begin to make mental notes on how that friend has changed. In the case of the production of CAROUSEL, a cooperative venture of the Longwood Players, the Department of Music, and the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts, this reviewer had three hours for those mental notes. A blue editing pencil would have helped the show tremendously. Even the Rodgers and Hammerstein Library which controls the production rights includes a clause in its contract stating that the show can be cut to help the production move smoothly. It would have been wise to follow this suggestion.

The integration of story and character into music and dance to advance the plot was a

Rodgers and Hammerstein innovation. Indeed, the director's notes on the program inform the audience of this fact. For the most part the elimination of the dancing would have advanced the plot (and, incidentally, materially cut down the running time) in this production. The dancing children were cute, the dancing men didn't delay the show because they danced during the song, but the opening pantomime, Louise's ballet on the beach, and the girls' dance interlude in "June Is Bustin' Out All Over" seemed interminable.

A musical is designed so that major set changes can take place behind a closed curtain while another scene takes place in front. Several close curtain-change set-open curtain delays added to the length of the show.

There are, however, several moments of sheer beauty in CAROUSEL. Every time Mary Breeden began to sing, the audience was thrilled. The clarity of tone, the accuracy of pitch, the emotion in her words were a joy to hear. Local audiences, familiar with Mrs. Breeden's roles in SHENANDOAH and CAMELOT, were not disappointed in her Julie Jordan. The part is made for her, and even in comparison to the original Julie, Jan Clayton, Mary comes off on top. From the opening notes of "If I Loved You" she felt no doubt that she was in command of the role.

Rebecca Nunez's "Carrie" was a good foil for Julie's seriousness. Her voice is beautiful and her comedy deft. I feel that she played the part too old—or perhaps it was her costume and make-up.

Billy Bigelow, played by J. Douglas Blevins, is the anti-hero of the show. His singing is nice. His acting needs improvement. He wasn't totally believable as the rough, self-centered, lady-killing Billy. How does he "throw away my sweater and dress like a dude" when he's already dressed like a dude. "Soliloquy" was a disappointment.

Robert Webber was appropriately prim and proper as Enoch Snow. His comic interpretation of "Geraniums in the Winder" was fun.

The orchestra, under the direction of Louard E. Egbert, was a beautiful compliment to the show. It's a thrill to hear good music performed well, and this was. If the main curtain had been open, we could have heard the overture and entre-acte better, but sacrificing the pit brought the actors closer to the audience.

Carrie played by Rebecca Nunez sings of the Wonderful Mr. Snow as Julie played by Mary Breeden listens in Longwood Players Production of Carousel.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Fall 1980 Tentative Housing Plan

The following tentative fall housing plan has been developed by considering predicted housing needs as well as input from Residence Board, students, resident staff, and administrative personnel. Please feel free to direct comments, suggestions, or questions regarding this plan to the Housing Office by February 29, 1980.

North Cunningham — freshman men

Tabb — freshman women

Curry (7 and 8) — freshman women

Cox — open to all men

Main Cunningham — open to all men

Frazer 2, 3, 4 — open to all men where fraternities are not housed

Wheeler — open to all women

Curry 2, 6, 9 & 10 — open to all women

South Cunningham — open to all women

Frazer 5-10 — open to all women

French — open to all women (Note: French Hall may undergo major renovation effective January, 1981)

Stubbs — will house all sororities

Notes:

1. Rooms and suites will be assigned during room selection only if filled to capacity.

2. No single rooms will be available with the exception of the three single rooms in South Cunningham.

3. All regular triple rooms will be clearly designated for upperclass sign-up. Students who wish to voluntarily triple-up in a regular double room may do so by special request to the Director of Housing.

4. Conversion of double-occupancy rooms to triple occupancy will include all Curry and Frazer triples (not occupied by staff members) and French 205 and 206.

5. Homesteading will be allowed by roommates in all undesignated, upperclass residence hall rooms.

6. Sororities and fraternities will provide the Director of Housing with lists of members and suggested room assignments. Members who cannot be housed will need to go through the regular housing process.

7. The Stubbs Hall ground floor rooms not currently assigned to the sororities will not be reserved for freshman women.

8. Should tripling become necessary, freshmen will be assigned with other freshmen whenever possible and any upperclassman affected by an over-assignment will be notified as quickly as possible.

9. The following areas may not be homesteaded: North Cunningham, Tabb, Stubbs — ground floor, designated RA rooms, designated handicapped rooms, fraternity and sorority spaces, Curry (7 and 8) and South Ruffner.

Student Government Day Set

By ROXANNE SLAUGHTER

Would you like to have a voice in issues and express your opinions? Here is your chance, Student Government Day!

Legislative Board is the sponsor of Student Government Day which has been planned for March 4. The day is organized so students may get together with faculty and administration. A student is assigned to a faculty or administration member with whom he or she can spend the day, attend lunch or the Banquet that evening, talk with for any given length of time about concerns, Student Government, or the Faculty, Administration member's job. A student may also elect to attend class with the faculty member, take your assigned person with you to your class, or to the Press Conference.

The list of main events for this year's Student Government Day is lunch at 12:06, a Press Conference in Lower Dining Hall at 12:45, a mock trial-time to be announced, and a banquet in the Virginia Room at 6 p.m.

The banquet in the Virginia Room will have entertainment by Charlie Mason and Dale Roller. This year's guest speaker will be Dr. Anthony Cristo of the Business and Economics Department. Dr. Cristo's topic of discussion is not known at the time. Also, the Board of Visitors have been invited to the Banquet so this will provide an opportunity for students to talk with them.

On March 6 and 7 the Board of Visitors will be meeting again. Students are urged to sit in on their meetings. The Board has stressed in the past the lack of communication between the students and Board members.

Mary Slade and Julia Combs, co-chairpersons of Student Government Day, said, "Preparation first began with over 250 letters being mailed to all administration and faculty members. They were given approximately two weeks to respond. Out of these 250, only 30 some teachers responded at all.

This is a very small percentage and we were quite disappointed." They are really pushing for students participation because it has been felt that in the past many students did not turn out, so therefore the faculty and administration have lost interest.

Flyers have been placed all over campus and sign up sheets were placed in the New Smoker for students. Julia Combs stated that administration and faculty members could still sign up for lunch or the banquet, by contacting her at Box 831 or Mary Slade, Box 204. Further information on SGA Day will be in the Daily Bulletin.

It has been stated that in the past the main problem was getting the students to get in touch with his or her assigned person before SGA Day. Students must contact the person prior to March 4 to set up an agenda for the day. So go out, get things set up with your person and spend the day trying to improve things here at your school, Longwood College!

Suggestions Offered Dining Hall

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Over 300 students offered suggestions for dining hall improvements to James Trettel last week. Trettel, the district manager of ARA Food Services, was here as a follow up to last semester's Food Preference Survey.

Trettel reported that the Food Preference Survey results will be posted in each dormitory this week. "We look at the surveys," Gordon Inge added. Inge, the manager of the dining hall, said that the forms are used to determine variety.

In his discussion with students, Trettel found the students had, "a lot of positive things to say." The students reportedly liked family service meals, table cloths on the table, self-serve breakfast, and birthday dinners.

Long lines at lunch time, crowds at the beverage counter, and food variety headed the list of suggested improvements. Inge reported that the survey called for hamburgers, hot dogs, pizza and spaghetti for lunch. Dinner favorites were fried chicken and roast beef.

Another positive aspect recalled by both Trettel and Inge was the hot bread. The dining hall has been making all the bread this semester. Inge describes it as "a better way to utilize the food dollar." He also added that this bread is better from a health standpoint. There are no preservatives added.

Other student complaints varied from dirty silver and china to green bologna. Students ask for hot doughnuts, cold orange juice, more salad bars with a better variety, more soups on a year round basis, less carbohydrates, more fruit, brand cereals, and chunky peanut butter.

Trettel reported that one student requested he check the macaroni and cheese recipe. He added that he had done so and that the cooks are using aged cheese instead of processed cheese.

Both Inge and Trettel stressed the importance of student communication with them. Inge added that the dining hall committee meets every three weeks.

Talmadge H. Yeatts, Alfred R. Carter, James Trettel, and Gordon Inge discuss students suggestions for the dining hall.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Council Discusses Outlay Plans

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Capital Outlay Plans headed the agenda of the Longwood College Council meeting February 20. Dr. William Peele reported that several outlay changes would be taking place upon completion of the new gym.

Office space left vacant in Tabb basement will be the new location for Duplicating Services. This will leave room for the expanding Data Processing in Ruffner basement.

Barlow Gym will become the new headquarters for the Social Work Department. Space in Ruffner vacated by them will go to the Business Department and ROTC.

Dr. Peele also added that the Capital Outlay Committee will discuss parking on Tabb Circle, additional storage space area, and possible expansion of the Snack bar at future meetings.

The group also discussed maintenance conditions of the academic classrooms and bathrooms. Dr. Peele reported that requests should be turned into the department chairmen. "Every time someone makes a request — we respond," he added.

Dr. T. C. Dalton reported that a decision will be announced in the next four weeks on the athletic teams in the new gym.

Other discussions were held on private funding, absentees, and faculty salaries.

The Longwood Council is an advisory group made up of five administrators, five faculty, and five students. Student representatives are Libby Bowman, Donna Hughes, Brenda Coleman, Class Presidents; Tammy Bird, Legislative Board Chairman; and Linda Wheeler, Residence Board Chairman. Other students who attend include John Todd, Freshman Class president; and a representative from The Rotunda.

Debate Tournament winners in the varsity category are Left to right: I. B. Dent, Tournament Director, First Place — Prince Edward Academy, Carroll Colley; Second Place — Albemarle High School, Hayley Murphy; Third Place — Tied Nelson County — John Broadbudd, Jr., Wilson Memorial High — Jean Harner.

Photo by Melody Crawley

High School Debate Tournament Sponsored

Longwood College held its twelfth annual Debate Tournament on Saturday, February 23. Beginning at 8:30 a.m., over forty different teams debated the proposition that the foreign trade policy should be changed. These 200 high school students competed in switchman, varsity, and novice divisions.

Winners were announced during an awards assembly Saturday afternoon in Lankford. Overall winners included Prince Edward Academy of Farmville scoring a total of 11 points to receive first place. Albemarle High School, close behind with nine points, received second place. A tie for third place with three points each was held by Wilson Memorial and Nelson County High Schools.

Other first place winners included Albemarle County High School in the switchman division with a 5-1 record, Albemarle County in the varsity division with a 3-0 record, and Prince Edward Academy in the novice category with a 6-0 record.

(Continued on Page 8)

Freshmen Plan Production

By BETH PARROTT

The Class of 1983 is diligently working on this year's Freshman Production. March 6 will reveal their hard work when the play is presented on Jarman Stage at 8:00.

Theresa Fiscella and Kelly Jones are Chairmen of this year's production. Along with other committee chairmen: Suzanne Frailie, Laura Carol, stage; Shelli Miller, sets; Mimi Kckowski, publicity; and Pam Winger, script, they have been working very hard to not only produce the best Freshman Production ever, but to also keep it a secret from the upperclassmen.

Major characters include Mark Winecoff as Meeke and Carrie Chumney as Eek. Other major roles are Ross Connor, Meeke II; Patty Carey, Eek II; Judy Luck, Colleague, Beth Carr, Person A; Lora Akers, Sally Sue Smith; Lynda Lansinger, Registrar; and Trotman Simpson, Announcer. Don't forget — March 6 reveals the freshman interpretation of Longwood.

SAA Plans Phon-A-Thon

By LISA SPENCER

It's that time of year when the Student Alumni Association gets together to hold its annual Phonathon. Ten phones are manned by students and calls are placed to the parents of students, asking for donations to the Parents' Annual Fund.

The Parents' Fund, part of the Longwood College Foundation, is used to provide for certain things that the state cannot. The money goes toward scholarships (non-athletic), loans, and classroom equipment. It also is used to promote and enlarge cultural and religious programs on Campus. Students are needed to help with the Phonathon which will be held March 10-12, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. each night. Anyone wanting to help with this year's program should contact either Pam Wagner at 392-3337 or Mrs. Barbara Nanzig in the College Relations Office. Prizes will be awarded to the students who make the most money and the most phone calls each night.

Last year the SAA had a really big turnout and collected around $6,000. They would really like to exceed last year's amount, so encourage your parents to make a donation when the students phone them. It's for the best interests of Longwood, and best of all, it's tax deductible!

Sophomore Week

Tuesday, February 26	Green-and-White Day Auction — LDH, 7:30 p.m.
Wednesday, February 27	Red-and-White Day Road Show
Thursday, February 28	Blue-and-White Day Open Mike — 8 p.m., Gold Room
Friday, February 29	Sophomore Mixer — 9 p.m.-1 a.m. Nickelbridge Sophomores W-ID $1 LC Students W-ID $1.50 Guests $2.50
Saturday, March 1	Sophomores with tickets from Friday's Mixer will receive a 50 cent discount on the Admission Price of Saturday Night Alive with Rock Mt. LC Students W-ID $1.50 Guests $2.50

SUPPORT YOUR LITERARY MAGAZINE

the "GYRE"

Literary And Artwork Needed

Submit Work To
BOX 1135

Audience Enjoys Return Visit

By LISA SPENCER

If an architect who played in bars at night decided to devote all his time to only music, what would be the result? Great—if the architect-musician is Jamie DeFrates.

Jamie's performance in the Gold Room Tuesday night is his second appearance at Longwood, and he says he loves it here. "I enjoy the informal-type audience," Jamie remarked. And most of his audience really enjoyed him. His Jim Croce-type melodies were the kind that stick in a person's mind for a long time.

Probably the audience's favorite song was one that Jamie said will more than likely be the name of his next album. "Struggles" is the type of song that can easily be related to by everyone. Practically all of Jamie's songs were that type. He sang about everything from Abraham Lincoln to himself.

When asked after his performance what he does to prepare for a concert, Jamie said that he takes deep-breathing exercises. "It helps to relax my diaphragm," Jamie stated. Apparently, it worked well Tuesday night because after his show, Jamie had a line of admirers asking for his autograph and making him promise to return to Longwood next year.

Photo by Linda Paschall

Sanders A Definite Hit

By MARK M. SLOAN

Longwood students were treated this weekend to a talented and creative artist in the person of Don Sanders. Despite the conflicting times of play "Carousel," and a party for Main Cunningham residents in the Lower Dining Hall, attendance was fairly good, and those who came enjoyed Sanders' show immensely.

Don Sanders is a native of Houston, Texas, where he has been performing since 1966. In the late Sixties he began touring the national folk circuit, appearing with such acts and performers as Josh White, Johnny Hammond, and Pete Seeger. He also enjoys teaching his skills, and participates in workshops and residency programs. Sanders' music combines a light, melodic style with lyrics that are deceptively poetic. He established an instant and intimate rapport with his Longwood audiences, delighting his listeners with humorous and satirical songs of his own composition. His music is very personal and unique, not to mention entertaining.

Don Sanders made a definite hit here, impressing his listeners with his individuality, charisma, and wit. We were honored to have such fine talent here at Longwood.

Jammin' Blues Greet Enthusiastic Crowd

By MINDY HIRSCH

Longwood "Got the Fever" last Thursday night when the Allstars appeared on campus. The Allstars, a prime rhythm and blues band, from Charlottesville originally, was, according to many students, "excellent; the best Saturday Night Alive band the S-UN has put out."

The Allstars opened to an enthusiastic crowd with a jammin' blues tune. Their opening statement promising not to play disco met with overwhelming approval. The band demanded a response from the audience — and got it. Few members of the audience failed to be captured by the Allstars' musical talent.

The Allstars began five years ago in a Charlottesville living room. They've progressed since then and have had numerous performances along the East Coast. The Allstars have also been the backup band for several prominent groups including Muddy Waters and George Thorogood. Dick Green, the lead guitarist, is the only surviving original band member other than the manager. Green's guitar "wailed the woes of sorrow" on many of the band's blues tunes. His guitar seemed to "Gently Weep" on several of the Allstars' blues jams. Two band members, Carlo Novi on sax and Tony Pallagrosi on trumpet, once played for Southside Johnny. Together this horn section and the guitar section, with Dick Green, rhythm guitarist Sandy Grey and Steve Riggs on bass guitar, enthralled the audience. Paul Hammond's concluding drum solo was also a definite crowd pleaser. Although the female vocalist, Lucile Schoettie, accompanied only a portion of the Allstars' performance, her presence did add dimension and she inflamed the enthusiastic crowd.

The comments that the Allstars were "dynamite," "great," and "fantastic" rumbled throughout Thursday night's audience. And, as one student explained, "it looks like the band is having as much fun as I am!"

Photo by Melody Crawley

La Boheme Featured In Artist Series

Longwood College's Series of the Performing Arts will feature the National Opera Company in Puccini's La Boheme on Monday evening, March 3, at 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium.

The National Opera Company is a troupe of 12 engaging young performers chosen from nationwide auditions. They have brought opera in English to audiences throughout the U.S.

The Company was founded in 1948 by a Raleigh, N.C., attorney and businessman, the late A.J. Fletcher. His aims for the company were simple: to introduce opera as an art form to

North Carolina school children; to create audiences by presenting opera in the language of the audience; and to give experience and employment to young artists.

The results have been outstanding. In annual tours covering most of the U.S., these professional troupes have performed over 2,200 times, bringing opera to smaller towns and communities that have never before witnessed live operatic performances. Former singers with the troupe have gone on to larger opera companies throughout the world.

La Boheme is one of Puccini's most attractive works. The characters are said to be fairly accurate portraits of artists and other inhabitants of the Latin Quarter of 19th century Paris.

General admission tickets ($2.50 each) will be available at the Student Union Office, beginning February 26, or may be purchased at the box office in Jarman on the night of the performance.

Fiberart Touring Exhibit In Bedford

Fiberart, a touring exhibit of wearables, hangings, and paper by Virginia craftsmen, is currently on display in the Bedford Gallery.

The exhibit, which includes the work of 27 craftsmen, is open to the public through March 19. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 2 to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The show was put together by Lynn Yeatts, of Roanoke, with the help of the Virginia Crafts Council. Mrs. Yeatts is assistant professor of art at Virginia Tech and co-owner with her husband of the Yeatts Gallery in Roanoke.

The current interest in wearable and touchable art, according to Mrs. Yeatts, is a reaction to the impersonal nature of the modern world, an attempt to "humanize and individualize our spaces and lifestyles." Fiber art, with its warm colors and textures, is a welcome contrast to the hard surfaces in many public buildings, as well as in homes.

A variety of media and techniques have been used by the artists, including weaving, applique, stitched batik, knotting, and others. The wearables on display include jackets, T-shirts, blouses, shawls, and a neckpiece.

The exhibit has already been shown at the Yeatts Gallery and at James Madison University. After closing at Longwood, it will go to Virginia Tech.

SATURDAY NIGHT ALIVE!
PRESENTS

ROCK MOUNTAIN

Downstairs Dining Hall

I.D. Required

MARCH 1 8:30 pm
L.C. Students $1.50
Guests $2.50

CARTER'S
FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL SOPHOMORES

McKAY'S
111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

SPRING MERCANDISE ARRIVING DAILY

Check our dresses, tops,
skirts and rompers.

REMEMBER 20% OFF
WITH STUDENT I.D.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert, Thomas Cole, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Susan Bullin, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Sharon Janovich, Bill LeWorne, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Lynne Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jui Morton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari, Debbie Norrhen, Donna Hughes, Linda Paschall, Johnette Mallory, Ted Keany, Suzie Crawford, Mindy Hirsch, Roxanne Slaughter, Laura Allen, Annette Saunders.

Member of the VINCA
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Reply To Parents

Dear Editor,
I would like to thank Residence Board for their letter of two weeks ago which dealt with my earlier gripes in such a constructive and understanding manner. I was very impressed with the amount of favorable response my letter received in general, not only from students who agree with my views, but from faculty members and even a few administrative personnel as well.

However, if I may, I would like to address a few remarks in the general direction of the authors of the now famous Petersen Response. Let it be known that I do not mind constructive criticism of my personal views in the least, but I do resent personal remarks, gross misinterpretations, and rhetoric, especially when backed by poor grammar and few facts.

For one thing, my letter was not entitled "What's Wrong with Longwood." I merely submitted a personal opinion on one single facet of the system that annoyed me, which in no way could have been misconstrued as a "dissertation" against my school. If I had wished to choose a college more "in keeping" with my views, I would have done so. However, I came here for an education, not for the experience of agreeing to every whim or idle regulation imposed upon me. Thus I find the statement "if one is in conflict with the regulations, one should go where they would be happier" ridiculous. If all of us shared this view, where would we be today? If the American colonists had chosen not to fight Britain's regulations, but instead to move somewhere where they'd be happier, we might all be living in Egypt now. I don't always agree with my parents' views either, but I'm not going to go look for another set of folks. The point is, rhetoric aside, rules are made to be tested, improved, updated, or revolted against if necessary, especially those that no longer serve a useful purpose.

And as for exaggeration, the statement that concerns other colleges with unrestricted visitation which said, "the students' safety is constantly in jeopardy" seems a bit hard to swallow. This would imply that students are walking around, looking over their shoulders, in constant fear of rape or death, just because they're allowed to visit each other more. Sounds pretty rough, huh? I would like to see just one example of a student's safety having been threatened directly as a result of a visitation rule. I do realize that the potentiality of an increased security problem under unrestricted circumstances exists, but our rules allow a large margin for security problems as well. (Besides, I don't recall demanding unrestricted visitation in my letter.) Anyway, if someone intends to do damage to a person or property, it's highly unlikely that the time of day or a set of regulations is going to stop him (or her). This can easily be evidenced on our campus by the problems Stubbs dormitory had recently with a prowler. Our visitation rules did not hamper this activity in the least. It was the campus police, not a set of regulations, that finally ended the threat to student safety the prowler caused.

So Mr. and Mrs. Petersen, the security and safety you seem so sure exists because of rules that tell us when and for how long we can visit in other dorms seems sadly lacking. And if you don't like that, I suggest you look somewhere else to send your children, where they can be guarded over more according to your views.

Sincerely,
Bill LeWorne

Search Procedures

Dear Editor,

In last week's article about the press conference, one paragraph struck a discordant note. It was about the new search procedures being used by our Judicial Board. In repeating what the article said, some student raised the question of what role the administrative assistants had in the course of a room search. Sally Lowe, Judicial Board President, stated that the Judicial Board investigators have the right to ask the administrative assistants for help in searching the room.

The question was then asked why the administrative assistants were allowed to do this, since the Handbook given to the students at the beginning of the semester did not state anything about it. Miss Lowe's answer was, "If you'd like to see it in black and white, we can sure put it down."

I fear that Ms. Lowe is unaware that there is a Legislative Board on campus. Their duty is to interpret the Constitution of the Student Government Association and set the rule that the students follow. The Judicial and Resident Boards are here to enforce these laws. I would be very frightened of the law enforcing arm of the SGA starting making up their own rules. The Handbook on the new Judicial Board states: "The two investigators conduct the search while the (administrative staff members and campus police) control the traffic to and from the room or rooms and prevent harassment, intimidation or interference during the search. At times, it may be necessary to regulate traffic or conduct in the hall." Nowhere does it state that administrative staff members, Head Residents or even Resident Assistants have the right to assist in a search, or even be present in the room during a search.

Please, Ms. Lowe, let the Legislative Board do their job and make sure that Judicial Board follow the rules they make. Longwood is not a Wild West Town of the 19th Century and we don't need "Frontier Justice!"

Respectfully,
George K. Bennett III

Elections Committee

Dear Editor,

In the February 12 issue of The Rotunda, reference is made on the Editorial page concerning student involvement in the S.G.A. An appeal to the student body is made on the need for everyone to become involved in the direction that the three governing boards here at Longwood are taking. I hope my story can be a prime example of what happens when people become apathetic and non-caring about their student government.

Last semester, during Major-Minor elections, by coincidence I happened to come across the Elections Committee while they were tabulating votes. At this time the committee consisted of Jan Bates, Teresa Ware, Becky Lee and Kathy Chase. I was asked to give my help in tabulating the votes and it soon became apparent to me that this committee had certain people that they wished would win certain offices and others that they hoped would not receive the standard fifty per cent plus one that is needed in order to win the election. Much to my dismay, the committee started critiquing several of the candidates and in particular one person who they were strongly opposed to winning office. As the discussion became more intense, the members of the committee started to moralize about the candidate in question and were being very judgemental as to how "bad" an officer he would be if elected. Shortly, the votes were tabulated and much to the committee members' surprise, the candidate had won by more than 100 votes over his closest opponent. At this point, the committee once again started to pass opinion and comment about the moral standard they felt the candidate did not possess.

Soon the conversation evolved and one of the members suggested that instead of declaring the candidate a winner, that "it would be in the best interest of the College" to have a run-off election between two of the competing candidates. After more conversation on the nature of the election, the committee decided to call a run-off. The committee chairman said that she would go and talk to Dean Heintz and explain the situation in hopes that if a re-election was to take place that another candidate would win the office.

By this time, I was clearly distressed because the candidate had most definitely won by more than the ten vote margin needed to call a run-off. Not only that, but the committee, at this point, had no idea that they were insulting and slandering a personal friend of mine who had decided to run for office due to my prompting of him to get involved in the student government.

I could not tolerate what was happening any longer, and once I had gotten over my shock at the self imposed power of this committee I spoke up. I reminded them that their function here at the College was to only count the votes and declare winners, not to pick the winners at their choosing. I also reminded them that this was a College wide election with the students voting in who they thought best for the office. The decision was not the committee's to make even though they knew better than over 600 other voting students. Needless to say, the committee realized that I was not going to tolerate what they had tried to do. After a few moments of uncomfortable silence, the chairman of the committee decided to give the office back to the winner and not declare it a run-off.

It does not end here however, and much to my horror, the committee then started to talk about the ways that "they could get the candidate out of office" since they had to declare him a winner. Talk soon began on how

(Continued from Page 3)

Editor's Turn

There is a coined phrase that is used a lot around this college that offers a lot of different results. The phrase, "We'll check into that," is used by the administration, staff, classified employees, faculty and students alike.

Students get frustrated when they hear this line from administrators, especially at Press Conferences. Its not that they do not check into it, its just that sometimes the answer is never heard. For example, what happened to the "We'll check into putting birth dates on ID's" from two years ago.

Well, Friday brought a quick "We'll check into that" and they did. After hearing several students question the fact that large quantities of dog food were being delivered to the Snack Bar and Dining Hall, The Rotunda approached Gordon Inge with the question. He, along with the District ARA Manager and Longwood's Food Produce Manager, was shocked by the question and immediately answered that no dog food had been delivered to ARA Services. He quickly added the familiar line, "We'll check into that."

Not more than 15 minutes after the meeting ended, he telephoned us saying he had an answer to the dog food mystery. It seems Wayne Harper, our favorite bookstore keeper, has large quantities of dog food delivered to him in Lankford. Why Mr. Harper needs dog food we do not know. But, as long as he does not try to feed it to us that's his business.

What does worry us though is the thought of having it served in our Dining Hall and/or Snack Bar. With recent promises to improve the menus, the addition of dog food just did not fit in. "No, folks... It's not that bad, yet!"

We're happy to say that the question was answered and that those unidentified dishes served every now and then for lunch and dinner are not dog food.

Finally, we thank Mr. Inge for his timely reply to "We'll check into that." That's one time it really did mean what it says.

Advisory Committee Active On Campus

By JANE TUNSTALL

The Presidential Advisory Committee is a faculty elected committee consisting of five people who bridge the gap between faculty members, the President, and the Administration of Longwood College, regarding faculty student, and administrative matters of concern. They are the attempt, by the administration and faculty to improve communication between all of the individuals mentioned.

The committee is composed of five members who serve for terms of three years. These terms are staggered so that one to two members are replaced every year. For present membership, Dr. Anthony Cristo's term will terminate May 31, 1980. Colonel John Carr, also from the Department of Business and Economics, has been elected to replace Dr. Cristo. Another election for the upcoming leave of Dr. Charles Synor, who will be temporarily attending Hampden-Sydney on academic leave, will be coming up soon. Dr. Synor has one more year to serve. The other three committee members are Dr. Wayne Tinnell (Science Department), Dr. John Peale (English Department), and Dr. Gerald Graham (Health and Physical Education Department).

In addition to their attempt to bridge the "communication gap," they also serve as members of the College Council. These individuals then meet monthly with the administration, students, and interested groups to discuss problem areas and to develop solutions to alleviate these concerns.

The present issue that is being discussed pertains to faculty salaries, which are incidentally, on the rise. However, genuine attempts by all members are going to raise current salaries so that faculty members can see a "real gain" between the cost of living index and the rate of inflation costs. The second most important item lies in the area of communications. The committee tries to answer the question, "What steps should be taken to improve the communications in order to make Longwood a better place to live and to learn?"

In addition, any one of the five members of the Advisory Committee must be present to see that correct procedures and due process are followed at all reviews held by the Judicial Board and Residence Board.

The Presidential Advisory Committee is a committee that one often hears little about, but it is very evident that they engage in a very active role on the Longwood Campus.

Ribbons And Lace

By LAURA ALLEN

Ribbons, lace, satin and chiffon were some of the components for the designs shown at the Spring Bridal show presented by the Longwood Home Economics Club. Styles by Joytime, Milady, and Jena were presented and narrated by consultants, Mrs. Wheat and Mrs. Angel, from Tiffany's in Petersburg, Virginia.

The latest fashions in gowns for the Mother-of-the-Bride, bridesmaids and brides were presented. The first category shown was the gowns for the Mother-of-the-bride. These gowns were in soft pastels or vivid hues and would be a beautiful complement to any wedding. Many of these selections had soft fluid lines that were contrasted by more tailored looks in jackets. Any of the designs shown in this category would enhance that very special lady, the Mother-of-the-bride.

Bridesmaids gowns were the second group shown and ranged from sassy to elegant as styles went from a handkerchief style street length dress to full length gowns. The colors for bridesmaids gowns included soft pastels of yellow, peach, and blue and darker vibrant hues of rich royal blue and sea foam green. Co-ordinating hats were also shown in this category and the consultants pointed out that these items are very popular at this time.

The dream dresses of every girl were the last category and these gowns were truly dreams come true. Many of the wedding gowns presented featured accordion pleating, lots of lace and seed-pearls and cathedral trains. White and Ivory gowns were still the most popular with ivory being the best seller now. Co-ordinating veils and picture hats with veils were shown with the comment that hats are now becoming more popular for the bride as well as the bridesmaids.

A question and answer period was held by Mrs. Wheat and Mrs. Angel after the gowns were shown. Six months time was the recommended amount to start planning a wedding. Ten weeks should be allotted to order a wedding gown and fittings and alterations must be made before portrait sittings. However, much shorter planning does take place but for best results and to avoid unnecessary pressure planning well in advance is best.

Co-ordinator for the show was Miss Carolyn Powell and the models included; Betsy Burger, Rosa Mae Chappell, Helen Garrett, Connie Gills, Mary Grant, Brenda Hall, Millie Morton, and Robin Young. Music was provided by Miss Sandra Goodwyn and local merchants provided door prizes. All those involved should be commended for a beautiful job and a successful show.

Book Review

College Knowledge

By BILL LEWARNE

College Knowledge is an excellent guide for the present or prospective college student. It discusses problems, gives hints, offers advice, and describes virtually every facet of a lifestyle that is uniquely different from any other.

The author's reasoning behind the value of such a book is sound. "I might have been high school smart, but I was college dumb, life dumb, world dumb, society dumb. I didn't know how anything worked...When I looked for advice, I found scads of it—and almost all of it was useless."

And so, Michael Ederhart compiled a manuscript of everything that in any way could lessen the confusion, increase the benefits, and help the college student get by as cheaply, and as happily as possible. The book is easy to read, written in a conversational, often humorous style, but always perfectly organized. Chapters are divided into major headings, including such topics as "Personal Experiences", "Necessities", "Hassles", "Bureaucracies", "Fun", and "Opportunities". It would be impossible to list here a comprehensive list of samples, but the range of diversity promises something for everyone. There are sections on how to cook, build kites, exercise, date, complain, get financial aid, and get junk off your wall. Several easy, one-pan recipes, listed of freebies to send off for, games to play, study hints, suggestions for graduates, legal advice, and hints for buying cameras are also listed, as well as an enormous amount of other entertaining and useful information.

The 381 page book is simply crammed with "college knowledge" to increase the student's ability to get the most out of life in this transitional stage of adulthood effectively, inexpensively, and enjoyably. It's highly unlikely that one could read the book without finding something to interest him, but the author has taken this possibility into consideration just in case.

Directions are also included on how to turn the book into a non-breakable record holder.

Photo by Chuck Cole

Fisher To Help Promote College

By MINDY HIRSCH

Boyd Fisher, an avid outdoorsman, is Longwood's new Admissions counselor. Baseball, golf, tennis, and jogging are at the top of his list of activities. Fisher also enjoys social activities and listening to "easy" music.

Fisher graduated from Lockhaven State in Pennsylvania. While there, he lettered in baseball. Lockhaven, he said, is similar to Longwood, both are small colleges. Fisher received his masters degree in March, 1979 in Counseling Education and Student Personnel Services at Pennsylvania State University. He then taught health and P.E. for five and a half years and coached the track team at a secondary school in Pennsylvania. He was glad to come to Longwood; "Admissions work gives me a chance to utilize my graduate work."

Representing Longwood, processing and evaluating applications, and promoting the college are Fisher's principal jobs as Admissions Counselor. Since Longwood is expanding its admission's program, it's possible that Fisher will return to his native state, Pennsylvania, to do some advertising. He believes that one of the college's strong points is its size. The fact that Longwood is small enables students to be more involved in athletics and other activities. Fisher explains that "unlike other schools, Longwood is adding more sports, especially mens sports, while other schools are taking them away."

Fisher finds Longwood friendly and cooperative. He enjoys the Farmville area. His only complaint involves the low number of restaurants. Being a bachelor, he enjoys eating out often.

FROM THE OFFICE OF CAREER PLANNING AND PLACEMENT

INTERVIEWS:

Permanent Employment:

- March 12 — Southern States Cooperative
- 17 — Leggett Department Store
- 18 — Best Products Company

Summer Employment:

- March 11 — King's Dominion
- Camp Robindel — New Hampshire
- 13 — Highroad Camp — Northern Virginia

Further Education:

- March 19 — Institute for Paralegal Training — Philadelphia, PA

Interviews are held in the Placement Office. Interested students come to the office to sign up.

SEMINARS:

Wednesday, March 12 — "Writing a Resume" — Placement Office 3:00 p.m. (Bring paper and pencil)

Thursday, March 13 — Opportunities in Banking — Bedford Auditorium 12:45. Speaker: Kempton Shields, First and Merchants

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL
SOPHOMORES

LANCERS RECEIVE NCAA BID!

The Men's Basketball team will take part in the NCCA Championship play Friday, Feb. 29, against Framingham State (18-6 for the season). Other teams participating will be Salem St. (18-8) and No. 4 ranked Clarke (19-5).

Wheelchair Basketball

On Saturday, March 1, in the French Gym, there will be a wheel-chair basketball doubleheader at 1:00 and 3:00 p.m. The Richmond Rim-Riders will take on the Greenville (NC) Steelwheelers. A $50 donation is required.

The Richmond PVA Rim-Riders have just completed their 1979-80 conference schedule and finished as Capital Conference Champions with a 9-3 record. (The Capital Conference is just one of the twenty-two conferences within the National Wheelchair Basketball Association.) The Greenville Steelwheelers are one of the 15 independent teams within the NWBA. The Rim-Riders will be using these games as a tune-up for their participation in the NWBA Eastern Section Regional Playoff to be held on Saturday, March 8.

Bill Frazier, who is a freshman at Longwood College, is one of the key players for the Rim-Riders. Bill is the team's "big man" who is participating in his first season of wheelchair basketball. Bill's disability is traumatic paraplegia which is the result of an automobile accident. He is majoring in Therapeutic Recreation.

Frank Brasile, Assistant Professor and Program Director of the Therapeutic Recreation program at Longwood, is the coach of the Rim-Riders. This is his second season as their mentor. Prior to coming to Longwood, he coached the University of Illinois Gizz Kids Wheelchair Basketball team where he led them to the 1978 National Intercollegiate Championship.

Also leading the Rim-Riders will be Tom Brown and Pat Kileen who have both received All-American honors over the years for their play in the National Wheelchair Basketball Association.

Tickets will be on sale in the New Smoker, Wednesday, Feb. 27, Thursday, Feb. 28, and Friday, Feb. 29. The proceeds will go toward the Muscular Dystrophy Superdance, and the Virginia Therapeutic Recreation Society. The event is sponsored by the Therapeutic Recreation Organization.

Awesome Lancers Destroy UDC

By CHUCK COLE

On Saturday night in the French Gymnasium, the Longwood Lancers faced a highly-touted Division II basketball team from the University of the District of Columbia (UDC). UDC had already knocked off the University of Maryland at Baltimore County, which was ranked in the top ten of Division II basketball.

And for a while, it looked like the game would be tight like everyone expected as both teams swapped baskets in the early going.

But, the Firebirds of UDC seemed to be intimidated by the hostile environment of French Gym. They had trouble playing within the confines of the court at first as Referee Sid Smith and Umpire Donny Vaden continually called a line violation on the visiting Firebirds.

While the Firebirds were struggling, the Lancers were shifting into high gear. The Lancers fell behind the rebounding and scoring of Kenny Ford and Mike Wills who hit for 9 points and 8 points respectively in the first half.

The Lancers shot poorly in the first half, canning only 11 of 27 shots from the floor for 41 per cent. Longwood held an 11 point advantage at the half with a 38-27 halftime score.

The Lancers wasted no time in the second half as they continued to dominate the Firebirds. Longwood continued to add to their lead by making key steals and playing good defense which forced the Firebirds to turn the ball over to the Lancers.

Kenny Ford led second half scorers with 11 points. He had 19 points for the game. Four other Lancers hit double figures, for the game. Shack Leonard scored 15 points in this final regular season game as a Lancer. Ron Orr (14 points), Joe Remar (13 points), and Mike Wills (10 points) round out the Lancers who scored in double figures.

The Firebirds were led by Mike Daniels and Mike Roach with 14 points apiece. Steve Smith added 13 points in the losing cause. He also grabbed 15 rebounds to win rebounding honors.

The Firebirds were stunned by the Lancers. Their frustration was epitomized by two Joe Remar dunks off the fast break. UDC also held the ball for the final 1:22 to ensure that the Lancers wouldn't go over the century mark.

Longwood won the game 95-66 to gain its 25th win of the season. The Lancers stand at 25-1, the second best record in all of college basketball.

Shack Leonard soars to the loop in one of his last home appearances.
Photo by Mike Currie

Lady Lancers Burn Flames

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

After coming off a winning streak of three out of four games at home, the Lady Lancers hit the road again.

Longwood entered their final home game February 19 after wins over George Mason and St. Mary's, and a loss to Virginia Tech.

The Lancers sought revenge against Liberty Baptist's narrow 63-61 defeat in Lynchburg earlier in the season. Longwood proved to be the stronger team in the second go-round burning the Flames 79-63.

Longwood controlled the game from beginning to end. Senior Maryjane Smith had 21 points for the Lancers in her final home game. Brenda Fettrow contributed 17 points and Cindy Eckel 14 points in the excellent shooting game.

It was a different story as the Lancers faced two strong DC teams later last week.

Thursday, Longwood fell to University of DC 66-44. During the first half, the Lancers lost ground early to the DC Firebirds, who ran up a 25-8 lead. At the half the score stood at 38-22.

Again Smith led the attack with 19 points. Amy Gates was the Lancers' strength under the board with 20 rebounds.

Saturday the Lancers did not fare any better against the Catholic University Cardinals, taking a 70-54 beating. Longwood's offense did not really click the entire game. Smith was the only Lancer in double figures with 10 points. She also pulled down seven rebounds. Fettrow followed with 9 points and 9 rebounds.

The Lady Lancers closed their regular season play with a 10-17 overall record, 3-4 in the conference. Thursday at 12 noon the fifth ranked Lancers will meet fourth ranked Hampton Institute (4-3 conference) in the VAIAW Division II state basketball championship at William and Mary.

In their first round action, first seed Radford (8-1) will play eighth ranked Richmond (0-7), second seed VCU (6-1) is against seventh seed Liberty Baptist (2-5) and third seed William and Mary plays sixth seed George Mason (3-4).

Patty Lia drives with a lay-up shot to aid in victory over Liberty Baptist.
Photo by Mike Currie

Soccer Workshop Scheduled

A soccer coaching workshop will be held March 14 and 15 at Longwood College. Bill Killen, Director of Coaching Clinics for the National Soccer Coaching Association of America, will be the instructor. Killen is also the Director of Coaching Schools for the U. S. Soccer Federation and the Men's varsity coach at Old Dominion University.

Attendance at all sessions will lead to an F coaching certificate. The workshop is only open to Health, Physical Education, and Recreation majors.

Instruction sessions will be held Friday, March 14, from 7-10 p.m. in 106 Iler Gymnasium and on Saturday, March 15, from 9 a.m.-12 p.m. and 1-4 p.m. on Iler

Field. In case of bad weather the outdoors session will be moved to French gym as scheduled.

The entry fee is $2.50 and all three sessions must be attended for certification. Last semester Northern Virginia Community College (Woodbridge Campus) offered a soccer coaching workshop with a $30.00 entry fee. The slight fee for Longwood students, which will only cover Mr. Killen's lodging and certificate costs was made possible through the efforts of Mr. Everett Germain, President of the Annandale Boys Club.

Kitty Hughes is the student director of the workshop. Registration is from February 25-March 6.

Ruggers Begin With A Win

Last Saturday was a beautiful day for rugby, and the Longwood Ruggers did their best to play beautiful rugby as they faced Virginia Commonwealth for the second time. The match was a payback fixture, as they lost to V.C.U. last year.

The game, refereed by a Referee Society official, demonstrated how much Longwood has learned in their three season existence.

The game was relatively physical as the Longwood scrummers controlled the ball all day by pushing the V.C.U. scrum all over the field. The L.C. backers did their best to support.

The first "try" of the game was by one of the V.C.U. players, who missed the conversion and left the score at 4 to 0. The Longwood ruggers came back and Henry Bear, the leftside winger,

(Continued on Page 8)

Hughes, Grimm Play Last Home Game

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Neither Kitty Hughes (Annandale) nor Lori Grimm (Arlington) have set any school records or been a "star" during their Longwood careers as cagers, but the two seniors have played major supportive roles.

Wednesday marks the final home game that Hughes, Grimm, and fellow senior Maryjane Smith (Pamplin) will play for Longwood.

Kitty, a 5-7 forward, began playing for the Lancer jayvee team her freshman year. After this stint on the second team, she moved up to varsity. Lori, a 5-2 guard, took to the court her sophomore year as a second team player and has been playing varsity for the last two seasons.

"I try to do my best, but I'm not really a starter," said Kitty. "It's hard to come off the bench cold and work into the offense. Since I'm not that tall, I have to be sure to get position under the boards and hope the refs call a foul on my opponents."

Her strategy of trying to draw fouls has often paid off for the Lancers as Kitty is paid for 10 from the foul line this season.

After sophomore guard Connie

LORI GRIMM

Murray was injured in January, Lori became a starter for the Lancers. She says she tries to keep the tempo of the game under control, but really enjoys running the fast break.

"My shot is sometimes hot and sometimes cold. This slows me down," said Lori. "My main objective is to get team morale up."

Both Kitty and Lori have noticed changes in team attitudes throughout their years on the squad. The seniors would like to see the bench do more cheering for their teammates.

"When I first came here I could tell a lot of the other teams we played bickered constantly. I thought this was terrible. Now I see it happen sometimes on our team and I don't want to see it happening to us," said Kitty. "I think the people on the bench need to be supportive."

This year has been a rough one for the Lancers as they have worked on coordinating their young team.

"I think our playing has improved during the second semester," said Lori. "We are not giving up, even though we've lost some close games. It is a young team. It should develop through hard work and dedication."

Both players agree that a lot of talented athletes have played for Longwood over the years. They cited 1977 graduates Sue Rama (who scored over 1,000 career points), Anita Stowe, and Linda Baumler. Currently, they think

KITTY HUGHES

Maryjane Smith, who recently became the second Lancer to have over 1,000 career points, and Brenda Fettrow are top-notch players.

It was the team with Rama, Stowe, and Baumler as its backbone that gave Kitty her greatest highlight at Longwood.

"The best game possible was when Longwood beat ODU 64-60 my freshman year. I was keeping stats and screaming my head off," Kitty said.

After the success of the team in past years faded, fan support has also dropped off.

"Fan support has increased three or four times from last year," said Kitty. "People who I don't even know come up to me and say congratulations."

"I think fan support will improve with the new gym," said Lori. "It will also help team morale by giving them pride in their facilities."

The two players both have enjoyed their years on the squad and have learned a lot about the game of basketball and about sportsmanship. They both say they can apply what they have learned to their careers as coaches.

"It's hard to believe it has been four years," they both exclaimed.

Even though they are anxious to get out into the world, they both will miss their teammates and friends at Longwood. Kitty and Lori plan to support the team in the future and will often be seen in the new gym to cheer the Lady Lancers on.

Mike Wills: The Duke Of 'Dunks'

By BETH LICARI

The basketball is loose. A Lancer grabs it and passes it to Number 54 as the fans scream their delight. Number 54 hustles down the court and takes a flying jump at the basket. The only play that could follow is... A THUNDER DUNK!

The one player on the men's varsity team that just itches for a dunk is none other than Number 54, Mike "Dunkin Donut" Wills. The 6-6, 200 pound freshman center comes to Longwood from St. Albans, N.Y. where Coach Bash contacted him from Stony Brook (NY). Dunkin visited Longwood last March and liked the college right away.

"I couldn't get over how friendly everybody was," says Dunkin. "I couldn't find that in New York."

During his years at Forest Hills (NY), Dunkin got recognition as high rebounder for two years, high shot blocker for two years, second high scorer for his junior year, and high scorer for his senior year. Dunkin was also honored as all-city, all Queens, all-division, and during his junior year he received the honor of starting at center for the New York Champion team.

Dunkin was missing from the line up for a while because of many disputes with Coach Bash about Dunkin's attitude about his low playing time. As Bash's and Dunkin's temper rose, Bash suspended him from the team.

Dunkin commented on his attitude saying, "It's hard coming onto a college team and sitting on the bench after being a starter in high school. I wanted to contribute more to the team."

After being suspended, Dunkin went to his teammate and good friend Jim "Thrill" Sixsmith for advice. Thrill gave Dunkin the advice to apologize to the coaches and Dunkin did just that. After talking, Bash decided to leave the decision of Dunkin returning to the team up to his teammates. The team spoke highly of Dunkin and Bash decided to bring Dunkin back into practice but he'd have to wait until the time was right until Dunkin could dress out for a game.

Dunkin pushed hard during practice with Thrill on his heels. Dunkin dressed for his first game a few weeks later, but no one noticed him until his smashing come-back during the Southeastern (DC) game on February 9. During that game Dunkin snatched 2 rebounds scored 13 points, and if you were there you would remember the "Thunder Dunks" that Dunkin slammed twice during the game.

Dunkin is a big factor on the team now and he's contributing more to the team than ever. Dunkin states, "Even off the team I supported every game, but it's good to be back."

Dunkin's attitude of his game has changed. He now believes the way he's going to succeed is "to do what Bash wants me to do," said Dunkin.

Dunkin takes his friendship with Thrill very seriously.

"We push each other," says Dunkin, "we give each other confidence."

Dunkin believes in Thrill's ability to play.

"Thrill is a good play maker and outside shooter. Whenever he takes a shot I start running down court to play defense," says Dunkin, "because I know he's going to make it. I think of him as the white Lloyd Free."

Dunkin believes that Thrill has

(Continued on Page 8)

Chambers Takes First

By KATHY CHASE

Friday, February 15 was the day of the first intercollegiate Horse Show of the Spring Semester. The show was held at the Barracks Stable in Charlottesville, sponsored by the University of Virginia.

Shannon Chambers gave an outstanding performance in her Novice Equitation over Fences Class and consequently won a 1st place ribbon and trophy. Robyn Walker also did well in her class and won a 6th place ribbon in Novice Equitation Over Fences.

Janet Young, in her first show since she moved to the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter class, won a 5th place ribbon.

The high point riders for this show were Shannon Chambers and Kathy Chase in Novice Equitation on the flat, Robyn Walker in Novice Equitation Over Fences and Erika Cristea and Karla Weber in Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter.

The next show is on March 20. It will be co-sponsored between Mary Washington College and Longwood. The show will be held at Hazelwild Farm in Fredericksburg.

Orr Week's Top Cager

Freshman center Ron Orr (Elizabeth, NJ) hit an amazing 14 of 17 field goal attempts in two games last week while scoring 28 points. Longwood coaches have tabbed the 6-6 cager as McDonald's Player of the Week for the two performances.

A starter for much of the season, Orr came off the bench to score 14 points in the Lancers' 85-67 victory over Emory & Henry Monday and 95-66 triumph over University of District of Columbia Saturday night. The wins boosted Longwood to a 25-1 count for the regular season.

One of three Lancer players who calls Elizabeth, New Jersey home (guards Joe Remar and Joe Goydich are the other two), Orr is averaging 8.7 points and five rebounds per game while hitting over 63 per cent of his shots from the floor. The first-year cager has played key roles in several Longwood victories.

Ron averaged 12 points and 10 rebounds per game last season, playing on the Elizabeth High School team with Remar. This year, Orr and Remar have helped Longwood attain its first national ranking in history. Currently rated 15th, the Lancers have been selected for the NCAA Division III top 15 each week the poll has been compiled.

RON ORR

Assistant Coach Mo Schoepfer says Orr has made tremendous strides since the beginning of the season.

"Ron has improved steadily since we began practice in October," said Schoepfer. "He has worked very hard, and this hard work has enabled him to make the transition from high school to college basketball pretty smoothly."

Volunteer Action On The Go

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Believe it or not, there are still people who give up their spare time to help others not as fortunate as themselves. Cle Everett, who serves as the chairman of the fund raising campaign headquartered at the WPAK radio station, is one of these people.

Longwood students Larry Williams, Mike Owens, Tom Cole, and Chuck Cole all know about PAK-15 and Friends because they also donate their spare time to see that each project is carried out. These projects aid the needy and have been very successful.

In their most recent campaign, PAK-15 and Friends raised enough money to send Annette Anderson, a blind athlete from Cumberland County, to the Blind Olympics. The funds were raised in part from the WPAK basketball team, which plays benefit games with area organizations.

(Continued on Page 8)

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW

OPEN.

Mon-Thur 11:00 PM Fri-Sat 12:00 AM

104 HIGH STREET 392 5665

FRESH SALADS

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

—Your Turn Continued—

easy it would be to "catch" him at some breakage of the Honor Code and then the office he now had would be revoked. Soon, conversation eased away from this particular topic and the rest of the votes were tabulated and the correct winners were declared. After all the work was through, the committee members disbanded.

Even as I walked away, I could not believe this kind of situation could occur at Longwood. I felt no remorse in speaking up for what and whom I believed in—my major concern at the time however, dealt with how often this had happened before, if ever, and would this happen again.

People! All of us here at Longwood have a responsibility to each other. That responsibility includes being honest with each other and trying to give every single person a fair chance. No wonder the S.G.A. is suffering from so many pitfalls when important committee persons will not even try to support an officer elected here at the College. Whether or not they think he or she may not be the best—they can at least not try to undermine the system. All that does is weaken themselves and make it impossible on the rest of us.

It is our responsibility to not let a committee get as powerful and unchecked as the Elections Committee has gotten. Everybody needs to get involved so this situation does not occur again. Legislative Board is now in the process of evaluating the constitution by which we live and by which policies are made under. These meetings are open to every student and together we can get legislation passed that would prevent a group of students from acquiring the kind of power that cripples all of us. You do make the difference if you allow your voice to be heard. One day, somebody will not accidentally walk into a situation the way I did and be able to change the outcome. Be concerned and aware of the rules and people that govern your life here at Longwood. Because Longwood as a community will only ever be as good as the people who lead us.

Thank you,
Brenda K. Carpenter

Extra Care

Dear Editor,

This letter concerns the overabundance of extra care that we students who are living in Cox dormitory are receiving. What other dorms can boast of having the Head Resident and Area Coordinator making frequent visits to each floor, occasionally stopping in front of doors for a moment to check for cracks in the ceiling? Occasionally the Head Resident will drop in just to "see how you are." If you are lucky enough to be on the wrong side of your Head Resident, he can arrange visits to your room by Judicial Board members. Of course, the Head Resident is not biased towards any students in his dorm...

A Concerned Cox Resident

Apathetic Freshmen

Dear Editor,

A friend of ours (a freshman) is concerned about the outcome of Freshman Production. It seems that the apathy among freshman class has reached an all time high. So the Freshman care that this is their time to unite with each other and show what they do? As we understand it, the production is lacking enough cast members to put this thing on. Is it too much to ask of these freshmen? It is less than two weeks until showtime and we really hope that it won't be curtains for the freshmen. "C'mon freshmen get involved!" "The word 'Freshmen' is plural not singular!! Don't let yourselves be humiliated by a weak Freshman Production!"

Concerned Students

Volunteers

(Continued from Page 7)

On Tuesday, February 19, the "PAK-ATTACK" played the Farnville Jaycees in a benefit game. Jim O'Hara, Sports Editor of the Farnville Herald, led the opposition. The proceeds went to aid Annette and her coach Kemple Tilson.

The Jaycees led by as much as ten points in the first quarter, but PAK-15 had yet to release their brutal attack. Coming from behind, the PAK-Attack scored bucket after bucket with quick steals and a lightning fast break. Team rebounding and pressure defense powered the PAK-Attack to a 56-44 halftime lead. They continued the pressure and pulled out a 104-92 victory behind Mike Owens' 33 points and 22 rebounds. Larry Williams added 22 points to aid the victory.

Faculty members of Prince Edward and Cumberland High Schools, the Jaycees, WPAK, WSVS in Crewe, as well as 16 other organizations form the Benefit League. The league was formed this fall to specifically help needy people.

Many people have benefited from this project. The committee has provided many needy families with stoves, clothing, groceries, and food. In addition, they have provided services for the handicapped such as care and aided in paying their medical bills.

This Thursday night, the PAK-Attack takes on the Dribbling DJ's of WSVS. The proceeds will be donated to the Muscular-Dystrophy Association. Gametime is 8:30.

The volunteer program has no pressures or boundary lines.

Those who give their time realize the importance of spreading warmth and kindness to those who are not as fortunate.

Support Cle Everett, the radio stations, fellow students, and volunteer an hour or two of your time by coming to the French Gym on Thursday night to help fight Muscular-Dystrophy.

Ruggers

(Continued from Page 6)

scampered into the try zone for L.C.'s first score of their spring season. The conversion was missed and the half ended with a score of four apiece.

The second half saw more dominating scrum activity, and three or four close calls as the Longwood club kept the ball near the V.C.U. try line for most of the half. With two minutes remaining, the scrum pushed the ball down close, where Wilson "Beef" White picked it up to ramble into the zone and scored. The game remained at 8-4 as Longwood held onto the ball, ticking the seconds away.

The B-side for Longwood was very impressive in their first match ever. They lost, though, 18-6 in a down pour. The party was won by the Longwood Ruggers.

Mike Willis

(Continued from Page 7)

a lot to prove to everyone just as Dunkin did during the Southern (DC) game if Thrill were given a chance.

Dunkin is an active outgoing student at Longwood. He's majoring in Business Administration, but his real future is centered on being a radio disc jockey. He has a special love for music and being a DJ fits his personality.

Besides basketball, Dunkin is a member of the new active social group, OMEGA OUTA STATERS. Dunkin also works as a DJ at a disco outside of Farnville.

Debate Tournament

(Continued from Page 2)

The tournament was directed by I.B. Dent, the director of Student Activities; Mrs. Nancy Anderson, of the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts; and the members of the Forensic and Debate Class. A Regional Debate Tournament is being held on campus today.

To Miss Mamie, The Friend

Life is sweeter, stronger, fuller, more gracious thing for the friend's existence, whether he be near or far. If the friend is close at hand, that is best; but if he is far away he is still there to think of, to wonder about, to hear from, to write to, to share life and experience with, to honor, to admire, to love. (copied)

P.S. Thanks for the Valentine's message!
Love, Miss Emily

INSTANT PASSPORT PICTURES

ROBERT T. FOWLE
PHOTOGRAPHY

114 N. MAIN STREET
FARNVILLE, VA.

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
PHONE 392-4154

REG. LEVI'S Denim & Cords,
Straight Leg & Bell... $15.50
STUDENT SIZES.....$14.50
$1.00 OFF W/Longwood I.D.

ALL LADIES WINTER
SWEATERS & BLOUSES
2 FOR $13.00

MEN'S
SWEATERS
& FLANNEL SHIRTS
30% OFF

LADIES'
LEVI'S JEANS
30% OFF

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER

USE OUR FARMVILLE, VA. USE OUR LAY-A-WAY PLAN PHONE 392-4870 LAY-A-WAY PLAN

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCANTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farnville Shopping Center

The Graduate, a Handbook for Leaving School.

Our way of helping with your post-tassel hassles.

TO ALL MAY GRADUATES

FREE FROM

Longwood Alumni Association
2nd Floor East Ruffner
Feb. 25-March 4 - 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Lancers Take Victories In Tournament

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, MARCH 4, 1980

NO. 18

Registration And Room Sign-Up Begin

This week is the beginning of Advance Registration for Fall Semester. The same procedure will be used as last semester. Those students who are eligible to Advance Register are posted on the bulletin board outside the "Transcripts and Records" office. Longwood Scholars, Rising Seniors, Terminal Preprofessionals, and Intercollegiate Athletes will register this week with their advisors. (Schedules are available from the Registrars Office.) Registration forms are due in the Registrar's Office by March 7, noon.

The Registrar reminds students that, "fees for Fall Semester must be paid on time for the Advance Registration to remain in effect."

Other dates on the calendar include March 10, students schedules returned to academic departments; March 11-14, Schedule adjustments; March 10-13, Rising Jrs. advising; March 14, registration forms due; March 17, schedules returned; and March 18-21, adjustments.

Rising Sophomores will be advised after Spring Break. They will be able to pick up a revised schedule from the Registrar. The dates include April 7-10, advising; April 11, forms due; April 14, schedules returned; and April 15-18, schedule adjustments.

March 10-11 are the dates for all those who wish to homestead. This will take place from 7-8:30 p.m. in the Resident Supervisors' Offices in each dormitory. Homesteaders do not have to go through Number Draw on March 12. All students must have fees paid before then can go through number draw in Lower Dining Hall.

Room Selection dates, also in the Lower Dining Hall, are March 13, seniors, March 18, juniors, and March 20, sophomores. Numbers one-300 will go at 7 p.m. while numbers 301 and up select rooms at 7:45 p.m.

According to Tom Nanzig, Director of Housing, the finalized Housing Plans for Fall are the same as the tentative ones announced last week. He received no comments or suggestions from students after publication of the tentative plans. Instruction sheets for Room Registration are available in the dormitories.

Press Conference

The following is a list of questions to be answered at the Press Conference today at 12:45 p.m. in the Lower Dining Hall:

1. With 40 per cent of Board of Visitors not offering their support of you, will this affect your ability and communication with the Board?
2. What is the academic standing of some of the male athletes being accepted here at Longwood? Is it true that some have been accepted through the administration and not through the Admissions office? Why not accept more female athletes?
3. Which teams will play in the new gym?
4. Why isn't the administration allowing the structure of the student government to change as the school changes?
5. What equipment has been bought with the $600 that was appropriated?
6. What is the reasoning for the expense of the walls (new structure) to be built on the dining hall? Isn't the money needed in other areas?

Efforts Fulfilled With Enjoyment

By BRENDA COLEMAN

This year's Sophomore Week proved to be a week filled with enthusiasm, excitement, and spirit. Three months of work and preparation had gone into the making of a successful and fun week devoted entirely to the Sophomore Class.

The week began Sunday night with the decorating of the dining hall by various members of the class. Life-size drawings of the Sesame Street characters adorned the walls of the dining hall along with drawings that publicized the Sophomore Auction, Open Mike, and Mixer. Banners, posters, and crepe paper decorations completed the feeling of spirit the Sophomores were trying to convey.

On Monday, the Roadshow committee put on their skit at Holly Manor. This year's play was entitled "Anything for a Smile" and it starred Oscar (Marcie Swale), Big Bird (Jan Cox), Grover (Jane Froemel), Cookie Monster (Pam Udkie), and Kermit (Duke Rollins). On Wednesday, the Roadshow went to Richmond and played for the children at Crippled Children's Hospital, Richmond Memorial, and the second grade class at Salem Elementary School.

Tuesday night was the night of the Sophomore Auction, one of the biggest money-raising projects for the class all year. Many items were sold, including a CHI pillow, apples, two country hams, a fish tank, and many dinners from administration and faculty members.

The Sophomore Open Mike was a brand new event added to the roster of Sophomore Week this year. All the performers were from the Sophomore Class. They performed to a capacity crowd in the Gold Room, Thursday night. The audience was guided through the evening of entertainment by the clowning and dramatics of the emcees; Dale Rollins, Susan Bryant, Cindy Dean, Maurice Franck, and Ken Marcus. The talented performers were: Shannon Chambers, Jackie Burton, Bill Brent, Melanie Hudnall, Deb Brown and Jo Jacobs; Klutz Fuhr, Pam Udkie and Bird Kilmer; Tom Welte and Dale Whitehead; and Wayne Keafer.

All the spirit and enthusiasm of the class peaked Friday night at the Sophomore Mixer held in the Lower Dining Hall. The band Nickle Bridge played to a good sized crowd that had braved the icy conditions to come enjoy the mixer.

The entire week was a huge success and proved to be exciting not only to Sophomores, but to the other classes as well. All the chairmen and Sophomores involved worked hard and long for their week and efforts paid off in what was to be a great Sophomore Week!

Students donate time and blood at Geist Bloodmobile last week.

Photo by Dave Gates

Geist Bloodmobile Exceeds Quota

By BILL LEWARNE

Geist's annual Bloodmobile was an incomparable success this year. Donations reached 341 pints, well over the 250 pint quota.

Students participation and enthusiasm during the bloodmobile can serve as the perfect reply to those who argue that apathy is at an all-time high on Longwood's campus. Response by the student body was overwhelming, not only in the fact that the quota was exceeded by almost 100 pints, but also by other students who came to help as aides, typists, escorts, and in countless other ways. In fact, the only problem Geist did have with volunteers was finding places to put them all.

As most people know by now, the freshman class won the class competition, and Alpha Sigma Tau won the Greek and overall award with 100 per cent, of which 70 per cent was blood donations.

The Alpha Sigma Tau's will shortly receive the CHI banner which is to be passed down from year to year to the group that has the highest rate participation.

Geist extends its heartfelt thanks to all students, faculty, and administrators who helped make Bloodmobile a success. Thanks also are due to the businesses of Farmville who made donations, to ARA Slater for food and drinks, and to the Red Cross people, whose patience, tolerance, and good humor kept everyone at ease the entire time (even the ones who were afraid of the sight of blood).

Board of Visitors Meeting

Thursday and Friday

Support SGA Day

On Campus

TRI-BETA SPEAKER . . . Dr. David John, from the Department of Microbiology at Medical College of Virginia, will speak on Wednesday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. in Jeffers. Dr. John will discuss the topic, "Of Parasites and Man." The lecture, illustrated with slides, will concern medical parasitology, the study of organisms known to inhabit man, and the effects of such parasites.

His lecture is sponsored by Beta Beta Beta, the biology honorary, as part of its spring initiation ceremonies.

STUDENT RECITAL . . . The department of music will present Elaine McDonald in a junior recital, Thursday, March 6, at 8 p.m. in Wygal.

Other students performing will include Ruth Vaughan, Scott Voonan, Jack Tolbert, and Marguerite Roller.

FACULTY RECITAL . . . Patricia Lust, accompanied by Frieda Myers, will present a faculty recital in Wygal, Sunday, March 9, 4 p.m.

Also performing will be Jill Foster, violin, and Dr. Paul Hesselink, piano.

HOULIK CONCERT . . . James Houlik, concert saxophonist, will appear in recital, Monday, March 10, at 8 p.m. in Wygal. Also on Monday, at 1:30 p.m., Houlik will conduct a saxophone workshop in Wygal.

Houlik is a virtuoso performer on the tenor saxophone. His repertoire includes original works for saxophone (more than 50 of which have been dedicated to him by prominent contemporary composers), tasteful transcriptions of music from the baroque and other periods, folk pieces, and ragtime.

RESEARCH LECTURE . . . Lynne E. Swan, a senior Art Major, will present her research lecture, John Henry Twachman, an American Impressionist, Monday, March 10, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford.

Lynne's concentration in Art History has led her to an interest in American Art and her research on the life and work of John Henry Twachman, who is recognized today for painting in a style adopted from the French Impressionists. Today, Twachman is recognized as one of America's great painters.

MD Superdance:

Ain't No Stopping Us Now

"Ain't No Stoppin' Us Now" is the theme of this year's third annual Longwood Muscular Dystrophy Super dance, March 7-8. Thirty-five couples will be dancing in the 20-hour marathon to raise money for the cure of MD.

Many activities have lead up to this event. Helium balloons were released with sponsors' names attached in February. The balloons were sold in connection with Mardi Gras. A trunk, signed by the band, Janice, was raffled by the MD committee. The winner of this raffle will be announced March 8 at 1 p.m. The sophomores provided a fish bowl for donations at their Open Mike last week.

Dancers have a chance to win several prizes. The grand prize is a portable television. Other prizes include bean bag chairs, $25 gift certificates from various stores, a make-up consultation, a free portrait sitting and 4x5 portrait, and coupons for five dollars of gas.

The Muscular Dystrophy Poster Child will be at the closing ceremonies of the Superdance, along with President Henry I. Willett, Jr.

Help reach Longwood's $6,000 goal. Sponsor a dancer by calling 392-6920. Remember . . . "There Ain't No Stoppin' Us Now," so come help us! The Superdance will be open to spectators on Saturday, March 8, from 8:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

Former Student

Artwork Featured

The Showcase Gallery is featuring unusual photographs, both color and black-and-white; silkscreen prints, and drawings by former Longwood student Lori Felland.

Miss Felland is now a senior at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton. She transferred there after two years at Longwood because of her interest in scuba diving and underwater photography.

A number of the color photographs in her exhibit were taken underwater off Key Largo, Fla. She is also showing a group of "contrived" photographic studies, with props, lighting, etc., carefully selected to produce the desired effect.

In her silkscreens, Miss Felland has used wild, "tacky" colors in unusual combinations. Three charcoal drawings of nudes are also included in the exhibit.

After receiving the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Florida Atlantic in June, Miss Felland hopes to do free lance work, particularly underwater photography.

Miss Felland's "showcase" exhibit is open in the Reading Rooms, Lankford, through March 7.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Versatility Brings Rock To Mountainous Heights

By MINDY HIRSCH

The S-UN presented another successful evening of rock and roll when the Rock Mountain Band appeared last Saturday night. The band's success laid in its versatility; Rock Mountain performed several distinct genres of music. Their tunes ranged from The Grateful Dead to the new wave sound of the Cars. Several original songs of the band were also presented.

The two high points of the band were the skills of Patty Abigese and Howard Williams. Patty has a clear, distinctive voice which enthralled the audience. Although her voice seemed to be drowned out at first by the other vocalists, she had a chance to exhibit her talents as a vocalist when she sang Joni Mitchell's "Big Yellow Taxi." Howard Williams, on lead and slide guitar, displayed a superior talent with his instrument. He showed excellent manipulation of his guitar when he rocked the lower dining hall with Chuck Berry's tune "Johnny Be Good."

Rock Mountain performed a menagerie of tunes. The first set included songs by Hart, Tom Petty, and Dan Fogelberg. Also featured in the first set was The Grateful Dead. When Rock Mountain performed "Cumberland Blues," Jerry Garcia and Donna Godchaux seemed to materialize in the room. This was also true when the band played "Sugar Magnolia," a favorite Dead tune.

In the second set, the band became even more versatile. Michael Robbins, on bass guitar, was highlighted on this set. Several new wave tunes were performed, "Just What I Needed" and "My Best Friend's Girl," both by the Cars, were big hits with the crowd. Robbins also sang one of his own songs. Rock Mountain performed several other original songs. "Crazy Love," by Howard Williams, was an excellent reggae tune; the vocalist on that song, Williams, seemed to impersonate Bob Marley. The audience's favorite tune, a song about "Sweet Cocaine," was also played in this final set. Rock Mountain had the crowd singing along with this song.

The audience loved everything Rock Mountain performed; praise for the band was superlative. There were, however, a few people in the crowd yelling for disco. Evidently they were in the wrong place. Overall, the performance was enjoyed by most. Even though the band had been on the road since 8:00 Saturday morning, Rock Mountain's enthusiasm for playing rock and roll was endless.

Duke Rollins, and friends, bring good laughs, good refreshment, and some hampered speech to Sophomore Open Mike.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Hitchcock Film Festival & High Anxiety

"The Birds" Monday	"Psycho" Tuesday	"North By Northwest" Wednesday
7:00 P.M.	$1.00
9:00 P.M.	"High Anxiety" Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday	$1.00
Red/White Rooms

CHILD'S PLAY

Featured in S-UN's Sound Gallery

8:30 p.m. March 8 75¢
Red/Green/White Rooms

S-UN Spotlight Concerts Present

FREE RETURN ENGAGEMENT

March 5 8:00 p.m.

Gold Room

Free Pepsi

Your Turn

Letter Brings Response

Dear Editor,

A funny thing happened on my way out the door—I got a phone call, (that is funny) from a friend on campus (That's even funnier) who informed me that my name was in The Rotunda! I immediately snatched up my roommate's copy and scanned the paper as she filled me in. It seems that a certain Brenda Carpenter has a beef with my committee. I say "my committee" because I was chairman of Elections Committee at the time in question and pride myself in having had a very hard working and conscientious group of people join me in serving on it. I feel at a disadvantage because my being off campus this semester keeps me from knowing the student body's response to Brenda's letter and such issues and accusations call for an explanation or clarification.

First of all, let me say this, one person's opinion is no more valid than anyone else's. Please hear me out. I am sure that Miss Carpenter is very sure about what she saw and heard because of the tone of her letter and the "facts" included. I do not contest her perception but I would like to qualify this perception with the reminder that this was Miss Carpenter's first encounter with the process and proceedings of elections committee. Running for an office does not acquaint one with all of our rules and procedures, as they can be very confusing and complex even to those of us who have served on elections committee all four years of their college career.

As an example of this, let us return to Miss Carpenter's letter. In her second paragraph, Brenda states that we hoped that the candidate did not receive the "standard 50 per cent + 1 that is needed in order to win the election." Later, however, she states that the candidate had "won by more than the ten vote margin needed to call a runoff." Which did the candidate need, 50 per cent + 1 or ten votes more than what anyone else had? Needless to say, there is a huge difference.

To clear up this inconsistency, Elections Committee has used both measures. During my first two years on the committee, all candidates had to receive 50 per cent + 1 of the ballots cast in order to win. We found that we had many runoffs (as I am sure some of you remember) so we petitioned administration and Legislative Board (of which this committee is a part) to be able to change our constitution to simple majority. During my junior year, these proceedings took place. That brings us up to the present time, first semester 1979-80. In considering the specifics of this individual office, the candidate had simple majority but did not have the required 50 per cent + 1 lead over the closest candidate. Obviously for reasons of tact and discretion; no numbers can be mentioned but I submit that the candidate had nowhere near the "100 votes", as stated by Miss Carpenter, over his closest opponent. It upsets me that one would include such numbers readily with no proof and obviously no accuracy. As for debating the win or runoff, this is a common practice for Elections Committee and this is our job. In this case, the debate centered around explaining the old way as compared to the new way, NOT our own personal preferences!

As far as the four of us expressing opinions about the candidates, of course we did. But what our opinions are is just that, our opinion—we are entitled to them and to speak them when and where we like. I have been on Elections Committee long enough and through enough elections to know to keep my opinions separate from the empirical duty of counting and calling ballots. Yes, "calling" ballots. When we tabulate votes, we verbally call out the vote as another person marks it down. It is virtually impossible to do anything but call the ballots during this time, unless one wants to be sitting on the floor of the Lower Dining Hall all night. When adding the final numbers by calculator we may root for our favorites or our friends but I do not allow much discussion because I must hear the numbers. After the numbers are added, the percentages figured and the calculations compared, we probably did talk about our feelings, I do not deny that, but again, I wonder at the accusation of the word "slander" in paragraph three of Miss Carpenter's letter. Slander is a Judicial Board offense and also, incidentally, against the law. I wonder if Miss Carpenter feels we were "slandorous" or whether instead our/my opinion of the candidate just differed from hers. If indeed slander was intended, the charge is serious and I am surprised that no investigation ensued. If, instead, a clash of opinions is the subject of debate, I am sorry that I was not made aware of Miss Carpenter's stance and personal stake in the matter. I cannot change, my opinion (i.e. my opinions at the time) but I would have chosen my words more carefully and would have listened to her opinion.

As for plotting to snatch the office out from under this candidate, I do not need to debate this, I know how to remove a candidate from office. Ah-ha, one may say! What a sinister person that Jan Bates is! Rather than explain it here, I suggest that one read their handbook—it's all right there. It is my responsibility to be aware of these things, so how could I have been talking about "revoking" an office. No such language can be found in my constitution. It is my opinion, though, that the student body should know how to remove someone from office—keeps those people on their toes (joke-joke)!

I will address one other issue and then quit because I think that this pen is becoming a permanent addition to my hand. I dislike and resent the tone and implications in Miss Carpenter's letter. My committee worked its butt off and always has. I do not appreciate someone attacking one of the most diligent committees on campus, especially when 50 per cent of the persons named are off campus. Also the phrases "undermine the system," "powerful" and "unchecked" sound a bit too much like Watergate for me. As anyone who is in SGA knows, no single committee or person fits that description. In our case, we must answer specifically to Dean Heintz. It also seems odd to me that such a "powerful" committee would listen to one lowly person's demands. Seems more likely that they would call in the mafia and liquidate the informant. Again a contradiction! As my friends know, I can be a very stubborn person; that description of a whippy chairman certainly does not fit me! Does this letter sound like the chairman in Miss Carpenter's letter? I doubt it!! I am sorry about three things.

One that this confusion happened; two, that it was not clarified at the time; three, that I have to respond in a letter to complicate things even more! Please ask me or Becki Lee if there are any further questions concerning this matter.

Love and best wishes
in the Blue-n-white,
Jan Bates

Dear Editor,

I am writing this in response to Brenda K. Carpenter's letter in the February 26 issue of The Rotunda. We, the Elections Committee of the Legislative Board of Longwood College, feel that Ms. Carpenter's view was that of gross misinterpretation, and factually invalid. As the present Chairman of the Elections Committee, I would like to clarify this matter.

Beginning with the purpose of this committee, as stated in our constitution, the purpose is to "schedule and supervise all campus and formal class elections to the board and the election of class officers." We, as a committee, fulfilled this purpose. Ms. Carpenter insinuates throughout her letter that the committee was attempting to distort the outcome of the election. Ms. Carpenter's allegations are as follows: "...the committee started critiquing several of the candidates and in particular one person who they were strongly opposed to winning office... the committee started to moralize about the candidate in question and were being very judgemental as to how 'bad' an officer he would be if elect(ed)... they were insulting and slandering a personal friend of mine." We, as the committee, did not critique any candidate at any point. We, as individuals with varied opinions and sentiments, expressed our own personal feelings as voting students of Longwood College. In reference to Ms. Carpenter's accusation of the committee "insulting and slandering a personal friend" of hers, at no time, did any member of the committee do such. The committee's discussion concerning the candidate in question arose when the committee was posed with the question, "Can a person run for a major office on a board by which that person had previously been before, been tried, and found guilty?"

Ms. Carpenter blatantly states that "the candidate had won by more than 100 votes over his closest opponent... (and) the candidate had most definitely won by more than the ten vote margin needed to call a run-off." Ms. Carpenter had obviously not done her homework. The candidate in question had considerably less than 100 votes over his closest opponent. However, he did have more than 100 votes over his farthest opponent, these results having been recorded in the elections Committee files. In reference to her statement concerning a ten vote margin, there is no reference, in our constitution, as to the criteria to be met in declaring a run-off. It does state, however, that "The winners of Major, Minor, Board representatives or class elections shall have a majority of the votes cast." The candidate did have a "simple majority," however, he did not have a "majority of the votes cast." At this point, a run-off is called at the discretion of the committee.

As far as our having "self imposed power," the power we have is imposed by our constitution, and we follow it and its guidelines. The committee would like to say that we do not go "unchecked" as Ms. Carpenter states. Dr. Heintz receives a copy of the election results and has the opportunity to question the committee should she deem such necessary.

Lastly, the Elections Committee of the Legislative Board of Longwood College would like to add that should any member of the student body request a copy of our constitution, they may receive one by contacting Becky Lee, Box 711, or by calling her at 392-3448. The Elections Committee is also in the process of revising our constitution in order to incorporate the Judicial Board Proposal, and any suggestions are welcomed at this time.

The Elections Committee would like to close by saying that we do not feel that at any moment did we act in any manner that could be perceived as unprofessional or in violation of the Honor Code, as the accusations imply.

Sincerely,
Rebecca D. Lee
Chairman
Elections Committee

Dear Editor,

This letter is in reference to the letter submitted by Brenda Carpenter in the February 26 issue of The Rotunda. It is quite apparent that once one gets through the great amount of rhetoric and occasional hyperboles, that Ms. Carpenter is making very serious charges against the Election Committee. These charges are so strong that I would like to ask Ms. Carpenter, "Why did she wait so long to divulge this information?" If she is so concerned about the welfare of the student body as she claims to be, then, why did she withhold such information and suddenly decided to enlighten the student body?

This is sheer speculation on my part, however, it seems to me that there must be a mode of vengeance involved in this matter. For someone to wait this long with such information it seems that Ms. Carpenter is using this letter as a personal attack against the board.

I feel that Ms. Carpenter has been unfair to the student body if these accusations she has made are true. However, with the time that has elapsed since the election, not only do I question her motive, but as well, her validity.

Signed,
A Concerned Student

CHI Letter

Dear Editor,

The most beautiful gift one can give is the gift of self. Two special events this past week proved that Longwood has many beautiful people on its campus.

First of all the response to the Geist Bloodmobile was magnificent. Over 300 donors and hundreds of student volunteers turned out to make it a success. It is wonderful to see so many people interested in helping others.

Secondly, we would like to commend the sophomores on their endeavors with Sophomore Week. They put a lot of hard work into making it a fun time for all students at Longwood. Most importantly, though, they gave their time to go to Richmond and Holly Manor to present a program to cheer up both the young and old.

Longwood's participation in such noteworthy projects should make not only the participants proud of their accomplishments, but the entire college community as well.

Thank you Geist, Sophomores, students and faculty for two jobs well done.

Blue and White Spirit,
CHI 1980

Letter To Freshmen

To The Freshman Class:

March 6 and your Freshman Production is fast approaching. This production will be your statement to the school concerning your feelings to us and to the school—our school. We would like to publicly congratulate you on your spirit. Keep up the good work on the Production—your work does not go unnoticed. Keep the memories of Freshman Production with you—you will treasure those memories always. Keep your head, your spirit, and your blue and white love high—because it is "friendship, love, tradition that will fill our eyes with tears." Good Luck!!

Blue and White
Love,
The Red and Whites
Classes of 1980 and 82

Spirited?

Dear Editor:

In response to Apathetic Freshmen, I believe that maybe the Freshmen class is showing sophistication in not supporting Longwood High Schools activities. Starting with orientation and all of the "little girl school" things that go on, that are, for the most part, a waste of time. What purpose do the elves serve? What do they do except run around all dressed up in green? How many of you know or care who the Madonna was this year? Sally Red'n White and Gang Green should have been buried about five years along with baby reds and greens. We have finally gotten to college and we're babies playing with dolls again?! Finally, the class productions, in just two years I have come to the conclusion that the majority of the people who are involved (which is only a handful) are the same ones over and over again. So why keep

(Continued on Page 4)

Lancers Victorious Advance To Quarterfinals

By LISA SPENCER and MELODY CRAWLEY

The Lancers left last Thursday on their way to the NCAA Northeast Regionals. Many thoughts were racing through their minds, but probably the most important one was — winning. And that's exactly what they did. Longwood posted wins in their first two games and played better than any Virginia team ever in the playoffs to become the Northeast Regional Division III champions.

In their first game, the 12th ranked Lancers beat unranked Framingham State, 73-63. Four Lancers scored in double figures — Shack Leonard had 16, Ken Ford had 14, and Joe Remar and Randy Johnson each had 10 points.

Longwood's only moment of trouble came after half-time. The Lancers were ahead 34-29 when Framingham pulled close 34-33. But two baskets by Mike Willis gave the team a 45-38 margin, keeping Framingham from regaining in the rest of the game.

In the finals of the championship, Longwood defeated Clark, 70-60. High scorers were Kenny Ford, 19; Joe Remar, 15; Shack Leonard, 12; and Randy Johnson, 11. Johnson also lead in rebounds with 11.

At half time, the score was Longwood 32, Clark 30. During the second half, Clark came from behind to tie the score 50 all with eight minutes left. Longwood rallied to score six straight points to take the lead and keep it.

Four of six points were gained by Shack Leonard and "Tee" Alston at the free throw line. Leonard sunk two more in a lay-up. Longwood was 16 for 16 from the line in second half. Clark was out-rebounded by the Lancers 42-26.

Shack Leonard was named Most Valuable Player in the Tournament. Leonard and Joe Remar were named to the All-Tournament team.

The Lancers will host the Division III Quarter Finals at Hampden-Sydney College, Friday night at 8 p.m. The Lancers (27-1 record) will go against Pottsdam State, N.Y., (24-3 record) the Eastern Region Champs.

Tickets for the game will be available today in the Athletic Department and other locations for three dollars.

The Catalina's are currently preparing their spring show. The show will be presented on March 12, 13, 14 at 8:00 p.m. The theme for this year's show is Broadway and Movies. The club will be holding a swim-a-thon to raise money to go to Nationals in South Carolina. Pairs of girls will be swimming 100 lengths of the pool. Pledges will be taken starting March 20th.

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Lady Lancers Fourth Smith Named All-State

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Lady Lancers took fourth place in the state tournament held February 28-March 1. Longwood senior Maryjane Smith was one of ten players selected to the 1980 VAIAW Division II All-State team. Smith, Longwood's overall leading scorer (18 ppg) and rebounder (8.4 ppg), did not see much action in the tournament because of the flu.

Longwood advanced to the semi-finals after taking a narrow 53-51 victory over Hampton Institute. Cindy Eckel and Brenda Fettrow were the Lancers high scorers with 12 points and 10 points, respectively.

Despite her illness, Smith had nine points and nine rebounds in the contest.

On Friday, fifth seed Longwood met the top-seed and eventual champion Radford Lady Highlanders. The Lancers took a 68-55 defeat to the team which had beaten them 81-59 earlier in the season.

Longwood leapt out to an early lead in the first half but Radford battled for a 31-31 deadlock at the half. In the second half, the Highlanders took the lead for good sinking 18 for 22 shots from the line which handed them the game.

Eckel again took scoring honors for the Lancers with 13 points.

Longwood was then left to battle with third-seed William & Mary for third place. The Lancers never really got into the game, falling to the Indians 78-49. The Indians led by a 16-point spread at the half 40-24, and never lost control of the ballgame.

Sophomore center Robin Hungate and Senior forward Kitty Hughes came off the bench to lead the Lancer scoring. Hungate had 16 points, while Hughes had 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Radford went on to defeat second seed VCU in overtime to clinch first place. George Mason took fifth place with a win over Hampton Institute, who finished sixth.

The Lancers finished the season with an 11-19 season record and a 4-6 conference record.

Gymnasts Bring Strong Hopes

By LISA SPENCER

Gymnastics has been a sport of growing fascination since Olga Korbut stunned the 1972 Olympics with her outstanding performances. The Gymnastics team here at Longwood has also come a long way. The team finished this season with an 8-1 record, and a second place finish at the V.A.I.A.W. State Gymnastics Championships.

Although the team did not come back from William and Mary with a victory, they did run a very close second. William and Mary only outscored Longwood by three points in its 129.35 to 126.00 victory. The Longwood gymnasts did, however, return with several places to their credit.

Sharon Pillow and Kathy Idelson once again were the mainstays for the team with a combined total of eight places. Sharon took the top honors of the meet with a first place in all-around competition. This was the first time that a Longwood gymnast has ever done that in state competition. Her total score was 32.80, a very respectable one considering the pressure involved in the State Championships. Kathy Idelson placed a very close third with 31.75, missing second place by only .05 points.

Sharon also brought home first places in vaulting and uneven bars. Her vaulting score of 9.00 was the highest of the meet. She had an 8.4 in bars, and placed fourth in the floor exercise with an 8.0.

Kathy was also a stable performer, bringing in another third place and two fifth places. She captured third on the bars (8.10) and fifth on the beam (7.80) and floor (7.90).

Not to be underestimated in the least was the performance of Shelia Gould, a rapidly improving member of the team. She put in very steady performances throughout the meet and brought home three places herself. She earned a tie for fifth place in the all-around competition with 31.20 points. Shelia hung on to the uneven bars for a sixth place (7.75) and, saving the best for last, had an excellent performance on the beam. Her beam score of (8.15) was good enough to earn her a third place finish.

Not only did these three gymnasts contribute to the team's success, so did the other girls. The rest of the team Donna Barger, Margie Fanton, Margi Janger, Karen Mazzonna, Jean Powers, and Bertha (see Coach Budd for details) added good scores of their own to the team final. The final team finished for the meet were as follows:

William and Mary	129.35
Longwood	126.00
James Madison	124.50
Radford	118.60
Virginia Tech	76.90

Even though the team finished in second place, Longwood is still seeded first for the Regional Championships, which will be held on March 14-15 at Radford University.

As far as preparing for the meet, the girls are not trying many new stunts, but rather they are stabilizing their old ones. "We're going to need good, steady routines to beat William and Mary," commented Coach Budd. She had arranged for a national level judge to come in to help the girls with their routines this week, and this should be a great help to them. This week also starts a week of hard practice for the gymnasts.

Competition for the regional meet should not be too stiff for Longwood—with the exception of William and Mary. The other teams participating are Radford, East Carolina, Western Carolina, Western Kentucky, and Furman. Longwood gymnasts have successfully beaten all these teams during their regular season, except for Western Kentucky whom they have not competed with yet. But, W. Kentucky should prove no problem for the girls since its team is only seeded third for regionals.

Coach Budd feels that the girls will have a better chance to beat William and Mary at Radford since it will be neutral ground for both teams. The team that wins at regionals will advance to the national championships. Coach Budd is expecting the team to do well at Regionals, and if they do win, it will be the first time Longwood has advanced to nationals as a team.

The team's accomplishments this year have not gone unnoticed. The girls have received two letters from members of the Board of Visitors and even a congratulatory one from CHI. Longwood's 1979-80 Gymnastics Team has done a great deal for women's sports and will continue to do so. So Gymnasts—GO FOR THE GOLD AT REGIONALS!!!!

Your Turn—

(Continued from Page 3)
traditions that are out of date or not supported?

A BROWN and White,
John McLaren

Sophomore Thanks

Sophomore Week is over — it was a great success and a lot of fun. At this time I would like to thank everyone who was involved with the week for their support and efforts. Many thanks go to the Seniors for their never-ending support and love, Mr. Dent for all his help on the Open Mike and Mixer, and to all the wonderful merchants, organizations, parents, faculty and administration for all their contributions to the Auction.

I'd like to send thanks and red and white love to all the committees for their work: Duke

Rollins and his committee (Soph. Open Mike), Jerry Richman and all the mixer workers (Sophomore Mixer), Susan Towler (Sophomore Auction), Katrina Harlow (Decorating Chairman), and Bonnie Vaughan, Sharon Harrup, all of the actors and clowns (Roadshow). You were all great! However, this week could never have been as successful as it was had it not been for the efforts of Sophomore Week Chairman Kathy Vannice. Her unboundless energy made the week terrific.

Because of the limit of space, I cannot mention everyone's name. However, they know who they are and I thank them all for their work.

Red and White love,
Brenda Coleman, President
Sophomore Class

Board Of Visitors Hear Forum

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The 15 different presentations aired to the Board of Visitors in their first open session Thursday centered around faculty input. Twelve of these presentations were made by faculty members.

Dr. James M. Helms Jr., professor of Government, was allowed to sit on the board for questions. He was not given voting privileges. Dr. Helms described himself as a "faculty member in anguish" because he did not understand the board communication policy. The board emphasized that faculty should feel free to communicate with them.

Dr. Helms was allowed to speak before the board in closed session after some discussion with a representative from the Attorney General's Office on the Freedom of Information Act.

Dr. Rosemary Sprague, a Board of Visitors distinguished professor of English, was the first faculty member to speak in the forum. She reproached some of her colleagues as having revived "unhappy memories" of the past. She quoted faculty members as saying, "If we don't get Henry this time we'll get him in May." She expressed great concern over ending the controversy adding that she had never felt fear of reprisal during her 17 years here.

Dr. Robert P. Webber, of the Department of Mathematics, cited the merit pay system as a specific example of communication difficulties between administration and faculty. He said there was a "lack of consistency" in this matter.

He cited the budget as an example of communication between administration and the board. He said it had taken him "four months and three attempts" to receive a copy of a budget in which the addition was done correctly.

Dr. David A. Briel, of the Natural Science Department, expressed concern over the supportive rising cost in Athletic fees. "Students are being ripped off financially," he stated. He received clapping from students when he reported that athletes are being given special treatment. He cited the recent privilege given Intercollegiate athletes to register first along with Seniors and terminal professional students.

Dr. Anthony Cristo, of the Economics Department and Chairman of the Presidential Advisory committee, brought four major concerns before the board. These concerns included the Tea Room, facilities improvements, college communications, and faculty pay.

He, along with three other members of the committee (Dr. Wayne Tinnell, Dr. Gerald Graham, and Dr. John Peale), thanked the board for allowing them to speak in the forum, suggesting that it might be continued in the future.

The question of the validity of the faculty survey in the management team report was discussed. President Willett reported that the team had not followed their manual in conducting the survey. Members of the President's Advisory Committee assured the board that the faculty supported the accuracy of the survey. Dr. Cristo told the board that it may have failed in precision, "but you got it in regard to issues raised."

Dr. Peale presented the Campus Ministers document as an example of changes needed. This document, among other things, asked for changes in the student services.

Dr. Jerry Cardwell, chairman of the Sociology and Anthropology Department, reported to the board that faculty on campus push their colleagues to choose sides. He said that in the one and a half years that he had been here he was asked constantly whether he was pro or anti-administration. "The situation at Longwood right now is a little more volatile than it ought to be."

When questioned by Board member M. Ralph Page of Richmond, Dr. Cardwell stated that he had not felt a climate of fear.

Dr. Elizabeth Flynn, of the Art department, called for changes in the bookstore, Freshman Orientation, and Library hours.

Dr. Edwin Vassar, Director of Student Teaching, said, "I have

(Continued on Page 8)

President Willett and Dean Heintz answer questions at Tuesdays Press Conference.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Fees To Increase

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Among the topics discussed at the Press Conference on Tuesday, March 4, in the Lower Dining Hall was the seven percent increase in the students' overall fees. This would bring an increase of approximately $200. There will be a five dollar increase in the students' activity fee. There was much discussion on the increases made in the past in the Students Activities fees and the Athletic fees. President Willett also announced that there may be some modification in the Laundry Fee due to the utilization study now going on.

There are some more decisions that are of particular interest to the student body that were presented at the Press Conference. The Faculty has approved the use of pluses and minuses in the grading system. This is to begin in the near future. Beginning July 1, 1980 there will be no Sales Tax on textbooks sold in colleges or universities. The suggestion that was made some time ago about having birthdates put on I.D. cards next year has been approved. President Willett encouraged students to keep pressing the Administration for information when they need it.

There was much discussion relating to the new gym. There has been no definite decision reached on what teams will play in the new gym. However, it was announced that Barlow gym will be used as Social Work classrooms next year.

The Board of Visitors will select a name for the new gym in May. Graduating Seniors will be given a tour of the new gym before they leave. The predicted date of completion of the new gym is July 15, 1980. Also in the Sports, there will be a JV Women's Basketball team at Longwood next year.

There was very much discussion on the academic standing and admittance of male athletes at Longwood. President Willett informed those present that males had to have the same SAT scores as females to be admitted, and that they needed to maintain the same grade point average as females. He also stated that there is a process where students can appeal the Admissions Committee, and that "all academic eligibility comes through the Dean's office." Also Longwood has not completely filled its enrollment for the next year.

The work on the parapet wall of the Dining Hall is to begin in the near future. The proposed needs of Jarman were not considered an emergency so funds were not allocated for that project, however, it can be submitted to the General Assembly again at a later date.

Communications Key To SGA Day

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Over 160 faculty and students participated in Student Government Day on March 4. The Student Government sponsored the day's activities to bring about better communication between the students and faculty, staff, or administrators on a one-to-one basis to discover how each spends their time and to discuss campus problems.

Colonel Ivey, an ROTC staff member at the University of Richmond which is the "home branch" of Longwood's ROTC program, came down especially for Student Government Day. He was quite interested in student activities and how the student government was organized. He also was willing to talk about military weapons and deterrence theories which related to his assigned student's International Relations class.

Colonel Ivey also invited the student to an ROTC scholarship review committee meeting in which five students were being interviewed as candidates for national ROTC scholarships. Even though this was a particularly unnerving experience for the students who had to respond to questions asked by the six committee members, Colonel Ivey's gift of friendliness and humor soon put them at ease.

Other Student Government Day activities included a luncheon in which 45 faculty and 115 students participated and a banquet which 60 people attended. Charlie Mason and Dale Roller provided before-dinner music for the banquet. Dr. Anthony Cristo, an economics professor, was the after dinner speaker.

Also there was a press conference that afternoon and a Judicial Board Mock Trial that night.

Julia Combs and Mary Slade were co-chairmen of Student Government Day.

"We were pleased with the attendance," said Miss Slade. "We received several good comments on the day. I feel that more people came to Press Conference, especially faculty members who were at the luncheon."

Dr. Anthony Cristo was speaker for SGA banquet.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Freshman Production: Out Of This World

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

For the past few weeks the Freshman class has been working diligently and secretly on their annual production. Thursday night their efforts were presented to the rest of the school.

The play is an original work of the Script Committee, made up of twelve freshmen. The play is about Meeke and Eeke, who are from an alien planet, sent here to observe college life, particularly Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia. They discover the elements necessary for partying, beer and loud music, the symbol of Longwood, good ole Joanie, who was played by Kim Williams. They are filled in on the pros and cons of Longwood through freshman orientation. They are exposed to the hazards of registration. Meeke and Eeke have a glimpse of Oktoberfest, other games and activities, and Christmas traditions at Longwood. Then they travel to "Hamster City," where the Hampsters are described quite vividly. They wear button down shirts, khaki pants and tightsider shoes. They do have variations, such as horn-rimmed glasses and sweaters. The alligator is their religious symbol, because everyone wears it. Then came the fun part of college life, studying for exams. And then it is time for everyone to go home for the summer, "a liquid-secretion from the eye" time.

The two narrators, Meeke and Eeke, were played by Mark Winecoff and Carrie Chumney. Meeke II and Eeke II, who were reliving the tale of the travels, were played by Ross Conner and Patty Carrie. The rest of the cast consisted of a variety of characters: a drunk played by Lisa Bowers, a registrar played by Lynda Lansinger, Christmas elves and general crowds.

The Freshman Class has done a great job. They have put forth a large amount of energy and deserve a hearty thanks from their fellow students for an enjoyable evening.

The cast of Freshman Production closes their interpretation of Longwood life with "Joan of Arc."

Photo by Jackie Steer

Preview: The Mousetrap

By MINDY HIRSCH

If danger, excitement, and mystery appeal to you, be sure to see the Longwood Players' presentation of Agatha Christie's play, THE MOUSETRAP. This play, which is the longest running play in the English language, will be performed April 9-12. Dr. Lockwood is serving as the faculty director of THE MOUSETRAP. It is free for Longwood students.

The plot concerns a young couple, Mollie and Giles Ralston, played by Melanie Hudnell and Dale Roller. This couple runs a small lodging house in England. Their guests consist of Christopher Wren, an anemic young man played by Chris Conner; Mrs. Boyle, a melancholy and critical woman portrayed by Vicky Mann; a retired military man, Major Metcalf, played by Jeff Sledjeski; Mr. Paravicini, a "delightful" Frenchman played by Frank Creasy; and Miss Caswell, a decisive woman, portrayed by Lisa Hughes. An immense blizzard forces these guests to be isolated at the inn. The largest part, Detective Sergeant Trotter, will be played by Randy Cook. Detective Trotter comes to the inn to investigate a mysterious murder... one that took place at the lodge. The intriguing fact is that, due to the blizzard, no one is able to leave the inn — and no one is able to come to the inn, either. Therefore, it appears that the murderer is one of the members of the isolated group.

The technical aspects of the play are also intriguing. Richard Gamble, the faculty technical director, explains that the script of THE MOUSETRAP "dictates a lot of crucial set handling." There are parts of the play that the audience must see clearly as well as parts that the audience should not view. It is also important that the set look mysterious in order to convey the mood of the play.

Agatha Christie was certainly one of the most distinguished mystery writers of all times. She was also astonishingly prolific, having written some sixty novels, nearly two hundred short stories and nine full-length plays. But of all her works, unquestionably the most successful is THE MOUSETRAP, which opened in London way back in 1952 and is still running.

Come see this chilling mystery play to see if you can detect "whodunit."

Omega Outa Staters

By W. TAYLOR

In case you have not heard, there is a new organization on campus called Omega Outa Staters. It is not a fraternity, but a group of men who have come together to unify and organize the students with similar social interests.

Some people refer to them as "the basketball team" or "the black frat," because they have many black members who also play for the Varsity Basketball team.

Omega Outa Staters is a brotherhood not restricted by skin color or other ridiculous prejudices. Omega was founded by six men who wanted to improve the quality of the social life and enable students to become better acquainted while at Longwood. Founders of the organization are Shack Leonard, Florida; William K. Ford, North Carolina; Larry D. Williams,

New York; Michael Owens, Florida; Elliot Hedley, New York; and Walter L. Taylor Jr., Massachusetts.

They have involved themselves in more than social functions, because they want to demonstrate that they have a serious concern for their school and the community. Giving blood, playing benefit basketball games and participating in the Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy are some things which they know will help someone else.

They want their organization to have a positive effect on their members, Longwood College and Farmville.

They extend an invitation to any male on campus, who is interested in Omega, to come and talk to any member of the organization. They are also looking for any interested females to be "Sweethearts."

By DONNA MARTIN

Rebecca A. (Becky) Webb came to Longwood in 1976 when she began her Art Studies. She is majoring in Studio Art with a concentration in Print Making and Graphic Design. Since entering Longwood in 1976 Becky has really accomplished a lot and she has received much recognition. Some of the awards Becky has received are the Junior Purchase Award and the Art Department Scholarship Award. She has exhibited work at the Southside Community Hospital, Hampden-Sydney College and the AAUW-Heironimus Art Show in Roanoke. She is also a member of Alpha Sigma Tau, a Social Sorority on campus.

Becky was a recipient of an Art Purchase Award from the Longwood College Art Department in the spring of 1979. An oil canvas titled "Portrait of Lynn" was one of the works submitted by Becky which was selected from the annual Junior Art Majors Exhibit. It was added to the Art Department's permanent collection of student works. Two Art Department Awards were given, of which Becky was the recipient of one and the Alumni Association gave three awards.

In the fall of 1979, Becky entered the Art Department Scholarship Awards. Three scholarship awards were given by the Department of Art at Longwood to a sophomore, junior and senior Art major. Cash award of $200 each were given in the fields of Studio, Art Education, and Art History. To be eligible for the Art Department Scholarship Award, Becky had to have a college grade point average of 2.5 and an Art Department average of 3.0. Those in the Art Education field had to submit a minimum of 5 and no more than 10 projects completed in a studio class at Longwood. Art History applicants had to submit two or three papers completed in various Art History courses taken here. In the studio area of which Becky entered, the applicant had to submit a portfolio of ten works, the majority of which had to have been completed in Studio classes at Longwood. Becky received one of the Art Department Scholarship Awards in Studio for a senior Art major. The cash awards went toward the recipient's purchase of art supplies or tuition.

Becky was also honored by receiving an Honorable mention when she exhibited a work titled "Geraniums" in the 30th annual AAUW-Heironimus Art Show in Roanoke sponsored by the American Association of University Women and Heironimus. The judge of this event was I-Hsiung Ju, an artist in residence and an associate professor of Art at Washington and Lee University. Professionals, nonprofessionals and youths were all eligible to enter. Each applicant was only allowed to submit one work. The awards given were a silver bowl for the Robert Lee Lynn Award for the most outstanding work entered, along with five purchase awards and $600 in other prizes.

Becky has had work in exhibits at Hampden-Sydney College and Southside Community Hospital. The works shown were prints and photographs.

After graduating from Longwood in May, Becky plans to work during the summer for the Royal Golf Company in Farmville. She will be working with another artist doing designs and logos for sweaters and jackets. While living here in Farmville for the summer, she will continue her Art education by taking a Raku workshop at Longwood. This is a workshop in the specific ways of firing ceramics. She plans to continue her interviewing while working here this summer in hopes of finding a permanent job in Richmond.

Becky's Senior Art Exhibit will go up April 6 and will be there through the 18th in Longwood's Showcase Gallery.

Childhood Conference Set Saturday

From Public Affairs Office

Longwood College's annual Early Childhood Conference is scheduled for Saturday, March 15, at the J. P. Wynne Campus School.

Designed for teachers and supervisory personnel who work with young children, the conference is sponsored by Longwood's department of education and psychology. Some 350 educators are expected to attend.

The featured speaker this year is educational psychologist Dr. Walter B. Barbe, a nationally known authority on the teaching of reading and handwriting, and the education of exceptional children. He will speak during the morning session, beginning at 9:15. His topic will be "Teaching Using Children's Learning Strengths."

Each participant may also attend two of the six workshop sessions during the conference.

The workshops and leaders are as follows: "Motivating Reading Through Doll Collections," Dr. Mae Johnson, professor of education at Virginia State University; "Introducing Tools to the Very Young Child," Elizabeth Hunt, educational consultant from Marion, N. C.; "Child Abuse and Neglect," Linda Farrell of the Prince Edward County Social Services Department.

Also, "Skill Development Through the Use of Puppets," Patricia Inge of the Nottoway County school division; "Motivating Children Through Science," Dr. Freda McCombs, associate professor at Longwood; and "Psychomotor activities for Young Children," Dr. Eleanor W. Bobbitt, professor at Longwood.

Dr. Barbe is the author of Creative Growth With Handwriting (an innovative new

(Continued on Page 8)

Job Opportunities In BANKING

SPEAKER: KEMPTON SHIELDS

Date: Thursday, March 13, 1980

Time: 12:45 P.M.

Place: Bedford Auditorium

"Ain't No Stoppin' . . ."

By MICHELLE SMITH

"Ain't No Stoppin' Us Now" was the theme for Longwood's third Annual Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy and for 24 couples the theme was an appropriate one. This year's Superdance began at 7 p.m., Friday evening and ran for 20 hours. By the closing ceremony 3 p.m., Saturday afternoon, $5,600 has been raised for Muscular Dystrophy. The $6,000 goal was met 30 minutes later.

Tom Sullivan and Sandra Goodwyn were the top money raisers bringing in $517. Portable televisions were awarded them. Second place was won by Cheryl Osterheld and David White and third place by Nancy Willard and Fritz Ritch, who were awarded cameras and bean bag chairs, respectfully.

Betsy Duncan, a member of the finance committee, brought in approximately $1,000 worth of pledges over the telephone on Saturday. The most outstanding donations were given by Lawson Ford, Lester Andrews, and Josiah Bunting, president of Hampden-Sydney College.

Much hard work went in to making this year's superdance such a success, and as President Willett stated in his closing remarks, "No one can call Longwood College apathetic when they see what has been done here." Alpha Sigma Tau sorority, I.B. Dent, Marjorie Croxton, Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, Phi Beta Lambda fraternity and WSVS Radio Station received certificates and engraved Jefferson cups for their work, "above and beyond the call of duty."

Jazzers Love Child's Play

By LISASPENCER

Jazz lovers who missed the Child's Play concert Saturday night really missed a great show. Child's Play was excellent, and its rhythm and blues selections were just as good as the jazz numbers.

The band's first set of songs consisted mainly of other musicians' work. They did an excellent rendition of Duke Ellington and several other big names in jazz.

The second set was definitely the group's best. This set included all their own work, especially the numbers on their next album. Several of their selections came from the origins of jazz — the old time gospel music. The drummer stole the show with a tremendous solo that earned him a standing ovation from several in the crowd.

The next time that Child's Play is appearing in the vicinity, it would be advisable to see them. If you are a jazz fan, you will not be disappointed. If you aren't, you will be after hearing this superb group.

Photo by Linda Paschall

Professionalism In A Laid-Back Style

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

This Saturday night, March 15, Saturday Night Alive will have the pleasure of the Rob Crosby Band. The seven member band will display professionalism that will impress any serious musician and has a laid-back style that satisfies easy listeners.

Rob Crosby is strong on the lead vocals and provides an even tone of effective harmonies that blend into Margie McCarty's trained voice, which will add an interesting contract to Crosby. Their song selections vary from Ronstadt, Lennon-McCartney and Dylan tunes. They have also written some original tunes themselves. They've played in Atlanta, and Nashville with an album out entitled ROB CROSBY.

Rob and his band provide excellent talent on stage and as once stated by Rob they love being on stage and entertaining crowds. If you enjoy listening to Ronstadt, Lennon-McCartney and Dylan, you will love the Rob

Crosby Band. But don't leave after you hear these, they will provide you with some of their own original tunes in between these known tunes, that will impress you down to your toes. The concert will be held in the Lower Dining Hall — Longwood Students $1.50 w.i.d. Support THE ROB CROSBY BAND, you won't want to miss it.

Finney Is Guest Composer

By ROBIN REYNOLDS

A Contemporary Music Symposium is held each year by the Longwood College Department of Music. With each Symposium a composer visits Longwood. This year Longwood will have the pleasure of hosting Ross Lee Finney.

Finney has been a professor of composition and composer in residence at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor since 1949. He was born in Wells, Minnesota on December 23, 1906. He took lessons on the piano and the cello and a study in composition at the University of Michigan at an early age. These lessons greatly influenced his earlier development. Finney founded the Smith College Music Archives, received the Purple Heart Award and Certificate of Merit during the Second World War. He was awarded two Guggenheim Fellowships and a Pulitzer Fellowship.

Finney has composed music for almost every kind of performance. He has composed for choral, vocal, organ, orchestral, symphonic band, accompanied and unaccompanied solos, and other types of musical performances.

On Wednesday, March 12, a question and answer session will be held with Finney in the Rehearsal Hall from 9-10 a.m. At 1 p.m. in the Rehearsal Hall, Finney will lecture on "Analysis and the Creative Process." Thursday night at 8 p.m., also in the Rehearsal Hall, a concert of exclusively Ross Lee Finney's music will be given by the Camerata Singers, Concert Choir, faculty, and selected students. A lecture will then be given, "Should Composers Talk About Their Own Music," by Finney.

The music being performed Thursday evening includes the following: songs from the Poor Richard cycle, Spherical Madrigals, Psalm 1, and the Piano Sonata No. 4 in E Major. Finney's music uses the influence of folksongs, which gives it simplicity, yet, also, gives it true sophistication.

All of the sessions on Wednesday and Thursday are open and free to the interested public. The faculty members are urged to attend the two lectures.

Annual Campus School Art Exhibit
MARCH 6-31, 1980
Lancaster Library Gallery
Longwood College
Traci Fleming, Grade 3

... Wrap With Us ...
Customized hand-painted shirts
special spring showing
Wed. 10-5
The Curiosity Shop

MIDNIGHT LATE SHOW "Uptown Sat. Night"

STARRING SIDNEY POITIER, BILL COSBY AND

HARRY BELAFONTE

FRIDAY, MARCH 14

RED WHITE GREEN ROOMS

$1.00 admission

Lancers Charge To Victory; On To Illinois !

By HOKE CURRIE

One couldn't blame Coach Ron Bash and his Longwood basketball team for pinching themselves Friday night just to make sure the dream was real.

The no-game, Longwood-Who? Lancers earned a berth in the NCAA Division III final four with 78-61 pasting of ninth ranked Potsdam State Friday night as a frenzied crowd of 1,600 chanted their approval at the Hampden-Sydney Athletic Center.

Now 28-1 (best record of any men's team in the nation on any level), Longwood faces the ultimate challenge Friday night at 6:35 CST. The Lancers must battle two-time defending national champ North Park (26-3) in the first final four game at Augustana College in Rock Island, Illinois. Upsala (24-4) and Wittenberg (28-2) will play in the second semi-final tilt Friday night. Losers will play a consolation game at 6:35 Saturday night with the championship contest to follow.

To get to the final tilt Longwood will have to beat a team which can only be described as awesome. The Vikings blasted a talented Jersey City State team Saturday night 86-63, despite the fact that 6-10 All-American center Michael Harper contributed little because of foul trouble.

While Harper, who averaged 22 points and over 12 rebounds per game in the regular season, is a legitimate pro prospect, the Vikings are a long way from being a one-man team. Point guard Michael Thomas scored 24 against Jersey City and 6-7 Keith French came off the bench to score 15 points and grab 16 rebounds. North Park, located in Chicago, has not only its starting five, but its entire team returning from last year's second in a row Division III championship season.

The Vikings averaged 85.9 points per game, shot 54.2 per cent from the floor and outscored opponents by 19 points during the regular season.

The Vikings also have one of the tallest guards in the country in 6-7 Modzel Greer, who is also considered to be a pro prospect. North Park is coached by Dan McCarrell.

No Time To Savor

While Longwood has little time to savor its big win over Potsdam State, neither the Lancers nor their fans will soon forget Friday night. After playing its regular season games in tiny French Gymnasium, which seats 200 comfortably, Longwood got unprecedented fan support against the Bears when a fired-up crowd of 1,600 turned out. The victory and the whole night were special.

Coach Ron Bash, who has taken teams to the Division III final four previously, called it probably his most satisfying win ever.

"Considering the circumstances, it was my most satisfying win," said Bash. "We were still considered a no-name team going into the Potsdam game. People will hear about us now. Our players really came through under difficult circumstances and the response of the fans from Longwood and the town of Farmville was most gratifying."

Longwood tri-captain Shack Leonard (Riviera Beach, FL) felt the crowd had a big impact on the Lancers' performance.

"We just didn't know whether we could draw a crowd or not," said the senior guard. "This is what we've been waiting for, a little encouragement. And it was a big moral boost, I'll tell you that."

Team Win

Bash credited several players for playing key roles in the victory. As has been the case all season, the triumph over Potsdam was a team win.

Leonard contributed 12 points, 10 rebounds and six assists while directing the attack. Ken Ford

Ken Ford led team as high scorer with 21 points.

Photo by Jul Morton

(Shelby, N.C.) had 21 points, Larry Meyer (Medford Lakes, N.J.) 14 points while filling for injured starter Randy Johnson (Richmond) and freshman Ron Orr (Elizabeth, N.J.) went 44 from the line and the floor for 12 points. Another freshman, center Mike Wills (St. Albans, N.Y.) snatched off 10 rebounds as Longwood owned the boards by a 46-30 margin.

FINAL FOUR GAMES

$2.50 GENERAL ADMISSION

$3.50 RESERVE SEATS

Anyone interested in attending the Division III Playoffs in Rock Island this weekend should contact Coach Rich Posipanko for information on travel, tickets, and accommodations

8-10 a.m. 392-9241, 392-9242

3-4 p.m. 392-9343

After 10 p.m. 392-6730

Senior Shack Leonard takes aim before adding two more points.

Photo by Jul Morton

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW OPEN

Mon. - Thur. 11:10 PM - Fri. & Sat. 'til Midnight

104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

POTSDAM
	FG	FT	RB	PF	TP
Rowland	5/19	6/7	6	4	18
Woods	0/2	5/6	4	4	5
Jachim	2/10	2/2	3	0	8
Hunter	9/18	0/0	5	3	18
Franke	0/6	0/0	2	3	0
Perkowski	1/2	3/4	1	5	7
Rhodes	3/7	1/3	1	4	7
Melbourne	1/4	0/0	0	0	2
Donnelly	0/3	2/2	3	0	2
Stephan	0/0	0/0	0	0	0
Mirabito	0/0	0/0	0	0	0
Brannon	0/0	0/0	0	0	0
Team
Totals	21-48	18-29	30	23	81

LONGWOOD
	FG	FT	RB	PF	TP
Rehner	4/8	6/11	4	3	9
Leonard	5/14	2/2	10	2	12
Wills	2/4	1/4	10	3	3
Meyer	3/8	4/5	5	4	14
Ford	9/12	5/5	2	2	21
Orr	4/4	4/4	6	3	12
Newton	1/2	2/2	3	1	4
Bracey	0/1	0/0	0	1	0
Altman	1/3	0/0	2	3	2
Turner	0/0	0/0	0	1	0
Goodrich	0/0	0/0	0	0	0
Sixsmith	0/0	2/3	0	0	2
Team
Totals	30-54	20-26	46	23	78

Potsdam 81 Longwood 78

Turnovers: Potsdam 11, Longwood 21

Attendance — 1,600

Pandemonium hits crowd as the final buzzer sounds and their team has won.

Photo by Jul Morton

Lacrosse Season Holds Strong Hopes

By DAVE GATES

"Control!" "Ask for the pass." "Diagonal cuts!" "Sprint into each cut!" "Keep your legs moving!" "And Go!" A young, new coach, with whistle, stopwatch and stick, stands directing an energetic group of athletes; drilling and pressing them to their potential. A physically demanding sport, new to some of them, and the constant challenge of each game of the season lies in the weeks ahead. Coach Jane Miller and the ladies of the Longwood Lacrosse Team are pulling themselves together as a playing unit, developing, and striving to be ready for any challenge they may meet.

A versatile coach, Miller has had experience guiding teams in Field Hockey and Basketball as well as Lacrosse. In addition to her Lacrosse position, she was also the Women's Basketball assistant coach and teaches physical education. She received her B.S. degree from Northeastern and her M.S. from UNC-Greensboro. Miller has played on the United States Lacrosse team for three years and was named to the U.S. reserve team for two years.

The first team seems to be a strong and consistent group of players. The team is made up of many veteran players lending experience to their play. Individual appraisals of the players cannot really be determined as yet. The restrictions of indoor practices had its hinderances, among which was the coach's ability to view individual skills.

From recognition last year, certain players can be seen as strong hopefuls in this season's play. Cindy Dropeski, Debbie Cosby, Julie Dayton, Kim Garber, and Denise Snader were chosen to positions on Division II Va. State College teams last year. Miller stated that there are also some "really good new people" who are actually new to the game and at the time playing on the first team.

The second team is quite apprehensive right now. They are all basically new to the game and are learning fast as they are faced with the new experience. In game situations, the first team members that do not play will play in the second team game. Coach Miller hopes to allow all second team members to get a chance to play.

Miller is confident, yet hesitant, in assessing the coming season. The team has not been able to practice outside until this week, therefore she has not seen people on full field. With the first game of the season at home, Thursday, March 13, she realizes that "anything could happen."

The game of Lacrosse is one of quick, strong movements, precise timing, intricate technique, and harsh physical demands. Coach Miller has been pressing the team through t tedious drills and instruction in preparation for the season. In practice sessions she finds herself "a little verbose," stopping often for specific techniques and instruction.

Because of the practice conditions the first game will be a tough one, but useful as a learning experience. Looking ahead, Miller feels that "if anything we'll be aggressive." The team play will be drawn from the play of the defense. Miller explains that "defensive assignments are clearly defined," therefore enabling the team to utilize the strength and consistency in these positions to push an aggressive Longwood offensive attack and aid the apprehensive goalie. She has been directing her attention to accurate passing, going to goal and beating the opponent, constantly going forward and "no standing still." She intends to strengthen their attack by the offense "creating overlaps."

Coach Miller and the players are approaching the season as a "fresh beginning." They are working to develop their skills and potential, and unifying their efforts as a team, to face their opponents, representing Longwood and dedicated to their sport. A season can be termed a success if it is simply completed, by a unified team. The support of spectators and victories can add to that all the more. With the hope of both, the 1980 Lacrosse season begins.

Coach Jane Miller prepares Lacrosse team during indoor practice session. Photo by Sue Co-fa

Longwood To Host Soccer Camp

Longwood College will serve as host for a World Cup Sports, Inc. soccer camp this summer. Lancer soccer coach Rich Posipanko announced recently. The camp, which is scheduled for July 6-11, is for boys aged 7-18.

Posipanko, coordinator for the local program, says that the World Cup summer camps are among the best in the country.

"World Cup has been holding camps around the country since it was founded in 1975," said the Longwood coach. "Our camp at Longwood will be one of 26 going on this summer nationwide. Campers will have the opportunity to develop their skills in the country's fastest growing sport."

Assisting Posipanko with the camp will be Ben Satterfield of Virginia Commonwealth, Bill Letten of Benedictine High School in Richmond, Matt Williams of Monacan High School, and other highly regarded Virginia soccer coaches.

As a special attraction, each youth who attends the camp will receive a free professional soccer ball and a complete uniform.

For further information, contact Posipanko at Longwood College.

SPORTS

Minithon Plans Set

The Longwood College Third Annual Minithon Run will be held Saturday, April 12, at 10 a.m. The course is 6.2 miles with the starting point at Hampden-Sydney College in front of the administration and following Route 643 along the back Hampden-Sydney road and finishing in front of the Rotunda.

There are seven separate categories for men and women: 15 years and under, 16-21 years, 22-29 years, 30-39 years, 40-49 years, 50 and above, and wheelchair.

The present course records are, for men, a 32:46 time by Richard Ferguson and for women a 40:18 mark by Barbara Sabitus, a former Longwood student.

The entry fee is $3.00 before midnight of April 7. After that time it is $5.00. Registration will begin March 17. Cutoff time is 9 a.m. on April 12. The first 400 entrants will receive tee-shirts.

For further information contact Minithon Director, Dr. Gerald Graham. The program is sponsored by Harwood, Andrews, and Dowdy, Inc. Insurance. Tee shirts are provided through Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia.

Player Of The Week

Pillow

Sets Records

Freshman gymnast Sharon Pillow (Richmond) led the Lancer Gymnastics team to a second place finish with a team score of 126.0 in the VAAIAW State Meet on February 24 at William & Mary. Pillow became the first Longwood College gymnast to win the State All-Around Title with her score of 32.80. For her accomplishment, Pillow has been chosen as Longwood College Player of the Week. This marks the 4th time that Pillow has won the weekly award this season.

Pillow won the all-around, bars and vaulting competition, setting a new state tournament record with a 9.0 vaulting score. Her 8.45 bar score and her 32.80 all-around score also earned firsts in the State meet.

The Lancer gymnasts will be looking for another strong showing from Pillow in the regional tournament at Radford on March 14. Longwood will be seeded first in the event based on its regular season average, but will have to defeat William & Mary to assure itself of a berth in the Division II Nationals March 28-29.

Rugbers Win Again

By CHRIS CONNOR

This past Saturday saw another victory for the Longwood Rugby Team as they defeated Washington & Lee. From the beginning until the end, Longwood Ruggers had full control of the game. Rick Bright scored the first try and gave the green light for Kevin "Huggy Bear" Brandon, Scott Cunningham, Gary Cunningham, and Guy DeLaduarante to score "try's." Captain Ronnie Saunders scored six points. A kick followed by Tom Larus, adding three points, to total a score of 33 to 0.

All members of the Rugby team must be congratulated because without each member during practice and in the game they would not have been successful as a team Saturday. The B-Side also did a very fine job in the second showing and took their match easily with a score of 12-0.

SPORTS AT HOME

March 12:
Baseball
Washington & Lee
3:30

March 13:
Lacrosse
Old Dominion
3:30

March 14-15
Women's Golf
Longwood Invitational

March 15:
Men's Golf
Averett
11:00

March 16:
Lacrosse
Piedmont Club
1:00

Lecture Series

GRANT FOSTER

"Wilderness Trek Through New Zealand"

Audubon Wildlife Film

WYGA

8 P.M. FREE

Your Turn

(Continued from Page 4)

Longwood — I AM a tradition. Without me or the other traditions we hold so dear, this school would not be so close knit and cheerful.

I don't mind being moved for a Christmas tree; I don't mind a bunch of people in robes waking me up in the wee hours of the morning for a walk on the Colonnade, and I'll even wear a nurse's cap for Bloodmobile. I do this for love. I can't sacrifice enough for the traditions of Longwood. May they live always at Longwood and in the hearts of all those who leave here . . . and to those who have never experienced the joys and sadness of the traditions here, my greatest sympathies.

Love Always,
Joan d'Arc

Thanks For Caring

Dear Editor,

It is impossible to have a successful event such as this year's Superdance for Muscular Dystrophy without the hard work and dedication of many people. The fact that $6,000 was raised this year says many things to me, the most important of which is that this campus is filled with many terrific, caring individuals. I cannot begin to express my appreciation to all those persons who danced, helped plan or work at the dance, pledged or gave money, or just came by for a while to watch. All of you made a valuable contribution and I want you to know that I am grateful for your support. Please accept this letter as my thanks to each of you here at Longwood. It is a small return for all you have done. I only hope that in your giving you have been able to receive satisfaction in knowing you are super people, and that I for one am proud to be surrounded by students and friends who are so supportive.

Thank you for caring,
Michelle Smith
1980 Superdance Chairman

Judicial Response

Dear Editor,

This letter is written in response to George Bennett's letter of two weeks ago, and to clarify to the student body some of the basic procedures employed by Judicial Board investigators in their searches, as outlined by the new proposal currently in use.

I might insert here that this new structure was distributed to the entire student body in January and is readily attainable from myself or Dean Heintz.

Under the new proposal there are three administrative assistants appointed by Dr. Willett, one of whom is to accompany the investigators on all narcotics searches. While their major purpose is to control traffic inside and outside the room being searched, they may on request from an investigator participate in the search under extenuating circumstances. In addition, while reasonable suspicion is necessary for a search to take place, the investigators are under no obligation to reveal what these grounds are.

I am fully aware that students are constantly questioning the modes and methods of Judicial Board and I invite anyone with questions to contact me at any time, at 392-9274.

Sincerely, Sally D. Lowe
Chairman of Judicial Board

Bloodmobile Thanks

In the past issues of The Rotunda I have read many letters concerning class and school apathy. Unfortunately many, if not most, of the letters have contained negative elements. It seems true to form that mostly negative opinions have been expressed.

I personally would like to thank everybody that was involved with the Bloodmobile. Being an All-American chicken, I could not muster up the courage to actually give such a precious gift. For those of you who did give, I not only commend you on your unselfishness, but also thank you. I would also like to thank all of you who gave something else quite precious — your time.

I was in charge of the typists, and I think they did a wonderful job (of course I'm not the least bit prejudiced). The only thing I regret at all is that we had to turn down people who wanted to work because we did not need them.

Thank you all for making the Bloodmobile such a success.

Sincerely,
Marcia Gray

Board Of Visitors

(Continued from Page 1)

never felt any fear." He also reported to the board that he would like to see the President's Advisory committee become strictly advisory.

Dr. Eleanor Bobbitt, of the Physical Education department, was the last faculty member to speak in the forum. She called for the faculty and college community to "view the past as direction for the future."

Three other presentations were made to the board. Student Activities Fees members Linda Paschall, Robin Young, and Bill Brent requested a five dollar increase in Student Activity Fees next year. This would bring the amount to $40. Kevin Lee was the other student speaker.

Gary Groneweg, Director of Admissions, called for the college to maintain and improve its academic reputation. "This reputation is the major item that will attract students," he said.

In Friday's open session, the board discussed 12 of the management team suggestions. In discussing maintenance problems, Board Member Mrs. Jesse R. Overstreet Jr. of Clarksville commented, "One thing we do not have a shortage of is old buildings."

Dr. William Peele reported to the Board that the part of the Management teams' suggested reclassification of employees had been approved. The State approved the up-grading rank of financial aid employees. They turned down the request for Campus Police. This reclassification means a pay increase.

The next Board of Visitors meeting will be May 1 and 2.

Conference

(Continued from Page 2)
series of elementary school texts), plus eight college level and professional books for teachers and over 100 professional articles and monographs.

He has taught in the public schools and at Baylor University, Kent State, the University of Chattanooga, and Ohio State. He is the editor of "Highlights for Children," a magazine based on the belief that children enjoy thinking and reasoning, which is read by over a million youngsters around the world. He also edits "Classroom Activities for Children with Special Needs," a series published by the Center for Applied Research in Education.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower
Headquarters"

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
PHONE 392-4154

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—lined & unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM WEDNESDAY MORNING

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. - Fri. 9 AM - 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

PINO'S RESTAURANT

PIZZA &
SUBS

TRY AND ENJOY
ALL OF OUR SPECIALTIES OF THE HOUSE

MONDAY CLOSED
TUES. WED. THURS. AND SUN.
11 AM TO 11 PM
FRI. AND SAT.
11 AM TO 12 MIDNIGHT

404 S. MAIN STREET
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-3135

Multitude of features—

Minimum of space
FRENCH PURSE
by BUXTON

Holds so much yet stays so trim. Large bill compartment and a full-size framed coin purse. Also removable 8-place card-photo windows including 2 special spare key pockets. Credit card slots. Beautiful fashion in top grain leathers.

Also available in other styles and colors.

Martin The Jeweler

MAIN ST., FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Levi's

- PAINTERS PANTS
- SPRING OUTFITS • ROMPERS
- LEVI'S SHIRTS & PANTS

$1.00 OFF W/ LONGWOOD I.D.

LARGEST & BEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S
IN THIS AREA

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.

PHONE 392-4870

Levi's

CHECK OUT
OUR NEW MERCHANDISE

$1.00 OFF W/ LONGWOOD I.D.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, MARCH 18, 1980

NO. 20

Kathy Redmon Named Miss Longwood

By SHARON JANOVICH

"Ladies and gentlemen, I'd like to welcome you to the 1980 Miss Longwood Pageant. Your master of ceremonies for this evening is Charlie Mason!" Thus, the pageant began, as in many previous years to determine the next Miss Longwood College!

The evening was centered around the theme: "On Broadway." The pageant was initiated with the ten contestants: Karen Parker, Kathy Redmon, Carolyn Scully, Melanie Hudnall, Marjorie LaReau, Linda Hitt, Julie Baca, Jane Bruce, Debra Colbert and Joanne Segraves; performing a dance choreographed by Robin Peterson, to "On Broadway," by the Drifters. This was followed by the reigning Miss Longwood, Julianna Worsham, taking a final walk down the runway.

The audience then saw the ten lovely contestants in their personality competition. Personalities were displayed in various original ways, such as showing a love for sports, music or teaching. Personality competition was followed by Andrea Mott singing, "Bless the Beasts and the Children."

The talent competition was one of the most enjoyable segments of the pageant. Karen Parker began this part of the pageant by singing: "You Made Me Love You," from the movie, "Broadway Melody of 1938." Kathy Redmon followed with a drawing-sketching of a horse, while she recited an original poem about horses. Carolyn Scully followed with a self-choreographed dance to "American in Paris," by George Gershwin. Melanie Hudnall was next with a song which brought many amused smiles from the audience: "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'," from Porgy and Bess. Marjorie LaReau then followed on a more serious note with a piano piece by Frederick Chopin, "Nocturna in f sharp minor Op. 27 no. 1." Linda Hitt then performed an original gymnastics floor exercise routine, to Beethoven's Fifth Symphony (modern version). Julie Baca then followed with an original poem declaring her 'search for a talent,' which again caused the audience to chuckle. Contestant number eight, Jane Bruce, followed with a piano medley, which she arranged. Contestant number nine, Debra Colbert, sang the piece, "Feelings," by Morris Albert. Contestant number ten, Joanne Segraves, then recited the poem, "Casey at the Bat," by Ernest Thayer.

The second part of the show was initiated by the audience "joining the contestants in a Florida vacation," as the girls displayed their swimsuits. Evening gown competition followed, after a dance by Robin Peterson to "That's Entertainment," and a duet by Charlie and Julianna: "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better."

The final moment arrived after Julianna gave a farewell speech and took her final walk. "This was not an easy thing to do," began Julianna, "but I wouldn't give it up for anything in the world." Longwood College was truly lucky to have such an excellent representative.

Finally, it came: the judges' decision! The audience waited anxiously. "This year, the winner of the Miss Congeniality award goes to Julie Baca." This was followed by the awarding of the title of "Most Talented Non-Finalist" to Jane Bruce. Second Runner Up was again Julie Baca, followed by Debra Colbert being awarded the title of First Runner Up. And then it came: "And now for the long awaited moment: This year's winner of the Miss Longwood Pageant is contestant number two: Mary Katherine Redmon!" Kathy Redmon came forward with a shocked look upon her face to accept her 12 roses and to be crowned Miss Longwood College 1980, much to the delight of the audience. Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Redmon, of Hartfield, Va.

"This was a difficult pageant to judge," began Mrs. Juanita Hove (one of the pageant judges). "There was so much talent and so many excellent girls, that we really had our work cut out for us."

Congratulations to Kathy Redmon, Miss Longwood College 1980. We wish the best to her throughout her reign.

Kathy Redmon expresses surprise as she is pronounced Miss Longwood 1980.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Longwood Gives International Award

Longwood College and the Longwood Foundation have announced the founding of a major new literary award, the John Dos Passos Prize.

Named in honor of an American writer widely considered one of the most significant literary figures of the twentieth century, the prize — which includes a medal and a substantial cash award — will be international in scope, and will be awarded annually by an independent prize jury.

Nominees include John Updike, Norman Mailer, Graham Greene, Derek Walcott, and Harry Crews.

The college's Department of English, Philosophy, and Foreign Languages will host a week of readings, receptions, and other events in honor of John Dos Passos, April 7-11. The winner of the prize will be announced at an award banquet on Monday, April 7. The novelist's widow, Mrs. Elisabeth Dos Passos, will be guest of honor.

Activities to follow during the week will include a poetry reading by Mark Strand, and a fiction reading by Tim O'Brien, winner of the 1979 National Book Award for Fiction. Longwood professor and novelist William Crawford Woods will also read.

The English department will offer a seminar on the fiction of Tim O'Brien. The Department of History and Government will sponsor the Francis Butler

Simkins lecture by Virginia Spencer Carr, on the life and work of John Dos Passos.

An exhibition of drawings and paintings by Dos Passos will be on display at the Virginia Museum in Richmond from February 26 through April 6. Plans are underway to have some of the novelist's art and other memorabilia on display at Longwood the following week.

A prolific writer in many forms and fields and a prominent figure in the Lost Generation of the writers of the 1920's, John Dos Passos is perhaps best known for his trilogy U.S.A., in which he developed three experimental techniques for a panoramic exploration of American life in the first third of the twentieth century. It was this work that led the French philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre to acclaim him "the greatest of all American novelists."

Don Passos was a long-time resident of Virginia, where he died in 1970.

The prize jury for 1980 included Mark Strand and Tim O'Brien, and poet Quentin Vest, an associate professor of English at Longwood.

The Parents Annual Phon-a-thon held last week was fun and successful. The total for the three nights came to $4500 and only about one third of the parents were reached. Here, Beth Parrott, top pledge receiver with $725, and Pam Wagner, Development Chairman, phone parents while Barbara Nanzig, Co-ordinator of event looks on. Plans are already underway to make next years event even greater.

Photo by Melody Crawley

BREAK AWAY!

HAVE A NICE

SPRING BREAK

Conference Features 'Highlights' Editor

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The fourth annual Longwood College Early Childhood Conference held at Wynne Campus School, March 15, featured Dr. Walter Barbe, Editor of Highlights for Children.

Dr. Barbe began his talk to the group of approximately 300 elementary teachers and educators by saying, "the best way to teach children is not through their weakness, but through their strength." He emphasized this point by stressing three kinds of learning modalities: visual, auditory, and kinesthetic.

The kinesthetic learners are the ones that are known about the least and taken care of the least. He explains the kinesthetic child as one who is more physical, needs more movement, and is outgoing. According to Barbe, they make "a very likeable child — one at a time."

He added, "The kinesthetic learner is a child that does well in life if he can make it through school." They make the best doctors, surgeons, and dentists; "they are the physical doers of the world."

According to Barbe, they are often termed either slow learners or hyperactive. He emphasized that putting them on medication was dangerous, because it was "taking away their right to learn."

Dr. Barbe also gave examples of all three modalities in children's literature. A kinesthetic writer puts the action first while a visual writer uses description. Another point brought out was that the students learn better when they have the same modality of their teacher.

Dr. Barbe closed his lecture by using a quote from Dr. Gardner, "We want everyone well educated. We want both educated plumbers and psychologists, then both our pipes and our theories will hold water."

Those attending also had the experience of six different workshop sessions. Dr. Mae Johnson of Virginia State University spoke on "Motivating Reading Through Doll Collections." She showed the teachers how to use various dolls to illustrate children's books.

Elizabeth Hunt, Educational Consultant from Marion, N. C., headed a workshop entitled "Introducing Tools to the Very Young Child." In the session, she demonstrated the use of various

Dr. Mae Johnson was one of the Workshop leaders at the Early Childhood Conference.
Photo by Melody Crawley

Senior Spotlight

Key Is Getting Involved

By JODI KERSEY

Janie Petty, an economics major from Buchanan, Virginia, is this week's Senior Spotlight. Janie, the former chairman of Student Union, feels that the real key to getting along and enjoying college is to get involved in some way because Longwood offers many diverse activities that includes something for everyone. Janie expressed the idea that she believes the experience gained through the interaction of involvement is just as much a learning experience as studying books. Plus, you will feel better as a person, contributing to the college in your own way. Other activities Janie has been a member of are: Orientation leader, legislative board, Faculty Recognition Committee and the Intercollegiate Council.

Janie feels that the economics department has excellent teachers. She was especially impressed with the Economics Seminar Class which helped to give practical experience in economics. She would like to see the department expand and include a greater emphasis on the consumer aspect of economics. Janie stated that everything in society is a result of the economy and students should be taught what to expect when out of college. Janie would like to take more classes after graduation to specialize in economics related to agriculture.

Longwood can come closest to the "ideal college," Janie stated, if you try to create the challenges for yourself. She added that Longwood has continued to change for the better and that even more rules that were applicable in the past need to be modified. Only then can the school grow, be able to compete, and to keep its standard of quality.

Janie plans to eventually move back to her home town of Buchanan. Her dream is to own a specialty-antique shop. She likes the idea of being her own boss and working with the people she has lived with most of her life.

CHI Vandalism

Dear Student Body,

A unique problem has arisen this year as to which CHI banners are for the student body to take and which ones are not. Only "dropped" banners (usually pillow case size), paper posters, CHI Christmas balls, and the Spring Weekend CHI hunt banner are for the general student body to take. (We do request that all paper signs remain until the event we are publicizing has taken place).

Large banners (those larger than pillow case size which are normally hung from a building or ceiling) are NOT for students to take. A lot of hard work goes into making and hanging these banners. They are to note a specific campus event and are the exclusive property of CHI. We would like to use them year after year.

Also banners given to a specific group or individuals are the property of those to whom they are given. Anyone taking these banners without permission of the owner may be punished for stealing. (An example would be whoever stole the Dance Marathon banner).

Another type of CHI emblem which is NOT to be taken is our new CHI flag which will fly from the flag pole. This, too, is to commend certain activities and is CHI's property.

CHI DOES NOT APPROVE OF VANDALISM, DESTRUCTION OF COLLEGE PROPERTY OR EXTREME AGGRESSIVE BEHAVIOR TO GET POSSESSION OF A CHI EMBLEM.

We are sorry for any misconceptions some of the student body may have had. We assumed too much in that the student body would automatically realize the above stated rules. We remind students that we will not "ransome" our property back, but will ask the college administration to act on our report of theft.

When in doubt, DON'T take a banner. We try to provide some banners each year for the students and we appreciate your support and enthusiasm for this tradition. Please be patient. Remember, the banners would not mean as much if there were an abundance of them. CHI is an organization which represents the spirit of the entire student body, therefore we would like to have banners for the college as a whole to enjoy.

With Blue and White Spirit,
CHI 1980

Letter To "Joanie"

Dear Jean d' Arc,

In response to this week's letter and to the minority of Blue-n-White, Green-n-White, Paint Battle, Christmas Elves, Songfest, Gang Green, Sally Red-n-White, SISTERHOOD and the so called "Long Longwood Traditions" that were once a part (not vital) of the college, I must say, I am concerned about your spirit being "shook."

I hope your friends will read to you this week's Rotunda, especially the heading "Victorious Again." You missed the new show of spirit by not being at Hampden-Sydney the night of March 7, 1980. Jean, the new spirit is LANCERS! We must like all old people, soldiers, teachers, professors, politicians, etc., "never die, just fade away" and expect someday for the future Longwood students to ask in wonderment, "Jean d' Arc, who was SHE?"

George P. Elliott
Alumni
Class of '56

P.S. Maybe you can get a room at the Alumni House.

Use Of Gym

Dear Editor,

I, as the vice-president of the Intramural Activities Association, feel it my duty to make you, as a student, aware of the possible future uses of the gymnasium facility. Between the months of October and March, the new gym could possibly be reserved for use by the intercollegiate athletic teams between the hours of 4-10. This would leave the sole hour of 10-11 for you, as a student to use the gym for intramurals or just recreational purposes. Even though the IAA will still have access to the gym for their programs, we feel that the students, as well as the athletes are entitled to use this new facility. The hour of 10-11 is entirely too late to ask students to use the gym for whatever purposes they may choose.

I feel that this time period can be mutually shared between the intercollegiate athletic program and the intramurals. There are approximately 60 athletes involved in sports between October and March, as opposed to approximately 400 students who are involved in intramurals during these months. If the scheduling of the intercollegiate program cannot be flexible with us, we cannot stand by and agree to use the sole hour of 10-11 for our purposes. This new facility is a Health, Physical Education and Recreation building and not exclusively an athletic complex. Anyone interested in openly discussing this matter is invited to attend the IAA meeting to be held on Thursday, April at 6:30 p.m. in the IAA room of Lankford building. Your support would be highly appreciated. After all, the IAA is here for you, the student. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Susan Towler

Thanks

To the College Community,

Through my experience with The Rotunda and college affairs, I have come to appreciate and respect the work and help of three important ladies. The work they do is vital to the college, yet they receive only a rare tid bit of recognition for their efforts. Mrs. Barbara Stonikinis, Mrs. Betty Bryant, and Mrs. Pat Motley together, yet individually, make up the essential working core of our Public Affairs Office.

"Psychomotor Activities for Young Children" was presented by Dr. Eleanor Bobbitt.

The conference was offered as a one semester graduate credit to those interested. The College will hold its ninth annual Reading Institute on September 20. Dr. Dorothy Strickland, of Kean College, N. J., will be the keynote speaker on "Reading in the 1980's: Reflection and Renewal." Ms. Eileen Little, Educational Consultant, Coffeyville, Kansas, will be the second keynote speaker. Graduate credit will be offered here, also.

Your Turn

Their employers are the members of the college community, and their audience is the public. These ladies, and some assistants, devote their time and efforts to acknowledging, and compiling information on, all activities of that college community. All events, major and minor, throughout the twelve-month year, come in contact with the PAO; whether the need be for the organizational and photographic skills of Mrs. Stonikinis, the typesetting and layout skills of Mrs. Motley, or the writing ability, promo or coverage (usually both), of Mrs. Bryant.

These people earn their living by giving acknowledgement, recognition, and support to us, the college. They deserve and need the same from us.

The Rotunda editorial staff is grateful for the availability of help and material from the PAO in our times of need, even though in some times of chaos due credit is not found.

Speaking of chaos, I cannot neglect our appreciation for the extra aid we receive from Mr. Hoke Currie, Sports Information Director. The availability of his assistance is found in incredible abundance.

I can only say "Thank you" for what they all give to the college and the interested public.

Dave Gates

Campus Police Service

Dear Editor,

On Sunday, March 2, I had an out-of-town guest visiting me. Because of the freezing weather conditions, we discovered that his car needed a jump start. I called the campus police office twice, receiving no answer either time. Then I called the infirmary to see if they could tell me the whereabouts of the campus police. The nurse informed me that the campus police were VERY busy taking people to the hospital, and probably would not be able to help. Ironically, I had

(Continued on Page 4)

Photo by Linda Plascak

Child Abuse A Big Problem

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Two speakers from local state agencies came to campus March 11 to talk on the prevalent social problem of child abuse. A sharp rise in reported cases of child abuse has been recorded over the years.

Linda Farrell of the Prince Edward County Social Services Department spoke on "How to Recognize an Abused Child." She explained that a state law requires that professionals such as doctors, teachers, and social workers to report suspected child abuse cases.

An abused child will normally either be extremely withdrawn or extremely hyperactive, according to Ms. Farrell. Abused children may also have bruises on the fleshy part of his body, or bear marks from such objects as belt buckles, or round cigarette burns. Physically neglected children steal or beg food or come to school with improper attire or are ungroomed.

The Social Services Department case workers are required to investigate any complaints of child abuse, said Farrell. If there is sufficient evidence of abusive actions toward the child by the child's guardian, court action may be taken. Ms. Farrell says that only in cases of extreme danger will the child be removed from the home. The emphasis is to rehabilitate the abuser and keep the family together.

Mr. Gordon Ragland, a Welfare Services Specialist from the Lynchburg Regional Office of Social Services, spoke on "The Causes and Effects of Child Abuse." He opened his talk with a film which related how an abusive parent learned to deal with her problem through a group encounter session.

There are several reasons why parents might abuse their children. Parents who were abused as children will probably abuse their offspring. Mentally and physically handicapped children, who do not meet parental expectations, often are abused. Parents who are isolated from society or have no strong support systems are usually abusive. A supportive mate or friend can normally stem abusive actions.

There are several types of abuse: physical, emotional and neglect. Anyone suspecting a case of child abuse should contact their local Social Service office or dial the Virginia Toll Free Hotline number 1-800-552-7096. All reports are confidential.

March Is Social Work Month

By BRENDA BONNCELLI

With the entrance of March, snowy and wet, comes the entrance of Social Work month — no comparison really! Social Work month brings with it many interesting and exciting events. Because of the snow and busy schedules of a lot of social workers themselves, some of these planned activities may not occur until April. Never the less, they will still be interesting and enjoyable.

Are you interested in wearing a button or a new T-shirt? Well, look no further. The social work profession has solved your basic desire! Social work buttons are going (quickly, I might add) for 25 cents each, a cheap price for such artistic endeavors.

Interested in a T-shirt to put that new shiny button on? Well Pairt's has all colors and sizes with two social work designs to choose from.

This Thursday, March 20, will be the annual Spring Cabin Retreat. Hopefully it would not have to be postponed again due to rain (or Snow!) Sign up and pay your one dollar in Grace's office soon, because it can only hold 50 people! Hamburgers, hot dogs, beans, cold drinks, beer (naturally) and a terrific time (naturally) are all being offered.

Other events in the making are speakers, a career forum, a banquet and lots more. Watch for a meeting soon and if you want to help or have any ideas, be sure to come.

Enjoy the month; say "Hi!" to a social worker. Remember, this is their time!!!

Talented Blend

By REBECCA MILLER

The Rob Crosby Band played to a small but enthusiastic crowd at Saturday Night Alive. The Band, originally from Columbia, South Carolina, is made up of seven members: Rob Crosby, lead vocals and guitar; Margie McCrory, vocals; Steve White on piano; Carey Taylor, bass; Tommy Taglio, drums; Bobby Fowler, saxophone and flute; and Tim McKeever on percussion. Individually, each are very talented — together they blend beautifully. Overall their sound was mellow, though they did songs ranging from rock to country, and blues to jazz. Many of their songs were written by Rob Crosby, or other members of the band, but in addition they sang songs by such artists as The Beatles, Toni Mitchell, Stevie Wonder, and Billie Holiday.

The audience seemed to like the country rock numbers best, and they were accompanied by much hand-clapping and finger-snapping. By far, however, the most enjoyable facet of the concert was watching them together on stage. They obviously were enjoying themselves as much as the audience was enjoying listening to their music.

Musicale Planned

By TOM SULLIVAN

Phi Mu Alpha (the professional men's fraternity) and Sigma Alpha Iota (the honorary women's fraternity) are combining their efforts and talents to present a musicale for the enjoyment of the general public. Among the performances listed will be group singing by each fraternity, performances by individual soloists and appearances by the Jazz Ensemble and the Brass Choir (a new instrumental group). The Musicale will be held at the Wygal Music Building on March 20, 1980, at 8 p.m. The general public is invited and admission is free! All are encouraged to attend this well planned event.

SOIN

MIXER

Wednesday, March 20, 1980

8 p.m. at McIntosh

L.C. Students $1.50 Guests $2.50

Doors open 7:30 p.m.

IDS REQUIRED

'An Amazing Display Of Creativity'

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The annual exhibition of work by students at J. P. Wynne Campus School, currently on display in the Lancaster Library Gallery at the college, is an eminently fitting celebration of Youth Art Month.

The exhibit includes works by some 120 of the Campus School students, kindergarten through seventh grade. They demonstrate a startling depth of thought and an amazing display of creativity. The gallery is filled with exuberant color and a great variety of textures, shapes, and designs.

The most thought-provoking part of the exhibit is the "social comment" works by sixth and seventh graders, displayed in the hallway outside the gallery. Social comment is defined as "a type of art not intended to be pretty but which carries a message that will startle, even shock." The works are "combines," and include the use of photo transfer in the manner of the noted contemporary artist Robert Rauschenberg.

The students who created these works were participants in an art and advanced elective program at the Campus School. They held a panel discussion with community leaders concerning problems in this area. Each student studied a particular artist whose work involves social comment, such as Ben Shahn, Picasso, and Goya. They read newspapers and other materials and visited the Virginia Museum to see Robert Rauschenberg's exhibit.

The students then created their own social comment works, focusing on problems and conditions of modern life they see as important. The subjects they chose include prejudice, nuclear power, abortion, drugs and alcohol, inflation, violence and brutality, and cruelty to animals. Other works in the exhibit include: nature dolls, created from materials gathered in the woods and scraps of fabric, string, and leather; wire sculptures showing motion; clay masks, pots, animals, and people; op art designs; junk sculpture; wooden toys, some with moveable parts; glue prints and foil embossings; weavings; scrap wood sculptures; linoleum block prints; crayon engravings; wood slab masks painted with natural clays; and stuffed paper pillows by which first graders learned about designing for a round shape.

Visitors to the gallery can see the results of what Mrs. Jackie Wall, art director at the Campus School, calls "a sequential art program," with each grade level building on concepts and techniques learned in previous grades. Many of the art projects were correlated with studies in other areas, such as science and social studies.

EXHIBITION

Featuring Internationally Famous

POCKET BILLIARD & TRICK SHORT ARTIST "JACK WHITE"

WILL BE APPEARING
REC. AREA - LANKFORD
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2ND
12:30 PM & 3 PM

COFFEEHOUSE

Skip Gailos Jazz Quartet

THURSDAY, MARCH 20 - 8:00 PM
SNACK BAR

FREE FREE FREE FREE FREE FREE FREE FREE FREE

MOVIE MOVIE
THUR. - FRI. - SAT.
7:45 PM 8:00 PM 8:15 PM
S-UN PRESENTS

"Oh, God!"
...is it funny?

SPORTS

Through Hardfought Battles Lancers Return No. 4

Reprinted with Permission
From Richmond Times-Dispatch

By TOM HAUDRICOURT
Times-Dispatch Sports Writer

Longwood College, a team many said did not belong in the NCAA Division III final four, proved that it did last night. But after a wild finish, the Lancers were left with only that satisfaction and not a victory.

North Park, the twotime defending champion and No. 1 team in the country, needed a blocked shot by Viking reserve Keith French on the buzzer to hold off the upstart Lancers 57-55 in a semifinal contest at Augustana College. The win boosted the Vikings into the Championship game against Upsala, which toppled Wittenberg 67-63 in the first semifinal.

The Lancers were left with the consolation game, and the knowledge that they had North Park for the taking and let it slip away. Longwood, rated No. 12 in the last Division III poll, had two controversial walking calls in the last 39 seconds take away its changes for an upset victory. And North Park still needed that final block to win.

Longwood (28-2) was ahead 53-52 when Larry Meyer stole a rebound away from North Park's Jim Clausen with :49 left. The Lancers called timeout and went to a four-corners spread, only to have guard Shack Leonard whistled for a walking violation in the lane at :39.

French then hit an eight-footer at :27 to put the Vikings (27-3) up at 54-53. On the ensuing inbound pass, Leonard was called for traveling again and North Park, playing before a highly partisan crowd of 2,400, got the ball back.

Michael Thomas, who led the Chicago team with 20 points, hit two free throws at :13 to make it 56-53, but Longwood's Joe Remar cut it to 56-55 with a drive at :06. The Lancers called timeout with five seconds remaining, and Leonard was whistled for holding Thomas before the ball was put in play.

Thomas hit the first foul shot, but the second one rebounded long and Meyer swatted it out to Remar at midcourt. Remar raced in for what looked like the tying layup, but French sailed over and rejected it just as the buzzer sounded.

"The two walks were extremely questionable," said Longwood coach Ron Bash. "The block at the end was good, but the two walks were highly questionable. I think the entire crowd saw that. There were so many obvious calls to make."

The North Park fans poured on the court after the game and mobbed the Vikings as if they had just won the championship. And coach Dan McCarrell was more than a little bit relieved. "I feel very happy and a little lucky," he said. "We expected it to be a tough game and it came down to a block at the buzzer."

The Vikings did not appear in need of final heroics while taking an early 42-36 lead in the second half. But the Lancers, ignoring the screaming crowd and a huge height disadvantage, did not fold up.

Longwood came back to the game at 45-45 and fouled out North Park's 6-10 All-America center Michael Harper with 6:56 left. Harper, averaging 21.7 points a game, scored only five and was never a factor in the game.

The Lancers hung close and ran several minutes off the clock with a delay offense. A flurry of turnovers stopped either team from pulling away, but Thomas Alston's two foul shots put the Lancers up 53-52 with 1:47 left and set up the final, frantic seconds.

"People know who Longwood is now," said Bash. "Playing a dynasty in a hostile environment, I thought the kids stood up well."

The Lancers also refused to fold in the first half after falling behind 8-2 and 10-6. Longwood made the Vikings play at their pace — which was considerably slower than North Park preferred.

Ron Orr's three-point play with 11:17 left gave the Lancers their first tie since 2-2 at 14:14. From that point, the Vikings were unable to shake free despite getting several shots at the basket on many occasions.

Remar's free throws with 4:27 showing gave Longwood its first lead at 24-23 and the Lancers led for the last time in the half at 26-25. The Vikings, with French hitting a three-point play, then reeled off the next five points to go up 30-26.

Longwood decided to hold the ball with a little over a minute left before intermission. Leonard then drove the lane and was fouled just before the buzzer. He hit both free throws and the Lancers retreated to the locker room very much in the game, trailing 30-28.

Saturday night's consolation match up with Wittenberg of Springfield, Ohio, brought another disappointing yet hard-fought loss for the Lancers.

The Lancers led 30-24 at halftime but fell into trouble in the second half. With 37 seconds left in the game Tee Alston tied it up with the score of 45-45.

Wittenberg hit a layup with nine seconds left, only causing Joe Remar to score on a 20-footer with one second left to force the overtime.

The final score was 48-47.

Gymnasts Place Second At Regionals

By LISA SPENCER

Longwood gymnasts traveled to Radford University this weekend seeded first for the Regional Championships. Unfortunately, William and Mary proved superior again — as they had in the earlier State Championships. Longwood did finish second in the team standings with 126.85 points. William and Mary had 129.3, and Radford was third with 121.65.

Sharon Pillow and Kathy Ideison came through for Longwood again. Sharon won the all-around competition with an excellent score of 33.4. She also took first place in vaulting (8.95) and second place on the balance beam (8.4). Kathy was fourth in all-around with a very close score of 32.65. Her score of 8.05 was good enough to earn her second

Photo by Jui Morton

Baseball Season Underway:

Week's Record 3-3

An ambitious 43-game schedule, which includes eight contests with Division I foes, presents a tremendous challenge for Longwood's young baseball team as the season got underway last week.

In Monday's action, the Lancers dropped two games to Richmond 10-0, 15-0. However, Tuesday, they made a comeback beating rival Hampden-Sydney College, 11-5.

In the H-SC game, Barry Gordon hit two home runs and had five RBI's. The Lancers' top pitcher David Mitchell pitched nine innings with seven hits.

Mitchell, having just recovered from a shoulder separation, suffered several weeks ago, was the winning pitcher.

Wednesday the Lancers won in a home game with Washington and Lee University, 10-3. Richard Vault was the winning pitcher in this game. Doug Toombs and Price Beville both had three hits.

In final action last week, the Lancers lost to King College, Saturday, 9-8 and came back to beat them 6-3. Doug Toombs had five hits in this game including a home run and two doubles. Barry Gordon drove in five runs.

Richard Vault was the winning pitcher, staying in the whole game with a six-hitter. He now has a 2-0 record.

Lancer coach Buddy Bolding, who guided Longwood to a 16-12 mark last season in his first year at the helm, approaches the upcoming campaign with guarded optimism.

"We've got a solid team with an infield and bench which are much stronger than last season," said Bolding. "This year, however, is a big step for us in terms of the schedule."

"I guess most people would call me an optimist," he continued, "but I feel we have the potential to win 20 or maybe 25 games."

Considering how strong the opposition will be, we would be doing well to win that many games."

This week's action includes today at St. Paul's, and Thursday at home against N. C. Methodist.

Your Turn Continued

seen a campus police officer less than an hour earlier at McDonald's on the important mission of returning a flag. When did McDonald's turn into an emergency room? Couldn't the flag have been returned another day when weather conditions were improved?

After much frantic searching, I finally found someone with jumper cables. While walking to get the cables, I noticed a campus police car (the only one in use that day) parked at Lankford. I suppose he was on an emergency call, since they were so busy transporting people to the hospital. I pleasantly asked him if he could help jump start a car. He asked whether the car had a Longwood College Parking sticker on it. It did not, since my friend does not go to LC. The campus police then said that he was sorry, but he could not help unless the car had a sticker. If the car had a sticker, he assured me he would help. Now, given a similar situation in any town, how many policemen would ask a person who needed help whether or not that person was a resident of that particular community? If a student were lying hurt somewhere would campus police refuse to take them to the hospital unless a Longwood ID was shown?

After two unsuccessful attempts to start the car, (this was over an hour later) who should come to the rescue? No, not our campus police, but some parents of Longwood students. I wonder how those parents felt when they discovered they were assisting students who HAD

BEEN REFUSED HELP by the campus police.

This is not the first bad incident that I have had with campus police. Last year I called campus police to take me to the train station more than 30 minutes before my train was to leave. Thirty minutes later, campus police arrived to pick me up. I missed the train.

Another time I had some difficulty with my car. (by the way it had a valid Longwood College Parking sticker on it). The car had been moved from its parking space and had obviously been tampered with. The campus police laughed as I told them my story and asked me how much I had had to drink when I parked the car. Very professional!!

Another time, I rode the train back to school because it had snowed. About ten of us at the train station called campus police to get a ride back to LC. After unsuccessful attempts to get in touch with campus police (no one answered the phone), another girl and I started walking. By chance a campus police drove by us. After flagging him down and asking him to take us to our dorm, we were astonished when he REFUSED! With our arms overloaded with suitcases and books and snow pouring down he told us we had not gone by the policy of calling first.

I know that the campus police have rules, but their actions towards us on March 2 were ridiculous and absurd. I have lost faith in a police force that cannot take time to help a student visiting Longwood. Campus

Police are supposedly here for our own good, yet when a need arises they have a various rule or policy which prevents them from helping. I understand the need for rules and regulations, but I think situations such as these could have been tortured by his supervisor.

I wonder if the campus police would have refused to help a parent of a LC student (without of course a valid Longwood College parking permit). I am sure the campus police would not have hesitated to help. It seems that those out-of-town student friends of LC students are the only ones excluded from the generosity of the campus police.

Sincerely,
Teri Simmons

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, APRIL 8, 1980

NO. 21

Week Honors Novelist And Artist

Dos Passos Prize Awarded To Graham Greene

Graham Greene was today awarded the John Dos Passos Prize in ceremonies held at Longwood College, where the new literary award was established this year.

The 76-year-old English novelist won out over four other distinguished nominees: American writers John Updike, Norman Mailer, and Harry Crews, and Jamaican poet Derek Walcott.

The prize citation read in part: "In the course of a distinguished career spanning more than half a century, (he has led readers) through ambiguous terrains of terror and redemption...in a meticulous prose that marks its author as one of the major writers of the English language."

"A Roman Catholic who often finds his themes in the travails of his faith, Greene scorns tracts; and those who search his pages for official piety learn to look elsewhere. But the many who remain are guided through ambiguous terrains of terror and redemption. In the company of richly-figured characters whose dooms are always rendered in a meticulous prose that marks its author as one of the major writers of the English language in his, or our, or any, day."

Greene whose health did not permit him to travel from his home in France for the occasion, wrote in his letter of acceptance: "When I was a young writer in the early thirties John Dos Passos represented for me the contemporary American novel...I am very proud that you have chosen me as the first winner of the Dos Passos Prize."

Longwood is host for a week of events in connection with the award, including poetry and fiction readings by Mark Strand and Tim O'Brien, both members of the prize jury for 1980.

EVENTS FOR THE WEEK ARE:

SIMKINS LECTURES

The Francis Butler Simkins Lecture Series will bring two distinguished speakers to campus on April 8 and 10.

Dr. Virginia Spencer Carr, noted author and professor of English at Columbus College (Ga.), will speak on Tuesday, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. in Wygal Auditorium. Her topic will be "John Dos Passos: Writer, Artist, Historian."

Dr. Carr is the author of The Lonely Hunter: A Biography of Carson McCullers, which won the Francis Butler Simkins Prize last year as the best first book in Southern history and was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize, National Book Award, and National Critics Circle Award. The biography was selected as "Editor's Choice" for six consecutive weeks by the New York Times Book Review.

In addition to her teaching and writing careers, Dr. Carr has lectured widely over the past four years and has taught or participated in a number of writers workshops and professional conferences throughout the country. She is currently writing a biography of John Dos Passos.

The second Francis Butler Simkins Lecture will be given by Dr. Eric Hutchinson, professor of chemistry at Stanford University in California. Dr. Hutchinson will discuss "Calligraphy and Its Influence on the Printed Book" on Thursday evening, April 10, at 7:30 in Wygal Auditorium.

Dr. Hutchinson has been a member of the Stanford University faculty since 1949. A native of England and educated at Cambridge, Dr. Hutchinson has many interests, including the study of the involvement of government in the support of basic and applied research and of the social, political, and economic consequences of government involvement in science and technology.

His interest in calligraphy (decorative penmanship) began when he was a school boy in England. He now teaches a class in calligraphy at Stanford and recently calligraphed an English translation of the Magna Carta.

The Francis Butler Simkins Lecture Series honors the memory of an eminent scholar and beloved teacher. Dr. Simkins taught history at Longwood for 38 years until his death in 1966. A prolific writer, Dr. Simkins gained an international reputation as one of the most profound and perceptive students of the social, political, and religious history of the South.

MARK STRAND

Mark Strand established a reputation as a major American poet with three books published in the 1960's—Sleeping With One Eye Open, Reasons for Moving, and Darker. Also prominent as translator and anthologist, he has since added—to other books of his own poetry—an influential anthology of contemporary American poets, and, with Charles Simic, Another Republic, in which he introduced to this country a number of important European and South American writers.

Mark Strand was born on Prince Edward Island in 1934. He is a graduate of Antioch College, Yale, and the University of Iowa, and he has been a Fulbright scholar in Italy and Brazil. In 1980 he was awarded a fellowship by the Academy of American Poets, and this year will also see the publication of his Selected Poems. He now teaches at Wesleyan University and next year will teach at Harvard. His work in progress includes a book of stories, scheduled for publication in 1981. A frequent contributor to The New Yorker and other magazines, he was a member of the Johns Dos Passos Prize jury for 1980.

Mark Strand last read at Longwood in 1976. He will be reading on Thursday afternoon at 1 p.m. in the ABC Rooms.

W. C. WOODS

William Crawford Woods joined the faculty of English and philosophy at Longwood in 1976, after a number of years as a freelance writer and cultural affairs reporter for The Washington Post. A graduate of the Writing Seminars at Johns Hopkins University, Woods has published fiction and critical journalism in a number of national magazines. His novel, The Killing Zone, earned fellowships from the Bread Loaf Writers Conference, the MacDowell Colony, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

During the early 70's, he was TV critic for The New Republic, and a founding editor of two Washington-based journals of arts and politics. He also worked briefly as a Hollywood screenwriter after Army Service in Japan in the later 60's as a broadcast journalist at Far East Network.

(Continued on Page 2)

Country Star Is Visiting Artist

By MELODY CRAWLEY

Country music superstar Roy Clark will visit Longwood's campus, April 14. Clark, a native of this area, will be part of a special program planned to feature him as a "Visiting Artist in Music."

Clark's visit on Monday will mainly be to develop his role as Visiting Artist. This will probably include several visits to Longwood each year to work with students in music.

Events of the day include a luncheon for Clark with various students, faculty, and administration. He will also meet informally with the music majors. In the afternoon, he will proceed to nearby Southside Community Hospital where he will participate in the ribbon cutting for the new hospital wing. The wing will be known as the Roy Clark Emergency Treatment Center. Farmville Mayor Dave Crute has declared Monday Roy Clark Day.

Clark is well known for his 11-year co-hosting of the television series, Hee Haw, however he is a man of many talents. He is a master musician predominately on the guitar, 12-string acoustic, banjo, and fiddle.

He was born in Meherrin, Virginia, a mere 20 miles from Longwood's campus. His musical career began at age 16 when he won the National Banjo Championship. Since then, his rise to superstardom has taken him around the world appearing on stages in the USSR, Europe and throughout the United States, including long-term engagements in Las Vegas, Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Besides his musical talent, Clark is a noted comedian who writes all his own material. He has been honored by the Country Music Association as Comedian of the Year.

Clark's career has followed the spread of popularity of country music beyond its traditional confines in the rural South. He has become a major force in all of entertainment. In January, the Virginia General Assembly declared January 18, 1980 as Roy Clark Day in Virginia "in appreciation of a native son."

John Dos Passos is a novelist, playwright, poet, historian, and artist of worldwide significance. Dos Passos was a prominent figure in the Lost Generation of the writers of the 1920's and is best known for his trilogy U.S.A. He has been acclaimed "the greatest of all American novelists."

The Mousetrap Opens This Week

The Department of Dramatic Arts and Longwood Players will present their last play of the year this week. April 9-12 will bring Agatha Christie's play, The Mousetrap to Jarman stage.

Detective Sergeant Trotter, played by Randy Cook, investigates a mysterious murder that takes place in a small lodging house in England. The lodge is run by a young couple, Mollie and Giles Ralston, played by Melanie Hudnell and Dale Roller.

Their guests consist of Christopher Wren, an anemic young man played by Chris Conner; Mrs. Boyle, a melancholy and critical woman portrayed by Vicky Mann; a retired military man, Major Metcalf, played by Jeff Sledjeski; Mr. Paravicini, a Frenchman played by Frank Creasy; and Miss Casewell, a decisive woman, portrayed by Lisa Hughes.

An immense blizzard forces these guests to be isolated at the inn. Since no one can enter or leave because of the blizzard, it seems that the murderer is one of the members of the group.

Agatha Christie was certainly one of the most distinguished mystery writers of all times. She was also astonishingly prolific, having written some 60 novels, nearly 200 short stories, and nine full-length plays. But of all her works, unquestionably the most successful is The Mousetrap, which opened in London way back in 1952 and is still running.

Dr. Patton Lockwood is serving as the director of the play. Linda Wheeler is assistant-director and Richard Gamble is the technical director.

The players have worked extremely hard to make this production good. Every aspect of the play's mood is one of mystery right down to the set which has a rustic cabin look.

All lovers of danger and excitement should want to come see this chilling mystery play and solve it right along with Detective Trotter.

Longwood students are admitted free with student ID's. General admission is $3.

Detective Trotter (Randy Cook) interrogates lodge owner, Giles Ralston (Dale Roller) in practice for the production of The Mousetrap.

Colloquium Scheduled

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The final Faculty Colloquium Lecture for this academic year will be a discussion of modern political theory, particularly the views of the German philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche.

The lecture will be given by Dr. William R. Harbour, assistant professor of government, on Wednesday evening, April 9, at 7:30 in Wygal Auditorium.

Dr. Harbour states that many of the basic issues confronting modern political philosophy can be best understood by examining the thinking of Nietzsche. "What makes his thinking so interesting and significant," Dr. Harbour states, "is that an analysis of it reveals a rejection of most major political doctrines of the last two centuries."

Nietzsche repudiated democracy, scorned the masses and hated socialism, and attacked religion. He advocated "radical individualism" and talked of the "transvaluation of all values."

Dr. Harbour joined the Longwood faculty in 1976. He holds the B. A. degree from the University of Arizona, and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University.

—Your Turn—

Prof. Writes From Romania

Dear Editor,

From the other side of the planet I would like to send by warmest greetings to all my colleagues on the faculty, to the staff and administration, and most especially to all my students at Longwood. I have done my best to inform as many people as possible here in the Socialist Republic of Romania that the Longwood Lancers were 25-1 the last I heard. One of the highlights of the year for me was sharing several issues of The Rotunda with my students at the University of Bucharest. You couldn't imagine how many questions they had! They even made me explain all the advertisements. So you can tell your advertisers that you have an international audience, and charge them more.

I thought you'd like to know that the average course load for a student here is thirty semester hours. Almost all of my students are fluent in four languages. In fact, sixty-five languages are taught at the university. And like students everywhere, the folks here are concerned about job prospects.

But my purpose here is not to report but to salute. And to tell the Longwood community how much it is missed by one who takes pride in being a remote part of it. The thought of being together again one day with all of you warms this cold, hard, long winter. La revedere.

Sincerely,

Quentin Vest
Fulbright Professor of American Literature
University of Bucharest

P.S. — Does Perini Pizza deliver to South Bucharest?

PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY 12:45 LOWER DINING HALL

The following questions are for the Press Conference:

1. Is it true that the Wrestling Team needs only a .5 grade average to participate? (Sharon Harrup)
2. Is the Therapeutic Recreation Program accredited yet? If not, why not? (Sharon Harrup)
3. Is it true that there are more Therapeutic Recreation majors than Physical Education? If so, why is the imbalance of 27 P.E. educators to three T.R. majors still in existence? (Sharon Harrup)
4. Why were female and male athletes allowed to register early? (Rennie Bruno)
5. Where does the $5.00 for parking tickets go? (Susan Gray)
6. Why didn't the Student Liaison Committee meet with the Board of Visitors when they were scheduled for a meeting? (Student Liaison Committee members)
7. Why does the administration continue to take lightly the fact that Judicial Board is overloaded with narcotic cases? (Keith Moore)
8. Are there any other plans for facilities for the handicapped? (besides the walkway and ramp in Stevens) (Debbie Northern)

College Council Discusses Role

By MELODY CRAWLEY

First on the agenda for the meeting of the Longwood College Council, April 3, was a discussion of the role and composition of the council. Dr. Willett described to the council that its major role was one of an advisory capacity to look at the general role of the college.

The council deals with broad issues such as planning documents of admissions, enrollment, and capitol outlay.

Suggestions for additional members to the Council included Student Union Chairman, Judicial Board Chairman, Freshman Class President (who is now only an invited participant), and representatives from the Classified Employees.

Other suggestions concerning the council included that there be more publicity on upcoming meetings so students would have time to give their concerns to the student leaders and that the meetings be open.

President Willett reported that 1980-81 fees would increase slightly beyond the previously stated $200 (6.9 per cent). He added that of the colleges already announcing increases James Madison University has been the lowest with $270. Increases should be finalized by the middle of this week.

The group was given the response analysis to the Institutional Priority Survey. This survey list taken from faculty, classified employees, and administrative responses was headed by requests for equipment. Faculty travel and salaries numbered two and three with improvement of the physical appearance to campus, residence halls, and classrooms appearing as number four. There were 15 survey items and a total of 82 people responded.

STUDENT AUXILIARY POLICE CORPS

When the College opens in the Fall, a new group of student workers will be visible on the campus. Plans are being finalized to employ twelve students to assist in various auxiliary services on campus at such events as at sports events, concerts, routine monitoring of facilities, and so forth.

Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office. All applicants will have to complete regular financial aid forms as well as the specific application for the position. Any undergraduate is eligible to apply.

Dos Passos Award

(Continued from Page 1)

Woods was born in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1944. He studied at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill before graduating in philosophy from George Washington University. He was co-ordinator of activities for the John Dos Passos Prize for 1980.

W.C. Woods last read at Longwood in 1977. He will be reading from Patch Wayfield's Nation, a book of fiction in progress, on Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the ABC Rooms.

TIM O'BRIEN

Drafted into the Army in 1968, novelist Tim O'Brien served as an infantryman in Vietnam—an experience he explored in his critically acclaimed memoir, If I Die in a Combat Zone. An impressive first novel, Northern Lights, followed. But O'Brien truly emerged as one of the important American novelists of his generation with Going After Cacciato, several of whose chapters won O. Henry and Best American Short Story awards in their magazine publication even before the novel as a whole was named winner of the National Book Award for fiction in 1979.

Tim O'Brien was born in Austin, Minn. in 1946. He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Macalaster College and has done graduate study in government at Harvard. Once a national news reporter for The Washington Post and an editor of the literary magazine Ploughshares, O'Brien is a frequent contributor of fiction and journalism to such magazines as Esquire, The Atlantic Monthly, and Shenandoah. He was a member of the John Dos Passos Prize jury for 1980.

Tim O'Brien will give his first reading at Longwood—from The Nuclear Age, a novel in progress—on Friday night at 8 p.m. in Wygal Auditorium.

Spring Weekend Approaching

By JERRY RICHMAN

Spring Weekend is approaching Longwood's campus once again. It is the last of the three big weekends on Longwood's campus each year. The weekend provides prospective students and their parents with an overall view of the college as well as providing the students of Longwood with a chance to break loose and enjoy themselves before settling down to the last few weeks of class and the reality of exams. The Student Union and the Admissions Office are working hard to present an exciting and fun-filled weekend.

The events for the weekend include baseball and lacrosse games on Friday and Saturday. All through Saturday morning and afternoon, the Music Department's Concert Band, Jazz Ensemble, and Concert Choir will be giving shows. The 3rd Annual Longwood Minithon Run, from Hampden-Sydney to Longwood College, will be run and the Gymnastics Team will also hold an exhibition on Saturday.

Student Union will start off the Southern Hospitality

By JERRY RICHMAN

Spring Weekend holds a lot in store for the students of Longwood, and the Outdoor Picnic scheduled for Saturday, April 12 is definitely a treat. Country-fried chicken and the atmosphere of a school picnic make for a fun-filled afternoon. To top all that off, S-UN will add the talents of Charlie Mason and Dale Roller, both of whom are music majors here at Longwood. Charlie and Dale, combined with the talents of the rest of their band, "SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY," have provided entertainment at Spring Weekend for the past four years. Their blue grass and country music style has always brought Longwood students to their feet and sent them dancing across the Library Mall. We're sure that they will do the same again. The picnic begins at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday behind the Library. So come on out for just a little "SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY."

weekend on Thursday, April 10 with the LARRY MANGUM TRIO in the Sound Gallery. Friday, April 11 will see the return of the FAT AMMON'S BAND for a Mixer in the Downstairs Dining Hall. Saturday, April 12 is filled with S-UN events. At 9:30 a.m., a Scavenger Hunt will begin behind Lankford Building. Teams for the Scavenger Hunt can be organized to represent sororities, fraternities, residence halls, or other organizations on campus. If your organization has not received an entry blank and you would like to enter, the blanks may be picked up in the S-UN Office and must be returned no later than 5:00 p.m. Friday, April 11. Charlie Mason and Dale Roller will be performing with their band, SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY, at the Outdoor Picnic on Saturday afternoon. At 3:30 p.m. the Allstars from the S-UN Open Mike programs will perform behind Lankford Building. That evening will see SILVERSPRING in the Downstairs Dining Hall for a Saturday Night Alive performance. Sunday afternoon, the P.C. PICKERS will return for an Outdoor Concert at 2:00 p.m. on Lankford Mall.

This year's Spring Weekend is about to come together and S-UN is looking forward to its success. We hope that YOU will enjoy Stay on campus and enjoy this week end too.

SILVERSPRING

Incredible Show Of Rock And Roll

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

Washington's known workaholic band "SILVERSPRING" will be Saturday Night Alive's Spring Weekend band on April 12. This five member band consisting of Sal DeRaffele — bass, vocals; John Fritz-Spiro — vocals, guitar, harmonica; Josh Rossy — vocals, guitar; Phil Shimmel — drums, vocals; and Nat Winer — violin, vocals, percussion, will deliver an engaging, entertaining show.

SILVERSPRING does original tunes and add in known songs from — The Band, Lynyrd

Skynyrd, Commander Cody — "One of These Nights," Lovin Spoonful — "Summer in the City" along with The Charlie Daniels Band and The Beatles. The strength of the band is that their original tunes get as big an audience response as their more immediately recognizable covers. Their classy blend of American musical forms: rock, swing, r&b, jump blues, boogie woogie and beyond make them an established musical force. The stage they play on is anything but boring. Busy, but not flashy. Kinetic energy in place of artificial visual effects. "SILVERSPRING can deliver one fine evening of rock and roll." Jan Raabe, their manager, says, "We get an audience charged up. In fact, we bend over backwards to get an audience charged up." The result of this five member band is a successful, memorable show.

So, if you're out for some really good rock & roll, come see "SILVERSPRING" — guaranteed to keep you rockin' & rollin even when the concert is over. Place: L.D.H., L.C., $1.50 w. I.D.

FAT AMMON'S BAND
 FRIDAY, APRIL 12, 1980
 9 PM 1 AM PD HALL
 LC $2.00 GUEST $3.50
 I.D. $ REQUIRED

Magnum Force

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

The 1980 Spring Weekend opens up Thursday, April 10 with the Larry Mangum Trio. The Larry Mangum Trio brings country to jazz with rhythm and blues influences. Larry Mangum, from the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, plays an acoustic guitar and has a rich, resonant voice that his audiences universally relate to.

The Trio performs original songs, but also sings Van Morrison's—"Wild Night; Randy Newman's "Guilty;" Sea Level's "Rain in Spain;" and Billy Joel's "Root Beer Rag." They also do songs from John Prine, Rod Stewart and Jackson Brown. An addition to their style of performing is that each member takes two or three solo spots, a rarity for any performing band, and round that off with perfect four-part harmony.

Larry released a 45 rpm with "I Don't Want to Flight" and "In Like Flynn," on a flip side. One of their audiences favorite songs is a tribute to fast-food restaurants, to a newly deserted lover called "Breakfast at McDonald's." In 1978, Larry signed a contract that took his songs to Nashville, then received a call from the managers of Nashville's performers, Barbara Mandrell and Ronnie Milsap, saying that they were trying to get some of his songs published by their clients.

The Sound Gallery concert will be held in the Red-White-Green rooms in Lankford at 8:30 p.m. L.C.—$7.50 w ID Come and hear them and Support Spring Weekend.

Putnam County Pickers Are Back

Sunday, April 13, will be an exciting day. THE PUTNAM COUNTY PICKERS will be playing on Lankford Mall at 2 p.m. Their show will blow your ears with, are you ready, here goes — country, rock, ballads, blues, jazz, country-swing and electric rock and roll — all in one show. Their music is original with sharp "crisp vocals and harmonies, electric lead, a tight rhythm section and the bright sound of mandolin, fiddle and acoustic guitars."

The Pickers have shared billing with: Atlanta Rhythm Section, Doug Kershaw, Freddy Fender, Billy "Crash" Craddock and Doc Watson plus many others. They have played at a variety of conventions, toured accompanied by the Charleston Symphony Orchestra and a Presidential Command Performance.

The Pickers burst out their enthusiasm that spreads quickly through to everyone in the audience. They have a "highly entertaining stage presence" that provides for "snappy stage patterns with slickly performed compositions." The Pickers will bring forth vinyl endearing qualities that make them so popular of all their live performances. Since it will be Sunday and exams will be starting soon, treat yourself to some good exciting PCP as a SUCCESSFUL Spring Weekend comes to an end.

"Spring Weekend" 1980

April 10-13

Saturday Schedule

9:30 a.m.	Scavenger Hunt — Lankford Mall	$1 per team
10:00 a.m.	Baseball — double header — LC vs. Bristol Farmville Elementary Field	Free
10:00 a.m.	Third Annual Longwood Minithon Beginning at Hampden-Sydney College	$3 entry fee
10:00 a.m.	Longwood Concert Band — Lankford Mall	Free
11:00 a.m.	Scavenger Hunt Ends — Lankford Mall
11:30 a.m.	Minithon Run ends (time approx.) High Street at Lancaster Library
11:30 a.m.	Outdoor Picnic with "Southern Hospitality"	LC Free — Guest $3.25
1:30 p.m.	East Wheeler Mall
12:30 p.m.	Gymnastics Exhibition East Wheeler Mall	Free
2:00 p.m.	Lacrosse — LC vs. Bridgewater 1st Avenue Field	Free
2:00 p.m.	Longwood Jazz Ensemble — Lankford Mall	Free
3:00 p.m.	Longwood Camerata Singers Wygal Building	Free
3:30 p.m.	Student Union Open Mike "Allstars" Lankford Mall	Free
8:30 p.m.	Saturday Night Alive — "SilverSpring" Downstairs Dining Hall	LC $1.50 Guest $2.50

1

2
3
4
5

Relive Art History

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The third annual Symposium for Art Historians in Virginia Colleges and Universities is scheduled for Friday, April 18, beginning at 9 a.m. in the Bedford Building.

The symposium program will include six presentations, illustrated with slides, on topics ranging from techniques of vase painting in the fifth century B.C. to the architecture of the city of Harrisonburg. All of the sessions of the symposium are open to the public at no charge.

James Phillips, of Virginia Commonwealth University, will open the symposium with a presentation entitled "An Art Historical Interpretation of a Twelfth Century Roman." Dr. Phillips' examination of the medieval French metrical narrative, the Eneid, shows that the anonymous Anglo-Norman author of the work "had undoubtedly been in Italy or Sicily, as his descriptions are based upon the Romanesque styles of those areas."

At 10:20 a.m., Jerri Pike-Brooklyn, from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, will speak on "Concurrent Techniques and Styles in Attic Vase Painting c. 530-480 B.C.: Some Observations on the Cultural Functions of the Survival of Black-Figure." Her presentation explores the survival of the older black-figure technique, even though red-figure provided new technical freedom, and details some of the specific objects which were traditionally decorated in black-figure.

Martha B. Caldwell, of James Madison University, will speak at 10:55 a.m. on "The Architecture of Harrisonburg, Virginia." Her paper deals with the buildings designed by T.J. Collins, of Staunton, and Alfred Bossom, of New York and London.

At 11:30 a.m., Gerard Maurice Doyon, of Washington & Lee University, will speak on "Mr. Jefferson's Favorite Hotel in Paris." His presentation, based on research done in Paris in 1979 under a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, deals with l'Hotel de Salm, a wealthy gentleman's town house built on the west bank of the Seine c. 1786. Thomas Jefferson, while visiting in Paris, was "violently smitten" with this building and it influenced his remodeling of Monticello.

The afternoon session will begin at 1:45 with a presentation by Felicia Lewandowski, of Radford University. Her paper, entitled "Unlike Humpty-Dumpty, Some Things Do Go Together Again," deals with her discovery of a painting by Antonio Balestra which had been disassembled and "tucked away" in the bedroom of a parish priest in Vicenza, Italy. She will trace the history of the painting and will show slides illustrating the step by step restoration of the canvas.

The final presentation, "Beyond Liturgy: The Rothko Chapel," will be given by Robert F. Porter, of VPI&SU, at 2:20 p.m. He will discuss various interpretations of the work of the contemporary artist Mark Rothko and the Rothko Chapel, in Houston, which is "dedicated to that responsible ecumenicism which recognizes the universality of human potential."

The symposium will conclude with a discussion period focusing on the interests and concerns of art historians throughout the state.

Arrangements for the annual symposium are coordinated by Dr. Elisabeth L. Flynn, art historian at Longwood. The event is sponsored by the Longwood Fine Arts Center and the department of art.

Also coming up:

Bedford Gallery-Longwood

Jeff Davis & James Wall — from Scott-McKennis Fine Art — Richmond April 7-30

Showcase Gallery-Lankford Reading Rooms Pottery Extravaganza

Becky Webb Spring Weekend April 12 at Lankford

Junior Art Majors' Exhibit Sherron Flynn-Sculpture April 8-May 1 Bedford Building-First Floor

Lancaster Library Gallery April 3-25

OFFICE OF CAREER PLANNING AND PLACEMENT

Job Search Seminars

April 10, 12:45 in Room 120 West Ruffner — "Job Search Strategies."

April 15, 3:00 in the Placement Office — "Writing Resumes."

April 17, 12:45 in Hiner Building Studio B — Video Tape "Interview Game."

April 17, 3:30 in Hiner Building Studio B — Video Tape — Ellen Perry's "Guerrilla Tactics in the Job Market."

Recruiters on Campus (Interviews in the Placement Office) April

8 — Lancaster County Schools, Covington Public Schools

9 — Rockbridge County Schools

10 — Halifax County Schools, Rappahannock County Schools, Fluvanna County Schools,

Quantico Dependents School

11 — Blue Cross of Southwestern Virginia,

Rockingham County Schools

14 — Cumberland County Schools

15 — Loudoun County Schools, Brunswick County Schools, Amherst County Schools, Charlottesville Public Schools

16 — Norfolk Public Schools, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

17 — Newport News Public Schools, Wicomico County Schools-Maryland, Henry County Schools, Virginia National Bank

18 — Virginia Beach Public Schools, Franklin County Schools

21 — Culpeper County Schools, Patrick County Schools, Gloucester County Schools, Clifton Forge

SCHEDULE OF EXAMINATIONS Second Semester, 1979-80 Session

Examination Day	Morning 9:00-12:00	Afternoon 2:00-5:00	Evening 7:00-10:00
Friday May 2	English 101 (All Sections and 4:00 Monday)	8:00 Tuesday	12:00 Monday or *10:50 Tuesday
Saturday May 3	8:00 Monday	1:30 Monday	4:50 Tuesday or 9:00 Monday
Monday May 5	2:30 Monday	11:00 Monday	2:00 Tuesday or 10:00 Monday
Tuesday May 6	3:25 Tuesday	9:25 Tuesday	11:00 Monday or 2:30 Monday
Wednesday May 7	9:00 Monday	10:00 Monday	9:25 Tuesday or 3:25 Tuesday
Thursday May 8	10:50 Tuesday	4:50 Tuesday

Tom Chapin

Captivates Audience

By LISAPENCER

Performing at the Coffeehouse Saturday night, Tom Chapin mixed originality with conventionality and the result was super. Tom is a performer with a good number of credits under his belt. He has appeared in concert in many different cities, always with excellent reviews, he had a TV show that ran for five years, and has appeared on various other TV shows. These experiences have definitely paid off because his performance here at Longwood was truly excellent.

Tom plays the guitar and occasionally the six-string banjo. With these he produces all types of music from Irish ballads to the songs from his old television show.

Making his fourth appearance on Longwood's campus, Tom, as usual, captivated everyone in attendance. His height of six-foot-five, blue eyes, sense of humor and inspiring musical talent could only lead to words of praise from the audience. "Terrific," "great," and "fantastic!" were heard from those attending both concerts on Saturday night.

S-UN Hosts Meeting

By JERRY A. RICHMAN

The Virginia Unit of the National Entertainment and Campus Activities Association (NECAA) held a state wide meeting at Longwood College, Saturday, April 5. The meeting was the first of its kind and was organized by State Unit Coordinator, I.B. Dent and various members of Longwood's Student Union Staff. The meeting held for NECAA affiliated colleges was attended by student programming staff members and advisors from Ferrum College, University of Virginia, Lynchburg College, University of Richmond, and James Madison University, as well as Longwood College.

Dr. Mary A. Heintz welcomed the NECAA group to Longwood's campus that morning. The group then broke up into various educational sessions dealing with different aspects of college programming. Topics of discussion included ideas for travel programs, mini-concerts, and films as well as ideas for working with sound and lighting.

The group went to the Downstairs Dining Hall for a Buffet Luncheon and Showcase. The acts for the showcase included MASON-ROLLER LINE consisting of Charlie Mason and Dale Roller followed by Kelly Helms, a former S-UN Open Mike performer. Both acts were very well received.

The NECAA group met for a final general meeting and went over topics such as the Southeast NECAA Regional meeting to be held in Savannah, Georgia on October 10-14, 1980. Other topics covered were copyright laws and how they affect the colleges, and various bands that have performed at these colleges.

The meeting was a success and Longwood Student Union was happy to have been the host.

RINGS

CAN BE ORDERED
TUES.—WED.—THUR.
10 AM — 6 PM
IN THE ROTUNDA

GRADUATION ANNOUNCEMENTS....

May Be Picked Up Wednesday, April 9 — 10-6 In The Rotunda

SPORTS

From SPORTS INFO.

BASEBALL

A pair of victories over Eastern Mennonite and a win and loss against Norfolk State enabled Longwood's baseball team to even its record at 6-6.

Longwood got strong pitching performances from David Mitchell and Mickey Roberts Thursday in taking 8-1, 4-2 decisions over Eastern Mennonite. A twin bill with Lock Haven State, which was slated for April 28 was rained out and will not be re-scheduled.

Holding cited his team's improved defense and pitching in the twin wins over Eastern Mennonite. Mitchell allowed only two hits while working five and two-thirds innings in the opener. The sophomore hurler also came in on relief of Roberts in the nightcap nailing down the 4-2 victory.

For the day, Mitchell pitched seven innings, giving up three hits and no runs. The Lancer ace moved his record to 2-0, and lowered his earned run average to 2.93.

Freshman David Rumberg has a big day at the plate. The Longwood second baseman had four hits in six trips with a double and a triple. He also had an RBI and scored a run.

Outfielder Eddie Burnette contributed a two-run single in the first inning of the second contest as Longwood jumped off to a 3-0 lead. Other standouts in the doubleheader sweep included: center fielder John Crosby who collected five stolen bases to bring his season total to 15 and designated hitter Doug Toombs who had an RBI in each game.

The Lancers traveled to Norfolk State for a double-header Wednesday, April 2.

In the first game, Norfolk State came out on top 7-4. Norfolk scored four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning. A three-run homer was scored by Mike Rawlings.

Longwood came back in the second game to win 9-2. Pitcher Billy Wells gave up only three hits and struck out seven.

Star players for both games included John Crosby with nine stolen bases, a new school record; three runs and two hits. Also making outstanding plays were Doug Toombs, who went four for five; David Rumberg with three hits and three RBIs and Denny Ulrey with three RBIs.

Fridays game against arch rival Hampden-Sydney was cancelled and will be rescheduled. The team traveled to Duke on Monday, and will host its first night game tonight at Crewe when Houghton (NY) visits for a doubleheader.

LACROSSE

The Lady Lancers lacrosse team ended last week with two losses and a win. The team made a strong showing against Randolph-Macon Women's College with a 14-5 victory April 2, but dropped to Mary Washington 11-2, March 31, and Virginia 11-3, April 4.

The home game against U.Va. saw an early scoring start and a first-half dominated by the U.Va. offense. Trailing 0-7 at halftime, Longwood entered the second-half with some determined aggressiveness. Julie Dayton (2) and Kim Garber (1) combined to bring the Lancer total to three goals, but the U.Va. attack was unable to be stopped as they added four more goals for a final score of 11-3.

The second team was also hit hard as they fell to RMWC 10-0, and to U.Va. 14-1.

The Lancer lacrosse record now stands at 1-3.

WOMEN'S GOLF

Paced by freshman Robin Andrews, Longwood's women golfers finished 10th at the three-day, 54-hole Duke Invitational golf tournament, held March 20-22 in Durham.

Andrews finished among the top third of a strong field with an 85-84-86 —255 to lead Longwood. The Lady Lancers had a team total of 1042 for 10th place, while Georgia won the top spot with a 948 and Ohio State took second with a 958.

While Andrews led the way in Durham, several other Longwood golfers turned in creditable scores. Beth Waddell had a 91-87-84 —262. Waddell had a 38 on her first nine, but a 46 on the second part of the round hilled her chances for an outstanding score.

Veteran golfer Kay Smith got off to a strong start with an 82 Thursday, but disaster struck Friday. Smith had a 93 and then an 89 Saturday. Other scores included: Janet Kelly 91-90-87 —268 and Debra Hood 85-97-93 —275. Longwood's women golfers won the William & Mary Invitational with a team score of 361. William & Mary took second place with a 363, JMU dropped far behind in the field with a 420, followed by Mary Washington's 451.

Andrews, the medalist of the tournament finished with a (43-44) 87 with Tracy Leinbach of William & Mary close behind with an 88. For Longwood Janet Kelly finished with a (45-46) 91, Beth Waddell had a (45-46) 91, Kay Smith finished with a (49-43) 92, Janet Clements had a (49-46) 95, and Sharon Gilmore had a (54-53) 107.

The team will play in the Sweet Briar Invitational Friday and Saturday and then travel to Lexington, Kentucky Sunday for the prestigious Lady Kat Invitational.

The Sweet Briar Invitational, a 36-hole event will be played at the long and challenging Winston C.C. Participating in the tournament will be JMU, William & Mary, Mary Washington, and Sweet Briar.

On Sunday the Lady Lancers will depart for the Lady Kat Invitational in Lexington, Kentucky. The 36-hole event will be played at Spring Lakes C.C. and colleges throughout the East and Midwest will compete.

MEN'S GOLF

Already the Lancer men's golf team is off to a strong start. In their first spring match, they defeated Averett 316-352. Tim White, the team's leading golfer a year ago, took low medalist honors with a 75.

White finished in sixth place last season in the Virginia State Intercollegiate Tournament and set a course record of 67 at Longwood on March 20, 1979.

The team finished last season with a 7-5 overall record and took seventh place in the Virginia State Intercollegiate Tournament among Division II and III teams.

Today completes the Lancers' participation in the William & Mary Invitational Tournament. After this, the team travels to the Homestead in Hot Springs for the VSIG State Tournament, April 11-13.

Junior Tim White has been medalist in two of four matches and has scored in the seventies consistently. White narrowly missed medalist honors with a score of 72 against Hampden-Sydney and Averett on April 3. Medalist Stuart Sigler of HS led the field with a 71.

Hampden-Sydney won the tri-match with a 299, followed by Longwood with 315 and Averett with 354.

White was a medalist with a 75 against Averett on March 15 and against Randolph-Macon and Mary Washington with a 76 on March 18.

Other team members include seniors Dave Yerkes, Kimball Critzer, and Rob Lane, juniors Robert Boyd and Paul Parker, sophomores Charles Lineberry, Scott Taylor, and Lloyd Edward and freshmen David Ritter and Chris Herring.

The Lancers record now stands at 3-4.

TENNIS

The Lady Lancer netters officially open their season April 8 at Lynchburg.

The Lancers, who finished with a 6-3 record this fall, will be relying on strong performances from six veteran players. Fall number one player junior Nancy Leidenheimer is back on the courts after a 6-3 fall season. Also returning are sophomores Christie Lewis and Doris Keys, and freshmen Kim Deihl and Stephanie Ibanez. Senior Margie Quarles is also back on the lineup after sitting out this fall.

In addition, the lineup holds three new faces, junior Amy Wilson, sophomore Connie Scouris, and freshman Dawn Sealey.

Despite few outdoor practices, Coach Phyllis Harris believes that her team is ready for a tough spring season.

"Our season is very compact," said Coach Harris. "We go through two very tough weeks of tennis after we return from spring break, when we play such formidable teams as VCU, Bridgewater, and Emory and Henry."

Harris believes her players must really psyche themselves up for the season and also must be physically ready. She feels that the improved serves displayed by Quarles and Keys will make a difference in strengthening their games.

RIDING

Riders Kathy Chase, Kathy Redmon, Shannon Chambers and Robyn Walker represented the Lancer riding team at the VAAW State Championships at Sweet Briar yesterday.

Also Redmon has qualified for Regionals by accumulating 21 points in novice-horsemanship-on-the-flat and advancing to open-horsemanship-on-the-flat.

In two meets, the team has accumulated 12 ribbons. Four of the ribbons were won in the Southern Seminary Intercollegiate Show on March 28. Mary Ball led the way with a first in advanced-walk-trot-canter Section A.

Other riders who placed in the show included: Kathy Chase second in Section D novice-on-the-flat, Karla Weber second in Section B advanced-walk-trot-canter, and Janet Young 5th in Section D advanced-walk-trot-canter.

In the Longwood-Mary Washington Intercollegiate Horse Show six horsewomen took ribbons. Longwood's top rider was Redmon with a first in Section D novice-horsemanship-on-the-flat, which gave the team seven points. She also had a third in Section D novice-horsemanship-over-fences.

Also in the novice-horsemanship-over-fences, Walker was 5th in Section C and Chase was 6th in Section B. Walker also took second in Section C novice-horsemanship-on-the-flat.

In advanced-walk-trot-canter, Ball was second in Section A, Young 5th in Section D, and Erika Cristea 4th in Section B.

Earning points for Longwood, in addition to Redmon, were Walker (2), Young (2) and Cristea (3).

ALL-AMERICAN

Longwood Junior Ken Ford, the Lancers' leading scorer and one of the nation's top shooters, has been named to the third team NCAA Division III All-America squad picked recently by Basketball Weekly.

Ford, a 6-2 forward from Shelby, N.C., popped in 15.9 points per game this season to help Longwood ring up a 28-3 record and earn a berth in the Division III final four. A leaper who scores from inside and out, he hit 62.3 per cent of his shots from the floor and 77.3 per cent of his free throws.

Compared to NBA star David Thompson for his style of play, Ford plays several inches taller than his 6-2 height. Against three-time national champ North Park in the Division III semi-finals recently he blocked a shot by 6-7 Keith French under the basket, setting up a jump ball.

Ford's selection by Basketball Weekly makes him the first basketball player to be named an All-American in Longwood history.

Also considered to be a talented defender, Ford will return next season as Longwood moved up to NCAA Division II in basketball.

To The Students:

Some students have asked me why there is a charge to run in the Minithon if Blue Cross-Blue Shield is providing the T-shirts. I wanted to make it known that the T-shirts are costing $1290 and Blue Cross-Blue Shield is only providing $500 of that. The awards, printing, gaterade, etc., are additional expenses of about $300.

I would also like to announce that Longwood and Hampden-Sydney students will not have to pay the late registration fee of $5.00. The $3.00 regular fee will cover the cost of the T-shirt.

This year's T-shirt is continental blue with navy blue printing. They will be on sale for non-runners at the finish line in front of the library the morning of April 12.

Gerald P. Graham
Minithon Director

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LVF

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1980

NO. 22

Players Production Of Classic Excellent

Who done it? Detective Sergeant Trotter (Randy Cook) was the guilty party in Agatha Christie's THE MOUSETRAP. Longwood Players staged the mystery last week on Jarman stage.

Photo by Melody Crawley

Press Conference Emphasizes Future

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Many issues were clarified at the Press Conference that was held Tuesday, April 22, in the Lower Dining Hall at 12:45 p.m. President Willett informed those who attended of the latest news on the decisions that had been reached on many issues. He made the announcement that the laundry operation will remain the same as it is now next year. There will also be an increase in tuition next semester which is common among the state supported institutions for the coming year.

A decision to make a change in the noon dining for next semester has also been reached. This change is providing an alternative to family style dining which is what Longwood has now. There will be a fast-food line in the Lower Dining Hall, however, the family style dining will remain in the Upper Dining Hall. Also ARA is giving Longwood two soft-serve ice cream machines. These machines will be in the Upper Dining Hall.

There was a question raised asking how close the number of Therapeutic Recreation majors were to the number of Physical Education majors. The answer was that the numbers were about even.

Female and male athletes are allowed to register early. This is because they may be away from school at the time of regular registration due to an athletic event. Athletes also need to schedule classes around their practicing times. It is not uncommon for athletes at a college to be allowed to register early.

Another issue asked about was—where does the money from parking tickets and fines go to? The reply was that it goes into the budget with the rest of the funds for the college.

A big issue discussed at the Press Conference was that Longwood is presently and will be in the future making more and more facilities available for the handicapped. This is due to a law that has recently been passed by the Federal Government requiring that all state supported institutions make their buildings accessible to handicapped individuals.

Twelve students will be employed to monitor activities held by student organizations. These students will be hired under the student wage. The hiring of these Auxiliary Police will cut down on the cost for the organizations when they need to hire police for certain activities. These Auxiliary Police will be trained in a special training session. House organized by Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Couture and several history students.

Another question that was raised came from the Rugby team. This question pertained to what training field could they use. They are presently using a field that is across from the President's estate.

By DR. ROSEMARY SPRAGUE

Review of THE MOUSETRAP

THE MOUSETRAP, by the late Dame Agatha Christie, is most certainly a classic of its kind. It has been running in London for over 25 years, and travellers to that city have been known to schedule their visits at a time when they can get tickets to that particular play. The reasons for its success were readily apparent to the audiences in Jarman Auditorium during the past week end; THE MOUSETRAP is sheer entertainment and makes no apology for it! The old stage manager's decree—"Make 'em laugh, make 'em cry, make 'em wait!"—was more than amply obeyed, at least in the first and third instances.

Following her usual pattern, Dame Agatha assembled a small group of people in a place from which escape is impossible, any one of whom may be the murderer, all of whom are, at one time or another, prime suspects. There is the inevitable clever detective, who somehow must piece the hints together and untangle the numerous skeins. The setting for THE MOUSETRAP is a snowed-in country house; the characters are, seemingly, a mixed bag of individuals who have no apparent connection with the terrible child abuse case which occurred years ago on a neighboring farm. But trust Dame Agatha! Two of these individuals were involved in it, and one meets her doom at the end of Act I. By the end of Act II, the "detective" turns out to be the murderer, and—double whammy!—one of the suspects is revealed as the genuine detective.

The production by the Longwood Players was excellent, beginning with the eerie music as the house lights dimmed, which metamorphosed into a strident, cacophonous rendition of "Three Blind Mice," concluding with a blood-curdling scream. The set, designed by Richard Gamble, was handsome—the hammer beams looked really authentic, rather than "stock-broker's Tudor." The costumes could not have been better: Miss Casewell's boots and jodphurs helped to define her character visually in sharp contrast to Mollie Ralston's "British married lady" dresses, and Mrs. Boyle's perfect matron's gown and lorgnette. And what a relief to see the men wearing hats—and looking well in them, too!

The cast, under Lockwood's expert direction, performed extremely well; they paced their lines properly, they listened and reacted to each other, and gave the impression that they were really enjoying their work. Frank Creasy, as Mr. Paravacini, displayed a hitherto unsuspected talent for comedy; his Continental manner provided many moments of comic relief, while his sinister laugh at times made him suspect number one. Jeff Sledjeski, as Major Metcalf, was properly military and stuffy, until his unmasking during the last moments of the play; and Vicki Mann, as Mrs. Boyle, playing a role which could easily have become a caricature, was as superb a British matron as ever cut a ribbon at a church bazaar. Chris Conner was right, too, as the bogus architect Christopher Wrenn, with his self-pity and macho bravado. Dale Roller and Melanie Hudnall, as Giles and Mollie Ralston, the beleaguered husband and wife who operate the guest house, were both sympathetic and completely believable. Lisa Hughes, as Miss Casewell, had perhaps the most difficult role—on the surface where is a brash, liberated young woman, a "pale pink Socialist"—but she harbors a secret fear that her brother may be a murderer. Miss Hughes' performance was splendid, especially after the moment of recognition in Act II, until she finally prevents him from strangling Mollie. And Randy Cook, as Detective Sergeant Trotter, turned in an equally good performance in the schizophrenic role of the dominating detective who gradually disintegrates into the murderer.

There were many moments in this production which deserve special mention: for example, the instant antagonism generated at the first meeting between Giles Ralston and Christopher Wrenn—they reacted like strange bulldogs in a small parlor. Ralston's imitation of Wrenn was a comic highlight, as were Miss Casewell's Amazonian handshakes and Mr. Paravacini's appreciation of Mollie. Especially good was the quiet moving scene between Mollie and Christopher Wrenn in Act II. And those ridiculous anniversary presents! These were the nuances, the "grace notes" as David Belasco called them, that raised THE MOUSETRAP from clasp trap to theatre. Perhaps the reason that the audience reacted so enthusiastically, indeed volubly, is because we need more theatre of the kind that this play, and the also excellent CAROUSEL, have brought us this year. Somehow we occasionally need escape from a world that is "too much with us," and what better place than in a "two-hour traffic of a play?"

Student Government Association

LONGWOOD COLLEGE

Farmville, Virginia

To members of the Longwood College community and other concerned individuals:

From this date forward I, Sally Lowe as Chairman of Judicial Board, and Judicial Board as a whole will no longer investigate or try narcotics cases on the Longwood College campus.

It is the purpose of this letter to stipulate and explain our reasons for taking such action.

A. The purpose of the Judicial Board is to uphold the Honor Code. Possession and or use of illegal narcotics is not an Honor Code offense. The handling of such cases imposes a policing function on the Judicial Board which renders the function of safeguarding the Honor Code less effective and lowers the respect shown by the student body to the Judicial Board.

B. Lack of effective aid by Campus Police: Because of the limitations set upon them, Campus Police are not a useful aid in the searching of rooms and the protection of students.

C. Lack of professional training: Students are not professionals trained in the detection and confiscation of illegal narcotics.

D. Danger to Judicial Board members: There is a danger to both Judicial Board members and investigators, not only during investigations, but also as long as any student who is vindictive or poses a possible threat remains on this campus.

E. Violation of student rights: Most students at Longwood are of adult age and should be subjected to the laws of the state of Virginia above and beyond those of Longwood College.

F. Administrative Intervention: It seems to the Judicial Board, and we believe, to many members of the student body as well, that some cases are not handled in a fair and impartial manner by some members of the college administration. The Board feels that in certain cases their decisions have been overturned without clear or substantial reasons being given.

In closing it should be noted that repeated efforts to change the system through the proper channels have been made; however, the results of the changes made were not substantial enough to effectively improve the system.

On behalf of Judicial Board,
Respectfully Submitted,

Sally D. Lowe
Chairman of Judicial Board

Banquet Began Dos Passos Week

By DONNA MARTIN and MINDY HIRSCH

Monday night, May 7, Longwood held a reception and banquet to celebrate naming Graham Greene as the recipient of the John Dos Passos Literary Award. The Cocktail hour was held from 7 to 8:15 p.m. followed by the literary banquet.

William Carlos Woods began the after-dinner speeches by welcoming everyone to the banquet and then presented Otis Douglas, who was a friend and neighbor of John Dos Passos. Douglas introduced Mrs. Dos Passos, the artist's widow. He then spoke of the "intoxication" and "spiritual discipline" encountered in writing. Douglas explained Dos Passos' creative "almost state of consciousness." Douglas' personal experience and friendship with Dos Passos created a stirring mood in the audience.

Woods then announced that the first John Dos Passos prize was given to Graham Greene. Due to poor health, Greene was not present at the banquet. His acceptance speech was read by Woods.

President Henry I. Willett, Jr., concluded the evening by introducing several members of the Board of Visitors. Other distinguished guests included Dr. Virginia Spencer Carr and novelist, William Hoffman.

Photo by: Mary Duvivant

Carr Speaks On Biography

By LISA SPENCER

Tuesday night, the History and Government Department sponsored a Francis Butler Simkins lecture by Dr. Virginia Spencer Carr. Dr. Carr is presently engaged in writing a biography of the late John Dos Passos. Dos Passos was a poet, novelist, historian, and artist. Dr. Carr presented a talk on the life of Dos Passos and his accomplishments. Dos Passos was a "lost generation" novelist of the post World War I era. He has been called by many "the greatest American novelist." Dr. Carr also had a slide presentation on the art of Dos Passos. Also attending the lecture were Mrs. John Dos Passos and Mrs. Francis Butler Simkins. Following the lecture was a reception held at the Alumni House organized by Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Couture and several history students.

Rowe Tapped Head Colleague

By BETH PARROTT

Beth Rowe was tapped head colleague for 1980-1981, Wednesday, April 9, in a candlelight ceremony in the Gold Room.

Miss Rowe of Mechanicsville is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and is active in Freshman class activities.

Along with Miss Rowe will be the following Colleagues: Lisa Swakhammer, Betsy Broadbush, Donna Dix, Suzanne Fraillie, Tammy Jo Sims, Sheryl Oesterheld, Leigh Ann Lilly, Millie Smith, Lisa Spencer, Kathy Devine and Melissa Sager.

Also helping with Freshman Orientation will be Colleagues: Sherry Carmony, Cathy Allen Lisa Shively, Chris Tullington, Wendy Houser, Ann Eubank, Eileen Mathes, Mary Cawthorne, Trotman Simpson, and Judy Clement.

Other Colleagues tapped include: Melanie Gilbert, Elaine Lassiter, Pam Winger, Judi

Harrison, Jean Rood, Kathy Fallen, Michelle Lewis, Molly Handy, Judy Luck, Penny Lowdermilk, Letty Sink, Carol Atkins, Jeff Sledseski, Elizabeth Conner, and Diane Hutson.

Colleagues Susan Parker, Maureen Rogge, Sandi Stabler, Ilona Wilson, Kathy Fuller, Pam Coffman, Susan Hall, Kelly Jones, Marie Douillard, Theresa Ray, Wendy Priolo, Jeanne Brantley, Deana McGuire, Johnette Mallory, Brenda Jenkins, Elizabeth Dunk, and Sarah Rengstorff complete the list of 54 new Colleagues for 1980-81.

The Colleagues are all rising sophomores whose purpose is to aid in the orientation of Freshmen in the Fall to make their new experience here at Longwood College much easier. They are also active throughout the year working with activities which include working in CHI booths during orientation and Oktoberfest. Congratulations Colleagues and Good Luck!

O'Brien Reads Unfinished Work

By LISA SPENCER

Tim O'Brien, author of National Book Award winning Going After Cacciato, appeared in Wygal Auditorium Friday night to read from his new novel, The Nuclear Age. O'Brien read from the first chapter of his book, which is the only one finished at this time.

The reading was excellent and enjoyed by all who attended. The first chapter of the book is about the adventures of a boy concerned about his safety in this nuclear age.

The boy, William, is determined not to be endangered by nuclear fallout and builds a shelter around his ping-pong table in his basement. William then has to contend with parents who think he is crazy and a doctor who thinks he is faking for attention.

O'Brien does not have any definite plans for the completion of the book, but when it does come out, it should be very enjoyable if the rest of it is as good as the first chapter.

At the reception following the reading, O'Brien discussed the novel with several students and faculty, all of whom were very impressed with it so far.

Literary Festival 1980

Anne Hobson Freeman, of Richmond, and Vivian Shipley

Jokl, of Madison, Connecticut, will be featured in Longwood College's Gyre Literary Festival, April 17-22.

Mrs. Freeman will read from her fiction and poetry on Thursday afternoon (April 17) at 3:30 in the Prince Edward Room.

At 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Jokl will give a poetry reading in the Virginia Room. A reception will follow each of these readings, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Jokl will also conduct a poetry workshop on Friday morning from 10 to 11:30 in Room 102 of Grainger Hall. All interested persons are invited to attend and discuss poetry writing.

The festival will continue with a reading of original poems on Monday afternoon, April 21, at 3:30 in the Prince Edward Room. Anyone who would like to read a sample of his or her poetry is asked to contact Dr. Martha Cook, 392-9356, before noon on April 21.

Mrs. Freeman's short stories, poems, and essays have appeared in Mademoiselle, Cosmopolitan, McCall's, The Virginia Cavalcade, Virginia Quarterly Review, other magazines, and in various anthologies.

A magna cum laude graduate

(Continued on Page 8)

The Elections Committee of the Legislative Board of Longwood College will hold class elections this Thursday, April 17, in the Rotunda. Those voting will be rising sophomores, rising juniors, and rising seniors. Voting will begin at 9 a.m. and end at 6:30 p.m. The ballots will be counted at 6:30 p.m. in the lower dining hall. At 8 p.m. there will be the announcement of the winners of each class in the Gold Room. All students and candidates are urged to attend. If there are any questions at that time, they may be brought up after the winners are announced. Anyone desiring to run for a class office, please notify Becky Lee at 2-5904, Frazer 740 by midnight tonight (Tues., April 15).

Class officers shall consist of President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer of each class. Each officer must have, and maintain during term of office, a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 with no exceptions to be made.

Founder's Day Reflections

By VAL CAMPBELL

Founder's Day Weekend is an exciting tradition here at Longwood. It is a time when Alumni come back to observe the changes that have taken place and to reflect on the years when they attended Longwood.

The Alumni Association has been busy planning for our guests. Starting on Friday, April 18, the Alumni will register and then take tours of the campus.

A "Golden Club Breakfast" will be given in honor of the 50th Reunion year classes on Saturday morning. This will be followed by a coffee at the Alumni House sponsored by the Farmville Alumni Chapter. At 11 a.m. there will be a morning program in Jarman. The program will include a gymnastics exhibition by our very own gymnasts, Kathy Idelson and Sharon Pillow. Following the program there will be a Reunion Year Parade down High Street. Saturday afternoon at 2:15 p.m. there will be a craft sale. The Jazz Band will be playing at the Longwood Estate open house from 3-4 p.m.

On Sunday, April 20 the Alumni will be invited to the Spring Concert performance from the Camerata Singers and Concert Choir at 4 p.m. in Wygal Auditorium. The Student Alumni Association would encourage you to support the events of this weekend.

New Option Planned

The ARA dining hall service is adding another option for lunch for next year. The lower dining hall will contain a self-service lunch line beginning in August.

Students will have the option of eating a family style meal in the main dining hall or going through a self service line downstairs.

The optional lunch line will contain sandwiches, cold platters, hot soups, and salad bars. There is also a possibility of a special occasionally offered.

The student will be able to eat downstairs by presenting an ID card like eating meals upstairs. There are no differences in the price ranges, and there will be no basic change in the meals upstairs.

The college and the food service see this addition as offering the students a second choice and taking away from the long lines at the noon meal.

The only major change will be that the lower dining hall will not be able to be used Sunday night through Wednesday. There will be activities scheduled for Thursday through Saturday nights. According to Dean Mary A. Heintz this only posed one problem when the calendar committee approved events for next year.

ARA has also donated two soft-serve ice cream machines that will be placed in the main dining hall. Dean Heintz reported that the school approached the service about acquiring these machines because of student request. "They said they would donate them," she added.

Another change in the dining hall for next year was passed in Residence Board revisions. The board changed the wording of the dress code for birthday dinner. Instead of requiring students to dress for the once-a-month dinner, the handbook now reads that students are encouraged to wear Sunday attire.

Students Sought For Auxiliary

The college will add a Student Auxiliary Corps to the Campus police next year. The Student Auxiliary will consist of students on the work-study program.

There will be 12 students hired under the new program to work an average of ten to 12 hours a week.

The function of the auxiliary will be to assist in sporting events, aid parking at college events, and monitor tennis courts, gymnasiums and other athletics especially on weekends. They will also assist at concerts, mixers, and cabin parties.

Other possible duties will be to make routine rounds to check lights and doors, bus station transports, and to assist in admitting students to residence halls at night.

Dean of Students, Mary A. Heintz reported that there had been good response to the announcement last week. Those who apply to the Financial Aid Office will be interviewed by Chief Smith and other campus police. Those selected will go through a special training program.

Virginia Commonwealth University and James Madison University both have programs similar to the new one here. VCU has a total of 39 students.

All-Starring Open Mike

By MARY SHIELDS

The lights dimmed, the capacity crowd roared, and the music boomed as the most important night in a series of superb performances began. No, it wasn't Dan Fogelberg or Steve Martin but the Open Mike All-Stars singing, acting, playing, and dazzling their way to an unexcelled performance.

Last Tuesday night, the Gold Room reflected the light and sound of the Student Union's last Open Mike of the year. The Buddies Crash first roused the crowd with sexy, synchronized dances to the "Grease" classics "Go Grease Lightnin'" and "We Go Together." Their fiftieth numbers were played for every beat and step, yet were geared for NOW!

The action continued as Joanne Mosca and Sue Wilkinson sang with strong expressive voices accompanied by Sue's bluesy piano. Although their division of the singing labor seemed inconsistent, their voices combined well when Joanne concentrated on melody and Sue on a creative harmony.

The pace then slowed and mellowed at an appropriate point with Lonnie Davidson, Sandra Goodwyn and Tom Sullivan. They combined their very professional talents into several satisfying numbers, which were smooth, provocative and well blended. Lonnie on tenor sax, Tom on flugel horn, piano and voice and Sandra on piano showed marked concentration, conviction and improvisational ability.

But, what would an open Mike be without comedy? The two man-one person style of Ross Conner and Mark Winecoff certainly filled the bill with "Mr. Big." Although the skits basic idea of two men trying to function as one is certainly tried and true, Mark and Ross kept it totally hilarious. Ross Conner's face, his reactions were unique and on time while Mark coordinated his elegant, very talented hands with Ross' words and emotions. Together, they captivated the 300 members of the audience.

Standing ovations were the response to the fifth act, the talented Street Corner Symphony. These everyday men and women cooperated in a very professional manner to present old as well as top 40 tunes. The fact that they were up there, doing what they wanted to do and fun was the secret of their success and immense popularity. Their rhythmic swaying and foot percussion on the hollow platform greatly enhanced a moving performance.

The versatile Mark Winecoff and Ross Conner appeared again, with the spotlight now focused on Mark with quips and "gorilla tactics" supplied by Ross. Mark proceeded to function in an amusing slightly stuck up attitude, punctuated with total sincerity. Both Mark and Ross showed themselves to be capable of humorous interpretations and improvisations.

The All-Stars rounded out their captivating night with Charlie Mason and Dale Roller. A well known musical team, Charlie and Dale appeared in their usual reliable form of swinging melodies and expert picking. Charlie's vocals were melodious, his backups smooth and light, Dale's vocals fit the melodies, his backups were sweet yet solid. With their coordinated picking and delightful stage presence Dale and Charlie approach the total integration attained by Simon and Garfunkels, whose songs are among their repertoire.

Some usually neglected but integral parts of every Open Mike are the comic interludes provided by the shows MC's Duke Rollins, Ken Jones and Bill LeWarne. Frequently these spoofs contain comments on society in general or life here at Longwood, the latter was the case Tuesday night as the MC's obviously had fun putting down the Hamsters and extolling the virtues of Longwood guys. Ken, Bill, and Duke not only set up, write, and perform these skits they also coordinate

(Continued on Page 8)

Footstompin'

Success

By SUSIE CRAWFORD

The Larry Mangum Trio fell "Somewhere between Studio Fifty-four and Anita Bryant" Thursday night when they played here at their northernmost engagement.

The "Trio," from Jacksonville, Florida, arrived at Longwood a few days early to get comfortable. They sure made the audience feel comfortable, and proved to be a successful first event of Spring weekend.

The band blended popular country jazz, rhythm and blues with seventy-five per cent of Larry's original tunes. Larry's songs are diversified, with mostly Buffett-type lyrics, ranging from "Mr. President have pity on the working man," to "Breakfast at McDonalds." The "Trio" is actually a quartet — consisting of Larry Mangum on acoustic guitar, Randall Hall on lead guitar, Dan Sheffield on electric base, and David Gun at the piano.

Larry, who grew up in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, stems from the legendary "Briarhopper" clan. Because of their heavy influence and Larry's love for music, he abandoned his Aerospace Engineering career and he is now into full-time touring and some recording.

The Larry Mangum Trio's personable attitude, southern influence, and foot-stompin' music made for an enjoyable Thursday evening.

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT
Thursday, April 24, will be a night of foot-stomping and clapping with THE ROBBIN THOMPSON BAND.

Robbin Thompson is backed by a four-piece rhythm section whom he started working with in October '78; they are some of the top performers and musicians in the Richmond area. Robin plays the acoustic guitar (which he started playing at the age of 13) and is strong on the vocals. Robbin and his band play rhythm, folk-rock and country music which is guaranteed to put you on your feet. Members of his band are: VELPO ROBERTSON—Virginia's most demanded studio guitarist, is strong on lead and background vocals and his biggest asset to the band is his songwriting ability. ERIC HEIBERG—plays a YAMAHA electric grand piano and Prophet V Synthesizer, has powerful vocal and writing skills. MIKE LANNING— plays bass guitar, contributes vocal with his dynamite bass. BOB ANTONELLI—plays drums and has a consistent drum style along with vocals.

Robbin Thompson's first album entitled "ROBBIN THOMPSON" features ten of his original tunes with backups by Melissa Manchester and Steve Cropper. His second album "TOGETHER", a regional album, was done in collaboration with two other giants—Steve Basset and Andrew Lewis Band. This featured his instant hit song "SWEET VIRGINIA BREEZE". His new album "TWO B'S PLEASE" had been released since March 19, 1980 and includes some of his 1980's recordings.

Robbin writes almost everything he performs, he says, "I think every writer has to put himself into his songs or he's a liar". There's a lot of me in everything I write." This is ROBBIN's fourth appearance here at Longwood, and you won't want to miss this concert in Jarman, Thursday, April 24. The concert will be after the Senior Banquet, about 8:30 p.m. with special prices for the Seniors.

One Man

Robert Johnson sings. SO?, you say. We've heard plenty of singers. Yeah, but he plays 6-string, 12-string, and steel body guitar. Who doesn't. OK, cynical! While he's singing and playing guitar, Robert "One Man" Johnson plays kazoo, harmonica, high hat cymbal and a 13 string acoustic foot piano—of his own design! No, we are not kidding. You can find out for yourself at this week-end's FREE Coffee house, on Friday the 18th, Saturday the 19th and Sunday the 20th.

Robert Johnson, who answers to the name of One Man, will display his unusual talent in the Snack Bar at 8:00 each night for your enjoyment. One Man who hails from Wisconsin, creates his own blend of Rock, blues and ragtime; drawing from such artists as Leadbelly, Jelly Roll Morton, Hank Williams and himself.

So, if you feel you are headed for a let down at the end of this week, don't Panic! Come have a good time at this week end's Coffeehouse, and find out what it's like to see One Man sing and play five instruments at the same time.

Eventual Progress To Satisfaction

By MINDY HIRSCH

S-UN presented Silverspring April 12 as the last Saturday Night Alive band this semester. Silverspring is noted for playing Jump Blues, a blues sound with jazz added, and Cagin Rock. Band member Phil Shimmel defined Cagin Rock as a "French-Folk-Dance combination with blues... Creole music." The five-member band began poorly in the first set but did progress to the point of satisfaction by the end of the evening.

The first set consisted of an hour of mediocre playing. The third song performed, "I Thank You," sounded flat and distorted — both in the musical and vocal points-of-view. This was also true of Bonnie Raitt's "Runaway;" Tara Michaud's voice could not quite handle the transitions from low to high notes. The best part of the first set was when Silverspring played "Money." The band put much more effort in performing this tune and the audience appreciated it.

Eventually, by the third set, Silverspring was playing at a peak. The first set must have been a warm-up, because in this final set, the band was getting hot. The audience was very receptive to the band's music. However, since the S-UN's supply of beer was exhausted, it is likely that the crowd would have been receptive to any type of music as an alternative intoxicant. Nevertheless, it is true that Silverspring was playing choice music. In this set, their selections — "Shape I'm In," "Sugar-pie, Honey-bunch," "Can't Get No Satisfaction," and others — were varied enough to please most anyone. Even Silverspring's original "Sweet Louise" was enjoyed by the crowd.

John Fritz-Spiro on vocals, guitar, and harmonica and Nat Winer on violin were the band's high points. John Fritz-Spiro's talent as a vocalist was shown in "Fish Fry" by Louis Jordan. When singing this tune, Fritz-Spiro's range and power won over the audience. His skill as a guitarist was exhibited in Charlie Daniels' tune "The South's Gonna Do It Again," a crowd pleaser. Nat Winer also pleased the audience with his gifted skill on the violin. Although it is rare to see a violin in a rock'n-roll band, Winer successfully combined the sound of his musical instrument with the sound of the band. Together, Winer on violin and Fritz-Spiro on guitar were excellent. The other band members, Tara Michaud on keyboards, Sal DeRaffele playing bass, and Phil Shimmel on drums helped gratify the audience.

Overall, Silverspring must be given credit for getting the crowd rocking. Many remarks complimenting the band were audible. However, there were also rumbles of dissent including complaints about the long breaks — one almost 30 minutes and one 40 minutes — that Silverspring had. During these breaks, the band took advantage of the time to sell copies of their album, "You Get What You Take." This album title seemed to apply to this last Saturday Night Alive band; if you could take enjoyment out of the band, you got it, but, if you were waiting for the band to offer it — forget it.

Photo by Melody Crawley

THE
PUTNAM COUNTY PICKERS

Outdoor Concert Is Rescheduled For SUNDAY, APRIL 20 — 2:00
LANKFORD MALL — FREE!!!

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF — Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert, Thomas Cole, Frank Cressy, Barbara Baker, Susan Rutin, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Sloan, Sharon Janovich, Bill LeWerne, Beth Parrott, Robyn Black, Lynne Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jul Morten, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari, Debbie Northern, Donna Hughes, Linda Paschall, Johnette Mallory, Ted Keany, Suzie Crawford, Mindy Hirsh, Roxanne Slaughter, Laura Allen, Annette Saunders.

Member of the VIMCA.
Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Laundry Services

Dear Editor:

Recently a college committee was formed to study the use and operation of the laundry services. The question raised challenged the continuing existence of the services. Legislative Board discussed the laundry situation and recommended to President Willett that the laundry services remain in operation. The board feels that the students should have the option of using this service. Usage of the laundry services will determine its future existence.

It has been brought to my attention that some students are not aware of the laundry service and its hours. It is open 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. Laundry may be picked up at these hours: 12 noon-1:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and all day Friday. The laundry is limited to sheets, pillow cases, washcloths, and towels. All articles must be marked with the student's name. The procedure for taking in and checking out laundry is on page 40 of the handbook.

I would like to take this opportunity to remind you that the Student Government is for you the students. We need your support and suggestions in order to represent you efficiently. Let us work with and for you!

Sincerely,
Tammy Bird
Chairman of Legislative Board

Injustice Committed

Dear Editor,

This letter is proposed to all the students and faculty of Longwood College. It seems that there is an injustice committed against the students concerning the Honor Code.

The evidence is shown through an incident that happened to me personally. Told in advance that I could take a test prior to the test date due to circumstances beyond control; I studied at night for the test, thus neglecting my other studies for the following day. I failed a quiz in my eight o'clock class. I was disappointed but glad I could get the next test out of the way, which I was to take at nine o'clock.

After my stating that I had come to take the test, the secretary informed me that she knew nothing of the matter, could not and would not let me take the test early. I then went to the main office where they proceeded to tell me the same thing. I was told I could take the test if I got special permission from the Dean.

My attempt to get the dean's permission would have been futile because I would not have time to take the test before my next class. It's difficult enough to acquire motivation to study when spring break is so near; but when I spend three and a half hours in the library preparing for a test, I expect to take it when the teacher designates.

As an uprising senior, it has always been my belief that Longwood's Honor Code system insured that the student was telling the truth until proven otherwise. Why would I lie about my permission to take the test, because my teacher would be sure to find out.

I hope by reporting this injustice to everyone, someone will do something to render the situation or do away with the Honor Code completely.

Sr. Banquet

Dear Fellow Seniors,

There seems to be a little

Your Turn

problem about the Senior Banquet. Some seniors have not turned in R.S.V.P. cards in time to be put on the original headcount roster. As an innocent bystander, I have witnessed many seniors, with many excuses as to why they did not respond with the R.S.V.P. card, plead that you take your beefs to Dean Heintz, since she has to make the final decision. The best Marcia Gray can do at this point is to allow you to attend as waiters or waitresses.

To Marcia and her helpers, I would like to thank you for getting the invitations out; no one else wanted the grief. I know there was a lot of time involved in addressing envelopes, checking invitations, checking addresses, checking off who responded and finally meeting a deadline. Again, thanks and I hope the banquet is a smashing success.

Kaki Hicks

Jazz Band

Dear Editor,

In the first three months, the Jazz Band has been asked to perform by a large number of different organizations. We regret the fact that we were unable to perform at some of these due to obligations of our own. For others, however, the fault was not ours. We were given two to three days notice in some instances which made it impossible for us to perform. We would be more than happy to perform for any recognized campus organization if it is for a "good cause" if we know ahead of time on future occasions. We would like the student body to know that we love performing and, for the most part, need only be asked ahead of time by a few weeks. We would also like to thank Gordon Inge, Frank Coffey, The Student Union, The Rotunda, the Alumni Association and, of course, Phi Mu Alpha fraternity and all our friends that supported us during our first year. We hope to return to favor next year by our performances.

Torn Sullivan
President, Jazz Band

Freshmen

Thanked

Dear Editor,

With elections for next year's class officers coming up in less than a week, I would like to thank all those people who helped this year's freshman class make it through a great year.

I would also like to thank all those freshmen who helped with Oktoberfest, Christmas elves, Freshman Production, and the Valentine's Dance; without you this year would not have been possible. To all of this year's class officers who were so instrumental in making this year a success: Thank You! I would like to give a special thanks to Duke Rollins, Donna Hughes, Brenda Coleman, and all the other upperclassmen who helped us. You all are the greatest. Finally, thanks to Ross Conner (my roommate), for without you I could not have made it.

With Blue-n-White Love
John Todd (Freshman Class President)

Editor's Turn

It seems as if Judicial Board has finally stood up for their own rights, and there should be a lot of commotion on campus because of it.

Judicial Board will neither investigate nor try narcotics cases. What does that mean? It could mean that the board members will finally get the respect, aid, and co-operation needed from both students and administration alike. Or, it could possibly lead to all narcotics cases be turned over to the State.

At a recent press conference one of the Judicial Board members said that the ratio of honor code offenses to narcotics cases was one to four. This goes to show that the majority of time spent by Judicial Board is dealing with narcotics. This should not be the case. Yes, narcotics is a problem on this campus as it is on every campus, but should it be handled by untrained students who are subjected to danger because of it.

Judicial Board members go through a lot of unnecessary hassle and some have even had their lives threatened over narcotics cases. It's a problem that must be dealt with!

The board was just restructured at the end of last semester after much hard work and planning of the members. But — it seems not to have helped.

Should the administration intervene? Certainly not if they are coming to reverse decisions made by the board "without clear or substantial reasons being given." The students and administration should be able to work together in total agreement, co-operation, and understanding in order for this important student board to work effectively. At a conference last year with other colleges, some reported that their boards were half students and half administration.

The board chairman listed six reasons for taking the action that the board did. These included the board's purpose, aid of Campus Police, lack of professional training, danger of members, student's rights, and administrative intervention.

There are only a few weeks left in this semester and this definitely a major problem if not a major catastrophe that must be solved before the end. There is too much at stake to drag it out over the summer. There has already been a lot of ground work layed and a lot of meetings have already been held. The changes in the system must be made in order to make it effective and they must be made before it's too late.

Dr. James W. Jordan, director of Longwood's Summer Field School in Archeology, demonstrates how the site will be marked off for excavation.

Photo by Barbara Stonikinis

Dr. Cox Heads Student's Service

By DOUGLAS STROBEL

Arriving April 2, Dr. J. Cox became the new Director of Counseling Services, replacing Dr. Brian Robie who left in May of last year.

Dr. Cox received his BA from Randolph-Macon College, his masters from VCU, and his Doctorate in Counseling Psychology from the University of Missouri. Upon receiving his Doctorate, he counseled outgoing patients at Central State hospital in Virginia. For the last six years, he taught at the University of Texas in Dallas, and worked part time in private practice.

For various reasons, Dr. Cox decided to return to Virginia. First of all, he was originally from Virginia and if a good opportunity arose, hoped to return home. However, more importantly he wished once again to be a part of a college campus and counsel college students. Dr. Cox sees College as a time of transition for many students. They have gotten away from home and anxiously look to the future which is both exciting and stressful.

Dr. Cox sees his role as one of helping individuals to cope with emotional and stressful problems. He emphasizes that the important thing to remember is that all people at some time have a problem that they could use help in solving. One is not crazy, or unstable, but just going through a stressful period in which a professional counselor can help.

A career counseling group is an idea Dr. Cox would like to see implemented in the future. Other ideas include assertiveness training and seminars on human sexuality. These are just a few possibilities that can be a part of Longwood's Counseling Service. However, Dr. Cox needs the help and suggestions of the students because it is the student's service.

A student may contact Dr. Cox by coming by his office which is located above the infirmary or by calling 392-9235.

All counseling is kept strictly confidential.

Dancers To Present Concert

By JODY KERSEY

The Longwood College Company of Dancers will be presenting their Spring Concert from April 17 through 19 in Jarman Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The Company's director, Dr. Betty A. Bowman, stated that the organization is one whose purpose includes the development of dancers and choreographers, the presentation of quality dance performances and the maintenance of a high standard of dance as an art in the Longwood community. She explained that the dancers have four to six rehearsals each week. Therefore, these students must learn to organize and budget their time wisely. Among the activities of the group are the presentation of a fall and spring concert of original choreography by the members, performances for Spring Weekend and Oktoberfest, performances and teaching of classes for elementary schools and the sponsoring of master classes in dance.

The assistant director, Sherry Hogge, feels that this will be a great spring concert because the selections are not surface productions, but very deep performances which required great thought. As a senior majoring in elementary education, she believes her background will help her as she begins working with children.

Adrienne Heard also believes this concert is going to be a good, solid performance. The concert offers variety and is quite unique, she explained, in that this is their first concert with live music selections in the performance.

Elizabeth Cardin agreed that this concert will be a turn away from the regular concerts because of the blending of the music and art departments. She believes this concert is very polished because of the extensive time the dancers have been preparing for it. The dancers have been working on this concert since the beginning of the semester. Miss Cardin feels that the success of the concert will be due to the fact that the dancer's director, Dr. Betty Bowman, is a great asset, giving the dancers plenty open room to grow and giving such good direction.

Registration Underway:

Summer Archeology "Dig"

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Registration is now under way for Longwood College's first Summer Field School in Archeology, one of only two college-sponsored "digs" in Virginia this summer.

The Field School, scheduled for June 2 through July 4, will excavate a prehistoric Indian site in the Cumberland State Forest.

Based on preliminary surveys by Dr. James William Jordan, director of the Field School, the site appears to have been the location of hunting and butchering activity. The date of this activity is difficult to determine at this stage, Dr. Jordan says. It could have been 500 years ago or as early as 10,000 years ago.

It is also difficult to say what the tribal affiliation of these Indians might have been. Tribes known to have lived east of the Blue Ridge include the Meherrin Indians, Nottoway Indians, the Monacans, the Tutelo, the Mattaponi, the Pamunkey, and the Chickahominy.

Dr. Jordan has been working with Stan Warner, assistant superintendent of the Cumberland State Forest, to finalize the necessary arrangements for the dig with the Virginia Forestry Division.

The Field School has two major purposes: to train undergraduate students in the professional techniques of archeology, and to contribute to the understanding of the prehistoric inhabitants of the Southside Virginia area. The excavation is endorsed by the American Anthropological Association, and Dr. Jordan will write a site report on the findings.

Dr. Jordan explains that archeology is "more than finding bones and tools once used by the former inhabitants of an area." He defines the science of archeology as "a method for the recovery, study and reconstruction of the human past."

(Continued on Page 8)

Cadets Attend Air Assault School

By THOMAS COLE

Spring breaks are spent in many different ways and this past one was no exception for two Longwood College ROTC cadets.

Janice "J.J." Johnson, a sophomore P.E. major, and David Sawyer, a freshman business major, attended the U.S. Army Air Assault School held at Fort Campbell, Ky.

They were instructed in a variety of areas including air assault, med evacuation-helicopters, and went through phases of rappelling leading to a helicopter rappell.

Air Assault School is highly physical and mentally demanding J.J. stated that the contidence course and a 10 mile march as her biggest challenge, she also said her ultimate goals for attendance at Air Assault was to overcome fear of heights. "I have gained a respect for heights, not fear. The experience strengthened myself mentally to overcome any obstacles."

David Sawyer's reasons were a bit different for attending Air Assault School. He foresees his future in the Army as an Infantry Officer, and felt this training would make him a more professional officer, and accepted the challenge of Air Assault.

Slots for Air Assault, and Airborne Schools as well as many other challenges are available through the ROTC Department. Contact Major Sullivan of SFC Jordan for more details.

Jazz Band To Perform

By TOMSULLIVAN

The Longwood Jazz Band will be performing again this year at Longwood House for Founders Day. This is the second year they have been asked to perform this and they hope it will become tradition. Quoted by one jazz band member, "We've really come a long way in a short time. Our main concern now is a lack of trombonists and a need for another bass guitarist next year. We have a great director, but if the people on campus who can play those parts remain apathetic about joining, the jazz band could cease to exist." Some of the music being performed includes tunes by Chuck Mangione, the Brecher Brothers, Steely Dan and the Crusaders just to name a few.

At the Spring Weekend Concert, awards were given out to various members who were seen by their peers as being outstanding in the group's performance. Those honored include: Kevin Lewis (now transferred), David Coffey, Bill Smith and Lonnie Davidson.

Also, four members of the band, Lonnie Davidson, Mike Derflinger, Tom Sullivan and Pete Tideman have been asked to perform with Tavares in a concert at Hampden-Sydney April 18 at 9:00. The band hopes to give several concerts next fall and is interested in playing for recognized "good causes" if known in advance.

Exhibit Features New Work

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

New work by Virginia artists Jeff Davis and James Wall is on exhibit in the Bedford Gallery at Longwood College through April 30.

Davis, who lives in Montpelier, is showing paintings on canvas and on paper. Wall, of Charlottesville, is showing pastels, photographs, and three paintings on rag paper.

The exhibit was arranged through Scott-McKennis Fine Art, in Richmond.

Davis is a graduate of Virginia Commonwealth University with the bachelor of fine arts degree in painting and printmaking. He has done graduate study in painting at VCU and also studied at the University of Erlangen in West Germany.

Since 1976, Davis has had one-man shows at the Virginia

Museum of Fine Arts, Chrysler Museum in Norfolk, Virginia Beach Arts Center, Old Dominion University, Grand Gallery in Wilmington, Del., and the Fredericksburg Gallery of Art. He has also participated in numerous invitational and juried shows in Virginia and Washington, D.C. His work is included in many public and private collections.

Wall received the B.F.A. degree from the Atlanta School of Art and has also studied at Cooper Union in New York, Furman University, and Robert Burns, Portraiture, in Greenville, S.C.

He has exhibited in Georgia, South Carolina, and in Charlottesville, Roanoke, Richmond, Fredericksburg, Lynchburg, and Baltimore, Md. In 1979, he was guest instructor in painting at Longwood.

In Memoriam

Miss Becky Lynne Reed, a freshman at Longwood College, was killed in an automobile accident in Virginia Beach over Spring Break.

Miss Reed just entered Longwood in January. A resident of Roanoke, she was survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Reed and two sisters.

Funeral services were held on March 25.

Father Burghardt Returns

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

Father Walter J. Burghardt, S.J. returns to the Longwood College campus April 17-18. Father Burghardt, an honored guest of the college for three of the last four years, will speak Thursday at 1 p.m. in Wygal on "Adventure of the Intellect."

Father Burghardt is noted for enlightening talks which combine wit and humor with vital messages for daily living.

During his stay, he will also address five classes. On Thursday he will speak to Dr. Maria Silveira's 9:25 World Literature class on "The Concept of Purgatory for a Catholic" and Dr. Cardwell's Child Development Class on religious education in child development. On Friday, he will be in Dr. Mary Cristo's Medical Sociology Class to talk on "The Clergyman's Perception of Death, Dying, and the Afterlife" at 9 a.m., Mrs. Savage's Philosophy of Science Class at 10 a.m., and Dr. Phyllis Wacker's Introduction to Psychology class at 11 a.m. Please ask the classes' professor first if you care to attend a classroom lecture in a course you are not currently enrolled.

In addition, Father Burghardt will say mass at St. Theresa's Church on Thursday at 5 p.m. and Friday at 7 a.m.

Father Burghardt's latest book, Tell The Next Generation, has recently been released. It contains some of the sermons and talks he has given.

Father Burghardt is the author of five books and editor of four others. He has taught at Woodstock and Catholic University of America and is presently theologian-in-residence at Georgetown University.

Editor of two publications and member and officer in several prestigious societies, Father Burghardt has been awarded nine honorary degrees. A prolific writer, he has been published in 41 publications and has written two pamphlets in addition to his books.

LONGWOOD COLLEGE CALENDAR 1980-81

FIRST SEMESTER 1980

August 23	Saturday	—Opening date.
25	Monday	—Professional semester begins.
26	Tuesday	—Registration.
27	Wednesday	—Classes begin at 8 a.m.
September 4	Thursday	—Convocation
5	Friday	—Last day to add a class.
26	Friday	—Last day to drop a class without an automatic "F"
October 3	Friday	—Fall break begins after classes
13	Monday	—Classes resume at 8 a.m.
20	Monday	—Estimates due in Registrar's Office at 12 noon. Incompletes from previous semester must be removed by 12 noon.
		—Oktoberfest
24-25	Friday, Saturday	—Thanksgiving holiday begins at 12 noon.
November 26	Wednesday	—Classes resume.
December 1	Monday	—Classes end.
11	Thursday	—Professional semester ends.
12	Friday	Examinations begin.
19	Friday	—Examinations end.

AND MORE...

SPORTS....SPORTS....SPORTS....SPORTS....SPORTSSPORTS....

Gymnasts Compete At Nationals

By LISA SPENCER

Two members of the Longwood Gymnastics team travelled to Centenary College in Louisiana for the National Championships on March 30 and 31. The two all-around competitors, Kathy Idelson and Sharon Pillow, were picked from the top thirty in the nation. The girls did very well in tremendously stiff competition at Centenary. More colleges than ever attended the nationals and there were more than one hundred competitors per event.

The way that nationals are arranged, the top twelve finishers in each event go on to compete in the final competition. Kathy barely missed making the finals in two events. She placed thirteenth on the beam and fourteenth on floor exercise, excellent finishes considering the number of competitors per event. Sharon Pillow did make it to the finals with a twelfth place finish on vaulting. Unfortunately, however, she had problems with a stress fracture in her foot and her second vault was voided. This caused her to finish twelfth of twelve in the final vaulting competition, but that is still twelfth overall. In all-around competition, Kathy finished 22nd in the nation while Sharon chalked up a 14th place finish.

The two gymnasts represented Longwood with good showing at Centenary College.

The Longwood Gymnastics team is definitely improving. Last year only one gymnast, Kathy Idelson, qualified for Nationals. This year Longwood had two qualifiers. As more and more aspiring gymnasts hear of Longwood's successes, the team will be a national contender in the next year or two. The team finished this season with a seventeenth seed in the nation.

Team Rides Again

By KATHY CHASE

Thursday, March 20, dawned early for the Longwood Riding Team as they left Farmville at 5 a.m. for Whitlock Stables. At 6:30 they left the stables with five horses, headed for Fredericksburg, the site of Longwood's seventh Intercollegiate Horse Show of the year. The show was co-hosted by Longwood and Mary Washington College. There were 14 colleges represented at the show.

Kathy Redmon gave Longwood recognition by winning her Novice Horsemanship on the Flat class. By winning her class she gained enough points to qualify for Regionals and for Open Horsemanship on the Flat. Kathy also won a third place ribbon in her Novice Horsemanship Over Fences class.

Robyn Walker represented Longwood well also as she placed second in her Novice Horsemanship on the Flat class and fifth in her Novice Horsemanship Over Fences class.

Kathy Chase placed sixth in her Novice Horsemanship Over Fences class.

In the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter division, Mary Ball won a second place ribbon in her class, while in their classes Erika Cristea and Janet Young won fourth and fifth place, respectively.

The point riders for the show were Kathy Chase and Kathy Redmon Novice Horsemanship on the Flat; Robyn Walker, Novice Horsemanship Over Fences; Erika Cristea and Janet Young in Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter. Total team points was 14.

Southern Seminary held their Intercollegiate Horse Show on Friday, March 22 in Buena Vista. Longwood had only four riders to go to the show, but they performed very well.

In the Novice Horsemanship on the Flat class Kathy Chase placed second.

Mary Ball rode very well in her Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter class and won a first place ribbon and Jefferson Cup.

Karla Weber won a second place ribbon in her class of Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter.

Janet Young placed fifth in her Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter class.

The point riders for this show were Kathy Chase, Novice Horsemanship on the Flat; Mary Ball and Janet Young, Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter. Total team points for this show was 14.

The VAAW State Riding

Championships were held on Monday, April 7, at Sweet Briar. This is the first year Longwood has sent riders to this event. Competing in this event were Kathy Redmon on Kinloch's Pleasure, Kathy Chase on Starboard Wind, Julie Tracey on Pewter Penny, and Robyn Walker on Tea for Two.

The event covered three different phases of competition, dressage, cross-country jumping and stadium jumping. The first two events were judged on the horse and rider, the third, stadium jumping, was judged on the horses' performance.

Nine colleges were represented at this event. There were 42 competitors in each event.

In the Dressage event Kathy Redmon's score of 131.5 put her in the top 25. Kathy Chase was in the top 25 in both the cross-country and Stadium Jumping events.

Robyn Walker and Julie Tracey did well in their events, both getting scores over 100.

The team was pleased with their scores and also with the experience gained. They plan to attend the VAAW State Riding Championships again next year.

On Sunday, April 13, the riding team will be in Bristol, Va., at Virginia Intermont competing in the last Intercollegiate Horse Show of the season.

Mary Milne drives to goal in 11-6 victory over Roanoke College.
 Correction from last week — Longwood J. V. - 10; RMWC - 0.

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW

OPEN:

Mon-Thur 11-10 PM, Fri & Sat 11-Midnight

104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

FRESH SALADS

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

After coming close on several occasions this season, Longwood's baseball team finally got what it was after Friday afternoon — a victory over an established Division I opponent.

An eight-run fourth inning, highlighted by Barry Gordon's grand slam homer, propelled the Lancers to a surprising 13-12 victory over Atlantic Coast Conference member Virginia. The win was a big one for Longwood for a number of reasons.

"This was a gigantic step for us," said Buddy Bolding, coach of the Division III team. "It meant a whole lot. The psychology of it ranks with our triumph over Hampden-Sydney last season."

Only in its third year of fielding a college baseball team, Longwood rebounded for a 16-12 mark last season in Bolding's first year at the helm, after an initial 0-13 campaign. With the win over Virginia and a doubleheader sweep of Bristol College Saturday, the Lancers stand 10-8 and four of those losses have come at the hands of Duke, Virginia and Richmond, all Division I teams with winning records.

For the week Longwood won four of six contests. After a tough 5-4 loss to Duke Monday, Longwood battered Houghton (N.Y.) Tuesday 15-0 behind the no-hit pitching of freshman Mickey Roberts. Another narrow loss to once beaten Lynchburg, 4-3 Thursday, was followed by the big victory over Virginia and a 12-1, 18-8 sweep of Bristol.

This week the Lancers visit Washington & Lee Monday, host Lynchburg Thursday, play at Washington College Friday and visit St. Mary's and Gallaudet Saturday and Sunday for doubleheaders.

Gordon Repeats

When Barry Gordon ripped his grand slam homer against Virginia Thursday, it marked the third time this season the junior catcher had ripped a four-run shot against the Cavaliers.

In an earlier meeting between the two teams, won by the Cavaliers 10-8, Gordon had hammered a grand slam in the top of the eighth to tie the game 8-8. His shot Thursday helped Longwood take a 12-4 lead. Though Virginia battled back and had the tying and winning runs on base in the top of the ninth, the Lancers proved their point — Longwood is capable of playing with the big boys.

Left-fielder Bruce Morgan had a particularly fine day against Barry Gordon propels Lancers to victory with Fourth-inning grand slam.

Photo by Mike Curtis

Virginia. The sophomore had three hits in five trips, drove in two runs and stole two bases as well as making several fine plays in the field.

Crosby Steals 34th

Last season centerfielder John Crosby stole 35 out of 35 bases to lead all Division III players in base thefts. This season Crosby has swiped 34 bases out of 36 attempts. The fleet outfielder stole eight in nine attempts (he was thrown out trying to steal home), batted .417 and scored 11 runs in the last six Longwood games. For the season he has scored 24 runs and is hitting .333.

In addition to his big homer against Virginia, Gordon also hit his fifth round-tripper against Bristol Saturday and batted .438 for the week, raising his season average from .231 to .296. The junior catcher has driven in 26 runs, and has apparently ended a 2-week slump.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by designated hitter Doug Toombs who has a lousy .526 batting average. Toombs had 10 hits in 23 at bats last week and drove in eight runs. Rightfielder Jim Thacker batted .471 for the week, raising his average to .340. Third baseman Denny Ulrey is the other Lancer with a .300 plus average. He's batting .327.

While David Mitchell and Mickey Roberts have both earned three wins on the mound for Longwood, Richard Vaught and Chuck Hagar have also pitched well. Vaught, who has a 2-5 record but an earned run average of 3.46, suffered to Duke and the 4-3 setback to Lynchburg. Hagar has an ERA of 2.90 and hurled a hitless game against Bristol Saturday.

Player of the Week

Roberts' No-Hitter

Freshman right-hander Mickey Roberts returned home in triumph Tuesday night when he tossed a no-hitter against Houghton in a 15-0 Longwood baseball victory. For his performance, the first no-hitter in Longwood history, Roberts has been selected as the Longwood College Player of the Week.

A 6-0, 175-pounder, Roberts has compiled one of the top records on the Lancer mound staff with three wins against one loss. Tuesday night the fireballing freshman was in top form as he struck out 10, walked three and prevented the visiting Highlanders from getting a hit. The game was played at R.J. Golubic Stadium in Crew, before a pro-Roberts crowd.

A graduate of Nottoway High School, Roberts was a standout on the diamond and the football field in his prep days. He earned All-District honors as a defensive back in football and as a pitcher in baseball.

His play has been a big plus for Longwood's young baseball team this spring. With Bertha hurling two victories, the Lancers have won three of their last four games to run their season record to 10-8. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Roberts of Crew.

Photo by Mike Curtis

In The Long Run

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

The Third Annual Longwood College Minithon was run Saturday, April 12, following a 6.2 mile course from Hampden-Sydney to Longwood.

A 176 runners finished the race. The overall men's runner was Wannie Cook of Mechanicsville, a wheelchair contestant, with a time of 32:21. Cook broke the wheelchair record as well as the course record.

Barbara Allen of Richmond won the overall women's competition with a time of 42:27. Ms. Allen is a Longwood graduate.

Category winners were as follows: Men's 15 and under, Willard Douglass III of Richmond (38:31); Women's 15 and under, Louise Hoffman of Cartersville (49:05); men's 16-21, Michael Reed of Green Bay (32:52); women's 16-21, Sharon Hall of Drakes Branch (43:08); men's 22-29, Lester Cruise of Longwood (37:56); women's 22-29, Betty Richway of Halifax (46:52); and men's 50 and over, Robert Buntun of Blackstone (43:59). All of these course winners broke the records.

George Wells of Fort Lee (35:45), winner in the men's 30-39 category, and Mary McFarlane of Richmond (44:38) former Longwood student and winner of the women's 40-49, broke their own records.

Other category winners were Women's 30-39, Mary Stout of Hopewell (46:53); men's 40-49, Kevin Reynolds of Cumberland (39:59); and wheelchair division, Jimmy May of Midlothian (51:10).

Last year's record holders were Richard Ferguson (32:46) and Barbara Sabitus (40:18).

Dr. Gerald Graham directed the minithon and t-shirts were partially funded by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Virginia.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Dr. Bobbitt Honored With Position

From Public Affairs

Dr. Eleanor Bobbitt has been named president elect of the Southern District of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (AAHPERD).

The Southern District of AAHPERD includes 13 southern states and has a membership of about 10,000. Dr. Bobbitt is the fourth Virginian to serve as president of this district.

Her term of office on the District's board of directors will cover a three-year span, as president elect, president (in 1981-81) and past president.

The Southern District's organizational structure includes four divisions: general division, health division, physical education division, and recreation division. Dr. Bobbitt has just completed a term as vice president of the physical education division.

Dr. Bobbitt is a Longwood alumnae and also holds degrees from the University of Tennessee and the University of Maryland. She has been a member of the Longwood faculty since 1954.

She has held numerous offices in the Virginia Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, including serving as president in 1975. She is the recipient of VAHPERD's Honor Award and Certificate of Recognition and of Longwood's Faculty Recognition Award.

A specialist in developmental and psychomotor activities for young children, Dr. Bobbitt has directed numerous inservice workshops for teachers. She served on the Governor's Conference on Day Care Needs in Virginia and the Virginia Movement Conference committee.

Lancers Take Second In Golf Invitational

Longwood's women's golf team, which competes in the Lady Kat Invitational and the Marshall University Invitational this week, took second place in the Sweet Briar Invitational at Winton Country Club last week as Lancer Kay Smith took top individual honors.

After competing in the Lady Kat, hosted by the University of Kentucky, today and Tuesday, the Lady Lancers journey to Marshall, West Virginia for the Marshall Invitational Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Longwood will be competing against some of the top women's golf teams in the country in these two events.

Longwood had a team total of 680 in the Sweet Briar tourney, one stroke behind winner William and Mary (679). James Madison was third with a 758 while Sweet Briar and Mary Washington had only individual competitors in the tournament.

Smith tied with Tracy Leimbach of William and Mary for the top spot with an 81-82-163, however, Kay won the individual crown in a playoff. Longwood's Robin Andrews tied for second place with a 79-85-164. Lancer Janet Kelly was fifth with an 87-85-172.

Other Longwood scores included: Debra Hood 90-91-181, Janet Clements 98-96-194 and Sharon Gilmore 96-91-187.

Literary Festival 1980

(Continued from Page 2)

of Bryn Mawr College, she studied for a year at the University of London under a Fulbright grant and later received the M.A. degree in English from the University of Virginia.

She has worked as a stringer for International News Service in London, Russia and Eastern Europe writing articles for the Hearst newspapers in the U. S., served as editor of the Virginia Museum Members' Bulletin, and has taught writing courses at the University of Virginia and the University of Richmond. She has also taught poetry writing in secondary schools under the poets-in-the-schools program sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Virginia Commission for the Arts and Humanities. She is married to Richmond attorney George C. Freeman, Jr., and they have three children.

Mrs. Jokl teaches creative writing at Southern Connecticut State College and lives with her three sons in Madison. She states that she was "raised in Kentucky on farms of the chicken, cow and dirt variety." She received the B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Kentucky and the Ph. D. in English literature from Vanderbilt University.

Her poems have been published in Painbrush, New York Quarterly, South Dakota Review, South and West, The Greenfield Review, Hamden-Sydney Poetry Review, Moonchild: An Anthology of Women's Prose and Poetry, and others.

She states that the topics she has chosen to write about — children and the country people of Kentucky and Tennessee — are "currently not intellectually fashionable for poetry. In choosing to write about these subjects, I have made a formal engagement to seek truth in a simple manner."

The annual Literary Festival at Longwood is sponsored by Gyre, a student publication featuring original literature and art. This year's edition of the magazine will be available during the festival. Miss Cindy Cumins, is editor of the Gyre this year, and Miss Lisa Cumbeys is art editor.

Archeology

(Continued from Page 5)

The actual excavation will begin by laying off the site into one-meter squares, using surveyor's instruments. By a random mathematical selection process, a number of these squares will be chosen for excavation. (Dr. Jordan would like to excavate the entire site, but time will not permit this very ambitious undertaking.)

A team of two or three persons will be assigned to each square. The dirt will be stripped away, one-eighth of an inch at a time. All of the dirt is sifted through one-quarter inch wire, recovering bits of wood, bone, teeth, etc.

Any artifacts which are found are carefully dug around, leaving the object standing on a small mound of dirt. The object is photographed, and all pertinent details about it are recorded before the object is moved.

The tools used in the excavation process include masons' trowels, paint brushes, ice picks, spoons, toothbrushes, buckets, and brown paper bags. Funds for the purchase of this equipment came from the duPont Grant which Longwood received several months ago.

On the days when the weather does not permit working at the site, Dr. Jordan will lecture on archeological theory, artifact recognition, excavation techniques, North American prehistory, and other topics. The labeling and cataloguing of artifacts will be done the last several days of the Field School.

Enrollment in the Field School will be limited to approximately 18 people so that proper instruction and supervision may be provided. The group will be transported to the site in the college van, leaving the campus around 7 a.m. and returning about 2:30 p.m. Participants in the school will earn six hours of undergraduate academic credit.

Participation in the Field School is not limited to Longwood students. Interested persons are encouraged to call Dr. Jordan (telephone 392-4634) or Dr. Robert Lehman, Director of the Summer Session (392-9261). The registration period continues through April 25.

Open Mike

(Continued from Page 3)

each performance within the Open Mike and make sure everything runs smoothly. They accomplished this with the help of other S-UN members Mike Lafoon and Mark Geitz on sound and wiring, and Maurice Frank on lights.

Cooperation was definitely the name of the game Tuesday night as the crowd showed that it knew how to participate and carry the acts as each act exhibited concentration and dedication and as an All Star Open Mike Show ran smoothly. The seven judges did their duty by electing the Buddies Crash and Street Corner Symphony as the top acts as did every other part of a fantastic show. The crowd never knew what beautiful, funny amazing thing was going to happen next!

CLASSIFIED ADS

ROOMS FOR RENT — in town. Furnished or unfurnished. Contact: Peggy Hubbard, 392-4466.

FOR SALE — Cap, gown, and BA degree hood. After May 17. Will sell together or separately. Contact Debbie Northern, 392-6889.

A Small Initial Investment
AND YOU HAVE YOUR OWN MONOGRAPH FOR ANY COPY — PERSONAL TOUCH IN THE PERFECT GIFT FOR ANY WELL DRESSED MAN OR WOMAN.

MARTIN THE JEWELER
123 N. MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA.

Tiffany's Bridal and Formal

$1,000 FREE!

To some lucky Tiffany Bride' Register at any Tiffany's location before drawing on April 15. No purchase necessary.

Tiffany's Largest Selection of Bridal Fashions

NORFOLK
Military Circle Mall
461-1690

PETERSBURG RICHMOND
Walnut Mall 3120 West Cary St.
861-4140 355-4522

HAMPTON/NEWPORT NEWS
Newmarket North Mall
827-0390

PINO'S RESTAURANT

PIZZA & SUBS

TRY AND ENJOY ALL OF OUR SPECIALTIES OF THE HOUSE

MONDAY - CLOSED
TUES. - WED. THURS. AND SUN.
11 AM TO 11 PM
FRI. AND SAT.
11 AM TO 12 MIDNIGHT

404 S. MAIN STREET
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-3135

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23001

PORTABLE TYPEWRITER REPAIR

- OFFICE SUPPLIES
- OFFICE MACHINES
- OFFICE FURNITURE

THE HAIR SHAFT

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANI

HOURS

Mon. & Tues.	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. - Fri.	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located in The Farmville Shopping Center

Levi's

LARGEST & BEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S IN THIS AREA

JEANS SHACK

SALE

• PAINTERS PANTS
• SPRING OUTFITS • ROMPERS
• LEVI'S SHIRTS & PANTS

CHECK OUT OUR NEW MERCHANDISE

$1.00 OFF W/ LONGWOOD I.D.

SOUTHCATE SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4870

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3rd. St.
Farmville, Va.

"Your Flower Headquarters"

Dial a summer job:
800-331-1000

Work as a Manpower temporary. Flexible schedules. Good pay. Assignments available in your college town or hometown. Please call, toll free.

MANPOWER
TEMPORARY SERVICES

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1980

NO. 23

Founders Day-A Spirit Still Dwells Among Us

By LAURA ALLEN

Everywhere the question...Do you remember...? was heard as Longwood once again observed Founder's Day on Saturday, April 19. Many alumnae returned to campus on Thursday to tour the buildings and see the expansion which Longwood has undergone in the last few years. The class of 1930 was the honored class and a special breakfast meeting was held in the honor of its 50th reunion on Saturday morning. A coffee was held for the other reunion classes at the Alumni House and served as starting point for the events of the day.

Alumni Awards were presented at the morning program to graduates in their fields of education. The class of 1930 presented a gift to the college to exhibit their spirit and support of Longwood's efforts in higher education for today's young people. After remarks by President Henry I. Willett, Jr. and Mrs. Nancy Shelton, Alumni Director, the Longwood Company of Dancers and the gymnastics team presented routines for the entertainment of the returning graduates.

The annual parade of Alumni which makes Longwood's Founder's Day famous was held shortly after 12 noon. The Alumni headed by the class of 1930 and ending with the class of 1975 marched down High Street from Jarman Auditorium to the Rotunda. Alumni greeted old friends on the sidewalk as the parade processed down the street.

Many areas were available as "Meeting places" to meet and renew old friendships, remember old times, and catch up on new experiences. The Student Alumni Association on campus decorated classrooms to take the alumnae back to their year of graduation. Many groups were able to have informal meetings on their own to remember old times.

The cocktail dinners arranged by the college were more formal affairs and provided other opportunities to refresh memories.

When talking to returning graduates, some of the most heard comments were on the fact that many buildings have remained the same while many policies have changed. Questions about the new physical education building were asked frequently and questions as to further expansion. One alumni asked if CHI still makes walks at night around freshmen dormitories and this opened more memories of attempts to find out who was on CHI and surprises when burnings finally took place. One alumni mentioned that lights had to be out by 11 p.m. when she was here 20 years ago and that it was good to see a little less rigid rules today.

A craft sale and tour through Longwood Estates were arranged with some alumnae touring through the residence halls also to pay homage to particular rooms. At the Estates, alumnae recalled the Saturday afternoon strolls out to the house to eat those famous Longwood cinnamon rolls.

The day ended with an Alumni dinner. Many graduates stayed until Sunday afternoon to attend the Spring Choral Concert.

Founder's Day week end proved to be a success with many friendships renewed and memories discussed among old friends. Promises were made to meet again on the next Founder's Day celebration.

The years are only as distant as the memories

Photos by Melody Crawley

Nine Percent Increase Proposed

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Board of Visitors will be asked in May to approve a nine per cent increase in the fees of the college. President Henry I. Willett Jr. released the proposed new changes last week.

The Board had previously approved a 6.9 per cent increase. The president is now asking for $35 more.

This nine per cent includes an increase from $146 to $190 in the Athletic fees. The Activity fee will increase from $35 to $40. This increase was requested by the Student Activity Fee Committee at the February Board meeting.

In 1977, the Student Activity fee was five dollars more than the Athletic fee. President Willett says he sees that Activity fee increasing again in the next budget.

In the construction category, the proposed fee structure includes $30 for AUXOP construction and $30 for E and G construction. The AUXOP fee will help finish paying for the Langford Student Union building.

E and G construction is for the new Physical Education building. The cost of that new facility is $4,750,000. The state will pay approximately four million dollars of that figure.

The Student Union fee of $65 is for building maintenance of Langford and not for S-UN activities.

The only sections to decrease in dollar value are the laundry services and reserves. The decrease in the laundry is due to a decrease in employees. The reserves are funds used for emergencies such as dormitory fires, according to President Willett.

Fee Structure, 1980-81

	Board Approved, 1980-81	New Changes, 1980-81
Tuition	$725	$725
Construction (E&G)	30	30
Dining Hall	750	765
Residence Halls	810	830
Laundry	40	35
Infirmary	75	75
Student Union	65	65
Athletics	175	190
Construction (AUXOP)	30	30
Golf Course	15	15
Faculty-Staff-Student Services	5	5
Reserves	40	25
Student Activity Fee	35	40
Total	$2795 (+199)	$2830 (+234)
	6.9% increase	9% increase

Board Remains Firm

Narcotics Handled By Administration And Police

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The college issued a statement Thursday in reply to the Judicial Board's refusal last week to handle any more narcotics cases. The prepared statement issued from the Office of Public Affairs stated that the cases for now would be handled by the administrative officers and Campus Police.

President Henry I. Willett Jr. would not go into details Friday as to how the cases would be handled. He did say that narcotics on the campus would be dealt with. He added that anyone caught selling drugs would be turned over to the State Police. "This has been done in the past," he said.

The Judicial Board remains firm in their decision not to deal with narcotics. Threats to the Board are among the six reasons listed for their refusal. They will continue to handle non-drug-related Honor Code violations.

New procedures will be developed by the College in the coming months. Dean Mary A. Heintz stated that "the College has always taken a firm stand relating to the use of narcotics on the Longwood College campus and will continue to do so. We feel that because of this strong stand narcotics usage is comparatively low on our campus."

Class Elections

Class Elections will be held this Thursday, April 24, in the Rotunda from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. All offices have been closed for petitions except for the presidents of sophomore and senior classes, and the secretary of the sophomore class. Petitions for these offices are due to Becky Lee at 2-5904, Frazer 740 by midnight tonight (Tuesday, April 22).

All rising sophomores, juniors, and seniors are urged to vote Thursday. The winners will be posted Thursday night on the petition board in the Rotunda.

Dancers Salute Spring

By CINDY M. MORRIS

The Longwood College Company of Dancers presented their 1980 Spring Concert on April 7-19, 7:30 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium. The Company of Dancers under the direction of Dr. Betty A. Bowman did a superb job in demonstrating their dance and choreographic abilities to a very receptive audience.

The concert was a light program which was a perfect salute to Spring. The program began with the IMPRESSIONIST SUITE, mixing musical accompaniment with dance in a salute to Debussy. The first dance of the suite was entitled "Sails". The dance choreographed by Grace Ann Rodgers captured the audience in an atmosphere of sailing. The musical accompaniment of Miss Frieda Myers was a perfect piece for the well performed dance. The second piece among the suite of dances, a light dance entitled "Interrupted Serenade," was choreographed by Adrienne Heard. The choreography depicts two Spanish Matedors battling two bulls. The dance was performed as a ritual to the accompaniment of Rene Rowland. Tracey Hornmuth choreographed "The Maid with the Flaxen Hair" as the third piece in the suite. The accompaniment of Emily Sue Wilkinson was a slow and carefree musical score which set the tempo of the dance for the three dancers. The final piece among the IMPRESSIONIST SUITE, performed by the entire company of dancers, was entitled "The Engulfed Cathedral." The dance was very abstract in depicting an old legend of a sunken cathedral in the sea, which rises one day a year.

Following a brief five minute pause, the concert continued with an enchanting second half of the program. The tempo of the concert was picked up by the dance "Festival", choreographed by Vanessa Baird. The composition reflected the various types of dances that are enjoyable to many people.

"Moments of Time," a unique piece choreographed by Elizabeth Cardin, illustrated the elements of time outlining life's happenings that are portrayed in this symbolic dance. The bright costume and varying tempos of the dancers symbolized the elements of time.

A lively piece "Salute to Studio Dance Teachers", choreographed by Eileen Mathes, involved many "steps" that one has learned throughout their dance experiences.

A moment of silence swept over the audience as "Awakening" - was performed. The fast paced aggressive dance, choreographed by Adrienne Heard was performed as a trio. The dance illustrates the feelings of many individuals today, feeling helpless and angry in a world of changes.

A delightful dance entitled "On The Corner" led us to the fantasy world of the night life on street corners. Vickie Berman choreographed this jazz piece about three ladies of the evening, who have an encounter on the corner.

A complete student musical composition and dance were combined together in the "Farewell Processional". The original music was created by Rusty Hurley and the dance choreographed by Sherry Hogge.

(Continued on Page 8)

Returning Telephones

There is an easy way for students to discontinue telephone service at the end of the school year—use the telephone.

By calling Centel now at 392-3121 students can avoid inconvenient waits at the business office for removal orders to be processed at the end of the spring semester.

Students who leased equipment are responsible for returning their telephones to the company. By calling in the removal information beforehand, students need only drop off their phones at Centel's business office at 208 South Main Street.

"We want to make it as easy as possible for students to terminate their service," said Jim Mahan, business office manager. "By calling first, then dropping the phone off, students can save time and get money off their bills."

A four dollar credit for the first phone returned and a two dollar credit for all others will be applied to final bills for phones returned to Centel. Customers who do not return their leased instruments will be charged the value of the equipment on their final bill.

"All leased phones should be brought back to the business office, except wall phones that are wired in place," Mahan said. "Most phones can simply be unplugged from the wall. Phones without plugs can be removed by snipping the cord with scissors."

Poetry Reading

By LISA SPENCER

Dr. Vivian Jokl presented a reading of her poetry in the Virginia Room on Thursday. Dr. Jokl's poetry is very contemporary and deals with her experiences in life. She also punctuated her reading with humorous stories concerning her life as a poet.

The next day Dr. Jokl held a poetry workshop in Granger to help prospective poets with any problems they may be having. Her major advice was to be a good writer; your audience should not know when you are lying and when you are telling the truth. Dr. Jokl is presently engaged in seeking a publisher for a new book of poetry which she plans to have out soon.

Three Principles For College Life

By DEBBIE NORTHERN

In a lecture last Thursday entitled "Journey of the Intellect," Rev. Walter J. Burghardt, S.S., gave advice on what college life should be like. He urged students at Longwood to structure their college careers on three basic principles: accuracy, universality, and a unified vision.

Father Burghardt believes it is important to grasp what knowledge we can to the fullest extent. We must be exact and methodical in our quest for knowledge. For instance, in literature we must try to discover the feelings which motivated the author to write.

Universality is the desire to broaden our knowledge and horizons. We must never be content with a minimum effort of achievement, according to Father Burghardt, we need to step outside the narrow confines of our own self. If we do, "a suspicion may grow that there are dates more important than our own," said Father

Burghardt.

A unified vision is based on past knowledge and culminates in wisdom. The full vision cannot be attained until maturity, but in the meantime it may be begun. We must gradually achieve perspective (views, not opinions), said Father Burghardt.

One must desire knowledge for perfection of the self and for love. "Knowledge is the first step to love," said Father Burghardt. The discovery of God's creation should draw us closer to our fellow man and nature.

Father Burghardt fears Longwood students will complete their four years at college without forming views, with no sense of location or time, and no consistency in their arguments. He fears their educational experience will seem like "four years of rock and roll interrupted by class."

"I hope during the four years, you will not only learn, but learn to love," concluded Father Burghardt.

One-Act Festival Tomorrow

By LINDA WHEELER

How would you like to get out and relax before exams begin? You can do so by attending the One Act Play Festival on Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Studio Theatre in Jarman Auditorium.

There will be four plays presented. They are:

"The Restaurant" by Dan Greenberg, directed by Chris Conner. The play centers around three characters, played by Randy Cook, Susan Clift, and Frank Creasy, in a European restaurant and what happens when "things" start to happen to two of the characters.

"The Ladies Should Be In Bed" by Paul Zindel, directed by Susan Clift. The play has six characters in it, being played by Diane Wright, Elise McCarty, Faith Lancaster, Vicky Mann, and Lisa

Hughes. The play is about a group of middle class matrons who meet for bridge and are quickly drawn into more dramatic, disturbing matters. "Jealousy Plays a Part" by Charles George, directed by Linda Wheeler. There are seven characters in the play, being played by Lisa Swackhammer, Diane Wright, Melanie Hudnall, Mark Winecoff, Bonnie Walthall, Ginger Moss, and Neil Sawyer. The story deals with the first rehearsal of a play and the reactions of the people when they are assigned their parts by the "chief moving spirit of the dramatic club."

"No Snakes in this Grass" by James Magnuson, directed by Judi Stanley. The three characters in the play are being played by students from the

(Continued on Page 8)

"Festival," a dance choreographed by Vanessa Baird, reflected the various types of dances that are enjoyed by many people.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Social Change Lecture

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology of Longwood College is sponsoring a public lecture on the topic of social change in the United States. As part of the Department's annual Visiting Scholar Series the well-known anthropologist Dr. Joseph B. Aceves will speak on the topic, "The Retribalization of America: An Anthropologist Looks at the Future," at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 22, in the Bedford Auditorium on the Longwood campus.

Dr. Joseph B. Aceves is Coordinator of the Program in Social Anthropology at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Dr. Aceves earned the Ph.D. in Anthropology at the University of Georgia. He is the author of five books, including Social Change in a Spanish Village, 1971, and Identity, Survival, and Change, 1974, in addition to numerous articles and book reviews. Dr. Aceves has carried out fieldwork in Segovia Province, Spain (1966-67 and 1968-69), in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas (1969-70), and served as Director of the Ethnology Field School, Fort Burgwin Research Center, New Mexico (1972). His research specializations are Peasant Societies, the Mediterranean Cultures of Europe, and Hispanic Cultures in North America. Dr. Aceves is the recipient of Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, Wenner-Gren Foundation Fellowships, and National Science Foundation Grants. He is a Fellow of the American Anthropological Association, the Society for Applied Anthropology, and the Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland.

Dr. Aceves' lecture will be free and open to the public.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK

Tues.: Honors Assembly 12:45 — Jarman

Wed.: Senior Assembly — 8 p.m.

Thurs.: Senior Banquet — 6 p.m.

Good Luck Class Of 80!

PCP-Better Than Your Average "Buzz"

By KETTNER BENNETT

There was not one sequin in the place. But it wasn't really surprising since it was an outdoor concert with warm breezes, warm sun and a hot band, The P. C. Pickers. It was like dying and going to heaven.

Starting off their set was a biographical tune called "Pickers" and showed the versatility of the musicians. They went right from that into a tight medley of classic coal mining songs: "Sixteen Tons" and "Working in a Coal Mine," an apt piece since the Pickers' home base is in Putnam County, West Virginia.

Returning to Longwood for the third time were Steve Hill on vocals, acoustic and electric guitars, banjo, fiddle and harmonica. Since their last gig here the Pickers have acquired John Kessler on vocals and bass, and Ammed Solomon on drums and percussion. Their sound was noticeably tighter and the crowd sensed this through their repeated clapping and cheering.

The Pickers' music was virtuoso versatility with songs such as "Friend of the Devil," a gut-kicking tune made famous by The Grateful Dead, a 60's medley with the great sounds that we grew up with, and "Sad South Texas Blues" written by Mike Williams, a favorite of Longwood. But the Pickers really shone with their selection of original music, some of which was new since their last visit. One song that sticks to the mind was "People Street." As writer Steve Hill put it, "The song came about from my visit to Ethiopia a while back. I was real quiet over there. It was real heavy. I really can't put my finger on it, but afterwards I just had to write a song. I tried to get into the image of the people there and rhythm they were into." The song included an acoustic guitar solo by Steve that in his words "is totally atonal. I mean, I was trying to achieve the sounds and life of the people I saw and to incorporate the basic rhythm."

It is important to say that you can't tie the Pickers into any musical style from rock ("Led Zeppelin and His Country Rockin', Acid Bluegrass Band") to country ("Tuskarossa Stomp"), the P. C. Pickers gave this campus just what they wanted Sunday afternoon, the sunny side of some great music.

Uniquely Versatile

By LAURA ALLEN

Strumming, singing, playing the harmonica or kazoo and keeping the beat with cymbals, Robert "One-Man" Johnson sang, played and talked his way through three evenings of entertainment for the S-UN Coffeehouse this past weekend.

Robert "One-Man" Johnson is not an ordinary one-man band. Using a foot-diller, an instrument that produces and amplified piano-like sound, he gives a unique sound to his blues and ragtime numbers. His commentary which is intermingled between songs is as entertaining as his singing. Bit plugs for businesses from his hometown Wisconsin area are liberally sprinkled through dialogue and prove to be humorous bridges between selections or while he changes guitars or harmonicas.

Coordination is one of the outstanding qualities which amazes the listener about "One-Man's" act. One foot plays cymbals and one plays the fast-piano while he strums a guitar and sings or plays a harmonica on most numbers.

Selections include 40's and 50's tunes in ragtime and blues in a style that only "One-Man" Johnson could produce. The audience seemed to enjoy the show and sang along with some selections. "One-Man" used an interesting form of audience participation when he had matchbooks passed to the audience and invited accompaniment to certain selections.

All who attended the coffeehouse had an enjoyable evening of unique entertainment and a pleasant change from blaring rock tunes or much-played disco selections.

ROBBIN THOMPSON BAND

Thursday, April 24 — 8:30 P.M.
JARMAN AUDITORIUM

L.C. SENIORS $1.50 L.C. STUDENTS $2.50 GEN. ADMISSION $3.50

What A Show

On April 25, Library Mall will become a three-ring circus when the Franzini Family comes to Longwood. The Franzini Family is a group of multitallented individuals who have created a unique form of entertainment for audiences of all ages. Lizi, Lipi, and Luigi Franzini combine their talents in the areas of circus skills, dance, pantomime, music, juggling and clowning to create this old world vaudevilian style show.

The Franzini's pantomime section provides provocative entertainment on proscenium. Usual musical accompaniments are provided by a Japanese koto, a guitar, and a concertina. These pieces range from the touching love story of a puppet maker and his dancing doll to a humorous interpretation of the Adam and Eve story. The circus section includes juggling, unicycling, tightrope walking, balancing, magic, humor, a celebrated dog act, and other outrageous surprises. The sideshow acts include a fire-eater, a belly-dancer, a glass wonder boy and other oddities.

The Franzini Family provides entertainment to fit any fancy. So join the Student Union and the Franzini family on April 25 at 6 p.m. for an enjoyable show. Donations will be taken.

THE FRANZINI FAMILY

Pantomime & Circus Show

A STAR IS BORN

1980 PURCHASE AWARDS
Junior Art Exhibit

JOE WILSON
Recipient of 1980 ART DEPARTMENT Purchase Award for "Why It Rains," mixed media drawing

BILL LEWIS
Recipient of 1980 ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
Purchase Award for "Store Front," toned photograph

SALLY LOVE
Recipient of 1980 ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
Purchase Award for "Faceted Ice," ink

FRANK PRAWIN
Recipient of 1980 ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
Purchase Award for "Castle in the Air," transfer drawing

NEIL SAWYER
Recipient of 1980 ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
Purchase Award for "UNTITLED PHOTOGRAPH (landscape)"

April 8 - May 1
Lancaster Gallery

Spring Concert Presented

The department of music presented its Spring Choral Concert, April 20, with the Camerata Singers and the Concert Choir performing.

In the absence of Dr. Louard Egbert, director of the two groups, Margie LaReau and Margarette Roller conducted the Concert Choir.

The 100 soprano and alto voices of the Concert Choir performed poems by Sara Teasdale and William Blake respectively. In First Person Feminine by Seymour Barab, the choir performed "Pierrot," "The Daisy," "The Wayfarer," "The Look," "Love Me," and "The Kiss."

"Piping Down the Valleys," "A Cradle Song," and "Spring" were performed from Songs of Innocence by Karl Korte.

The mixed choir of the Camerata Singers directed by student conductor, Elaine McDonald performed Spherical Madrigals by Ross Lee Finney. Finney was a guest composer earlier this semester.

"Serenade to Music" by Ralph Vaughan Williams was also performed with soloist Andrea Mott, Chris Pace, Mary Breedon, Rebecca Nunez, Charles Lafferty, and Nancy Hawkins.

President and Mrs. Henry I. Willett Jr. honored the performers at a reception afterwards at the Longwood Estate.

Coming events in the music department include a departmental recital, April 22 at 1 p.m.; faculty recital with Frieda Myers and Paul Hesselink, April 24 at 8 p.m.; Student Conductors' Recital with the Camerata Singers and Concert Choir, April 29 at 1 p.m. and Concert Band, April 29 at 8 p.m.

Be sure to get your instant
CHARACTER PRINTS
at the Heart Of Virginia Festival
Saturday, May 3rd.

ROBERT T. FORE
PHOTOGRAPHY

119 N. Main St., Farmville, Va., 392-8710

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

MANAGING EDITOR Dave Gates
SPORTS EDITOR Chuck Cole
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer

STAFF: Cheryl Wilcox, Jody Gilbert, Thomas Cole, Frank Creasy, Barbara Baker, Susan Bullin, Debbie Cunningham, Doug Strobel, Mark M. Nolan, Sharon Janovich, Bill LeWarne, Beth Parrish, Robin Black, Lynne Swan, Robin Reynolds, Jul Morton, Lisa Spencer, Beth Licari, Debbie Northern, Donna Hughes, Linda Paschall, Johnette Mallory, Ted Kearny, Susan Crawford, Mindy Hirsch, Roxanne Slaughter, Laura Allen, Annette Saunders.

Member of the VIMCA

Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.

Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Your Turn

The spirit of CHI lives on . . .

Stands Firm

Dear Editor:

On behalf of Judicial Board I would like to thank the Longwood Student Body, faculty and administration and the Rotunda for their support in the last week. Since last Monday when we relinquished our responsibility pertaining to the handling of narcotics cases, I have met with members of the administration to consider resuming our previous position until the end of this semester; however, after conferring with the board, it was decided on the basis of the reasons listed and the principle involved to uphold the decision we made and not handle, in any manner, narcotics cases now or in the future. I hope that the student body realizes that this does not release them from their responsibilities. The position taken by the college pertaining to the possession and/or use of illegal narcotics stands as it did before.

Sincerely,
Sally Lowe
Chairman of Judicial Board

IAA

To the Student Body,
I am once again writing to the Rotunda on behalf of the Intramural Activities Association. This time my interest lies with Iler Field.

Iler Field, in the past, has always been on IAA field. The IAA has always scheduled their events assuming that we could use this field as we chose. It appears, however, that next semester, there is a great possibility that the IAA is going to have to rearrange their schedule to accommodate the scheduling of the home soccer games. The IAA does not object to sharing our field with any athletic teams if the need to schedule a couple of games on Iler due to scheduling problems. The soccer team, however, scheduled all of their home games on Iler Field without consulting either the IAA or the scheduling committee. The IAA is not too pleased with such an action and would like to ask the support of the student body on this issue.

The IAA realizes that there are problems with the conditions of some fields at Longwood. But, in the past, the soccer team has always used First Avenue field in the fall and the hockey team has used Barlow. During the fall, the IAA serves approximately 400 students through intramurals. Due to the number of our participants and the scheduling of our events and practices, the IAA needs Iler Field every day from 4 to 10. Iler has always been IAA field and we do not appreciate the fact that our use of it could be greatly shortened.

You, as a student, could be of tremendous help on this issue by giving the IAA your support through letters to the administration issuing your opinion. The IAA serves you, as a student through our various activities. But, without the same amount of time we have had on Iler in the past, we cannot continue to do so. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Susan Towler
Vice-president, IAA

Thanks To CHI

Dear CHI,

I would like to thank you, and 1980 members of CHI for making my first semester back at Longwood a very memorable one. For the first time in three and a half years at Longwood, I have finally seen CHI walk late at night (14 APRIL at 2 a.m.). Thank you all again.

Sincerely,
Lori Jean Morgan

Editor's Turn

As the year comes to an end, we sometimes stop to wonder where the time has gone. This is the last newspaper of the school year. . . and in less than a month the Class of 1980 will be graduating.

What has this school year brought to Longwood College? That is certainly a big question, for Longwood College has been an eventful place since we arrived here in August.

There have been the usually exciting events of Oktoberfest, Freshman elves, Mardi Gras, Spring Weekend. . . and then there have been the first ever events such as the John Dos Passos Award and Roy Clark as Visiting Artist. These things have put Longwood in headlines.

But then we look at what has really given the small comprehensive College in Farmville, Virginia news coverage . . . it scares us. Those headlines contain such words as Special Grand Jury, Management Team, and Judicial Board. And that's what the public reads about us!

Yes, we're just like any other college . . . we have narcotics problems, and Judicial Board can not deal with them. It's too bad that the newspapers had to aid in bringing that fact out.

So, where do we go from here? It's the end of the year and all is still not well. Judicial Board is standing firm on their decision not to handle the cases any more. The administration has turned this duty over to the administrative officers and the Campus Police. They have promised to come up with a permanent policy in the coming months.

And now we look at that gala events called Press Conferences. Attendance has gotten slightly better, but it is still the same people every month. It's almost like a ritual for those who attend and for those who don't . . . well, sometimes they might pick up a copy of the newspaper and read about it. And, then there are the questions . . . they seem to be on the same subjects every month. Athletics and the dining hall head the list every time. Oh, for the days of parking problems again. (Just kidding!)

Then there is the new event of open Board of Visitors meetings. By the way, that event is coming up real soon . . . as a matter of fact the first of May. There have been a few students who have learned the meaning of closed session to the point that it means a long wait. We must say though the faculty has shown an extreme amount of interest in these meetings. For the past five months it has been the Board's primary and almost only duty to deal with the Governor's Management Team Study.

The school year has been full of good and bad. Hopefully, we have learned from the bad and we unite to strive together to correct it and improve our college because of it. We shouldn't have to take any more faultiness and error. The good has boosted our moral and we must continue to strive for it.

Longwood College is a good school and it can be even better if we ALL work together.

Good luck on exams and have a great summer!

Longwood's First Visiting Artist

By MELODY CRAWLEY

He's a star, but he's still "just a down-home country boy." That is the only way to describe Roy Clark, superstar of country music and television. Clark, a native of Meherrin, Virginia, was honored Visiting Artist on Longwood's campus April 14.

"Music is one of the most special things that could happen to an individual. It's a great day for me," said Clark at a luncheon held in his honor in the Commonwealth Room.

Clark was almost two hours late arriving in Farmville. He had planned to fly here aboard his own jet directly to the Farmville airport; however, due to rainy weather, he was forced to land in Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Hester Clark, parents of the 47-year-old star, were among the 125 guests who attended the luncheon. Clark gave credit for his outlook on life to his parents saying, "It's the gift of these two great people here."

Mayor David Crute welcomed Clark to Farmville. He read a proclamation that made April 14 Roy Clark Day. He was also presented the first Board of Visitors Visiting Artist medallion. The medallion of the Longwood seal rested on a wooded plaque in the shape of the state of Virginia. In presenting the award, President Henry I. Willett, Jr., called Clark "a great man."

Visiting Artist

Clark's main purpose as Visiting Artist was to talk to the music majors. Before a group of them later that afternoon, he was very humble in saying he did not know what he could teach them. "They know more in their first six weeks here about what it is they are doing than I do," he added.

Clark had no formal musical training. He learned music from his father and uncles in Meherrin. He said they would sit on the porch picking their banjos and guitars when he was a boy.

The day for Clark did not end at Longwood. He was the guest at nearby Southside Community Hospital where he cut the "gauze" opening the new Roy Clark Emergency Treatment Center. Here he was presented a cake in the shape of a guitar made by ARA Slater Services at Longwood.

Getting Here

It took two years of correspondence to arrange for Roy Clark's visit. Henry Fulcher, a close friend of Clark's and announcer at Farmville's radio station, WFLO, was instrumental in getting him to come. Fulcher worked with Longwood administration as a liaison to Clark.

The college hopes to have Clark on campus once a year to work with music students as part of his role of Visiting Artist.

Clark's Publicist

Preceding Clark's afternoon visit Kathy Gangwisch, publicist for Clark, spoke to the music students at 11 a.m.

Sitting on the edge of Wygal stage, Ms. Gangwisch amazed the students present as she made a partial list of her client list. They included the Oak Ridge Boys, Tammy Wynette, George Jones, Lou Rawls, Bill Cosby, Loretta Lynn, and Donna Summer.

In a question and answer period, she revealed the various forms of the industry one could enter as well as the pros and cons of it.

George Bristol, Director of College Relations, who had been in constant contact with her in planning Clark's visit arranged for Ms. Gangwisch to come. As she explained, she usually does not travel with the performer unless she is needed for promotion and publicity.

Ms. Gangwisch has worked with entertainers for 12 years. She has degrees in mass communication, radio TV, journalism, and public relations. She is also a professional photographer. Her job takes her around the world promoting clients.

Photos by Barbara Stonikinis and Melody Crawley

Faculty And The Arts

Two Piano Work To Be Given

From Public Affairs

On Thursday evening, April 24, at 8 p.m., Frieda E. Myers and Paul S. Hesselink, both faculty members of the Longwood College department of music, will play a two piano recital in the college's recital hall in Wygal Music Building on the campus. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Featured on the program will be a recent work by American composer Barbara Kolb. Miss Kolb has received numerous prestigious fellowships, prizes, awards and commissions. She is the first American woman composer to be awarded the Prix de Rome.

The work to be heard on the program, SPRING RIVER FLOWERS MOON NIGHT was inspired by an eighth century Chinese poem and is scored for two pianos and prepared tape. Sounds on the tape feature guitar, mandolin, vibraphone, marimba, and chimes in addition to electronic sounds. Much of the work is quiet, delicate, evocative and contemplative.

The Kolb work is soon to be published by Boosey & Hawkes, New York. This regional premiere performance has been made possible through special arrangement with Miss Kolb and her publisher.

Other works on the program include: "Aria and Toccata" by Norman Dello Joio, "Fuge in C Minor," K 426 by Mozart, and "Variations on a Theme by Paganini" by the Polish composer Witold Lutoslawski.

Photo by Barbara Stonikinis

Baldridge Display

Mark Baldridge, Assistant Professor of Art at Longwood College, currently has worked on display at three locations:

At the Brookfield Craft Center in Brookfield, Connecticut, he has a sterling silver pin-pendant. This exhibition opened March 30 and runs through the month of April.

In the Jewelry and Metalsmithing Exhibition (an invitational) at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Baldridge has a 14K gold pendant entitled "Buttercup." This exhibition opened April 20 and runs through May 9.

In the Southeastern Metal Design Invitational at the Greenville County Museum of Art, Baldridge was invited to exhibit a sterling coffee server with a rosewood handle. This exhibition will begin May 7 and run through June 4.

Remaining Sports Events

Baseball H — Bowie St (2)	April 23	1 p.m.
Baseball H — St. Paul's (2)	April 24	1 p.m.
Men's Golf A — Richmond W&L, Randolph Macon, H-SC	Baseball April 26	1 p.m.
H — Bluefield (2)	Baseball April 30	1 p.m.
H — VMI (2)	May 9-10
Womens Golf A — Bowling Green Invitational	May 9-11
Womens Lacrosse A — Nat. Collegiate T	June 9-14
Womens Golf A — AIAW National T

SPORTS....SPORTS....

Double Victory

Last Saturday's baseball action brought two Lancer victories in the doubleheader against St. Mary's.

The Lancers won the opener 26-6 with 24 hits to their credit. Outstanding two-run homeruns, by David Mitchell and Tim Lowery added to the Lancer charge.

The team went on to win the second game 11-1, with 13 hits. The Lancers totalled 26 stolen bases in the two games.

Outstanding performances were turned in by centerfielder John Crosby. Crosby totalled 6 hits, 5 RBIs, and stole 10 bases. Designated hitter, Doug Toombs, had 5 hits and 3 RBIs to add to his record. Chuck Hagar found success off the mound as he batted 3 for 3, all doubles, and added 4 RBIs.

The games brought the Lancer record to 12-9.

Photo by Hoke Currie

SPORTS....SPORTS....

Lacrosse Finishes Fifth In State

By DEBBIE NORTHERN
Longwood finished in fifth place in the VWLA Division II Tournament this week end at William and Mary. After bowing to Bridgewater, 10-5 in the opening game, the Lancers came back to defeat Randolph-Macon Women's College 13-4 and Richmond 10-5.

Junior Julie Dayton sparked the Lancer attack, having a game high of six goals against Richmond for a total of 12 goals in the three tournament games. Dayton scored 44 goals in the 13 season games to lead the team.

Junior Kim Garber was the second leading scorer this week end with eight goals. Garber is the Lancers' second leading scorer with 19 total goals. Freshmen Mary Milne and Chris Mayer followed with 16 and 10 goals, respectively, for the year.

Six Lancer lacrosse players were selected to play on Virginia teams May 17-18 at the Southern District Lacrosse Tournament at Goucher College in Towson, Md. Julie Dayton was chosen as right defense wing for Virginia II, Kim Garber third home, Denise Snader left defense wing, and Cindy Dropeski right defense wing for Virginia III, and Debbie Cosby cover point for Virginia IV. Teri Davis was chosen as an alternate.

Longwood was the only Division II school besides Hollins who had players selected for either Virginia I, II, or III. All other players selected to these teams came either from Division I schools or club teams.

Coach Jane Miller was pleased with the team's performance this season. She cited Garber, Davis, Dayton, Cosby, and Kim Fuhr as key players this spring. Miller also complimented Jo Jacobs and Milne for doing a fine job in their first year of lacrosse.

The Lancers overall record was 6-7, 4-6 in regular season action.

SPORTS....

Netters 2-3 For Season

The tennis team ended its season this week end with two wins and three losses.

The team traveled to state competition Thursday at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg. The team placed seventh in overall state competition with 14½ points.

Doris Keyes won consolation in the third flight. She came in fifth in the state. Stephanie Ibanez made the finals in the consolation games of the fifth flight but lost in competition.

In other action, the team traveled to Virginia Commonwealth University at Richmond, April 12. The final score for this game was 7-2.

April 17 found the team in competition at top ranking Emory and Henry College. E&H beat Longwood 6-3. Longwood seeds one, two and three won their singles games. Margie Quarles, Nancy Leidenheimer and Doris Keyes were all winners for Longwood.

tennis team coach was Phyllis Harris.

Close Loss

ROSS CONNER and JOHN TODD

The Longwood College Rugby team finished its season with a close loss to Hampden Sydney College in the A game and a victory for the B team. The game was conducted under gentlemanly circumstances for the first time since the rivalry began. Longwood played an excellent game but was denied victory due to some unfortunate penalties.

Longwood College Rugby team had an outstanding season considering they played several major universities such as VCU, George Mason, and Va. Tech. The overall record for the spring season was 4-3; however, the party record was 7-0.

The Rugby team would like to thank the Longwood student body for their support, and a special thanks to I.B. Dent and the student Union. The Rugby team looks forward to a promising season in the fall.

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST
PHONE 392-4154

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

New Arrivals

SWIMWEAR

20% OFF

Remember it pays...
...to shop McKay's.

By KATHY CHASE

The last Intercollegiate Horse Show of the season was held on Sunday, April 13, at Virginia Intermont College in Bristol.

Shannon Chambers and Kathy Chase were point riders in the Novice Horsemanship on the Flat Division. Janet Young and Erika Cristea were point riders in the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter Division. Total team points was 14.

Kathy Chase placed third in her Novice Horsemanship on the Flat Class. Shannon Chambers followed suit and won third place ribbon in her Novice Horsemanship on the Flat Class.

In the Advanced Walk, Trot, Canter Division Janet Young placed sixth in Section A, while in Section B Erika Cristea won a second place ribbon.

Erika's second place gave her the points she needed to move to the Novice Horsemanship Division and to qualify for the Region IV Intercollegiate Horse Show.

The Region IV Intercollegiate Horse Show was held April 17 at Southern Seminary Junior College in Buena Vista. Representing Longwood were Kathy Redmon in the Novice Horsemanship on the Flat Division and Erika Cristea in the Walk, Trot, Canter Division.

Erika placed fourth in the semifinals of her division and fourth in the finals for the Walk, Trot, Canter Division.

In the coaches' meeting the show schedule was set up for the 1980-81 season. The following are the dates and host colleges for each show.

Friday, October 3 — William and Mary

Thursday, October 23 — JMU and Mary Baldwin

Sunday, November 2 — Longwood and Mary Washington

Sunday, December 7 — RMWC and Lynchburg College

Wednesday, February 11 — Sweet Briar and Hampden-Sydney

Thursday, February 26 — University of Virginia

VAIAW State Riding Championships — April 13 at Southern Seminary.

Since Region IV has been split into two regions for the 1980-81 season Longwood will not be competing against Hollins, Virginia Intermont, Southern Seminary, VPI & SU, Duke, and Averett. Several reasons for this split were that (1) the region was becoming too large with 16 member colleges and (2) if the region were to split each college could have a larger team and consequently send more than just eight riders to each show.

Tryouts for the team will be held in the fall. Watch for announcements in the Daily Bulletin and posters. Remember — riding is a co-ed sport!

Photo by Janet Clements

The Longwood Women's Golf Team placed eighth out of sixteen in the Marshall Invitational Individual scores were: Robin Andrews (above), 85-83 — 168; Janet Kelly, 89-85 — 174; Janet Clements, 85-96 — 181; Kay Smith, 93-90 — 183; and Beth Waddell, 91-93 — 184. Debra Hood scored 85-89 — 174, but was not added in the tournament total.

White Named Player Of The Week

Tim White, who has been named Longwood College Player of the Week, as he shot a 78-75 for a total of 153 in the VSIG Tournament in Hot Springs to tie for 6th place overall and to rank among the top three in the college division. White was also the leading Lancer golfer in the two-day tournament.

Longwood, 11th overall, ranked fourth in the college division with a score of 652. The Lancers shot a 335 Saturday and improved considerably Sunday with a 317.

Other Longwood individual scores were Rob Lane 87-82, 169; Dave Yerkes 87-82, 169; David Ritter 83 on Saturday, and Robert Boyd 78 on Sunday.

Photo by Hoke Currie

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY
392-5485
115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OFFICE SUPPLIES
OFFICE MACHINES
OFFICE FURNITURE
PORTABLE TYPEWRITER
REPAIR

"Gifts That Are Different"

- Jackets—Lined & Unlined
- L.C. Decals
- L.C. Stationery
- T-Shirts & Sweaters

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

CLOSED

OPEN MON.-SAT. 9AM-5PM WEDNESDAY MORNING

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues. 9 AM 8 PM
Wed. Fri. 9 AM 6 PM
Sat. 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The Farmville Shopping Center

PERINI PIZZA

OPEN:

Mon. Thur. 11:10 PM Fri. & Sat. 11:10 PM
104 HIGH STREET 392-5665

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Seasons
Swing To An End
Let The Follow Through
Feel Our Support

Don't forget
Secretaries Week
April 20-24

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

11000 Highway 101, Farmville, VA 23901

Dancers Salute Spring

(Continued from Page 2)

The dance symbolizes Miss Hogges dance experiences and memories that she performs as she gives her farewell to the Longwood College Company of Dancers.

Jennifer Selby choreographed "The Trial", which was a psychological theme of judgement. One dancer against three dancers who represent various aspects of her conscious.

The final dance of the evening is a salute to spring, "Spring Fever." Terri Stuart choreographed this light piece simply as an expression of joy felt in movement.

The Spring Concert was a result of many long hours of hard work and practices. The company performed well in their salute to spring. The company hosts many new members this semester. The members of the Dance Company are Tracey Hormuth, Elizabeth Cardin, Adrienne Heard, Grace Ann Rogers, Terri Stuart, Mary Cawthorne, Karen Crespo, Jennifer Selby, Karen Baker, Lori Blackard, Rebecca Johnson, Emily Bellavigna, Vickie Berman, Vanessa Baird, Diane Hutson, Joanne Kelarkis, Jan Jennings, and Eileen Mathes.

One-Act Play

(Continued from Page 2)

Prince Edward County High School. They are Chris Young, Thomas Forster, and Angela Oliver. The play is light at the beginning and then turns toward a serious note, that of racial conflict.

Everyone involved with the plays has worked very hard on their productions. Come out and enjoy the "fruits of their labor." You won't be disappointed. Admission is free.

LONGWOOD COLLEGE CALENDAR 1980-81

SECOND SEMESTER 1981

January 12 Monday

13 Tuesday

14 Wednesday

23 Friday

February 13 Friday

March 2 Monday

20 Friday

April 1 Wednesday

11 Saturday

25 Saturday

30 Thursday

May 1 Friday

8 Friday

16 Saturday

—Professional semester begins
Registration for seniors and juniors.

—Registration for sophomores and freshmen.

—Classes begin at 8 a.m.

—Last day to add a class.

—Last day to drop a class without an automatic "F".

—Estimates due in Registrar's Office at 12 noon. Incompletes from previous semester must be removed by 12 noon.

—Spring break begins after classes.

Classes resume at 8 a.m.

—Spring Weekend.

Founders Day.

Classes end.

—Examinations begin.

Professional semester ends.

Examinations end.

Graduation.

Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs
October 18 1979

BARBRA
STREISAND
KRIS
KRISTOFFERSON

R RESTRICTED
Under 17 requires accompanying Parent or Adult Guardian

"...a particularly potent fantasy with enough truth in it to make you believe and care."

"...packs an electric punch that will certainly move even the most jaded cynic to tears."

—Rona Barrett

—Richard Cuskelly,
LOS ANGELES EXAMINER

MOVIE

Red And White Rooms

APRIL 25, 26, 27 — 7:00 PM & 9:00PM

ADMISSION: $1.00

• SPRING OUTFITS • PAINTER'S PANTS
• ROUPERS • SKIRTS
• TEE SHIRTS & TOPS

$1.00 OFF W/ LONGWOOD I.D.

JEANS SHACK
SOUTHCATE SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4870

$1.00 OFF W/ LONGWOOD I.D.

• LADIES' JOD SHIRTS
• FASHION JEANS
• LEVI'S SHIRTS & PANTS

Levi's

LARGEST & BEST SELECTION OF LEVI'S
IN THIS AREA

Levi's

Share
a tradition
with Thomas
Jefferson.

The authentic
Jefferson Cup.

In 1810, Thomas Jefferson designed a handsome, round bottomed drinking cup. He commissioned a Virginia silversmith to craft eight cups in silver lined with gold. Jefferson treasured them highly, and bequeathed seven to his daughter for her children.

Stieff faithfully reproduced the eight-ounce Jefferson Cup (as well as two-ounce miniatures), for you and your family. It is the only authentic reproduction available—truly something to treasure and hand down.

In sterling (with or without gold lining) and pewter.

Martin

THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VA.

"The Rotunda"

56

Sept. 9, 1980

thru

April. 21, 1991

B²

A

B¹

B¹

A

B²

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LVI

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1980

NO. 2

President Of College Resigns

Henry I. Willett Jr. has announced that he will resign the position of President of Longwood College, effective August 1981. President Willett's resignation was presented to the Board of Visitors at their annual meeting in August.

The resignation came after a year of constant disagreement with the Administration and the College's Board of Visitors. President Willett received two votes of confidence during the year, both 5-4, from the Board.

President Willett has been here for the past 13 years. He came to Longwood from the Tidewater area as an Administrator in the Public School system. According to the President, he has no plans as of the present, although he has had several job offers.

The president's resignation reads as follows:

Members of the Board of Visitors:

It is with mixed emotions that I announce that I will give up the presidency of Longwood College effective August 31, 1981. This date is based upon (1) giving sufficient time to secure a replacement, and (2) it is the anniversary date when I entered State service which will be important for me in the years ahead. I will announce my decision in early September, possibly at either capping or Convocation, but no later than September 10. I need some time to notify the Governor, key members of the General Assembly, and other supporters of the College before they read it in the newspaper. The best interests of the College dictate that there be no leaks of this information prior to that time.

The decision to leave after some 13 years is not an easy one to make but it is one that I have weighed on and off over some 5 years. Some are aware that I gave serious thought of leaving prior to our going coed. The impending challenges of that move, however, caused me to remain until those challenges had been successfully met.

As senior college president in Virginia, I am probably more cognizant than most of the length of service of most administrative positions. I am convinced that you will not see college presidents, city or town managers, or superintendents of schools remain in positions for the extended periods of time that once was the case. Many factors, of course, contribute to this situation. One may simply be the accumulation of the number of times that you have to say "no" over the years. In any event, I feel that my time, too, has come.

I will expect to go into more detail in regard to some of my thoughts during the executive session on Thursday. I, also, will want to discuss several related matters at that time.

There are two other points which I feel compelled to make in this communication to you. Governor Dalton, in my opinion, had given a clear mandate to this board in his selection of Board appointees. The reappointment of Mrs. Pretlow and the appointments of Mr. Rust and Mr. Smyth constitute a clear-cut rejection of the contentious candidates suggested by some members of the faculty and their allies. This is a major victory for the institution. Mrs. Pretlow's record as a Board member is exemplary. While I have met Mr. Rust and Mr. Smyth only briefly, my initial reaction to them as Board members is extremely positive. I regret that I will have the privilege of working with them only one year.

In the interest of candor, I must speak to a second major issue. There are several on the Board who have misconstrued the call for increased Board responsibility to include involvement in the day-to-day operation of the institution. The most important lesson a Board member can learn is the distinction between policy-making and administration. If the College is to move forward in the difficult days of the 1980's, then every Board member must clearly understand this distinction. It is a distinction that was understood on this Board for better than 10 years.

I shall always have a warm spot for this institution and wish her continued prosperity and success in the years ahead.

Sincerely,
Henry I. Willett, Jr.

Photo by Barbara Stonikinis

School Officially Opened

By BETH PARROTT

Convocation, or the official opening of the academic school year, was held September 4 at 1 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium with President Henry I. Willett, Jr., presiding. Some of the faculty and senior class were present in their full academic attire.

The Reverend John H. Loving, Rector of Johns Memorial Episcopal Church, gave the invocation, after which Dean Carolyn Wells recognized the Longwood Scholars present. They are: Cynthia G. Poore, Mary B. Johnson, Sharon P. Wooten, Melinda C. Allman, Charma E. Moore, Carol A. Parrish, Patricia A. Paschall, Donald N. Roland, Jr., Susan A. Watford, Gilbert Bates, Leigh A. Goddin, Connie Reeves, and Janet Smith.

Ms. Jan Jennings, Senior Class President, introduced the speaker for the service, Dr. George R. Healy, vice president for academic affairs and provost at the College of William and Mary.

A native of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Dr. Healy holds the B.A. degree from Oberlin College, the M.A. and Ph.D. in history from the University of Minnesota.

His career in higher education has included teaching history at the University of Minnesota, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Bates College (Maine) where he also served as chairman of the department of cultural heritage, dean of the faculty, and provost.

Dr. Healy spoke to the seniors and others present trying to encourage them to do their best. He presented the future in somewhat uncertain terms.

In another ceremony last week, President Henry I. Willett, Jr. spoke to the seniors about Longwood after graduation. He told them that they would probably not see much visible change in the college ten years from now.

Willett spoke to them at Senior Capping, September 3 at 7 p.m. in Jarman. Capping ceremony is the first senior ceremony of the year.

After his talk, Dr. Willett presided over the ceremony where the little brothers and sisters placed caps and varying tassels on the seniors' heads.

A reception given by the sister green-and-white class followed in the Gold Room of Lankford.

New Administrators Appointed

Longwood College has announced the appointment of three administrators.

Dr. Leo C. Salters has been named vice president for students affairs and dean of students, replacing Dr. Mary A. Heintz who has resigned her administrative duties to return to teaching.

Coming to Longwood from a position as assistant vice president and dean of students at State University of New York-Genesee, Dr. Salters has extensive experience in student life administration and counseling. He has been associated with the office of student affairs at SUNY since 1969.

Prior to that, he was associate dean of students at Moorhead

State College in Minnesota for three years. He has also served as a residence hall area coordinator at Pennsylvania State University and a counselor at North Dakota State University.

He holds the B.S. and M.Ed. degrees from the University of Kansas and the doctorate in education from the University of North Dakota. He is married and has one son.

Dr. Ralph P. Hundley has been named Director of Institutional Advancement. He will supervise the college's development and private fund-raising activities and alumni relations.

A native of Roanoke, Dr. Hundley holds the bachelor's degree in business administration from Roosevelt University in Chicago, the master's in business administration and the Ph.D. in management from California Western University.

Dr. Hundley just retired in August as a Marine Corps officer, with extensive management experience in assignments throughout the world. In his most

Photo by Pam Winger

Seniors receive Caps from little sisters or brothers, Wednesday night.

(Continued on Page 8)

Geist Taps Six

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM
Geist Tapping was held in Wygal on Thursday at 7 p.m. - Geist is an organization on campus that promotes leadership, service for fellow men, and scholarship. It is an organization for busy and achieving people. These are also most of the qualifications to become a Geist member along with having and maintaining a 2.8 overall average.

Guest speaker was Dr. Joe Leslie Sneller, a member of the English department here. She spoke about spending time alone and how to make the best of that time. She also spoke on the subject of total self-acceptance. Dr. Sneller feels that a person must totally accept themselves before being able to accept any other part of life.

Geist chose six new members which was a high number for this time of the year. Each had their accomplishments, which they had achieved while at Longwood, read, and they were robed and presented with a carnation.

New Geist members include Rebecca Williams. Rebecca is a Therapeutic Recreation major from Prospect, VA. She has been involved in class activities and will coordinate Oktoberfest skits, along with Geist president, Bill LeWarne.

Sally Lowe, a government major, was also tapped. Sally is chairman of Judicial Board. She, along with member Dave Roller will head Paint Battle and Judging.

A business major from Glen Allen, Va., Bryon Bracy was chosen for his outstanding spirit and all-around support. Byron and Tammy Bird will be in charge of Oktoberfest Ushers and Meisters.

Tracey Hormuth, a therapeutic recreation major from Virginia Beach, Va., will be head klown for Oktoberfest. Tracey is also President of Dance Company and a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority.

A Home Economics major from Pittsville, Md., Cheryl Adkins is president of Honors Council. She and Elaine MacDonald will be working with the Food and the Parade for Oktoberfest.

Melody Crawley is an English major from Gretna, VA., and will be aiding Donna Hughes with Midway. Melody is editor of The Rotunda.

Geist Tapping for Klowns, Ushers, and Meisters will be held September 18.

Photo by Linda Paschall

New Geist members take pledge to organization.

Make A Friend... Join Circle K

By CHERYL BEAUSOLEIL
College is more than scholarship—it is a good time; it is getting to know others; it is finding out who you are; it is trying to make a meaningful contribution in a world that wants you to wait. Circle K provides a unique opportunity for reaching each of these goals.

There are many organizations on campus, but one in particular that needs you is Circle K.

Circle K is a service organization through which you can help other people. Circle K is not for all people; it is for students who want to make an impact on life. It is concerned with both the youth and elderly in this community.

The club was chartered last year. This year it plans to have many service projects, and also believes that social life is important. Picnics, parties, conventions and rallies are just a few of the things it does to make Circle K a total organization.

The first meeting will be tonight at 7 p.m. in the Goldroom. If you would like any additional information on Circle K, please call 392-9006.

Circle K is a means of forming friendship, working in a common cause with other students and simply having fun. Hope to see you tonight. The only way to multiply happiness is to divide it.

Professors Form OTF

By BILL BRENT
Last spring the Organization of the Teaching Faculty (OTF) was formed at Longwood College. The OTF was proposed last March, after the management study at the college. Dr. Susan May is President of the OTF this year.

Before the OTF was formed, all faculty meetings were directed by Dean Wells; she also appointed all committee members except two elected committees. Under the regulations of the OTF, Dr. May directs faculty meetings. Several committees are appointed by the faculty president and the executive committee. The President of the OTF appoints the following committees: Finance and Budget, Student Life, Faculty Research, Colloquium, Francis B. Simkins Lecture Series, Library, Committee on Naming Facilities. The Faculty Advisory committee to the Board of Visitors and President of the College, the Curriculum Committee and the Honors Committee are elected by the faculty.

The OTF will enhance the faculty's ability to take the initiative to make proposals to benefit the students. Each committee concentrates on improving an aspect of the student's life.

"It's a good idea, but people must be patient," says Mrs. Harriss. Dr. Robert Wu commented, "It's a good idea, it needs review." The OTF will need time to determine its strong points and shortcomings. "If there is any power with the organization it can do great things for the college," says Dr. Merkle.

The OTF is a new organization with fresh ideas and insight. For it to be effective, time, patience and cooperation must be united.

Ritchie To Give Speech

On September 11, at 1:00 p.m., on the campus of Longwood College, in the Red, Green and White Rooms of Lankford Building, Dr. George Ritchie, Jr. will speak on "My Death Experience and Its Implication for Myself and Others."

White Stone, Virginia is where Dr. Ritchie lives and has his private practice. He is the author of the book Return From Tomorrow in which he relates some of the most startling, most mysterious, yet most hopeful descriptions of the realm beyond our own that have been brought to light in this century. Also Dr. Ritchie is very active in the White Stone United Methodist Church and while in Richmond and Charlottesville was active in a United Methodist Church.

The students, faculty, and administrators of Longwood College, Hampden-Sydney College; and the public are invited.

The program is sponsored by the Wesley Foundation and the Inter-Religious Council of Longwood College.

Rush

... an experience ... an opportunity ... a time to open yourself to getting to know others and for them to know you ... a chance to experience fresh relationships and to be touched by the bond of sisterhood ... the time to realize needs and search for decisions ... the warmth to light the flame of commitment or simply to spark new insights ... an experience ... an opportunity

Sept.

- 10-12 Rush Sign-up in New Smoker 11-2 4:30-6:30 p.m.
- 14 Orientation Meeting in Jeffers Auditorium 6:00 p.m.
- 14-15 Open House in Chapter Rooms 7-9:20 p.m.
- 16 Skit Parties in Chapter Rooms 7-9:30 p.m.
- 17 Skit Parties in Chapter Rooms 7-8:50 p.m.
- 18 Free Night
- 19 Theme Parties in Chapter Rooms 7-10 p.m.
- 20 Inspirational 8:45-10:45 p.m.
- 21 WALK 7:30 (Rushes be waiting in Lankford. Be there by 7 p.m.)

Happy Hours Aren't Here Again

By SARAH STUMP

It is four o'clock on a Friday afternoon and the Longwood campus is virtually deserted. Where can everyone possibly be? You cruise on over to Lankford, to check your mailbox and then maybe grab a Coke at the Snack Bar. Bummer...your mailbox is empty. However, upon your descent towards the usually quiet Snack Bar, you hear blaring music and the roar of voices. As you enter, the place is mobbed; it appears to be a regular Animal House. It's Happy Hour at Longwood! Bag the Coke, grab a beer!

This semester, however, there is no Happy Hour. Randy Jones, manager of the Snack Bar, got word from Gordon Inge that the crowd at Happy Hour was getting "too rowdie." If the man from the ABC Board were to drop by, the Snack Bar could possibly lose its ABC License. Jones feels that the students would much rather buy their beer on campus than have to go into town. Losing its beer license would no longer allow the sale of beer at the Snack Bar. So why take the chance?

So now when you walk the Longwood campus on a Friday afternoon and it looks deserted...it is!

House Of Beauty

100 High St., Farmville, 392-4460

Welcomes...Cathy Thorton from Altavista, Va. Specializing in the latest precision cuts for blow and go. She'd like to build her clientele...find out how to get a free haircut.

Terry's Bakery

SPECIALIZING IN A FULL LINE OF BAKERY PRODUCTS
—Decorating Cakes—

ECLAIRS 2 FOR 85¢
ONLY WITH THIS COUPON

We're glad to announce the arrival of Valerie Lloyd from Richmond.

MERLE NORMAN/HAIR HUT SALON

223 N. MAIN STREET,
FARMVILLE, VA., 392-6343

Posters

By NEIL SAWYER

During the majority of the month of September, Longwood College, in cooperation with the Virginia museum, is presenting two exhibits dealing with posters past and present.

September 3-24, a two-part exhibit is on display in the Gallery of the Lancaster Library centering on posters advertising events, organizations and services all over the world. The group of posters are temporary and feature graphic works from such famed printmakers as Jasper Johns, Robert Motherwell, and Joseph Albers. The second group, entitled "Images as Advertisements" consists of 19 posters from the 19th century by both American and European artists. This exhibit is open during regular public Library hours.

September 8-28, an exhibit entitled "Posters of Two Wars" is on display in the Bedford Art Dept. Gallery. These works which are on loan to the Virginia Museum's traveling exhibits from the George C. Marshall research Library in Lexington were designed as allied propaganda during the first and second world wars.

These posters were used to rally citizens on the home front for the allied war efforts and enlist support through the buying of war bonds, saving gas, or enlisting in the service. They had the hard sell quality of being highly emotional and deeply patriotic while being very bold visually.

The works on display represent some of the best in early to mid-1900's design and illustration and include several well-known artists. Norman Rockwell who is known for his heart warming Americana is represented as is Howard Chandler Christy. Christy was the creator of the famous "Christy Girls" which became as popular as their fore runners the "Gibson Girls." His work is typical of the bold, flamboyant posters exhibited.

The exhibit is open during office hours on weekdays and from 2-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Blasch

Recital Given

By TOM SULLIVAN

On August 31, at 4:00 p.m., the Longwood campus was once again graced with the piano performance of Dr. Robert Blasch. Having performed early semester recitals each year, he has become one of those eagerly anticipated by students. Dr. Blasch began the recital with a very professional composure about him as he stepped to the piano amid the expected applause. His months at practice and preparation paid off as he beautifully performed works by Liszt, Hindersmith, and others. Dr. Blasch's professionalism flew from his hands to the keyboard in slow beautiful music to speeding cascades of sounds. Dr. Blasch remained a perfectionist throughout the concert without even the hint of a "prima donna" appearance. Overall, it was a very professional recital and a nice way to spend a Sunday afternoon.

FRESHMEN!

BE SURE TO VOTE

IN CLASS ELECTIONS TODAY!

Longwood Players

Open Season

By NINA BOWYER

"Barefoot in the Park," a comedy by Neil Simon, has been selected by the Longwood Players as the play to open the 1980-81 drama season. Richard Gamble, professor in charge of direction and scenery, has already chosen his cast and crew chiefs in order to prepare for the play due to open October 15.

The cast will include: Sherry Forbes, Frank Creasy, Jerry Dragenhart, Myra Pierson, Mark Winecoff, and David Wood. The technical crews will be headed by upperclassmen with previous experience with the Longwood Players. Lisa Swackhammer is stage manager, with assistance from Rob Marenick. The sound crew is headed by Stewart Wedel; props — Suzanne Day; electricity — Jeff Sledjeski; running crew — Anne Omhundro. Make-up and costume are headed by Karen Hughson and Shelly Gluss respectively. Laura Carroll heads publicity and Caren Brosi is in charge of the House.

Gamble expects and is receiving a great deal of effort from these students. The Rotunda will carry weekly reports on the progress of the play.

Rock With The

Micheal Guthrie Band

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

This Sunday, Sept. 14, at 2 p.m. out on Lankford Mall will be The Micheal Guthrie Band. The band presents a unique blend of rock 'n roll and British-flavored "power pop" rock.

The Micheal Guthrie Band has been seen in concert with Yes, Atlanta Rhythm Section, Dixie Dregs, Stillwater and other recording acts. Several critics have said that this is the most dazzling trio ever, consisting of Michael, his brother Herb Guthrie, and bassist Michael McNally. If you saw them in the Fall last year, you'll love them again, and if you haven't seen them before, come on out for a nice afternoon of rock 'n roll — it's free — so take your head out of those books for a couple of hours and come hear the Micheal Guthrie Band.

SATURDAY NIGHT ALIVE, PRESENTS

"The Bill Blue Band"

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13

9:00 P.M.,

DOWNSTAIRS DINING HALL

I.D.'s REQUIRED

L.C. STUDENTS $2.00

GUESTS $3.00

World Wide Pictures presents
The GOSPEL ROAD

A story of Jesus sung and told
by Johnny Cash

September 20
ABC Rooms
7:30 p.m.

IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE STEVE NELSON SOCCER TOURNAMENT

FRI., SEPT. 12

9:30 a.m. - 1 a.m.

LANKFORD RED/WHITE/GREEN ROOMS

L.C. STUDENTS & SOCCER PLAYERS $1

GUESTS $2

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

SPORTS EDITOR ... Dallas Bradbury
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR ... Jackie Steer

BUSINESS MANAGER ... Robyn Black
ADVERTISING MGR. ... STAFF: Dave Gates, Brenda Coleman, Pam Updike, Jody Gilbert, Carole Key, Mitzi Mason, William Brent, Deborah Peterson, Cindy Hall, Janice Roakes, Donna Hughes, Linda Wheeler, Tom Sullivan, Pam Winger, Beth Parrott, Nina Bowyer, Debra Cunningham, Sarah Stump, Robyn Carr, Connie Fallon, Dawn Pardo, Tom Stanley, Neil Sawyer, Joe Johnson, Jodi Kersey.
Member of the VIMCA

Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration. Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

CHI Letter

To the Student Body—

Welcome back to another year at Longwood. CHI has been busy making plans for this year, and would like your help.

Several times during the year, CHI commends and supports various events with banners at the events, or signs in the dining hall. Most of the time, CHI welcomes you to take the banners after the event. There are special banners, however, that are not to be taken. These banners include the big, cloth banner that is usually displayed at Oktoberfest. CHI asks that you not take these, so that they can be enjoyed by the whole college.

CHI has also asked The Rotunda for a small box in issues of the newspaper for special messages. Please watch closely for these comments from CHI.

Most of all, become involved in Longwood this year. There are many areas in which you can make a BIG difference. There are class activities, clubs, and various organizations that are just waiting for your help.

Thank you for your cooperation and good luck this semester.

Blue and White Love,
CHI 1981

Chopped Promises

Dear Editor,

On behalf of those students that care, I would like to thank those involved (Board of Visitors, Etc.) for cutting down that wasteful tree next to the gym. So what if a few students were PROMISED it would stay there unless it died. So what if the FACULTY VOTED TO KEEP IT. Just because a single tree is almost perfectly shaped and probably the most beautiful thing on campus, that isn't sufficient reason to keep it. Needless to say, the mentioned sum of $10,000 to keep the tree is a lot. However, why was that the only figure mentioned? It seems a little unorthodox to cut down one tree only to plant another in its place. And people wonder why the school has problems? Maybe we should also buy Goodwin Lake and transform it into a student shopping center. It's nothing but wasteful beauty now. I especially thought that it was ingenious how the tree was cut down right after last year's graduation. That way, those peon students wouldn't have a word to say about it. Besides, what do they know, right?

Yours truly,
Tired of lies

Attention Reds And Greens

Dear Reds and Greens,

No, Oktoberfest isn't this week end, although it seems like it. Preparations and planning have begun, as most of you have noticed, for skits, committees, booths, and most recently, the tapping of the new Geist members.

Reds and Greens, as you go about these confusing "we'll never get going" beginnings, don't forget your most vital potential, new students. Too often, the same people are used to fill spaces, simply because they are there when needed. Keep these people, of course, but find others with the talents you need.

Seniors, this is your last Oktoberfest. Don't leave anything undone.

Juniors, with two years behind you, everyone knows the ropes, and can put forth their best efforts.

Sophomores, don't lose the spirit you showed last year as freshmen.

Freshmen, this is your beginning. Find your place, but get involved somehow. Don't be afraid to try.

Geist has many surprises in store for you at Oktoberfest. It's definitely going to be bigger, and with the Reds, Greens, and the Blues, it will be better.

Bill LeWarne
Geist '80

ID's Please

Dear Students:

The Student Union would like to thank everyone for making our first week end this semester such a great success. However, since many students appeared at the two events without their IDs, I feel it necessary to explain S-UN's policy on requiring identification. At any event where the Student Union sells beer, we are required by the ABC Board to check the ages of all persons entering. Longwood and other college students must produce a current ID and guests must produce a driver's license. Guests must enter with a Longwood student; they cannot meet inside. Should we allow underage people into our events, the ABC Board could revoke our right to hold an ABC license. In other words, we would not be allowed to sell beer at any event sponsored by S-UN, including mixers, Saturday Night Alive, or the Sound Gallery. Therefore, we require IDs not only to protect S-UN, but also to protect the rights of our students. Please help us to help you. Bring your ID!

Thank you,
Marjorie Croxton
Chairman, Student Union

Freshman Spirit

Dear Editor,

I would like to congratulate the Freshman class for their marvelous support and attendance during orientation. It was very refreshing to see the spirit that showed that first couple of days of school. It is even more refreshing to see that same great spirit shining each day.

Also, I would like to thank Brenda Fettrow for the excellent job she did in planning and leading the orientation program. You were terrific, Brenda!

I want to wish the Seniors a happy and prosperous year—you deserve to have fun and enjoy your last year at Longwood!

And to the rest of the student body, have a great first semester!

Blue and White Love,
Pam Updike
Jr. Class President

Thanks

To everyone involved in Orientation:

I'd like to give a special thanks to all the people that helped me in Orientation. For all the Orientation leaders, colleagues, Student Assistants, the reds, and the greens; I can't thank you enough. Orientation could not be done without all your help. A special thanks to all the speakers, the administration, Sally Lowe, Tammy Bird, Linda Wheeler, Beth Rowe, Linda Paschall, and Miss Swann; for without these people, who offered constant support to me and offered to help anytime I needed it, the program could not have been done. My sincerest "thanks" to everyone and best wishes for an excellent and prosperous year.

Sincerely,
Brenda Fettrow
Chairman of Orientation

1000

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Editor's Turn

Longwood has many traditions that have been passed down for as long as anyone can remember. This newspaper as almost always supported these traditions. However, there comes a time when everything has to be questioned!

Last week Longwood held what is traditionally called convocation or the official academic opening of the school year. There were several problems this year, however the main one was that no one showed up!

It is traditionally a senior ceremony. There were very few seniors there. This year that could not be blamed on Mr. Harper, because caps and gowns had arrived.

The ceremony is required for freshman to attend. But, just like the seniors, the freshman did not show. It is just a little coincidental that the orientation leaders, a lot of which are seniors, are the ones who were to encourage the freshmen to attend.

And then, there is the problem of the faculty. The orientation leaders who did stress convocation to the freshmen told them of the faculty dressed in their academic attire. Upperclassmen always tell how beautiful certain faculty members robes are.

But, on Thursday, for those who were there, they only saw a small number of faculty members dressed in cap and gown. Others were observed sitting in the back of the auditorium. And then, there were others who were not observed at all.

It is really a shame that the college can not officially open it's doors with full participation. The faculty were heard complaining of the student's attendance. And, of course, the students were heard complaining of the faculty's attendance. Where does it all end? No one is willing to set the example for the other.

Rumors have it that faculty members may have been protesting. By not attending Convocation, however, it would seem that they are protesting against students. After all, is not that why the college is officially open.

It is the hope of this newspaper that next year's convocation will turn out better: For those who do attend or do not.

Digging Up The Past

By CONNIE FALLON

Archaeology is defined as the study of extinct ways of life. This interest in man is to uncover artifacts of the past that will testify to the cultures of yesterday.

During the past hot summer months of June, July, and August, a thirteen member team, with this common interest, uncovered the remains of a nomadic tribe of Indians. Directed by Dr. James W. Jordan, students uncovered artifacts (the objects man makes) that are approximately 2,400 years old. Their discoveries of arrowheads, tools, and shards of pottery, combined with Dr. Jordan's theory for digging this particular site have created a vivid image of life on Anna's Ridge.

The site, Anna's Ridge, is located above the Willis River in Cumberland State Forest. Dr. Jordan described his reasons for choosing this site as follows:

1) It is on a river. Rivers were used by the Indians as highways.

Travel was swift and easy.

2) This higher ground close to the river afforded a good camp site.

3) At this point of ground the river bends. This slows the water and allows greater small animal habitation in the reedy banks.

To the Indian this was a choice spot to replenish food stocks, and as shown by artifacts, repair weapons and broken tools. This theory seems very strong and is certainly well evidenced.

The collection of various artifacts resulted in what Dr. Jordan described as a "tool kit." They found arrowheads and spear points used to kill the animals. Larger stones with finely ground edges functioned as knives to cut flesh, and small stone saw teeth that could be imbedded into wood, served to cut bone. Other tools in the collection were used to repair arrows and some even to cut and sew leather. Shards of pottery are evidence to cooking and a posthole about 40 inches deep is perhaps evidence to a dwelling.

All the artifacts found at the dig this summer, Dr. Jordan plans to allow students to study in his spring semester class, Anthropology 102. Any interested student may take this class and no prerequisite is required. Hopefully this class will create an extended interest involving more students.

The field school will also continue excavation next summer session, offering two five-week sessions to further the study. Dr. Jordan invites students to come and see him to sign up for the field school. This is also open to any student with a genuine interest.

This year's members enjoyed the dig but all were not Anthropology Majors. The thirteen students were: Nancy Annis, Carol Boyers, Donna Dowdy, Robert Flippen, Howard Fox, Erich Krause, Laura and Mary Ellen Munoz, Kevin Ryman, Ruth Trumbo, Pamela White, Cynthia Whiteside, and David Wilson. All members worked hard and Dr. Jordan was pleased to see that interest increased as the work went on. Hopefully Dr. Jordan and next summer's field school will do as well in the continuing exploration of Anna's Ridge.

Page 5

THE ROTUNDA

Tuesday, September 9, 1980

Photo by Melody Crawley

Bob Flippen of Meherrin, Va., was part of the Field School. Flippen studies American Studies at George Washington University.

Dr. Quentin Vest:

A Rock Star

by JODI KERSEY

Dr. Quentin Vest, associate professor of English at Longwood, pursued his musical interests while on a Fulbright scholarship to Rumania where he taught American Literature at the University of Budapest. From the association with the famous gypsy musician Johnny Raducanu, he played with Raducanu's band at a national jazz festival last March which was attended by about 3,500 people and was televised nationally in Rumania and Eastern Europe. The video tape was sold to the BBC and was then shown in England and Australia.

Vest was asked by a national recording company, Electrecord, to record an album. All the musicians he had been playing with joined him eagerly to help with the background music and vocals for his album. The musicians were like an "all star cast" stated Vest. Raducanu orchestrated the songs with Vest as solo and a famous female group in Rumania called 5-T as backup.

Vest added that one major difference between the musicians in America and the musicians in Rumania is that musicians are not on any ego trip about their particular musical instrument or musical taste. Rumanian musicians, said Vest, are seriously interested in all arts—painting, sculpture, literature, the whole aesthetic life.

The album which will be released in Rumania in December is called "Heart full of Rock and Roll". It should be released in America by next year some time. All of the songs are new songs, written by Vest while he was in Rumania except for two written previously and two co-written with Dabney Stuart. One new song was due to the inspiration of Dracula's grave where Vest spent the night.

Vest continued to say that Rumania is a good country for budding musicians. Even though it is a relatively poor country and many musicians cannot even afford their instruments, they have jazz rock clubs which purchase the instruments. Then the musicians come and put on shows for each other. Vest would like to have a thirty minute segment on the evolving Longwood radio show to play Rumanian rock and roll, which he feels Americans would really enjoy.

Vest concluded that his goal would be for his record to be played in the United States where his own people could hear it. He would love to see other singers sing their version of his songs, for he feels that is probably the greatest compliment to any songwriter.

Senior Spotlight

By BRENDA COLEMAN

If you find yourself wandering near Wygal or strolling into a green-and-white or blue-and-white activity, you'll probably see and, better yet, hear the sights and sounds of Tom Sullivan. Tom, a senior music major from Dinwiddie County, has been very involved in both the music department and various class activities over the four years he has attended Longwood.

Although Tom will receive his degree in music, he plans to seek an internship in computer programming with the government after graduation, preferably at Ft. Lee near Petersburg. He has always been fascinated with computers and hopes to later return to school and become a full-fledged computer programmer.

Other than "fiddling with computers," Tom's favorite hobbies include performing, composing, and listening to music and playing tennis. Tom has become quite proficient at his tennis game; however, Tom emphatically states that he "has already lost to the backboard six times" so he is no threat to Bjorn Borg.

Tom has been very active during his years here at Longwood. Presently he is the president of the Jazz Band, as well as one of the original founders, president of the Longwood Concert Band, and the chaplain of both Phi Mu Alpha, a music honorary, and Alpha Sigma Phi, a social fraternity. He is a past member of the Camerata Singers and has been the green-and-white music chairman for Oktoberfest for the past two years. In addition, he has, and still does, take part in many of the music department's performances and organizations.

Concerning his feelings about Longwood, Tom says that "Longwood has prepared me for life. I can face the bad as well as the good and accept realities. I've had to grow here at LC—I love the students and friends I've made." Tom further states that

(Continued on Page 8)

Campus School's Existence Questioned

During the past 15-20 years over 80 per cent of campus "lab" schools have been closed due to lack of funds. If the John P. Wynne Campus School cannot find a source of revenue outside of state funds by 1982, it may face the same fate.

Longwood's campus school opened in 1970 to serve as an educational facility for the public (grades K through 7) and as an observational experience for students at Longwood studying to become teachers. However, its expensive existence has come under attack by Education Secretary, J. Wade Gilley. While the Campus School is presently a state funded public facility, up to 40 per cent of the students are children of staff or faculty at Longwood College and they get top priority for enrollment.

Although Dr. Buck, Director of the Campus School, claims it is a public institution, it has a distinctive private school atmosphere for this area. With its circular design, high ceilings, large open library, uniquely shaped multi-purpose room and brightly painted walls, the Campus School reminds one of the open classroom experiment in the early 70's. Another factor adding to the "exclusive" atmosphere is the low percentage of blacks minorities (14 per cent) when compared to Prince Edward County's large percentage black population.

Dr. Gilley's plan is to eventually phase out state funding for the school. The plan allows for state aid this year (1980-81) a reduction in aid by 50 per cent in 1981 and a complete cut off in funds by 1982. However, the state has already allowed for two years of funding for the campus school. It remains to be seen whether Dr. Gilley's plan will be accepted or rejected by the State Legislature.

When asked what would be the Campus School's response when funds were cut, Dr. Buck described a plan utilizing some state funds to supplement a tuition and charging fee which patrons of the school would pay. He said that if this "package" were accepted, the outlook for the future of the school would be optimistic.

There have been two meetings of parents of campus school children thus far. The first, called by Dr. Willett, outlined the financial dilemma of the Campus School and set up a committee to look into the feasibility of making the Campus School self-supporting. The second meeting was called in July by this committee. A questionnaire was distributed to parents of Campus School students. The results have not been tabulated, but some of the more interesting questions were:

If a tuition charge is necessary to continue the operation of the Campus School, would you be willing to pay such a charge?

If yes, what is the maximum tuition range that you feel you would be willing to pay per (Continued on Page 8)

The Campus School is being studied this year by the college and state.

Photo by Jackie Steer

Joe Parker practices his offensive moves as the Soccer Team prepares for the season ahead. Photo by Jody Gilbert

Baseball Team Ready To Start

By JOHN TODD

Longwood College's baseball team, which had a 19-11 spring season record, is ready to start the fall season. The fall season contains many practices with a few scrimmages thrown in.

Longwood will start this season by the changing of men's sports team totally to Division II. Longwood played division one and two teams last season, so this change should not have great effect on Longwood baseball.

How good is this year's team going to be? Doug Toombs, who led the Nation's Division III schools in hitting last year says, "This year's team should be better than last year's, although the schedule is tougher." Longwood's schedule this year consists of playing forty or more games in the spring. Toombs feels Longwood will win more than thirty of those games. Toombs also noted that this year there are several outstanding freshmen and transfers.

Women's Golf Swings Into Another Season

By PAM UPDIKE

On September 12-14, the Longwood Lady Lancer Golf Team will play their first and only home tournament. They will compete with six other schools. Penn State, Bowling Green State University, UNC Wilmington, William and Mary, James Madison University and Mary Washington.

The seven-member team is made up of three freshmen, Cheryl Dufort, Emily Fletcher, and Susan Morgan; three sophomores, Robyn Andrews, Sharon Gilmore, and Janet Kelly; and one senior, Kay Smith.

This year the team will compete entirely in tournaments so that they may qualify for nationals. Coach Barbara Smith feels that they have an excellent chance of winning regionals and qualifying for Nationals in Division II. "Our goal is to go all the way," she stated emphatically.

All students are invited to support the team September 12 at the Longwood Golf Course.

Vastly Improved Lancers Open Play

Excitement and anticipation surround pre-season soccer drills at Longwood College. The Lancers, who open play Sunday afternoon at Catawba College in Salisbury, NC, are pointing toward a complete turnaround from last year's 4-10-1 record.

Longwood's second-year coach Rich Posipanko says the Lancers will be vastly improved.

"We have brought in 15 new players in my first full recruiting year," said the coach. "As many as nine of these players have a good chance of cracking the starting lineup. Longwood will be drastically improved in every aspect. This will be the best Lancer team ever."

While the 1980 edition of the Lancers may be the school's most talented team ever, it is also the youngest outfit in Longwood's three-year soccer history. Of 22 squad members, 10 are freshmen, seven are sophomores and five are juniors. Among the group are seven returnees from last season.

When Posipanko says that one of his team's goals is to have a winning season, he's saying quite a lot. In three previous soccer campaigns, Longwood teams have compiled a forgettable 7-30-2 slate, including an 0-14 mark the year before Posipanko's arrival. The coach plans to turn things around this year.

Pre-season scrimmages against some tough opposition have not dampened Posipanko's optimism. He feels Longwood will have a team that can compete with anyone in Virginia.

Division II

With Longwood re-classified from NCAA Division III to Division II, the Lancers will have a difficult time getting a bid to post-season play. Posipanko says the Lancers will have to have an outstanding record to make the playoffs, but he believes he has the players who can do it.

Veteran Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association all-stars Gustavo Leal (Rockville, Md.) and Joe Parker (Hathboro, Pa.) will join with nine newcomers to form the probable starting lineup for Sunday's clash with Catawba. Leal, Parker and returnee Mike McGeehan (Levittown, Pa.) were chosen as tri-captains by their teammates.

While Leal will start at midfield and Parker at forward, sophomore Nick Panara (Jenkintown, Pa.), midfielder; freshman Kurt Peters (Virginia Beach) goalie; sophomore Dave Via (Newport News), forward; junior Dana Gregg (Cincinnati, Ohio), midfielder; freshman Ed Dikun (Croydon, Pa.), forward; freshman Mark DeLaurentis (New Hope, Pa.), back; sophomore Steve McGurl (Northvale, N.J.), back; freshman Dan

Sawick (Hathboro, Pa.), back, and freshman Tim Brennan (North Hills, Pa.), forward, will round out the starting lineup.

Difficult Schedule

Facing Longwood is a 7-game slate filled with some tough opponents.

"With our move to NCAA Division II, the schedule has been upgraded significantly," said Posipanko. "We play nationally ranked Division III opponents Lynchburg and Averett, 1979 NAIA post-season qualifier Radford and Sun Belt Conference runner-up Virginia Commonwealth University. Both VCU and Richmond, another Longwood foe, compete in Division I."

Highlighting the early part of the schedule will be the Steve Nelson Memorial Tournament at Longwood September 12-13. VCU, Division III power Trenton State and North Carolina Wesleyan will comprise the field for the tournament, which is being held in memory of the late Steve Nelson, a member of last year's soccer team who was killed in an auto crash.

After a four-game trip against some rugged Pennsylvania opponents, the Lancers return to Virginia with four of their final seven games at home. Longwood will host arch-rival Hampden-Sydney November 4 in the battle for the Farmville Herald Challenge Cup, a trophy which the winner of this annual battle will be allowed to keep for a year.

Posipanko says the key to Longwood's season may depend on his ability to mold the old and new players into a smooth, working unit. If he succeeds, 1980 could turn out to be the year of the Lancers in soccer.

Graham Receives Certification

Dr. Gerald P. Graham, associate professor of health and physical education at Longwood College, has received certification as an exercise technologist.

This certification qualifies him to perform graded exercise testing on persons aged 35 and under who have no coronary risk factors and to assist a physician in the testing of all other persons.

To obtain the certification, Dr. Graham successfully completed the Preventive Rehabilitative Exercise Technologist Summer Workshop at Wake Forest University. The workshop was sponsored by the American College of Sports Medicine and directed by the departments of medicine and physical education at Wake Forest.

Included in the workshop were 50 hours of lecture on cardiovascular and exercise physiology, 20 hours of electrocardiograph analysis, and 20 hours of graded exercise experience. The workshop concluded with a seven-hour examination.

Dr. Graham holds degrees from Muskingum College, Ohio State University, and Kent State University. An advocate of aerobic exercise for fitness, he directs Longwood's annual minithon run.

Grapplers Ready

For New Season

By MARK SEGAL

This year's wrestling team got off to a new start with the addition of a new sports complex, many new wrestlers and Coach Nelson. Practice started early this year on the first of September.

Returning starters from last year's squad include: Sr. Bobby Hulsey, 126-134; Sr. Gary Farris, 167; Jr. Ken Gebbie, 126-134; Soph. Steve Shennett, 150-158; Soph. Mark Segal, 126; Michael Quick, 167.

Returning after a year's absence, Jr. Dan Richards will wrestle the 167 lbs. class, and transfers from Chowan Jr. College include Chad Roll at 150 and Joe Bass at 167-177.

Three promising freshmen worth watching are Frank Denaro at 118, Derick Wolf at 134, and Mike Freischlag at 142 pounds.

Coach Nelson is driving his team through a rigorous pre-season weight program to help gain an upper hand on the upgrading of the stiffer NCAA division II competition this year. Coach Nelson stated earlier . . . "1980-81 will be a learning year. We will be laying a foundation for future years. We will be extremely weak in the upper weights. Our goal will be to become competitive. We may not win many matches, but we will be respectable!"

With this spirit in coaching, let's support our Lancer grapplers.

Ruggers Ready

By T.C. JONES

The Longwood Rugby Club opens its season Saturday, September 13, 1980 in Richmond against VCU. This year's team is as strong as teams of the past several seasons. The team consists of about 30 members with many returning members from last year's team. The club practices on Tuesday afternoons at 4 p.m. and on Wednesday and Thursday nights at 8 p.m. after flag football. The team invites everyone to come out and join the club. Home matches will be played on the First Avenue Field. The rest of the fall season is as follows:

Sept.	20	University of Richmond	Away (Richmond)
	28	United Rugby Club	Away (Richmond)
Oct.	25	William and Mary	Home
Nov.	8	Hampden-Sydney	Home
	15	Mary Washington	Home

So come out and support the club.

DON'T BE LEFT OUT

OF THIS YEAR'S YEARBOOK

Have your pictures taken in the S-UN ROOM

8:30 AM - 5:00 PM MON.-FRI.
TIL SEPT. 19TH ONLY!

FOR INFORMATION CALL 392-4662

V&P MARKET

HWY. 15 SOUTH BETWEEN FARMVILLE AND HAMPDEN SYDNEY

SNACK BAR — ICE CREAM — FOOD ITEMS

VALUABLE COUPON

WITH THIS COUPON YOU CAN PLAY MINI GOLF FROM 6 PM - 12 PM FOR ONLY $1.00 OFFER GOOD THRU SEPT. 30TH.

WANTED: Part Time Personnel

Be a significant part of the 80-81 men's basketball program-

I. FOR ENTIRE BASKETBALL SEASON, (including trips to Georgia, Pa., W.V., N.C. and Md.)

Team Managers (2), Equipment Manager (1)

II. FOR HOME (12) AND AWAY 19 GAMES ONLY
Official Scorekeeper (1), Statisticians (2)

III. FOR HOME GAMES (12) ONLY
Official Timer (1), Game Administrator (1)

For individual job descriptions, contact Dr. Bash at the Basketball Office in Lancer Hall.

Senior Julie Dayton and the Hockey Team work on their precision and skill.

Photo by Tom Stanley

Lady Lancers Prepare For First Game

By PAM UDIKE

Through smoldering heat and long practices, the Longwood Lady Lancer Hockey team is sweating its way to another big season. They have been working very hard to make this season a winning one.

During August, a large part of the team attended the Mount Pocono Hockey Conference in Pennsylvania. At this camp they worked on improving skills and game strategy. There was a variety of coaches and the team even had the experience of playing with an English team.

Three seniors, Teri Davis, Julie Dayton, and Kim Garber provide the leadership and support for the team. According to Coach Bette Harris, "The seniors play an important role in how the team functions."

Teri Davis played an important role in the hockey camp this summer. She was chosen to stay an extra week to coach the goalies. As far as this year is concerned, Teri feels that, "As a unit, we will do well this season. I have a lot of expectations for this season, but we will have to work hard to be on top." Teri sites the inexperience of working together as a team as the major problem for this year's team.

Kim Garber commented on the Round Robin tournament held on September 6 and 7 at the University of Richmond and said this practice tourney, "should be a building block for our season as far as getting to know each other on the field and anticipate each other's play."

Julie Dayton, a four-year veteran varsity player, is the most experienced offensive player. She is the strength behind the offense.

Wednesday, September 10, the Lady Lancers will meet Mary Washington in their first contest of the year.

With the strong ability of these three seniors, the Lady Lancer Hockey team will surely have a successful year. Good luck!

IAA

Intramurals:

Entry blanks are now available for Track and Field. They may be picked up in Lancer Hall. Entry blanks are due September 11. The entrants' meeting is September 15 at 6:30 in the IAA room (Lankford)

ACTIVITY AND DATE CHART

Activity	Entry Deadline	Captain's Meeting	Play Begins
*Flag Football-M	Sep. 1	Sep. 2	Sep. 3
*Tennis Singles	4	8	9
*Track & Field	11	15	16
*Flag Football-W	18	22	23
Soccer	TBA	15	TBA
Ultimate Frisbee-C	Oct. 1	Oct. 2	Oct. 13
*Bowling	2	13	14
*Volleyball	23	27	28
*Pool	Nov. 3	Nov. 4	Nov. 5
*Swimming Relays	10	11	12

CAPTAIN'S MEETING—All meetings will be at 6:30 p.m. in the IAA Room, Lankford. All Captains of teams and Participants of individual and dual sports MUST attend these meetings

*These activities qualify for the ALL SPORTS TROPHY.

ENTRY BLANKS for each activity must be picked up and returned to the box beside the IAA Bulletin Board in Lancer Hall. This is the only way you can enter any of the above activities.

INTRAMURAL OFFICE HOURS

If your game is rained out, postponed or you need to know some other information about intramurals, call the Intramural Office. The office will be open for intramural scheduling, telephone calls, etc. from 1-3 p.m., Monday-Thursday. Call 392-9265.

OPEN RECREATION

"Open Rec"—Times and facilities are set up for students' use. The following facilities are open for free time, unscheduled recreation.

"Hill Field"—Mon.-Fri., 3:30-6:00 p.m.

"Hill Gym"—Mon.-Fri., 3:30-6:00 p.m.

"Other Facilities"—Posted in Lancer Hall.

INTRAMURAL ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

All general meetings will be at 7 p.m. every Thursday in the IAA Room, Lankford. Each dormitory, sorority, and fraternity must have an IAA representative who attends all general meetings. This is the only way your organization will have a part in the functions of the IAA. The meetings are open to anyone, but only the representatives have a vote. Please attend and support the IAA with your suggestions.

OFFICIALS

This year officials for flag football, volleyball, basketball, innertube water polo, and softball will be paid. It is the desire of the IAA to obtain the best officials possible. Students will be given a trial period in which they will be judged on their ability to handle a game.

Meetings for officials will be held prior to each sport. Pick up an application from the Intramural office if you wish to officiate. Check the Daily Bulletin and IAA Boards for specific dates and times.

Sophomore Debbie Spencer (Gordonsville) won one gold medal and two silver in swimming events at the 24th National Wheelchair Games held on the University of Illinois campus in Champaign May 28-June 1.

Spencer, who had won three events and placed second in another in the regional competition early in May, performed well in her first appearance in the national games. Competing in Class 5 swimming events, she won the 50-yard butterfly in 1:02.59 and finished second in the 100-yard freestyle (1:37.51) and 400-yard distance freestyle (7:51.33). In the 100-yard backstroke she finished fourth (1:58.36).

After training rigorously the past few weeks, Spencer improved on her previous best time in three of the four events she entered. Her coach Frank Brasile, Director of Longwood's Therapeutic Recreation Program, feels Debbie has come a long way since she began workouts in April.

"I think she did real well, considering the amount of time she had to prepare," he said.

"She knows what to work on for next year's national games (June, 1981 in Seattle). Debbie plans to resume practice in August and we will try to enter her in more regional competition to get her ready for nationals."

Spencer, whose disability is a result of spinal meningitis that she had as a child, is an exceptionally hard worker. She had never trained for competition prior to this spring.

Soccer At Catawba

Longwood	3	5	—	8
Catawba	0	1	—	1

SALISBURY, N.C. — Longwood set a school record for goals in a game Sunday afternoon as the Lancers swamped Catawba 8-1 in a collegiate soccer contest.

Freshman Tim Brennan scored three goals, Mark DeLaurentis had two, and sophomore Joe Parker had three assists to pace Longwood. The Lancers, in their first game as a member of NCAA Division II, out-shot Catawba 56-15. Longwood stands 1-0 while the Indians dipped to 0-2.

Longwood — Tim Brennan - 3, Mark DeLaurentis - 2, Gus Leal - 1, Dave Via - 1, Dana Gregg - 1.

OPEN 24 HRS.

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

ALL 12 OZ. PREMIUM BEER (6 PACK)	$2.35
ALL 16 OZ. PREMIUM BEER (6 PACK)	$2.75
ALL 32 OZ. PREMIUM BEER (QT.)	.95
ALL 12 OZ. POPULAR BEER (6 PACK)	$2.19
ALL 16 OZ. POPULAR BEER (6 PACK)	$2.35
ALL 32 OZ. POPULAR BEER (QT.)	.79
KEG BEER...BUDWEISER	$35.00 PLUS DEPOSIT
MICHELON	$39.00 PLUS DEPOSIT
HOT DOGS	3/$1.00
BBQ	.89
FOUNTAIN SOFT DRINKS	.25 TO .45

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW

OPEN:

Mon-Thur: 11:10 PM, Fri. & Sat: 11 Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392 5865

FRESH SALADS

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Let's Talk About Death

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

On Thursday, September 11, Dr. George G. Ritchie, Jr. M.D. and Psychiatrist spoke on his near-death experience. This lecture was sponsored by the Wesley Foundation and the Inter-Religious Council.

Dr. Ritchie is a native of Richmond and has degrees from the University of Richmond, the Medical College of Virginia, and a few other colleges. He does a lot of traveling and giving speeches all over the United States. He has written a book, Return from Tomorrow, and is working on another book. He stated in his lecture that there has been more than 17,000 reported cases of near-death.

Dr. Ritchie's experience started in December of 1943 while he was in the United States Army and stationed in Texas. He was in the hospital for an infection when his experience occurred. The doctor who was attending him at the time his experience occurred had pronounced him dead.

Dr. Ritchie told of what he experienced and saw while he was unconscious. He told of how he met Jesus Christ and the great light which shown from Him. Dr. Ritchie stayed unconscious for four days which seemed virtually impossible because the brain cannot go without oxygen for more than five minutes, he stated.

He definitely feels that this experience was a lesson sent from God to teach him to love others as God loves him. Dr. Ritchie feels that the real battle between good and evil lies within each of us.

Those that were at Dr. Ritchie's lecture were left spellbound after listening to this fascinating account of his ordeal. Many people remained afterwards to ask him questions and to talk with him privately.

Dr. Ritchie speaks on death at last week's Wesley Lecture. Photo by Jody Gilbert

By NINA BOWYER

The Longwood Players' impending production, "Barefoot in the Park," will, according to the intentions of Richard Gamble and Laura Carroll, differ in many ways from past productions. The play tends to break away from the usual intellectual style and offers an entertainment to the audience that has not been present in the past.

Shakespeare and Ibsen, among other sophisticated playwrights, have dominated the Jarman stage, with the more entertaining intervals coming, perhaps every other year. Neil Simon's play has been selected this year because of his comic wit and continuing popularity. Simon has set the scene in a very small, fifth floor, New York apartment, around the early 1960's. The atmosphere is light-hearted and easy-going, not at all creating an intellectual turmoil in the minds of the audience.

In this production, Gamble would like to "create an environment as closely as possible approximating the commercial theatre." Many plans have gone into the production of this play, inspiring a creativeness and inventiveness in all the crew members that should prove to render this play among the most interesting in recent times.

Johnny Cash Film To Be Shown

The story is old, but the perspective is updated and brought into sharp focus by the film The Gospel Road to be shown on Saturday, Sept. 20, at ABC Rooms. The showing will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Gospel Road, distributed by World Wide Pictures, was conceived and produced by Johnny Cash and his wife, June Carter Cash, whose desire was to tell the story of Jesus Christ in a realistic and meaningful way.

The film is a unique blend of scripture-based narrative, an abundant supply of specially written songs, and a series of in-depth character portrayals, with Israel itself as the mixing bowl.

You are there, walking beside the Jordan and the Sea of Galilee; you are there, seeing Him in many human situations that establish a practical and personal rapport with every viewer.

You are there, being introduced to the disciples, and gaining insights into their varied personalities. You are there, experiencing the highly charged emotional impact of the trial before Pilate, and becoming so personally involved that you feel sympathetic pain when Robert Elfstrom, in an outstanding portrayal of Christ, suffers the physical attack that precedes the Crucifixion.

Adding to the effectiveness of The Gospel Road in its endeavor to convey reality for this day are: the fascinating treatment of the Crucifixion, making this tragedy an event of significance that reaches from its own time across the years to take on meaning for all men of all ages; and the songs and background music of Johnny Cash and other outstanding musicians, whose contemporary style is not out of keeping with the story... a story that reveals that His darkest day has become our brightest.

Survey

Underway

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Economic Seminar Students, headed by Dr. Anthony Cristo, will begin phase two of their economic impact study of Longwood College within the next week. The students will be asking both students and faculty to fill out questionnaires.

This is the only way that the seminar students, who also conduct the Market Basket Survey, have of measuring the college community's total impact on Farmville.

Persons filling out the questionnaire do not identify themselves. This information is not obtainable within any other resources.

Dr. Cristo asks the students and faculty to return the information questionnaire as soon as possible. This is the second year that this survey has been made. The results are interesting to both the Farmville and Longwood communities.

Judicial Cases

By MITZI MASON

In the past the Judicial Board has been called in to investigate narcotics cases. This meant that the students serving as investigators of narcotics had the responsibility of searching the student's room. In some instances student investigators even felt that they were invading their fellow classmates' privacy. Under the new plan, these problems will no longer exist. The student investigators will only investigate Honor Code offenses such as cheating, stealing and lying. The Administration will handle all narcotics cases in the future and they will be assisted by the Longwood College Campus Police and local police. Students will not be prosecuted by Judicial Board for narcotics offenses.

Campus Politicians Organize

By NANCY LANG

With November only two months away, the campus is starting to talk of the presidential election. Many have organized themselves into the Campus Republicans and the Young Democrats. Both intend to create new ideas of promoting their respective candidates, Ronald Reagan and President Jimmy Carter.

The Republicans have several fund-raising events in store for the weeks ahead to raise money for bigger projects. Each semester the Republicans travel to a participating college for a workshop. This September, the Republicans are planning to attend the workshop at UVa. Here they will learn campaigning ideas and look for speakers for the fall.

The Republicans will also be conducting "phone banks" in the local area around Farmville. From state headquarters students will receive a list of local names, categorized into Republicans, Democrats, and Undecided. Students call these numbers in the local area, attempting to draw the Undecideds over to vote Republican. Membership Chairman Tom Moran stated that the Campus Republicans hope to debate the Young Democrats. A Campus Republican meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 24. All interested are urged to attend.

The Young Democrats are now in the process of publicizing their club. The group is now headed by a temporary president, David Oakes. Members are needed for a strong representation of the club this fall. There will be a meeting Monday, September 22, at 8 p.m. in Grainger 008 or contact David Oakes, Box 929, 392-5300. Elections will be held and all interested persons are asked to attend the meeting.

Dr. Carrier To Conduct Workshop

Dr. Lotan Carrier of Virginia Commonwealth University will conduct an electronic music workshop in the Molnar Auditorium, Wygal Music Building on Thursday, September 18.

Dr. Carrier is a multi-faceted musician; he plays piano and has taught it extensively including an adjunct position at Randolph-Macon College in piano. Primarily he is an electronic musician, where the emphasis of his work is in the teaching of composition using synthesizers, tape recorders and computers. He has been at Virginia Commonwealth University for seven years and during that time has developed an electronic music program, which in scope, if not in quality, is the largest on the Eastern Coast.

Dr. Carrier has had his compositions played throughout the United States and Canada. His book Working Skills in Electronic Music (self-published) will soon be out in a second edition. He is currently at work on a composition for synthesizer and piano (both played by one pianist) and a set of songs for soprano and piano quartet with strings.

The sessions scheduled for September 18 are: 9:25 a.m. to 10:40 a.m. for freshman music theory students; 10:50 a.m. to noon for music appreciation students; 1 p.m. to 1:50 p.m., a general session for music faculty and students; 2 p.m. to 2:50 p.m. for Campus School students. Although the sessions have these special emphases they are open to anyone who is interested in this area of 20th century music.

GEIST OKTOBERFEST TAPPING THURSDAY — JARMAN — 7 P.M.

We're glad to announce the arrival of Valerie Llyod from Richmond.

WET CUT AND BLOWDRY...$4.95
(WITH THIS COUPON - EXPIRES SEPTEMBER 30)

MERLE NORMAN/HAIR HUT SALON
223 N. MAIN STREET 392-6343

• Fraternity & Sorority Stationary, Mugs and Decals.

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

Open Mon.-Sat., 9 am-5pm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY MORNING

S-UN's Major Concert: Lacy J. Dalton

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Wednesday night, Sept. 17, is the big night: . . . Because Lacy J. Dalton and The Dalton Gang will be performing in Jarman auditorium!

Point of interest! Dalton's concert is the major fall concert along with the fact that Dalton will be the first major female vocalist to perform at Jarman in the history of Longwood. More importantly, Lacy Dalton was recently the recipient of the top new female vocalist award by the Academy of Country Music. However, Dalton's style is not country music alone as you will see.

So what, you say? Well, listen to this: although Lacy Dalton may not be a big name to remember now, she will be in the future. Recently magazines such as: Time and People did exclusive articles on the uprising star. Both magazines compare her to the late Janis Joplin, which in itself is a tribute. Time magazine describes her voice as, "a husky — late night and last drink voice that can curl under and caress a ballad, or slide, like a gravity knife, to a quick sharp point that draws blood from a backbeat," and People magazine describes her voice as, "a bluesy voice with incredible vocal range." Both magazines agree that Dalton is on the verge of super stardom and she will be performing right here!

Dalton is an experienced performer who has sung almost every type of music, which probably accounts for the unique phrasing and quality of voice she has been accredited with. She sang out west in California for a few years with a rock 'n' roll band, and she has performed in Salt Lake City, Minnesota, Los Angeles and Nashville. She sang anything from hard rock to country, jazz or alone with her guitar.

Originally Lacy Dalton is from Bloomsburg, Pa., and before she changed her name she was Jill Byrem. She grew up on the fringes of a mining belt with her father who was a guide on a hunting preserve and a mother who was a trained beautician. Dalton went to Brigham Young University with the intent of becoming a painter but circumstances altered her decision and now she is a singer. She describes her own music as "progressive," and says, "I don't have absolute standards for my music. It's all something personal, and not competitive."

Her first major contribution to the music field was her first single, "Crazy Blue Eyes," released in the fall of 1979, which ran straight into the Billboard country charts. Her most recent single is called, "Hard Times." She has two albums out both under Columbia record label.

Bill Sherrill, vice-president and executive producer of CBS records, credits himself with having discovered Lacy Dalton, says this, "Record producers probably hear more aspiring singers in a week than most people hear in a lifetime. But we rarely hear a voice so unique it rises above the rest. Lacy J. Dalton possesses that exciting style and quality that make her special. That's what stars are made of."

If you are interested, her critical reviews are also impressive! She is acclaimed as being a "female Waylon Jennings," and as being an "overnight Success!" Not only is Dalton's voice praised but because she writes or co-writes most of her material, critics believe that the uniqueness of her songs will put her above being just another good singer.

It's quite obvious that if acclaimed magazines as well as critics give Lacy J. Dalton such a good "pat on the back" Lacy J.

(Continued on Page 8)

Blue's In Full Style

The "Bill Blue Band" came out in full style at Saturday Night Alive this past week end. The band, consisting of seven members, played for three hours and returned for one encore. Attendance was fair with about 120 Blues Fans appearing. As always, the regular Saturday Night Alive fans spurred the crowd to participate.

Having cut two albums, the "Bill Blue Band" was received with recognition. They played several songs from their first album, "Sing Like Thunder," which were familiar to the students. Their newest album and hit, "Don't Give Your Good Boys Bad Names," had a rousing effect on the audience. The end of the first set was a blues duel between the sax and the trumpet which mounted in intensity and culminated in the two moving into the audience and utilizing tables as their stage. They received the first standing ovation of the evening for their duet duel.

After the first intermission the sax player serenaded the audience as he roamed about the room, playing with the sincere rhythm of the blues saxist. The band brought the crowd to its feet the second time with the song entitled "Hard Work," and ended the second set by promenading through the crowd chanting "be cool." The third and final set required much sweat on the part of the performers and the stacks of beer cans grew to Mount Everest proportions on some tables.

The "Bill Blue Band" as it was seen Saturday night is the fifth rendition of the group according to present members of the band. Bill Blue modeled his

(Continued on Page 8)

New Wave Hits

By NEIL SAWYER

September 9 marked a major entertainment breakthrough at Longwood College. The event was the first performance given at Longwood by the "Flaming Oh's" and the significance was that the "Flaming Oh's" are full-fledged new wave rock and roll. Longwood students have seen almost everything from folk and jazz to hard rock with more than enough southern boogie in between the campus but never a real new wave band. Thanks to the Student Union, Longwoods first taste of new wave was grade A.

The "Flaming Oh's" are a Minneapolis based band with a debut album under their belts and an impressive list of guest appearances with such major acts as Elvis Costello, Molly Hatchett, and the B-52's. Their Longwood concert was part of a mini-tour through Virginia and West Virginia.

The concert held in the Red, White, and Green rooms got off to a rocky start when the equipment truck was delayed and did not arrive to set up until half an hour after the show was scheduled to start. This set the show time back about one and one-half hours.

Once the band took the stage, they wasted no time in introducing the audience to their own brand of new wave. After an opening rendition of Bob Segers' "Let it Rock", the band launched full force into original material.

The bands entire performance seemed well geared to an audience of new-comers in the new wave experience. One main characteristic typical of a live new wave performance is the fast pacing in which songs are short, fast and run together often without a single second of silence between the end of one song and the start of another. Instead of hitting and keeping a frenzied pace throughout two sets, they opened with straight rock and roll and built faster into a spirited version of the Rolling Stones "Satisfaction" which ended the first set. By this time the audience was more playful and when the second set turned out to be sheer new wave the audience could adjust to it more enthusiastically.

If the evening turned out to be slightly short of a total success it was certainly not the bands fault. Live, new wave demands equal energy from both band and audience and while the band held up its end the crowd reaction was definitely lacking. For the most part, the audience sat quietly tapping their feet or just watching while others made ridiculous calls for "Free Bird".

The general impression was that Longwood is not ready for new wave since new wave is for the chronically live, not the hopelessly dead. Bring in the southern boogie and pass the No-Doz.

YES! I would be interested in going to Florida. I also understand that by filling out this coupon, I am not obligated to go!

NAME _____

LONGWOOD ADDRESS _____

☐ I would be interested in traveling with the group.

☐ I will probably go on my own and meet with the group later.

Return this coupon to Mr. I.B. Deni, in the Lankford Building, Second Floor- Gold Room.

Photo by Tom Staley

Bill Blue Band entertains Saturday Night Alive fans.

Florida Trip Planned

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Do you believe in getting ahead or early starts? Then this is for you!

During spring break, second semester why not plan to go to Florida? The student union is planning an all expense paid trip to Florida for those interested. Below is a detailed calendar of places you will visit and activities to engage in.

— March 20 p.m. — travel overnight to Orlando

— March 21 — afternoon arrival in Orlando — afternoon optional, evening an Orlando club — Rosie O'Grady's, etc.

— March 22 — to Disney World

— March 23 — to Daytona

— March 24 — at Daytona

— March 25 — free time in St. Augustine. Overnight in Savannah Downtowner

— March 26 — in Savannah until early evening then return

— March 27 — morning to noon arrival in Farnville

A fee of $170-$215 pays for transportation and hotel fees.

Depending on whether or not you plan to double or triple with someone for a room determines the cost, however you can go on your own and the cost would be around $140. Meals are not included and there is no obligation to travel with the group if you decide you would like to travel by yourself or with a friend.

The Student Union needs your response, which will determine if definite plans will be made for the trip.

Below is a coupon to fill out should you be interested. This does not obligate you in any way to go. This will give the student union some type of idea as to whether or not plans should be forwarded. If the response is good, a $50 deposit will probably be asked of you sometime in November, but for right now why not fill out the coupon and plan to go somewhere exciting for your spring break!

More information will be enclosed at a later date.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crowley

SPORTS EDITOR Dallas Bradbury
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR

BUSINESS MANAGER Jackie Steer
ADVERTISING MANAGER Robyn Black
STAFF: Dave Gates, Brenda Coleman, Pam Updike, Jody Gilbert, Carole Key, Mitzi Mason, William Brent, Deborah Peterson, Cindy Hall, Janice Roakes, Donna Hughes, Linda Wheeler, Tom Sullivan, Pam Winger, Beth Parrott, Nina Bowyer, Debra Cunningham, Sarah Stump, Robyn Carr, Connie Fallon, Dawn Perdue, Tom Stanley, Neil Sawyer, Joe Johnson, Jodi Kersey
Member of the VIMCA

Published weekly during the College year with the exception of holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia. Printed by the Farmville Herald. Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration. Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Togetherness

To The Student Body,
This begins my third year at Longwood and I've been involved in many college activities. Oktoberfest has always meant a lot to me and I enjoy working with my fellow red-n-whites to prepare for it. But this year has been different. Granted there is always competition between the Reds and Greens but this year it has been vicious. I listen to my fellow Reds cut the Greens down and in turn the Greens cut down the reds. Usually it is done in a joking manner but lately all joking has been placed aside and Reds and Greens are cutting each other to the point that it hurts. It takes two colors to make Oktoberfest what it is. We are all Blue-n-white and we should keep that in our hearts and minds.

I love being a Red-n-white and am proud to be so. But the Greens are also proud of their colors and I respect them for that. I have a number of friends who are Greens and many who are on Geist this year that I love dearly. I do not like seeing my friends, Reds, Greens or Blues hurt by thoughtless comments. So show your spirit but do it in a positive way. Work for Oktoberfest and give your friends whether they be Red, Green or Blue, your support.—Not your criticism. WE ARE IN THIS TOGETHER!!!

Blue-N-White Love,
a concerned Red-n-White

Better Food

Dear Mr. Inge and dining hall staff:

We would like to congratulate you on your fine services this year. We find that the downstairs dining hall is very efficient and the quality of the food is much better than in previous years. It seems that the variety of the food has increased to accommodate more of the student body. The addition of drink machines has "eased the trauma" to get a soft drink. So, again, we'd like to thank Mr Inge, Doris, all the assistant managers, and the maids and the kitchen help for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Student Government Association

Ode To Longwood College

West bound on 360
Headed up Farmville way
Back to Longwood College
The place I want to stay.

Good old Longwood College
That great Citadel
Of the virtues of Education
We've come to love so well

We've bound our minds and spirit

And all our talents too;
The three things that we'll cherish
Our whole lives through.

Good old Longwood College
The place to get things done.
We know that when we leave here

We'll be that number one.
Dallas Bradbury

Senior Spotlight

By BRENDA COLEMAN

"I've always liked the idea of a small college atmosphere," began Kelly Sanderson, a senior chemistry major from Winchester, VA. "I guess that was one of the major reasons I chose to come to Longwood. We have a small student-teacher ratio here, unlike large universities where you are only a number. You can get so much more involved at Longwood."

And involved Kelly is. She is presently president of Lynchnos, the science honorary and secretary-treasurer of Pi Mu Epsilon, an honorary in math, as well as a past member of Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshman honorary. Kelly also serves her school as treasurer of the Senior class and as senior class representative to the Student Alumni Association. She has also participated in orientation and in green-and-white activities such as Oktoberfest and color class skits.

"To borrow an old cliché, I've grown to realize you can be a big fish in a small pond here. Even after all the discussion about the administration and bad news concerning the college, I have not regretted my decision to attend Longwood. I've received a good basic background in my major and feel prepared for either a job or graduate work."

Kelly emphasizes that there are always some disadvantages when attending a small school. "Not as many courses are offered here, especially in the science department, that are offered at a larger college or university," Kelly states. "Also, I'd like to see the science department get more money for supplies and equipment."

Kelly, with her major in chemistry and a minor in math, hopes to go to either Iowa State or Virginia Tech after her graduation from Longwood to obtain a Ph.D. in chemistry. Long-range plans include working for the government in industry and/or research and eventually attending medical school.

"I've become a better person by attending college," Kelly continues. "Longwood has opened my eyes to the varied and different things in life—especially friends. I've lost contact with many of the friends I had in high school. But the friends I've made here, I know I'll keep—even the ones I leave behind."

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Editor's Turn

It's getting close . . . That time of year is coming . . . That word keeps popping up again . . . What is it? Oktoberfest is Longwood's fall festival and is patterned after the celebration held in Germany each year.

For those students who have made Longwood a suitcase college, it is the one weekend that their suitcase will either remain under the bed or in the storage room. That, in itself is saying a lot.

Color class skits have already been written by the reds and greens and approved by Geist. Tryouts will be held next week for these skits that will be presented Friday and Saturday nights of Oktoberfest. This year's theme is Joan of Arc and from the rumors we've heard, the skits this year could prove to be quite interesting.

Thursday night is Geist Oktoberfest tapping. Geist members dressed as klowns will recognize the 21 Klowns, eight ushers and usherettes, and three meisters. We recommend that you be in Jarman, Thursday at 7 p.m. . . . You never know who Geist will choose! It may be you!

Is Miss Longwood a thing of the past? This question has been asked over the past three years, but it has still remained. It seems however that money problems have caused the College to look at the matter deeper than before.

It seems only reasonable that an Ad Hoc Committee decided this summer to terminate a pageant that constantly stayed in the red. Last year, very few people attended the pageant.

However, those who are responsible for the Miss Longwood Pageant are fighting for its survival. Legislative Board will hear an appeal to continue Miss Longwood.

There are many pros and cons to this subject. It would only seem fair, however, to say that the only way the Miss Longwood pageant should continue is if it were organized better, had the full cooperation of those involved, and remained in the black instead of in the red.

We are not saying that those who took on the responsibility in the past did not do the best job possible under the circumstances. We are saying, however, that it must be more organized and unified to continue.

RUSH... RUSH... RUSH... RUSH... RUSH

By LISA THOMAS

This week denotes the start of rush. The excitement of all the Greeks is at its peak. Questions are being whispered such as "How many girls signed up for Rush?" and "What do you think the quote will be?", etc. To a non-Greek this probably does not sound that important, but it is.

This year the Greeks are hoping, as always, for a large rush! Rush is a fun-filled week of activities presented by each sorority to those girls who might be interested in joining a sorority.

Here are what the Presidents from each sorority feels about being a Greek:

Donna Bruce (ADP)—"Being a Greek is much more than sharing the symbols on a jersey. It is a special bond of friendship that can best be described as sisterhood. Loyalty, unity, and striving toward common goals make the Greek system work."

Anna Staley (AGD)—"Being a Greek in a sorority means having sisters all over the place. You are part of a family that shares cherished moments, ideals, goals, dreams, and let-downs. Your Greek sisters are always there to comfort you and cheer you on whenever the need arises! Being a Greek is fun."

Dianne Jefferies (ASA)—"Being a Greek at Longwood plays a special part in my life. It involves learning new songs, wearing that special T-shirt, going to parties, and having many loving and caring sisters. It's having those special sisters to share your feelings when you need someone to talk with. For being a Greek, I don't only have my special 60 sisters in my sorority for also I have all my greek sisters, too. With this in mind, I wish everyone a very special Rush."

Kim Garber (AST)—"Being involved in the Greek organization has been a very positive experience for me. What does being a Greek mean to me? The lifetime friendships-

...knowing someone who cares and will be there always with a 'song in her heart and a smile on her face!'"

Kim Hannan (DZ)—"To be a Greek—to me—means a different sort of college life style. A group of girls united under a common cause: sisterhood and friendship. A friendship which goes deeper than words and which grows deeper through the years. A lifestyle of sharing, caring, challenges, struggles, responsibilities, enthusiasm and support. A Greek is one with whom you can laugh and cry with—you can be yourself."

Jenny Lashley (KD)—"The closeness, sincerity, and good times that a sisterhood has to offer. It means getting to know a large group of girls, and learning to respect the values and opinions of each of them. Greek is the only way to go!"

Debbie Miller (BM)—"Uniting individuals with different ideas into a bond of friendship aiming for a common goal."

Cindy Roakes (EK)—"Being a Greek means being part of a large sister and brotherhood who are allowed to break down into small groups who have similar goals and ideals. This also allows you to meet with Greeks from other schools on a level that a non-Greek doesn't know about."

Sylvia Roberts (EEE)—"Being a Greek is a million things all rolled into one. It's sharing special bonds of friendship. Bonds that last a lifetime. It's sharing all your joys and heartbreaks with people who are very close to you and care about you. Being Greek also has its fun, carefree times, parties and mixers and meeting new people. This is great, but after all the parties are over, you still have that special bond of friendship."

Dolly Young (ZTA)—"Being a Greek is a wonderful part of any girl's life. The closeness, the laughter, and the tears experienced by the sisters, could never be replaced. It's very fulfilling to be a part of the Greek system working towards common goals, to bring the Greek system closer together. Being a Greek has definitely added many irreplaceable bonds of Friendship and wonderful experiences to my college life."

As anyone can see from the above quotes Rush week is simply a fun week and a means to the end—that of finding a group of girls that will bring to those new sisters the feeling of friendship and belonging.

We invite all the Longwood students to join with Greeks in recognizing those rushes that become pledges during our traditional walk ceremony. Walk will be held Sunday night at 7:30 at Lankford Mall. Watch school and sisterhood spirit to its fullest.

Commentary —

By BILL LeWARNE

It was only a tree, one could argue. Cutting it down shouldn't have been such a big deal. But to a large number of Longwood students, it wasn't just a tree, it was THE tree. Perfectly composed in the teardrop shape that so few trees ever achieve, it was nestled on the edge of Longwood College's campus park. In the spring it was the first to turn green, and in the fall, no other tree on campus could compare with its mass of fiery golden leaves.

However, in 1978, Longwood's plans for a new gymnasium left the drawing boards and began searching for a place to settle. The park quickly fell to a host of bulldozers and construction crews. And even though that one favorite tree was on the edge of a bank overlooking a street, it soon confronted a bulldozer also—at least until one brave student ran in front of the tree, (and consequently in front of the bulldozer) and staunchly refused to move until the thoroughly confused driver backed off. With that one defiant act, the controversy over the saving of the tree began a one and a half year battle.

The very next night, a group of students camped out around the tree to encourage other students to protest its removal and to gain support for their cause.

"It had started getting pretty cold at nights, and I wondered if shivering around a tree all night was really going to make a point. But it was a lot of fun, and something to tell our grandchildren about," one participant recalled.

"The thing I remember most," said another, "is the campus police riding by a lot, shining lights on us and stuff, like they wanted us to leave, but couldn't really think of a reason to make us. Then one of them stopped and said 'good job', and kept going. And that was the last we saw of them."

Faculty support grew as time went on, and several teachers expressed their encouragement for the students' "sincere concern" for their environment.

Administrative enthusiasm was more veiled, but the policy makers eventually gave in to the students' wishes, at least temporarily. The tree would be left alone until a definite decision had to be made.

Throughout the winter of '78, and on through the beginnings of 1979, the last survivor of the park held its place, although bulldozers crept dangerously closer and closer, until the tree was the sole occupant of a four foot high mound of dirt in an otherwise level field.

In the autumn of 1979, the fight began in earnest, because definite decisions had to be reached. Construction on the gym had begun, and the architect, according to administrative reports, doubted that the tree could be saved. However, the administration assured students that it would do everything possible to save the tree.

Then a bulldozer suddenly began working on the street side of the tree, and for no apparent reason, ran a path parallel to the street, shearing off masses of the tree's roots and leaving it even more isolated than before, sitting precariously on a small rectangle that was actually smaller than the area the tree could shade.

At this point, the administration announced that if the tree lived, and budded in the spring, it would be saved. Of course, most students felt that they had been misled all along, for there seemed little chance of the tree living after such damage, and it seemed to many students that those who wanted the tree removed were well aware of this.

But nature is a fierce competitor, and when spring 1980 arrived, THE tree, as usual, was one of the first to show signs of life, and the "tree savers" felt that victory was at hand. A small party-picnic was held around the tree, attending mainly by those who had begun the fight two years earlier. Most were seniors now, and could look on the tree as their legacy to future students, and as a memorial of sorts to the campus park that had once been where a nearly completed gym now stood.

The victory was short lived. Late in May, after graduation and before summer school, the tree came unceremoniously down, not with a bang, and not even with a whimper—nobody was there. At least, no students were there.

A faculty memo (May 27, 1980) from the president's office stated that "Various groups have carefully studied the matter. In order to meet the construction deadline, the Development Committee of the Board of Visitors has directed that the tree be removed."

Summer school began in June, and the few tree supporters that were at Longwood were outraged.

"When I first saw that the tree was gone, I just couldn't believe it. They waited until there was no one here to say anything, and just cut it down as though they had never promised anything. And there's no way I can believe it was just a coincidence that it suddenly had to be cut right after graduation and right before summer school," said one angry student.

The administrative spokesmen had repeatedly said that the cost factor in saving the tree was the primary reason for its removal. However, even some members of the administration have expressed anger at the mishandling of the affair. One member of the administration who is very active in Longwood student affairs pointed out, "Once that retaining wall was begun, and headed in a direct line towards the tree, students should have realized that there was never any intention of saving the tree."

There has been little actual student response since the fall semester began a few weeks ago. Of course, as one student noted, the tree is gone. There really isn't a lot that can be done. And sadly enough, the fervor over saving the tree will probably die down as quickly as it grew. The present senior class contains the last of those who fought to save the tree. All too soon, the campus park and that one beautiful tree will live only in the memories of alumni. But for now, there are still quite a few students who can recall midnight rendezvous ("Meet me under the tree..."), bright yellow leaves in the fall, the battle that drew them together for a while, and broken promises.

Dr. Hevener Completes Book

By JODI KERSEY

Dr. Fillmer Hevener, Jr., associate professor of English and consultant to student teachers has completed a book which will be published in 1981 entitled Successful Student Teaching: A Handbook for Elementary and Secondary Student Teachers.

The primary purpose of the book, Dr. Hevener stated is to help serve as a transition device to close the gap between being a student and a student teacher, enabling the student to make this adjustment. The textbook will be a concise, practical, informational guide designed to help steer the college student through the intricacies of student teaching as smoothly as possible. It will answer questions often overlooked by those preparing to enter student teaching as well as critical questions frequently asked the author by those already engaged in student teaching. In addition, it will suggest teaching methods which may be adapted to instructional situations at both the elementary and secondary levels.

Hevener felt that many books for student teachers are quite outdated and that there was a definite need for a book which would help the student to prepare for the experience of student teaching, making it a more successful experience. The book will cover such areas as: learning the community, becoming acquainted with the school, keeping fit, organizing for teaching, preparing for the first days, relating to the supervising teacher, relating to the college supervisor, relating to the students and parents, classroom management, major instructional matters, and being a professional.

Dr. Hevener stated that this book will be equally beneficial to those considering student teaching or those already in the teaching profession.

Artist-Series Presents Chestnut Brass Company

The Performing Artist Series will present their first concert September 22, 8 p.m. in Jarman Auditorium when the versatile and acclaimed Chestnut Brass performs a program of pops, classical, jazz and ragtime music.

The Chestnut Brass Company, once a group of street musicians, has grown into the vibrant ensemble that has been selected by the international musical publication Musical America as "Outstanding Young Artists to Watch."

Their repertoire is varied and includes concerts for college students, children, and concerts that cover a gamut of selections from baroque and renaissance to contemporary classical music.

I.B. Dent, Student Activities Director, stresses, "they don't just present a classical program." The Chestnut Brass Company also performs such popular works of Scott Joplin, Duke Ellington, and Cole Porter.

This exciting ensemble has charmed the musical world with its freshness and unpredictability. With each of the five members being a skilled soloist in his own right, their combined efforts have favorably impressed the music scene. The members of the traveling ensemble are Robert Gale, trombone; Jay Krush, tuba; Bruce Barrie, trumpet; Mark Huxsoll, trumpet; and George Barnett, French horn. The members of the group individually have attained firm backgrounds in the music field studying with members of the Philadelphia Orchestra and at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois, Temple University, Eastman School of Music, and the Philadelphia Musical Academy.

The Philadelphia Inquirer said of the Chestnut Brass Company, "... the most demanding item was a Handel aria from his quintet for oboes, horns, and bassoon; the group played it fluently and movingly."

Tickets are free to Longwood students. They may be obtained in the Student Union Office, Lankford.

Photo by Jacky Steer

Longwood placed second in the First Annual Steve Nelson Memorial Tournament. Steve was a former member of the Longwood Soccer Team.

An Ode To Success

Six months have passed since we first began
We've played both zone and man to man
There have been some highs and also lows
But that's the way a season goes
The thing, however, that's been great news
Is that our team refuses to lose
We were down to Maritime and St. Mary's too
And for our squad that was something new
But just when they thought they had it won
Once again we spoiled their fun

For some unknown, mysterious reason
We've been granted a championship season
And should be grateful for all so far
To a special, strange, mysterious star
That has watched over us one and all
And picked us up when we began to fall
So don't fight this special feeling
It's care and love with which we're dealing
You may not think so, but it's true
And now the rest is up to you

... A Member of the Basketball Family

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS
KATHY WAYCANTER RHONDA BARTON
LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon - 8 Tues 9 AM 8 PM
Wed - Fri 9 AM 6 PM
Sat 9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

Terry's Bakery

SPECIALIZING IN A FULL LINE OF BAKERY PRODUCTS
—Decorating Cakes—

ECLAIRS 2 FOR 85¢

ONLY WITH THIS COUPON

Lancer Booters Finish Second

From SPORTS INFO
After going 1-1 to finish second in the Steve Nelson Memorial Soccer Tournament over the week end, Longwood's soccer team hits the road this week visiting Roanoke Wednesday in its only action of the week.

The Lancers, now 2-1, may be without the services of goalie

Kurt Peters (Virginia Beach). Peters suffered a neck injury in the first half of Saturday's championship game with Trenton State. Freshman Jeff Carino (Gloucester) will fill in if Peters is unable to play Wednesday.

NCAA Division III power Trenton State took wins from Virginia Commonwealth Friday night 4-0 and Longwood Saturday afternoon 3-0 to win the first Steve Nelson Memorial Tournament. The Lions registered two shutouts while outshooting their opponents 59-26.

Longwood used a penalty kick from sophomore midfielder Gus Leal (Rockville, Md.) to nip North Carolina Wesleyan 1-0 Friday night and advance to the finals. The Bishops fell to VCU Saturday morning in the consolation game 5-0 as Said Kamali (Falls Church) tallied twice for the Rams.

Trenton State reaped the lion's share of individual honors at the conclusion of the tournament Saturday afternoon. Midfielder Mark Mallon (Gibbsboro, N.J.) won the outstanding player award while teammate Joe Cutri (Jersey City, N.J.) was named outstanding offensive player.

Longwood freshman Dan Sawick (Hatboro, Pa.) was chosen as outstanding defender in the Nelson tournament.

Lady Netters Make A Racquet

By PAMUPDIKE

Many long hours have been put into this year's Lady Lancer Tennis Team. Coach Phyllis Harriss feels that they do not receive enough recognition. They have worked hard, and with the intense heat, it has been really rough training.

This year the team will receive a lot of support and leadership from senior Nancy Leidenheimer.

"It takes all of us working together," stated Coach Harriss.

This year the team will only be playing intercollegiate matches. Their first match will be on September 19 against Randolph-Macon at home. Support the women's tennis team!

Women's Tennis Schedule

DATE	OPPONENT	TIME
Sept. 19	H — Randolph-Macon	2:00
23	A — Mary Washington	3:00
26	A — James Madison	3:00
29	A — Mary Baldwin	2:00
30	H — Lynchburg	3:30
Oct. 2	H — Southern Seminary	2:00
17	A — RMWC	2:00
21	H — Hollins	2:00
24	A — VCU	2:30
28	H — Sweet Briar	2:00
31	A — Christopher Newport	2:00

1980-81 Basketball Schedule

DATE	OPPONENT	SITE	TIME
Nov 15	Scotland National Team	Home	9:00
22	Maryland-Eastern Shore (MD)	Home	8:00
24	Lincoln University (PA)	Home	8:00
26	Salem College (WV)	Away	8:00
28, 29	Augusta (GA) Tip-Off Tournament
	Longwood — Piedmont College (NC)	Away	7:00
	Augusta (GA) — Voorhes (SC)		9:00
Dec. 2	North Carolina Central (NC)	Away	8:00
5, 6	Longwood Invitational Classic II
	Liberty Baptist — Friendship (SC)	Home	6:30
	Longwood — Southeastern (D.C.)		8:30
29, 30	"Gino's Classic" at University of Maryland Baltimore County
	Longwood — Bryant (RI)	Away	7:00
	U.M.B.C. — Widener (PA)		9:00

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS!!!

Everything Must Go!!!

PRICES SLASHED

McKAY'S

111 N. MAIN STREET, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

The IAA is a service offered to and paid for by the students. It offers such things as sports equipment check-out and open recreation hours. Anything from rugby balls to frisbees may be checked out. All that you need is your ID. The checkout times are from 4-6 p.m., Monday-Thursday, and 2-4, Saturday and Sunday. Equipment may be checked out at the back of Iler gym. If there is some type of equipment that the IAA does not have, you are encouraged to ask for it and, they will try to get it for you.

The IAA also offers open recreation for students' use. These are free times in which no games or practices are scheduled. Unfortunately, these hours are not being used by the students. They are being closely watched this year to see just how many students are using the available places. If it is found that they are not being used enough, then the places and times will be taken away from the students. The Open Rec hours and locations are: Iler Field, Monday-Friday 3:30-6:00 and Iler Gymnasium, Monday-Friday 3:30-6:00. Any other facilities will be posted in Lancer Hall.

This year, the IAA is giving Tee Shirts to each member of the winning teams in each sport. At the end of the year a Superstar Competition is held. This consists of 6-8 events culminating in the obstacle course.

The Men's Flag Football intramurals have had a large turnout this year. Eleven teams are competing. They are: Pi Kappa Phi, Fomacach, Yoda's Gang, Cox Team I, Cox Team II, Runnin' Rebels, Raiders, Crows, Keggers, Frazerfire and Boinkers.

To find out more of what the IAA has in store for this year, why not attend the next meeting of the IAA? They meet every Thursday at 7:00 in the IAA room in Lankford.

Field Hockey - Gets Good Start

By CINDY DROPSKI

The field hockey team started the season off right by defeating Mary Washington 3-1 last Wednesday. Chris Meyer, a returning sophomore, took a strong drive to put Longwood ahead at halftime. The other scores were from Bette Stanley and Julie Dayton in the second half.

Karen Kilmer, a third year player, played an aggressive defensive game. Another key player against Mary Washington was goalie, Teri Davis. Teri stopped the ball on a penalty flick and held her opponents to one goal. Teri is a fourth year player whose experience and skill will be an asset to the team.

To continue their winning streak, Longwood's first team beat Lynchburg 3-2 and second team won 1-0. The first score of the game was made by freshman Nancy Johnson on a penalty corner. Chris Meyer again played a good offensive game. She scored when the ball deflected off the goalie's pads. After many consecutive attempts at the goal by her teammates, Julie Dayton drove in the last goal.

Longwood Invitational is being held September 19 and 20 on Barlow Field. They are hosting:

Furman, Davis and Elkins, Clemson, Maryland and Appalachian State. The Lady

Lancers first game is at 10:00 a.m. September 19. Come out and support your Lady Lancers!!!

Sports Profile

My knowledge of female athletics is as prevalent as a tree surgeon's wine tasting ability for Chateau-de Rotchilds, vintage, say 1926. Regardless of whether 1926 was a good year I was truly impressed not only with the record book statistics of 5'11" Julie Dayton's athletic qualities, but I was mesmerized by her matter-of-fact good looks and charming soft spoken personality.

I had to prod and pry for Julie to reveal any personal accomplishments, but opening up old doors and clearing the cob webs from her modesty made my forty-five minute interview a challenge.

Julie is a twenty-one year-old senior from Laurel, Delaware, where she attended Laurel High School. There she played field hockey, basketball and softball; lettering in all three sports for four years.

At Longwood, Julie has narrowed her varsity abilities to field hockey and lacrosse. Last year Julie lead the hockey team with goals (seven for the season) but struggled to a disappointing 3-12-3 record. This year's team is undefeated after two games and striving to remain in the undefeated column. About this year's team Julie boasted, "We are young but have much potential. Last year our record showed we didn't win too much. The games we lost were close and this year we have a better team to keep a more competitive edge and come out on top."

I am certainly sure the quick forward can retain her personal contributions to help mold a number one team.

Last year proved a victorious season for Lady Lancer Lacrosse. The team compiled a 7-5 win-loss record, and received an at-large bid to National competition. Julie lead the team again as an attack wing with 54 goals. She is a member of the 1980 U.S. squad; who plays on the international level, and she is trying out for the 1981 Australian Tour.

On the off-season Julie plays softball during the summer, and is equally as interested in her boyfriend's summer league play.

Longwood College will lose Julie this year to graduation. She plans to teach her major, Health and Physical Education for a while before returning to school for graduate work in the same field. Longwood will lose Julie, but the world of physical education will be gaining one of the most valuable assets in human spirit; Julie Dayton.

Photo by Tom Staley

During the past week Longwood beat Lynchburg (8-5) split with VCU (3-5, 8-4) and swept two from William & Mary (8-2, 11-4).

Women's Golf Invitational Held

By BETH WADDELL

The women's golf team hosted its annual Invitational September 12-14. Seven teams showed to give Longwood strong competition. Although the team managed to post their lowest score, they finished third with a three day total of 950.

Marshall University placed first with 914, which was also their lowest team score. Bowling Green came in second barely defeating Longwood with 945. Other team scores were: Penn State 958, William and Mary 968, James Madison University 1007, and UNC-Wilmington 1014.

Individual Standings

First - Mary Wilkinson, William and Mary 223

Second - Tammy Green, Marshall University 225.

Tammy Green won second place after defeating Tracey Lienbach of William and Mary and Chris McKevey of Bowling Green in a three-way sudden death play-off.

Dr. Smith, coach from Longwood, commented on the excellent scores and was very pleased with her team's performance. Emily Fletcher, freshman, now holds the course record in tournament play with a par 73.

Volleyball Opens Season

From SPORTS INFO

Two of Longwood's fall sports teams will culminate weeks of hard season practice this week. First-year volleyball coach Nanette Fisher and returning coach Phyllis Harriss will soon see how well their perseverance has paid off when their respective teams open this season with tough home matches.

Volleyball begins its schedule tomorrow (Tues.) by hosting James Madison and Louisburg. Harriss will be attempting to better last season's fall record of 6-3 when her tennis team opens play on Friday against Randolph-Macon.

Coach Nanette Fisher, a Longwood graduate, will be beginning her first year as a collegiate volleyball coach. The 1979-80 team compiled a record of 16-19 overall, and Fisher expects to better this mark even though she has a young squad.

Six of last season's team members are returning, and five of them will start in Tuesday's game. Senior Sharon Will (Madison Heights), junior Julie Petefish (Stanley), and sophomores Kathy Gunning (Serem, Md.), Madeline Moose (Silver Spring, Md.), will provide the experience on the starting squad. Also starting for the Lady Lancers is junior Connie Murray (Appomattox). Freshman starter Duquette (Plattsburg, N.Y.) will also be displaying her skills in the opener. Coach Fisher emphasizes that this starting line-up is only for the first match, it could change from game to game as the other girls develop their talents. Finishing out the volleyball roster are Patti Adams (W. Redding, Ct.), Jeannie Breckenridge (New York, N.Y.), Mimi Dreher (Roanoke), Joyce Pool (Brookneal), and Coreen Samuel (Coral Bay, Vt.).

The team will also have a match on Thursday in Blacksburg with Liberty Baptist and VPI.

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Ruggers Fall

By T.C. JONES

The Longwood Rugby Club opened the fall season with a double loss to VCU. The scores were VCU 7 - LC 0, VCU 6 - LC 0. Both games were defensive with little offense. First game inexperience for the new members was a key factor in the losses along with little aggressive play on the part of the veterans. Our next game at U of R should see a different Longwood team. The U.R. game is on Sept. 20. Rugby schedules are available at Cox dorm in the office. The Longwood Rugby Club did manage to win the party after the games with the help of Frank Heimroth.

Longwood Standings

Robin Andrews	80, 75, 74 - 229
Kay Smith	75, 78, 81 - 234
Emily Fletcher	88, 78, 73 - 239
Janet Kelly	84, 85, 81 - 250
Sharon Gilmore	86, 91, 84 - 261
Susan Morgan	91, 91, 82 - 264
Cheryl DuFort	90, 89, 86 - 265

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST. FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

- OFFICE SUPPLIES
- OFFICE MACHINES
- OFFICE FURNITURE

- PORTABLE TYPEWRITER
- REPAIR

Would You Prefer An INFORMAL SENIOR PORTRAIT?

CALL 392-8710 NOW FOR AN APPOINTMENT

ROBERT T. FORE
PHOTOGRAPHY
119 N. MAIN ST., FARMVILLE

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW!

OPEN:

Mon - Thur Til 10 PM, Fri & Sat Til Midnight

104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

ROAST BEEF SUBS

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Baynham: A Longwood First

(Continued from Page 1) discrimination and prejudice are personal problems in which everyone has some degree of participation. The minor confrontations he has experienced here so far have been of no great consequence to him. Mr. Baynham stated the belief that so long as other people's prejudice do not interfere with his daily functionings and purpose, he has no excessive problems with them.

Baynham plans to keep his mind on set goals and attempt to get people working together to achieve those goals. Jumping to conclusions will be avoided at all costs, as will listening to rumors. Mr. Baynham states the feeling that these activities only tend to aggravate present problems.

Baynham expresses much enthusiasm concerning his position as facilitator of employee relations and affirmative action programming. He is very optimistic for Longwood and the future. He hopes to become familiar with all the new procedures quickly and begin helping to establish congenial relationships between all levels of employees in the near future.

SUN's Concert

(Continued from Page 3)

Dalton must be something special! How about a sensation of the 1980's? Why not see for yourself? Maybe a few years from now when people are paying $8 or $9 to see Dalton perform, you can think back to the $3.50 concert you saw in Jarman auditorium. It will definitely be a night to remember even for curiosity's sake! Don't miss it!

(Continued from Page 3)

"bottleneck" style of guitar playing after the "Father of Rock and Roll," an elderly black man from Forest, Mississippi, by the name of Crudup. Bill played the blues with Crudup for a short time before going out on his own.

Early in his career Bill was a lone performer playing primarily blues and some jazz. The band was actually formed due to Bill's stage fright. When Bill was scheduled to play with B.B. King at the Mosque in Richmond, he quickly organized a backup band so he would not have to perform alone. Since that time the band has expanded to include a lead, rhythm, and bass guitarist, a drummer, a saxist, a combination trumpet and valve trombone player, and of course Bill, singing lead and playing the bottleneck guitar.

The highlight of the band's career was their performance last week at "The Cellar Door" in Washington, D.C. The "Cellar Door" is considered by traveling musicians as a stepping stone to the limelight. Bill indicated he was pleased to be included on Longwood's program this year and commended I.B. Dent for his ability to attract well-known groups of musicians. Bill was very impressed with the fact that Longwood is hosting Lacy Dalton this Wednesday night. Following their performance Saturday night the Bill Blue Band prepared for their next stop which will be in Baltimore at a bar called "No Fish Today."

House Of Beauty

100 High St., Farmville, 392-4460
Welcomes...Cathy Thorton from Alavista, Va. Specializing in the latest precision cuts for blow and go. She'd like to build her clientele...find out how to get a free haircut.

TAKE ARMY ROTC IN COLLEGE AND SERVE PART-TIME WITH THE ARMY RESERVE OR ARMY NATIONAL GUARD.

Now when you take Army ROTC, you can choose to serve on part-time duty with your nearest Army Reserve or Army National Guard unit after you become a commissioned officer.

You'll enjoy many of the same benefits and privileges a full-time officer does. And you'll earn a good extra income of over $1,000 for serving just 16 hours a month (usually a weekend) and two weeks a year.

But, best of all, you can start using your Army ROTC leadership and management training right away in civilian life. Training that can help you build a rewarding career in your chosen field.

Serving on part-time duty after receiving your commission is only one of the benefits of taking Army ROTC.

There are lots of others, too. Like financial assistance. Up to $1,000 a year for your last two years of ROTC.

So enroll in Army ROTC today. And take advantage of an option that lets you serve on part-time duty after you become a commissioned officer.

For more information, write: Army ROTC, Box 7000, Larchmont, New York 10538.

ARMY ROTC. LEARN WHAT IT TAKES TO LEAD.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: CALL

CPT. ROGER McHENRY

CPT. TOM STANFORD

SFC. TIMOTHY JORDAN

AT 392-9259 OR 392-9348

Support The Lancers

Levi's
WELCOME BACK LONGWOOD...
WE'VE GOT YOU COVERED WITH LEVI'S

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4870

Levi's
SAVE!!
DRASTICALLY REDUCED
1/2 PRICE
SUMMER CLEARANCE

DEECIE
PAINTER PANTS
ONLY $9.99

FIVE-IN-ONE...

and that one is a
BULOVA
ACCUTRON
QUARTZ WRIST ALARM

1. It's a traditional watch
2. It's a digital watch.
3. It's a two-time zone watch.
4. It's a calendar watch
5. It's an alarm watch.

Moreover, it's a handsome dress watch with Accutron Quartz accuracy and dependability.

Outstanding in stainless steel. Matching link band and silver dial. $150.00
Come see and hear.

Martin

THE JEWELER

FARMVILLE, VA.

IT'S BULOVA WATCH TIME

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LVI

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1980

NO. 4

Geist Taps Oktoberfest Participants

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The sound of Oktoberfest music brought many Longwood students to Jarman Auditorium, Thursday night when the 1980 Oktoberfest Geist Tapping was held. The ceremony began as thirteen Geist members dressed as klowns ran through the aisles of Jarman throwing candy to those in the audience.

New Oktoberfest music was presented on the organ by Margarite Roller. The music was written by Longwood alumni John Hudson and presented to the klowns last year. Slides from last year's Oktoberfest were shown.

Nina Leffue and Mark Getz were tapped as blue-and-white light technicians. They will aid both the Greens and the Reds with their skits.

Tapped next were the ushers and usherettes from each class. They are chosen for their participation in college activities and spirit.

Representing the freshman class are Georgia Staley of Colonial Heights and John Baumann of Laguna Beach, CA.

Carol Atkins and Beth Rowe are the sophomore usherettes. Carol, an Elementary Education major from Flint Hill, is a member of the Baptist Student Union Tafara. Beth, who was head colleague this year, is a Medical Technology major from Mechanicsville.

Junior Class usher and usherette are Dallas Bradbury and Brenda Coleman. Dallas, from Chesterfield, is a member of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity and is the sports editor of The Rotunda. Brenda, an English major from South Hill, has been editor of The Virginian and is a member of the Judicial Board.

Anna Staley and Frank Creasy were tapped as senior usherette and usher. Anna, an Elementary Education major from Colonial Heights, is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority. Frank, a sociology major from Winchester, is a member of the Longwood Players.

Ross Conner, a sophomore Psychology major from Winchester, was tapped as Mittenmeister. This meister is chosen for his spirit and opens the Midway on Saturday.

Chosen as Festmeister, Grace Ann Rogers is a member of the Junior Class. Grace, a Physical Education major from Virginia Beach, will be mistress of ceremonies on Friday and Saturday nights.

Representing the Senior Class as Geistmeister, Linda Paschall is an Elementary Education major from Hanover. Linda is a member of Alpha Sigma Tau social sorority and the Student Activity Fees Committee.

Twenty-one klowns were chosen for their spirit and hard work during try-outs. Geist Head Klown Tracey Hormuth announced the following as the 1980 Oktoberfest klowns: Sharon Callahan, Carol Kilvington, Sherry Will, Julie Jones, Margi Carlin, Susie Donohoe, Donna Ruggiers, Anne Dempsey, Valery Maranjo, Vicki Nesbitt, Jo Jacobs, Cheri Williams, Andrea Summons, Jan Jennings, Kathy Schmidt, Tammy Lincks, Kathy Hesse, Terry Oakley, Jan Hamilton, Andrea Ruffin, Jeanette Arnold, and Elynn Friedsain as alternate. Dr. Rita Howe is the klown sponsor.

Oktoberfest weekend is October 25 and 26.

Geist members dressed as klowns tapped the Oktoberfest participants.

Photo by Linda Paschall

Oktoberfest Rounds The Corner

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Can you feel it? It's beginning; buzzing all around campus! The excitement and anticipation, enthusiasm and diligent work mixed with fun to bring together a very special week end at Longwood. It's OKTOBER-FEST!

By now, activities for Oktoberfest are underway and progress is moving right along. For those who have participated or have taken part in the Oktoberfest activities before, might not be real psyched for yet another fall Oktoberfest. Yet this year's activities have a few new dimensions and for freshmen Oktoberfest could be a very impressive, colorful and fun week end!

Although the official Oktoberfest schedule has not been posted, a few pre-planned activities are almost sure to take place. A quick run-down is as follows: Sports events include a blue & white basketball game and a hockey game. The IAA (Intramural Athletic Association), is planning a day of fun also. Re-lay races, egg tosses, water balloon fights, etc. promise to be an eventful day. There is the Midway parade which will probably end in the Lankford parking lot. Skits will take place, cake cutting will occur a beer garden (on the patio of the new gym) will quench thirsts, and Chi alumni members will walk and sing on the Colonnade. The student union will have a showcase gallery in the red, white and green rooms in Lankford as well as a hot-air balloon attraction which is new. Plenty of shows are also underway, the choir concert is scheduled for about 1:30 p.m. Sat., Sept. 25, and a jazz band will play during lunch which is also new. The Catalina's will present swimming abilities in Lancer's Olympic size pool and the dance company will present a few numbers. During all of these festivities or in the midst of them the Lancer Hall dedication will take place at 11:00 a.m. Sat., Sept. 25.

Already, many students are taking an active role in making this year's Oktoberfest one of the best. Sponsored by Geist, Oktoberfest takes a lot of time and effort! Your cooperation would greatly be appreciated!

During Oktoberfest probably the most exciting festivities are the class color competitions. Already mentioned is the IAA events but what about skits? What is all the fuss about winning anyway? The class who wins any event receives points and the class with the most points win the Oktoberfest cup. You have seen the words red & white or green & whites? Well, this is how each class is divided; seniors and sophomores are green and white and juniors and freshmen are red & whites. Skits are the highlights of color competition and this year's theme is "Joan of Arc." Each skit will be given points by a panel of judges and will last approximately 20 minutes which will have a variety of music and dancing presented in each skit.

Bill LeWarne who is head of the skit division says, "I think this year's skits are going to be a whole lot better because we have experienced people writing the scripts, the plots are more involved and clearly identified. Having a definite theme helps!"

The scripts have been written but musical arrangements are

(Continued on Page 8)

Overcrowded Enrollment

By JODI KERSEY

Longwood's enrollment procedure has been questioned recently due to the fact of continuous over-crowdedness, especially after the extensive tripling of rooms last year. Gary C. Groneweg, director of Admissions and coordinator of financial aid explains how this predicament can arise. To begin with, there is no actual deadline for applications. Longwood accepts applications on a rolling admissions policy. Applications are accepted for resident students until the school is considered filled to capacity. Day students are accepted right up to the registration date.

The reason there is possible over-crowdedness is due to the fact that this capacity level is decided upon by speculation. The admissions department has to speculate how many students will come back to Longwood from the previous year and how many accepted freshmen will definitely come. "Realistically," said Groneweg, "it is physically impossible to calculate these percentages perfectly". Furthermore, Groneweg stated that the capacity quota has to be calculated by January before the next academic year has even opened.

One area in which Longwood differs from other colleges continued Groneweg is that "Longwood guarantees an accepted student residency". Students will not be told to find alternate housing.

The major reason Longwood is having to make the adjustment of overcrowdedness is because more students have been applying and then staying at Longwood than has historically been the case.

Usually, the admission capacity has been completed by January. Last year, the quota had been filled by November and for next year, the quota was filled by this past August. Since student attendance is on the rise, hopefully the capacity of students accepted will be closely watched to deter further over-crowdedness.

Press Conference

On Thursday afternoon at 12:45 p.m. the Gold Room will be the location for the first press conference of the semester. Submitted questions on differing topics are planned for President Willett to discuss. After discussion of submitted questions President Willett welcomes any questions or concerns from the audience. The press conference allows students to bring up subjects that are of concern to the student body and overall college. The Student Government Association encourages those who are interested to attend.

Questions submitted by Legislative Board for the Press Conference are:

1. Would you briefly explain the situation with the Campus School? Is there anything students can do about it?
2. Can day students have a mailbox here on campus?
3. Why was the tree in front of Lancer Hall cut down?
4. What is being done with French Pool?
5. What plans are being made in regard to future parking areas? What plans are being made to accommodate cars during special events at Lancer Hall?
6. Would you please explain the administration's and the campus police's role in the handling of narcotics on campus?
7. Has the new baseball field been completed? Are plans being made for a softball field?
8. In which direction is Longwood headed as far as accreditation for the therapeutic recreation major?

Reading In The 1980's

By MELODY CRAWLEY
"Reading in the 1980's: Reflection and Renewal" was the theme for the ninth annual Reading Institute, September 20. The Reading Institute is sponsored each year by the Department of Education of Longwood College at the John P. Wynne Campus School.

Dr. Dorothy Strickland, professor of Education at Columbia University was the Institute's morning speaker. Dr. Strickland emphasized the positive in her talk on reading in 1980 saying that reading scores have finally gone up.

She cautioned the teachers present not to base their entire curriculum on test scores. Emphasizing that the main goal of teachers should be to produce "life-long readers," she stressed that reading is for enjoyment. To back up her point, she quoted statistics from an article entitled "Not Tonight Dear, I'd like to Read." This article lists a wife's number one hobby as reading, while her husband's is sex.

Dr. Strickland listed several ideas throughout her lecture which she termed "Strickland Hopes." One was that there be day to day classroom evaluation. "While we see trends toward growth, there is a tremendous effort on improving skills," explained Dr. Strickland.

The second "Strickland Hope" that she expressed was that there not be any new innovations, "but a tempering of what we've been doing." Dr. Strickland lists the emerging new trends of the 1980's to include a fight against sexism in literature books, behavioral objectives, and criteria reference.

"The biggest challenge of the 80's," according to Dr. Strickland, "is to rebuild public confidence in public schools." She challenged the teachers to "reach out and touch" the public with what they are doing. "You need to help the public understand."

Dr. Strickland used the Wynne Campus School as an example of building public confidence. "You have a viable, very important part of teacher training here (Campus School)." She encouraged the fight to transmit the need for continuing the practice school to the State.

She ended her talk by telling a humorous account of the departments of public education from the state department to the classroom teacher. "I've been in the classroom, I know something about the classroom."

The second general session of the Institute was held that afternoon with Ms. Eileen Little as speaker. Ms. Little is the owner of Little People Publications and is the owner and director of The Learning Center in Coffeyville, Kansas.

Ms. Little entitled her talk, "Now Is The Time," in which she stressed that, "There has never been such an opportunity as there is today in education."

She told the teachers to learn and profit from their mistakes. She also told them to look back and cherish the memories. "In looking back let us learn; the only way to learn is in seeing and hearing."

The goal of the 1980's, according to Ms. Little should be to become more selective in the utilization of time. "Be selective," she continued. "Schools were not designed for the convenience of teachers and educators." She asked the teachers to remember the three r's in making an assignment: "reasonable task, take a reasonable amount of time, and a reasonable amount of effort."

Some of Ms. Little's key words for teachers included enthusiasm, initiative, team work, involvement, environment and expectation. She concluded by saying "A teacher should be genuinely concerned for the child and those whom his life comes in contact with."

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Sprague Lectures

By JODI KERSEY

On September 16, Dr. Rosemary Sprague, associate professor of English, opened this year's departmental seminar series with a lecture entitled "Victorian Poetic Drama: a Romantic Legacy." Many students and professors attended this delightful lecture concerning the Victorian poets and their struggle to become poetic dramatists. Dr. Sprague explained how difficult it was for the poets to write material which would actually work in the theater.

The main problem with the poets of this time was their devotion to naturalism and realism in contrast to the people's devotion to complete romance. Poets such as Coleridge, Shelley and Byron had initiated a break in the literary standards by using freer language and a return to nature whereas the people wanted very theatrical plays with complete absence of any harsh reality.

Through outlining two plays from this period, Civilization and The Patrician's Daughter, Dr. Sprague stressed the many basic facets of romantic poetic drama such as the sharp division between right and wrong, the perfect hero, the virtuous heroine and the rewarding of virtue and the punishment of vice.

One of the most shocking directions for a Victorian play to go would be the typical problem of a higher society girl falling in love with someone of lower society or vice-versa for a man.

Dr. Sprague continued to summarize the story of each play, showing the "exalted bursts of rhetoric" and verbal love scenes with "chaste embraces" until the awaited conclusion of each of the five act tragedies.

Class Of 84:

Elects Spirited Officers

By BRENDA COLEMAN
What else would a spirited, enthusiastic group of freshmen do but elect a spirited, enthusiastic president? Patricia Boyle, known as Trisha, was recently elected to that position by her fellow Baby Reds and she's ready to go to work for them and the school.

Trisha has the basic plans that any freshman president has. "I'd like to unite the class and get them to feel comfortable with Longwood." This is where all similarities cease, however. Trisha has already made her own individual mark.

"I want to make LC a part of myself and to become involved in the traditions. I want to meet people, have fun, and make the class a spirited one the entire year! I don't expect miracles. I'll need help because I can't do it all by myself."

Trisha, a business education major from Virginia Beach, will be helped by her fellow officers. The vice-president of the Class of 1984 is Tom Bailey, a business administration major from Richmond. Secretary Kim

PATRICIA BOYLE

Brodrick is a pre-medicine major from Mechanicsville and treasurer Terri Gault came to LC from Springfield and is majoring in math-computer science. We would like to officially welcome the Class of 1984 and wish them the very best in their four years ahead.

New Members Needed

By BETSY CLARK

Phi Beta Lambda, the business fraternity on campus, is striving to gain the membership of all business majors. As the only business organization at Longwood, Phi Beta Lambda is attempting through its many activities this year to really bring the Department of Business and Economics closer to the students. Some of the service projects planned are: tutoring for students needing help in a few of the tougher business classes, a typing pool made up of Phi Beta Lambda members who will be available to type papers for any student at Longwood, guest speakers that will discuss many current issues in the business world today, field trips to Richmond and hopefully, Washington, D. C., to mention a few. Social activities will also be planned after the club acquires all the new members for this year.

The first meeting for all students interested in joining will be held on September 23 at 6:30 p.m. in room 210 Grainger. All business majors are encouraged to come and join so that Phi Beta Lambda can be a successful and active organization on campus.

By MARK KARL SEGAL
The Longwood Colony of Alpha Chi Rho was instituted as a chapter on September 13, 1980. The festivities began on September 12 at 6:30 p.m. with the brothers and their dates attending a cocktail party in their honor. At 7:30 dinner was served with invocations by the National Representatives. After dinner there was a small dance. On the following day the brothers were initiated and many parties followed.

The president of AXP at Longwood is Kenny Marcus. Kenny was very excited after all the hard work paid off and commented, "This is something we have been working on for two years. Now it is a base we can work from to establish a true brotherhood of AXP at Longwood."

The following weekend rush began for the Crows and was started with a party in the Commonwealth Room. A good turnout resulted and many prospective pledges are in the making.

With Alpha Chi Rho initiated Longwood now has three fraternities and two strong colonies.

Prince Gardner®

Great carry-all. Has handy Thumb Ejector slot for easy access to credit cards, a removable vinyl window pak for cards and photos. Also has an I.D. window pocket plus a full width deep bill compartment. Makes an ideal gift to give and receive. In a wide range of handsome leathers and colors.

MARTIN
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

KEY OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23001

- OFFICE SUPPLIES
- OFFICE MACHINES
- OFFICE FURNITURE

- PORTABLE TYPEWRITER REPAIR

For All Your Floral Needs

ROCHETTE'S FLORIST

PHONE 392-4154

Dalton Concert Success

By NEIL SAWYER

Lacy J. Dalton, one of the newest and fastest rising stars of the country music scene, appeared September 17 to a sparse crowd of country fans in Jarman Auditorium. The event was the first of the year's major concerts to be presented on campus. Aside from the obvious absence of the masses due in part to the pressures of the busy "rush" week, the concert was a great success, although most of the audience was unfamiliar with the artist or her material.

Dalton, who has been heralded as the first country music sensation of the 1980's by more than national publication, got her start when she decided to drop out of college to pursue a career by singing in a southern California based rock band. After making a demo recording and presenting it to the management at CBS Records, Dalton was immediately offered a contract. Her first single, "Crazy Blue Eyes," hit the charts and quickly climbed to inside the top-twenty in country music. As if that wasn't good enough, her second single, a heart-felt rendition of Pee Wee King's "Tennessee Waltz," is doing equally well on the charts. The latest development is that the day before her Longwood appearance, Lacy Dalton was named the top new female vocalist with the top single from the top album by Billboard magazine's country music reviewers. Because of her high-paced rise in the national limelight of country music, her cost per appearance is going up so steeply that her show at Longwood will probably be one of her last on the college circuit.

When Lacy and The Dalton Gang took the stage it was immediately apparent that the group had played to small gatherings before. Lacy Dalton played the audience one on one keeping constant eye contact and dialogue with the crowd through the entire set. The playing was tight and Dalton's vocals were gutsy and powerful. While watching one couldn't help thinking that this was a rare chance to see such dynamic star-to-be on a personal level.

Opening for Lacy Dalton were Robin and Linda Williams, a talented duo displaying a light touch for country and a skill for intricate guitar and vocal harmonies.

Photo by Tom Stanley

Spotlight Concert Stars

Gene Cotton

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Flash! September 23, Live, from the Longwood College Gold Room, it's Gene Cotton to perform in this year's first "Spotlight Concert." For those who have never heard of a "Spotlight Concert" you might be interested to know that it is free and because it is free, you might think Gene Cotton must not be anything special but listen to this! This will be Cotton's fourth performance here at Longwood and he is one of the biggest acts in the "spotlight concerts."

He has a single acoustic act and is known on the billboard charts for having a group of top 40 hits which include songs like: "You're a Part of Me," "Before My Heart Finds Out," "Billy the Kid," etc. Ring any bells? Maybe not, however, Cotton is known throughout college campuses all over the United States from California to Kansas, Wisconsin to South Carolina, Illinois to Virginia and Tennessee to Kentucky. In all college reviews Cotton is credited with giving an "excellent show." Even the past performances here at Longwood were impressive enough that students wanted him back.

Cotton attended Ohio State University as political science major but decided to make his career in music. There are six albums to his credit and Cotton has made T.V. appearances along with national tours, which included a 1 1/2 year tour with Olivia Newton John. He has been the opening act for top name bands like: Marshall Tucker, Wet Willie, Charlie Daniel, Dr. Hook and Anne Murray.

Many believe that his songs convey a message or that his lyrics are lyrics you can relate to. Cotton says, "I consider myself sort of a pop emissary from Nashville to the west coast..."

and I think there was time in the 60's that I felt an obligation to make a statement in most every song." Therefore, Cotton's style of music has a slower, more mellow tempo, which has not only given him critical acclaim but enthusiastic audience responses!

Cotton stages his own shows and has been in the music business for 15 years, in which much of Cotton's own philosophies on life are intermingled with his songs. From the promotional tributes given to Cotton, he seems to be like a down to earth guy and this will be your chance to meet him. Remember, 8:00 p.m. on September 23, no need for money or anything else. Just bring yourself, listen to the words of a song for a change and see why Gene Cotton was the third top new male vocalist!

Freshmen Have Upper Hand

By SHELLY GLUSE

The Longwood Players are excited in announcing that their first production, Barefoot in the Park, a comedy by Neil Simon, is made up primarily of Freshmen.

Sherry Forbes, who portrays Corrie Bratter, was extremely active in high school productions not only as an actress but as assistant director and stage manager in several productions. For instance, Miss Forbes had lead roles in such shows as Essentials and Pick-n-Patches; was assistant director and stage manager for Meet Me in St. Louis and Plaza Suite. Sherry was also cast for character roles in Host to a Ghost, Three Fairy Godmothers, Ark of Safety, and The Stolen Prince. Sherry was in Drama Club for four years, Thespian Society for two years, and District Forensics in which she won first place in the category of Girls' Poetry.

Jerry Dagenhart, portraying Victor Velasco was also very active in his high school days. He played such roles as Horace Bandergelder in Hello Dolly, Pillinore in Camelot and the Mayor in The Music Man. At the Barn Dinner Theatre, Jerry played Leonard Goose in Peter Pan. At the Swift Creek Mill (Continued on Page 8)

Open Mike Returns

By CAROLINE EMERY and LINDA WHEELER

Once again the students at Longwood were entertained by another original "Open Mike" sponsored by the Student Union.

As in the past, Ken Jones, Bill LeWarne, and Duke Rollins added their "cheerful, unique, and diverse" sense of humor to the evening, often times being assisted by Mark Winecoff and Ross Connor.

Bill, Duke, and Ken started off the evening making a grand entrance into the Gold Room—in tuxedo jackets with white shorts. Needless to say, the three of them playing the piano in their "attire" was a sight to behold.

The first act of the evening was simply entitled, "Fred, Tom, and Ken." They performed three songs, one being an apparent favorite of the audience's, "Melissa," by Greg Allman. The guys performed well. They gave the new addition to the act, the piano player, a chance to prove his ability at the keyboard in addition to their ability on the guitar.

After the first act, a passionate commercial advising the young men in the audience to recommend to their "lady friends" to wear "Nothing," was performed. Needless to say, it raised quite a few eyebrows.

The next act, "Robert and Anita" with the Commodores' "Three Times a Lady" proved to be one of the, if not the, best act of the evening. Robert's extraordinary voice and Anita's excellence at the piano gave the audience a heart warming, duplicative performance of the original song. They left the audience in an awe-struck state.

During the next intermission, the "Three Stooges" performed a "Press Conference" involving questions from the audience for President Willett (Ken), Mr. Inge (Bill), and Dr. Dalton (Duke). The stereotyping was humorous.

David Gott was the next performer in the spotlight. He performed such songs as "Daisy Jane," by America and John Denver's "Rhymes and Reasons." David's performance was well received and gave to the audience a peaceful feeling.

Bouncing out next came Mark and Ross dressed as robbers, followed by the "Caped Crusaders," Batman (Ken), and Robin, the Boy Wonder (Duke). But, as in some cases, Batman and Robin finally met their match.

Returning once again to the "Open Mike" stage were "Joanne, Sue, and Rene." "The Rose" was performed first and was well received by the audience; their act lingered on to include "Songbird," "Women in the Moon," "Out Here on My Own," and "All That Jazz."

"The Lost Cereal" Commercial followed and reminded some of us in the audience of "Mikey" from the "Life Cereal" commercial. There was only one difference—Mikey didn't throw milk!

Mark and Ross followed with a medley of "their hits," which included "Sailors for Sale or Rent," "Budweiser," and "L-O- (Continued on Page 8)

SPRING BREAK — FLORIDA TRIP

S-UN NEEDS TO KNOW BY OCTOBER 1
IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN THE TRIP — APPROXIMATE COST $200
SIGN UP IN THE S-UN OFFICE.

MIXER

POWER PLAY

D.D.H. — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26
L.C. — $2.00 GUESTS $3.00
I.D.'s REQUIRED

MUSICAL FILM FESTIVAL

SUN.
SHALL WE DANCE... 3:00 PM
AMERICAN IN PARIS... 6:30 PM
MON.
SHOW BOAT... 6:30 PM
SHALL WE DANCE... 9:00 PM
TUES.
AMERICAN IN PARIS... 6:30 PM
SHOW BOAT... 9:00 PM

BEDFORD AUDITORIUM
$1.00 ADMISSION FOR
DOUBLE FEATURE OR SINGLE FEATURE

SAT. Sept. 27th

Red/White/Green
rooms
8:30pm.
L.C. $1.00/W.I.D.
Guests $1.50

the SOUND Rock

GALLERY
"Mal
Rock Function"

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA
Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

SPORTS EDITOR: Dallas Bradbury
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR: Jackie Steer

BUSINESS MANAGER: Robyn Black
ADVERTISING MGR.: Patti Pascale
STAFF: Dave Gates, Brenda Coleman,
Pam Updike, Jody Gilbert, Carole Key,
Mitt Mason, William Brent, Deborah
Peterson, Cindy Hall, Janice Roakes,
Donna Hughes, Linda Wheeler, Tom
Sullivan, Pam Winger, Beth Parrott,
Nina Bowyer, Debra Cunningham,
Sarah Stump, Robyn Carr, Connie
Fallon, Dawn Perdue, Tom Stanley, Neil
Sawyer, Joe Johnson, Jodi Kersey.
Member of the VIMCA.

Published weekly during the College
year with the exception of Holidays and
examination periods by the students of
Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its
columnists, and do not necessarily reflect
the views of the student body or the
administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed.
They must be typed, signed and
submitted to the Editor by the Friday
preceding publication date. All letters
are subject to editing.

Sophomores

I am writing to verify the rumors that the Sophomore Class president has resigned and ask for your support in electing a new president. This Wednesday there will be a meeting at which the election will be discussed. All sophomores are asked to attend.

In the past, the number of people running for office has not warranted a good selection. You cannot have a one person election. The presidency is one that requires a responsible person who has the time, desire and quality to lead. The Class of '83 has several people that meet this criteria. I ask now, if you are one of these people please step forward and accept this responsibility. I also ask for all sophomores to please vote.

John Todd

SPE's Attributes

If the administration had listened to George Ritchie speak last week, they would have heard that in the end the negative things done in life amount to zero, it is the positive things accomplished, "the good" that add up. We, the brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon, too, feel this way. Partly due to our own fault, only the negative things are noticed, when we do have a positive influence on this campus and community, it goes unrecognized. Each year at Thanksgiving we distribute boxes of food to the needy families in the Farmville area. We also work with, and contribute to the Muscular Dystrophy campaign, we actively participate in Oktoberfest, and each semester our pledge class does a community service project. We are now planning to help the United Way, and the Wesley Foundation in the near future. This letter was not written just to blow our own horn, but as an invitation, an extension of many helping hands. We are more than a negative organization, we can be a strong positive force. If you or your organization need a helping hand, contact us, the Brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Sincerely,
Brian Whetzel
Corresponding Secretary

Is Geist Fair?

Dear Student Body;

In recent weeks, two tappings have occurred on campus. These are Geist and Oktoberfest tappings. Overall, the choices made were good and I respect and admire the decisions made. My major observation of these tappings is that another tradition has been broken.

In each tapping, and in both color classes, people who were already committed to, various jobs concerning Oktoberfest were literally taken away by Geist, either for their organization or for Oktoberfest.

Yes, to be tapped into Geist, to be chosen an usher, meister, or even a Klown is a great honor for anyone and one which every student should strive for.

But is it fair for Geist to step in and tell everyone that a person must give up a job that their class elected them to, to become a Blue and White? Suppose the person wants to stay green and white or red and white (which they obviously wanted to do or they wouldn't have run for the job in the first place.) All I am asking the student body is this: If a person is already in one of the top positions in their class for Oktoberfest, does Geist have the power to say "We want you in this position and it doesn't matter if you're already committed to your class?"

Is this fair to the classes who voted for the person in the first place? Is it fair to the student body as a whole? And most importantly, is it fair to the person who has been tapped, especially if that person has worked from the moment he or she was elected. If they accept the new position, they've put a drawback into the class. If they would, by some chance, attempt to decline the decision made, they would more than likely be shunned and even outcast, not by their own class, but by Geist themselves.

Students, please write in and state what your feelings are on this matter. Do you think this is fair and just ???

Signed,
A puzzled and disappointed Blue and White and Green and White

CHI Congratulates - Admissions

for a great group of Freshmen
and Transfers

Senior Spotlight

By BRENDA COLEMAN

Ask any LC student to name one of the most bubbly seniors on campus. Then ask that same person who the current president of Alpha Gam is. Last, but not least, have the student name one of the main forces behind Longwood's BSU. Their answers will be one in the same for all three questions—Anna Staley.

Anna is an elementary education major from Colonial Heights. She is certifying in kindergarten through grade 3, explaining: "I really love kids. I would like to help them start their school years and make them like school. So I thought I'd start at the kindergarten level and get them off on the right foot. I was influenced to become a teacher by my mother, who now still teaches, and my father, who formerly taught."

As mentioned before, Anna is president of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and has been actively involved in the Baptist Student Union since freshman year. She has also served as a student assistant and orientation leader during Orientation and has been involved in class activities such as Oktoberfest. She has also served on the Dining Hall Committee.

"When I first came to Longwood, I hated it here. My first semester was horrible—I was homesick a lot and since I was so shy, I didn't have that many friends. However, second semester I became involved in the BSU. That brought me out a lot. I hadn't been involved in high school at all because I was so shy. But after I started joining organizations here and becoming more active, I really began enjoying LC more. After that terrible first semester, I was ready to go home for good. But after I became more involved and active, I decided that I was right for college after all."

The adverse reports that have been coming out about Longwood have not changed Anna's opinion of the school. "I talked about Longwood so much when I went home that I literally convinced my younger sister to come here. She is enrolled here now as a freshman."

Even though graduation is only seven months away, it still causes Anna to reflect on her years here. "Attending Longwood has given me a wider perspective on people's ideals. I'm going through those difficult phases of wanting and not wanting to graduate. However, I feel that I'm prepared for whatever happens. LC has given me much more confidence than I ever had before. I know that I can't conquer the world, but I feel like I can conquer a little piece of it."

Support The

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Editor's Turn

Dr. Dorothy Strickland of Columbia University told a story at the Reading Institute that sums up a lot of today's problems. The story told of a group of school children who wanted to put a swing in the school yard. Their idea was picked up by the teachers and passed through the various channels of the administration (principal, school board, state board, etc.) until finally the swing was put up by the maintenance crew. Each channel had changed the original idea that when the swing was put up it was quite impractical.

The same idea could be applied to many aspects of today. However, if we look closely at our college's problem with the John P. Wynne Campus School, we will see that the story applies directly to it.

The idea of an observation school to be used in teacher training is becoming changed and complicated that one has to wonder about the situation.

The management study questioned its usefulness; The State Department of Education has also questioned it. Students are beginning to wonder what is going to happen to the school, and College committees continue to study the problem.

While all this fuss and worry is going on, students are still observing teaching techniques at the school, and the primary and elementary age students that attend the school are still receiving one of the best educations possible.

This should say something to state officials in the Education department and Legislature. Even though they are still trying to figure out the Campus School's usefulness, the College is producing some of the state's finest and best trained teachers because of it.

Changing an original idea by those who have very little contact with it can create something quite impractical... Does it have to happen?

ROTC Enrollment Increases

Page 5 THE ROTUNDA Tuesday, September 23, 1980

By TOM STANLEY

The Longwood ROTC program has noted a significant increase in enrollment this year, bringing the total to 90 students. About 15 of these 90 students are in the reserve or will serve four years' active duty upon graduation, while the remaining 75 are interested military science students.

Janice Johnson, David Sawyer, and Jay Poole; three of Longwood's ROTC cadets attended the Army's Airborne School at Fort Benning, Ga., this summer. They are the first Longwood cadets to receive their Army Paratrooper Wings, considered a coveted award. The Airborne school consisted of two weeks of proper training in aircraft exit and target landing; and one week of actual jumping. The paratrooper wings were awarded upon completion of the fifth jump.

Janice and David also completed the seven-day Air Assault School at Fort Campbell, Ky. This included instruction in the use of helicopters to support military operations and techniques used in rappelling from helicopters. Completion of this course earned them the Army Air Assault badge.

Three other students attended Cadet Troop Leadership Training (CTLT). This three-week course allows senior ROTC cadets to visit and work with active Army duty units. The purpose of the program is to allow cadets an insight into the types of jobs they could expect if they chose active duty after graduation.

Pat Carnes, one of the CTLT students, worked as an assistant platoon leader in a petroleum operating company at Fort Lee, Va. Byron Bracey worked in a finance office at Ft. Stewart, Ga., while Beth Navin spent her summer at Ft. Gordon, Ga., working at a communications unit. All three received good recommendations from their supervisors for their summer performance.

Janice Lembke, a senior majoring in home economics, was selected as Cadet Commander of the Longwood ROTC company. Janice was selected for her demonstrated scholastic and leadership ability along with her performance at ROTC Advanced Camp this summer. Her responsibilities will include all planning and administration associated with ROTC functions. Janice will be assisted by executive officer, Charles Reed, and first sergeant, Larry Richardson.

On the agenda this semester for military science students are a number of events. These include: rappelling at the University of Richmond, Sept. 16; a backpacking trip in the mountains of Virginia, Oct. 3-8; an orientation trip to Ft. Lee, Oct. 31; and a field leadership exercise at Ft. Pickett, Nov. 7-9.

Captain Stanford and Sergeant First Class Tim Jordan are in the process of trying to schedule a canoe trip for October or November. They are also tossing around the idea of organizing an elitist group of cadets that would be known as "Rangers." These cadets would represent the pinnacle of success and face many hurdles in achieving recognition. Though these plans are still not in the action stage they could develop by next year.

Undecided?

Try Home Ec.

By CAROLE YVONNE KEY
Are you still "undecided" as to what major to go into here at Longwood? Why not look into the department of Home Economics? The fields that you can explore are Fashion Merchandising, Clothing & Textiles, Education, Food & Nutrition, Interior Design, Child Development and others. The general education requirements for the department are English 100 and 101, History 121 or 122, Art 120, an English Literature elective, Economics 202, Chemistry 101, Health 100, and three P.E. classes. If you've taken any or all of these courses you could easily become a Home Economics major. Now—most people think "a Home Ec major...all they have to do is know how to cook and sew...easy major!" WRONG! What it is is challenging work and interesting subjects. Although it sounds like a sales pitch, home economics will benefit you in more ways than you'd ever know. It is nothing like the high school courses you've taken or heard of. It covers everything from building your own house to learning how to live in it. Talk it over with your advisor and give it a try.

L to R Clockwise: Dr. John S. Peale, Dr. Robert G. Rogers, Dr. James William Jordan, Dr. Carolyn M. Craft.

Foundation Sponsors Symposium

By MELODY CRAWLEY

The Longwood College Foundation, Inc. will sponsor a symposium entitled "A Sense of the Sacred," September 30, 6:30 p.m. in the Red, White, and Green Rooms of Lankford.

There will be four lectures in the symposium, each lasting approximately 30 minutes.

Dr. John S. Peale will give the first lecture entitled "The Structure and Importance of Religious Experience." Dr. Peale is an associate professor of Philosophy at Longwood.

The second speaker on the agenda will be Dr. Robert G.

Rodgers. Dr. Rodgers, who is an associate professor of Religion at Hampden-Sydney College, will speak on "Biblical Models for the Divine-Human Encounter."

"Propagation of the Gods: The Increase of the Sacred in a West African Culture" will be presented by Dr. James William Jordan. Dr. Jordan is an associate professor of Anthropology at Longwood.

Dr. Carolyn M. Craft will be the third lecturer. Dr. Craft's lecture is entitled "Concept and Practice in Some Forms of Hinduism and Buddhism."

After the lectures, there will be a panel discussion.

1980-81 Yearbook?

For the last six or seven years, the yearbook has been produced by very few people.

The 1979 yearbook will be distributed November 1. Last year's book was done by the two co-editors, Kim Lauterbach and Brenda Coleman and a few other students, including Nancy Setzer and Susan Watford. This annual promises to be one of the best; however, a few people can not do all the work.

On Wednesday, September 24, at 7:30 p.m., there will be a meeting in the Reading Rooms of Lankford. All interested in working on the 1980-81 yearbook are asked to attend.

The yearbook will continue under two conditions: 1) If students complete the coupon below affirmatively and 2) If enough students are willing to work to produce it.

I.B. Dent, advisor, states, "It is not fair to lay the load on the editors and two or three other people. It has to be a school-wide undertaking."

YEARBOOK SURVEY

	YES	NO
I believe Longwood should have a Year Book	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
I am planning to buy a Year Book	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
Approximate cost $14.00
Take to the S-UN Office or box in new Smoker.

Faculty Colloquium Series Begins

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The first lecture in this year's Faculty Colloquium Series at Longwood College will be a discussion on the sociological measurement of religiosity by Dr. Jerry D. Cardwell.

The lecture, entitled "On Living and Using One's Religion: Intrinsic and Extrinsic Orientations to Multidimensional Religiosity," is scheduled for Wednesday evening, September 24, at 7:30 in Wygal Auditorium. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Dr. Cardwell states that religiosity is a difficult concept to define, since it is composed of several dimensions, and has therefore been difficult for sociologists to research.

An important motivation for the study of religiosity, he states, is "the hope that it may be useful in helping social and behavioral scientists explain, understand, and predict other types of human behavior."

His presentation will assess the present state of development in scientific efforts to measure religiosity and suggest some current problems. He will also report on his own recent research which attempts "to develop useful and sound procedures for coming to grips with this important facet of human behavior."

Dr. Cardwell is associate professor of sociology at Longwood and chairman of the college's department of sociology and anthropology. He also directs the department's Center for Research on Religiosity. His new book, The Social Context Of Religiosity, was released on July 21.

He holds degrees from the University of Alabama, the University of Maine, and the doctorate in sociology from the University of Utah. His professional memberships include the American Sociological Association, the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion, and the Religious Research Association.

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Teacher Examinations Announced

Students completing teacher preparation programs and advanced degree candidates in specific fields may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of three different test dates in 1980-81. Educational Testing Service, the nonprofit, educational organization that administers this testing program, said today that the tests will be given November 8, 1980, February 21, 1981, and June 20, 1981, at test centers throughout the United States.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are considered by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and used by several states for the credentialing of teachers or licensing of advanced candidates. Some colleges require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations.

On each full day of testing, registrants may take the Common Examinations, which measure their professional preparation and general educational background, and/or an Area Examination that measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective registrants should contact the school districts in which they seek employment, state agencies in which they seek certification or licensing, their colleges, or the appropriate educational association for advice about which examinations to take and when to take them.

The NTE Bulletin of Information contains a list of test centers and general information about the examinations, as well as a registration form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08541.

Longwood's Lady Lancers played well and managed a 2-2 tie with ACC Powerhouse Clemson Tigers. Photo by Tom Stanley

Longwood Invitational Tournament

By CINDY DROESKI
The Longwood Invitational field hockey tournament was played last week end. Longwood's record for the week end was 0-2-2; but if you were a player or a fan, you could definitely say a record means nothing with the caliber of play that was here last week end. The young Longwood team matched the skill and abilities of the other teams.

At 10:00 a.m. Friday, Longwood played Appalachian State. Out of the twenty-one players on the roster for Appalachian, only four were sophomores. Therefore, Longwood was up against a team that had probably been playing together for three years. Longwood didn't seem worried about Appalachian, they just played their own game. Longwood dominated the second half. The defense played a fine game holding Appalachian to one goal. The final score was 1-1.

The next game on Friday was against the powerful Davis & Elkins. Davis & Elkins claimed the Midwest Division I title in 1979, needless to say the skill they possessed. Longwood again played a fine game. Longwood worked together making short passes, marking on defense and utilizing the space on the field. Teri Davis, goalie, played an aggressive game. Despite Longwood's nice play, Davis & Elkins defeated Longwood 2-0.

Saturday morning Longwood faced the third place AIAW National champions, the Maryland Terapins. Both teams played "nice" field hockey.

Longwood played mostly a defensive game and "the attack (forward line and links) had mostly break away plays." Longwood was defeated 2-0 by the highly skilled Terapins.

The last game Longwood played was against the Clemson Tigers. This game was a very exciting one to watch because it had a lot of action and tense moments. At halftime the score was tied 0-0. Nancy Johnson scored, then Clemson came back with a score. Then Clemson's goalie fouled while preventing a goal which cause a penalty stroke (a penalty stroke is usually awarded if the goalie commits an infraction of the rules). Mary Milne took the stroke for Longwood. Mary had a crisp, fast flick to the upper left hand corner of the goal cage putting Longwood ahead 2-1. With less than five minutes to go in the game, Clemson scored. The final score was 2-2. The substitutes in the second half were: Mary Holup, Cherie Stevens, Karen Kilmer, and Lorrie Garber. Some key players in this game were: Julie Dayton with a lot of hustle and enthusiasm shown, Kim Garber with nice stick work, and Teri Davis with good goalie clears. All the Longwood players played an exceptional game.

If you attended these games this week end, you could see that a loss only means your opponents scored more goals. It doesn't show the hard work and enthusiasm by the coach and players.

This week Longwood plays University of Virginia and Duke. Good Luck Lady Lancers!

LONGWOOD

INVITATIONAL

FIELD HOCKEY

TOURNAMENT

FIRST DAY RESULTS

Appalachian St.	1 0-1
Longwood	0 1-1
AS-Sherry Prestwood
LC-Chris Mayer

Clemson	0 0-0
Davis & Elkins	0 4-4
D&E-Norma Wright, Sue Lapriore, Carol Kemmerle, Cindy Stinger.

Appalachian St.	0 0-0
Maryland	2 1-3
M-Gigi Daley, Judy Dougherty (2).

Davis & Elkins	2 0-2
Longwood	0 0-0
D&E-Kemmerle, Stinger

Clemson	0 1-1
Maryland	1 0-1
C-Barbie Johnson, M-Dougherty.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS

Clemson	1 0-1
Appalachian St.	0 0-0
C-Carol Luce

Appalachian St.	0 0-0
Davis & Elkins	2 0-2
D&E-Sue Lapriore, Carol Kemmerle

Davis & Elkins	1 0-1
Maryland	2 0-2
D&E-Kemmerle, M-Watson, LeMire.

Maryland	1 1-2
Longwood	0 0-0
M-Celine Flynn, Judy Dougherty.

Clemson	0 2-2
Longwood	0 2-2
C-Barbie Johnson, Sarah Richmond.
L-Mary Milne, Nancy Johnson.

Longwood

Rugby Splits

By T.C. JONES IV

The Longwood Rugby side was one for two in two matches this week end with U. of R. Longwood was one of four teams in an afternoon of Rugby at U. of R. All of the four teams won one match and lost one. The "A" matches were won by W. of R. and United Rugby Club. The "B" matches were won by Longwood and V.C.U.

Longwood's "B" match was played first. Due to a shortage of players making the road trip the same players had to play both "A" and "B" matches. Longwood pulled out a late win with a three point kick by Kurt Mueller. The match ended minutes later with Longwood winning 3-0.

Longwood's "A" match started twenty minutes after the "B" match ended. A tired Longwood Club met a fresh club from U. of R. The match was very defensive for both clubs with U. of R. scoring nine points in the first half. The match was scoreless in the second half. The final score was U. of R. 9 and L.C. 0.

Longwood's next match is Sept. 28 in Richmond with United Rugby Club. The match will be played at U. of R. near the ROTC tower. The club is always ready to accept new members.

SPORTS....SPORTS....

Soccer Highlights Home Slate

From SPORTS INFO

Longwood's field hockey, women's golf and soccer teams face tough opposition on the road this week as a Friday night soccer contest with Greensboro College headlines the home sports schedule for Lancer teams.

The Longwood booters, whose record dropped to 2-2 with a 2-0 loss to Roanoke last Wednesday, visit Division III power Averett Tuesday afternoon, before returning home to host Greensboro's Hornets Friday night at 7:00 on Iler Field.

Wednesday's loss at Roanoke left Longwood Coach Rich Posipanko shaking his head in disbelief. The Lancers had 34 shots to Roanoke's 24, yet came out on the short end of the stick, 2-1.

"I don't know what we have to do to score a goal," said the perplexed coach. "Their goalie Drake Van Decastle had a super performance with 23 saves, but we missed a lot of opportunities, even a penalty kick."

Posipanko felt freshman Ed Dikun (CROYDON, PA) played particularly well on defense in the loss to Roanoke. "Ed did an outstanding job for us Wednesday just as he had done in the Steve Nelson Memorial Tournament," said the coach.

When the Lancers meet Averett Tuesday they'll be facing a team which romped to a 6-0 triumph in last year's meeting. Posipanko is expecting a much closer game this week, though the Cougars will be favored. Longwood defeated Greensboro, Friday's opponent, 5-2 a year ago.

Player Of The Week

From SPORTS INFO

Sophomore Robin Andrews (Woodlawn) who led Longwood's women golfers to a third place finish in the fourth annual Longwood Invitational Tournament with a record-setting performance, has been named Longwood College Player of the Week for the period September 5-19.

Andrews carded an 80-75-74-229 on the par-73 layout at Longwood golf course, beating by 12 strokes the school record for three rounds she set last year in the Lady Tar Heel Invitational at North Carolina. Robin's 78-78-85-241 was good for 13th at UNC last fall, but her record-setting showing at Longwood September 12-14 was good for seventh place in a field of talented golfers from Division I and II schools.

After the initial nine holes of first round play, Andrew was headed for anything but a record-setting performance. Hurt by a quadruple-bogey nine on the par-5 second hole, Robin had a 43 on the front nine. She rebounded for a 37 on the back nine and then came home with fine scores of 75 and 74. Her final round score helped Longwood set a new record team total for one round—309.

Twice NAMED

Twice named Longwood

College Player of the Week last fall, Andrew won the VAAIW State Open, finished second in Individual play in the VAAIW State Tournament and led Longwood scoring in several spring tournaments as well. The graduate of Carroll County High School was chosen for the Virginia team in the Virginia-Carolina team matches over the summer and fired a 78 to qualify as second low medalist in the Virginia State Amateur.

A member of the National Honor Society in high school, Andrews has been a Dean's list student at Longwood.

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU"

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER RHONDA BARTON

LINDA JILL DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues.	9 AM - 8 PM
Wed. Fri.	9 AM - 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM - 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

NEW!

OPEN:

Mon. Thur. 11:00 PM - Fri. & Sat. 12:00 AM
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

ROAST BEEF
SUBS

Lady Netters took it on the teeth from Randolph Macon; but hope to come home triumphant from JMU on the 26th. Photo by Tom Stanley

WOMEN'S TENNIS SCHEDULE

DATE	PL.	COLLEGE	TIME
SEPT. 23	A	MARY WASHINGTON	3:00
26	A	JAMES MADISON	3:00
29	A	MARY BALDWIN	2:00
30	H	LYNCHBURG	3:30
OCT. 2	H	SOUTHERN SEMINARY	2:00
17	A	RWMC	2:00
21	H	HOLLINS	2:00
24	A	VCU	2:30
28	H	SWEETBRIAR	2:00
31	A	CHRISTOPHER NEWPORT	2:00

TRO News

By REBECCA WILLIAMS

The first meeting of the Therapeutic Recreation Organization was held Tuesday September 16 in the Virginia Room. The luncheon was opened by president Deborah Harrison. She discussed how the organization was formed to promote and develop an interest and understanding of Therapeutic Recreation within the college, community, and state.

Plans for this years club include: Planning the Prince Edward County Special Olympics; An Adapted Aquatics Workshop; a "Special" Oktoberfest booth; Little brother sister skits; Working with the Muscular Dystrophy Superdance; and a wheelchair basketball game.

TRO is an organization for future professionals and demands participation, enthusiasm, and dedication. So all Therapeutic Recreation Majors, it's time to get involved. You'll be helping yourself as well as helping others. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, October 14.

"Lancers preparing for a rugged spring season with a demanding fall season." Photo by Susan Butlin

- Fraternity & Sorority Stationary, Mugs and Decals.

LANSCOTT GIFT SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

Open Mon.-Sat., 9 am-5 pm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY MORNING

Volleyball And Tennis: A Slow Start

Both the women's volleyball and tennis teams got their seasons under way last week, but unfortunately, it was a slow start for them. The volleyball team suffered two defeats at home and one at Liberty Baptist, but Coach Nanette Fisher is confident that the team is improving and the record will soon reflect it. Phyllis Harris' tennis team also fell at the hands of Randolph-Macon in a match played at Longwood.

In a tri-match with Longwood College and James Madison University, Longwood was left winless. JMU took its match in two straight games by the score of 15-7 and 15-10. The Lady Lancers gave Longwood a tougher match, leading throughout both games until the final points when Longwood battled ahead to win 15-13, 15-13. The team also traveled to Liberty Baptist where it was defeated 15-11, 15-11, and 15-8.

Despite Longwood's disappointing start, Coach Fisher is optimistic about the rest of the season. The team has been practicing extra hours to improve its weaker points and develop a stronger team unit.

Coach Fisher will have a chance to see how much improvement the girls have made when Randolph-Macon Women's College travels to Longwood on Tuesday.

Longwood suffered its first defeat ever to Randolph-Macon in a tough match played at home last Friday. The top three seeds for the Lady Lancers dropped sets to the superior Randolph-Macon netters.

Only one of the top six seeds managed to emerge victorious in the singles competition. In a hard fought match, Kim Diehl (ORANGE) — No. 4 seed — defeated Valerie Hani 6-3, 1-6, and 6-3. In an exhibition match, Cheryl Fitts (RICHMOND) defeated her Randolph-Macon foe 4-6, 7-6, 6-3.

In the doubles competition, Longwood won two of the three matches. Kim Diehl and Nancy Leidenheimer (McLEAN) teamed up to defeat Cindy Denton and Jan Moore 7-5 and 6-2. Also winning their match was Linda Witt (LORTON) and Stacie Southwick (STONY BROOK, NY) who defeated Donna White and Sheron Ewry 6-4 and 6-4.

IAA

By PAM UDKIKE

Cox Team I are the champs of Men's Flag Football. They defeated the Sigma Phi Epsilon Keggers, 36-14. The members of the winning team are: Mike Mercil, Doug Curry, Bill Novak, Ron Saunders, Rob Zirpoli, Scott Cunningham, Bob Hulsey, Randy Johnson, Dave Weaver, John Crosby, and Jeff White. Each team member received an IAA tee shirt.

This year there has been a sufficient increase in participants in both Men's and Women's tennis singles. The Men's Division is so large that the IAA has had to break the participants into two brackets. Last year only ten people entered, compared to the twenty-four entrants this year. In women's Tennis there are fourteen participants, which is a considerable increase over the six last year.

In Men's Tennis Singles, the top four in the winner's bracket are: Earl Witcher, Mike Lewis, John Todd, and Bill Novak. In the Women's Division, the top four tennis singles in the winners bracket are: Beth Waddell, Sharon Payne, Lisa Barnes, and Cheryl Moore.

Anyone interested in playing informal Soccer should watch the Daily Bulletin for times. The participation in this will determine whether or not there will be an official IAA soccer program next year.

Track and Field will begin on September 25. The meet will begin at 4:30 and last until 6:00 on Iler Field. There will be three major events: Throws, which consists of, discus, javelin, and shot put; Running, which consists of the 60 yd. dash, the 440 run and the mile; and Jumps which consist of the Long Jump, High Jump and the Triple Jump.

There will be a practice for all participants in both divisions today from 4:30-6:00 on Iler Field. All Track and Field entrants are encouraged to attend.

Members of the IAA and interested people are reminded of the meeting, Thursday at 7:30 in the IAA room in Lankford.

Sports Profile

By MARK KARL SEGAL

I seldom meet two such individualized personalities as John "Turk" Crosby and Coach Bolding in the same day. I spoke with John only some 20 minutes yet was so enthused by his sense of even-keeled effervescence, if such a trait exists, and his ability to intertwine his baseball abilities, goals, academics and personal life into a hard core knot that Coach Bolding would explain as, "A true gift of manhood to Longwood College."

Meeting such an individual as Turk, and for me to keep in mind I am writing a sports article with limited space; it is hard for me but to interject my personal philosophy of obtaining goals into this work. Please forgive me if I get out of hand. So for the purpose of entertaining sports buffs let me give you the straight facts about Turk first.

Turk is John Crosby. John stands only 5' 11" and weighs but a mere 165 pounds, but at this point according to sports enthusiasts such as a certain ACC coach . . . "He can run the bases better than any college ball player today." At 22 years of age Turk is a senior and a business major from Richmond, Va. He graduated third in his class at Armstrong High School, also the Senior Class President and a member of the National Honor Society. There he played football (lettering 3 years), and lettered for four years in baseball.

Longwood received Turk in January of 1979. Last season he batted .375 (second on team) while playing centerfield. He lead the nation (Division III) in stolen bases both seasons here, and last season broke an all time college record of bases stolen per game (2.14) in all college divisions. If that's not enough he was a candidate for Academic All American with a 3.20 cumulative average, and in the same breath let me add that in his junior year was looked at by scouts from such teams as the Houston Astros and Los Angeles Dodgers. All of these accomplishments for Turk are neatly stored in some large cavern of his brain with the rest that will come, and are taken in stride. You see, "When Turk came to play college ball for Longwood," Coach Bolding said "Turk was not a superior athlete nor appeared to possess any outstanding athletic qualities, but John is so goal oriented he has proved not only athletically his leadership on the field, but a c a d e m i c a l l y and wholeheartedly off the field."

I asked Turk what his outlook was for the team this season, he first explained the team was 4 and 3. "We look good on paper," he said, "but everybody has to play up to his own personal capabilities, and then we can have a successful team. We have many division one teams to play and I am sure we can stand up to them."

Off the diamond Turk works hard on academics which according to him come first. Last year he was commended by Chi for academic excellence. He also enjoys using his tenor voice abilities to sing in the Longwood Gospel Choir, and has recently formed his own group for harmonizing which he calls The Streetcorner Symphony. While he is not singing, studying or playing baseball he likes to "just listen to music."

Turk is so goal oriented yet practices no cut-throat ethics in his quest to obtaining the sky. After college he would consider playing ball a few years if he got a good offer. His real heart lies in becoming a Finance Executive and being a family man. "I want to have a wife and kids" confessed Turk with a sigh of domesticated relaxation one can easily detect in the heart of any man with a genuinely pure personality.

My longest conversation in my interview was with Coach Bolding. He had so much to say about John Crosby's abilities and contributions as a human being. We spoke not only of John but of ourselves and whatever we could philosophize about real human qualities. What stuck in my mind most was something about Turk. "Turk has been a real inspiration to his teammates, even at the college level. Turk uses no artificial crutches in his life other than his own personality. He is an excellent example of what a Longwood athlete, leader and man should be. He challenges himself in all aspects of life . . . he is a purely rounded individual and only by working at it very hard, and what really counts in life is that he succeeds."

Have A Nice Fall Break!

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LV2

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1980

NO. 5

Press Conference Introduces New Ideas

By DEBRA CUNNINGHAM

Press Conference was held at 12:45 p.m. in the Gold Room on Thursday, September 25. President Henry I. Willett, Jr., answered the questions presented by the Legislative Board and from any students present.

President Willett explained that the State Council of Education has proposed that the John P. Wynne Campus School be closed within the next two years if it does not become self supporting. The state supports it now, along with a campus school at James Madison University which was also given the same mandate. The school serves as an important part of study for Elementary Education majors along with other majors that go to the school to observe.

One aid to keeping the Campus School open could be a program for the handicapped. Dr. S. John Davies, State Superintendent for Public Instruction, is meeting with College officials and area County Superintendents on this program.

Another subject submitted by the Legislative Board was the question of day students having mailboxes on campus. They did have mailboxes here until two or three years ago, which was before the increased enrollment. It seems, however, that these students were not picking up their mail promptly. If day students were to get these mailboxes, more boxes would have to be added: there are already at least two students to each and every mailbox.

In answer to question number three, the tree that was cut down in front of Lancer Hall would have cost $15,000-$20,000. They had tried to save it, but decided it was best to cut it down and not waste all of that money.

Dr. Peale, Dean Wells and President Willett answer questions at the Press Conference.

The French pool is being used for classes and recreational swimming at this time because the pool in Lancer Hall has a serious leak in a seam in the bottom. This leak is being fixed at this time. President Willett seemed to want to preserve the French pool as a back-up in case anything else should happen to the new pool. They are also considering renovating the French pool when they renovate French dormitory. Plans are to make it into an outdoor pool with a deck. They are also planning to start construction on French dorm second semester.

Answering other questions: The lights in the Lancer Hall parking lot are up, but they cannot be used just yet. Longwood has changed its narcotics policies. These sheets have been distributed to students, at this time. The new baseball field is not 100 per cent completed yet. Fall scrimmage games are planned to be played on the field, however. And, a new scoreboard has been ordered for the field. Longwood is in its first stages of accreditation for the Therapeutic Recreation major. Longwood also has a two year accreditation for the Music and Art departments.

President Willett answered questions from the student body such as: are there any plans to use the old Farmville High School, and why have athletic fees gone up when admission fees have not. Longwood cannot afford to renovate the old Farmville High School which was given to Longwood several years ago. Athletic fees have gone up by $160 in the past four years, while admission fees have only gone up by five dollars in the past four years. Scholarships come out of these fees, and coaches are paid out of the athletic fees. Another subject discussed was the fact that bottles have been thrown through the windows of Stubbs dorm. Tom Nanzig asked for anyone who had any information concerning these accidents to please come and tell him. There will be legal action taken against these people. President Willett added that if the campus police caught them, "Let's throw the book at them."

No flags have been put up at Lancer Hall yet except for the one inside in the gym. It seems that there are a lot of problems with the flags that are already up around the college. They have to be replaced almost weekly, and they are expensive. A few flags have been stolen in the past also.

President Willett informed everyone of the dedication ceremony that will take place in Lancer Hall the Saturday of Oktoberfest which is October 25. All are invited to attend, and Governor Mills Godwin will attend the service. The hall will be dedicated at that time.

Fall Retreat 1980

By BRENDA COLEMAN

Five major areas of concern and many other topics were touched upon at the annual Faculty-Student-Staff Retreat held Sunday, Sept. 28 at the Longwood House. Though the weather outlook was bleak, the group discussions were lively and many recommendations were made that will aid the college and its students.

The groups were made up of students, staff members, faculty, and administrative members that discussed various subjects such as a new reconstruction of the Student Government Association, the possibility of a present Longwood student serving on the Board of Visitors, and proposals concerning open house hours. Other topics touched upon were intercollegiate athletic offerings and the capital outlay projects, as well as minor suggested topics and recommendations that were brought up by each individual group.

The Retreat began at 3 p.m. with a general meeting of all participants. Tammy Bird, Chairman of Legislative Board, welcomed everyone and introduced President Willett, who commented on the proceedings and made announcements. Then the general group, which consisted of approximately 100 students, administration, and faculty, divided up into five individual committees. The topics were then discussed, questions asked and recommendations and proposals thrown out.

The main topic of discussion was the restructuring of the Student Government Association. A committee consisting of the Executive Council of the SGA and other appointed members has been working on a new proposed Student Government since last February and will bring a referendum before the student body on Nov. 10.

Another area of interest concerned a recommendation to allow a Longwood student to serve as a non-voting member of the Board of Visitors. This student would sit in on all Board meetings and have all the rights and responsibilities of a Board member except for the right to vote on proposed issues.

Other topics discussed were increases in open house hours and possibly an escort system. This, too, is just a recommendation that must be studied and voted upon. The planned projects in the capital outlay (such as the renovation of French Dorm this January and the athletic offerings drew many recommendations that are to be tabulated by Legislative Board for release at a later date.

After the group discussions, a picnic supper was served before everyone met again in a general meeting to review proposals and ask questions. The retreat adjourned at 6 p.m.

Tammy Bird stated that she was disappointed at the small turnout; however, "the discussion groups themselves were quality ones. I'm pleased with the summaries and recommendations and I hope more students will attend in the

(Continued on Page 4)

Process Begins To Find President

By JODIKERSEY

The Board of Visitors at Longwood have begun the process of finding a new president. Eric Robinson, rector of the Board of Visitors, clarified the different committees which will work to help narrow the applications for presidency. In the by-laws of the Board of Visitors, a nominating committee is established from the membership of the Board. This will be the committee that will eventually recommend the final names for president to the entire Board. First, however, there has been a screening committee developed that will be in charge of reviewing approximately 200 applications. This screening committee will narrow the applications down to 5-15 finalists.

The nominating committee has appointed the following to the screening committee: from the board of visitors, Eric Robinson and L.E. Andrews, both of Farmville.

From the faculty of the College, Dr. Charles Patterson, Board of Visitors Distinguished Professor of Education; LTC. John E. Carr, III, professor and chairman of the department of business and economics; Dr. Susan May, professor of English; and Dr. John Peale, associate professor of philosophy.

From the administration of the college, Dr. Carolyn Wells, vice president for academic affairs, and Dr. Ralph Hundley, director of Institutional Advancement.

From the classified employees of the College, Roy Hill, director of the physical plant, and Mrs. Constance H. Gills, purchases and stores supervisor.

From the student body, Miss Tammy Bird, chairman of legislative board, and Miss Sally Lowe, chairman of judicial board.

From the Longwood College

Foundation, Hunter C. Sledd, Jr., of Richmond, president of the Foundation, and a second person to be designated by Sledd.

From the Alumni Association, Mrs. Sandra Stallings, of Raleigh, N.C., national president of the association, and a second person to be designated by Mrs. Stallings.

Mr. Robinson said that he was personally gratified that everyone who has been asked to serve on the screening board has graciously accepted, fully aware of the time and effort that will have to be given.

The nominating committee will meet October 25, to draft an outline for the screening committee. The outline will consist of the procedure that is to be used with the general specifications they wish to be accomplished. After the meeting of the nominating committee, the screening committee will then have a meeting.

Your Turn

Editor's Note

It is almost hard to believe that in a year where there has been so much bad publicity about Longwood, the Alumni Annual Fund goal would be set at 33 per cent higher than last year. And, it is even harder to believe that last week during the annual Alumni Phonathon that goal of $20,000 was reached.

During the four day event in Richmond, alumni and students brought in over $21,000 in contributions to the college. This money will be used in such areas as music, art and scholarships.

There were alumni who did use the college's adverse publicity as an excuse not to give. However, the rise in donations did lift a lot of spirits around here. For that, we owe a special thanks to those in the College Foundation and Alumni Office. These people and the volunteers who phoned worked very hard to get across the many positive aspects of Longwood.

Get Involved

To the Student Body of Longwood:

Oktoberfest is only four weeks away and now is the time to get involved. Although both color classes feel they have "lost" leaders of their own, it should be realized that both Reds and Greens have many spirited people who are involved and many more who haven't even been noticed yet.

The Freshman and Sophomore classes will add a lot of talent and vitality to the "old veterans" (Juniors and Seniors). If each class pulls together in support of their color, this can be the best Oktoberfest ever. Geist encourages all who want to participate to get involved, there is a place for you. But most of all, we encourage each person to have fun, make new friends, and feel the spirit of happiness that surrounds our Oktoberfest celebration. It is a week end for you, the student body, to enjoy and make it what you want. Without you there can be no Oktoberfest, no matter what Geist says or does. Geist supports both color classes and hopes this year will bring cooperation and fun for everyone. GOOD LUCK!!

Pam Wagner
Geist Oktoberfest
Chairman

Arts Up Front

To the Editor:

As chairman of Arts Up Front, the Oktoberfest art show, I would like to draw attention to a glaring omission evident in the last issue of The Rotunda. The article on Oktoberfest failed to mention the extensive activities planned by the art department for this schoolwide event. Art students are expending great amounts of time, energy and talent to make this year's art show, demonstrations, and Bedford Gallery exhibit the finest ever in the history of Oktoberfest. Their efforts should not be overlooked by the college newspaper either before or after the event. On behalf of my fellow art students and the art faculty, I would appreciate your recognition of the art department's contribution to the success of Oktoberfest. Please include us in future articles about this autumnal tradition.

Sincerely,
Carol Cordes
Chairman, Arts Up Front

(Editor's Note: It was not the purpose of either the Rotunda or the Geist members interviewed to overlook the Arts Up Front. The next issue of the Rotunda will be a preview of Oktoberfest and will include the Arts Up Front. Please accept our apologies.)

In Reply

Dear puzzled and disappointed Blue and White and Green and White,

In regard to your letter concerning the fairness of Geist, I would like to respond. First of all, tapping someone for Oktoberfest or membership in Geist is not breaking a tradition.

Secondly, the people already committed to various jobs concerning Oktoberfest were not taken away by Geist but simply tapped for their worthiness and spirit shown. Geist's aim was to recognize these people for their hard work and leadership abilities.

It is not a question of fairness on Geist's part. If people are worthy of a position they have the right to be acknowledged. Geist reserves this right as an organization. It is not exercising power but recognition.

Oktoberfest is sponsored by Geist. The organization is the first to exercise support and enthusiasm for the event. Being tapped for a part in Oktoberfest is an honor. Let's all work together to make this the best Oktoberfest ever!

Respectfully submitted,
Tammy Bird

Another Reply

Dear Students,

Maybe everybody didn't know it, but Oktoberfest is a Blue and White celebration. Greens make it work, Reds make it work, but no single group or individual is so important that it doesn't need the other.

And so when Geist taps somebody, they naturally tap those who have shown themselves spirited enough and capable enough to handle the position, regardless of what position they happen to hold in their class. The individual class is less important than the Oktoberfest celebration itself. No component is, or should be, as important as the whole.

Looking on a tapped person as being "taken" by Geist is selfish, to say the least. They're not being taken away, they're being given to more people. Now tell me that ain't what it's all about.

Sincerely,
Bill LeWarne

By BRENDA COLEMAN

"It's really weird how I became both an English and a Drama major," begins senior Nina Leffue. "When I first came here, I was an elementary education major. I heard about the tryouts for Our Town and since I had been in my high school's production of that same play, I decided to go to the auditions to try my luck. I got the part of Rebecca, the very same part I had in high school.

Anyway, I started doing more and more shows and I loved it. So I switched to the drama major and added on an English major also because I've always liked English. A double major hasn't been too hard, but it hasn't been a breeze either. I'm always busy it seems."

And busy is the way Nina has been for the past three years she has attended Longwood. At the present moment, she is attempting her first lighting design for the upcoming Barefoot in the Park. She was working on that design when this interview began and continued working throughout the entire talk. "I like the technical aspects of the theater as opposed to acting. I'm keeping my fingers crossed on this lighting design because it's the first one I've ever tried."

Nina is also the technical director for the Longwood Players. This position calls for Nina to organize the crews for all the four major plays, coordinate and work with these groups, and get them rolling at the beginning. In addition, Nina has to help with lighting for all functions that take place in Jarman. She is president of Alpha Psi Omega, the national honorary dramatics fraternity, as well as past secretary for Longwood Players. She is in Dance Company and was recently tapped by Geist as the co-lighting crew chief for the Blue & Whites for Oktoberfest. And if this isn't enough, Nina worked at the Virginia Museum Theater during second semester her sophomore year and has worked at Lost Colony during the summer.

"The biggest and best thing I've gotten out of Longwood has been my initial exposure to and interest for the theater. That interest will last me for the rest of my life. I'm really glad I literally stumbled into my major quite by accident."

Nina's future plans first include obtaining a position in a theater as an electrician. "Then I'll work my way up to an electrical assistant position, and eventually become the master electrician. However, this is not very hopeful because you have to be a super lighting person to be master elect. If I can't work in the theater, I'd like to do something with my English major — not teaching though!"

Nina dislikes the lack of support the school seems to have for the drama department. "Drama and the theater are very important parts of a school. I don't like the way other organizations on campus get everything they want. The drama department has to almost beg sometimes. I guess I'm mainly angry at the lack of support from the administration for the fine arts on this campus. There is a great need for a fine arts center, but of course we'll never get one. I think the most ironic thing is that the drama department has to schedule around everyone else for show rehearsals and even shows sometimes in Jarman. What's the drama department without a stage?"

A Musical Evening

From PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Department of Music, under the direction of Dr. Louard E. Egbert, Jr., will present "An Evening of 20th Century Music" on Thursday, October 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wygal Building.

Members of the college's music faculty and student music majors will be featured in both vocal and instrumental selections. A variety of contemporary styles will be included in the program, by composers such as Norman Delo Joio, Richard Felciano, Eric Satie, Francis Poulenc, Robert Baksa, and Benjamin Britten.

Several mixed media works will be featured, with dancers, electronic tape, and film slides. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Proceeds from the evening will go to the Emily Clark Music Scholarship Fund at Longwood.

Tickets for the event ($3.00 each) are available from the Public Affairs Office at Longwood, telephone 392-9371.

Juniors Receive Rings

By BRENDA COLEMAN

The Class of 1982 officially became Juniors this past Thursday night when they received their rings in the Junior Ring Ceremony. Rain threatened and the ceremony was forced to move from the Sunken Gardens to the Gold Room. However, the showers could not dampen the excitement and spirit of the juniors receiving their rings.

The night began with the juniors lining up with their little sisters and/or brothers. As they filed into the Gold Room, Tafara, BSU's folk team, sang "Joan of Arc." Ring committee Chairman Vicki Mathewson welcomed everyone and introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Eleanor Bobbitt, who spoke on the honor and attributes of success and wished the Class of 1982 the very best.

Candles that each junior were given at the beginning of the ceremony were lit and filled the Gold Room with a soft glow as Tafara sang "Take the White of the Winter Snow." Then each junior exchanged his candle for his ring with his little brother or sister. Peals of delight rang out in the Gold Room as the juniors saw for the first time their rings that had been ordered last semester during April.

Many of the juniors realized with the coming of their rings that two of their years at Longwood were now behind them and graduation was not that far ahead any more.

CONGRATULATIONS
ALL GREEKS ON A

SUCCESSFUL RUSH.

OKTOBERFEST
BOOTH CHAIRMEN MEETING
WED., JEFFERS, 8

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

SIR, THERE'S A GROUP OF STUDENT DEMONSTRATORS OUTSIDE THEY'RE CARRYING THE PALMS COMMERCE DISPLAYS OF REPETITIONS EVANSON TO THEIR QUESTIONS THEY'RE EVEN CHALLENGING THEY CAN PROVE WHAT YOUR ANSWERS WILL BE

THAT'S ABOUSIOUS I TRY TO ANSWER EACH QUESTION FAIRLY AND TO THE BEST OF MY KNOWLEDGE

ACTUALLY I THINK I CAN SEE THEIR POINT OF VIEW SIR

Opening Day Approaches

Old Jarman Auditorium will put on a new face when Neil Simon's popular comedy "Barefoot in the Park" opens the new season of the Longwood Players October 15-18. In addition to the regular four-night run of 8 p.m. performance, the Players will also have a special Saturday matinee performance at 2 p.m., October 18.

For both the evening performances and the new special Saturday matinee, Richard Gamble, director and designer for the Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts, will transform Jarman Auditorium into a festive theatre space in which the audience will sit at tables on stage, be served food and drink, be entertained with pre-show music and fun, and watch a young cast of Longwood Players recreate the zany problems of some newly-weds who settle in an empty high-rise apartment in New York City.

The new Jarman stage will be set up in a cabaret style with the audience sitting at individual tables. Snack type goodies will be served at the tables and patrons may purchase either hot cider or coffee mocha. Since patrons will watch the entertainment from the stage, seating capacity for the play, will be limited to 252 persons for each performance. For that reason, the audiences for all performances will be seated on a first-come, first serve basis with the doors to Jarman opening each evening at 7:15 p.m. and at 1:15 p.m. for the Saturday matinee.

Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" was first produced on Broadway in 1963 and starred Robert Redford and Elizabeth Ashley. The comedy was an instant hit and became the basis for a later television series. The plot deals with the problems of a newly-wed couple who have just moved into the top floor of a brownstone apartment six flights up from the New York City streets. In addition to trying to make the traditional marital adjustments, the couple must contend with an apartment that has not a stick of furniture, a skylight that leaks, and an intruder who lives in an adjacent loft who must enter through their apartment in order to get to his own. The couple's marriage is threatened when the husband refuses to walk barefoot in the park with his new wife. This would be a trifling affair except that it is bitter cold outside and there is snow on the ground in the park. This zany request, plus the difficulties in dealing with the unusual situation in their apartment, causes a rift in this young and rocky marriage that is amusing for audiences.

The cast for the Longwood Players' production of "Barefoot" is dotted with fresh new talent. Sherry Forbes, a freshman Dramatic Arts major, is the zany young wife, Corie Bratter, with freshman Drama major Jerry Dagenhart as Victor Velasco the intruder in the loft who has a fetish for gourmet foods. Myra Pierson plays Corie's mother and David Wood, a delivery man, round out the freshmen talent who will be making first appearances on the Jarman stage. They are joined by veteran actor Frank Creasy as Corie's husband, Paul, and Jeffrey Sledjeski as the telephone repairman.

Richard Gamble, who designed the show and is the technical director, will also direct the Players in this first production of the new season. He is assisted by student Stage Manager Lisa Swackhammer. Nina Leffue designed the lighting and Shelley Gluse, the costumes. Robert Marenick is the assistant stage manager, Suzanne Day is in charge of props, Laura Carroll, publicity, and Karen Hughson, make-up. The set crew includes Anne Omohundro, Tim Carter, and Wendy Sublett.

Longwood College students will be admitted free to the performances with their I.D. on a first-come, first serve basis. General admission tickets will be $3 also on a first-come, first-serve basis. Early arrivals for the show will be entertained by a lively group of student talent in the cabaret-styled setting. Patrons are promised an evening of variety entertainment when they attend the Longwood Players production of Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" which opens October 15 and runs through October 18, featuring for the first time a Saturday matinee at 2 p.m.

Mal Function

By MIKE O'HARE

Mal Function, a new wave-influenced hard rock band from the D. C. suburbs, made its Farnville debut on Saturday, September 27, in the Red, White and Green rooms to a modest but appreciative crowd.

The band, which has been playing the prestigious Washington new wave circuit for several months, delivered three sets of excellent original material. Scott Jorgensen impressed many with his stunning guitar and piano playing, as well as his strong and earthy lead vocals. The other band members, John Moore on bass, Scott Goodrick on drums, and John Cummings III on keyboards and tambourine, delivered solid support. Songs such as "Hold On," "Sound of Light," "Shadows," and "International Warfare" elicited enthusiasm for the previously unheard-of Mal Function.

A highlight of the show occurred when local celebrity Wade Clements took the stage to belt out a brassy blues number. Clements, who engineered the group's appearance at Longwood, garnered a standing ovation for his performance.

There were a few drawbacks to this Sound Gallery event, though. Jorgensen's facial contortions during heated guitar solos detracted from his expert playing, and an ill-timed Led Zeppelin spoof offended several audience members. However, these were minor drawbacks. All in all, the teen-aged members of Mal Function delivered a rousing, polished concert. This is definitely a group to watch for in the 1980s.

Gene Cotton

By CAROLE KEY

Terrific . . . hilarious . . . talented! These are just a few of the adjectives to describe Gene Cotton Tuesday night, September 23. Over 100 Longwood students gathered in the Gold Room in Lankford Building to listen to Gene Cotton sing and play acoustic guitar. There was a very informal atmosphere; people were gathered all around the stage on the floor while others hung back and enjoyed the more comfortable sofas. He played a variety of music. Cotton talked about two songs he played entitled "Me and the Elephant" and "Let Your Love Flow." These songs were his original compositions but, because of bad breaks with his record companies, became other artist's hits. He dedicated one of his songs to his wife entitled "Minnesota Woman" and a song to his two children entitled "Young People." The manner in which Cotton talked to the audience made you feel close to him. He talked about his past and present family life and talked and joked about the types of problems that everyone has to deal with, such as parents, politics, and money. If you missed seeing Gene Cotton, you truly missed an exceptional performance!

Ranger Unit

By TOM STANLEY

Interested ROTC students and instructors met in Ruffner Wednesday, September 24, to discuss the possibility of developing an elite Ranger unit at Longwood. It would be composed of eight to ten cadets and the unit would participate in various training programs to be coordinated with the U. of R. Ranger unit.

Eligibility requirements would be stiff and standards would be high. Physical fitness tests and rigorous endurance exercises would be coupled with good leadership and adequate scholarship abilities to guarantee the elitestness of the unit.

Continued training and field exercises would be conducted to ready the Rangers for special assignments. Items discussed included: swimming tests, forced marches, jungle expert school, three-day field leadership exercises, marksmanship, survival, and scuba diving. All were discussed as possibilities in the preliminary planning stages; hopefully to be included in the program along with any activities the Ranger unit of The University of Richmond has already established.

It is hoped that the Ranger unit can move from the planning stage to the initiation stage before the end of the year. This would enable the unit to be an active unit next year.

Watercolors Exhibition

By NEIL SAWYER

Twenty watercolors by American artist Gari Melchers went on display yesterday at the Lancaster Library Gallery. Sponsored by the Art Department with cooperation from the Virginia Museum the exhibit consists of small vignettes from everyday life.

Melchers, who was born in Detroit in 1860, lived the last 16 years of his life in Virginia.

During his youth, he studied with his father, Julius, a sculptor and woodcarver. At age 17 he went to Europe to study painting in Dusseldorf, then Paris. In 1884 he settled in Egmondam-See, a small Dutch fishing village.

Melchers remained in Europe, until the outbreak of World War I at which he moved to the United States. Melcher remained active until his death in 1932, being actively engaged in the planning of the Virginia Museum.

"Watercolors by Gari Melchers," will remain on view through October 17. Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1-5 p.m. on week days and 2-6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

SATURDAY NIGHT ALIVE

On Thursday Night
OCTOBER 2 - 9:00 P.M.

ROCK MOUNTAIN

D.D.H.
LONGWOOD - $2.00
GUESTS - $3.00
ID's REQUIRED

FIRST WEEKEND AFTER FALL BREAK

Thurs.
Spotlight Concert
BARRY DRAKE
GOLD ROOM
8:00 P.M. FREE

FRIDAY MIXER

Jimmy Bishop &
Turning Point
D.D. HALL
9:00 P.M. L.C. $2.00
ID's Required

SATURDAY-SAT. NIGHT ALIVE

Mike Cross
Hot Shanty
D.D. HALL
9:00 P.M. L.C. $2.00
ID's REQUIRED

Teri Davis keeps a wary eye out, while practicing her goalie techniques.

Field Hockey Wins Two More

By CINDY DROPSKI

Last Tuesday Longwood played University of Virginia. UVA. has been a tough competitor for Longwood. But last Tuesday Longwood beat UVA 5-4. The win was not an easy one; they went into double overtime. The score was tied at 4-4 at the end of regular play with scores by Nancy Johnson (1), Chris Meyer (1), and Julie Dayton (2). For the first overtime, the team played for 15 minutes (7½ minute halves). There was no score so they went into penalty strokes. Each team alternates five strokes with five different players. Longwood's Mary Milne scored on the first flick and Teri Davis held UVA. scoreless.

The team felt they played well against UVA. Julie Dayton said "Longwood played at Duke University on Saturday. Longwood arrived at Duke with confidence about their play. Duke played an aggressive offensive game. Longwood wanted the win and got it, beating Duke 4-2." Senior, forward line player, Julie Dayton scored all 4 goals for Longwood. Her experience at playing the ball off the goalie's pads proved to be an asset for the team's win.

Longwood faces some challenging games over Fall Break. The Lady Lancers will travel to Kentucky to play Eastern Kentucky and University of Kentucky. Longwood will play at University of Richmond on Tuesday, and on Thursday they will play William and Mary at home. The Lancers in conference record is 4-0. Come out and support them to another victorious week.

Lancer Fall Baseball, Record 6-5

By JOHN TODD

The Longwood College baseball team has a six win and five loss record so far this fall. The team is very experienced and expected to do very well despite the rigorous schedule. Coach Bolding claims this to be the toughest schedule in the college's history.

There are several key players

Coach Bolding is extremely pleased with Fall Baseball especially his younger players.

returning. John Crosby, a senior, plays center field and is a captain of the team. John has batted .500 through the fall season. Jim Thacker, a senior right fielder, is the other captain and is batting .346 in the fall. Other returning players having superb fall seasons are Chuck Hager, Richard Vaught, David Mitchell, Bill Wells and Mickey Roberts.

To support the returning members are several key freshmen. Two key freshmen are Sonny Bowlin and Tom Bottom. Bowlin is an outfielder that has batted .411 during the fall. Bottom, a short stop, has had a fine fall season both defensively and offensively.

Transfers Don Mowllray and Don Cahoon have added more support to the pitching staff. Both Mowllray and Cahoon are transfers from Ferrum College. Coach Bolding has high hopes for both these men.

Coach Bolding is stressing teamwork this year more than ever before because he believes that his team could be the best Longwood has ever had.

SPORTS

Tennis, Volleyball: Loaded Schedule

From SPORTS INFO

A busy week is ahead for Longwood's tennis and volleyball teams. Phyllis Harriss' tennis team will be trying to overcome two defeats last week as it tackles three matches in four days. The volleyball team, under the guidance of coach Nanette Fisher, also has a full schedule, playing four teams in only three days.

VOLLEYBALL

Three of the four teams that Longwood will be facing in volleyball this week fell at the hands of the Lady Lancers during the 1979 season. Roanoke and Hampton Institute were both defeated twice last season, and Christopher Newport was defeated once. Coach Nanette Fisher is looking to her improving starters Madeline Moose and Elaine Olaj to lead the team. It meets with Christopher Newport and Hampton Institute Tuesday and Roanoke and Virginia Intermont Thursday.

The Lady Lancers recorded their first win of the season last Tuesday as they defeated Randolph-Macon Women's College 15-12, 13-15, 15-8, and 15-11. Their record now stands at 1-3.

TENNIS

Coach Phyllis Harriss is looking for this week's competition to give her team a chance to pull out of its 0-3 record. The team has a tough schedule, playing Mary Baldwin today, Lynchburg tomorrow, and Southern Seminary Thursday. Harriss hopes that her no. 1 and 2 players, Nancy Leidenheimer and Leslie Robertson, respectively, will be able to pull out of their slump and lead the Lady Lancers to victory.

The team suffered two defeats last week, losing to James Madison 9-0 and to Mary Washington 9-0.

IAA

By PAM UDKIPE

Women's Flag Football is in full swing with ten teams competing. This is a sufficient increase compared to the six last year. The five leading teams thus far are: Alpha Sigma Tau, Curry Crusty's, Crazy Eights, Frazer Eighties, and Tabby T's.

Entry Blanks for Ultimate Frisbee (Football Frisbee), are due Wednesday, October 1. The teams for this event may be composed of people from different dorms, fraternities and sororities, because no All Sports Trophy points will be given. Tee shirts will be awarded to the winning team. The teams may be coed. There will be a captains meeting for this event on Thursday, October 2 in the IAA Room in Lankford. Play will begin on October 13.

Bowling Entry Blanks are due on Thursday, October 2. The teams may be comprised of five men or women. The captains meeting will be on Monday, October 13 and play begins on Tuesday, October 14.

Player Of The Week

From SPORTS INFO

Senior attacker Julie Dayton, who played a key role in Longwood's 5-4 field hockey win over Virginia Tuesday, has been selected as Longwood College Player of the Week for the period September 19-26.

A truly outstanding athlete, Dayton won her first Player of the Week honor last spring competing on the Longwood lacrosse team. She later achieved All-American honors in lacrosse when she was named to the U.S. Lacrosse squad in June.

This fall she has helped Longwood's field hockey team get off to its best start in years and Tuesday she scored two goals as the Lady Lancers took their first win ever from the University of Virginia 5-4 on a penalty flick after two scoreless overtime periods.

As one of only three seniors in the Longwood lineup, she plays a key leadership role. In nominating her for Player of the Week, hockey coach Bette Harris said that Julie has played some of her best hockey in recent games.

"Julie played her three best games against Davis & Elkins, Maryland and Virginia," said the coach. "Her determination and offensive ability as well as her leadership on the field were key components in our first ever win over UVA."

A varsity performer for Longwood since her freshman season, Dayton was Longwood's top scorer last season with seven goals. With eight goals already this year, she has led Longwood to a 4-2-2 record (more wins than all of last season).

The senior sparkplug, who is blossoming into a legitimate contender for All-American honors in field hockey as well as lacrosse, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dayton of Laurel. An all-around athlete in her prep days, Julie is a graduate of Laurel Senior High School.

Catalinas Splash

By CHRIS TULLINGTON

The Catalinas (synchronized swimming club) are excited about starting out the new year in the new pool. The first show for the public will be held during Oktoberfest, October 25. The show is entitled "Different Strokes." "Different Strokes" will show the variety of music and routines that synchronized swimming entails.

The Catalinas are proud to announce that they will host the state N.I.C.A. (National Institute of Creative Aquatics) events here at Longwood. N.I.C.A. will be held October 12. The Catalinas will be entering three routines in state this year and hope to make it to Regionals which will be at University of Richmond and then eventually Nationals which will be held at William and Mary College.

The Catalinas would like to welcome seven new members to the club this year: D.J. Forbes, Kim Guthrie, Beth Mills, Mo Rogge, Cindi Satterwhite, Lynda Stratton, and Berni Toner. We are looking forward to a successful year.

Fall Retreat

(Continued from Page 1)

future." Retreat Committee Chairmen Brenda Fettrow and Nancy Warren echoed many of Tammy's comments and added that they too wish more people had come. But they also felt that the people who were there were choice.

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LVI

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1980

NO. 6

Oktoberfest Features Lancer Hall Dedication

From Sports Info

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Oktoberfest is right around the corner and amidst all the fun, festive activities a special event will take place. Special? What's so different about this year's Oktoberfest, you say? Find out, Saturday, October 25, at 11 a.m. — Watch an expected crowd of 3,000 people witness the dedication of Longwood's newest addition, Lancer Hall.

Four and a half million dollars went into the construction of Lancer Hall. According to Nancy Shelton (chairman of the dedication committee), Lancer Hall will probably be the last state financed building on Longwood's campus.

Other members seated on the dedication committee were: Dr. Shirley O'Neil, Dr. Carolyn Hodges, Hoke Currie, Dr. Lou-ard Egbert, Roy Hill, T. C. Dalton, Dr. Ralph Hundley, Gordon Inge, Miss Penny Robinson, Dr. Carolyn Wells and Dr. Henry Willett, Jr. Together this committee sent out 16,000 invitations and organized the dedication ceremony.

ROTC members will present the color guard, the concert band will play the national anthem, and Tammy Byrd, president of the student body, will make the pledge to our flag. Reverend Hungate, father of student, Robin Hungate, will lead the invocation and benediction ceremonies.

Then the initial formalities will take place: Eric Robinson, Director of the Board of Visitors, will accept the building with the specification manual and keys from MacIlroy and Parris (architects of Lancer Hall) and Romeo Guest Co. representatives (builders of Lancer Hall). In turn, Mr. Robinson will turn over the building to Dr. Willett. Former governor Mills E. Godwin, will be the guest of honor and will be the speaker for the occasion.

Plans for Lancer Hall were approved in the 1960's and architectural blueprints were drawn up in the 1970's. Since Governor Godwin served from 1966-1970 and then again in 1974-1978, it was only fitting that he be the guest of honor since he was very instrumental in obtaining the approval for Longwood's bond referendum. The bond, for three and a half million dollars, was approved in November of 1977, actual construction began in September of 1978 and in the late summer of 1980, Lancer Hall was completed.

The dedication will probably be the biggest, most important event in this year's Oktoberfest. Why? Because of all the changes. First, Lancer Hall is the only building ever to be dedicated during Oktoberfest; all of Longwood's previous buildings have been dedicated on Founder's Day. Secondly, is the building's name. Lancer Hall is the only building that was not named after a person known to Longwood's campus. The use of a sport symbol, the Lancer, was chosen by the student body, alumni and faculty members which the Board of Visitors approved in May 1980. The name is quite fitting since Lancer Hall will be used as the main athletic area. Also, this is the first year every alumni that graduated from Longwood has been asked to come which adds up to 13,000 people. Former board members and the foundation board members along with parents of current students, business executives who contribute to the college, representatives of Hampden-Sydney College and those of neighboring community colleges were all invited. To add to this already long list, all deans and assistant deans of every single four year college and the dedication along with many other day time activities. All sports events, swimming exhibitions and dance performances will take place inside Lancer.

The biggest move, however, is Midway. For years Midway has taken place in front of the campus police parking lot. This year, Midway will be held in Lankford parking lot. Because of this all cars must be moved Wednesday, October 22. The Art department is also moving their exhibit to Bedford. The nightly events such as: skits, cake-cutting, and Chi-walk, will proceed according to tradition.

A special luncheon in honor of Governor Godwin will include dignitaries on campus and will take place after the dedication. Later on that afternoon a "dedication cocktail buffet" for special guests and parents will conclude the memorable occasion.

Oktoberfest Weekend
Schedule, Page 5

university in all of Virginia were sent special invitations. Of course, not everyone will come, but a crowd is expected. Last, the times of many events had to be moved either an hour up or back.

The promotional aspect of the dedication also has some advantages. Guidance counselors from every high school in Virginia were asked to attend in order for them to view Longwood's campus to encourage students to enroll here, and many Oktoberfest activities have been moved to center around Lancer Hall. The biergarten was moved in honor of

There are still a few last minute touches that need to be done such as: drapes, venetian blinds and little accessory things not in Lancer at this time but these will be taken care of in the future, as well as the naming of the different sections in Lancer. Hopefully, each student will do his/her part.

Don't miss the dedication; it will probably be the only one you ever see at Longwood. Nancy Shelton stated about the dedication, "I hope the weather is good and we have good attendance from the student body as well as parents and alumni."

"Barefoot In The Park" Superb Entertainment

By NEIL SAWYER

Theatergoers this past week were in for a rare treat with the Drama Department's production of Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park". Despite the fact that this was the first Longwood College production for several freshmen cast members and also the directorial debut for Drama Department faculty member Richard Gamble, the play went superbly. The cast deftly handled this engaging light comedy and received great support from a large, appreciative crowd.

Director Gamble chose to experiment in this play with a cabaret-style atmosphere seating the audience at tables on the stage, in close proximity with the actors. This intimacy greatly enhanced the interplay between audience and actor and added to the already strong crowd support.

The cast of the play was uniformly excellent, especially considering that only veteran performers Frank Creasy and Jeff Sledjeski had acted in previous Longwood shows. Newcomers Sherry Forbes, Jerry Dagenhart, Myra Pierson and David Wood all made splendid Longwood dramatic debuts.

Sherry Forbes and Frank Creasy starred as Corris and Paul Bratter, the young couple whose rocky start at married life provides the focus of the play. Jerry Dagenhart played Victor Valasco, the eccentric neighbor. Myra Pierson played Corrie's mother, Mrs. Banks. Jeff Sledjeski and David Wood had supporting roles as the Telephone repairman and the Delivery Man, respectively.

Praise is due to the crew of this play for their efficient work under conditions of limited space. Richard Gamble, doubling as director and set designer, made sure the play went well under space conditions which could have detracted from the play.

Altogether, this fine collective effort ensured four evenings of good, lively entertainment for all those fortunate enough to attend.

Members of the cast of Barefoot in the Park received standing ovations at several performances.
By Jul Morten

ARA's 25th Anniversary

Automatic Retailers of America (ARA) will be celebrating their 25th Anniversary of service to Longwood College, October 30. The service has been at the College since September, 1955.

In honor of this occasion, the ARA National Headquarters is serving an anniversary dinner for students, faculty, and staff. Invitations have been sent to staff members who will attend.

According to Gordon Inge, faculty and staff have been invited on a certain schedule so that overcrowding can be avoided. The meal will be served family style from 5-7:30 p.m. Students are asked to remember the extended hours.

Inge also emphasized that student fees were not paying for this meal.

As Oktoberfest draws near, Klowns practice for their big night on Jarman Stage.
By Melody Crawley

Egbert Trial Set

By PAM UPDIKE

A trial date of March 31, 1981 has been set for the suit against Longwood College and Dr. Lourd E. Egbert Jr. Suing them are Oxford of England, Theodore Presser Co. of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Novello and Co. of Kent England. These three plaintiffs are seeking $50,000 from each defendant in statutory damages, plus costs, and injunctions to halt any future infringements. They charge that Egbert and the college copied music to which they own rights and passed these copies out to students, then later performed these musical works, without obtaining permission from the firms' in question.

Such songs as "Twelve Days of Christmas," "Torches," "Here We Come A Wassailing," and "There Is No Rose of Such Virtue," are said to have been used.

The college will be represented by Attorney General Marshall Coleman and private legal counsils from Washington and New York. President Henry I. Willett stated, "I'm very impressed with the legal service that has been made available." Dr. Egbert was not able to comment.

The attorneys have asked U.S. District Judge D. Dorch Warriner to dismiss the suit because the complaints allegedly failed to abide by all the provisions of the 1978 revised federal copyright law.

Academic Tutoring Needed?

Dean Carolyn Wells has appointed a committee to study the need of academic tutoring for students at Longwood.

Chaired by Marvin Ragland, the committee is to study "the feasibility of instituting a meaning academic tutoring program." The committee's goal is to develop a program if needed by the 1981-82 school year.

Other members of the committee are Dr. Jennings Cox, Gary Groneweg, Dr. James Gussett, William Harbour, Wayne LeStourgen and E.T. Noone.

Students are asked to complete the following form and place it in boxes provided in the new smoker and at resident hall desks by October 24.

QUESTIONNAIRE FOR STUDENTS

1. Do you feel Longwood College should have a tutoring program?
() Yes () No
2. If a tutoring program were available at Longwood, would you use it?
() Yes () No
3. Would you be willing to pay to have someone tutor you?
() Yes () No
4. List those academic areas in which you feel tutoring should be available to students:
a.
b.
c.
d.
5. Check your class status and list your major:
(Senior () Junior (Sophomore () Freshman
6. List any information or suggestions that you have to support or negate the establishment of a tutorial program.

Thank you for your assistance in supplying the above information.

Longwood Pageant Still In Existence

By MITZI MASON

At the weekly meeting of Legislative Board before Fall Break, the subject of the Miss Longwood Pageant arose when three young ladies presented the board with new plans for the future pageant. The three ladies have formed a new committee made up of a chairman, Betsy Clark; a director, Sharon Raunswinder; and a business manager, Debbie Cosby.

The committee feels that the major problem of the past pageants not being a total success was simply mismanagement. The fact that there has been no financial advisor in the past was included as one of the greater problems. Mismanagement in the area of publicity caused very little interest among the student body. Another problem included is that in the past there have been no co-signers for the checks. A major problem dealing with this was that the person who wrote the checks for prizes was to write them for only half of the amounts, and the Longwood Foundation was to cover the other half with a check payable to Longwood College to go towards the girls' tuition.

The person in charge of writing checks wrote them for the full amounts of the prizes, therefore throwing the treasury into a financial bind. One course of money is the Longwood Foundation; and they will no longer assist the pageant. The committee also feels that the traditions of the college are fading fast and the pageant would just be another. The committee has many solutions to their past problems:

1) The biggest problem of mismanagement would be solved by having a set committee made up of a director, a chairman, and a business manager. All of these three combined would make major decisions.

2) The problem of financing would be alleviated by having a financial advisor. James Irby has agreed to help them out as much as possible.

3) The committee has decided to increase publicity, because last year's pageant would have brought in more profit had it been more publicized.

4) They have also decided to have two co-signers for the checks written.

5) If the committee pulls out of the Miss Virginia Franchise they will save more money.

At the meeting, the Board voted to accept the plans of the committee and to support them fully. The reasons the Board gave

(Continued on Page 8)

Woods To Write PBS Play

By CONNIE FALLON

W.C. Woods, assistant professor of journalism here at Longwood has been commissioned to write a play for a new series to be broadcast on PBS.

WNET-TV (Channel 13, New York) is commissioning American fiction writers to script original teleplays in an effort to reduce public television's dependence on the BBC for material. Writers presently at work on the project include such popular writers as John Cheever, Donald Barthelme and Isaac Bashevis Singer.

In recent years, public television has been making attempts to pump new life into the blood stream of American TV and to convince corporations to fund more contemporary and experimental dramas on PBS. These efforts have included the series "American Short Story" and a "Speculative Fiction" lab that last January presented a dramatization of a novel by Ursula LeGuin. "Very good stuff", Woods called it, "Much better than being put to sleep by Alistair Cooke."

Woods, who free-lanced as a fiction writer and journalist for ten years before coming to Longwood in 1976, has had very little experience at screenwriting. "I spent the summer in Hollywood ten years ago playing tennis with Mario Puzo's secretary while she was supposed to be typing the script for The Godfather", he said.

"The screenplay I was working on ended up in the trashcan. I'm much more sanguine about this one." Woods' present attempt is based on an as-yet-unpublished long story called "Available Light" which he calls a meditation on comic books, flying saucers, domestic shadow boxing, and medieval thought. The story also includes dinosaurs.

When asked what he will be paid for his story, Woods would only say that he's not placing any orders for a new Ferrari.

Anthropology Film Series

The first film in the 1980-81 Anthropology Film Series will be shown Wednesday evening, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in Bedford Auditorium. The film is entitled Rivers of Sand and is a study of the Hamar, an agricultural and herding culture of 15,000 people who live in the southern part of the country of Ethiopia in Eastern Africa.

The theme of Rivers of Sand is the exploitation and subjugation of women in the Hamar culture and the social price which men must pay in the unequal arrangement of their culture demands between men and women. Among the Hamar, the men relax by tending their cattle, hunting, decorating themselves, and telling legends about their exploits while the women are the farmers, preparers of food, tenders of children, and the performers of most of the useful tasks of everyday life.

The film Rivers of Sand was directed, photographed, and narrated by the world famous anthropological filmmaker, Robert Gardner.

All films in the Anthropology Film Series are free. A brief introduction to the film and to the Hamar people will be given before the film by Dr. James William Jordan, Associate Professor of Anthropology. Students and faculty of Longwood College and the general public are invited to attend the screening of this classic film in anthropology.

Save Your Stamps

YOU CAN SAVE LIVES BY SAVING STAMPS! The Baptist Student Union is encouraging everyone in the Longwood community to save stamps this year. The stamps will be sent to the Washington Association of Churches who will sell them and give the money to Church World Services. Church World Services provides high protein foods to needy families and orphanages.

HOW TO PROCESS THE STAMPS: Cut from the envelope, leaving about 1/4" margin of paper around the stamp (don't tear or peel off).

Please accumulate all postage stamps you receive this year and save them in an envelope. The Baptist Student Union will collect them at the end of the semester this fall and next spring. For further information, please contact Robyn Black, B.S.U. President or Rev. Michael L. Edwards, Campus Minister. Thanks for your concern and support!

Levi's

LAY-AWAY
FOR CHRISTMAS

JEANS SHACK

SOUTHGATE SHOPPING CENTER
FARMVILLE, VA.
PHONE 392-4870

$1.00 OFF ANY LEVI'S JEANS PURCHASE WITH THIS COUPON AND CURRENT LONGWOOD COLLEGE I.D.

Levi's

MASTER CHARGE AND VISA
ACCEPTED

Simkins Lecture Given By T.D. Young

By JODIKERSEY

On Thursday, October 16th at 7:30 in the Wyal Building Auditorium, Dr. Thomas Daniel Young gave this year's first Francis Butler Simkins Lecture to a large audience of students and faculty. Dr. William Frank introduced Dr. Young as a great humanist, teacher and father, possessing the rare characteristics such as intelligence, articulation, conscientiousness and humanness.

Described as a "truly gifted 20th century Renaissance Man", Dr. Young has served higher education as a classroom lecturer, department chairman, dean and personal adviser and friend to hundreds of students. Since 1972, he has been Gertrude C. Vanderbilt Professor of English at Vanderbilt University.

Internationally known for his award-winning biography of John Crowe Ransom, Titled Gentleman In A Dustcoat, Dr. Young has also lectured and written on Donald Davidson, Allen Tate, William Faulkner, Robert Penn Warren and others. He is scheduled to give the Lamar Lectures at Mercer University in October and will also speak at the spring 1981 meeting of the American Studies Association of Western Europe in Liverpool, England.

He is the author of some 10 books on the literature of the South and currently has books in press with three different university presses—two volumes of letters which he edited, a critical study of modern southern writers, and a historical work on

(Continued on Page 8)

Sound Gallery Comes Alive

By SHEILA GOLLHARDT

This Friday and Saturday night, Oct. 24-25, Sound Gallery will be filled with the Texas music of Bill and Bonnie Hearne. Some of you will remember them playing in the snack bar for a coffeehouse. Bill and Bonnie have been playing together since 1968. This is their third performance here at Longwood College.

Bonnie, who plays piano, works her electric magic with churchy chords left from her early gospel training, with echoes of Bessie Smith and Linda Ronstadt. Bill, who plays guitar, grew up listening to commercial country and western music. He has his own style of flat picking so to play rhythm and melody at the same time.

Bill and Bonnie have performed at every Kerrville Folk Festival. They have opened for top artists such as John Denver, Doug Kershaw, The New Riders of the Purple Sage, Rusty Wier, plus many more. You will be astonished by the electric sound of Bonnie alone, and by Bill backing up. They now have a base player who played with them last year, around the end of November, for a coffeehouse. Now they also have a drummer, which adds to their music as a whole.

The show is Friday and Saturday night of Oktoberfest week end. It starts at 8:30 p.m. in the Red-White-Green rooms. General admission is $1.00 w-ID so please come out and help Sound Gallery support OKTOBERFEST this year with BILL and BONNIE HEARNE.

Oktoberfest In Music

By PAM UPDIKE

The Longwood College Music Department will be extremely busy this Oktoberfest week end. On Saturday morning, the Concert Band will perform at the Lancer Hall Dedication Services. Under the direction of Dr. Harbaum, the band will play a March, an Overture and the Star Spangled Banner.

During lunch, from 12:30 until 1:15, the Jazz Band, directed by Allen Butler, a new full-time professor in the Music Department, will perform. The band will play a few of last year's favorites and some pure jazz selections.

Following lunch, the Concert Choir will perform in Jarman Auditorium from 1:30 until 2:15.

This will be a Pops concert featuring a medley from A Chorus Line. Concert Choir President Marjorie LeReau choreographed the show and there will be solos by several students.

At 2:30, the Concert Band will perform once again; this time on the Midway. They will feature several show tunes, German Music, and some light classical music. Concert Band President, Tom Sullivan commented that it is a "smaller band but, better quality this year."

A German Oom-pah band will be walking all over campus playing German polkas and waltzes. This Oktoberfest looks to be one filled with music!

Art Exhibit

By NEIL SAWYER

October 19 through November 23, an impressive exhibit of paintings by Cordray Simmons and Lue Osborne is on display in the Bedford Gallery, and is sponsored by the Longwood Fine Arts Center.

Lue Osborne and Cordray Simmons were participants in New York City's art scene from the mid-1920's to about 1947. Their interest was mainly in day to day life in America. Maybe the most important fact about Lue Osborne and Cordray Simmons was that they pioneered what we know now as acrylic painting. Through their experimenting with formulas and techniques they laid the groundwork for many artists today who employ acrylics for more durable paintings.

One particular point of interest about the exhibit is that a student, Pamela Mayo, has been chosen to be Guest Curator. Pam is a senior Art History Major studying the work of Lue Osborne and Cordray Simmons in preparation for Honors paper. This exhibition represents the preliminary steps towards the final honors paper.

Exhibit hours are during office hours weekdays and 2-6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

October 23	Tracks — Saturday Night Alive	9 p.m.
	I.D. required	DD Hall
	$2.00 L.C. students	$3.00 guests
October 24, 25	3rd Appearance of Bill & Bonnie	8:30 p.m.
	I.D. required	Sound Gallery
	$1.00 L.C. students	red-white-green rooms
		$1.50 guests
Oct. 24, 25	"LED ZEPPELIN"	12:00 Midnight
	Admission $1.00	"Oktoberfest Movie"
		gold room
October 26	North Star Band	2 p.m.
	FREE	Outdoor Concert
		Lankford Mall
October 27	Muriel Bach	8 p.m.
	FREE	Spotlight Concert
		gold room

Fantastic Performance By Rock Mountain

By JOE JOHNSON

Live from Longwood's Lower Dining Hall — it's Saturday Night. Hey, wait a minute... it's not Saturday or even Friday night... heck, it's Thursday night. Well, it's also October 2, the beginning of fall break, so Saturday Night Alive with Rock Mountain was still aptly named. And for all those "Southern Fried" rock fans from Longwood, it was a night that would long be remembered.

Rock Mountain played once before at Longwood and received an enthusiastic welcome. They were again eagerly awaited in the packed lower dining hall. When walking in the dining hall, one got an almost sedate feeling of ease. The lighted candles on each table and the blacked out stage, coupled with the low murmuring of conversation, gave one a feeling of calmness tinged with the tension of expectation.

The night soon exploded in a kaleidoscope of music and bright lights as Rock Mountain played their first number, a song from their new album, which ended in a Freebird style, slam-jam, guitar twanging, drum-beating finish. Hard rock n' roll was their strong point, but they played many other songs which showed their whole range of talent.

The female vocalist, Patty Albige, for the group seemed to dominate the stage with her clear strong vocals and easy pantomime movements. The lead guitarist, John Tyler, wearing a 1940 brimmed hat, and the other lead player (and Slideguitar), Howard Williams, got down to some skillful guitar picking which left the audience ecstatic.

The drummer, Jim Callaway, and the keyboard player, Lou Simmons, gave the group the needed balance to synthesize the band's dynamic sound. The bass player, Mike Robbins, also added to the background. Once he grabbed the spotlight with a terrific bass solo which left the audience exhausted from cheering.

They played such favorites as You're No Good; She's a Lot Like You; Just What I Needed; Weed, Whites and Wine; Rockasane, You Got that Right, Let It Run, Crazy Love; Kick it Out; plus a Grateful Dead medley and some songs from their new album.

All in all, it was a fantastic performance, topped only by the pyramids of beer cans left at the tables. So, if you like country-rock or maybe just good ol' rock n' roll, watch for Rock Mountain — they're definitely on the way up in the 80's.

North Star Band Is Coming

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Do the songs "Virginia," "You're the Reason," "Have You Seen Her," and "On the Road" ring any bells? They might after Oct. 26. To round out the Oktoberfest activities, SUN will set up the Sunday afternoon outdoor concert featuring the North Star Band. Admission is FREE and will be in Lankford Mall at 2 p.m.

According to the Washington Post, the North Star Band music is "... a progressive country style that freely incorporates tasteful touches of rock, Western swing, honky-tonk, and R & B." Maybe the five members of the band are so successful because of the individual versatility. Al Johnson formed and manages the group, he is the lead singer and plays the guitar; Lou Hagar plays the piano, clarinet and has studied music in college. Jim Robeson plays bass and sings. Jim is an ex-DJ and owns his own recording studio; Paul Goldstein is on percussion, Jay Jessup plays the pedal steel and dobro, and is a back up singer. Jay also has experience with the bass, banjo and guitar. Each member of the group writes so almost all of their material is original. Their other material is recreations of old songs with a new twist or new songs with an old blend.

The North Star Band is an east coast group and, "Tonight the North Star Band," is their debut album, consisting mostly of ballads and hard driving country-rock, bluegrass type songs. The Mountain-Ear, Colorado paper said this about the group and album, "the album could be a sound-track to a movie shot on location in a roadside honky-tonk filled with desperados," and "this group features some of the best foot stompin' country you could hope to hear."

Fairly a new group, this group deserves a chance to show Longwood what they have to offer. Let's give it to them. Enjoy the expected "nice" weather, sit around the Lankford Mall and listen to the new sound. Remember, October 26, 2 p.m., but most important — it doesn't cost you a thing.

Tracks will appear this Thursday night, Oct. 23. Saturday Night Alive! is presenting Tracks, a five piece high energy rock band from Richmond, Va. Their repertoire ranges from Supertramp to the Stones including work by Tom Petty, Cheap Trick, Le Roux, The Cars, Led Zepplin and originals. There will be limited admission. Tickets will be sold in the Lankford student union office.

Columns And Comments

THE ROTUNDA

Established 1920

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Melody C. Crawley

ASST. EDITOR Jodi Kersey
SPORTS EDITOR Dallas Bradbury
PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR Jackie Steer
BUSINESS MANAGER Robyn Black
ADVERTISING MGR. Patti Pascale
STAFF: Dave Gates, Brenda Coleman,
Pam Updike, Jody Gilbert, Carole Key,
Misti Mason, Janice Roakes, Donna
Hughes, Linda Wheeler, Beth Parrott,
Nina Bowyer, Debra Cunningham,
Sarah Slump, Connie Fallon, Tom
Stanley, Neil Sawyer, Joe Johnson,
Cindy Dropeski, Mark Segal.

Member of the VIMCA

Published weekly during the College year with the exception of Holidays and examination periods by the students of Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia.
Printed by the Farmville Herald.
Opinions expressed are those of the weekly Editorial Board and its columnists, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body or the administration.
Letters to the Editor are welcomed. They must be typed, signed and submitted to the Editor by the Friday preceding publication date. All letters are subject to editing.

Class Competition

Dear Student Body:

The Virginian staff has decided to promote the subscription of the 1981 Virginian sales this year by way of color class competition. When a student orders a book for next year, at a cost of $14 (plus $2 for postage if necessary) he/she will identify their color class.

We feel that Oktoberfest Week end is more than appropriate time to kick off this competition. However, the competition will continue throughout the school year. A deadline will be announced at a later date. A special price of $12 (plus $2 for postage) will be in effect during

Commentary

By BILLIE LONG

"WHAT? ARE THEY STILL HERE? I THOUGHT THEY HAD ALREADY GRADUATED!"

This particular conversation has been repeated, expanded, and edited frequently over the past month around campus. To whom does it refer? These inquisitive remarks are directed to and about the teaching assistants of the English department.

The six graduate assistants have a two-fold purpose and OBJECTIVE: to complete their Masters degrees, and to serve as teachers for the instruction of the Writing labs. Alison Swann of Texas; Julie Weaver of Green Bay, Virginia; Melanie Hyman of Alexandria, Virginia; Sharon Miller of Halifax County, Virginia; and Billie Long of Richmond, Virginia, all returning alumni and Linda Carrillo of South Hill, Virginia who graduated from James Madison University in 1979, currently handle the instruction of approximately 10 hours of Labs a week. Each of the women also take at least nine hours of classes as well each week.

According to Ellery Sedgwick, the faculty supervisor for the assistantship program, the writing Labs are designed "to assist students in avoiding penalizations from professors and prospective employers, who may find non-standard English distasteful." If we wrote as we spoke — a non-standard form of English — the chances of being "passed over" by supervisors and employers is increased. The writing labs enable students to seriously improve writing skills which may prove invaluable in a job market overflowing with "poor writers."

Another purpose of the labs is to supplement the instruction of the Freshman Writing courses with practical and individualized attention on paragraph development and basic grammar skills. Miss Hyman, as well as

(Continued on Page 8)

Oktoberfest ONLY. The tallies as of Saturday, October 25, at the end of midway (4:30) will be announced during the skits that evening. At the end of the competition (sometime in the spring of 1981) the color class with the most subscriptions will be declared the winner. The winning color class will receive a two page dedication in the 1981 Virginian.

Sincerely,
Susan Watford
Co-Editor of the 1981 Virginian

Excellent Show

Dear Editor,

I would like to congratulate the Drama Dept. and the Longwood Players for their fine production of Barefoot In The Park. The show was excellent in all respects and the idea of the backstage Cabaret made the show exciting and different. My congratulations especially to Mr. Richard Gamble for his hard work and dedication that made this show a definite success!

Pam Updike

More Letters on Page 8

CHI supports fall sports:

baseball, basketball,
volleyball, riding,
field hockey, tennis,
golf, soccer, rugby.

Go Blue and Whites!

Senior Spotlight

By BRENDA COLEMAN

As Oktoberfest approaches, catching up with Lynn Campbell is everything but difficult. Lynn, the Senior class Oktoberfest Chairman, is busy day and night with the preparations and, at times, headaches of her class' activities.

"I guess my main complaint is that I wish more people would become involved with Oktoberfest. More people mean more competition in color rush and booths, and would help tremendously with the skits. Other than that, everything is going very well. The people here are putting a lot of work into this Oktoberfest. That makes John and I work even harder because of their efforts. I'm excited about the enthusiasm I've seen. It makes my job easier and a lot of fun in the long run." Anyone who knows Lynn knows how shy she once was. "The responsibilities of Oktoberfest have made me come out more." Lynn interrupted the interview to glance at the green-and-whites rehearsing, as she did quite frequently during the interview. One could almost see a sparkle come into her eyes when she said, "I've gotten to know a lot of people instead of just meeting them. That makes my job worth it!"

Lynn is an elementary education major who lives on a farm in Smyth County, Virginia. She is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and served as her pledge class' president. She has also been a member of the Ring Committee for the Class of 1981 and participated in activities such as orientation, Sophomore Roadshow, and Oktoberfest.

"I'm very happy I chose to come to Longwood. I have many special friends here and have many special memories that will make me remember college. Oktoberfest is one of those memories. I know Oktoberfest will still be part of Longwood ten years from now. Sure, some traditions will fade. I feel, however, that the red and green spirit and traditions will be carried on as long as concerned people care. Even when the school finally has a ratio of 60 percent to 40 percent, I know the guys will also help carry on and accept our traditions."

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

SOMETIMES I WONDER WHY I'VE PUT UP WITH ALL THIS AS LONG AS I HAVE... ENDLESS HOURS, GRIPE, PEER PRESSURE, STUPID CARTOONS...

IT COULD BE YOUR SENSE OF DEDICATION SIR, YOUR LOYALTY, THANK YOU. I DESIRE TO SEE A JOB WELL DONE, AND THE KNOWLEDGE THAT YOU'VE DOING YOUR BEST FOR THE STUDENTS.

OF COURSE, IT COULD BE THE FACT THAT YOU'RE RAKING IN THE DUCKS, SIR.

Editor's Turn

This week is one of the most important weeks on campus. You can probably tell why from all the articles in this week's newspaper, for there seems to be a reoccurring theme. In case you have not heard — This week end is Oktoberfest!

With Oktoberfest comes the traditional week end celebration. Headed by Geist, the entire student body seems to be getting involved.

A lot of changes are being made in Oktoberfest this year. It seems that there's a lot of moving around. In addition to the yearly activities, this Oktoberfest will have an added event. Longwood's new gymnasium complex will be dedicated.

This complex is the pride of some on campus. It provides Longwood with additional facilities for tennis, dancing, basketball and swimming, just to name a few. It will probably be the last building to be built on Longwood's campus in a long time because of State funding. (You can see this by taking a look at the College's Capitol Outlay plan. In this biennium, the College was turned down by the State to build a needed Fine Arts Center.)

For Oktoberfest, a lot of the activities will center around Lancer Hall in honor of it's dedication. Dance Company concerts will take place in the new dance studio; Catalina shows will take place in the new swimming pool (That is if the pool has finally been fixed. Yes, there have been some problems in that area); the biergarten will be on the patio of the complex.

In addition to this, Geist plans a New Midway. Students will be slightly inconvenienced by this move. Midway has taken over all of Lankford parking lot, so that means all the cars have to go. In fact, if there are any cars left at 12 noon, Wednesday, they will be towed.

All in all, this should be the biggest and best Oktoberfest. So, all of you suitcase college students — Leave your suitcases under the bed this week end and invite everyone to Longwood — We're going to have a celebration.

Oktoberfest 1980

By BRENDA COLEMAN

Imagine if you will balloons filled with red and green water based paint flying through the air. Then picture approximately fifteen people passing a mattress over their heads with their feet (of course while they are on their backs) and then all fifteen piling on that one single bed. Wait, there's more—skits performed with cries of "Green and White," "Red and White," and "Blue and White" piercing the air (and eardrums) of all those around. What is it—a day at a funny farm? No—it's color class competition!

Preparations for these color class competitions began many weeks ago with the election of the class chairmen. Since then, both Reds and Greens have worked separately and together to create a fun-filled week of Oktoberfest contests that will lead up to the final presentation of the Oktoberfest cup on Saturday night.

Paint battle on Tuesday night kicks off the competitive week. This traditional contest has the red Freshman class (Class of 1984) and the green Sophomore class (Class of 1983) attempting to cover each other with their respective colored paint. This year's paint battle begins at 6 p.m. in Wheeler Mall and has many rules and regulations that must be followed in order for the tradition of paint battle to survive. The rules are as follows:

1. Use only water base paint. All other types of paint could seriously hurt a fellow student and could disqualify your class.
2. Do not use any type of pressurized objects or containers to spray your paint with.
3. Do not throw unmixed paint!
4. All participants must stay within the sidewalks of Wheeler Mall. Leaving this area or throwing paint outside of this area will disqualify your class.

5. Your class nor color class may turn over your opponent's paint.

6. All paint must be brought to the designated roped off areas between 5:45 and 6 p.m. to be checked by Geist.

7. Cooperate with Geist by following these rules and by listening to their instructions the night of the paint battle.

Another color competition that occurs on Saturday is color rush. This competition consists of five to seven athletic events that put able athletes from both classes against each other in such events as a mattress race, water balloon toss, and find-your shoes relay. These events often prove to be hilarious as well as fun and leads to a genuine feeling of spirit and cooperation between the two classes.

All four classes compete in the booth competition. The individual classes organize, manage, and build their own booths. They will sell various products ranging from mugs to felt hats to frustration pencils. The winning classes receive points that figure in the competitive tally.

However, the most important competition reaches a climax Saturday night when the color class skits are performed. Both classes write an original script, hold auditions, stage, build a set for, and direct the skits. They are judged for musical content, dance, script, costumes, and over-all performance and theme. This year, both classes have a Joan of Arc theme which enables them to be judged on a more equal basis than years before.

The final tally will take place right after the last skit is performed. All the scores are added and the overall winner of the Oktoberfest cup is announced. However, even though the contest pits Green against Red, we are all joined together under Longwood's blue and white spirit of competition.

Saturday Schedule Of Events

9:00 a.m. - 12 noon	Admission Tours	Information Tent
9:00 a.m. - 10:45 a.m.	Alumni Executive Board Meeting	Board Room
9:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.	Financial Aid Office Open
9:00 a.m. - 9:45 a.m.	Parents Coffee and Registration	Lancer Hall
9:45 a.m. - 10:30 a.m.	Parents Meeting	Lancer Hall
10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.	SUN Balloon Rides (field reserved 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.)	Iler Field
10:00 a.m.	Color Rush	Stubbs Hall
10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.	Spirit Painting Board
11:00 a.m. - 12 noon	Lancer Hall Dedication	Lancer Hall
12 noon - 6:00 p.m.	Cake Display	Lower Dining Hall
12 noon - 1:30 p.m.	Picnic	Wheeler Hall
12:30 p.m. - 1:15 p.m.	Jazz Band	Wheeler Hall
1:30 p.m. - 2:15 p.m.	Choir Concert	Jarman Auditorium
1:30 p.m.	Basketball	Lancer Hall
1:30 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.	Admission Tours	Information Tent
1:30 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.	Financial Aid Office Open
2:00 p.m.	Hockey Game	Barlow Field
2:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.	Midway	Lankford Parking Lot
2:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.	Art Exhibit and Sale	Bedford Building Grounds
3:00 p.m. & 3:45 p.m.	Catalina Club Show	Lancer Hall
3:00 p.m. & 3:45 p.m.	Longwood Company of Dancers	Lancer Hall
3:00 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.	Biergarten	Lancer Hall Patio
4:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.	Dedication Cocktail-Buffer	Longwood House
5:00 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.	Dinner	Dining Hall
7:30 p.m.	Skits	Jarman Auditorium
8:30 p.m.	Sound Gallery	Red/White/Green Rooms
After Skits	Chi Walk	Colonnade
After Chi Walk	Cake Cutting and Sing	Lower Dining Hall

OKTOBERFEST
MIDWAY
IS MOVING
TO LANKFORD LOT!

ALL CARS MUST BE MOVED BY WED.,
OCT. 22
at 12 NOON

TOWING WILL BE ENFORCED

OKTOBERFEST
SKITS

General Ticket Sales In Rotunda

Mon. - 5:45-7:45 p.m.
Tues. - 4:30-5:30 p.m.

Wed. & Thurs.-Lunch and Dinner
Fri.-Lunch Only

Hot Air Balloon Ride

By SUSAN BUTLIN

Imagine. Up, up and away. High up in the clouds. Physically that's exactly where you could be, soaring around campus in one day. A new attraction on Iler Field, in the midst of none other than Oktoberfest. A ride with a thrill, introduced by the Student Union. What could it be? How about a 70-foot hot air balloon ride. That's right, October 25, Longwood I.D. holding students have a chance to become one of the lucky people to experience such a ride.

Because of the expected excitement only thirty people will actually go up but that does not mean YOU do not have a chance. Requirements consist of filling out the entry blanks below.

Winners will be chosen one of two ways. First there will be a box placed in the student union office to place your entry blanks. A student may enter as many times as he wishes. Entries will be taken from 8:30 a.m. - 11:00 p.m., Monday, October 20 - Thursday, October 23. On Thursday and Friday during the lunch and dinner hours winners will be announced.

Second there will be designated areas for students to place entry blanks at each Saturday Night Alive performance on October 18 and October 23, winners will then be drawn those nights by the visiting musician or group.

Remember, these entry blanks are only available to Longwood students, so go ahead and take advantage of this exciting opportunity. An equal chance for all, what have you got to lose!

LONGWOOD SWEATERS,
JACKETS AND T-SHIRTS

LANSCOTT GIFT
SHOP

408 High Street Farmville, Va.

Open Mon.-Sat., 9 am-5pm
CLOSED WEDNESDAY MORNING

SUPPORT
DANCE COMPANY
AND CATALINA SHOWS

LANCER HALL
3 P.M. & 3:45 P.M.

The Board of Visitors
Of Longwood College

invites you to attend
the Dedication of

Lancer Hall

On Saturday, October twenty-fifth nineteen hundred and eighty

at eleven o'clock
Lancer Hall Gymnasium

ENTRY BLANK BALLOON RIDE

NAME _____

ROOM _____

PHONE NO _____

SPORTS

Sports Medicine Personnel play an integral part of every team in the prevention and cures of injuries.

By Jackie Steer

Sports Profile

By MARK KARL SEGAL

I must apologize. Before I became a sportswriter for the Rotunda I had only a journalist's view of the world — less sports writing — and some pre-conceived notion that all accomplished athletes would be the easiest victims to interview in the world of journalism. Well so much for my ability to stereotype and my cheap generalizations. I had always assumed that athletes were willing to brag about any accomplishment in their muscle-sweat history. I reckon I was wrong. Or at least my last three interviews were stalked prey of my prejudice mind.

Modesty again swept prevalent in my great American quest for ignorance when I met Teri Davis. All five feet and eight inches of her bit me in the jugular and shot her humble venom into my atrociously chauvinistic main artery.

Teri is a 21-year-old senior from Alexandria, Virginia. Her major suits her athletic abilities — Health Physical Education Recreation — or HPER. She attended Groveton High School where she played three sports — field hockey, basketball and softball — and lettered one, three and four years, respectively. Teri rode the helm of leadership; she was captain of all three teams her senior year. Groveton voted her the most outstanding athlete her senior year.

The 1979 season for field hockey helped Teri grab 179 saves. This season the field hockey team is proving a bit more victorious than the last season. Teri commented on her ability as goal keeper, "I guess I am alright, but I am no better than the next guy on the team." About this year's team she stated confidently, "I was not sure at first how the team would do . . . we have a lot of youth and only three seniors, but we are doing well." Anyone can see this fact by simply attending the next hockey game.

At Longwood Teri is also a starting center for the lacrosse team. Her merits for lacrosse are few, but her contributions as a team member are none the less needed.

During the summer Teri plays summer league softball and swings a mean racquet in tennis. Last summer she was an instructor for children at a neighborhood recreation clinic in her hometown. She plans on extending her ability in that field after graduation. Teri wants to teach and coach at the high school level.

For me to receive this information about Teri was not easy. Like her teammate, Julie Dayton, you must beat bits and pieces from her with a broomstick to unveil facts from the darkest crevices of her modest abode called her shyness. But I must tell you that I enjoy my cob-web broomstick actions here at Longwood for the Rotunda. I learn so much about these athletes as people and about myself as a writer. So, for Teri Davis's honest efforts and low-key humble attitude, we donate this column to her and the rest of the sports profiles to other hardworking athletes at Longwood.

Sports

Medicine

By PAM UPDIKE

The team that is part of every team is known as the Longwood Sports Medicine Staff. This group of fourteen dedicated students are represented at every sports event, home and away, and every practice. It is a strictly volunteer program and is actually on the job training.

The goal of the athletic training program at Longwood is the care and prevention of athletic injuries. Hollis W. Powers, a past Volunteer athletic trainer for the U.S. Olympic team, is Longwood's trainer and in charge of this program.

Powers received his B.S. degree from the University of Rhode Island and his Master's from West Virginia University. Powers received most of his training on the job as a trainer just like his students are doing now. He is passing on his knowledge to others. He has recently been appointed to the Executive Committee of Virginia Athletic Trainer's Association.

The students currently participating in this program are: Denise Snader, Jack Thomas, Bev Harris, Winona Bayne, Steve Huber, Lisa Shively, Kathy Idelson, Robert Smith, Bill Galloway, Robyn Goff, Rosemary Turney, Bridget McCarthy, Steve McGurl, and Peel Hawthorne.

This year, the sports medicine program is greatly aided by the new equipment in Lancer Hall. Two such devices are the Orthatron, which is an Isokinetic Isolated Joint Rehabilitation Machine, which deals with the ankles, knees and shoulders and an Ultra Sound Electrical Muscle Stimulator.

The athletic training program is currently trying to develop a minor in athletic training for those students who are not majoring in P.E., but wish to teach. Also, another project they will be doing this year will be to sell refreshments at home sports events.

During my service to the Rotunda as Sports Editor, it has thus far not been my policy to elaborate on sports events. However, on the night of Oct. 2, 1980 Muhammad Ali, the self-proclaimed "Greatest fighter of all time" met his fate in the ring in Las Vegas, Nevada. This truly sad moment in the history of Boxing prompted me to pick up my pen and pay tribute to a living legend. Ever since I've been old enough to remember Muhammad Ali has been my idol; through all the great ones I've seen him triumph, as well as falter. But always I have been in his corner. The reason I'm such a die-hard Ali fan is because he has illustrated a tremendous sense of pride in himself and has demonstrated, by and large that he has interesting fortitude.

I can only find one flaw in his actions and character. Although I won't elaborate on the subject I feel it was wrong for him to evade his inclusion in the Armed Services of the United States.

It is so hard for us to watch a legend meet the same fate that he has administered to countless others; but the old must, and do, make way for the young. My hat is off to Larry Holmes because now he may finally receive the credit he needs and deserves.

In hope that Ali never decides to foolishly return to the ring; it should be said that I will be the first one in his corner rooting for him again. So here's to you, Muhammad Ali; my sentiments are with you. You've been a great champion; the Greatest of all time.

Player Of The Week

Senior Kay Smith rebounded from several weeks of sub-par performances to fire a 76 and win the one-day VAAW State Open Golf Tournament Thursday at Lexington Country Club, and for her efforts, Smith has been named the Longwood College Player of the Week for the period October 10-17.

Longwood's number one golfer the past three years, Smith put it all together at Lexington last week carding a 35 on the front nine and a 41 on the tough back nine. Her score was six strokes ahead of the runner-up.

"Kay was very consistent Thursday," said Coach Barbara Smith in nominating her for the award. "She putted well also. I felt she was due for a good round heading into the tournament."

The Covington, Virginia native came back with rounds of 82-88 to place fifth among individuals in the VAAW State Team Tournament, which was also held in Lexington Friday and Saturday. Smith had won the individual crown in the VAAW team tourney last season with an 81-78.

Named Longwood College Player of the Week three times a year ago, Smith has shot as low as 73 in her career at Longwood. An outstanding performer in both basketball and golf while at Covington High School, Kay is majoring in History. She was voted best athlete in the senior class in 1977.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur T. Smith of Covington.

THE HAIR shaft

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU

DEBBIE FRANCIS

KATHY WAYCASTER, DALE OWNBY

LINDA "JILL" DUNEVANT

HOURS

Mon. & Tues.	9 AM 8 PM
Wed. Fri.	9 AM 6 PM
Sat.	9 AM 3 PM

CALL 392-5685

Conveniently Located In The
Farmville Shopping Center

The Ticker™ Is Here.

$10.00

Introducing our new 110 Ticker™ Bouquet. It's a fun bouquet designed to help you tickle just about anybody just about anywhere for just about any reason. Call or visit us today.

CARTER'S FLOWER SHOP

711 W. 3RD. ST.
FARMVILLE, VA.
392-3151

Helping you say it right.

SPORTS

Lancers Field Hockey Rolling

By CINDY DROPESKI

While most of Longwood's students were at home enjoying their fall break, Longwood's field hockey team was playing games in Kentucky. Longwood played Kentucky's state champions, Eastern Kentucky, which couldn't score against Longwood and Longwood won 1-0. Another game was played against Vanderbilt. Vanderbilt was not a challenge to Longwood's Lancers because the Lancers won 11-0. The last game was against the Bluegrass Club. This game proved to be the most challenging game of the tour. But Longwood pulled through with a 1-0 victory. Longwood was coming home after a victorious tour to face their rivals, Old Dominion.

The Lancers were ready strategically to play ODU. Mary Milne did a fine job of covering ODU's leading scorer person-to-person. By intercepting passes and blocking shots, Mary depleted ODU's offensive drive. Another key defensive player for Longwood was senior Kim Garber. Kim's stick work stunned many of ODU's offensive players. Despite Longwood's efforts, ODU won 1-0. Longwood will be looking forward to beating

ODU at the State Tournament.

Last Saturday, Longwood beat VCU 4-0. Betty Stanley had 2 goals, Julie Dayton 1, and Kathy Devine (Wildness) 1 goal. Kathy's goal was a flick from the top of the circle into the goal. Longwood is now 8-2, with only Madison (home), VPI (away), Bridgewater (home) left to play, come out and support the team to three more victories.

Riders Place

Longwood's riding team competed in its first show of the year Friday when William and Mary hosted an intercollegiate horse show at Oak Crest Riding School in Hayes. Coach Mary Whitlock's team brought home eight ribbons and scored 25 points in the nine-team show.

Five Lancer riders placed in the show. They were: senior Kathy Redmon, fifth in both open horsemanship and novice over fences; junior Shannon Chambers, first in novice over fences and sixth in novice horsemanship; junior Jennifer Ferguson, fifth in novice over fences; freshman Bryan Farrar, fourth in novice over fences and freshman Pam Svoboda, second in open horsemanship and fourth in open over fences.

The Lancers will resume action October 23 in a show hosted by James Madison and Mary Baldwin.

IAA

By PAM UPDIKE

John Todd is the Men's Singles Tennis Champ. This is his second year in a row. Second place winner is Kenny Leipertz, third place is Jeff Wall and fourth is Mike Lewis.

In Women's Tennis, the top four players thus far are: Cheryl Moore, Sharon Payne, Kim Garber, and Lisa Barnes. A winner will soon be decided.

Women's Flag Football has come to a close. The Crazy Eights from Curry defeated Alpha Sigma Tau in a close contest.

In Track and Field, Patty Lia is the overall winner in the Women's Division and Barb Greer is the second place winner. In the Men's Division, Jeff Wall is the winner, Bruce Morgan is second, and Jim Thacker taking third.

Soccer, Ultimate Frisbee, and Bowling are currently being played with a large number of students participating.

Volleyball entry blanks are available and are due Thursday, October 23. The Captain's Meeting will be on Monday, October 27 with play beginning on Tuesday, October 28.

Entry Blanks for Billiards are also available now. They are due on Monday, November 3.

During Oktoberfest, the IAA will sponsor Color Rush, a color class competition between the Reds and Greens which consists of relay races and various other activities. Color Rush will take place on Saturday morning, October 25, at 10:00 a.m. in Stubbs Mall. Come out and support your color class!

New Swimming Pool Policies

The working swimming committee, composed of all faculty departmental members who are teaching or supervising an aquatic class or activity during the school year, is responsible for selling policy for the use of the pool by on-campus and off-campus groups. The following are rules and regulations developed by this committee for the use of the pool by On-Campus individuals and/or groups.

Recreational Swim

1) Recreation swim times are set up at times which do not interfere with regularly scheduled departmental classes.

2) Recreation swim times are scheduled each semester for college students, faculty and staff, and special times for the children of faculty and staff.

3) Longwood College students may bring one guest during weekend Rec Swim (Friday nights through Sunday nights). This is contingent upon the maximum number allowable in the pool at any given time. Guests will be asked to leave if the number is over the maximum safety level.

4) Faculty and Staff are allowed one adult guest during any of the regularly scheduled recreational swims. Again, if the number in the pool is too great for safety, guests will be asked to leave.

5) Please bring current ID cards with you any time you use this facility. Lifeguards may ask for proper identification at any time.

HOURS OF POOL

Monday	8:00- 9:15 p.m.	Students Only
Tuesday	12:30- 1:30 p.m.	Students and Faculty
	8:00-9:15 p.m.	Students Only
Wednesday	8:00- 9:15 p.m.	Students Only
Thursday	12:30- 1:30 p.m.	Students and Faculty
	5:00- 6:00 p.m.	Faculty-Staff Only
	8:00- 9:15 p.m.	Students Only
Friday	3:00- 5:00 p.m.	Faculty-Staff and Their Children
	8:00- 9:00 p.m.	Students Only
Saturday	11:00-12:00 noon	Faculty-Staff Children (Children Only)
	2:00- 3:00 p.m.	Students Only
	3:00- 4:00 p.m.	Faculty-Staff Only
Sunday	3:00- 4:00 p.m.	Faculty-Staff and Their Children
	8:00- 9:00 p.m.	Students Only

"The Lady Lancers have brought pride to Longwood College with an unprecedented 8-2 mark."

By Jody Gilbert

Player Of The Week

In the world of soccer, goalies face perhaps their toughest test when opponents are awarded a penalty kick. With no one to help out, the goalie must go one-on-one with a foe who is trying his best to boot a shot into the net.

Longwood freshman goalie Jeff Carino, who stands a mere 5-7, faced not one but two penalty kicks in Longwood's game at Delaware Valley College last Wednesday. Carino, in only his second start of the season, stopped both penalty shots as the Lancers defeated Delaware Valley 4-1.

For his efforts in Wednesday's game and victories Friday and Saturday Carino has been named Longwood College Player of the Week for the period October 3-10.

"Jeff had 14 saves against Delaware Valley," coach Rich Pospinko pointed out. "Saving two penalty shots is almost unheard of. He has made tremendous strides since the season began."

Carino, a graduate of Gloucester High School, has been alternating in goal recently with another freshman Kurt Peters. He has helped Longwood ring up a 7-3 record as the Lancers have broken practically every team and individual school record. Last week Longwood won four games on a trip to Pennsylvania, defeating Valley Forge 7-0, Delaware Valley 4-1, Cabrini College 3-2 and Allentown 2-1.

An All-District performer in his prep career, Carino was MVP two years at Gloucester and captain his senior year. The Business Administration major is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Carino of Gloucester.

Support

The

LANCERS

PERINI PIZZA

PIZZA

SANDWICHES

OPEN:

Mon.-Thur 'til 10 PM, Fri. & Sat. 'til Midnight
104 HIGH STREET 392-5865

NEW!

ROAST BEEF SANDWICH

— Now Open Sundays 1 'til 9 —

Simkins Lecture

(Continued from Page 3)
Tennessee writers since 1865.

Dr. Young discussed southern fictional literature between the years 1925 and 1945 during WWI (modern period) and after WW II (contemporary period). He described the changing attitudes of the writer after WW II concerning place and function in literature. Young said, "Artists became more concerned with discovering their place in this absurd universe."

The universal myth of the human condition known as "the Southern Legacy" said Young, was the evidence of a more traditional society revolving around family, friendship, folkways and customs.

Young discussed in great length three main writers during this period. Donald Davidson, said Young, describes in his work the traditional society of the antebellum south. Davidson wrote how the south tried to establish and maintain democratic principles much like the society of Thomas Jefferson's day.

Allen Tate was the next writer discussed whose works revealed the southern value of literature which differs from the common American attitude. Tate describes the concrete forms of any lasting society such as the southern social point of view including conventional manners and a code of honor. Writers became contemporary when they lost this traditional identity and used a novelty of technique and a superior "detachment" from the society.

Writing took on a new consciousness after WWII with writers concentrating on time, not space, the present moment as unique, living by chance and forgetting one's own nature. The new contemporary writer described special characteristics within the plight of humans.

After WWII, Young described how the south had to re-enter the world. The attitudes of the paternalistic south and the capitalistic America were clashing and southern writers began to change. Young said this change was evident in such works as T.S. Elliot's Wasteland. "The Game of Chess" is a dramatic presentation describing the grandeur of the past. However, this past can no longer be participated in or passed on.

"Social responsibility and personal honor became meaningless to the post-modernist" said Young.

American attitudes had shifted to a European doctrine of perfectability for all people.

Commentary

(Continued from Page 4)

several other teaching assistants, feels that students need, "to focus their papers and develop a clear individual base in grammar from which to write." Dr. Sedgwick, who received a BA from Harvard, an MAT from Columbia Teacher's College, and a doctorate from Boston University, defines the basic need of most student writers as a need "to discover the perimeters of a sentence. For example, most students need to learn what a run-on, a fragment, or a comma splice is, and how to avoid these sentence problems."

The Writing labs serve not only the English department, but all college departments and all students. The labs are open and any professor may recommend a student for specific writing problems. Self-motivated students who desire assistance in specific areas may join a walk-in class until the problem is conquered. In today's job market, writing skills are an invaluable asset. With six graduate assistants willing to help students and prospective employees acquire these skills...WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR???

Your Turn

Red Wishes

Dear Student Body,

The Red and Whites wish to extend their best wishes for all, this Oktoberfest week end. May it be a time of joy, love and spirit for all to enjoy and cherish. Good luck Geist, Greens and Reds!

Blue & White love,
The Class of 1982 and
the Class of 1984.

Pageant

(Continued from Page 2)
for support are as follows:

- 1) The committee is willing to do away with the Miss Virginia Franchise on a trial basis.
- 2) Reorganization and structure of the committee has taken place.
- 3) They are aided by a Financial Advisor and are adding other advisors.
- 4) The overall interest by committee members to make the pageant successful and purposeful is strong.
- 5) They are going to try and obtain more publicity and support from patrons.
- 6) Increased involvement of Miss Longwood in more school activities would promote the pageant.
- 7) Support of continuing tradition.
- 8) The involvement of male students is an important function of the pageant.

For all the right reasons.

A gift of individual style. The Soft Tip Pen in lustrous chrome, gold filled or sterling silver.

$13.50 to $35.00.

CROSS
SINCE 1846

MARTIN
THE JEWELER
FARMVILLE VIRGINIA

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

THE HAIR HUT

LOCATED IN MERLE NORMAN STUDIO

233 N. MAIN STREET,
FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA
392-6343

SHAMPOO, HAIR CUT AND BLOW DRY

REGULAR $8.75 TO $9.75

WITH STUDENT I.D.
ONLY $6.75

NOW THROUGH OCTOBER 31
APPOINTMENT NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY

Rochette's Florist

119 N. MAIN STREET
FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA
PHONE 392-4154

FOR ALL YOUR FLORAL NEEDS
FOR OKTOBERFEST

PI KAPPA PHI

GET THE OKTOBERFEST SPIRIT ROCKING WITH The OKTOBERFEST PRIMER

Friday, October 24, 1980
2-4 P.M.

AT THE RED LYON

ALL CANNED BEVERAGES 60¢
DOOR PRIZES HOURLY

B & M Greenhouse

Welcomes ALL students with a bang!

10%
OFF

on all foliage & hanging baskets
(With student I.D.)

Brighten your room with something green.

B & M
Greenhouse

Greenhouse Rd. off Milwood Rd.

Monday - Saturday
8:00-5:00

SEE US ABOUT BABYSITTING YOUR PLANTS OVER BREAK.

KEY

OFFICE SUPPLY

392-5485

115 NORTH MAIN ST.
FARMVILLE, VA. 23901

OPEN

Mon.-Fri. 8:30 to 5:00

Sat. 9:00 to 1:00

Art Supplies

School Supplies

Through the month of October, Longwood 80 Count Notebook, Regularly $1.37, NOW 99¢

THE ROTUNDA

VOL. LVI

LONGWOOD COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1980

NO. 7

Spirit Not Dampened

Even though rain was the forecast for last Saturday, Oktoberfest 1980 was a successful event. The day started on a gloomy note with President Henry I. Willett and Geist members members making the decision to move everything inside. The rain, however, did not dampen the spirits of any of the participants.

Admission Tours, Alumni Meetings and a Parents Coffee occupied the early morning hours. Color Rush took over Iler gym. This activity sponsored by the Intramural Athletic Association found the Reds coming out on top in four of the seven events.

Lancer Hall Dedication was held at 10 a.m. The opening of the new gym drew parents, alumni, students and college officials. Former Governor Mills E. Godwin was the speaker for the event.

The Jazz Band performed in Blackwell Dining Hall as visitors and students crowded in for an indoor picnic ARA style. The lunch crowd next proceeded to Jarman Auditorium for the annual Pops Concert by Longwood's Concert Choir.

Midway was the main event of the afternoon. Decorations for festive booths on Lankford parking lot turned into decorations for tables in the Lower Dining Hall.

Booth chairman for many of the campus organizations began early Saturday morning setting up the Lower Dining Hall. Midway consisted of a total of 50 different booths selling various items from yearbooks to root beer. Because of the weather, the booths were not judged.

Midway was a popular area. Visitors sought shelter from the rain as a steady flow of people remained until its 4:30 closing. The Midway was opened by Mittenmeister Ross Connor from the balcony as the Concert Band played and the ushers and members of Geist looked on.

Other afternoon events included the Catalina Club Show, the Longwood Company of Dancers and the Blue and White ball game in Lancer Hall. The Biergarten occupied the Faculty Tea Room, and provided another shelter from the rain.

Color Class skits were performed as planned in Jarman. Saturday night was a sell out performance as the Green and Whites won the Oktoberfest Cup. Class chairmen for the week end were Lynn Campbell, senior, Chris Vontzolas, junior; John Todd, sophomore; and Lisa Harwood, freshman.

After skits Saturday night, eight alumni participated in the annual alumni Chi Walk. Cake Cutting followed the walk. This years cake was in the form of a gigantic Clown. Geist members who planned the week end are thankful to everyone who helped make the rainy Oktoberfest a spirited one. No ones spirits seemed to be dampened because of the rain.

Governor Godwin was the speaker for the dedication of Lancer Hall. (See Sports page for article) Photo by Melody Crowley

Red And Greens Combine For Blue

By BRENDA COLEMAN

With the playing of the first four notes of the Oktoberfest music, the color class skits began on Friday and Saturday nights. The many weeks of work and rehearsals finally came to a close as Reds and Greens shared those final few moments of anticipation and stagefright before going onstage to present their respective skits to the friends, parents and alumni who attended this past week end's festive events.

The evening began with the traditional Jarman dance done by the ushers. They first welcomed everyone to Oktoberfest and asked everyone to "join them in their German land and thrill to the sights" they would see. After performing their stage dance, the ushers introduced Mittenmeister Ross Connor who called upon the Klowns to perform their crazy antics before the skits.

The Reds (the classes of 1982 and 84) then presented their skit "The Spirit of Joan." Joan of Arc was given the chance to come back to Longwood to help those in need of her ideals. She is distressed at coming back until she sees Sally, an apathetic student who wants to participate in Oktoberfest, but had never done so. Joanie, in human form, befriends Sally and they become extras in the Red and White skit. They experience the love and friendship that generates around Oktoberfest and Joan returns to her statue form, knowing that by affecting one person, she has touched many.

The Klowns performed the second half of their act after the intermission. The gymnastic stunts, including squash, were incredible and all the mime acts were hilarious for young and old alike.

The Joan of Arc theme took on a different twist in the Green skit entitled "The Great Joanie Caper." The classes of 1981 and 83's skit began with two thieves entering the darkened Rotunda area and taking the statue of Joan of Arc. The Green and Whites discover the crime and hold a meeting to decide what to do. After some hesitation, they all decide that Oktoberfest can go on without Joan, except for Myron and MJ. They decide to solve the mystery and search the campus for the missing statue. They run into many misadventures involving ushers, klowns, and returned "human statues" before discovering the truth—CHI had taken the statue to see if the students of Longwood had enough Blue and White spirit to keep Oktoberfest going even though Joanie was not present. Oktoberfest had come without Joan because of the students, not because of a statue.

The eagerly awaited decision was then near at hand. The judges final tally was based only upon the skits' score because the color rush and booth points could not be added due to the adverse weather conditions. And the winners were—the Green and Whites with a score of 65-60.

New Dean Of Students Stresses Student Involvement

By JODI KERSEY

Longwood began this year with a new Dean of Students, Leo Salters. Salters said Longwood appeals to him because of the friendly and open tone on campus between administration, faculty, and students. Longwood has a tradition of attempting to provide education for women in particular and more recently men, continued Salters, which gives a degree of understanding and self-perception for the college. Salters said this reliance on the past which shows what others have done at the college is what can give students an awareness of roots at the college.

After receiving his bachelors and masters from University of Kansas and his doctorate from University of North Dakota, Salters has been associated with many colleges. He worked on the guidance bureau at University of Kansas, area coordinator at Penn State, Assistant Dean at Moorehead State College. For the last eleven years, Salters has been Dean of Students and Assistant Vice-President at SUMY.

Having only been at Longwood about a month, Salters says he is still gaining a perspective of Longwood, but doesn't perceive any great problems on campus. He said he plans to review residence halls and the health center. He feels that students should be responsible for their actions and look at their daily practices, since college students will have fairly important places in society. One concern mentioned by Salters was the overuse of alcohol by certain students of the college which has really become a societal phenomenon. He feels that problems such as these should be addressed in some systematic, representative way. If a student needs to use alcohol or vandalism to get attention, Salters feels that we need to make them become responsible for their actions and get them more constructively involved in the Longwood community.

The general direction Salters hopes to follow is to reinforce excellent student involvement. "Oktoberfest gave an impression," said Salters, "of the unselfishness and dedication on the part of the students, in particular, as they provided the ingredients of a successful celebration for Longwood College."

Photo by Jody Gilbert

Be A Klown

By BRENDA COLEMAN

Be a Klown, be a Klown, all of Longwood loved a Klown! What would Oktoberfest be without our twenty-two fabulous, funny, frolicking Klowns? Not half as fun or as wonderful!

Being a Klown takes long hours of practice and dedication. Many weeks have passed since Klown tryouts in September when twenty-two girls were tapped to show their blue and white spirit. Since that time, practice took place almost every night to prepare the Klowns for their show. The Klowns not only rehearsed their acrobatic and gymnastic skills, but also their pantomime and singing abilities. At the beginning, some of the Klowns could not even do a simple cartwheel; by last week, almost all were performing stunts ranging from handstands to somersaults. The Klowns were well on their way to a well-rounded entertaining program.

Visiting a Klown practice was like visiting full grown children rehearsing for a play. There was much seriousness, sweat, and hard work, but underlying it all was lots of love and cooperation. Anyone could tell that these girls really respected and cared for one another and worked together much like a well-oiled machine. This year the Klowns had added responsibilities to perform because of the incumbent weather. The rainy day could have dampened many a spirit, but the Klowns, with their colorful balloons and cheerful antics, kept many a smile on the faces of the people walking along the midway. How could anyone be blue with a Klown chasing away the sadness nearby!

How was it to be a Klown? "A lot of fun!" responded senior Kathy Hesse, who was a Klown for the first time this year. "I never thought about being a Klown before. However, I like 'clowning around' and have been doing so for 21 years. Being a Klown just made it official!"

Jeanette Arnold, the Klown who was at the top of the pyramid, emphasized that "this was the first Oktoberfest I've really enjoyed because I was a part of it. I met a lot of people I never knew before. The whole experience was fun and very interesting."

"I loved it!" declared junior Cheri Williams. "It really gave me the spirit of Oktoberfest and the togetherness of both the Reds and the Greens. It was great working so closely with others. A lot of work and dedication goes into being a Klown, along with time. If you don't have these three, you can't be a Klown. Besides," she added with a twinkle in her eye, "it got me in great shape!"

And what's it like to work with these Klowns? Rita Howe, faculty advisor to the Klowns responded that "It's been a whole lot of work, but it's all been worth it! The Klowns are great!"

"It was a challenge, especially since most of the Klowns were new, as opposed to past years, when mainly old Klowns returned," said Geist Head Klown Tracey Hornmuth. "We wanted to change a lot, so we did. Most of the ideas for mimes, skits came from the Klowns themselves. They should get so much credit because they had sixteen new Klowns. It was all worth it in the end! I'd do it all over again if I had to!"

The Klowns performed beautifully both Friday and Saturday nights. Their stunts and routines were never better, and the pantomimes were hilarious. Even though the building of the pyramid was not as successful as in years past, the Klowns did hold it for a couple of seconds during the second try on Saturday night. Either way, we love our Klowns and appreciate their efforts!

Photo by Melody Crawley

Color Rush 1980

By LISA SWACKHAMMER

It was a day for fun and games as Oktoberfest Saturday began with color rush. Not even the rain and overcast skies could dampen spirits as Reds and Greens lined up to compete in seven different events with one point given to the winning class in each event.

The competition started with the obstacle shoe race. Students had to run over one hurdle, through another, around a cone and crab-walk to where their shoes were placed. They then put them on and ran back to tag the next person. The race was close with the Reds being ahead one minute and the Greens the next, but the Greens came out the winner.

The next race was the back-to-back. Students were in pairs and had to run back-to-back the width of the court. This was also a very close race, but the Greens again came out the winner.

But the Reds were determined to prove themselves the better class and came back to win the caterpillar race. It came down to the last two pairs but the Reds pulled through to win.

Then came the wheelbarrow race and the Greens this time came out the winner. Next came the three legged race which also "came down to the wire" with the Reds overcoming the Greens.

The Reds were the ones to win the next event, the crackers and whistle race. While it was somewhat slower than the other events, it was still exciting.

The score was now tied three to three. The next event was the mattress race, which would decide the winner. It took two tries but the Reds came out the winners both times to win color rush four points to three.

Everyone will probably agree that color rush, as well as every other part of Oktoberfest, was an exciting and fun-filled event enjoyed by the spectators as well as the competitors.

Excellent Performance By Concert Choir

By PAM UPDIKE

The Concert Choir provided an Oktoberfest audience with a variety of popular music, Saturday afternoon in Jarman Auditorium. They opened the show with the popular "Send in the Clowns," featuring a solo by soprano Sue Wilkinson as the choir filed in from the audience. Marjorie LeReau, Concert Choir president, directed the next selection, "If You Believe," from The Wiz. Martha Paxton then sang a solo, singing "The Times of Your Life," accompanied by Cindy Riser on piano.

The concert changed its pace a little with a solo performance by Bonnie Conner and a saxophone solo by Lonnie Davidson to the popular favorite, "Moon River," by Henry Mancini. Jeanette Van Winkle accompanied on piano.

The second part of the concert opened with "I Know Where I'm Goin'," and the folk song, "Dust in the Wind," which featured a guitar and solo performance by Diane Walker.

The third portion of the concert was filled with popular hits such as "I Honestly Love You," and "Killing Me Softly With His Song," which offered a solo by Jennifer Ferguson and featured Laurie Hollinden on piano.

The show concluded with a medley from A Chorus Line, by Marvin Hamlisch. Such favorites as "I Can Do That," including a dance choreographed by Marjorie LeReau and featuring dancers, Pamela Craft, Jeanne Drewler, Laurie Hollinden, Lou Howell, Marjorie LeReau, Ann McGhee, Joanne Mosca, and Connie Reeves. The medley also included the moving, "What I Did for Love," and an excellent performance by Joanne Mosca and Sue Wilkinson for the song "Nothing." This song also had lines from the play and was an enjoyable change of pace, receiving a loud round of applause from the audience. The show stopping "One," concluded the concert.

The choral concert provided an otherwise rainy Saturday afternoon with sunshine and smiles.

Owodunni

Shares Techniques

By NEIL SAWYER

During the past week, the Campus School has enjoyed the benefits of an Artist-in-Residence. Mr. Adebisi Owodunni, a Richmond resident, has been giving demonstrations of African tie-dye techniques at the Campus School and Longwood Art Department along with lectures to various art classes.

Mr. Owodunni was born in Nigeria but now lives in Richmond with his wife and three children. He attended the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and graduated in 1973. He then went on to attend the Philadelphia College of Art and later, Virginia Commonwealth University where he received an M.F.A. in Sculpture in 1979.

He is now working under a grant from the Virginia Commission on Arts and Humanities which enabled him to visit Longwood. His objective is to, through the use of this grant, enhance children's awareness of art and artists and particularly to help minority children to realize their artistic potential.

Dance Company Christens New Studio

By BRENDA COLEMAN

The Longwood College Company of Dancers opened their new studio in Lancer Hall this past Oktoberfest week end with another excellent dance production. The graceful and talented dancers entitled their production "Improvisations," drawing their title from the varied studies performed.

The opening dance "Movement Study" incorporated the entire dance company in a highly structured and very technical composition. This dance led to a short improvisational dance called "Hats." The last dance study was "Flashlights" performed to the overture of the final number "The Wizard of Oz," a dance taken from a previous repertoire. This dance number was difficult to perform because of the studio's lack of proper lighting at this time. However, the girls and guys pulled it off in grand style.

The Dance Company's performances were so successful that an additional performance had to be added to accommodate all the parents, students, and alumni who wanted to see the show. This added up to a delightful christening of the new studio.

Al Bucquet

Artist Of The Month

By NEIL SAWYER

Recently, the faculty of the Longwood College Art Department have introduced a new award entitled, "Artist of the Month." This award has been designed to give Art majors and student artists alike on campus a chance to compete for a cash prize of $50 and to have their winning work displayed in the Art Department.

The winner for the month of October was a soapstone relief sculpture by Al Bucquet entitled, "God Creates, Man Isolates."

Al was born in Poland but immigrated to the United States in 1966. He attended Technical Community College in 1974 and completed two woodcuts and an acrylic painting which were chosen for an exhibit of works by foreign artists displayed at the Springfield Museum of Fine Arts.

He now lives in the Farmville area. He is working as an illustrator for Christian Publications in Kentucky while attending classes at Longwood.

